The crop failure in Alberta is evidently to be a most serious one from present indications, and the outlook for wheat in the whole prairie district is far from good. The need for economy and thrift in the whole country is all the greater because of the news from the western provinces.

Pte George T. Dunn, of the 1st Depot Battalion, Sussex is spending a few days at his home here.

Mr. Fred J. Nesbit, of the Pension Board, St. John was in town last week.

John Wight of the Montreal Hospital Group is spending a few days at his home.

Mr. J. Leonard O'Brien, South Nelson spent part of last week in Fredericton.

The Week In The War Zone

Allies Continue Victorious Advance—Submarine Operating Off Canadian Coast—Many Prisoners and Guns Taken

Tuesday
The German troops are now making a stand and fiercely counter-attacking, especially against the American troops. Czech-Slovak troops operating in Russia have penetrated the Black Sea, in South Eastern Russia and seized the Russian Warships at Novorotok.

The Czech-Slovaks are sympathizing with the Allies. Clashes between the Allies and German-Finns is eminent in Finland. Japan has agreed to loan two hundred million dollars to the new Siberian Government. Australian troops capture Merrie. British Munition workers who have been on strike have returned to work.

Wednesday
Fierce fighting is reported on the river Ourcq. Heavy German counter-attacks along the whole front have been repulsed. Much hand to hand fighting developed in the American sector. Field Marshal von Eichorn of Germany has been assassinated on the Ukraine district.

Thursday
Allied troops have captured Goussancourt, and advanced steadily north of Clerges. Hill 205, Courdoux and Cramcisse, were taken by the French troops, along with many prisoners. British troops carried out successful raids at Festubert and Albert capturing a few prisoners. As a result of Allied successes Fismes is now menaced. Heavy German counter-attacks have been broken up near Busancro and L'Arveque wood. In Western Siberia Czech troops operating with Casocks have cleared the country of the Bolsheviks. 234 enemy planes were destroyed during the month of July.

The German attacks on the French front near Bloiry, were repulsed after sharp fighting, as were also surprise attacks on the Meuse sector. American troops attacked again on the Marne salient, storming the heights of Sorigny and Sorcy and gaining their objectives. The German Military authorities have called up between 30,000 and 40,000 employees of Krupp's munition works. The British carried out a successful raid near Lens. The Kaiser on a proclamation to his army declared he is not afraid of the numerical superiority of the American Army.

Friday
The enemy was swept back in full retreat, all along the whole front from Solissons to Rheims. The Allied armies advancing from two to five miles, capturing many villages. The city of Solissons fell before the victorious advance of the French armies. The enemy is burning all villages in his wake. The American troops advanced six miles along the centre of the salient, capturing

Cattle Thieves Busy Near Newcastle

Young Animal Taken From Pasture Near Beaver Brook and Slaughtered

The scarcity of meat and the high prices paid for beef has caused cattle thieves to become active in the vicinity of Newcastle and the Police are working on clues at the present time, which may land some culprits a trip to the penitentiary, a short time ago a young animal belonging to Mr. A. Graham, and kept in pasture of Henry Peters at Pattersons Sliding was missed from the rest of the cattle and upon investigation, it was found that the animal had been taken into the woods and slaughtered to provide meat for some mean culprit.

The matter was reported to the Police, who are now working on the case, and as the penalty is most severe it is likely that if the offenders are brought to justice that they will be severely dealt with. It is said that this is not the only killing that has taken place, but as yet it is the only one brought to the attention of the officers of the law.

Cohan: British troops occupied the German front line in the Albert sector.

Saturday

Both flanks of the German forces between Rheims and Solissons appear to have turned. French troops have crossed the Vesle, west of Rheims. American troops hold the outposts of Fismes, the German base. The Allies continue their advance toward the Vesle on a thirty mile front, capturing more than fifty villages. Cavalry are operating along the railroad. Four vessels were sunk at the mouth of the Bay of Fundy by a German submarine. A motorboat was bound from St. John for Australia and had only just been launched, at St. John. The crew were landed at Gannet Rock, while the vessel was set on fire after her provisions were taken by the U. Boat. The other vessels were fishing schooners bound for the Grand Banks via the Muriel, Rob Roy and Annie M. Perry. The crews were all safely landed on the Nova Scotia coast.

According to the men, the submarine is 200 feet long. It is neat and clean, painted black along the top. It is equipped with four guns, two fore, two aft. As it lay off Seal Island it was brilliantly illuminated by a light which seemed to be suspended from the masthead. The captain boasted of his accomplishments to the crew of the Muriel. He said that on Friday he had sunk six schooners, and that he had orders to destroy all that he met. The direction which the submarine took on leaving Seal Island, could not be ascertained.

Sunday
Fismes has fallen to the American and French troops, despite fierce resistance offered, by the enemy. White La Neuville, Hargincourt and (Continued on page 4)

To Organize A Boy Scout Troop

Meeting Held in Town Hall Last Evening, When Provisional Committee was Appointed

A meeting of citizens and boys interested in the formation of a Boy Scout Troop in Newcastle was held in the Town Hall last night. Rev. E. A. Kinley was chosen chairman and R. A. N. Jarvis secretary.

Mr. H. O. Eaman, Maritime Secretary, of Truro, N. B., outlined the work of the Boy Scouts and the purpose for which they are being formed. Mr. Eaman dealt at length with the history of the Boy Scouts movement, which he declared was non-sectarian and formed for the promotion of clean boyhood, both physically and mentally.

After Mr. Eaman's address it was on motion decided to form a Provisional Committee to organize a Boy Scout Council and troops at Newcastle.

The following were selected as the Provisional Committee: Chairman—Fred E. Locke Secretary—R. A. N. Jarvis

Executive Committee—Rev. E. A. Kinley, L. H. MacLennan, W. J. Bate, P. W. Dixon, F. F. Bertram and Joseph Trudelle Messrs. Walter Amy, J. R. Lawlor, Jack Nicholson, W. R. Melanson, Mayor Troy and Capt. March

Another meeting for further organization will be held next Monday night when Patrol Leaders will be selected to be sent to the Leader's Training Camps which will be held in the vicinity of Fredericton commencing on August 24th and continuing until the 31st.

Mr. Eaman expects to return to Newcastle early in September.

MAY LOSE AN EYE

Mr. Osborne Sigmond, of Boom Road, who is home from Camp Sussex, to assist in the haying, had a misfortune while at work on Saturday, to meet with an accident that may cause him the loss of the sight of an eye. The young man was engaged in pitching hay, when the fork handle broke and the falling hay forced one of the prongs of the fork into the unfortunate young man's eye, causing an injury that may deprive him of the sight of the optic.

The Week In The War Zone

Courtemanche are menaced by the Allied advance. Many prisoners have been taken. On the British front the enemy has withdrawn between Montdidier and Moreuil, a distance of ten miles.

Monday
Heavy rains, which have turned the Velse River Banks into swamps and morasses, enabled the Germans to temporarily hold back the Allied forces, although in some places French troops have succeeded in crossing the stream. A French press despatch says that the number of prisoners taken, will, when announced, thrill the allied world. It has been reported that the booty captured includes over five hundred cannon, and the same number of trench mortars, also 77 Millimetre guns and a million and a half shells for the latter. German dead cover the ground along all roads from the river Oureq. The standard oil steamer O. T. Jennings has been sunk by a submarine off the Virginia Capes. It is now believed that two German U-boats are operating in the Atlantic. Another fishing schooner the Nelson A. was reported sunk on Saturday off the Bay of Fundy.

Tuesday
The number of prisoners taken by the Allies since July 12th are placed at 40,000.
A raiding Zeppelin was brought down in England last night.

Respected Resident of Ferry Road Dead

The death of John Stothart, an aged and highly respected resident of Ferry Road, occurred at his home there on Sunday afternoon at the advanced age of 88 years. He is survived by four sons, James and Ellis at home, William in West Norton, N. H. Fred, overseas, and three daughters Belle of Chatham, Mrs. Charles Harlow, (Nellie) of Cotuit, Mass. and May at home.

The late Mr. Stothart was a lifelong resident of the Ferry Road district and his passing away will bring a deep measure of regret to the community. He was born at Moorfield on Nov. 25th, 1829, so that he was approaching his 89th birthday and 90th year of his life. He was the last surviving member of his generation. The funeral will be held this afternoon, from the homestead, service commencing at 2.30 o'clock at the house and interment being in the Douglastown cemetery.

Fire Chief Fitzpatrick has been notified of his appointment as a member of the Fire Prevention Committee, of the Dominion Association of Fire Chiefs.

The congregations of St. Luke's and St. John's churches will continue united services during August. Rev. W. Garwood was the preacher on Sunday. The schooner Infa, which turned turtle in the squall on the 27th, at Oak Point has been sighted and was towed to Chatham on Friday by the St. Andrew.

The charge against the Newcastle woman, for having liquor was dismissed by Magistrate Connors on Friday, it being ascertained that the woman was only a passenger on the team in which the liquor was found. The driver of the wagon was convicted a few days ago.

Officer Dickson overtook a young suburbanite in Water street on Saturday evening and proceeded to walk along with him, their course taking them in the direction of the Town Hall. The young man obviously had some doubts as to the Inspector's intent and purpose. He is apparently a believer in safety first principles, for they had not gone far together when the sound of breaking glass on the sidewalk was heard—two distinct shocks. All that remained of two bottles of—name it yourself—was the aroma. The officer and young man unceremoniously separated—World.

Ananyamous Heroes of The High Seas

Thrilling Unrecorded Episodes of the Battles with the Under-water Pirates

Out yonder, in European waters, is going on a silent war, without thunder of guns, massed attacks, or hourly reports from correspondents, says the New York "Evening Post." Now and then, when a great liner falls victim to a submarine, the cables burn with stories of thrilling rescues, of hairbreadth escapes. But when tramp steamer So-and-So, loaded with soya beans from Hong-Kong, or hides from the Argentine, slowly sags forward and slides under water in answer to a torpedo's relentless summons, the statement that Master's reason for abandoning ship was that she sunk under him, or that she went down by the head—hardly a splash—like the lady she always was," is taken by the nearest Consul and forwarded for burial in some obscure London bureau. This veritable treasury of romance contained in the official records has just been uncovered and a few samples of its ingots displayed to the English public by James Bone, writing in the Manchester "Guardian." Here in America we shall soon be having similar archives of anonymous heroism and bravery to store up.

On the whole, there is a matter-of-fact, businesslike tone in these tales which grotesquely contrasts with their inherent sensationalism, invariably, almost, the report is that "All the ship's company behaved with great coolness" that "the men stuck to their posts till the last minute." "Seaman Langmead attempted to get at his gun after the ship was struck, but only got to the stern as the ship sank." Or again: "I then tried to go aft, but was stopped by the water, so returned and got a light to enable the crew who were aft to see the way. Found one of the crew who said his leg was broken, placed him on hatch on boat, telling him that he must look out for himself as I could do no more as by that time I was up to my neck in water. Just managed to save the davit guy, and was carried down with the ship, and while under water, I heard the boilers explode."

Here is a whole chapter of Conrad packed, compressed, jammed into a few stark sentences. "Master and mate went down with the ship" is one of the most frequent entries. "The stewardess behaved exceptionally well, and with great presence of mind gave mufflers and other articles to the crew when they were in the boat." In this woman's action speaks out not only the courage, but also the two-handed capability of the sex. Did the motherly soul have tucked away in her bag, as well, rations of pilot biscuit and marmalade and a pot of tea?
Some of the accounts verify almost the worst that has been told about the cold-blooded brutality of submarine officers, nearly equalling the tale of the Belgian Prince, where the men were taken on the submarine deck, their life-belts removed, and the submarine submerged. Mr. Bone cites how one submarine deliberately sank an overturned boat to which the crew of a torpedoed ship were clinging. In spite of the men's pleas and their telling him that a man had been caught under the boat when it upset, the German commander ordered the submarine's helm down hard, "with the result that the whole of the men on the overturned boat were thrown into the water and the boat went under." None the less they were all rescued, even Quirk who had been caught under the boat.
"The man under the boat could not release himself, and to enable him to have air we took the plug out and we remained in this position till we were picked up."

Naturally, not all German commanders were conscienceless brutes like the one figuring in the foregoing story. It is pleasant to note that now and then a spilled crew was picked up and put back into its boats by the attacking submarine. Various conversations between German officers and English crews are recorded, from which it appears that the former looked pale and underfed and expressed themselves as weary of the war. Photographs often were taken probably for "Die Illustrierte Woche." A great point was made of identifying the ship torpedoed in Lloyd's Register which every submarine commander seems to have handy in his pocket.
Not all the tales are of unresisting defeat, however. A goodly number record also brave resistance, in face of every kind of odds. Submarines rammed or blown up by gunfire, breathless races in the night to escape from pursuing U-boats, then the "terrible explosion of a torpedo," as one captain puts it, with "the port side blown out and the side of the bridge crumpled" and "the boilers exploded," these are some of the incidents of a warfare that is being waged without newspaper celebration on either side of the Atlantic. When we read the week's report of "twelve ships over and four under 1,600 tons sunk," we do not visualize the striking deeds that these few barren words cover. Even the people themselves whose business it is to get torpedoed, grow callous and indifferent. There is the account of the man who had been blown up four times on his trips back and forth who complained bitterly at the company because of his one scatheless crossing. Yet, night and day, without ceasing goes on that struggle of the seamen who will hold on the sea, the Devil and the German Emperor notwithstanding.

Commodore Stewart Views Viny Ridge From Aeroplane Because He Forgot Gas Mask

A London Despatch on Thursday says: We are nearly overwhelmed with our experiences, declared one member of the Canadian press party last week on their return to England after ten days' tour of the French, English, Canadian and American lines in France.
One of the most amusing incidents occurred when the party visited Viny Ridge. Mr. J. L. Stewart, of Chatham, N. B. aged 75, probably the oldest journalist ever to visit the war zone, had unfortunately to be left behind owing to not having been provided with a gas mask. Disappointed, but undaunted, this veteran newspaperman evened matters by going on his own account, with the result that while his comrades travelled the famous battlefield on foot, Mr. Stewart went over it serenely in an airplane.
"I put it over the whole lot," said Mr. Stewart gleefully.

"Hunger Stone" Appears in Germany

The famous "Hunger Stone" in the River Elbe near Tetschen, which, according to popular belief in Germany, predicts a famine when seen, is visible for the first since the beginning of the war.
The stone lies in the bed of the river and has never been visible since it was chiselled in old German days. "When ye see me, ye will weep."

Cholera Infantum

Cholera infantum is one of the fatal ailments of childhood. It is a trouble that comes on suddenly, especially during the summer months and unless prompt action is taken the little one may soon be beyond aid. Baby's Own Tablets are an ideal medicine in warding off this trouble. They regulate the bowels and sweeten the stomach and thus prevent all the dreaded summer complaints. Concerning them Mrs. Fred Rose, South Bay, Ont. says:—"I feel Baby's Own Tablets saved the life of our baby when she had cholera infantum and would not be without them. The Tablets are sold by medicine dealers or by mail at 25 cents a box from The Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.—(adv.)"

With the Fingers!
Says Corns Lift Out Without Any Pain

Soft corns, hard corns, soft corns or any kind of a corn can shortly be lifted right out with the fingers if you will apply directly upon the corn a few drops of freestone, says a Cincinnati authority.
It is claimed that at small cost one can get a quarter of an ounce of freestone at any drug store, which is sufficient to rid one's feet of every corn or callus without pain or soreness or the danger of infection.
This new drug is an ether compound, and while sticky, dries the moment it is applied and does not inflame or even irritate the surrounding tissue.
This announcement will interest many women here, for it is said that the present high-heeled footwear is putting corns on practically every woman's feet.

pavement roads from one thousand to two thousand miles long carrying them over mountains, across swamps and along dizzying ledges, roads which have remained practically intact to-day for great distances. Such engineering feats make the famous Appian Way, 130 miles in length, constructed by the Romans, a mere child's play. Those Old Peruvians also made water jars of almost uncanny in their ingenuity. One, ornamented with the figures of a monkey screeches when water was poured into it. Another decorated with bird figures gave forth the appropriate notes, while those decorated with a cat or a snake mewed or hissed accordingly. Another ingenious Peruvian water jar was carved in the form of an aged woman's face and a sound of sobs was heard when water was poured in. We must not forget however, that moderns have emulated many of these feats, among the most remarkable in a small way being the harnessing, training and driving of—fleas, the common Pulex irritans. We can travel infinitely faster by land and sea than could Ramees or Hammurabi, while the navigation of the air is now a commonplace; and we even make the Sun drawn pictures for us. Still the Ancients have surprises for us all that."

THE WONDERFUL THINGS OF OLD

The Acadian Explorer, Halifax, N. S., editorially says:—"Wendell Phillips used to deliver a remarkable lecture on 'Lost Arts' in which he described a list of the wonderful things done by the Ancients, the secret of which has been lost. The lecture was delivered in many parts of Canada and United States, attracting much attention and arousing much interest. The trouble is that fable, fact and tradition are so closely interwoven in the story of ancient wonders that the man of reason is at a loss to form an opinion. We have it on Old Testament authority that there were Egyptians who could imitate almost everything done by Aaron and Moses by supernatural command. The Japanese have a quaint story concerning the discovery of the luminous painting and of invisible writing a thousand years ago. From Ancient Rome comes the story of glassware which could be bent and straightened out again and thrown upon a stone floor without breaking. Beautiful stained glass articles were made in Egyptian times more than four thousand years ago, the artistic designs being most intricate and elaborate. The glass-makers of Egypt also imitated Precious stones so exactly as to deceive the expert eye after thousands of years. They were skilful enough to cut both intaglios and reliefs in this substance. Both Phidias of Byzantium and Archimedes of Syracuse are said to have constructed burning glasses which destroyed the beleaguering fleets of the enemy and baffled the opposing commanders. In Damascus they made steel sword blades so terrible that the point could be pressed against the handle and yet preserve an edge as keen as a razor. A number of such blades are still found in the museums of Europe and prove the marvellous skill of the medieval smith. An ancient Oriental carver is said to have carved a ship out of ivory in every inch so small as to be covered in the wing of a fly. He also carved a chart and four within the same compass. Such work could only be done by the use of a powerful magnifying glass, yet we have no record of such a thing outside the story of Nero's crystal.
The Assyrians and Babylonians used colours whose gorgeousness cannot be matched to-day even by the Teuton with his Aniline. The Old Peruvians constructed stens

The New Perfection Oil Cook Stove will do more work than a Coal or wood Stove of twice its size.
THE Long Blue Chimney
New Perfection Burners are the latest type of oil cooking burners. They were adopted after years of experience.
The long chimney creates a draft, furnishes the flame with enough air for perfect, clean combustion and makes every drop of kerosene do all the work in its power. All the oil is turned into heat. No soot to blacken pots and pans.
B.F. MALTBY

The Stowaway

By LOUIS TRACY

They were puzzled next day by certain statements in the newspapers and were called on to explain to a number of journalists that the ship had left their ownership.

Mosier, of course, had forgiven Iris for her aloofness, and Iris, with that delightful inconsistency which ranks high among the many charms of her sex, found that "Philip, dear," though she might not marry him, was her only possible companion. He, having acquired an experience previously lacking, took care to fall in with her mood. She, weary of a painful self-repression, cheated the frowning gods of "just this one night." So they looked at the twinkling lights, spoke in whispers lest they should miss any tokens of disturbance on shore, elbowed each other comfortably on the rails of the bridge and uttered no word of love or future purpose.

Suddenly a lightning blaze leaped from the somber shadows of some buildings on the quay lower down the river. Again, and many times again, the sudden jets of flame started out across the black water. Iris, or Hoxier, for that matter, had never seen a fieldpiece fired by night, but before the girl could do other than grip Philip's arm in a spasm of fear the thunder of the artillery rolled across the harbor, and the worn plates of the Unser Fritz quivered under the mere concussion.

"By Jove, they're at it!" cried Philip. "Oh!" she gasped and clung to him more tightly.

Under such circumstances it was only to be expected that his arm would clasp her round the waist.

Hoxier strained his eyes through the gloom to try to discover the effect of the cannonade on the gunboat. He was quickly alive to the significance of the answering broadside. Then the black hull grew dim and vanished. His sailor's sympathies went with the escaping ship.

"She has got away! I am jolly glad of it," he cried. "It is a dirty trick to open fire on her in that fashion. Just how they served the Andromeda, the bounds, only we had never a gun to tickle them up in return."

About 9 o'clock a grand review was held in the plaza, or chief square. Dom Corria, a resplendent personage on horseback, made a fine speech. He was vociferously applauded by both troops and populace. General Russo, also mounted, assured him that Brazil was pinning for him. In effect when he was firmly established in the presidency the people would be allowed to vote for him.

"We have borne two years of misrule," vociferated the commander in chief, "but it has vanished before the fiery breath of our guns. We hail your excellency as our liberator. Long live Dom Corria! Down with!"

The fierce "Vivas" of the mob, combined with the general's weight, proved too much for his charger, which plunged violently. Russo was held on accidentally by his spurs. There was a lively interlude until an orderly seized the bridle, and the general was able to disengage the rems from the animal's ribs. When tranquility was restored the soldiers marched off to their quarters, and Colonel San Benavides boarded the Unser Fritz. He invited Iris, Schmidt, Coke and Hoxier to breakfast with the president at the principal hotel.

"Oh!" she gasped. "I must send a message to my uncle," she said.

San Benavides, of course, was anxious to oblige Iris in this as in every other respect. He procured the requisite form, told her the cost, which led to a condensed version of the original draft; smoothed away the slight hindrance of foreign money tendered in payment and arranged the due delivery of a reply. Perhaps he smiled when he read what she had written. The words were comprehensible even to one who did not understand English.

"Andromeda lost. Arrived here safely. Address, York, Maceo."

Among the four people, therefore, who entered the Hotel Grande in the Rua do Sul there were two whose feelings were the reverse of cheerful. But conversation is stronger than the primal impulse of vengeance. It triumps over death itself, and conversation was all powerful now. It lilted away captive in the snail of the and it immersed Hoxier in a tangle of fearsome words which turned out to be the stock in trade of a clothier. The mere male of Maceo decks himself with gay plumage. Philip was hard put to it before he secured some garments which did not irresistibly recall the heroes of certain musical comedies popular in England.

The appearance of Iris caused something akin to a sensation. The Dona Pondillo could not create English clothes nor had copies of French, but her own, daughters dressed in the height of local fashion, and Dom Corria's earnest request had made them generous. The dark eyed, olive complexioned women of Alagoas are often exceedingly beautiful, but few of those present had ever seen a brown haired, brown eyed, fair faced Englishwoman. Iris was remarkably good looking, even among the pretty girls of her own county of Lancashire. Her large, limpid eyes, well molded nose and perfectly formed mouth were the dominant features of a face that had all the charm of youth and health. Her smooth skin, brown with exposure to sun and air, glowed into a rich crimson when she found herself in the midst of so many strangers. The slightly delicate semblance induced by the hardships and loss of rest which fell to her lot since the Andromeda went to pieces on the Grand-pero rock in no wise detracted from her appearance. She wore the elegant costume of a Maceo belle with ease and distinction. If she was hurried by the undisguised murmur of admiration that greeted her she did not show it beyond the first flash of color.

Dom Corria, dragging Schmidt with him, hurried to meet her. Surprise at the gala attire helped to conquer her natural timidity, for the president was gorgeous in blue and gold.

"My good wishes are soon changed into congratulations, senator," she said. "Ah, my dear young lady, I am overjoyed that you should be here to witness my success," he cried. Then, as if he had waited for this moment, he turned to the assembled company and delivered an eloquent panegyric of the Andromeda's crew and their deusa delicia—for that is what he called Iris—a delightful goddess.

Hoxier, though by no means indifferent to the good fare provided, was wondering how many hours would elapse before Iris' cablegram reached Verity's office, when some words caught his ear that drove all other considerations from his mind.

"I am sorry to say that, in my opinion, there is not the slightest chance of your message reaching England today, Miss Yorke," the president was saying.

"But why not?" she asked, with an astonishment that was not wholly the outcome of regret.

"The cable does not land here, and the transmitting stations will be closely watched, now that my arrival in Brazil is known. Even the simplest form of words will be twisted into a political significance. No, I think it best to be quite candid. Until I control Pernambuco, which should be within a week or ten days, you may rest assured that no private cablegrams will be forwarded."

"Oh, dear, I fully expected a reply today," she said, and now that she realized the effect of a further period of anxiety on the Boodle partnership she was genuinely dismayed.

"You may be sure it will not come," said Dom Corria. "Indeed, I may as well take this opportunity of explaining to you and to my other English friends—with the interpolated sentence his glance dwelt quickly on Hoxier and Coke—"the exact position locally. You see, Maceo is a small place and easily approached from the sea. A hostile fleet could knock it to pieces in half an hour, and it would be a poor reward for my supporters' loyalty if my presence subjected them to a bombardment. I have no strong defenses or heavy guns to defy attack, and my troops are not more than a thousand men, all told. It is obvious that I must make for the interior. There I gather strength as I advance, the warships cannot pursue, and I can choose my own positions to meet the half hearted forces that Dom Miguel will collect to oppose me. In fact, I and every armed man in Maceo march up country this afternoon."

Iris by this time was thoroughly frightened, and Hoxier, who read more in Dom Corria's words than was possible in the case, saw watching the speaker's calm face with a furtive eye that might have discovered many men. Dom Corria seemed to be unaware of either the vice's distress or Philip's white

I had gained in strength and was able to go around and do all my housework. My baby when seven months old weighed 19 pounds and I feel better than I have for a long time. I never had any medicine do me so much good."—Mrs. PEARL MONTYHAN, Mitchell, Ind.

Good health during maternity is a most important factor to both mother and child, and many letters have been received by the Lydia E. Pinkham Medicine Co., Lynn, Mass., telling of health restored during this trying period by the use of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

"You naturally ask how I propose to safeguard the companions of my flight from Fernando Noronha," he went on. "I answer at once—by taking them with me. The Senhora Pondillo and her family will accompany her husband to my quinta at Las Flores. A special train will take all of us to the nearest railway station this afternoon. Thence my estate is but a day's march. You and my other friends from both ships will be quite safe and happy there until order is restored. You must come. The men's lives, at any rate, would not be worth an hour's purchase if my opponents' forces found them here, and I feel certain that one or more cruisers will arrive off Maceo tonight. For you this excursion will be quite a pleasant experience, and you can absolutely rely on my promise to send news of your safety to England at the very first opportunity."

CHAPTER XV. GAMBELA.

AMONG the many words borrowed from the Brazilians from their Spanish speaking neighbors that for "tomorrow" is perhaps the most popular. The Spaniard's mañana is so elastic that it covers any period of time between the next twenty-four hours and the indefinite future. What, therefore, Dom Sylvia spoke of controlling Pernambuco before the month of September was barely half sped he was either too sanguine or too literal in his translation of easy going Portuguese into vigorous English.

His quinta, or country house, was situated on the upper watershed of the river Moxoto. There he raised his standard, thither socked rebels galore, and in that direction, with due caution, President Barraca pushed columns of troops by road and rail from Bahia, from Pernambuco and from Maceo. For Barraca held the sea, and the wealthy and enterprising south was strongly opposed to war, while Dom Corria trusted to the mountains and drew his partisans from the less energetic north.

In a word, De Sylvia commanded public sympathy, but small resources; Barraca was unpopular, but controlled the navy and part of the army. Given such conditions, with the added absurdity that the troops on both sides were most unwilling to face long range rifle fire, but would cheerfully back each other to meetment with knives, and a tedious, indeterminate campaign is the certain outcome.

A few indecisive but sanguinary engagements were fought in the neighborhood of Pesqueira, a town in the hills about a hundred miles from the seaboard. These proved that General Russo was a valiant fighter, but a poor tactician, and that was all. He was opposed by a commander of little courage, but singular skill in strategy. To restore the balance Dom Corria took the field in person, and Dom Miguel Barraca hastened from Rio de Janeiro to witness the crushing of his arch enemy.

The position was complicated by the arrival at Pernambuco of a German squadron bearing a telegraphic cartel from the emperor. A German ship had been seized on the high seas. Why? And by whom? and how could anybody dare? Then Brazil quivered, for every South American knows in his heart that the great navy of Germany is being created not so much to destroy England as to dispute the proud doctrine of the United States that no European power shall ever again be allowed to seize territory on the American continent.

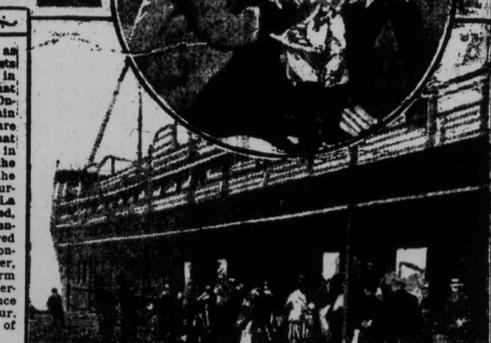

Antiques at Christie's. At Christie's, London, Eng., recently, a Louis XV octagonal tortoise-shell snuff-box, 2 1/2 inches wide, with pastoral figures in gold and shell, realized 53 guineas. A larger box, similarly marked, fetched 270 7s. A Louis XV helmet-shaped ewer, turquoise and silver and small figures in mother-of-pearl, made 190 5s. An old English watch with the London hall mark 1707, was bought for 267 4s.

See The Great Lakes

Fort William Harbor

Canada's Great Lakes are not, as some geographers and geologists say they are, the oldest lakes in the world, it cannot be denied that Lakes Superior, Huron, Erie and Ontario form the most wonderful chain of inland oceans on the earth and are the oldest waterway, and for that matter also the oldest highway in North America. For it was on the waters of these great lakes that the early French explorers and adventurers, such as Nicollet, Marquette, La Salle, Champlain, and others sailed, in the first quarter of the 17th century, in search of the undiscovered Western Sea. Further, taken in conjunction with the St. Lawrence River, river stretches and canals, they form the longest navigable inland waterway in the world, the total distance from Fort William and Port Arthur, on Lake Superior, to the Straits of Belle Isle being 2,260 miles.

Going Aboard

It was on these mighty inland seas in Canada that Joseph Howe once said in a speech at a convention at Detroit: "Yonder lie Canada's great lakes, which can furnish sufficient power to run the industries of the whole world, and within which the British Isles might be dropped and never raise the tide." Romantic enchantment and adventurous history suffuse the waters and shores of Canada's Great Lakes. To realize this one has only to recall that the European pioneers who three hundred years ago first penetrated into the heart of the North American continent did so by their waters, taking first the St. Lawrence, Ottawa, and Mattawa rivers, then through the Lake Nipissing and French River into Georgian Bay, then through Lake Huron to Lake Michigan, then through the Sault or Rapids of St. Mary's River into Lake Superior.

In these early days Canada's Great Lakes resounded only with the echoes of the paddles which propelled Indian canoes. To-day their mighty expanses are ploughed by leviathan steamships, bustling with the traffic of commerce and industry, or with the transportation of tourists and pleasure-seekers bent on taking a cool sea voyage, more interesting than an ocean voyage and equally as invigorating and health-giving. On the Great Lakes trip, taken in any one of the Canadian Pacific steamships, such as the "Asiabola," the "Kewatin," and the "Manitoba," as palatial, large, swift and safe as an ocean liner, a tourist or pleasure-seeker can take an inland voyage of a thousand miles, and whether the voyage be from Montreal to Detroit or Chicago, and other American ports or vice versa, the tourist will experience the sense of ocean distance, but with a feeling of security and of calm and quiet, which the turbulent ocean cannot give. Besides the vessels themselves, the tourist will be entertained with sights of historic interest, with views of unrivaled natural beauty or with modern practical constructions that astound the mind, some of which are shown in the illustrations at the head of this article. The tourist may see, for instance, Mackinac Point, the scene of Chief Pontiac's massacre of a British garrison, beautiful islands about which glide white-winged yachts and other small craft, the giant head of Thunder Cape, the beautiful St. Mary's River and rapids, the Canadian locks at Sault Ste. Marie, Canadian Pacific sky-scraper elevators at Port McNicholl, Georgian Bay and scores of other scenes of natural beauty and objects of absorbing interest. Truly the Great Lakes have given Canada an unrivaled name amongst the nations, and the Great Lakes trip once taken, will never fade from memory.

A REGRETTABLE ERROR
In the advertisement of Creaghan's August Clean-up Sale in one last issue the price of Shantung Silk was given as 29c. This we regret to say was a typographical error and should have read 69c per yard.

BLUEBERRIES PLENTIFUL
The Blueberry, which is one of the most popular fruits on the Miramichi, is now ripening fast and the luscious fruit will soon be placed in the local market. The crop promises an abundant one, and we are urged by the Food Controller to make use of every berry, by preserving for winter use, and no doubt his request will meet with a hearty response this season.

IMPRESSED AT THE WAY MEN ARE KEPT FIT
Speaking at a luncheon given in honor of the Canadian editors by the Canadian Club of London, Mr. J. L. Stewart of Chatham describing his impressions, said that the strongest impression of the tour was the evident thoroughness of the military system for keeping men absolutely fit. "I found them looking fresh, young and cheerful and like men to whom work and play have been so arranged for them that they enjoyed both and were mentally and physically absolutely fit for anything."

CHILD'S DEATH
Mary Gladys, little daughter of Mr. and Mrs. F. B. McMahon, Loggieville, died Wednesday, of cholera infantum, aged ten months. The funeral was held Friday afternoon at 2:30; interment in St. Andrew's R. C. Cemetery. The floral offerings were beautiful and included: Wreath, The family; wreath, Katherine and Edna Murdoch; Harold and Felum Harrison; spray, Francis and Margery O'Connell; spray, David Fraser; cut flowers, Mrs. Howard Irving; Marguerite Cameron, Mary Fishery, Violet McLean, Earl and Haven Manderson.

NARROW ESCAPE FROM DROWNING
Mr. Roland O'Day, a young man employed loading the Casperry Scotia at the deep water terminal, had an experience on Friday afternoon last, which he will not soon forget and which nearly cost him his life.

The young man was working on a number of ties in the boom, when they parted and he was participated with the water which is very deep at the point and the young man was going down for the last time, when Mr. John Kingston, who rushed to the scene, caught his clothing with a boat-hook and pulled him out of the water.

WHERE FLOWERS REIGN SUPREME
One of the nicest kept and prettiest lawns in Newcastle, and one that is deserving of the many compliments which it receives, is that of Mr. B. F. Maltby, on King street. Mr. Maltby is a lover of the beautiful and his flower plots, which are laid out all over his lawn, contain many of the most beautiful flowers obtainable, and are arranged in the most attractive manner, and Mr. Maltby's enterprise is commended to many other of our citizens, who desire to make our town a nicer place in which to live.

REV MR KOCHALY GOING TO MONCTON
Rev E. A. Kochaly, who for some time past has been the beloved pastor of the United Baptist Church at Upper Blackville, has resigned his charge and leaves this week for Moncton, where he will make his home for some time. For the next four Sundays, Mr. Kochaly will take charge of the Dover Circuit in Albert County. Rev Mr Kochaly has been most successful in his ministry at Upper Blackville and it is with deep regret from his parishioners that he is leaving.
