MASKED MEN AT WOODSTOCK HOLD UP C. P. R. OPERATOR

Clean Him Out of Watch and Money and Rifle Till of a Large Sum.

[Special to The Advertiser.]

Woodstock, Oct. 9.—The night operator at the C. P. R. station here, which is on the outskirts of the city, was held up by masked burglars at 2:35 this morning, and his silver watch and chain, $10 25 of personal funds, and $52 20 of office money was taken. The latter was secured by prying open the till. The first indication Operator Harry Southcott had of anything wrong was when he heard "hands up" called out. He turned and saw a man pointing a revolver at him through the ticket window. His hands promptly went up. The second masked man then climbed over the partition, and with a rope and a strap secured the operator's hands and feet, after which they rifled his pockets and the till in a businesslike manner and decamped. After a time Southcott managed to free himself and telephoned police headquarters, and in a short time the whole force was after the daring men. They have good clues, which are expected to lead to their apprehension.

Auditors on a Hunt for Vouchers; Rumored Accounts May Not Be Passed

Interesting Statement of a Dealer as to Short Weight of Cars of Coal Received.

The coal matter, like Banquo's ghost, refuses to stay down. It is still the talk of the man on the street. In addition, there comes the rumor that the auditors have refused to pass the accounts for the coal until the vouchers are forthcoming. It is certain that the auditors are at present working on the school board accounts.

It is also known that there have been vouchers for the hard coal examined and passed upon with the exception of the two cars lots mentioned in The Advertiser Tuesday. But what to do about the other 875 tons is the puzzle at this minute. All the auditors have is the contract which says all coal must be weighed on the city weigh scales and vouchers for the same must be signed by the janitor or the principal of the school receiving the coal, and there must also be the wholesalers' invoices.

Peculiar Situation.

How the two can be made to agree is rather difficult to understand. So the rumor around the city hall is that the auditors have refused to pass the accounts and had sent or were going to send them back to the board of education.

City Auditor Jewell refused to discuss the matter at all, and no definite information could be obtained. The shiftness methods of handling a very important branch of the work of the board has come in for much condemnation. Approximately $4,150 will be paid out for coal, for which it is alleged, there is no check—a considerable sum to be spent without knowing exactly where every cent it goes.

In any other department of the civic government the vouchers must be signed (Continued on Page Eight.)

GREAT GALE ALONG THE COAST FOUR DROWNED NEAR SYDNEY

Halifax, Oct. 8.—A fierce wind storm blew all the afternoon and continued till 8 o'clock tonight. The gale has swept the whole coast, at Sydney the wind attaining a velocity of 65 miles an hour. At 8 o'clock four men left in a dory in North Sydney harbor to board one of the New-foundland bankers lying in the stream.

When off the ballast heap a huge sea struck the frail craft, overturning it, and throwing the occupants into the water. That was the last seen of them, and as it was impossible to launch a boat to ascertain what happened, they were believed to have been drowned. The identity of the men, who doubtless perished, remains a mystery.

Cigar Prices Likely to Soar Here; Manufacturers Say They Will Raw Leaf Is Costing More Money Every Month—Cuban Tobacco Has the Call.

Cigar manufacturers in this city state that it is likely that there will be an advance in the price of cigars before very long.

This will result, they say, on account of the increased demand for tobacco.

"We have to pay far more for the raw leaf than formerly," said one large manufacturer, "and even with the increased prices we can hardly obtain the goods."

"It is a mistake to believe that we depend upon the United States for our supply of tobacco. Probably all the factories in Canada do not buy more than $175,000 worth of tobacco that is really grown in the States in a year."

"Much of the raw leaf that is supposed to come from the United States is really grown in Cuba, and only comes through the United States in transit. Havana tobacco is without any rival, and although many attempts have been made to grow tobacco equal to it in other countries, none of them have as yet succeeded. In some parts of the States they have even gone so far as to bring the earth from Cuba and the seeds, but the quality of tobacco produced was so far inferior to the real Havana that there was no comparison.

Can't Use Canadian.

"We can't use Canadian tobacco at all, for the simple reason that the quality is too poor. We could not sell the cigars if we used Canadian-grown tobacco for filler. The Canadian growers are doing much to force the price up here. They have already secured a protective duty of 50 per cent, and want it increased to 200 per cent. If they were to offer tobacco that the manufacturer could use, we would only be too glad to use Canadian products and save the duty. The aim of the Canadian grower seems to be to try and force the manufacturer to buy his product at any price. He simply will not give the tobacco plants the attention that is needed to produce a fine grade of tobacco and then wonder why we don't buy it. We practically use nothing but Cuban and Sumatra tobacco in manufacturing our product, and while the outlook for our supplies is not over bright, we are rushed with orders."

Western Market.

"The western market is developing rapidly and we are shipping double the number of cigars there which we did a year ago. Last month our business was so heavy that we had to take our travelers off the road for two weeks and even now are away behind with our orders. Unless more people start tobacco-growing there is certain to be a shortage of goods for some years to come, as in the present state of things the consumers are increasing rapidly while the growers are remaining the same."

Magistrate and the Armstrong Case

Magistrate Love takes strong exception to an article which he says appeared in yesterday's issue of the Toronto Globe, criticising him for not giving Joseph Armstrong a longer term in prison than six months.

"The charge of vagrancy, which was preferred against Armstrong, gave me power to send him down for six months," said his worship this morning. "There was no evidence that would justify me in sending him down for assaulting his mother. She had no marks on her, and did not complain of having been attacked. For disorderly conduct, which might have been charged against him, I could have fined him $20 or 20 days in jail, but at the end of that time he would have been out, and would have been back annoying his mother again. Now he will not bother her any more for at least six months."

What Was Said.

Here is what the Globe says: "A young man who was supported in his profane life by his widowed mother in London has been sentenced to six months' imprisonment for beating her with a heavy cane. The penalty is ridiculously inadequate. He should have been sentenced to six years in the penitentiary, with severe flogging at intervals during his term. Human brutes can be restrained only by the fear of physical pain."

—Mr. Thompson Walton, of 4 Maryboro Place, has gone to Toronto, where he will take a course in the School of Practical Science.

London Lad Captured in Detroit; Is Wanted Here On Many Counts

Chas. Stinchcombe, Who Evaded Inspector Sanders, Rounded Up at Last.

Rambling around Detroit with a pair of pistols in his pocket and a belt full of cartridges around his waist, Charles Stinchcombe was arrested a couple of days ago by the Detroit detectives and brought back to this city last evening by Detective Egleton.

Stinchcombe was arrested by Detective Egleton and Rider in this city on Sept. 25 on a charge of having broken into two residences and stolen therefrom sums amounting to over $40. He was sentenced to a term in the Industrial School and it was supposed that all was well.

On the way down to Toronto the boy who is only 18 years old, evidently had an idea, and when near Dundas managed to slip his handcuffs and the next thing Inspector Sanders knew was that his charge had jumped from the swiftly-moving express and was, after alighting safely, taking to the tall timbers at a speed that would make Longboat look like a mere amateur.

Was Prosperous.

When he escaped the lad had on a suit that had seen better days and boots that were not new by any means, but a wave of prosperity seems to have struck Stinchcombe, for in court this morning he was clad in a brand new suit of the latest American clothes with a dashing soft hat of the latest style and a pair of shoes that had everything in the court room beaten out of sight.

People would hardly recognize in the neatly-dressed prisoner the somewhat untidy lad who a few weeks ago might have been seen hanging around the market in ragged clothes, deeply engrossed in the latest copy of "Dead-wood Dick," or "The Train Robber's Revenge."

But events seem to have moved swiftly, and as near as can be learned Stinchcombe, after jumping from the express managed to beat his way back to a point near Wallaceburg, where he engaged to work with a farmer.

Too Tame.

Farm life, however, was must too tame for so ardent a spirit, and was probably only used as an end to a means, for next morning Stinchcombe was missing. So was much of the farmer's movable worldly goods in the shape of cash and valuables.

Stinchcombe, apparently, then headed for Detroit, and put up at a $2 a

MAJORITY OF KEYMEN FOR STRIKE

[Special to The Advertiser.]

Toronto, Oct. 9.—It was learned today that the C. P. R. railway telegraphers have asked for a flat increase of 13 or 20 per cent if overtime is to be included. On Oct. 1, the company sent out a notice to the men irrespective of any conference announcing an all round increase of 12½ and 10 per cent for linemen. This, however, provided for cutting out holiday allowance.

Over 87 per cent of telegraphers have voted for a strike, if the general committee in conference here today with the Government commission and railway officials, do not come to terms. The men are restrained by law from striking till the Government's report is put in, but may defy this regulation.

Relatives Want an Investigation Into the Death of Henry Fretwell

Think Man Who Was Found in Park May Have Been Foully Dealt With.

Some of the relatives of the late Henry Fretwell, the man who was found in a dying condition in Victoria Park on Sept. 26, have arrived in the city from Michigan and are asking the police to investigate the matter thoroughly as they are inclined to think that the old man may have been the victim of foul play.

Mr. Fretwell died in Victoria Hospital on Sept. 23, from pneumonia, caused by exposure, and as far as the authorities are aware at the time there was absolutely no mark or other indications that he had been the victim of foul play.

The police, however, are again investigating in order to satisfy the relatives.

GALE FANS FIRE One Thousand Dollars Damage Done Mount Forest Residence.

Mount Forest, Oct. 8.—Fire completely destroyed the dwelling-house and contents of Mr. Jas. Allen, Northman street, early this morning. A terrific gale was blowing at the time, and it was feared that there would be a serious conflagration. The loss is estimated at $1,000 with $300 insurance on the contents and $350 on the house. The origin of the fire is a mystery as the family has not been keeping house for three months.

LIFE IS CERTAINLY A FUNNY PROPOSITION

Chicago, Oct. 9.—A dispatch from San Francisco says Tom Hughes Alson, of Manitowish, N. Y., who married his grand-mother, is here on his honeymoon. "My grand-father, Dr. Buf-fum, of Rochester, was a peculiar old fellow," said he. "First he disinherited my sister because she married a big bet. This left me his sole heir. He decided to marry, although he was past 70. I didn't know it, but the girl he picked out was my sweetheart, only 17 years old. She decided to accept his offer to save her life. That was nearly 6 years ago. He died a year ago and the young woman whom I called my grand-mother became my wife."

REV. DR. FREEMAN CALLED Accepts Pastorate of Prominent Church in England.

Toronto, Oct. 9.—Rev. J. D. Freeman, until a few months ago pastor of Bloor Street Baptist Church, has accepted an invitation to the pastorate of Belvoir Street Church, Leicester, Eng. This is one of the oldest Baptist churches in England, and with it are associated the names of the famous missionary, William Terry, and that of Robert Hall, the great Baptist preacher. Rev. Mr. Freeman, who has been in Britain for some time, occupied the pulpit in July and again in September. Mrs. Freeman is now on her way to England.

TORNADO IN ALABAMA Fifteen Persons Dead and Property Damage Enormous.

Leeds, Ala., Oct. 8.—A tornado that struck this section today caused the death of about fifteen persons, who were hit by falling trees and timbers. The damage to property was enormous.

A GREAT FIRE AT NEW YORK

125 Electric Cars Were Destroyed and $400,000 Damage Done.

New York, Oct. 9.—Hundreds of lives were endangered and thousands of persons were thrown into a panic, 125 electric cars were destroyed and property loss to the extent of $400,000 was caused by a fire in the Fourteenth street car barns today. Cross-car lines were put out of business today and will not be able to operate until a sufficient number of cars to operate them can be drawn from city lines.

CASSIE CHADWICK AT DEATH'S DOOR

Troubled With Heart Failure and May Pass Away at Any Moment.

Columbus, O., Oct. 9.—Mrs. Cassie Chadwick, the bank wrecker, today is reported much worse at the woman's ward of the Ohio Penitentiary, where she is serving a ten-year term. Her pulse is weak and she is partly delirious. Physicians are making all preparations to attempt to stay any sinking spells. They decline to say how long she may survive. Mrs. Chadwick has been confined to her bed since the first severe attack, about three weeks ago, when, while talking to her son, she collapsed and was unconscious for some time. It was intimated she was "playing off" in order to excite sympathy, and secure a pardon, but within a few days it was known that her case was serious and she was placed under the constant care of the prison physician.

Her trouble is due to heart failure and weak stomach, the latter, according to the physician, being caused by indulging in rich food. She made confession to a Roman Catholic priest yesterday and the rite of baptism was administered to her by Rev. Father Francis Kelly, the Catholic chaplain of the state prison. The ceremony was performed as she lay upon her bed.

MOSTLY DRUNKS AT POLICE COURT

Police Magistrate Love Deals With Them in Various Manners.

John McDonald who was allowed to go by Police Magistrate Love yesterday on condition that he get a job and go to work was found last night by a policeman sleeping in a fence corner. The magistrate does not think open air sleeping is good for McDonald's constitution and remanded him to jail for a week, after which he may be sent down for the winter as he has neither home, friends nor money.

MANY WRECK SUITS SETTLED BY COMPANY

[Special to The Advertiser.]
Toronto, Oct. 8.—Over 120 suits for damages in connection with the Caledon wreck have been settled by the C. P. R. without going to trial. There are several other suits yet to be settled, and it is probable that very few of them will go to court. The damages range from $50 upward.

This is the wreck that occurred at the horseshoe curve, where an excursion train jumped the track, killing seven, and injuring a large number.

MURDER CASE WAS POSTPONED; WITNESSES CANNOT BE FOUND

Trial of Thomas Noah Will Not Take Place Until the January Assizes—Action Against the C. P. R. by Brakeman Fails.

True bills were returned yesterday afternoon by the grand jury at the assizes against Thomas Noah on a charge of murder, and Joseph Gray on a charge of rape.

On motion of Mr. E. Meredith, K.C., counsel for Noah, the murder case will not come up until the January assizes. The Gray case is being "argued today."

Noah was asked to plead and he pleaded not guilty.

In arguing for an adjournment in the Noah case, Mr. Meredith and Crown Counsel Smith, who will prosecute, engaged in a clash of words, in which both made some rather pointed remarks.

Pointed Remarks.

Mr. Meredith said he wanted the case adjourned, owing to the absence of six witnesses who were present on the night of the murder, and whom he could not hope to locate in time for the present assizes.

"Yes, we know all about those witnesses," retorted Mr. Smith, pointedly. "We have had cases of this kind before."

"My learned friend is slightly off the track," returned Mr. Meredith.

"Well, I may be off the track," was the reply, "but if you will furnish me with the names of those witnesses, I will agree to produce them in court by Thursday morning."

Mr. Meredith replied that he was not able to produce the names on the moment, and that furthermore, even if

Mr. Smith were able to produce the witnesses, which the speaker very much doubted, he would not feel that he was doing his duty to his client by going ahead on such short notice. Further argument was indulged in, and the case was finally adjourned until the next assizes.

Verdict for the Company.

The jury in the case of McCabe vs. C. P. R. late in the afternoon brought in a verdict for the defendant, Alexander McCabe, a local brakeman, sued to recover $5,000 damages for injuries received while attempting to uncouple the air hose of a train at Tillsonburg last November.

The jury got no further than the first written question put to them, which read as follows:

"Were the defendants guilty of negligence, causing the plaintiff injury?"

The answer was "No."

The nature of the case was such that had a verdict been rendered in favor of the plaintiff, the engineer in charge of the train which caused the injuries to McCabe would have been placed in a compromising light. J. MacMurphy, of Toronto, acted for the defendants in the action.

Roberts vs. Belton.

The case of Roberts vs. Belton, which had been set down for the jury list, was transferred to the non-jury list at the request of Mr. T. G. Meredith, counsel for the defense.

Argument was opened in this action late in the afternoon.

From the evidence given it was learned that Mr. and Mrs. C. G. Roberts were at one time neighbors of Mr. and Mrs. G. G. Belton, who reside near this city, and (Continued from Page Eight.)

A Reception for Mrs. McWatters

The members of the Salvation Army are planning to hold a big special service at the Citadel on the evening that Mrs. McWatters arrives in this city from Ireland. The officers of the army feel that the occasion will be a memorable one, and in returning thanks for the untiring of the mother and her little daughter they will at the same time be able to give Mrs. McWatters a warm welcome to this city, one which she, no doubt, will remember.

The money which has been collected has been forwarded to Mrs. McWatters in Ireland, and it is expected that as soon as she can conveniently do so she will leave for this city. No word has as yet been received from her, so it is not known when she will arrive.

How happy little Martha McWatters is, and how grateful she feels for what has been done the following letter to The Advertiser tells:

Writes The Advertiser.

"I want to tell all the kind people who have been so very good to me in giving so generously to bring my dear mother and brother and sister out to Canada, how very grateful I am. I was surprised and delighted at the large sum of money contributed. I think the Canadians are just as kind and good-hearted as the Irish, and that is a good deal for an Irish girl to say. Dear people, you have made a very happy little girl. I never cry myself to sleep now, but am singing all day long. I wish, also, to thank Staff-Captain McGillivray, of the Salvation Army, for his great kindness. Last, but not least, I thank you very heartily for telling my troubles in your paper, so that all could help. Yours gratefully,
MARTHA MCWATTERS.

What the Increases Will Mean

The increase in salaries to the Collegiate teachers proposed by No. 1 committee will not come into force this year, but will probably be recommended to next year's board to carry out.

The teachers at present are with one exception, getting the maximum salary. This increase will mean about $2,250 the first year in the appropriation for salaries. The heads of departments are now receiving the maximum, $1,400. Next year, if this goes through, each will be given the minimum, or $1,500.

This means an additional expense of $500, besides the increase of $300 each to two new heads of the departments vacated by the resignation of Mr. W. C. Ferguson, and the promotion of Mr. McCutcheon. This amounts to $1,100.

The assistants are now getting the maximum, $1,300 under the old regulation, and they will all receive $1,400 next year. This will amount to $600 all told.

Four non-graduates will receive $100 a year increase, $400 all told. One lady teacher will receive $100 increase, the other not getting her increase until the year following.

This is a total increase of $2,200 a year. As every teacher will increase $100 a year until the maximum is reached, $1,800 a year will be added each year for three years.

The increase of salaries is meeting with approval everywhere, as it was felt that the City of London has not been doing all that it could for the teachers.

OPPOSE EXPORTING OF PULPWOOD

[Special to The Advertiser.]

Ottawa, Oct. 9.—The Canadian manufacturers of pulp and paper waited on the Dominion Government today and asked that the export of wood-camp be prohibited. The delegation represented the pulp and paper section of the Canadian Manufacturers' Association and presented the views of that body. J. D. Rolland, president of the Canadian Manufacturers' Association; C. Riorden, president of the pulp and paper section of the association; Mr. Rowley, of the E. B. Eddy Company;

F. J. Campbell, of the Canada Paper Company; H. Beirns, of the Belgo-Canadian Manufacturing Company; J. Armstrong, Grand Master, Que., and Albert McLaren, of Buckingham, comprised the delegation. Sir Wilfrid Laurier, Hon. W. Fielding and Hon. Wm. Patterson received the delegation in the Premier's room. They pointed out that if the export of pulp were prohibited the Americans would come to Canada and develop the paper industry of the Dominion, instead of depleting the forests by taking away the raw material

DR. NESBITT TALKS TOO PLAIN; WHITNEY MAY FORCE HIM OUT

Toronto, Oct. 9.—Premier Whitney and this morning characterized the remarks of Dr. Beattie Nesbitt, registrar for West Toronto, at Gravenhurst, where the latter made an alleged indirect attack upon Hon. Mr. Hanna, as "tawdry." There was a rumor at the time this morning that the Government would likely get rid of Dr. Nesbitt as registrar, and that the latter is quite willing to be made a martyr of himself, as he desires to re-enter politics. It is also said, however, that the Government do not desire to allow Dr. Nesbitt to pose as a man with a grievance, but that the latter will be told to stop talking politics or get out.

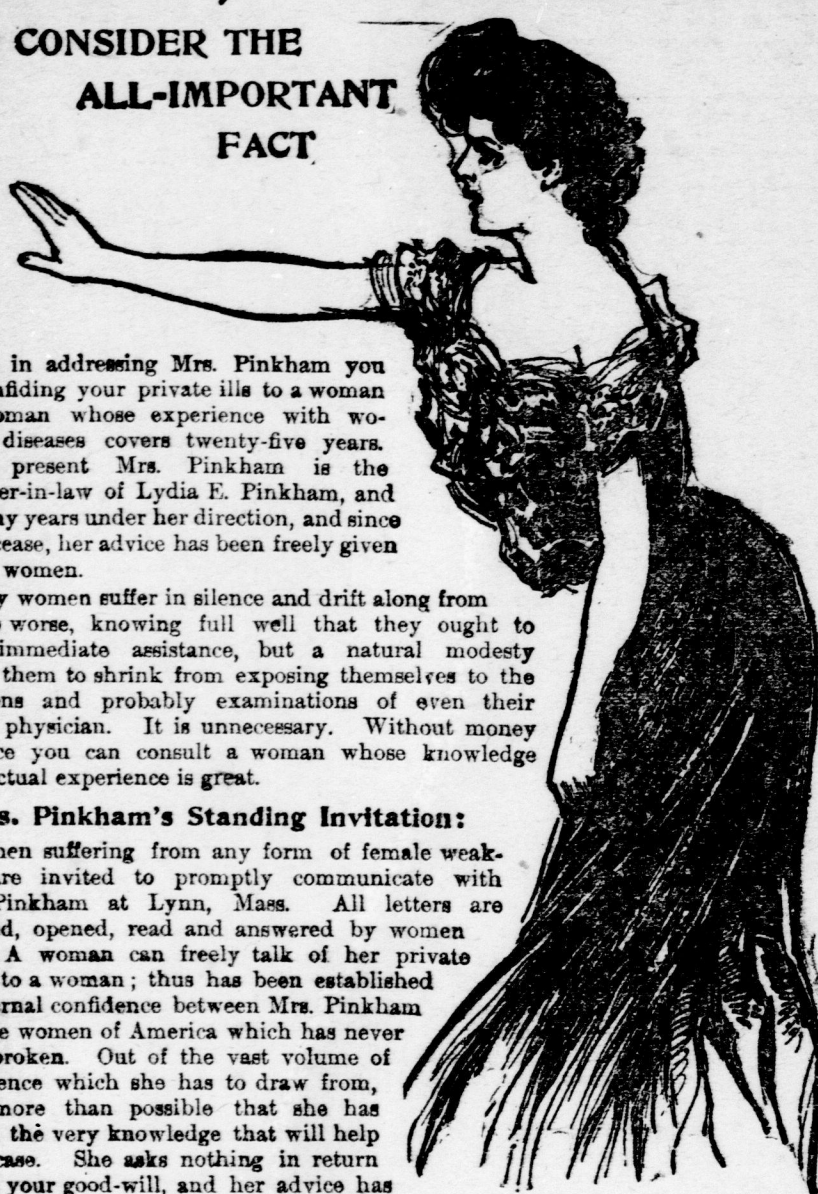

SUCCEEDS HENSHAW.

Toronto, Oct. 8.—The Ontario railway board has granted the request of the town of Berlin to be allowed to increase the rate of interest on its debentures. The increase is from 4½ to 5 per cent on $122,000 required for general municipal improvements.

Drummond, formerly president of the Canadian Manufacturers' Association, was today appointed to the board of directors of Molsons Bank to fill the vacancy caused by the death of Lieut.-Col. Henshaw.

STOP, WOMEN!

AND CONSIDER THE
ALL-IMPORTANT
FACT

That in addressing Mrs. Pinkham you are confiding your private life to a woman whose experience with women's diseases covers twenty-five years. The present Mrs. Pinkham is the daughter-in-law of Lydia E. Pinkham, and for many years under her direction, and since her decease, her advice has been freely given to sick women.

Many women suffer in silence and drift along from bad to worse, knowing full well that they ought to have immediate assistance, but a natural modesty prevents them from exposing themselves to the questions and probably examinations of even their family physician. It is unnecessary. Without money or price you can consult a woman whose knowledge from actual experience is great.

Mrs. Pinkham's Standing Invitation:
Women suffering from any form of female weakness are invited to promptly communicate with Mrs. Pinkham at Lynn, Mass. All letters are received, opened, read and answered by women only. A woman can freely talk of her private illness to a woman; thus has been established the eternal confidence between Mrs. Pinkham and the women of America which has never been broken. Out of the vast volume of experience which she has to draw from, it is more than possible that she has gained the very knowledge that will help your case. She asks nothing in return except your good-will, and her advice has helped thousands. Surely any woman, rich or poor, is very foolish if she does not take advantage of this generous offer of assistance.—Lydia E. Pinkham Medicine Co., Lynn, Mass.

Following we publish two letters from a woman who accepted this invitation. Note the result.

First letter.

Dear Mrs. Pinkham:—
"For eight years I have suffered something terrible every month. The pains are excruciating and I can hardly stand them. My doctor says I have a severe female trouble, and I must go through an operation if I want to get well. I do not want to submit to it if I can possibly help it. Please tell me what to do. I hope you can relieve me."—Mrs. Mary Dimmick, 69th and E. Capitol Sts., Washington, D. C.

Second letter.

Dear Mrs. Pinkham:—
"After following carefully your advice, and taking Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, I am very anxious to send you my testimonial, that others may know their value and what you have done for me.

"As you know, I wrote you that my doctor said I must have an operation or I could not live. I then wrote you, telling you my ailments. I followed your advice and am entirely well. I can walk miles without an ache or a pain, and I owe my life to you and to Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. I have a severe female trouble, and I must go through an operation if I want to get well. I do not want to submit to it if I can possibly help it. Please tell me what to do. I hope you can relieve me."—Mrs. Mary Dimmick, 69th and E. Capitol Sts., Washington, D. C.

EFFORTS TO SAVE WOMEN SMOKERS

Lucy Page Gaston Is Ready to Direct Crusade Against Cigarette Habit.

New York, Oct. 8.—The crusade against cigarette smoking which has been carried on for some parts of the west has been brought to New York by Miss Lucy Page Gaston, who has been directing the crusade from the Woman's Temple in Chicago for a number of years.

It was nearly seven years ago that the Chicago Anti-Cigarette League was formed. Today it has no end of converts among the school-boys, who, Miss Gaston says, furnish the most productive field for work. Spurred on by what the agitation in the west has brought forth, Miss Gaston has come to the more effective east, where she believes a new field awaits her. It is her first trip this way.

Miss Gaston told all about this new field the other day at the Hotel Martha Washington, where she was staying while organizing the New York Anti-Cigarette League.

A cigarette, which, or the pebbles in the road, represents to Miss Gaston an evil akin to the drink habit, an insidious cause of destruction of the moral fiber; in short, debauchery of the worst sort. But the new field which the fertile east presents for the anti-cigarette crusaders lies not so much in the small boy as in the woman of fashion.

"Do you know," said Miss Gaston, "I have found that many of your women society leaders smoke cigarettes. In fact, I've heard that they are even smoked here at the Martha Washington."

"I couldn't really believe that, but I have been assured that it is so. The habit is creeping in everywhere, undermining our social life, and when it's taken up by women what can we expect of the boys?"

Miss Gaston handed out a few pamphlets from a little pile that she had been arranging much as one plays solitaire. They were treatises against cigarette smoking by the young, by the middle-aged, and by the old. All of them painted cigarette smokers as being on the pathway to perdition.

"But how do you know so much about the cigarette if you have never tried one?" asked the reporter innocently.

"Young man, no cigarette has ever been between my lips. I have been invited to try one many times. At the tobacco show they made a determined effort to make me smoke, but I refused." Miss Gaston drew herself up to her full height, and looked the reporter squarely in the eye. "Young man, I presume you smoke cigarettes?"

The reporter admitted that he did occasionally, and that when he did it was generally the kind called Turkish. "Well," said Miss Gaston, "I have been informed that the Turkish cigarette is no better than any other kind. I knew a woman that used to have collapse. Her physician—a doctor, mind you—advised her to try a cigarette."

"She began to smoke and that led to drink. Isn't that awful?"

"Turkish cigarettes," the reporter said, "were all right. But I know another man, a very wealthy man, who smokes the other kind. He told me that they were just as good, and you did not have to pay the duty."

"That only shows the difference of opinion. But they're all bad."

Then Miss Gaston explained just what the anti-cigarette crusade had accomplished. Seven states, she said, now had laws against the sale of cigarettes. That had done some good.

"But, you see," explained the anti-cigarette crusader, "a law is a law only when it is enforced. Now out in Iowa, for instance, the tobacco manufacturers outside of the state cunningly sent no cigarette papers through the mails to the men."

"Of course the men can buy tobacco, and then there's no law against their smoking cigarettes they roll themselves. The interstate commerce commission, I believe, has ruled that we can't stop this. But we are going to work here to get a law in this state that may help some."

"One of the first things I propose to do is to send our pledge to the Colony Club. That, I believe, is your club for fashionable women. Now here, I believe, lies our field."

"We are going to ask these women to co-operate with us, not alone the Colony Club, but the other women's clubs. We hope to enroll the members of the Colony Club as members of our Lincoln Guards."

Miss Gaston looked over her pile of pamphlets and selected those bearing on the Lincoln Guards. Copies were just waiting to be sent to the Colony Club, Sorosis and the Society for the Study of Life.

"You see, we are going to ask them to take the pledge, which is necessary before becoming a member." She handed out something that looked like a souvenir postal card with a picture of Lincoln and this:

"I hereby pledge myself with the help of God to abstain from all intoxicating liquors as a beverage and from the use of tobacco in any form."

"But do the Colony Club members smoke anything but cigarettes?" asked the reporter.

"No, I don't think that they do," said Miss Gaston, "but that pledge is drawn up for all, and you know some women are said even to smoke opium."

MANY STRANDED IN OLD LONDON

Quite a Number of American Tourists "Went Broke" While Abroad.

London, Oct. 8.—Americans in London complain that never in their experience abroad have they encountered so many stranded members of their country as during the season which is just coming to a close. During the rush months a veritable army of distressed Americans have been assisted temporarily, 48 were put in the way of working their passages back, and 98 were found unworthy of assistance and put on the black list.

A considerable number of the female applicants, who outnumbered the men, were school teachers, who had underestimated the expense of a European tour. In several instances really wealthy people found themselves in distress, and were obliged to apply to the society for money enough to send cables, which usually brought remittances.

Despite the stories of the overcrowding of steamships, making it impossible to obtain homeward passage the American society says that this year the cases of those stranded for this cause are much fewer.

Hard to Handle Negroes.
Some of the most difficult cases which the society has assisted have been those of negroes. The officials at that port like London, Liverpool and Southampton were the greatest objection to giving negroes a chance to work their passages home.

The shipping agents say that personally they have no color prejudice, but the crews have developed it to a great degree, and the presence of a negro aboard a vessel sailing from these ports is sure to lead to troubles.

At ports like Cardiff no difficulty is encountered on this point, and most of the stranded negroes are sent there.

Secretary Van Duzer has not found his countrymen and women ungrateful, as this year nearly 200 of them have repaid money advanced. The lack of co-operation among the various American societies abroad has led to considerable friction, particularly between Paris and London. It is claimed that the Paris society has claimed the habit of giving applicants their fare to London and unloading them on the society here. The official of the Paris society deny this.

Grosvenor at Sea.
Before leaving London on his way home Gen. Grosvenor, of Ohio, gave a correspondent a few of his political observations. He said that he had never been so puzzled to form a judgment as to how matters are going to shape themselves. There seems to be a growing opinion that President Roosevelt will be the next candidate of the Republican party for the presidency. I believe that President Roosevelt honestly does not want the nomination. Nevertheless, I cannot close my eyes to the truth of Joe Cannon's remark that no man ever refused such a nomination and no man ever will.

"If I permitted myself to guess I could say that Secretary Taft's prospects are far and away ahead of those of any other candidate. He is a strong and able man, thoroughly in sympathy with and capable of continuing Mr. Roosevelt's policy. But whether it is Roosevelt or Taft or any other candidate, there is no question of Republican success at the polls."

financial panic, the crops this year have been good and the general prosperity of the country has not been affected, which, to my mind, assures Republican success.

"On the Democratic side will be Bryan; he is the only available candidate."

Hearst the Impossible.
"How about Hearst?" asked the correspondent.

"He is impossible," said the general, "and furthermore he says he does not want the nomination. Yet there is no doubt that Hearst holds a dominant position in the Democratic party, and his opposition would be fatal to any candidate to the nomination."

"Will President Roosevelt's tour break the solid south?"

"Oh, no; not this time. The southern states are not so much affected as they were once again before they begin to see the error of their ways and fall into the Republican lines. If President Roosevelt were the Republican candidate, I believe, however, that he could carry Missouri, Kentucky and Tennessee, but no other Republican candidate could. The issue of the campaign will be the tariff, with the Republican party in favor of revision. Revision is necessary, but it will not be free trade by any means; it will simply be a readjustment. There will, of course, be other issues but campaigns are usually fought on one great platform, and the tariff this time will form that platform. The anti-trust slogan will undoubtedly be sounded, and while I believe it will be good for the Republican party, I do not think it will be good for the country. Personally, I cannot see any great evils which the trusts have inflicted. On the contrary, I can see where they have conferred tremendous benefit."

"It is curious in this connection to note that while America is in the throes of anti-trust agitation Germany is doing everything in her power to encourage the formation of trusts."

CHILLS, COLDS, PLEURISY.
Dressing lightly, exposed to draughts, cold is easily taken. Give twenty drops of Nerviline in hot water at once. Circulation and warmth will be restored, and pleurisy, inflammation or congestion prevented. Equally good for colds, breaks up their beginnings at once. If you only knew what a great remedy Nerviline is, that it is five times stronger than other liniments, more penetrating, more pain-subduing, you would not be without it. Ninety-nine sicknesses out of a hundred can be prevented at the very beginning by the use of Nerviline. Saves doctors' bills—the great pain savor of the age—in use 50 years.

No chicory or other cheap adulteration in our coffee. Our coffee is all coffee—a splendid blend of the finest Java and Mocha.

Nobody thinks of drinking a cup of heavy, black, bitter chicory; yet some merchants will tell you it improves coffee to add chicory, and they add as much as their conscience will let them.

Chicory is simply a cheap adulteration and makes a thicker, blacker liquor, but kills the fine flavor of good coffee. Try our Pure Coffee and get the Pure Coffee Flavor. Same at both stores, per pound. 40c.

LONDON, WEDNESDAY, OCT. 9.

HOW WATER WAS SAVED.

The experience of all cities where meters have been generally introduced in connection with the public water service is that these record-keepers are the means of preventing waste, of reducing the per capita consumption without in the least restricting the proper use of water, and of effecting a material saving in the cost of pumping. In all places where meters have been adopted prejudice and lack of information on the subject have had to be contended with and overcome; but once the system is given a fair test former opponents are invariably won over, and few there are in any community enjoying its benefits who would return to old-time methods.

Take the city of Lowell, Mass., for example. For a number of years the placing of meters was optional, and the consumption of water was not greatly affected. In 1900, the water board applied meters to a thousand services where they had reason to believe that water was being wasted. There was at once a marked decrease of consumption, and ever since this compulsory placing of meters on all new services has been carried out with the same result. Year by year the consumption has lessened until 1906, when it reached the lowest point in seventeen years, due undoubtedly to the enforcement of the meter system and the placing of a thousand meters on the most wasteful services. The population of Lowell is about 100,000; last year the average daily consumption was about 5,000,000 gallons, and the superintendent is firmly convinced it would have been three times as much had not the meters been applied. In that case, he says, the city would have been compelled to use Merrimack River water, because the quantity of spring water would not be sufficient to supply such extravagant and excessive use of water. That would mean a very serious proposition for the city. In 1893, when using river water, Lowell had very close on 500 cases of typhoid fever and 124 deaths. Last year, using spring water, there were only 27 cases of typhoid, and 7 deaths from the disease. What better argument against the use of river water and the adoption of meters is needed than this?

Wellesley is another Massachusetts city whose experience is of interest to Londoners. The waterworks there went into full operation in 1885, and the use of meters began in a small way, not being compulsory. The amount of water pumped increased rapidly. In 1886, with 1,058 consumers, the average pumping was about 2,700,000 gallons per month. The increase continued, until in 1890, with 2,650 consumers, the pumping reached nearly 8,000,000 gallons per month. At the close of 1892 there were 164 meters in use. The year following 402 meters were added, making 566 in all. At the close of that year the total number of service taps was 610, showing that meters had been placed in the houses of all but 44 consumers. With the increase of meters came a decrease of pumping. In 1890 the amount of water pumped was about the same as in 1902, twelve years later, while the number of consumers had increased from 2,650 to 5,147. As to maintenance the cost last year was less than 27 cents per meter.

Further evidence of the value of metering is furnished by Chelsea, Mass. In 1905 that town had installed 951 meters. Prior to that the per capita consumption was 110 gallons. In November of that year it dropped to 82 gallons, and the superintendent lays it all to the use of meters, which, he believes, are the only legitimate means to stop waste.

The treasurer of the Whitman, Mass., Water Board is another firm believer in the meter system. Says he:

"In my town last year we used 45,000,000 or 47,000,000 gallons of water, and we put in $5 new services, and we have metered every one of them, and this year, when we came to figure up, we have only used about 42,000,000 gallons. Do you think if we had not metered those services there would have been a decrease in the consumption of water? I do not. I think there would have been a large increase. I believe that meters are a necessity."

At Providence, R. I., with an estimated population of 219,800, the total amount of water consumed last year was 5,491,558,313 gallons or 68 gallons per inhabitant. Eighty per cent of the services, or 21,852 in all, are metered, and to this fact is ascribed the low per capita consumption.

Evidently herein lies a partial solution of our local water problem. If meters accomplish so much in other cities there is no reason why an equal saving may not be effected by their adoption by the heavier users of water in this city. The records of these New England cities should be given due weight by London's ratepayers when called upon to give a final decision on this most important question.

FOSTER'S DOUBLE DEALING.

It is hard to acquit the leaders of the Conservative party of duplicity in their treatment of the Asiatic problem. The files of Hansard show that Mr. Borden, when the Anglo-Japanese treaty was before the House of Commons, reproached the Government for not having taken advantage of its provisions sooner. Mr. Foster went further, and gave the Opposition credit for hastening the ratification of the treaty. Speaking the other day in Toronto, he had the effrontery to charge Sir Wilfrid with a "cardinal fault" in rushing into the convention "without proper consideration." Yet here are Mr. Foster's own words in the House of Commons on March 12, 1906:

"A person who was not acquainted with the history of this matter might very well have supposed from the speech and from the remarks that were made that this was a brand new treaty made with the young and rising empire of Japan, and for which the Government might very well take to themselves special credit. Well, when one looks into it, it all slumbers down to this that it is but the late confession of a blunder, it is but the tardy attempt to retrieve a mistake, to say the least of it, made many years ago. The fact of the matter is that in 1894 a treaty was made with Japan by the British Government. * * * This Government at that time, I suppose, carefully looked into the matter and they came to the conclusion that they would not be included in the treaty, and consequently would not share in its benefits. * * * And from 1896-7 up to the present time Great Britain and Germany and France and the United States of America have all had the benefit that flowed from the treaty or similar treaties, whilst Canada has been absolutely debarred from any of those benefits. Some two years ago, I think it was, we on this side of the House drew attention to the fact that there was still a possibility that Canada might be included within the provisions of that treaty. Then, and then only, this Government woke up, then and then only it stirred around, and after the lapse of two years they come to us with what is called a treaty with Japan. Well, sir, if there is one reason now why this treaty should be hailed and acclaimed with delight and with applause, as I believe it should be, there were ten reasons ten years ago why it should have been adopted, and its provisions taken advantage of by this country, simply because ten years of added benefit over and above what this country can now obtain would have been obtained by intercourse with that country at a period of time when probably its demands upon such products as Canada could have afforded would have been even greater than they will be in the years to come."

In declaring against the treaty at the present time Mr. Foster is neither honest nor patriotic. He is dishonest, because he eulogized the treaty a year ago. He is unpatriotic because for partisan purposes he would aggravate a grave national difficulty. Mr. Foster is not trying to repair his damaged reputation.

Brockville shows a canny disposition to stand in with both Governments. Brockville is the one morsel of comfort the Ontario Government has had since January, 1905.

Mr. Foster hailed the Japanese treaty "with delight" a year ago, and now hails it with verbal brickbats.

A portion of the Temiskaming Railway has dropped fifteen feet, probably out of sympathy with Cobalt mining shares.

Dr. Beattie Nesbitt, speaking at Gravenhurst, referred to "one of John Rockefeller's slick boys." This was a sly dig at the Provincial Secretary, who tied up with the Standard. Mr. Hanna is both slick and oily.

The London by-election is giving rise to an outside crop of rumors, some of them manifestly absurd. It may be suggested to strangers that party men in London are not greenhorns, and are well able to take care of the local situation.

THE WOODS ON FIRE.

Fire! Fire! The woods are aflame! The flame of the maple leaps higher and higher; The banks and the meadows are bursting in gold. The engineman down in the dew should be told! Oh, ring the belled lilies, and summon the rills, The autumn is smoking upon the brown hills; The sumac is gleaming, the sassafras in flames; Of saffron and scarlet nodes proudly between; The lanes are a glory, the fire is alive! O'er bramble and bracken, and valley and steep! Aye, call up the firemen from dew o' the morn, With clatter of engine and caw o' horn! The frost is the rascal whose fingers, the camp, Has fooled with the matches and upset the lamp!

62,000 TONS OF CURRANTS.

[Ladies' Pictorial.] Our great-grandmothers, although they had to pay very high prices for dried currants, considered them quite indispensable to the compounding of those pies, frumities and florentines which were the pride of every housewife. Domestic entering must have been an arduous undertaking in those days, for currants and other dried fruits were not to be procured out of London except once a year, at the annual fair of the local market town.

The royal dish of plum porridge, which it was the privilege of the Archbishop of Canterbury to serve to a newly-crowned sovereign, was composed largely of currants, the fruit being stewed in strong beef soup, enriched with red wine and red sack.

Now that the order has changed and simplicity is the keynote of the highest class cookery, we Britons have treasured our appreciation of the homely and wholesome currant; and although florentines and plum porridge are dishes of the past, no less than 62,000 tons of currants go every year to the making of bread cakes, pastries and puddings to tempt the British appetite.

WHEN IT RISES.

[Chicago Tribune.] Name the largest city on the Ohio River. Shaggy-haired Pupil-Cincinnati, m'am, but it ain't on the Ohio River only part of the time.

Teacher-Indeed! Where is it the rest of the time? Shaggy-haired Pupil-In it.

THERE'S SOMETHING IN THE ENGLISH AFTER ALL.

[Bertrand Shadwell, in Boston Transcript.] I've been meditating about that, when everything is told. There's something in the English after all; They may be too bent on conquest, and too eager after gold, But there's something in the English after all; Though their sins and faults are many, and I won't exhaust my breath, By endeavoring to tell you of them all, Yet they have a sense of duty, and they'll face it to the death.

So there's something in the English after all.

If you're wounded by a savage foe and bugles sound "Retire," There's something in the English after all;

You may bet your life they'll carry you beyond the zone of fire;

For there's something in the English after all;

Yes, although their guns be empty, and their blood be ebbing fast, And to stay by wounded comrades be to fall,

Yet they'll set their teeth like bulldogs, and protect you to the last.

Or they'll die, like English soldiers, after all.

When a British ship is lost at sea, oh, then I know you'll find That there's something in the English after all;

There's no panic rush for safety, where the weak are left behind, For there's something in the English after all;

But the women and the children are the first to leave the wreck.

With the men in line as steady as a wall, And the captain is the last to stand upon the reeling deck,

So there's something in the English after all.

Though the half of Europe hates them, and would joy in their decline, Yet there's something in the English after all;

They may scorn the scanty numbers of the thin red Irish line, Yet they fear the British battalions, after all;

For they know that, from the colonel to the drummer in the band, There is not a single soldier in them all But would go to blind destruction, were their country to command,

And call it simply duty after all.

AN OPPONENT'S TRIBUTE.

[Toronto World.] Apart from his office, and apart from party politics, Sir Wilfrid Laurier occupies in Canada a position almost commanding and always unique.

ANTICIPATION AND REMINISCENCE.

[Acheson Globe.] You girls begin half their day with "When I get married." Married women start everything with "When I was a girl."

THE WRECKED FRIGATE'S BELL.

[Edinburgh Scotsman.] Probably very few people are aware that an old ship's bell, which for many years has lain under the sea is suspended in the underwriting room at Lloyd's, and is used to announce the arrival or other news received in respect of overdue ships.

This is the bell of the frigate Lutina, wrecked long ago off the Dutch coast. After being under the water for years, the bell was saved, and now, strangely enough, is employed to inform underwriters of those ships which by their protracted passages are causing uneasiness.

Not every ship that is on the overdue market is announced in this manner. It is only when an underwriter has expressed to the committee his desire for immediate information in respect to this or that overdue vessel that the note of the old black bell rings through the rooms.

At the present time there are eleven ships down on the list for announcement by the Lutina bell, but some of these are so hopelessly overdue that it is practically certain nothing further will be heard of them.

The big steel bark Albatross, for instance, heads the list. She was formerly the British ship Lord Templemore, and was built at Belfast in 1892. This ship has not been heard of since last November, when she sailed from Calcutta for Australia.

RATHER A DAMPER.

[Fillingde Blatter.] Her very fleshy suitor had managed to get upon his knees before her, and was panting out his proposal, when the telephone rang. "Please," she suggested, "please stay still; I'll answer it and be right back."

IF I WERE YOUNG.

[Hartley Coleridge.] If I were young as I have been, And you were only gay sixteen, I would address you as a goddess, I would write you a love letter, I would tell you that you were divine, I would tell you that you were mine.

Wish that I were your cap, your shoe, Or anything that's near to you, But I am old, and you, my fair, Are something else, and you are mine.

A lover's language in your hearing Would sound like irony and jeering. Once you were fair to all that see, Now you are only fair to me.

ROBERT LOUIS STEVENSON.

His grave was made on the summit of Mount Vaea, whether his body was carried on the shoulders of his native friends. On his stone is inscribed his own requiem, which reads:

"Under the wide and starry sky, Dig the grave and let me lie, Glad did I live, and gladly die, And I laid me down with a will."

"This be the verse you grave for me: 'Here lies where he longed to be; Home is the sailor, home from the sea, And the hunter home from the hill.'"

SAYS MANY HERE HAD IT FILLED

No Sufferer of Kidney Trouble or Rheumatism Should Leave Home Recipe Untried.

That the readers of this paper appreciate advice when given in good faith is plainly demonstrated by the fact that one well-known local pharmacy filled the "vegetable prescription" many times within the past two weeks. Most of these folks naturally bought the ingredients only and mixed them at home. The announcement of this simple, harmless mixture has certainly accomplished much in reducing the great many cases of kidney complaint and rheumatism here, relieving pain and misery, especially among the older population, who are always suffering more or less with bladder and urinary troubles, backache and particularly rheumatism.

Another well-known druggist asks us to continue the announcement of the prescription. It is doing so much real good here, he continues, that it would be a crime not to do so. It can be repeated too often, and further states many cases of remarkable cures wrought.

The following is the prescription, of simple ingredients, making a harmless, powerful compound, which any person can prepare by shaking well in a bottle: Fluid Extract Dandelion, one-half ounce; Compound Kargon, one ounce; Compound Syrup Sarsaparilla, three ounces. Any first-class drug store will sell this small amount of each ingredient, and the dose for adults is one teaspoonful to be taken after each meal and again at bedtime. These are to be taken for one week, if taken according to directions. Good results will be apparent from the first few doses.

VICIOUS ATTACK ON VON BUELOW

The Kaiser's Chancellor Sues Editor Brandt for Libel.

Berlin, Oct. 8.—Universal attention has been drawn to Germany by the action for libel which the chancellor, Prince Von Buelow, has instituted against Adolf Brandt. The odious propaganda of Brandt's society has already smirched by innuendo some of the most respectable names in the empire.

Since the "round table" coteries scandals, of whose doings only the merest hint can be given, exposed such intimacies of the Emperor as Count Zet Eulenberg and Count Cuno von Bolke, to the deepest disgrace and execration, Brandt and his society have ingeniously caused reiterated publications of an argument to the effect that section 175 of the penal code, which makes a certain form of degeneracy a felony, ought to be repealed, for the reason that some of the greatest names in history are connected with this offense; and, moreover, particularly, some men of the highest distinction in the state are subject, if the truth were known, to the penalties of this law. Therefore, Brandt and his society argue, the law should be repealed, or wholesale scandals will result.

Brandt's society, which proposes this radical change in the laws regulating ordinary morals, is numerically large, but it includes among its members some men of the highest education and character, who have given merely intellectual assent to Brandt's arguments. The president of the society is Dr. Magnus Hirschfeld, and there are numerous medical men of standing among its rank and file.

It is hardly necessary to write that there is absolutely no shadow of foundation for the aspersion upon Prince Von Buelow's character, which was made in the most recent publication inspired by Brandt and his following.

He is a man of perfectly clean record in private life, and the breath of calumny has never touched him. His recreations are of the healthiest kind, he loves the open sunshine, walks, and vigorous exercise. He is an open-hearted, simple gentleman, with no trace in his make-up of the mawkish degeneracy of a certain class seen in high places about him.

Here's the Cure for Sick Kidneys

TEST THEM FREE

Perhaps you are skeptical about GIN PILLS. So was Mr. Brown. He had tried so many things for his kidneys, without getting any better, that he had just about made up his mind that he couldn't get well.

When he first read about GIN PILLS he laughed. The third time, he said "he would write for a sample just to see if there was any chance of getting well." He was pretty nearly tickled to death over that box of GIN PILLS. They did him so much good that he would have paid $5 a box for the second, if necessary. The dizziness, headaches and backaches stopped. Those shooting pains in his hips and legs died away. Urine lost its high color. He slept through the night without being disturbed by bladder trouble. His appetite began to pick up and he felt better than he had been for years.

John St. Hamilton, Ont. Being a sufferer from my kidneys and pains in the head, and could get nothing to help me, I saw in the papers what good GIN PILLS were doing. I got a sample box, and they did me so much good, I bought three more for me. I can recommend them to any similar sufferer.

Don't be prejudiced. Give GIN PILLS a fair trial and they will cure you just as they cured Mr. Brown. Mention this paper and we will send you a free sample. The Bold Drug Co., Winnipeg, Man. 50c. a box—6 for $2.50.

degeneracy of a certain class seen in high places about him.

Many persons are asking if it is not probable that Brandt's pamphlet in which the chancellor is mentioned is not a manifestation of an infamous political intrigue. Probably in no land in the whole world is political animosity so intense as it is in Germany. There are politicians here who would stop at nothing if they could discredit and ruin the great chancellor.

Within the last year charges of the character hinted at in Brandt's article have been directed against all sorts of men of prominence. One of the journals printed in Berlin hardly allows a week to pass without suggesting charges of this infamous sort against some man in high position, as an argument for the repeal of the criminal statute already mentioned.

The police are apparently helpless. They are said to have the names of 500 persons in their books in connection with the court exposures, but they dare not act because their list includes some personages who must be shielded at any cost.

The latest victim of the extortioners associated with the propaganda is the resident archimandrite of the Russian-Greek orthodox church. He has been blackmailed for months, although his perfect innocence is not questioned.

It is not certain that Prince Von Buelow will be required to appear in person at the coming trial of this action for libel. The hearing is certain to be held "in camera"—that is, with press and public excluded.

LONGFELLOW'S "PSALM OF LIFE"

Henry W. Longfellow's "Psalm of Life," which was written in 1839, became one of the most popular poems in the English language. When the poet was in London Queen Victoria sent for him to come and see her at the palace. He went; and, just as he was seating himself in the waiting coach, after the interview, a man in working clothes appeared, hat in hand, at the coach window.

"Please sir, yer honor," said he, "an are you Mr. Longfellow?"

"I am Mr. Longfellow," said the poet.

"An' did yer write the 'Psalm of Life'?" he asked.

"I wrote the 'Psalm of Life,'" replied the poet.

"An' yer honor, would you be willing to take a workingman by the hand."

Mr. Longfellow gave the honest Englishman a hearty handshake.

"And," said he, in telling the story, "I never in my life received a compliment that gave me more satisfaction."

"The Psalm of Life" was translated into fifteen languages, into Sanskrit, Maharratta, India, and into Chinese by a mandarin; and a copy of the translation was sent to Longfellow.—The Christian.

He set his teeth hard as he breasted the steep slope. She might have hoped to find some shelter among these tottering walls. It was the last frail chance, and he knew it. He was among the ruined houses now. One after another he searched within and without, but there was no sign of life, not even a nibbling sheep. Nettles breast high choked the roofless interiors, no human foot had crossed their thresholds for many a day. Despair clutched him as he stood amid these forsaken dwellings—a desolation deeper than the drear emptiness of the wide moors. He fairly trembled to enter the last, which stood a little apart from the others. If it were empty, too, if she were not there—the scourge of the wind, the cold of the clouds was answer enough. Then he vaulted the low, crumbling wall which surrounded it, and made one stride to the door.

Within it seemed dark as a cave, for the wind had not yet stripped it to the bone—the ragged thatch still clung about the roof-tree. He stepped into the hall, and the wind heaved his heart murmur loud, and the sullen drip, drip of the rain in the puddles on the clay floor. With a long breath he stepped into the four blackness, feeling for his matches when suddenly the darkness lighted. The wind had torn a huge rent in the cloud roof, and through the gap a white wisp of a crescent moon looked down, wan and mournful.

The pale, cheerless light stole in through the broken roof, showing with chill, unsparring distinctness the rough naked walls, the slimy floor, the yawning cavity of the chimney, and there on the cold hearthstone—Conyers' hand paused midway, his breath stopped for a moment—was a dark heap—a reddish gleam!

The hoard was not empty, then, like the others; but a new dread like a leaden weight made his step heavy, his hand trembled as he stepped forward.

DESIGNED BY MARTHA DEAN.

A NATTY SHORT COAT—6990

A smart little coat for wearing whenever a lightweight outdoor garment is needed is always an acceptable addition to the feminine wardrobe, and the design illustrated is especially desirable because of its simple but effective modeling, which is well within the scope of the home dressmaker. The coat, which is modeled in one of the new striped broadcloths is semi-fitting, and owes its jaunty main to its excellent shapeliness, which is expressly intended to emphasize the best lines of the figure. It is an especially good model for the slender type of woman, to whom neither a tight-fitting jacket nor a loose wrap is wholly becoming. It is finished in tailored style, with stitched seams and collar, cuffs, and sleeve, all of which are in close accord with the latest approved designs. The medium size requires 2 1/4 yards of 54-inch cloth to make.

6990—6 sizes, 32 to 42 inches bust measure.

The price of this pattern is 10c.

A brand which varies in quality and strength, and requires different methods of using every time, is a source of worry to any cook and the cause of much spoiled bread and pastry. set us all such a good example, you mustn't fail us now. We've cause enough to be thankful that we have got Miss Isobel home alive. The rest will follow, all in good time—all in good time," soothingly, "and the first step toward it is to get her quietly to bed and as quickly as we can. It is no wonder that the poor child is all astray, yet."

Dr. Purves, a skilled and solid, if, as some young men fresh from college and hospital might have thought, a slightly old-fashioned practitioner, knew at first the sovereign properties of "something to do" as an outlet for anxiety and overcharged feeling. Basil was relieved of his light burden, and Isobel hastily conveyed to her room, that dainty maiden bower, theaching emptiness of which Lady Stormont had not dared to face for days past. The doctor soon followed, saying:

"Go and get a sleep, Mr. Conyers; you need it, and you, too, Sir David, if you'll take my advice. My news will keep till the morning, but I've every hope it will be a good report." "Sleep!"—the young man was perhaps dimly conscious that he was at last only awakening. What had happened? He did not understand, did not even realize the change which a moment had wrought. The train had been laid during these long days of feverish anxiety and suspense, of deepening pity, of growing dread, and now the needed spark had fallen and kindled it. He vaguely felt that Isobel was no longer only his little cousin, only the girl whom he was to marry, and whom he had rescued. Beyond that he did not yet go, as he sat gazing into the glowing heart of the fire, seeing again that new light awakened in her transparent eyes, feeling again the strange, sudden thrill of their meeting glances, while Sir David walked restlessly up and down the long room.

NO OPPOSITION TO ANNULMENT

Application Re the Lynd-Noble
Marriage May Be Granted.

Toronto, Oct. 8.—The News says: The application by Alexander F. Noble of Toronto, to annul the marriage of his daughter, Harriet, to Joseph Lynd, of London, son of Dr. Adam Lynd, is not likely to meet with any opposition.

Lynd and Miss Noble had known each other since childhood. They continued to be friends as they neared manhood and womanhood, attended the same parties and were good chums. It does not appear, however, that either family expected this friendship to result in matrimony.

The contention of the present action seems to be that the marriage was neither wise nor legal, that the contracting parties were little more than children, that they were minors certainly, and that it is the duty of their friends to free the young couple from the effect of their impetuosity.

Regret was expressed today that there had been publicity. Lawyers had said that there would be none. The judge, if he saw fit, would issue the order, and that would be the end of it.

The families have been friends for quite a long time, and are likely to continue so.

The marriage took place at the parsonage of the Simpson Avenue Methodist Church on Dominion Day, 1906. The first of July last year fell on a Sunday, and the ceremony was performed on the afternoon of that day, the groom explaining to Rev. S. Wesley Dean, the then pastor, that he had to leave that night for a bank managership in Muskoka. This was true, as young Lynd, formerly of the Standard Bank, had been manager pro tem of the Sterling branch at Kearney. That nothing was said of the marriage might be explained by the fact that Lynd, then 19, was not earning the salary on which bank clerks were allowed to marry. Although the Sterling Bank knew nothing of the marriage, Lynd resigned from the institution, to his senior officers' regret, and accepted a position in London, where he still is. Despite the regulations, it is not certain that young Lynd would have been asked to resign, as his work had given every satisfaction.

The registrations state that the groom was 23 years old and the bride 20. According to their families, the ages were 19 and 17.

The act under which annulment is asked, says that the person on whose behalf application is made must be under 18 at the time of the marriage.

MOST POWERFUL ICEBREAKER IN USE

Canada to Have Vessel That Will Clear Way to P. E. I.

Ottawa, Oct. 8.—Hon. L. P. Brodeur, Minister of Marine and Fisheries, returned to his official duties this morning, and in conversation with his correspondent chatted entertainingly of the attentions bestowed upon the Canadian minister in Paris and the interest manifested in Canadian affairs, not only in the United Kingdom but on the continent as well. Plans, he says, are now in preparation for the construction of the most powerful ice-breaker the world has ever seen, which is guaranteed to plow her way through any ice that ever gathers in the Straits of Northumberland. She will have engines capable of raising 6,000 horse-power. Tenders for this vessel will be called at an early date, so that she may be built in time to go into commission next year.

"In conversation with steamship men," says Mr. Brodeur, "I have endeavored to ascertain whether anything further is needed to make the St. Lawrence route as safe, as it ought to be for traffic, and I am glad to be able to say that there was really nothing that they could suggest beyond what has already been done. Personally I see no reason why the proposed all-ree line should not make its Canadian terminus on the St. Lawrence."

"My information is," said the minister, "that the St. Lawrence is now as well equipped in regard to aids to navigation as the Mersey."

PROSECUTED TICHBORNE

Baron Brampton Was Stern on the Bench, But a Practical Joker.

London, Oct. 8.—Sir Henry Hawkins, who died yesterday, was leader for the crown in the trial for perjury of "Claimant" in the celebrated Tichborne trial. He was born at Hinton, Herefordshire, in 1817, and was educated at Bedford. He was made a special pleader in 1843 and went on the old home circuit as Queen's counsel in 1853. He was appointed judge of Queen's bench division of the high court of justice in 1878, and in the same month was transferred by sign manual to the exchequer division. For a long time he was one of the leaders of the old home circuit. He was a bencher of the Middle Temple. He was created a Baron of Brampton in the county of Huntingdon in 1899. He leaves no heir to the title.

Sir Henry's greatest success was in jury cases, and it was said that he always succeeded in so impressing the jury with his views that the jurymen adopted them unconsciously. He was known at one time as "Angling Hawkins" and "Old Harry," before the title brought respect. He was held in terror among his friends through his habit of playing practical jokes. When he was made a judge, Sir Henry accepted the salary of £25,000 a year at a great pecuniary sacrifice, for as a plain lawyer he was earning a prodigious income from his enormous practice.

It was Sir Henry who delivered the

Sexton Suicides In a Church

Toronto, Oct. 8.—George McDonagh, 30 Camden street, committed suicide in a classroom in the rear portion of the Queen Street Methodist Church at noon today. The body was discovered an hour later by his little son, who ran home and called Mrs. McDonagh.

It was a most deliberate suicide, everything being planned to cause the least inconvenience possible. The dead man had carried a tub, placed it beside an open window, and then deliberately drew a razor across his throat. He sustained himself over the tub, leaning on the window until so much blood had flowed that he lost control. He fell on his face, but his throat remained over the tub, and his blood fell into the receptacle. Later the dead body fell from off the tub, and when found was lying on the floor beside it. Here but little blood flowed, as the two spots showed red on the carpet.

The room where the act was committed is on the southeast corner of the church, overlooking Undertaker Humphrey's yard. The window is about 25 feet from the ground, and the dead man's eyes rested on a hearse as he drew the weapon across his throat.

The room is a small one, about fifteen feet square. The walls are covered with sacred paintings and pictures of clergymen. It is used as a classroom and contained about two dozen chairs.

On one of these was placed a dustpan and brush with which McDonagh had been cleaning the church. Beside another chair was his broom.

The unfortunate man has been ill for some time past, and suffered much from melancholia.

A few days ago his doctor advised him to take a long rest. He leaves a wife and two sons, aged 6 and 8 years.

decision of the full court of the Queen's bench to the effect that the betting ring at the race tracks is "a place" in the meaning of the gambling act of 1853, and thus gave a serious blow to turf betting. Sir Henry probably regretted that decision as much as anybody in England, for he was very fond of the sport, and was often called the "Sporting Justice." He was a member of the Jockey Club and was invariably present at the Derby.

HEIRESS REFUSES TO FORSAKE FAITH

Gladys Vanderbilt and Hungarian
Fiance Attend Different Churches.

Newport, Oct. 8.—When Newport saw Miss Gladys Vanderbilt enter Trinity Episcopal Church Sunday, while her titled fiance went to the little Catholic Church, at Portsmouth, across the bay, it wondered exceedingly.

When later, gossips learned that Miss Vanderbilt has told intimate friends that she will under no circumstances abandon the Protestant faith—the wonderment changed to intense excitement.

It was expected that the contracting parties would at least attend church together, no matter what arrangements are to be made to overcome their religious differences.

Surprise was boundless, therefore, when the count stole away from the Alfred Vanderbilt estate at Oakdale, and hurried around to Portsmouth to a diminutive chapel for mass.

Accompanied by her mother and William E. Shepard, jun., his fiancee drove with some pomp to Trinity. The announcement that the marriage will take place Nov. 4 is confirmed, with the added intelligence that if it happens in America "The Breakers" will be the scene. There is little question that a priest of the Catholic Church will perform it, but it is understood that the count would have a high priest, while Miss Vanderbilt prefers a simple father who has long been a firm friend of the family.

In the meantime both Miss Gladys and the count are living strenuously in their effort to keep out of the public eye. It is estimated that 5,000 people came to Newport Sunday to see what the foreign nobleman looks like.

Lord Alverston, the lord chief justice of England, who has a salary of £40,000 a year, when at the bar used invariably to get up between 5 and 6 in the morning, except when he had been late in parliament. On one occasion he wanted to talk over a certain point in a brief with one of his juniors. He asked the young man to call in the morning. "At what time, Sir Richard?" asked the young barrister. "At 6:30, at my house," was the reply. The young man arrived on the stroke of the moment. In order to do it, however, he sat up all night.

Union-Made Clothing Direct From the Maker

Union men should bear in mind that Grafton & Co. own and operate the only OUT AND OUT UNION Clothing Factory in Canada, and to those who may not know the difference between UNION MADE CLOTHING and the ordinary sweat-shop product we would say briefly that we manufacture under UNION CONDITIONS because otherwise we could not get the high-class skilled labor necessary to turn out such superior clothing as GRAFTON'S famous "HIGH-GRADE." The union tailors are of the higher order of workmen and command much better wages than the ordinary sweat-shop operators. Again, the surroundings of the Union tailor are in every respect superior to the SWEAT-SHOP. All our clothing is made in OUR OWN clean, sanitary Factory, fully equipped with every modern device that is conducive to the comfort of our work-people or has the least tendency to the betterment of our product.

On the other hand, sweat-shop clothing is usually farmed out, and is made in squalid tenement houses, without proper equipment, and where the most meagre wages are earned. This, of course, tends to cheapen the product, allowing a great profit to the dealer.

Grafton & Co., Limited, give you a superior grade of clothing, extra well made and trimmed, manufactured only from the choicest selection of Tweeds, Worsteds and Serges, cut and designed by skilled Union workmen, tailored and finished by full-fledged Union journeymen tailors, and is sold direct to the wearer for considerably less than is usually charged for poorly made, ill-fitting sweat-shop product.

Chicago and Detroit Play a Fast Tie Game

For Scores of All League Games

WILD BILL DONOVAN HAS THE BEST OF A TWELVE-INNING CONTEST

Chicago, Oct. 8.—The Tigers have come and they have seen. They have yet to conquer, but in what was probably the greatest of all baseball games they played the National League champions, the Cubs, to a standstill in twelve innings this afternoon at the West Side Park.

There was good ball; there was bad ball; there was about every kind of baseball ever heard of. There were moments when the Tigers outshone the Cubs to such a degree that even the loyal Chicago rooters rose to their feet and shouted long and lustily for the men of Jennings. And there were moments when the Cubs so far outplayed the Tigers that the large delegation from Detroit could only rise and cheer.

For three of the fastest innings of baseball ever played there was no score on either side. It looked as though the contest might go the limit without a run coming over the plate. Then a base on balls for Chance, a sacrifice by Steinfield and a single by Kling gave the Cubs a lead of one run.

Cubs Look Like Amateurs. Then the scoring ceased until the eighth. In that one inning the Tigers made the Cubs look like a bunch of amateurs.

The inning opened with Donovan trying to bunt. He was out. Overall to Chance. Then Davy Jones stepped up for his third hit of the day. He stole second and went to third when Schaefer was safe on Tinker's error.

Schaefer stole second while Kling held the ball and looked for someone to throw it to. Crawford followed with a single to right, and Jones and Schaefer scored. On Schulte's bad throw Sam went to second. Cobb lined to Overall, who threw to catch Sam. The play failed and the right side of the ledger. One feral fan who came to the game attired as a cub bear quietly left the park disgusted.

Then came the terrible ninth, when all the good work of the Tigers was undone by a little bad work. Chance started the inning by singling to right. Steinfield was hit by a pitched ball, and there were two on bases.

Then Schmitt dropped the ball. Kling made it look a little better by popping to Rossman, but Coughlin booted Evers' grounder and the bases were full. Schulte sent a hot one to Rossman and was out to Donovan, but Chance scored. Howard then came but for Tinker. He swung wild and two and Tigers hopes ran high. Donovan threw the next one wide, however. Howard saw it was a wild pitch and swung at it. Schmitt failed to get the ball and Steinfield scored, while Howard was safe at first.

Howard stole second and Evers tried to steal home, evidently looking for wildness on Donovan's part, but he was tagged by Schmitt and the agony was over.

That ended the scoring on both sides. Detroit really didn't have any other good chance to send a man over the plate, as Reulbach went into the box in the tenth and had it all over the champions of the American League.

Schaefer Saves Tigers. On several occasions during the remaining three innings, things looked very ominous for one "Wild William" Donovan, but by some piece of rare good fortune or brilliant backing he was always pulled out of the park hole.

To Schaefer may be given the credit of saving the Tigers from defeat. In the twelfth inning, when the shades of night were falling fast, he pulled off the catch that was the sensation of the game.

Slagle went out, O'Leary to Rossman; Schaefer was hit by the first ball Donovan pitched. Then came Chance with a drive to short right that looked like a cinch single.

Schaefer went into the air after it and with a spear that was as sure as death, hauled the ball down and doubled Schaefer at second. As soon as Schaefer had made his spectacular catch, Umpire O'Day called the game.

By that time it was so dark that the players could scarcely see the ball, and the spectators could scarcely see the players. With the raising of O'Day's hands the great mob began to struggle out of the park hole, the first of the great games of the world's championship series was over.

It was not as satisfactory as a victory, but it was a whole lot more satisfactory than a defeat. And it was a defeat that the Detroiters looked forward to when the Cubs got busy and the Tigers fell off.

Donovan the Master of Old. Bill Donovan pitched a great game all the way. He allowed but seven hits, and only in the fourth inning, when the Cubs got their first run, were these particularly disastrous to the Detroit team.

The wild one had everything in the pitcher's category and struck out 12 men.

The Cubs had nothing which need frighten the Tigers particularly. True, they have Johnny Kling and he's a whole lot. But they didn't spring anything any more sensational than stunts the Tigers have been pulling off all season.

Everyone who saw the game seemed to think it the greatest baseball exhibition ever put up. There was not a stage of the entire contest when the great crowd was not on edge for something to happen. And the regularity with which the various somethings did happen drew round after round of thousands of applause from the packed stands.

Tigers Receive Great Welcome. The Tigers appeared on the field shortly before 2 o'clock. The welcome accorded them was such a one as befitted the team that had won a major league pennant after the greatest fight in the history of the national game.

Their practice was snappy, but was evident at once that they were handicapped by their lack of knowledge of the west side ball park. They were set to work with a will to get accustomed to the new surroundings and their lively handling of the ball got the crowd going right with the start.

They made a few little errors of judgment in handling the ball and these drew howls of derision from the rabid Chicago rooters, but as a whole, the sentiments of the mob were very friendly.

When the Cubs appeared the cheering was deafening. Chance's man was through the snapper practice, and their every move was cheered to the echo.

At 2:30 Umpires O'Day and Sheridan and Managers Jennings and Chance got together for a consultation on ground rules, and play was finally called at 2:35.

Overall Is Wild at First. Davy Jones waited with two and three on him, and walked. Overall seemed unable to put them over the plate. Schaefer grounded to Steinfield, and forced Jones, Crawford also waited for two and three and then fled to Slagle. The ball went to deep center and would have gone for two bases at an other part of the field.

As it was, Sam was out only after a pretty running catch by the Cub center fielder. Schaefer tried to steal second at a very inopportune time, and went out, Kling to Tinker.

Slagle opened fire on Chicago by flying to Jones. Schaefer followed with a clean single past third. Chance struck out. Schaefer stole second and went to third on Schmitt's wild throw, which went to center field. Donovan spared Steinfield's hot one and tossed him out.

The second started with Cobb walking down the first base line, he looked over on his sacrifice and was called out by Sheridan. He was unassisted. Rossman went out, Tinker to Chance. Coughlin fanned.

Donovan allowed Kling to walk in the Cub's half and then tossed Evers out on his sacrifice. Schulte grounded to Schaefer and Kling went to third on the play. Tinker fanned and saved the inning for the Tigers.

Misses Opportunity to Score. Schmitt made the first hit of the day for the Tigers when he came up in the third, putting a clean single over second, and Donovan struck out for the second time. Jones followed with a single and Schmitt went to third, missing an opportunity to score. Schaefer grounded to Tinker and retired the side.

Overall struck out. Slagle fled to Schaefer and Schaefer fouled to Coughlin.

Chicago started the fourth with a single to left. Cobb chopped a bouncer in front of the plate and was out, Kling to Chance. Sam advancing. Rossman walked. Then Coughlin fled to Evers and Crawford absent-mindedly ran and was doubled, Evers to Tinker.

Chicago's half brought the first score. Chance walked, Steinfield sacrificed, Kling singled to left and Chance scored. In attempting to take second, Kling was out, Schmitt to Schaefer. Evers singled over short and stole second, but Schulte struck out.

Schmitt opened the fifth with a single to left. After trying twice to sacrifice and fouling off half a dozen times, O'Leary grounded to Steinfield, Jones hit to short right and was called safe by Sheridan. Schmitt and Jones then tried a double steal and Charley was out, Kling to Steinfield.

Double Steal Fails. Tinker struck out. Overall sent a hot liner down the first base line and was out, Rossman to Donovan. Slagle singled to left and was out trying to steal, Schmitt to Schaefer.

Schaefer started the sixth with a single over short and Crawford sacrificed. Kling singled to left, Cobb fled to Tinker and Rossman forced Sam. Tinker to Evers. In another attempt at a double steal Schaefer was out, Kling to Tinker.

Schaefer grounded to Tinker. Schmitt went out, O'Leary to Rossman; Chance struck out, Steinfield singled to center and stole second, but Kling struck out.

Both sides went out rapidly in the seventh. Coughlin grounded to Tinker. Schmitt bouned to Overall and O'Leary fanned.

Evers fled to Jones. Schulte grounded to Schaefer, and Tinker struck out. The eighth found Detroit making those three runs that made it look as though the Tigers would get away with the first game of the big series, and the Cubs went out in order. Overall flying to Crawford. Slagle flying to Jones, and Schaefer striking out.

That Fatal Ninth Inning. The ninth brought about some big doings. Evers started the fun for the Tigers by making an error and letting Schmitt reach first in safety. O'Leary grounded to Evers and Schmitt could second. Donovan fled to Chance and Jones went out, Tinker to Chance.

Then the Cubs tied it up with two runs and the crowd settled down to a battle to the death. The fur surely did fly in those later innings. Howard batted for Tinker and Moran had wielded the bat for Overall in the ninth. When the Cubs took the field in the extra innings, their line-up was materially changed. Evers went to short with Zimmerman at second, and Reulbach took Overall's place in the box.

Schaefer started the inning by grounding to Zimmerman. Reulbach had it on Crawford and the big fellow fanned. The Cubs grounded to Chance.

In Chicago's tenth Reulbach went out, Schaefer to Rossman. Slagle singled over Donovan's head and stole second. Schaefer fanned, but Chance waited for his base and Slagle stole third. Chance stole second. The Cubs needed just one run to clinch the game. Slagle led a long way off third, hoping to get home. Donovan purchased a sacrifice from Schmitt could catch him off the base. It looked like a cinch out, and Steinfield threw his bat at the ball while Slagle slid over the plate. O'Day ruled that Steinfield had interfered with Schmitt and called Slagle out.

Looked Like a Riot. It looked for a minute as though there might be a riot. The crowd surged upon the field and the Chicago players rushed upon the umpire. Play was delayed a few minutes until peace was restored.

Rossman fled to Sheppard in the eleventh, and Coughlin followed with a fly to Chance. On Evers' error Steinfield was safe, but Schulte made a pretty running catch of O'Leary's fly and the inning was over.

Steinfeld fled to Schaefer. Kling chopped out to Coughlin, which was good for a base, and Evers beat out a bunt down the third base line. Schulte hit to short, filling the bases. It looked bad for the Tigers for a minute, but Zimmerman fanned and Reulbach forced Schulte, O'Leary to Schaefer.

The twelfth was short and sweet. Donovan opened by striking out. Jones fled to Sheppard at the final of Chance. In the Cub's half Slagle grounded to Schmitt, who threw to center field, saved the day by making that phenomenal catch, and the only time Evers played in a world's championship series since the National commission had charge of those affairs was over. Throngs Read Advertiser Bulletins

That the city is in the throes of a baseball frenzy was evinced yesterday and last evening when hundreds upon hundreds of people almost completely blocked Dundas street in front of The Advertiser building, watching the score of the big game as it was posted up in the building, hot off the wires.

At 4:20 the score of the first inning was published, and a few moments later additional scores were posted. A few muffled cheers came forth from the crowd when Chicago scored its first run, but they were as nothing in comparison with the mighty shout of approval which broke loose when Detroit assumed the lead.

There are three phones in the editorial and business office of The Advertiser combined, and at times all three were going at one time, while there was never a moment between the hours of four and six when one or more were not busy.

Each evening during the world's championship series the scores of the contests will be posted in the building as fast as the returns are received. Watch the bulletins.

Action of C.A.A.U. Under Discussion

Toronto, Oct. 8.—The disqualification of the Toronto men who played against Erie Russell in Saturday's Rugby game is still the leading topic in athletic circles, and while universal regret is expressed for the loss the amateur athletic world has sustained, the C. A. A. U. is still the subject of much discussion.

It is one of the boldest steps the governing union has been called upon to take since the reorganization last year and it is gratifying to the lovers of amateur sport to find that the C. A. A. U. rose to the occasion with such commendable promptitude.

Sympathy, of course, for the young men concerned is expressed on all sides. Their disqualification means that they are out of all amateur athletics for some time to come. Some are lost to the rowing world for the time being, the Central Y. M. C. A. will be deprived of its athletes, while other lines of athletic effort will feel the loss more or less keenly.

And all this because of the indiscreet action at Montreal on Saturday, when the men, with their eyes open, competed against a man whom the C. A. A. U. says is an athletic outlaw. This man, Erie Russell, played last winter on the Wanderers' hockey seven, Montreal, Stanley Cup winners, a pro organization of whom members of the team were receiving financial remuneration for their services, and the inference is, of course, that Russell, too, received some consideration for his season's work more substantial than the barrels of glory that came his way.

LOCAL MARKET.

London, Wednesday, Oct. 9.
Hay sold quickly at $17 per ton; a couple of loads sold at $17.50 per ton; there were 15 loads offered.
There has been no straw offered for over a week, and the buyers are at a loss to fill their orders.
Oats were scarce, at $1.59 and $1.60 per bushel.
Wheat eased off a little, selling at $50 and $1 per bu.

WEEKLY REVIEW.

Notwithstanding the fact that prices were higher in nearly every line, the markets held here the past week were brisk in every department. The supply of hay and oats is considerably short of the demand. The buyers are of the opinion that prices are at high water mark, unless the roads become so impassable that only the farmers who live near the city could come in. On the other hand, the farmers are confident that hay will reach the $20 mark. The farmers, however, are not so confident that they will reach the $20 mark. The farmers, however, are not so confident that they will reach the $20 mark.

Grain—Oats are firm, at $1.57 to $1.60 per bushel. Wheat has been selling for about $1 per bu., but today prices eased off a couple of cents to 95c per bu.

Hay and Straw—There is almost a hay famine at present, the offerings being barely sufficient to supply the demand; sales as a consequence are brisk, and prices are firm at $16.50 and $17 per ton. Nearly all the sales being made at the higher figure. Straw is scarce, and the farmers are said to be feeding straw to cattle, in order to save the hay; the last load offered on this market was over a week ago, and sold at $7 per ton.

Butter and Eggs—The dealers say that butter is very scarce, and they look for prices to keep up; sales are brisk, at 25c for cream and 22c for pound rolls in wholesale lots. Eggs are firm, at 22c for crates and 23c to 24c for basket lots.

Potatoes—The supply is light at present, and prices are firm, at 95c per bag whole sale; they have started to ship at Mount Brydges and also at Longwood station, and are paying 65c to 75c per bag; the crop is of excellent quality and will be an average yield.

Apples—Prices vary according to quality; sales are made at 50c to 60c per bu. for common and 60c to $1.10 for choice. Potatoes—Old fall sold at 6c per lb. alive and 7c dressed; chickens, 8c to 9c alive and 10c to 11c dressed; ducks, 6c alive and 7c dressed; turkeys, 15c dressed and 16c alive.

Dressed Hogs—The demand is brisk, at 85.50 per cwt. Live Hogs—The price here last Monday was $6 per cwt; there may be a slight reduction for next Monday's shipment; pigs are very dull, at $5.50 to $6 per pair. Butcher's Meat—Beef is selling at $4 to $5.50 per cwt; veal, $8 to $9 per cwt; lamb, 15c per lb by the carcass; mutton, 8c to 8.50 per cwt.

The employment of 11,000 volts on the line from Niagara to Buffalo was, everything considered, at the time a remarkable achievement. In 1898 the highest pressure anywhere in the world was 40,000 volts. At present there are six lines carrying a voltage of 60,000, two being in California, one in Mexico, one in the State of Washington, one between Niagara and Toronto and one between Niagara and Syracuse.

From 75 to 213 miles and two of them have been put in operation only within the last few months.

Miss J. The surprise was a startling one for Mrs. McNemie, as she and her brother had not met since their mother's death, which occurred some twenty years ago, and neither one was exactly sure where the other was living. After spending two pleasant weeks together, Mr. and Mrs. Penington left London for New York, where they intend to reside.

W. C. T. U. MEETS OFFICERS ELECTED

Mrs. (Rev.) Black Chosen for President—An Appeal for Spectacles.

The annual session of the Woman's Christian Temperance Union was held yesterday in the school room of the First Congregational Church, which had been very kindly loaned to them, as they are at present homeless.

The president, Mrs. McDermid, was in the chair, and there was a very large attendance of members present, some probably attracted by the fact that the election of officers for the ensuing year was on the programme.

The reports from superintendents of departments were then called for, and the recording-secretary's report was the first read, and the members were both surprised and pleased when they heard the summing up of the good deeds accomplished by their union during the year just ended.

Mrs. Y. Miller gave a beautiful address and scripture reading, which were followed by the reports of the thirteen departments.

The Officers.

The election of officers was proceeded with and resulted as follows: President, Mrs. (Rev.) E. R. Black. Corresponding secretary, Mrs. Wm. Heame.

Recording secretary, Mrs. F. White. Treasurer, Mrs. (Dr.) Weekes.

A Good Work.

In connection with the past year's work of the Woman's Christian Temperance Union it will be remembered by many that during the year January last these ladies collected spectacles to send to a missionary in India who found the people among whom she worked so badly-housed, ill-fed and over-worked, that while yet young a vast proportion of them became afflicted with blindness. From all sources some 476 pairs of spectacles were gathered and sent to them.

An Appeal.

The secretary of the union says: Surely there are some among our kindly citizens who can find spectacles, perhaps laid away in some half-forgotten corner. Even though these have been reverently garnered because once they were the property of some aged loved one who has gone to the "Land of the Leal" they may with all sweet reverence be donated, for from that home where they "need not the light of the sun," their beloved will rejoice that sight be given to their darkened ones.

Mrs. Thornley, 843 Dundas street, will gladly take charge of any contributions, as indeed will any member of the union living nearby any who desire to give.

Lacking spectacles, perhaps some can spare a stereopticon or even views to use with that sent by some one else. These, the missionary hopes may prove of interest sufficient to open the doors of the Hindoo women's homes. Their portion of the house is bare and very unattractive even when that of the lords and masters are beautifully furnished and rich in objects of interest.

These may be donated and will be taken in charge the same as the spectacles.

Miss Marguerite R. Frink has been appointed to fill a professorship in the Colorado State Agricultural College while the regular incumbent, Professor Howlett, is in New York City taking courses in Columbia University. Miss Frink has studied the details of dairying and is an expert in cheesemaking. The young members of society hold her in great demand. She is fond of sports and can ride a horse like a cowboy. In Denver University she was the business and social leader of her class and managed successfully amateur theatricals.

De Wolf Hopper has never appeared to better advantage than in the comic opera, "Happyland." The tall comedian and his resonant voice have been received with tumultuous acclaim by the lovers of light opera wherever "Happyland" has been produced, being greeted with crowded houses everywhere.

The music is of that brilliant, catchy kind that everyone wants to sing or whistle. It jingles in your ears and you find yourself involuntarily humming the many catchy, breezy melodies. The management has spared no expense in the elaborate mounting of the piece; the scenery being of gorgeous splendor, and the costumes a dazzling harmony of color and armor.

"Happyland" commences next Saturday, matinee and evening.

The annual meeting of the Canadian Club was held last night in the city hall, when the report of the nominating committee was read and adopted, and other business transacted. There was not a very large crowd present, but it was enthusiastic and hopeful.

Mr. Geo. C. Gibbons, K. C., the retiring president, occupied the chair. He thanked the club for the great honor it had done him in electing him its president. He was certain that the citizens generally were very favorable to the club. Its success during the past year was the source of a great deal of pleasure to himself personally as well as a source of gratification to the members themselves.

The club has been very beneficial to the city. Here all classes were met. It toned down animosities, and made men better acquainted. It toned down partisan spirit. He felt that it was the greatest honor yet paid him to be president of such a club. Although he was now stepping from office he would still retain his interest in the club.

A nation was being built, and national life was being formed. Such clubs as the Canadian Clubs would mold public opinion, and create an independent public spirit. Its influence would become greater every year. He hoped that the membership would rally behind the new officers and assist them in making the club a greater success than in the past.

Mr. Frank Lawson then read the report of the nominating committee, as published in The Advertiser, and it was adopted without change.

The financial statement was read by Mr. Jared Vining, the treasurer, who reported a deficit in the neighborhood of $100.

The New President.

Dr. John D. Wilson, the newly-elected president, was then called to the chair, and he was given a warm greeting. He considered that he had been given a great honor, an honor that falls to few men, to be elected president of such a club as the Canadian Club. These clubs are destined to wield a great influence in this Dominion, and matters of great importance will be discussed by them. Citizens in larger numbers will come out, and take a greater interest in the future of this country, and would be more loyal and better citizens. He had been president of other clubs, but he felt it not a trifling honor to be the president of the Canadian Club in his own city. He realized it would be a hard matter to follow a man such as Mr. Gibbons, who although a very busy man, had given his time and money to make the club a success. He congratulated Secretary Glass on his efficient services during the year. He hoped that the members would assist the executive in making the club a greater success than last year.

A VERY FUNNY SCOT ON BENNETT BILL

Splendid Act of Donald and Carson—Show This Week Is One Big Laugh.

Everybody should see the vaudeville this week. There is one act on the bill which alone is worth the price of admission. It is that of Donald and Carson, a bonny Scotch pair, who have one of the best and most humorous skits ever seen on a local stage.

Donald is a funny card on and off the stage, and he tells some very funny stories. When he landed at New York, with his wife, he met a brother Scot, who was anxious to put him "right" to the ropes.

"Ye must drap th' Scotch dialect whin ye come here," said the brother, who imagined he was thoroughly Americanized. "Whin I first cam' out they kidded me here every time I spoke a word, but now I know their talk and I fool 'em."

"What do you say to them?" asked Donald.

"Weel," said the Scot, "I no say stopp, any more. I say cut it out, and they stopp to onet."

Howard and Bland have a very fine sketch this week, and it should draw well. The musical selections of this act are very fine, while the comedy is excellent.

In fact, if you want to laugh, go to Bennett's. The bill this week is nothing if not a laughing bill.

Many believe that cigars marked with light spots are indicators of the predatory habits of an insect which attacks only a good leaf, but as a matter of fact these spots are due to the combined action of sun and rain.

More patents were applied for and more patents issued and reissued by the United States Government in 1906 than in any other year in its history. The number of applications was 56,482 and of patents 31,865.

A Chinese merchant of Peking who was convicted of murder was sentenced to death by being deprived of sleep. Four warders kept watch over him to keep him awake and on the tenth day he died.

He had been president of other clubs, but he felt it not a trifling honor to be the president of the Canadian Club in his own city. He realized it would be a hard matter to follow a man such as Mr. Gibbons, who although a very busy man, had given his time and money to make the club a success. A VERY FUNNY SCOT ON BENNETT BILL

Splendid Act of Donald and Carson—Show This Week Is One Big Laugh.

Everybody should see the vaudeville this week. There is one act on the bill which alone is worth the price of admission. It is that of Donald and Carson, a bonny Scotch pair, who have one of the best and most humorous skits ever seen on a local stage.

Donald is a funny card on and off the stage, and he tells some very funny stories. When he landed at New York, with his wife, he met a brother Scot, who was anxious to put him "right" to the ropes.

"Ye must drap th' Scotch dialect whin ye come here," said the brother, who imagined he was thoroughly Americanized. "Whin I first cam' out they kidded me here every time I spoke a word, but now I know their talk and I fool 'em."

"What do you say to them?" asked Donald.

"Weel," said the Scot, "I no say stopp, any more. I say cut it out, and they stopp to onet."

Howard and Bland have a very fine sketch this week, and it should draw well. The musical selections of this act are very fine, while the comedy is excellent.

In fact, if you want to laugh, go to Bennett's. The bill this week is nothing if not a laughing bill.

Many believe that cigars marked with light spots are indicators of the predatory habits of an insect which attacks only a good leaf, but as a matter of fact these spots are due to the combined action of sun and rain.

LIBERAL WHIST MATCH

The South London Liberals will hold the first whist party of the season on Friday evening at their clubrooms.

These evenings were very largely attended last year, and it is anticipated that much larger crowds of young Liberals will be on hand.

Prizes will be given the winners.

Let all the young Liberals of South London keep Friday
