was received on the stock exchange with general approval. THE ENGINEERS' STRIKE. London, Jan. 19.—The Amalgamated Society of Engineers has formally indorsed the action of the joint committee of the trades unions in withdrawing the demand for 48 hours as a week's work, and has expressed the expectation that the lock-out notices posted by the masters will be withdrawn. The attitude of the employers remains unchanged. Many of the strikng engineers resumed work in the

Clyde yards, and a general resumption is expected on Jan. 24. AN ALL-BRITISH CABLE. London, Jan. 19.—The startling events in the far east are forcing into prominence again the Pacific cable question. The Daily Mail insists day after day upon the urgent need of an all-British cable. The Times devotes a column and a half to the Pacific cable project. The Times says: The immediate benefit from the Pacific cable would be felt by Canada. She has shown herself so well able to deal with the question on wider than a provincial range that we look with me confidence to her action. Canada's lead would be enthusiastically followed here and in Australia. IRISH M. P.S MEET. They are generand anticipate criminal proceedings. A verdict in favor of Lady Tatton Sykes was rendered yesterday in the suit brought by Mr. Daniel Jay, a money lender, to recover £15,870 loaned to the defendant on promissory notes signed apparently by her husband, Sir Tatton Sykes, but which the latter repudiated, on the ground that the signatures were forged. The foreman said the jury found that the signatures were not in the handwriting of Sir Tatton Sykes, and they therefore non-

Important Speech by Hon, Joseph Chamberlain,

Startling Proposal in Regard to the West India Sugar Industry.

Liverpool, Jan. 19.—The Liverpool Chamber of Commerce gave a banquet Chamberlain, secretary of state for Gladstone." the colonies. Lord Strathcona and The anno Mount Royal was also present. Mr. Chamberlain, in the course of a vigorous and important speech, referred to the great changes in commerce during the last twenty years. Since the great powers were bitten with the megalomania with which the Germans are accustomed to taunt us, as if it were our exclusive peculiarity, the German Empire has increased sixfold, and the French fourfold, while England," he said, "has only added a modest third to her colonial empire." Answering the argument that it is useless to colonize barren wastes, he pointed to the magnificent enterprise of the Canadian Pacific Railway, that had opened up & vast country of the greatest wheat fields, and was about to open what were perhaps the greatest gold fields in the world. "Looking to the certainty," he said, "that we are likely to be excluded by hostile tariffs from any country where the British flag does not float, our present policy is to take a very firm attitude and to maintain free markets. of the mill dead, with his head crushed. What the foresight of our ancestors has done for us in building a great empire, we must continue to do for tact with a large cogwheel and was our successors. First, to keep what rightly belongs to us; second, in Lord Rosebery's admirable words, to out claims for posterity,' and, third, if anyone tries to rush those claims generally to prevent them." (Laughter and cheers.)

Referring to "the fact that our sacrifices of territory and our gen-eral forbearance and deference to the sensibilities of our allies have only resulted in our being told that we are the best-hated nation in Europe," he repeated Lord Salisbury's warning:

W. JONES, auctioneer.

There were many objections, he continued, to countervailing duties, which would "involve us in commercial treaty difficulties with foreign nations," but the main objection was that while the was trade they wished to save amounted to 260,000 tons, Great Britain's own sugar imports amounted to 1,500,000 tons, It seemed unscientific to befieft the former by injuring the latter. "Therefore," he said, "the government advice, I procured the medicine, and has decided to exhaust every alternative before having recourse to such a drastic measure, and, feeling that the recommendations of the commissioners, though good, would not work quickly state that I doubted the power of any ended to a trial, as I was reduced.

Parliament a very large grant in aid of the West Indies. The grant will not be so large as the incidental gain Great Britain derives from the solution of the solution of the solution of the west indies. Great Britain derives from the bounty system; but it will be large enough to enable the industry and the population to tide over a crisis, until continental nations recognize the im-policy of the bounty system."

Mr. Chamberlain expressed his conviction that the immediate relief measures to be proposed, in addition, which he said he could not as yet explain in detail, would "stimulate the sugar industry and enable all well-managed estates to hold their own, while tending to the ultimate prosperity of the col-

PRESS COMMENT Chamberlain's West Indian scheme meets with scant approval. The Times says: "We are not great ly enamored of the system of doles, to which, by some fatality, the present government has resorted with unusual frequency. Perhaps for this urgent case it was the most expedient device; but it ought to be very clearly recognized as purely a temporary measure, and as no way absolving the government with the matter on a sound, permanent footing.

The Standard warns Mr. Chamberlain that his proposal "savors of protection," and that he must be pre-The Daily News also promises Mr. Chamberlain that the opposition "will deal with his plan on its merits when ally sympathetic with Sir Tatton Sykes it appears," and asks whether he has forgotten the vehement language in which he condemned the late government for voting a small grant to Newfoundland. The Daily Mail confesses to a feeling of intense disappointment, especially after the ringing imperial note of the remainder of the speech. It says: Unless the government has some means of getting bounties abolished without resort to countervailing duties, Mr. Chamberlain's proposal merely staves off bankruptcy and disaster."

Fatal Accident at the Waterlog

Street Crossing. Sad Death of Mr. George Booth, & Veteran Employe of the Grand Trunk Railway Company. A fatal accident occurred this morning on the G. T. R. at the Waterloo street crossing of the road. At 7:20 o'clock, Mr. George Booth, the watchman there, was struck by the outgoing Stratford train, and died at the city hospital as the result of his injuries, about two and a half hours later. The precise manner in which the accident occurred is not definitely known, but it is thought that Mr. Booth was struck by the corner of a car. Very probably he slipped as the train approached him, or was passing and his head came in contact with a corner of a car or a portion of the engine. WATERLOO VS. OSGOODE HALL. Waterloo, Ont., Jan. 19.-The swiftest game of hockey ever seen in Waterloo was played here last night between the crack Osgoode Hall seniors, of Toconto, and the home team. The visiting stalwarts narrowly escaped a shutout, as the fourth goal, their only one, was made from the puck rebounding from the boards, and striking Goalkeeper Koehler's skate. The score at hair-time was 4 to 1 for Waterloo, and at finish 8 to 1.

Mrs. Sternaman Will Face Another Jury.

When the Evidence Laid Before the Minister of Justice Will Be Gone Into.

Cayuga, Ont., Jan. 19.-The suspense over the Sternaman case, which yesterday had become almost painful, was last night relieved by a dispatch from and costs. Albright was about to the secretary of state at Ottawa er, The truth, of course, is that the stating that the minister of justice maintenance of the territorial integrity marry the third wife, when No. 2 got after him. They lived in Chatham and had granted the condemned woman a new trial. When the news was announced a loud cheer of satisfaction went up. British Views as to China.

Seizures by Russia and Germany and What They Mean.

It Would Be Commercial Suicide for Britain to Allow These Nations to Seize the Best Port of China.

As the London National Review is known to represent the views of an influential section of the Salisbury Cabinet, more than common interest attaches to its editor's comments on the seizure of Kiao Chau Bay by Germany. They are set forth in the January number under the caption "Episodes of the Month," but they are not free from ambiguity. On the one hand, an attempt is made to minimize the importance of the seizure, while, on the other, it is suggested that Japan has a right to protest against Germany's act. and it is further asserted that England could not afford to stand by and see China carved up by protectionist pow-ers whose policy would involve the closing of the Chinese market to British

The Review's disposition to avert an international quarrel by making light of the Kiao Chau incident is indicated by its favorable reception of a letter addressed to the London Times by the Shanghai correspondent of that paper. The writer points out that the German demonstration occasioned no surprise among the mercantile community of Shanghai for the reason that "Germany has, for the last two years, been giving unmistakable signs of her intention to obtain a naval station somewhere on the China coast." He goes on to say that it would be better that she should establish herself in the north rather than on the coast of Fo-kien, and seems inclined to think that "such an arrangement might tend to a wholesome preservation of the balance of power." Kiao Chau, with its great expanse of land-locked water and neighboring coal mines, is described as an ideal naval station. The belief is also expressed that no better field could be chosen than Shang Tung in which to expound to the Chinese the benefits of good government and of the proper development of their country. To the question how the seizure of Kiao Chau Regulate the Bowels. Purely Vegetable is likely to affect Great Britain, the Shanghai correspondent, who, pre-sumably, represents local British feeling on the subject, replies: "While, from the purely British standpoint, it would probably be advisable that so strong a position as Kiao Chau should not be held by any one European power, but that the port should simply be added to the number of those already opened under treaty, there would not appear to be any special objection to its being occupied by Germany."

It is recognized, however, alike by the Shanghai correspondent and by the National Review, that the Japanese and, for that matter, the Chinese also, have a right to ask that Russia, which, in 1894, intervened to preserve the integrity of the Chinese Empire in the case of the Liao Tung Peninsula, can now permit logically the occupation of Kiao Chau in 1897 by any foreign powof the Chinese Empire was only a pretence for Russia's demand for a revision of the Shimonoseki treaty. The czar's advisers foresaw that if Japan acquired possession of Corea and that Liao Tung Peninsula there was an end to their hope of acquiring an ice-free seaport, whereas, if the treaty were revised, it would be easy to secure from China, in return for financial services, the right to occupy such a port in winter. As a matter of fact, the German seizure of Kiao Chau Bay was promptly followed by the announcement that the Russian fleet would be allowed by China to hibernate at Port Arthur. The time has gone by when Englishmen were willing publicly to protest against Russia's reasonable wish for an ice-free port on the Pacific; indeed, it is recognized by the National Review that "every power desires to have a naval base in the North China Seas, and, moreover, every power considers itself entitled to make its choice at its own convenience." Japan already has Wei Hai Wei in her possession, and is entitled by treaty to retain it until the war indemnity is paid fully. She may request that, even after the pay ment of the indemnity, she may be suffered to keep it on terms equivalent to those upon which Kiao Chau is leased to Germany. The Review acknowledges that Great Britain herself has long shared Germany's ambition for a suitable port on the seacoast of North China, and predicts that the German government will be as unruffled by England's occupation of a harbor in that quarter as the British government was by the Kiao Chau episode. In fine, the people of the two countries are advised "to take their cue from me." She spoke in very tender terms of Mrs. Chipman, her first husband's newspapers." While it is admitted that, for com-

England has, however, immense commercial interests in the said: "If you leave this door open to-night I would not walk out. I would and resolute protection by British rather stay here till spring and receive a new trial, when everything will be brought out, and I shall then be quoted for the purpose of displaying quoted for the purpose of displaying the magnitude of the British stake in having the satisfaction of being an in- China. In 1895 the total foreign trade of China was valued at 314,989,926 taels; the haikwan, or customs tael, which her hair was neatly put up. She has changed very little since her trial two day worth about 81 cents in 1895, is today worth about 60 cents. To this total the commerce of Great Britain and British possessions contributed 213,521,-765 taels; that is to say, British subjects transacted 67 per cent of the whole foreign trade of the Celestial Empire. Again, the tonnage of the British shipping entered and cleared in Chinese ports in 1895 was 20,526,798 tons, while that of Germany, France, Russia, Denmark and the United States combined was only 3,224,271 tons, or less than one-sixth as much. We observe, lastly, that while in 1895 England had 4,084 residents in the treaty ports, the United States, which came next, had but 1,325; France, 875; Germany, 812, and Russia, 116.

The data just quoted show that Great Britain could not permit, without committing a species of commercial suicide, the partition of the Chinese seacoast among European powers, which, should they follow their habitual colonial policy, would shut her out of the Chinese markets.

Rare Recital by a Noted Organist-A Fine Programme.

The new organ of the Dundas Street Center Methodist Church was opened crowded the handsome edifice. Many were unable to gain admission, and missed an exceptional musical treat. the First Presbyterian Church, New York, an artist of more than continental reputation. He was a pupil of M. Guilmant, the Paris celebrity, who composed three selections for Mr. Carl and dedicated them to him. Mr. Carl also won triumphs at the World's Fair and at the Edinburgh and Stockholm international expositions. His performance last night confirmed his title as a great organist, and fully realized the expectation of his auditors. Perhaps his most popular number was Breitenbach's "Storm," a vivid musical portrayal of the varying moods of nature—the soft repose broken only by the shepherd's pastorale, the faint tremor of a rising storm, the gradual crescendo marking its approach, and then ! the swell and peal of the tempest, calling out the full power of the organ, its tones receding and dying into a sweet vesper hymn. This descriptive masterpiece was encored, Mr. Carl responding with "The Evening Star," from Tannhauser. Mr. Carl was on the programme for nine numbers, which were admirably chosen to exhibit his own wide artistic range, and the capabilities of the Karn-Warren organ, which proved a brilliant success.

The recital was diversified by some excellent vocal music. The choir of 60 voices, under Mr. W. H. Hewlett, rendered Gounod's "Unfold, Ye Portals," with splendid effect. They were assisted by 25 girls representing the angelic choir, with a cornet obligato by Mr. Irwin. The unaccompanied chorus, "Come Unto Him" (Gounod) was an exquisite performance, showing perfect precision and balance. Miss Roblyn distinguished herself by charming solo, which was encored. The church quartet—Miss Roblyn, Miss Ruse. Mr. Skinner and Mr. Carrollgave the ever-welcome "Lead, Kindly

W. Karn & Co.'s factory at Woodstock are famous. Electricity-the marvelous agency by which science has produced countless wonders-has been harnessed in many amazing ways by the makers of this magnificent instrument. Built entirely on the electric system, it admits of many artistic contrivances not other wise possible, and thus, on the mutual ground where science and art merge, the highest attainment of each is happily combined. It was built under the superintendence of Mr. Charles S. Warren, the pioneer pipe organ builder, and contains many unique features, in improvements. Besides the three manuals, it has a large pedal organ, 37 speaking stops, 15 couplers, 8 electric combination pistons, crescendo pedal, stop switch, etc. Each manual is coupled to the other by unison, sub and super-octave couplers, capable of producing innumerable and entrancing solo effects. The delicate voicing of the lighter stops is especially fine, and the full tone of the organ is rich and powerful—a veritable flood of melody. To say that the organ is a credit to the house, Dr. McKay. makers is putting it mildly. They have achieved a notable success in its manu-

Nearly 30 years ago the firm of D. W. Karn & Co. began the manufacture of reed organs at Woodstock, and their being sold in all parts of the world. Some seven years ago they began the manufacture of the Karn pianos, both grand and upright, and the demand for them has been enormous. A few months ago they added a pipe organ department to their extensive plant, and in this line, as in the others, the aim of the firm is to make the best instruments that skill and workmanship can produce. Dundas Center Church people are to be congratulated upon the fine instrument.

"It is very effective, and shows excellent workmanship," said Mr. Carl, the distinguished New York organist, who has for some years past been called to organ openings in all parts of the United States. "I am very much pleas-

MANAGER John Cameron.

London, Wednesday, January 19, 1898

Welcome!

The Advertiser, on behalf of its many thousands of readers, welcomes the members of the Western Ontario Butter and Cheese Association, who begin their important annual convention in London today. Though the strangers year when our charming city looks its best, we are confident that they will receive none the less cordial welcome In attendance we regard as identified with the city, and interested in its prosperity. They constantly do business here, and find that London is a most desirable purchasing, selling and shipping center. Our citizens, in turn, are interested in the success of the great industry with which the delegates at the convention are identified. As Canadians, we can all rejoice at the steady progress which the dairying interests of the Dominion, and especial- policy. It points out that the business some specially remarkable adaptation ly of this the banner Province, have made in the past. It is most satisfactory to find that during the year 1897 our principal customer, Great Britain, ing, and the reasons for reaching the ing force, but at other times it seems increased her purchases of our cheese to the extent of $2,800,000 over those of the previous year, while the value of our exports of butter to Britain was increased by over half a million ceedings, but no paper doing the work dollars. We now almost control the that a journal like the Spectator is foreign cheese supplies of Great Britain; but our butter exports could be enormously added to. New Trial for Mrs. Sternaman. Mrs. Sternaman, the Haldimand county woman, convicted at last assizes in Cayuga of poisoning her husband, will not be hanged tomorrow, as originally decreed. The new evidence laid before the Minister of Justice, and the affidavits of jurymen who pronounced upon her case in the late trial. have moved the Dominion Cabinet to grant the unfortunate woman a new trial. In taking this course, the Ministers do not reflect in any degree on the trial judge; they but carry out section 748 of the Criminal Code of Canada, which permits the Minister of Justice to grant a new trial where there is doubt as to the grounds upon which a verdict has been arrived at. In this case, there are the gravest of doubts. Affidavits of a serious character, pointing to a confirmation of the woman's plea of innocence, which she has all along maintained, and with which she was evidently going to the gallows, were submitted to the Minister of Justice. One of these was a sworn statement by Coroner Thompson, of Cayuga, who says that there was evidence that the body of Sternaman had been embalmed prior to burial, which would account for the presence of arsenic in it. The coroner supplied a full explanation of why he did not give this evidence at the trial. Other important affidavits by Mr. German, M.P.P., counsel for Mrs. Sternaman, were by jurymen who sat on the case. They have sworn that they clearly understood that the words, "guilty, with a recommendation to mercy," meant a sentence of imprisonment, otherwise they would have refused to join in the verdict of guilty, as they considered the prisoner ought to have the benefit of the doubt which existed in their minds. Over 1,000 leading residents of Cayuga and neighborhood atsa petitioned that the life of Mrs. Sternaman might be

In view of the circumstances, the general public will consider that the ends of justice will be met by giving the woman another trial, where the new evidence may be heard, and in which jurymen will pronounce upon the whole case free from the misapprehension under which several of those who rendered the recent verdict say they labored. While there were some circumstances pointing strongly to the guilt of Mrs. Sternaman, there was no direct proof of her guilt. It was not asserted, as it often is in cases of husband-poisoning, St. John's attacks on the means adoptthat the woman desired to rid herself of one man that she might get another. Restricting Immigration to the ple who cannot act as foolish as the United States

A measure of importance to Canada, PLAYED though not now directly affecting it, has just passed the United States Senate, and will in all probability become law. The measure imposes some very severe and probably warranted restrictions on immigration. A somewhat similar enactment was brought forward when Mr. Cleveland was president, but it was vetoed by him, on the ground that it contained enactments which made an unfair attack on Canada. From the measure now passed, these obnoxious provisions relative to and the United States of laborers have been dropped. The new law simply provides that all immigrants, physically capable, and over 16 years old, shall be able to read or write the English language or some other language, but a person not able to read or write, who is over 50 years old, and is the parent or grandparent of a qualified immigrant over 21 years old, and capgrandparent, may accompany the immigrant, or the parent or grandparent may be sent for and come to join his family of the child or grandchild over 21 years old, qualified under the law; any wife or minor child, not able to write, may accompany or be sent for and come to join the husband or parent who is qualified. The act does not apply to persons coming to the United States from the Island of Cuba during the continuance of present disorders there, who have heretofore been inhabitants of that island. It is also provided that steamship companies shall take back to Europe the wife and children of an immigrant who have failed to meet the requirements of the new law. One result of the strict enforcement of these restrictions will certainly be to curtail immigration to the United States, and to compel many persons who are capable of making a living, but whose early education has been neglected, to look for homes else-

The farmers in the Legislature knew this. Hence their indisposition to follow the Toronto lawyer in his extraordinary attempt to have the elections run with a piggery plank in the Opposition platform. This, too, accounts for Mr. St. John's eleventh hour plea that he never meant to condemn the Government for its action in the matter, but only the Dominion officials-by the way, they are Conservatives. But. as the Conservative-Patron M. P. P. points out, if in this respect the Dominion officials have but carried out the law as they have been doing for years, wherein can he hope to make an Ontario campaign issue of their conduct? Canadian farmers are neither babies nor idiots, and they will take no stock in such an issue.

Schoolboys Experiment on a Playmate -Nearly a Fatal Accident-

Allison Is Cool. A gruesome tale comes from Doon It is an account of a hanging. It wasn't an official execution, but a private one, held under the auspices of Doon school boys. One by one several of the lads stepped to a postion beneath a beam in the woodshed, over which a rope was thrown, and he was hanged-not from around the neck, but from under the armpits. Soon it came little Carl Franz's turn to suffer the extreme penalty, and he was accordingly drawn up into space. There was the passage to and fro between Canada a knot in the rope which had escaped notice. It was pulled across the beam, and when the lad was being lowered again, the knot caught on the other side and Carl was hanged in earnest. Blood ran from his nose, and it was some time before the frightened children could get their playmate liberated from his precarious position. He was quite used up when the rope was taken off him. News of the affair spread quickly over the village, and excitement ran high until it was known beyond doubt that the lad was not liketo suffer any serious results.

WELL KNOWN VIOLINIST

Traveled Extensively Throughout the Provinces - Interesting Statements Concerning His Experience.

STELLARTON, N.S .- James R. Murray, a well known violinist, of this place, who has traveled extensively throughout the Provinces, makes this statement:

"I was running down in health and my weight fell of from 175 to 150 pounds. Prescriptions did me but little good. My trouble was called nervous dyspepsia. I resorted to Hood's Sarsaparilla and after taking five bottles I was greatly benefited. I feel as well now as ever in my life, and have increased in flesh so that I now weigh 177 pounds. I am well known in this part of the country, having followed my profession, that of a violin musician for the last 26 years. I gladly tell my friends what Hood's Sarsaparilla has done for me. Before I began taking the medicine I did not have any ambition, but now all is changed and my dyspeptic trouble perfectly cured." JAMES R. MURRAY. B. If you decide to take Hood's Sarsaparilla, do not be induced to buy any substitute. Be sure to get Hood's.

"The Grand Old Cow"

Opening of the Butter and Cheese Convention Here.

Address of the President, Mr. Alex. F. McLaren, M.P.

The Dairy Interest Is the Farmer's Klondike-But They Must Not Cease Working-More Education Wanted- | filthy, slimy, factory. The President's Advice.

The annual convention of the Butter and Cheese Association of Western Ontario began in the Grand Opera House, this city, at 1 o'clock this afternoon, the president, A. F. McLaren, M.P., of Stratford, in the chair. There was a good attendance of members, thoroughly representative of the great dairying interests of Western Ontario. The first business was the president's address, which was very well received. Mr. McLaren opened with a patriotic reference to the Queen's jubilee. He traced the history of the association since its organization in 1868, as the Canadian Farmers' Association, the name being changed in 1877 to the Dairymen's Association of Western Ontarlo, and last year to the Butter and Cheese Association of Western On-tario. Mr. McLaren prophesied that Canadian butter would soon occupy the at present occupied by Canadian cheese. It was marvelous to note the number of cheese factories which this fall and winter had been converted into creameries, for the purpose of making butter in winter. The time was coming when they required "combination" men, who could make butter in winter and cheese in summer. He advised every good cheese man to learn to alluded to the necessity of factories employing the official inspectors and instructors instead of private men. Cheese makers, he said, were often held responsible for inferior goods when no $2 37. Council meets again the first duce good cheese with the milk supplied him, as it was almost impossible, owing to the weather, for farmers to supply good milk at certain times. The blame should be placed where it belonged.

The president urged the desirability of appointing more instructors. At least ten cheese inspectors and instructors, and as many butter inspectors, would be required to do the work well. The government had been very liberal, and he hoped Hon. Mr. Dryden, the minister of agriculture, would in-crease the grant. He would like to see est woman bicycle rider in the world, a system by which the patrons of each cheese factory or creamery would pay ill, probably beyond recovery, in this at least 25 cents per year, which would city and her physician attributes the create a large fund to employ more incause of her affliction to the riding of spectors. The legislature should ema wheel. Mr. McLaren warned the association that other provinces of Canada, the United States and New Zealand, were Dodd's Kidney Pills Are First Favorites | Watching Ontario's dairy interests very closely, and pushing her hard to get a similar position in the markets of the world. He pointed out the folly of Ontario dairymen getting the swelled head, folding their arms and saying "We are the people." "We must keep kicking the ball if we want to stay in the race. (Applause.) We have all the education and facilities, and if we only apply ourselves we will keep to the front. Today we have a chance to do th one acre and one cow what they did years ago with two acres and two cows. What has done this? I answer, Education." (Applause.) ident, to make light of conventions,

It was senseless, continued the presagricultural colleges, farmers' institutes and bulletins. What they wanted was still more education. He asked them to think seriously what the grand old cow had done for them. "The but-If you have built castles in the air, dike, and we must push hard if we want to do business in the present age." (Applause.)

The president gave some advice at length on dairying methods, which he pitomized in the following rules:

NILESTOWN.

Nilestown, Jan. 19.-The R. T. of T. Council convened in the hall on Monday evening with Samuel Grigg, of ondon, in the chair. The attendance was about 150. The subject for discussion was: "Resolved, that the franchise should be extended to wo-men." Messrs. R. J. Colgrove, principal of public school, Dorchester Station, and John Durand, ex-principal, discussed the proposition for the negative, and Messrs. Spence and James Hutchinson for the affirmative. After arguments extending over two hours the decision was given in favor of the negative by the referees-Messrs. C. V. Emory, of London, and Creighton and Procunier, of this place.

88 men and 2 women. The nationality of these offenders was as follows: English, 233; Irish, 224;

The total number of summary cases 1,008 persons were proceeded against, 932 of whom were men and 76 women. Of these persons 421 were charged as drunks, 390 men and 31 women. Last year shows an increase of only two on the whole, and a decrease of six in the number of drunken women. Whenthese figures are compared with ten years ago, they are both interesting and gratifying. The police are doing their part toward lessening crime, by preventing it. In 1887 the total num-ber of persons charged with summary offenses was 1,844. Of these 968 were drunks-938 men and 60 women-a decrease compared with 1897 of 540 drunken men and 35 drunken women. The vagrants in 1887 were 107 men and 27 women, and this year shows a slight increase. The persons convicted in 1887 were 907 men and 76 women. During the same period 795 men prisoners were discharged and 73 women. There has bee nmany cases of vagrancy which have not appeared on the blotters, owing to the legislation passed at the last sittings of the local house, giving officers in charge of police districts and stations power to discharge prisoners. HONORE'S FATE.

"I left him lying there, of course, and hurrying through the wood reached my own cottage an hour afterwards, from quite an opposite direction.
"Gabriel Myddelton could better tell the rest, as his counsel told it for him at his trial, when my words and Marhad returned from Kinbury that night to ask his uncle's pardon. He had taken his way through the wood, intending to gain admission to the squire's room through the very window I had opened, that the servants might not "I had a lover then who was warden know of his return at all, if his uncle in the Kinbury jail, and though I did not forgive him. In the wood he had never listened to him before, I opened, that the servants might not know of his return at all, if his uncle had found his uncle lying, and, astonished and alarmed at what he thought must be a sudden illness, he had raised the old man's head in his arms. What he saw I need not to, though I am dictating this confession as fully as possible, for a relief to my burdened "A horrible fear seized young Gabriel Myddelton that the suspicion of this fould deed would fall upon himself. He saw even then the chain of evidence against him which really brought him at last to the cell of a doomed criminal. "Timid as he was by nature, there was but one course he could decide upon. He fled from that spot in the wood as if his uncle's fate awaited him there; and he never stopped in his flight until he reached my cottage, and found protection and help—as he fancled. He washed the blood from his hands, burned his stained cristbands, and changed the coat on which the old man's head had fallen and left its

"Margaret told all this at the trial, and I stood by, and I knew the words large, low dog-cart, closed at the back, would hang him. But he himself had another explanation of the tale to give, and now I swear that his was the truth; and ours, even though in many respects true to the letter, held a lie

"I helped him that night, simply that I might know where he lurked; for, from the first, I had determined that suspicion must rest upon him. All my old plans were frustrated by this unnecessary and inconvenient murder, and personal safety now was my one in every action. In my first fear I had begun to destroy the will, but now I thought of a fiendishly skillful pian. The fragments of the will which disinherited him should be found in his possession, and he should be overtaken in his endeavor to escape. This, with what my daughter and I could tell, would fix the crime upon him; and not for a moment did the betrayal of his confidence weigh with me, beside my terror lest my own guilt should be discovered.

"The rest all followed as I had planned and foreseen. What I have told is known only to myself and my daughter, and I have heard her solemn oath that she will add her confession to mine. After I had sworn to Gabriel Myddelton's guilt—yes, from the very first—I grew a changed and miserable man; and this excruciating daily death which I have suffered since the clay fell upon me in the mine, is, I know, but a just punishment for my crime.

"Now-solemnly, as if in the presence of my God-I swear that this is truth, and confirmed, upon oath, in the presence of my daughter Margaret. in whose hands I leave it. (Signed) BEN-Royden raised his hand, and for s

"Possibly these words will never be read by any eyes save my own, for I only write them because my father extorted an oath from me that I should do so, and leave them to be made pub-lic after my death. With whom can I leave them? Gabriel Myddelton, even if he is still alive, is too far away to be either hurt or helped by this confession-even if it were made public tomorrow. I am young and strong, and may wait for years for death to visit me. And when it does, who will be near to bear this release to Gabriel his confession has been hard and sore, but to write my own will be far harder. My father looks upon his bodily sufferings as his punishment; but no punishment which could be given to me on earth could relieve me from the load of guilt which has been secretly and slowly killing me since I met that one glance of Gabriel Myddelton's, while the judge pronounced upon him the sentence of death. My father almost seems to feel that he is pardoned for his share in this vile deed; I wish I dared to hope that when I stand upon that awful threshold of the door of death I might feel that I, too, am pardoned. The weight of guilt has borne me down and isolated me among my fellow-creatures, and it will weigh me fellow-creatures, and it will weigh me down and isolate me to the end.

"I have very little to add to my father's confession. What I told at the trial about Mr. Myddelton's assuming a disguise at our cottage was true in every particular. What I did not tell was his confession to us, so honestly given, and which my father has re-lated. He threw himself upon our mercy, and we betrayed him, and swore away his life. That thought stings me, even now, with a pain worse than "It was an unnatural and unencouraged thought of mine, but I should have said, up to the day of that trial, that I would have laid down my life for Gabriel Myddelton. It was no new thing to me to lie awake at every noise, trembles violently and at night and think of Gabriel Myddel- seems in imminent deadly fear of a ton, but it was new to him, and I saw the change telling upon him, though I perience: was proud to feel that no sense of either fear or honor would turn him

"The day and the hour came at last, and though my face was as white as death that morning when I rose, I felt more nearly happy than I had felt since that night when Gabriel Myddelton's confidence in as had been so vilely

"My husband—he was my husband on the following day—hired for me a and a fleet, but very quiet-looking pony. In this cart I drove myself alone into Kinbury, and, calling a boy who stood in the yard of the jail-a boy brought there by my husband for this especial purpose, though he looked to be only idling there), gave the pony into his charge. He stood steadily at its head, his back to the door and to the vehicle, and I passed in with the order that my husband had obtained for me, and was admitted by himself into the condemned cell. What could be feared from me, when it was so well known that I had done most of all to bring the criminal to that cell? "I wore two shawls and two dresses exactly the same, one concealed be-low the other; and under my skirt I had secreted a bonnet, veil and gloves, precisely the same as those I wore myself.

"My husband had been for days cleverly acting his part, and his fellow-officials now knew him to be thorough-officials now knew him to be ly imbued with a disgust for old Myddelton's convicted murderer, and a demonstratively, staunch belief in the justice of his sentence. So it was that no breath of suspicion attached to either of us, and permission was readily granted me to see Gabriel Myd-delton, on the plea that I had lived near him all my life, and we had been

"By skillful means, my husband attracted the turnkeys as far as possible from the passage to the cell, though, of course, they stayed where they could see me walk back to the dogcart. I passed out, and then passed back again into the cell.

The Foremost Medical Company in the World in the Cure of Weak Men Makes this Offer.

HEALTH AND ENERGY ASSURED. HAPPY MARRIAGE, GOOD TEMPER, LONG LIFE.

In ril the world to-day—in all the history of the world—no doctor nor institution has treated and restored so many men as has the famed ERIE MEDICAL CO. of Buffalo, N. Y. This is due to the fact that the company controls some inventions and discoveries which have no equal in the whole realm of medical science.

So much deception has been practiced in advertising that this grand old company now for the first time makes this startling offer:—
They will sand their costly and magically effective appliance and a whole month's course of restorative remedies, positively on trial without expense to any honest and reliable man!
Not a dollar need be advanced—not a penny paid—till results are known to and acknowledged by the patient.
The Erie Medical Company's appliance and remedies have been talked about and written about all over the world, till every man has heard of them.

Eighteen-Year-Old Girl Seriously Ill as the Result of a Trance.

Was Placed in a Mesmeric Sleep by a Fellow-Boarder as

Has a Lively Fear of Death-Sought Relief in Two Hospitals-Will Never Be the Same.

Philadelphia, Jan. 18.—The entry in the dispensary record of St. Mary's Hospital regarding this extraordinary case reads:

"Kate McDowell, 18 years, mill worker, No. 1,649 Philip street.
"Until two weeks ago was in excellent health, when she was put into a hypnotic sleep by a gentleman boarding in the same house, who claims to have Svengalic powers. "She went into this sleep at 9 p.m. and awoke the following morning at 7 o'clock, but, though knowing she was awake and conscious of her surroundings, she was unable to open her eyes for two hours afterward; since this time she has been extremely nervous, imagining something fearful, such as impending death, was going to overtake her; has lost appetite and

There is not the slightest doubt that Miss McDowell is suffering from the belief that she has been hypnotized, if not from hypnotism itself. Before she was hypnotized by Michael Murray, a molder, a fellow-boarder in the house at No. 2,538 Lawrence street, where she was living, Miss McDowell was a robust, normal and healthy girl. She was employed as a winder in a Kensington textile mill, and was an excellent worker. The young woman was fond of social pleasures. The boarders in chose. "It was four weeks ago last Wednesday my troubles began. Alice Donnelly, a chum of mine, was with me in the boarding-house. She was talking about hypnotism. Mr. Murray, who was there, said that he could hypnotize me. I dared him to try it, because I did not think he could. "He placed me in a chair and began looking at me from across the room. Presently he said sternly, 'In a few minutes I will make you get up out of that chair.

when he put me in the trance, and I do not remember anything until 7 o'clock the next morning, but my friends told me what happened. "They told me that Mr. Murray ordered me to get up. I did not make any reply, but tried to rise. I nearly fell to the floor before those about me caught me. They took me out side to give me air, and I began to tremble with cold. I caught chilis and fever. Mr. Murray came out and watched me, and said that he had proved that he could mesmerize peo-

"I was awake a long time in the morning before I could open my eyes. I knew perfectly well where I was, but I did not seem to have any physical control of myself. After a time I was able to go down stairs. I saw Mr. Murray in the dining-room eating, but I could not go in there, I was afraid to be where he was. I am afraid to meet him on the street now, although I do not think that he will ever try to hypnotize me again.
"I could not go to work that day I was so weak and nervous, and I have been getting worse and worse ever since. I worry all the time. Everything excites me. A noise drives me nearly frantic. "I have tried to fight against the feeling, but it is of no use. I met Mr. Murray in the boarding-house several times, but his appearance always frightened me, and so I was at last compelled to go and live with my

"I have been to two hospitals. The doctors have told me that I will never be the same again. They gave me medicine at the Union Mission Hospital, and it has done me some good, but I am afraid that I will never recover. I have not been able to do any work since I was hypnotized." Michael Murray is a rather good-looking and intelligent young man. He would not talk about the affair beyond saying that it was all nonsense. He intimated that Miss McDowell was suffering from a natural illness and that she had been drawing upon her imagination. Murray said that he never claimed to have hypnotic power. Other members of the household de-clare that the hypnotizing was all a joke and that it had been agreed upon by Miss McDowell and Murray forehand that she was to pretend that she was under his influence.

vellum, and with a deep black border, "Comfort in Sorrow; the Fruits of a Mourner's Reading. From the English. By De B." It is Princess Beatrice of Battenberg's book, and consists of a preface and 45 chapters. It begins with the motto: "A little while our time of waiting lasts, and then our work in this world is complete.' The preface is signed by a German clergyman, Henr G. Vogel, who has been requested to explain that the thoughts and aphorisms of this book are translated by the authoress from the English.

The Princess Beatrice begins the first chapter thus: "Death has touched with his hand and taken away a beloved one whom it was hard to give up. But you do not know the thousandth part of the reason why this had to be. Where do they now abide who have been removed from our eyes? What are they doing? Was not the beloved one God's own from the be-ginning? May we not think that the Lord had need of him?

"When a loved one disappears from our gaze it is wonderful how death gradually takes a more beautiful form. and how the unknown world appears ever more familiar to us, and the goodness of God greater than ever be-fore * * We say that death fore * * We say that death rends asunder a family or friendly circle, but this is not so. The circle is not complete until some of its members are missed." In the tenth chapter the princess could better bear this misfortune. Oh! how often similar thoughts poison grief, make it harder to bear. There is nothing more unchristian than to meditate upon such useless things, because it is overlooking the Author of our lives, who doeth all things well." The princess pens some fine thoughts like these: "If God encircles us with darkness let us abide therein. In vain is it we seek to illuminate darkness with candles. It must remain dark.

Perhaps we may then discover new beauties in the stars. "Do they pray in Paradise? Can we doubt it? As long as the spirit dwelt in the flesh it was quite taken up with prayer, and its power was its joy and support. It will pray again when once reunited with the body in the new. everlasting life. Shall it otherwise only abstain during the state between death and the resurrection? If the soul lives on it must surely be able to Discussing whether we may beg saints to pray for us in Paradise, the princess says: "We do not dare go so far that it would mean worshipping them; that is due to God alone. We dare not address prayers to any creature, even if we knew that spirits departed could hear us. And we have no right to endow them with divine knowledge. We dare not ask their prayers."

The princess reasons that the saints in Paradise are to us as grownup peo-ple are to children. "They are in the big people's rooms; we are only in the nursery and the schoolroom. They do not understand all, perhaps, but we may believe they delight in watching every step we make forward toward the last great triumps. How they must smile sometimes at our blindness."

LIFE LIKENED TO A TROUBLED SEA. Life is spoken of by the princess as of Bethlehem shines over him and leads him on to safety. But this star does not always shine with equal brilliancy, so we may feel its value all the more. The Lord lets his children wander alone sometimes, so they may learn to love him all the more. One thing is certain, a ship with Christ on board must at least reach the happy shore.' Reflecting on the purpose of pain the princess writes: "Turn your thoughts to the Saviour. Is he not full of sympathy and tenderness for us? And yet he looks upon all grief and misfortune without putting an end to it. He feels our suffering, and yet he enjoys perfect peace. May it not be so with our dear ones? It may be that they seek light where to all is darkness, that they feel joy where we feel grief, that they smile where we weep.' The book is written throughout in the mpersonal style, does not contain a single autobiographical allusion, but displays deep tenderness of feeling and sublime religious belief.

The annual general meeting of St. James' Presbyterian Church was held in the school room last evening. There was a large attendance of members and adherents, but only a few took any part in the discussion. Rev. J. G. Stuart, moderator of the London Presbytery, occupied the chair, and Mr. Neil McNeil acted as secretary.
The meeting opened with devotional exercises, after which the reports of the several church societies were read. Many of these expressed regret that Rev. M. P. Talling and Mrs. Talling had removed to Toronto, and wished them success in their new home. The report of the session showed the total membership to be 210, of whom 13 had joined during the year-2 by certificate and 11 by profession of faith. Two had removed from the city. WILL THEY CALL A PASTOR? The question of filling the pulpit was then taken up. Mr. James Campbell asked if the financial standing of the church would permit of a pastor being Mr. T. A. Rowat said that he regretted to say that taking away the $1,000 which Mr. Kent had donated, the position of the church was not so good as last year; in fact, some $300 behind. Rev. Mr. Stuart stated that when he became moderator of the presby-tery the mortgage debt was $7,300, with a floating debt of $1,200, a total of $8,500. He as interim moderator would like to know just what policy the congregation intended to pursue, as it was not always best to wait. They should have a definite policy and then stand

Mr. Campbell said he understood that a young unmarried man was what the church wanted, but the men supplied had all been married men of experience.

Mr. Neil McNeil, speaking of the matter, said he was one of three chosen to provide the supply, and was pitted against two ministers. They had thought it best to have an experienced man. The calling of a minister was a most important step. If he were a success he might manage to pull the church out of its present difficulties, but if not he was the last minister St. James' Church would ever call. Calling a minister was easy, but it was a difficult matter to pay him. The books did not show a sufficient revenue to pay a minister a good stipend. Rev. Mr. Stuart said he had done his best to procure the best suitable supply available. There was a deficit last year of $338, and $1,200 for the past five years. It was a difficult matter to deal with. They should ask themselves whether it was wise to call a minister at all or not, and if so, was the call going to be successful. It struck him forcibly that St. James' would have a better field in the north, and he believed that in the near future another be established 'Why should it not be St. James?" he asked. He said it seemed queer to him how people still stood to the old

The names of Rev. Mr. Elliott, of Nairn, and Rev. Mr. Anderson, of Guelph, were suggested, and he asked that these gentlemen be requested to preach again.

Mr. Rowat thought this was tantamount to a call. He doubted if the presbytery would sanction the call if made, as the books did not guarantee any salary. Going back $200 or $300 per year was not encouraging. He hought another move and reorganization better. He regretted that a good opportunity had been thrown away when they refused to go to the Congregational Church. They had every thing in their favor. The people would have become Presbyterians, given the building, and called the church St. James'.

Mr. McCurdy, sen., said a good man could pull the church together again. The congregation could go over to the Congregationalists any time. He opposed a move to the north end, and advocated the call of another minister. If he failed, the church would go down and the people could go where they
