CHRONOLOGICAL CYCLES.

Dominical Letter F. Solar Cycle 22.
 Golden Number 10. Roman Indiction 6.
 Epact 9. Julian Period 6546.

ECLIPSES.

There will be five eclipses this year; three of the Moon, and two of the Sun; as follows:

I. The first will be an Eclipse of the Moon, on the morning of the 6th of January, at 10 o'clock and 34 minutes morning, and visible in North America.

The duration of this Eclipse is 2h. 20m.; and its size, $5\frac{1}{2}$ digits on the Moon's north limb.

II. The second will be an Eclipse of the Sun, January 20th, invisible in North America. The time of Conjunction may be known by reference to the calendar. In high southern latitudes, this Eclipse will be central and annular.

III. The third will be an Eclipse of the Moon, on the evening of July 1st, at 5 o'clock and 47 minutes evening; and partly visible in North America.

The duration of this Eclipse will be 3h. 16m., and its size $10\frac{1}{4}$ digits; the Moon rises at near the middle of the Eclipse, and will, when rising, be about three-fourths immersed in the earth's shadow. The Moon will rise more or less eclipsed throughout Canada and the United States.

IV. The fourth will be an Eclipse of the Sun, beginning on the evening of the 16th, and ending on the morning of the 17th of July; and invisible in North America. The time of Conjunction may be known by reference to the calendar. This Eclipse will be visible in Europe and Asia. In London it will commence a few minutes after the Sun rises, and at an hour and forty-four minutes after, the Sun will be about three-fourths covered.

V. The fifth will be an Eclipse of the Moon, on the evening of December 26th, at two o'clock and 31 minutes evening; and partly visible in North America.

The duration of this Eclipse is 3h. 38 m., and the duration of total darkness, 1h. 38m. In Canada and the western part of the United States, it does not rise till after the end of total darkness; but it rises either partially or totally eclipsed, throughout the country.

TABLE
 showing the times of the Eclipses of the Sun and Moon, and the duration of total darkness, for the year 1824.
 The superior figures, II and V, are considered as stars from their conjunction to their western quadrature; and evening stars from their eastern quadrature to their conjunction.

Bleak Winter's gloomy pioneer,
 Thou harbinger of woes to come,
 Thou hast commenced thy dread career—
 O'er the sad earth thy whirlwinds roam;
 Thou art the despot of the year,
 The tyrant of the fleeting clan.
 For all within thy breath is sear,
 E'er. Nature's fairest darling—man.

Where sleeps the lover's soften'd flute
 Which late was sounding on the wave?—
 His sorrow-soothing pipe is mute;
 It rests within the minstrel's grave:
 For what avails its music now
 Since dreary winter's rugged arm
 Rests on Earth's solitary brow
 And desolates each glowing charm.

1833. 3d Month,

MARCH,

Begins on Friday

Again, in gentle warmth, the sun's impartial beams
 Expels the frost—unbids the fettered streams ;
 Gives life to herbage ; and the pleasant flower
 Bursts into life and smiles away its hour ;
 The cheerful bird salutes each dawning day,
 Extends his wings and skips from spray to spray,
 Soars thro' the air, the clear expanse of blue,
 Then drops his plumes and sips the morning dew ;

1833. 4th Month,

APRIL,

Begins on Monday.

The fragrant blossoms deck the verdant trees,
 And yield their freshness to each passing breeze ;
 The culture fields unfold the waving grain,
 Whilst sportive young are dancing o'er the plain ;
 And the swift ball the raptur'd blow receives
 Bounds in the air—or revels with the leaves.

1833. 5th Month.

MAY,

Begins on Wednesday.

Peace giving spring ! sweet morning of the year
 To lightsome hearts, to youth and beauty dear—
 Of dawning life the symbol bright and fair—
 The dream of Childhood new, without a care :
 I strike the harp sweet morn of thee to sing—
 Dawn of our hopes soft pleasure giving spring ;
 Whose gentle rains enlivenate the health,
 And promise plenty—stores of Ceres' wealth.

1833. 6th Month,

JUNE,

Begins on Saturday.

Now have young April and the blue-ey'd May
 Vanish'd awhile, and lo! the glorious June
 (While nature ripens in his burning noon)
 Comes like a young inheritor; and gay,
 Although his parent months have pass'd away:
 But his green crown shall wither, and the tune
 That usher'd in his birth be silent soon,
 And in the strength of youth shall he decay.

1833. 7th Month,

JULY,

Begins on Monday.

What matters this—so long as in the past
 And in the days to come we live, and feel
 The present nothing worth, until it steal
 Away, and like a disappointment die?
 For joy, dim child of Hope and Memory
 Flies ever on before or follows fast.

1833. 8th Month,

AUGUST,

Begins on Thursday.

Summer may spread her choicest flow'rs,
 And Zephyrs waft their fragrance round,
 And smiling skies, and pleasant bowers
 With the blithe songs of birds resound ;
 Yet will not these a charm impart,
 If peace is banished from the heart.

I know 'tis bright — 'tis beautiful! — but yet
 I ne'er could look on Autumn's golden leaf,
 Her robe of changeful dye, and not regret
 That vernal loveliness should be so brief.
 Who sighs not over summer's fading rose?
 Although around us other flowers are wreathing,
 Whose bosoms richer, gayer tints disclose,
 And with whose fragrance every gale is breathing.

Still, this fair flower, to young affection dear,
 If once enshrined within a faithful breast,
 Oh, never to the heart that lov'd sincere,
 Can other blossoms be as fondly pressed,
 Yet when the garden's loveliness is past,
 We look upon the forest's towering pride,
 Which, though we know too soon must meet the blast,
 We breathe a fervent wish to hope allied—

That soft Fatonial gales, with gentle breath,
 And genial suns the fading scene may cheer,
 Arrest awhile the chilling shafts of death,
 And sigh a requium o'er the closing year!
 Oh! there's desolation wild and bleak,
 In winter's dread approach: our bosoms feel
 A paralyzing chill, we cannot speak,
 Cling round the heart—o'er all its pulses steal.

Yet there's a hope which softens grief
 And stills the bosom's heaving sigh,
 That thy lone empire, dark as brief,
 Will soon have passed our dwellings by;—
 And when the swift and rolling year
 Has ended with their reign of dread,
 Many will drop the gushing tear,
 Not that thy day, but time hath fled.

From the Diary of a Late Physician.

THE BURIED ALIVE.

I HAD been for some time ill of a low and lingering fever. My strength gradually wasted, but the sense of life seemed to become more and more acute as my corporeal powers became weaker. I could see by the looks of the doctor that he despaired of my recovery; and the soft and whispering sorrow of my friends taught me that I had nothing to hope.

One day towards the evening the crisis took place. I was seized with a strange and indescribable quivering,—a rushing sound was in my ears,—I saw around my couch innumerable strange faces; they were bright and visionary, and without bodies. There was light and solemnity, and I tried to move, but could not. For a short time a terrible confusion overwhelmed me; and when it passed off, all my recollection returned with the most perfect distinctness, but the power of motion had departed. I heard the sound of weeping at my pillow, and the voice of the nurse say, “He is dead.” I cannot describe what I felt at these words. I exerted my utmost power of volition to stir myself, but I could not even move an eyelid. After a short pause my friend drew near; and sobbing and convulsed with grief, drew his hand over my face, and closed my eyes. The world was then darkened, but I still could hear, and feel, and suffer.

When my eyes were closed, I heard by the attendants that my friend had left the room, and I soon after found the undertakers were preparing to habit me in the garments of the grave. Their thoughtlessness was more awful than the grief of my friends. They laughed at one another as they turned me from side to side, and treated what they believed a corpse with the most appalling ribaldry.

When they had laid me out, these wretches retired, and the degrading formality of affected mourning commenced. For three days, a number of friends called to see me. I heard them, in low accents, speak of what I was; and more than one touched me with his finger. On the third day some of them talked of the smell of corruption in the room. The coffin was procured ; I was lifted and laid in ; my friend placed my head on what was deemed its last pillow, and I felt his tears drop on my face.

When all who had any peculiar interest in me had for a short time looked at me in the coffin, I heard them retire ; and the undertaker's men placed the lid on the coffin, and screwed it down. There were two of them present ; one had occasion to go away before the task was done. I heard the fellow who was left begin to whistle as he turned the screw-nails ; but he checked himself, and completed the work in silence.

I was then left alone,—every one shunned the room. I knew, however, that I was not yet buried ; and though darkened and motionless, I had still hope ; but this was not permitted long. The day of interment arrived—I felt the coffin lifted and borne away—I heard and felt it placed in the hearse. There was a crowd of people around ; some of them spoke sorrowfully of me. The hearse began to move—I knew that it carried me to the grave. It halted, and the coffin was taken out—I felt myself carried on shoulders of men, by the inequality of the motion.—A pause ensued—I heard the cords of the coffin moved—I felt it swing as dependent by them—It was lowered, and rested on the bottom of the grave—The cords were dropped upon the lid—I heard them fall. Dreadful was the effort I then made to exert the power of action, but my whole frame was immoveable.

Soon after, a few handfuls of earth were thrown upon the coffin. Then there was another pause—after which the shovel was employed, and the sound of the rattling mould, as it covered me, was far more tremendous than thunder. But I could make no effort. The sound gradually became less and less, and by a surging reverberation in the coffin, I knew that the grave was filled up, and that the sexton was treading in the earth, slapping the grave with the flat of his spade. This too ceased, and then all was silent. I had no means of knowing the lapse of time ; and the silence continued. This is death, thought I, and I am doomed to remain in the earth till the resurrection. Presently the body will fall into corruption, and the epicurean worm, that is only satisfied with the flesh of man, will come to partake of the banquet that has been prepared for him with so much solicitude and care. In the contemplation of this hideous thought, I heard a low and under sound in the earth over me, and I fancied that the worms and the reptiles of death were coming—that the mole and the rat of the grave would soon be upon me. The sound continued to grow louder and nearer. Can it be possible, I thought that my friends suspect they have buried me too soon? The hope was truly like light bursting through the gloom of death.

The sound ceased, and presently I felt the hands of some dreadful being working about my throat. They dragged me out of the coffin by the head. I felt again the living air, but it was piercingly cold; and I was carried swiftly away—I thought to judgment, perhaps perdition.

When borne to some distance, I was then thrown down like a clod—it was not upon the ground. A moment after I found myself on a carriage, and, by the interchange of two or three brief sentences, I discovered that I was in the hands of two of those robbers who live by plundering the grave, and selling the body of parents, and children, and friends. One of the men sung snatches and scraps of obscene songs as the cart rattled over the pavement of the streets.

When it halted, I was lifted out, and I soon perceived, by the closeness of the air, and the change of temperature, that I was carried into a room; and being rudely stripped of my shroud, was placed naked on a table. By the conversation of the two fellows with the servant who admitted them, I learned that I was that night to be dissected.

My eyes were still shut, I saw nothing; but in a short time I heard, by the hustle in the room, that the students of anatomy were assembling. Some of them came round the table, and examined me minutely. They were pleased to find that so good a subject had been procured. The demonstrator himself at last came in.

Previous to beginning the dissection, he proposed to try on me some galvanic experiment; and an apparatus was arranged for that purpose. The first shock vibrated through all my nerves: they rung and jangled like the strings of a harp. The student expressed their admiration at the convulsive effect. The second shock threw my eyes open, and the first person I saw was the doctor who had attended me. But still I was as dead; I could, however, discover among the students the faces of many with whom I was familiar; and when my eyes were opened, I heard my name pronounced by several of the students, with an accent of awe and compassion, and a wish that it had been some other subject.

When they had satisfied themselves with the galvanic phenomena, the demonstrator took the knife, and pierced my bosom with the point. I felt a dreadful crackling, as it were throughout my whole frame—a convulsive shuddering instantly followed, and a shriek of horror rose from all present. The ice of death was broken up—my trance ended. The utmost exertions were made to restore me, and in the course of an hour I was in the full possession of all my faculties.

Curious and simple manner of keeping Apricots, Peaches, Plums, &c. fresh all the year.

Beat well up together equal quantities of honey and spring water; put it into an earthen vessel, put in the fruits all freshly gathered and cover them up quite close. When any of the fruit is taken out, wash it in cold water, and it is fit for immediate use.

Dairy secret for increasing the quantity of Cream.

Have ready two pans in boiling water; and on the new milk's coming, take out the hot pans, put the milk into one of them, and cover it over with the other. This will occasion, in the usual time, a great augmentation of the thickness and quantity of the cream.

Tincture for the Teeth and Gums.

Mix six ounces of the Peruvian bark with half an ounce of sal ammoniac. Shake them well a few minutes every time before the tincture is used. The method of using it is, to take a tea-spoon full and hold it near the teeth; then with a finger dipped in it rub the teeth and gums, which are afterwards to be washed with warm water. This tincture not only allays the toothache, but preserves both the teeth and gums, and makes them adhere to each other.

ANECDOTES.

A Commercial traveller lately left an article belonging to his wardrobe at an inn, and wrote to the chambermaid to forward it to him by the return coach; in answer to which he received the following:—

I hope, dear Sir, you'll not feel hurt—

I'll frankly tell you all about it:

I made a shift of your old shirt,

And you must make a shift without it.

A gentleman having a horse that started and broke his wife's neck, a neighboring squire told him he wished to purchase it for his wife to ride upon. 'No,' says the other, 'no—I will not sell the little fellow, because I intend to marry again myself.'

A SHORT STORY.

AS TOLD BY MATTHEWS THE COMEDIAN.

My friend and myself when in Devonshire were visiting an acquaintance, who had a daughter not remarkable either for her wit, beauty or accomplishments. She had passed the grand climacteric, and was certainly on the wane; but her heart had lost none of its susceptibility to le grand passion. She had for ten years been conspicuous for her dress, airs, and 'beau-catchers;' but alas! she had toiled at night at balls, routs, and levees, but had caught no beau. Being as vain as she was simple, we thought her fair game for a quiz. 'Miss Lucretia Elvira,' said I, 'have you heard of the late act of parliament, by which all ladies with small mouths shall be allowed to marry two husbands?' 'No sir,' said she (SCREWING UP HER MOUTH IN A PUCKER)—'what a curis law!' 'You are wrong, Edward,' said my friend to me; 'those ladies with large mouths are to be allowed two husbands.' 'LAW ME!' exclaimed she, (opening her mouth as big as a bucket;) 'what a curious law!'
