WON AT LAST.

CHAPTER XXII.

Striking into the lane leading to Chavasse, and getting within view of the little gate in the park palings, I gave a start. Standing with her hand upon its top bar and her back toward me, as she looked further down the lane, was the figure of a woman, her head enveloped in a shawl. Who was it, I wondered, standing there so late, and in the bitter cold? Had that reckless little madcap Nat come out to look for me, setting influenza and a sore throat at defiance? No, the figure was too tall for the little lady, too short to be madame. Oh, it was mademoiselle up to one of her incomprehensible freaks again! I decided, wondering why I had not thought of her at first, as I drew nearer to the gate.

Of course it was mademoiselle, though she had had the sense to put something over her head this time; and what in the name of all that was unreasonable could she possibly want there? But the sound of my approaching footsteps over the hard frozen ground started the figure, and it turned, uttered a cry at the sight of me, and was gone in a flash.

But for the cry I might have thought I had signalized myself by seeing a ghost, the vanishing of the figure had been so rapid. As it was, I had the gate open almost in the same moment, and was peering about eagerly. No one was within sight. The moonlight, the snow-covered ground, the white bushes, the great bending branches of the trees—that was all that was to be seen. But on the path at my feet footprints were plainly visible in the snow, and all pointing towards the gate.

CHAPTER XXIV.

I do not know how long it was before I found my voice, for, of all the scared, imploring, terrified faces that

How He Escaped An Operation

And Was Completely Cured of Piles of 14 Years' Standing by Dr. Chase's Ointment.

Mr. Chas. Beauvais.
Doctors say that about one person in every four suffers more or less from piles, and who can imagine a more annoying, torturing, disagreeable ailment?
After trying a few treatments without success, and as the ailment grows worse, the medical doctor is consulted. An operation, he says, is necessary. You think of the suffering, expense and risk to life itself, and hesitate before taking such a step.
In many thousands of such cases Dr. Chase's Ointment has made thorough and lasting cures. Read this letter for the proof.
Mr. Charles Beauvais, a well-known citizen of St. Jean, Que., writes:—"For 14 years I suffered from chronic piles, and considered my case very serious. I was treated by a celebrated doctor who could not help me and ordered a surgical operation as the only means of relief.
"However, I decided to try Dr. Chase's Ointment, and obtained great relief from the first box. By the use of three boxes I was entirely cured. This is why it gives me great pleasure to recommend Dr. Chase's Ointment to all who suffer from piles as a treatment of the greatest value."

THIS WOMAN'S TROUBLES GONE

Terrible Cramps, Dizzy Spells, Nervousness, Misery—Her Story of How She Got Well Again.

Hindsboro, Ill.—"Your remedies have relieved me of all my troubles. I would have such bearing down misery and cramps and such weak, nervous, dizzy spells that I would have to go to bed. Some days I could hardly stay up long enough to get a meal.
"The doctor's medicine did me no good so I changed to Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and got good results from the first bottle. I kept on taking it and used the Sanative Wash with it, until I was well again. I think every woman who suffers as I have, could take no better medicine."—Mrs. CHARLES MATTHEW, Box 58, Hindsboro, Ill.

Testimony of Trained Nurse.
Cathlamet, Wash.—"I am a nurse and when I do much lifting I have a female weakness, but I take Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and I cannot say enough in praise of it. I always recommend it for female troubles."—Mrs. ELVA BARBER EDWARDS, Box 54, Cathlamet, Wash.

The makers of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound have thousands of such letters as those above—they tell the truth, else they could not have been obtained for love or money. This medicine is no stranger—it has stood the test for years.

Over I have seen in my life, Virtue Dent's was the most so as she stood looking up at me with her large light eyes distended, and attempting neither to speak nor to move away. I she had been discovered in some crime, her obvious fear could not have been greater than it was.

"What on earth are you doing here 'tinue?" I asked at last.
"Nothing, sir," she faltered. "I came out because my head ached."
The air of the park was good for headaches, it would seem; that was just what mademoiselle had said on the night of Nat's tumble, when I ran up against her at the end of the Lady's Walk. The excuse had been a headache in the governess' case, I shrewdly suspected, and I certainly put it down as about the same in that of this girl, who had always been a queer girl. There was nothing in her headache to make her scream and run away, anyhow, or to make her look scared now.

"What did you run away for when you saw me?" I asked, bluntly.
"I—I was frightened, sir."
"Frightened enough to scream, eh?"
"Did I scream, sir?"
"You did, and pretty loudly too but for that, I don't know that I shouldn't have fancied you a ghost particularly when you vanished in a flash. How came you to be frightened?"

"I—I didn't know it was you, sir. That is—I thought you would see me," she stammered, in flat contradiction.
"And so you hid yourself?"
"I was so startled, sir."
"Pooh!" I said, laughing. "How green you must think me, Virtue! I don't believe a word of it. You were saying good-bye to your sweetheart I suspect. Never mind"—as she raised her large scared eyes quickly to my face—"I didn't see him if you were. But I wouldn't be out here so late if I were you; madame wouldn't like it if she were to know."

"Oh, Mr. Ned"—forgetting all her usual respectful demeanour, this strange damsel clasped my arm and held it tightly—"don't tell madame, sir; don't let her know—pray don't, sir! She would be angry, and it was no harm indeed!"
"Whoever supposed it was?" I retorted, laughing, and thinking that I had certainly had very nearly caught discreet Virtue bidding her sweetheart good-night. "Do you suppose that I shall trouble to tell madame that you have such a partiality for catching your death of cold?" I said. "She might not like it if she knew—that's all."

"It shall not happen again, sir," she faltered, timidly.
"I wouldn't let it, if I were you. Why, in a year or two you will be as rheumatic as poor old Batterbin if you don't look out!"

"And you won't tell madame, Mr. Ned?" she said, pleadingly, but almost in her ordinary staid way.
"Of course not. Make haste if you don't want to be locked out, though—it is close on half-past eleven."
"Thank you, sir," she said, almost in a whisper, and then darted off down a private path which would bring her round to the side of the house, and probably enable her to slip in without old Batterbin being any the wiser.

Laughing again to think what a queer girl she was, and how scared she had been, I went in-doors too. Going into the drawing-room, I found only Nat there. Mademoiselle had gone to bed with a headache, and madame was writing a letter in the library.
The little lady curled up in a chair by the fire, was more than half asleep but she jumped up when I went in.
"Oh, it is you, Ned!" she said, with a yawn, childishly stretching her arms above her head, a trick of which madame had vainly tried to break her.
"Yes, my dear! I saw your bugbear safely home; and he is going to put his feet in hot water and have a pint of gruel before he goes to bed."
"What ridiculous nonsense you talk!" she cried, laughing, and looking down at me as I stretched myself out on the rug before her chair. "You really have got rid of him?"
"Oh, yes, he's safe enough until tomorrow anyhow! Looked as blue by the time we got there, as if he had been standing in a shower-bath—couldn't stand the cold, you know—wanted to know if we ever had it warm. I don't think his impressions of England are particularly favorable since they met altogether."
"Nat shrugged her shoulders.
"So much the better—perhaps he isn't so stout."
"Let's hope not. If he hasn't a fine old in his head to-morrow to spoil is pretty face, I'm greatly mistaken!"
"He is absurdly handsome, isn't he?" Nat said, musingly.
"Absurdly!" I echoed.
"Well, yes—I think so. I think it is rather a waste of beauty in a man if he is too handsome a great deal."
"Handsomer than Roger, eh?" I said, mischievously, looking up at her.
"Handsome than Roger!" she echoed, in her turn, with a little laugh, but the rich color flushed her pretty face from brow to chin as she looked at the fire. "Why, I don't know that he is really handsome at all I never thought whether he was or not."
"All right, miss. I'll tell him."
"I'm sure you may if you like!"
"By—looking down at me with a sigh—"you know he is not half as handsome as you are, if we come to that! Oh, I declare you are absolutely blushing—pretty dear!" she cried, highly delighted.
"Not but what it was true, although I had colored. We Chavasses had never been ugly specimens of humanity, and I knew that I had the bright brown eyes and hair and the face and figure generally which had made my father in his day one of the handsomest men in Daleshire.
"I'll tell Roger you've been making love to me if you don't look out young lady."

"As though he would believe it! Wait until you grow up, sir." This was Miss Net's favorite way of crushing me. "Oh, Ned"—with a sudden, almost tremulous change of tone—"I wish he would come home!"
"So do I," I said heartily.
"Ah, but not like me! Will it be long now, I wonder?"
"Oh, no—can't be! Why, he has been gone a week! I shouldn't be at all surprised if he turned up before Sunday."
"Perhaps he will," she said, brightening; "but I do wish he had written to me, Ned."
"And have madame pounce upon his letter!" I retorted. "A nice mull that could make of things!"
"So it would," she assented, softly. "I'm stupid to-night, I think. It is all through that horrid man coming!"—with a vicious emphasis that I knew was meant for Raby St. George.
"Well, yes, he certainly might have topped away and welcome," I rejoined, wondering what she would say if he knew, as I did, of Fraser Froude's proposal. "But don't you bother your head about him. If Roger doesn't turn up soon, and he gets too impatient, I'll undertake to shove him into the river myself. I say, Nat"—a thought which had been in my head several times during the evening, suddenly recurring to me—"who is this fellow exactly? You never told me."

Mix two cups of granulated sugar with 1 cup of warm water, and stir for 2 minutes. Put 2½ ounces of Pinex (fifty cents' worth) in a 16-ounce bottle; then add the Sugar Syrup. Take a teaspoonful every one, two or three hours.
You will find that this simple remedy takes hold of a cough more quickly than anything else ever used. Usually ends a deep-seated cough inside of 24 hours. Splendid, too, for whooping cough, croup, chest pains, bronchitis, and other throat troubles. It stimulates the appetite and is slightly laxative, which helps end a cough.
This recipe makes more and better cough syrup than you could buy ready made for $2.50. It keeps perfectly and tastes pleasantly.
Pinex is the most valuable concentrated compound of Norway white pine extract, and is rich in gualacol and all the natural pine elements, which are so healing to the membranes. Other preparations will not work in this formula.
This plan of making cough syrup with Pinex and sugar syrup (or strained honey) has proven so popular throughout the United States and Canada that it is often imitated. But the old, successful formula has never been equalled.
A guaranty of absolute satisfaction or money promptly refunded, goes with this recipe. Your druggist has Pinex or will get it for you. If not send to The Pinex Co., Toronto, Ont.

It requires 2-3-8 yards of 36 inch material for the medium size.

9515.—A UNIQUE AND COMFORTABLE HOUSE APRON.

The "body and sleeve in one" idea has been carried out in garments of every sort, hence the busy sewer and home dressmaker, will welcome this mode in an apron that is not only simple but practical in that it covers almost all of the dress worn underneath and is easy to make because of few seams. The design is suitable for percale, alpaca, lawn, Anderson gingham, seersucker or chambray. The free edges could be scalloped and embroidered. Blue and white checked gingham, with bandings of white would be neat and would launder well. The pattern is cut in 3 sizes: Small, Medium, and Large. It requires 3½ yards of 36 inch material for the medium size.
A pattern of this illustration mailed to any address on receipt of 10c. in silver or stamps.

HAYWARD & CO.

In Honor of the Day.

By RUTH CAMERON.

Have you remembered what day it is?

If by any possible chance you have forgotten, let me bring it to your mind by telling you that as usual on the twelfth of February, I am turning over my space to one who, though he laid no claim to being either author or philosopher, can fill this space as richly as the greatest of either.

A Few More Sayings of Abraham Lincoln.

"He who does something at the head of one regiment surpasses him who does nothing at the head of a hundred."

"No time religiously spent is ever lost."

"I am not bound to win, but I am bound to be true. I am bound to succeed, but I am bound to live up to what light I have."

"I have been driven to my knees many times by the realization that I had nowhere else to go."

"Those who deny freedom to others deserve it not for themselves, and under a just God cannot long retain it."

"(Rather an interesting utterance when we relate it to the white slavery and the wage slavery, and the other kinds of modern slavery that have taken the place of the old type.)"

"The occasion is piled high with difficulty, and we must rise high with the occasion."

"Do not worry, eat three square meals a day, say your prayers, be courteous to your creditors, keep your digestion good, steer clear of billousness, exercise, go slow and go easy. Maybe there are other things that your special case requires to make you happy, but, my friends, these, I reckon, will give you a good lift."

Lincoln's Rules for Living.

"I have never had a policy. I have simply tried to do what seemed best each day as each day came."

In view of the fact that the agnostics sometimes try to claim Lincoln for their ranks, because he did not belong to any church, the following is especially interesting. I regret that I am not absolutely sure of its authenticity and cannot quote the authority. I clipped it from a magazine. Perhaps someone can inform me of its source:

"I have never united myself to any church because I have found difficulty in giving my assent, without mental reservation, to the long, complicated statements of Christian doctrines which characterize their Articles of Belief and Confession of Faith. Whenever a church will inscribe over its altar as its sole qualification for membership, the Saviour's condensed statement of substance of both law and gospel: 'Thou shalt love the Lord thy God, with all thy heart, and with all thy soul, and with all thy mind, and thy neighbour as thyself,' that church will I join with all my soul."

HOW BLOOD IS MADE.

The liquids and digested foods in the alimentary canal pass through the wall of the canal into the blood. This process is called absorption and takes place chiefly from the small intestine. After absorption the blood carries the food through the body, and each cell takes from the blood the food it needs. A pure glyceric extract made from bloodroot, mandrake, stone, queen's root and golden seal root, and sold by druggists for the past forty years under the name of gives uniformly excellent results as a tonic to help in the assimilation of the food and in the absorption by the blood of the food it requires. Eradicate the poisons from the blood with this alterative extract which does not shrink the white blood corpuscles, because containing no alcohol or other injurious ingredients. Thus the body can be built up—strong to resist disease. This is a tonic taken from Nature's garden that builds up those weakened by disease. Sold by druggists everywhere. Address World's Dispensary Medical Association, Buffalo, N. Y.

Mr. CHAS. FARRER, JR., of 223 Woodlawn Ave., Philadelphia, Pa., writes: "I was troubled with my stomach for almost three years. Tried several doctors and most everything anybody recommended to me, but kept getting worse and honestly did not care to live as I was never well even though, at times, I had no pain. My symptoms were as follows: Always dead, my whole body in a throbbing of gas, pain and soreness in the stomach, vomiting, constipation, could not eat or sleep or what would agree with me, and was melancholy. But after taking Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery with the Pleasant Peppermint it has made me a well man which is something to live for."

CHAS. FARRER, JR.

Sign Language in Lancashire Weaving "Sheds."

How Weavers Speak Amid the Noise of the Looms.

The saying, "There is so much noise that one cannot hear oneself speak," is often used as a figure of speech, but in comparatively few places is this actually true. One of the places in which it is true is the inside of one of Lancashire's huge weaving "sheds." The din and rattle made by perhaps nearly 2,000 looms is appalling, but the weaver—with that adaptability which is such a precious possession of human nature—soon becomes accustomed to it, and where the stranger on emerging from a "shed" for the first time feels his brain reel in a manner almost akin to tipsiness, his more hardened brother realizes no such sensation.

Conversation under such conditions would, indeed, be a very difficult matter, if not altogether impossible, had not the Lancashire weaver evolved a system of "thought transmission" entirely independent of oral expression. By this means all sorts of news—the result of a mid-week football match, for instance—are "telegraphed" all over the "shed" with incredible rapidity. The advent of a stranger who is looking over the mill in company with the "boss" is known at the other end of the "shed" almost as soon as he enters the door; and conversation is kept up between neighbouring weavers all day.

How is it done? When one gets to know, it is delightfully simple; but then, so are the Morse code and many other principles. It is by the harnessing of simple principles that the great things of the world are accomplished, and this system of the weavers is a great thing—at least for them—for does it not relieve the monotony of the ever-present whirr of thousands of gears and the nervous-shattering rattle of shuttles and picking sticks?

The weaver, with something to say will look up and catch the eye of his or her neighbour and the conversation begins. One makes a few exaggerated movements of the lips, a hand or a finger touches a part of the body or head, the two hands or, the fingers are brought together, or while the other party is nodding or shaking his head and performing similar operations, and so the news is carried.

It must not be imagined that what is known as the "Deaf and Dumb Alphabet" is brought into use; that system would obviously be too protracted and complicated for use under factory conditions. Instead of a "one letter, one sign" system the weavers' code may be termed a "one word, one sign" system, and it is surprising that sufficient simple signs and gestures are available to allow of conversation being carried on with comparative ease.

So accustomed are the Lancashire weavers to this "sign language" that it is not at all confined to the factory; it is a recognized method of intercourse whenever they foregather, whether in the street, the theatre, or in that popular Lancashire institution, the potato-chip shop.

The following may be taken as an example. A weaver and his wife (also a weaver) were recently taking a walk with their two-year-old daughter, the mother carrying the child on her arm. They were overtaken by another couple, and, as is usual, in such cases, the two men walked on a few yards in front. Presently the woman called to her husband, and, standing the child down, she pointed to it in a rather peculiar manner, then pointed to herself, then to her arm, and putting the forefinger and thumb of each hand together, she made a motion as though she were breaking something in her fingers. The action was performed very quickly and was perfectly understood; it meant this: "Take the child a little while, my arm's breaking."

Lancashire's sign language is a great boon to thousands of her weavers, but it has one drawback: it imparts an exaggerated lip-movement which cannot be called pretty. The constant use of the lips in forming the signs engenders a habit of excessive lip-movement in ordinary conversation, so much so that it is said that weavers can nearly always be detected by watching their lips.

All You Need is a Cascaret To-Night

No Sick Headache, Bilious Stomach, Coated Tongue or Constipated Bowels by Morning.

Turn the rascals out—the headache, the biliousness, the indigestion, the sick, sour stomach and foul gases—turn them out tonight and keep them out with Cascarets.

Millions of men and women take a Cascaret now and then and never know the misery caused by a lazy liver, clogged bowels or an upset stomach.

Don't put in another day of distress. Let Cascarets cleanse and regulate your stomach; remove the sour, undigested and fermenting food and that misery-making gas; take the excess bile from your liver and carry out of the system all the constipated waste matter and poison in the intestines and bowels. Then you will feel great.

A Cascaret to-night will surely straighten you out by morning. They work while you sleep. A 10-cent box from any drug store means a clear head, sweet stomach and clean, healthy liver and bowel action for months. Children love to take Cascarets because they taste good—never gripe or sicken.

The Roller Towel

By H. L. RANN.

The roller towel is a criminal offense which is perpetrated upon helpless hotel guests by landlords who were formerly in the livery stable business.

Roller towels are made of some durable, fire-proof material which will withstand the attacks of enraged guests for a long period of time. You can take a well-seasoned roller towel, tear it from its watery shoot and throw it into the sample room, behind an oil stove, and inside of a week it will bob up at the old stand, ready to wait on the trade. Nobody has ever been arrested for carrying off a roller towel in his grip and taking it home for a keepsake.

Roller towels are usually hung on a revolving head rest, which is liable to pull out at any moment and imbed itself in the recipient's ear. This allows the towel to fall on the floor and collect all of the dirt that has been tramped in during the past week, which can be transferred to the faces of the guests with gratifying success.

In youth, he roller towel is a simple, little article, with a light mauve complexion and a non-scratching cuticle. After it has done business in a hotel lavatory for twenty-five or thirty years, however, it loses considerable of its early bloom and will bite the hand that caresses it. Many a man who was in a hurry to make the train has leaped into the embrace of a decrepit towel and come out looking as if he had been run over by a disc-harrow.

Roller towels are never changed until they can be stood up in the corner like an umbrella. Every once in a while the landlord will remember that it is time for the semi-annual shift and hang a clean towel in the lavatory, when it is assaulted at once by everybody who is not in the dining room. It is a painful sight to see a pink-faced traveling man hunting eagerly for a clean spot on a roller towel, in order to wipe the soap out of his eyes.

Roller towels would be more popular if they were washed at the beginning of each fiscal year and then planed down with 00 sandpaper.

Governor Due This Afternoon.

At 7 p.m. yesterday, the Bruce was 25 miles ahead of St. Pierre and is due in port at 3.30 p.m. from Sydney with a number of passengers and a large mail and freight. The ship had much ice to contend with in the Gulf and all last night encountered a snow storm which lasted until she had passed Cape Race at 11 a.m. The passengers on the ship are His Excellency Governor Davidson, Lady and, suite and when the ship is berthed at Shea & Co's pier a throng of citizens will doubtless give the Vice Regal party a hearty welcome. There will be present to receive the Governor His Honor the Administrator, the Premier and members of both branches of the Legislature. A guard of honor from the police force under I. G. Sullivan, will do the honors as the party land.

Congregational Church

A very successful Floral Sociable was held in the basement of the Congregational Church last night. The room had been very tastefully decorated with evergreen and a profusion of artificial flowers, wonderfully life-like in color and form, made by members of the Ladies' Aid and Congregation. The newly-appointed minister made a few preliminary remarks. This was followed by the production of a charming little sketch entitled "Meeting Among the Flowers," conceived and written by Mrs. T. J. Duley. This capable lady has evolved many clever dialogues, but none in which true and coherent ideas have been more enthusiastically elaborated by means of clear and expressive language into a well-proportioned whole, than the work which gave all so much pleasure last night. The age-long question of the rose among the flowers was disputed. Certain new and highly-evolved specimens of the carnation and chrysanthemum appeared before Mother Nature to plead their superior claims. The poppy, too, at first joined the mutineers but eventually retired, her grievance appeased by Nature's assurance that she was universally loved. The rest of the flowers would have none of the nearer sovereignties and clearly manifested and permanently confirmed their unchanging and unchangeable loyalty and affection towards the rose. Miss Barbara Langmead combined dignity and charm as Mother Nature, and her anger at the mutinying flowers was restrained in an effective manner by the sweet pity of Miss Mildred Thomas as Mother Earth, in whose breast love of her offspring contended with a sense of their guilty conduct. The chrysanthemum of Miss Ethel Barnes was finely saucy and the carnation of Miss Belle Russell splendidly arrogant. Miss Mabel Thomas well expressed the soothing characteristics of the poppy and the Rose was sweetly incarnated by Miss Olive Hutchings. The rest of the "flowers" did their part well and a tiny "messenger," dressed as a wood-elf, took her wordless part easily and naturally. All the artists were dressed up to represent the different flowers.

After an interval for refreshments, a programme of songs and recitations was contributed by Misses Butler, Honlon and Beale Thomas and Messrs. Crocker, Willis and W. H. Jones. Every item was deservedly encored and Miss Hanlon had to appear a third time, so enthusiastic was the audience in its appreciation of her finely rendered recitations.

Mrs. Langmead and the members of the Ladies' Aid and helpers are highly to be congratulated on their preparations and arrangements and thoroughly deserved the success with which their efforts were crowned.

MEXICO CITY, Yesterday.
From early yesterday morning the sharp crack of rifles or the crash of cannon could be heard in some quarters of the city almost every minute of the day. Diplomatic representatives of the Powers protested and an armistice was arranged so that an envoy from these Diplomats could enter rebel lines and confer with Diaz, but doubtless wing to inability of Federal Commander to control all points on his lines this envoy was fired upon by troops, although riding under the White Flag, Dehamer was chosen carry message protest to Diaz. He entered an auto which with the White Flag flying moved through the Federal lines. It was supposed that troops had been advised of this mission, but the automobile was instantly made a target for numerous rifles, and bullets rattled about it. It continued on its way, however, the diplomat's envoy being apparently unhurt. The bombardment reached a climax yesterday morning when Diaz shelled the very centre of the business districts in an effort to silence the cannon of the Government and drive from the roofs of the taller buildings the Federal Sharpshooters and the men serving the machine guns. This smothering action continued for more than two hours, shrapnel fell like hail, and occasionally bursting shells tore holes in the sides of the buildings; Meanwhile fire from the opposite direction rendered the far out resident district uninhabitable. The Federal guns replied occasionally but without serious damage to the rebel position, not doubting the intentions of the government to assume action on an augmented scale and reminded from moment to moment by the desultory and scattering firing from both sides that homes in almost every quarter of the city would be rendered unsafe. Foreigners, particularly Americans, British and Germans sent throughout yesterday afternoon autos under white flags to collect women and children and transfer them to a section around the American Embassy which is considered relatively free from danger.

Mrs. H. W. Holmes, wife of an employee of Dan's Agency, was killed, and Mrs. Percy Griffiths, wife of another employee of the street railway company, was mortally wounded, both her legs being shot off. Mrs. Holmes and Mrs. Griffiths were preparing dinner in their kitchen in apartment buildings close to the arsenal, when a shell of Federal lines burst through the walls instantly killing Mrs. Holmes and leaving Mrs. Griffiths in a dying condition.

HOODWINKING THE ARMY.
The officers of a certain regiment arranged a football match with a team of lawyers and when the visitors arrived they were given a splendid lunch before the game. Both officers and lawyers enjoyed the meal, but the lawyers ate very heartily indeed and drank more champagne than a football club trainer would think necessary. The officers, noting this, came to the conclusion that they themselves, being more abstemious, would simply have a walk-over.

Towards the end of the lunch the captain of the military team happened to glance through the window from whence he could see the football ground. To his great surprise he saw a remarkably fit-looking lot of men kicking the ball about.

"Who are these men?" he asked. "Oh," one of the lawyers explained, "we generally send out two teams: a luncheon team and a playing team. That is our playing team who are looking forward to the pleasure of meeting you; we are the luncheon team who already have that pleasure!"

"That automobile I bought has been doing wonders for me," said Mr. Chuggins. "Fresh air and all that sort of thing!"

MARCONI EXPENSES.

The writer in the Daily News, this morning, who tells how the improvements in the Marconi system have materialized, does not tell how the money has been dematerialized and disposed of out the chest. We will supply something he deems it polite to suppress. Last session a return was tabled in the House of Assembly which showed $9,411.35 had been spent between March 11, 1911 to Feb. 28th, 1912. Of this $3,620.06 had gone to the Marconi Co.; $1,294.08 to W. H. Bartlett, $1,998.27 to Albert Morgan and crew; $464 to the Reid Nfd. Co. for freight. Mr. Tasker Cook received $759.57 for three spars. His spars are evidently not like the Crosbie spars, which fetched the price so often quoted and which staggered the public. Mr. Cook is reasonable. The other items were of smaller dimensions.

When the light settles down in the west,
And the work of the day has been done;
Then my daddy sits down for a rest,
And he don't seem to want any fun.

My daddy just sits by the fire
While his spectacles hang on his nose;
And he don't seem to have a desire
But to sit by the chimney and doze.

'Tis the twilight of life, with him now
Though he seems to be hearty and strong;
But some wrinkles appear on his brow
And a croak has got into his song.

So he dreams of the joys that departed,
Of the tale of the years that are told;
And confesses, tho' half broken hearted,
That somehow he is growing old.

So he sits by the fire and dozes
And dreams of the days that are past.
May the vision of life as it closes,
Bring peace to my daddy at last.

THE GOVERNMENT'S Last Hope Shattered.

Editor Evening Telegram.

Dear Sir.—The departure of Sir Robert Bond by the s.s. Sardinian for England and the Government's evident belief that it foreshadows his retirement from public life, has caused quite a jubilant feeling amongst the "Morris Gang." It is their last hope. They had planned a campaign against him of vilification and abuse, in the hope of disgusting him with present politics, and the literary assassin gave the first thrust of his dagger through the medium of the Daily News in its issue of Tuesday, the 4th inst. The article headed "Echoes from Earlier Years" was numbered I, intimating that similar attacks were to follow. Morris and his gang dread Sir Robert Bond with a wholesome fear. They dreaded him so much in the election of 1909 that a mob organized at Western Bay tried to prevent him landing on the public wharf, and the pitiable spectacle was beheld of these poor deluded people who faced them single-handed, and kicking him into the icy ocean, while a member of the Morris Government stood on the wharf and saw the fiendish plot carried into execution.

ESCAPED WITH HIS LIFE.

Sir Robert escaped with his life, but it is well known that his health has suffered from the cowardly kick and immersion. Nothing daunted by the incident he carried his campaign work through in 1909, and it is safe to assume that as this cowardly attempt failed to drive him from the District of Bay de Verde in 1909, so the attempt of the literary assassin upon his reputation, which is dearer than life, will fail to prevent him from entering the political arena next fall and exposing the hooding and grating now going on. The article in the Daily News was intended to wound Sir Robert among the younger generation of voters. It purports to deal with Sir Robert's honour in respect to a public question twenty-seven (27) years ago, and starts with a lie, a deliberate, unqualified lie, intended to prejudice the reader at the outset.

AN UNQUALIFIED LIE.

P. T. McGrath of the Evening Herald once termed Premier Morris "A liar on space." Was he the literary assassin of Tuesday last? It was certainly such a production as might be expected from the pen of one who was considered by his "great personal friend" to merit that title. The article commenced thus: "We scarcely need to-day to recall Sir Robert Bond's attitude regarding the Bait Act in the early days of his career. . . . He succeeded to the Speakership when the late R. J. Kent resigned that post in 1885. . . . When the Thorburn Government after coming back to office declined to continue him in the Speakership and replaced him by the late Mr. McNelly, he seized an early opportunity to break from that party and go into opposition, and when the Thorburn Government introduced the Bait Act he became its most violent opponent. . . . The speeches which he made against it were so violent and regarded as so unpatriotic that the Assembly voted that they should be made between closed doors, lest the information get to the French and be used to the detriment of the Colony. To-day he professes for party reasons to regard the Bait Act as the salvation of the country."

A SERIOUS CHARGE.

The inference that Sir Robert's villifier desires the reader to draw from the above is that because he was not continued in the position of Speaker by the Thorburn Government in 1885 therefore he opposed the Bait Act; that he was thus not influenced by principle but by petty spite. A more serious charge could not be brought against a public man in relation to his public conduct. What are the facts? I have copied them from the Official Report of the proceedings of the House of Assembly published in the Evening Mercury, and it will be seen that the unworthy motive attributed to Sir Robert Bond is a contemptible libel of a high-minded gentleman whose honour stands without a stain after bearing the searchlight of public scrutiny for more than thirty years. It will be seen that not only is it untrue that "the Thorburn Government declined to continue him in the Speakership" in 1885 but that as a matter of fact Sir Robert Bond refused the Speakership at his hands, and still higher office. I will let the public records speak for themselves.

THE RECORDS SPEAK.

On the 19th April, 1886, from his place in the House of Assembly, Sir Robert Bond in dealing with an attack made upon him by the official organ of the House, said: "Why the official organ of the House is permitted to adopt this course of action I cannot understand, unless the desire of the Government be to endeavour to crush out all independent action in the House. I have taken an independent seat here—for what? Certainly not for self-interest. I might have occupied the highest position in the Legislature, the position of Speaker. I WAS ASKED BY THE GOVERNMENT TO TAKE IT, and the opposition would have given me their unanimous support. I was offered departmental office by the present Government but for good and sufficient reasons I declined to accept office. I will never connect myself with a Government that obtains its position by purchase and disfranchisement, and endeavours to govern this Colony on sectarian lines."

TRYING TO DRIVE OUT.

The man who uttered these noble sentiments and acted up to the strict letter of them is the man whom Morris and his gang has tried, and are still trying, to hound out of the public life of Newfoundland. Sir Robert Bond not only declared that he had been offered the Speakership by the Thorburn Government and declined it, but he produced the proof and read to the House the correspondence that had taken place between the then Premier and himself. This correspondence is also published with the official report of the debates. What can be said or thought of the individual who in order

George Knowing has just received a carload of 165 barrels of CHOICE CANADIAN APPLES, direct from the growers.

Geo. Knowing. Feb 8, 1913 to tarnish the reputation of an honorable political opponent deliberately sat down and wrote the lie in respect to the Speakership in 1886?

A MALICIOUS CALUMNIATOR.

He is nothing short of a malicious calumniator. The Daily News writer in the next place declared that the speeches which Sir Robert Bond made against the Bait Act "were so violent and were regarded as so unpatriotic that the Assembly voted that they should be made between closed doors lest the information get to the French and be used to the detriment of the Colony." This is another deliberate lie intended to disparage Sir Robert Bond and to mislead the young voter, who has no knowledge of the political incidents of the period referred to.

GAGGING MEMBERS.

The official report of proceedings of the Legislature shows that the Bait Bill was discussed with closed doors in BOTH branches of the Legislature. Sir Robert Bond did not sit and speak in both Houses. I will give the views of Mr. Morine, a witness, as to the reason for the closed doors during the debate on the Bait Bill. In the Assembly on Feb. 22, 1887, in the course of a speech he said: "Why did the Government have the Bait Bill discussed here in private and not permit the public to hear the discussion? I believe it was a deliberate attempt to gag members, knowing that any opposition they could make as to the way in which things were being done and as to the expenses being incurred would be rendered ineffectual."

Sir Robert Bond in speaking to the matter said: "It was hurried through this House before a copy of it was printed and before half a dozen members knew of its provisions. The public knew nothing about it for it was discussed behind closed doors and the publication of the debate was prohibited. It was hurried into the Legislative Council where it was debated with closed doors and where it was quickly passed and sent out for the Royal assent. Under such circumstances how could the matter receive the consideration its grave import demanded?"

FAVoured BAIT RESTRICTION.

And in bringing his speech no other Prime Minister has ever done to a close Sir Robert Bond said: "I AM STRONGLY IN FAVOUR OF RESTRICTIVE LEGISLATION UPON THE CAPTURE AND SALE OF BAIT FISHES but this Act I cannot and will not support." The Bait Act as then before the House he opposed not in its principle, as will be observed, but in its detail. The Bait Act as it stands to-day he has enforced; no other Prime Minister has ever done and the Board of Trade and the general public are well aware of the fact.

With this exposure of Sir Robert Bond's traducers I will rest content for the present and allow Morris and his gang to draw all such comfort as they can from Sir Robert Bond's necessary absence from the Colony for a few weeks. The man who all alone faced the mob on the public wharf at Western Bay will meet the no less ignoble warriors whom you have aptly named the "Morris Gang" in his own good time.

Yours truly,
JUSTICE.

CAPE RACE, To-day.

Good Policy.

If you remark in cordial tones that J. Augustus Caesar-Jones is worth his weight in gold, the fact will doubtless reach his ears and he will smile and give three cheers as soon as he is told.

Then Caesar-Jones will demonstrate how much he can appreciate a tribute of the sort; and as he through the village wends he'll pause a while to tell his friends that you're a first-class sport. If people, trying to be smart, should roast you, he will take your part, and swear that you're a bird; your good repute he will defend—and thus you gain a faithful friend, by saying kindly word. If you inform the village crier that J. Augustus Caesar-Jones is but a false alarm, he'll hear of your remark, and then, throughout the busy haunts of men, he'll try to do you harm. It's human nature thus to knock if someone bluffs you on the block, or kicks you on the shins; the hero only lives in books who turns the other cheek, gazooks, and takes a swat and grins. So if you'd have the people praise you as they go their divers ways, praise others when you can; say pleasant things about the folks who with you toll and bear their vokes, for that's the better plan.

My Mission.

I was longing for a mission—Fancy made it something grand—Something that would win the praise Of the world on every hand. So I squandered time in waiting For the chance that never came—Quite forgot to think of others In my longing after fame.

But one day I had a vision Of the needy ones near by—Of the hearts that starve with hunger Till they faint, and fall and die; Starve for little deeds of kindness, Of a word of hope and cheer, And the smiles that cost so little But can make it heaven here.

Then it was I found my mission—

Knew what work God meant for me, And I cried "Forgive my blindness, Now, at last, thank God, I see!" And my heart that had been selfish In its longing to be great, Saw great fields of labor waiting For me just outside my gate.

So I seek to scatter sunshine In a dark and cheerless place, Loving words have given courage, Smiles have cheered the tearful face.

In the joy of helping others God's good time I waste no more, Since my life has found its mission Waiting at the very door.

THURSDAY, Feb. 13th, 1913.

Notes and Comments.

Read the two interesting letters we publish to-day from "Justice" and "Mr. Arthur English," and then consider if the Morris party have made good and if the Morris government should be allowed to finish their work.

The Evening Herald circulates the rumor that the relations between Sir Robert Bond and his colleagues are strained. The wish is father to the thought, but the thought is as usual far astray from the wake of truth. Could not the Herald devote its attention to patching up the differences between his own leader and some of his chief men?

Three grumblers have been soled with seats in the Legislative Council. But there are grumblers placed much higher in party life, a solace for whom Sir Edward has been unable to find. Strained relations forsooth, let Sir Edward Morris keep his eyes on his own political household. It will take all his time tact and energy to keep things straight.

The Evening Herald is much concerned about Sir Robert Bond's intention as to the General Election next fall. Why is the evening organ of the Morris party betraying so much anxiety? If the country actually believed in the Herald's words that Morris is making good, why should the Morris party be so anxious to learn if Sir Robert Bond intended to appeal to the country next fall? This anxiety arises clearly from fear of the impending fate of the Morris Party. It is that anxiety which give rise to the frantic appeals to the country to let Morris finish his work. The Morris Party fear the verdict. But the members of it indulge in the hope that there may be a last chance. Perhaps Sir Robert may not appeal to the country, and if so there may be a hope, however forlorn. In such vain musings and thoughts they seek solace. We can, however, afford the Morris Party no such comfort. Sir Robert Bond has not resigned, the leadership of the Liberal Party. Nor has he any intention of doing so. Nor are the relations between him and his colleagues in the party strained. As we wrote on Tuesday, so we write to-day, the Morris party would like to see Sir Robert out of the fight next

CHILD MAY DIE.
A few evenings ago a very serious and painful accident occurred at the residence of Mr. Solomon Miller, of the Outer Battery. His eldest girl had just taken off the stove a vessel filled with boiling water when another little girl, Pearl, aged three, who was playing about the room tripped and fell backwards into the scalding water. The child was literally boiled about the thighs and lower part of the abdomen, back and arms and suffered excruciating agony until Dr. Cowperthwaite came and relieved her. The child was later sent to the General Hospital and it is feared that the vital organs are affected and that she cannot recover. Her parents are much affected over the accident.

In winter time there are few things that contribute more to comfort than a good Hot Water Bottle. We say a good one, because too cheap Rubber Water Bottles is apt to become a nuisance in a very short time. But a good one which will give a reasonable amount of good honest service is of very great value to the user. For cold feet and to prevent the often serious results that spring therefrom, for stitches and for some other kinds of internal pain the Hot Water Bottle is an efficient adjunct to medical treatment. A thoroughly reliable Hot Water Bottle is Messrs. Whitall, Tatum & Co's "Special" with patent unlosable stopper. This well-made bottle is guaranteed to give at least two years perfect service and any defaulting ones will be replaced free of charge by us. Price $3 each?

The ship which is now owned by Burchell and Young, of Sydney, is now practically a new vessel and the owners are very pleased with the character of the work done on her. Capt. Hickey, late of the Beatrice, will take charge and Capt. C. W. Green will be chief officer.

MEXICO CITY, Feb. 12.
Fighting was resumed in the streets this morning, artillery on both sides being brought into play, augmented by machine guns.

LONDON, Feb. 12.
The Refreshment Hall at Regent Park was burned down to-day, probably by suffragettes, as on the adjoining path the words, "Votes for Women," were found scratched. A basket smelling of petroleum was found in an adjoining shrubbery.

TORONTO, Feb. 12.
A memorial service for Capt. Scott and his heroic comrades will take place in Massey Hall on Sunday. The fact that Dr. Wright, a citizen of Toronto, was a member of the expedition brings the tragedy nearer home.

LONDON, Feb. 12.
The suggestion is mooted here that Mormon missionaries should be brought within the provisions of the White Slave Traffic Act, with a view to putting an end to their propaganda in the British Isles. It is expected that the anti-Mormon League will adopt the idea.

LONDON, Feb. 12.
The Lord Mayor has decided to open a Mansion House Fund for the erection of a Memorial to Capt. Scott and his companions who died in the Antarctic. The duty of providing for the dependent relatives of the explorers, he considers, should be undertaken by the State.

LONDON, Feb. 12.
Mrs. Scott will receive a pension of $1,000 a year from the Admiralty. The relatives of Capt. Scott and Petty Officer Evans, both of the Royal Navy will be treated as though killed in action, the widows receiving $500 a year more than half pay. Dr. Wilson leaves a wife and mother; Lieut. Howers, a widowed mother and two sisters; and Capt. Gates, a mother. Evans leaves a widow and three children.

SOPIA, Feb. 12.
It is reported here this morning that Turkish troops enclosed the whole male Christian population of Buzuk Chekmedje in a school house there, and massacred them. Subsequently they killed all Christians, women and children, with the exception of young girls, whom they carried aboard ship. There was no fighting yesterday on the Gallipoli Peninsula, or on the Thracian lines. The bombardment of Adrianople continues.

NEW YORK, Feb. 12.
Yesterday closed the time allotted for filing claims during the estate of $8,027,374. If limitation of liability be granted, the claimants will be entitled only to $96,000, which has been turned over to the Admiralty Court from the salvage of life boats. The largest single claim is by Mrs. Henry B. Harris, widow of the Electrical Manager. She asks $1,000,000. The Austrian Consul asks $1,098,900 for the death of four countrymen. Englishman Gostly, of Providence, R.I., claims $250,000 for the death of his father. Claims for lost merchandise amount to $1,523,523. In all, 369 claims are filed.

LOS ANGELES, Feb. 12.
Fitzgerald Slocum, correspondent of the Los Angeles Times in Mexico City, sends the following: Mexico City seems doomed. Many of its fine buildings are ablaze through the fire of the artillery. The dead are piled high in the streets. General Huerta, Commander of the Federal troops, is reported dead. The reign of President Madero seems ended. General Felix Diaz commands nearly all the city. His men are fighting like veterans while those defending the National Palace, where Madero is, have taken to drink and are resting in the firing line. Diaz's men, seeing this, were quick to take advantage of it, and within an hour, last night, Diaz had extended his zone of control to Alameda itself.

LONDON, Feb. 12.
A despatch from Constantinople pictures the position of the Turkish capital as becoming more extraordinary every day. Business is dead, and many commercial houses have become bankrupt. Street cars stopped running long ago. Cholera is prevailing. Fires occur daily. During a fire in the Toppanch section of the city, yesterday, probably started by looters, there was little attempt made to check the flames, except by foreign sailors. The Turks did not seem to be disturbed about it, and continued to smoke away peacefully in the cafes, while the flames raged furiously. Even a terrible explosion in a house full of ammunition, created only a mild interest. A masked ball was going on in another quarter. Thus, says the correspondent, amid laughter and arson, dancing and light-hearted immorality, the city is drifting to its doom. Refugees from Gallipoli are pouring into Asia, via Constantinople, and Asiatic soldiers are pouring into Europe in continuous floods. The correspondent admits that the position has its heroic side, and that the Turks are determined to resist to the last inch of the Empire.

GILLETT'S PERFUMED LYE

WASHINGTON, Feb. 12.
President Taft and Cabinet are in accord that Congress shall share the responsibility for any intervention in Mexico. A day of conference between President and advisers ended with an understanding that should conditions in Mexico City become such as to demand the landing of American troops, Taft will lay before both Houses the full facts of the situation in a special message, to-day. Every preliminary was arranged for action. Thirty-five thousand men of the Army and Navy Marine Corps were put in readiness for movement. The first brigade of the first army division, just created, numbering 3,000 men, and an expeditionary force of 15,000, were put on marching orders, ready to entrain for Newport News, where army transports wait under steam. Between 2,500 and 3,000 marines of the Atlantic battleship squadron at Guantanamo naval station are prepared for immediate movement to Vera Cruz, where they might be kept aboard ship ready to blaze an avenue of escape to Mexico City for foreigners as they did at Peking. Six Dreadnoughts are rushing at full steam for Mexican ports. Ten other crack fighting ships of the Atlantic battleship fleet are swinging at anchor for 70 hours off Guantanamo. They have 9,000 officers and men on board.

CHRISTCHURCH, N.Z., Feb. 12.
The Terra Nova, arrived here this morning. She brings additional information. Surgeon E. L. Atkinson and the party under his command who found the bodies of Capt. Scott and his three comrades, searched without result for Capt. Oates, when they reached their winter quarters at "Cape Point," they learned that the northern party was safe. This party was composed of Mount, Campbell, Surgeon Lovick, Petty officers Abbot and Browning, and Messrs. Dickinson and Priestley. They had been forced through the failure of the Terra Nova, to reach them, to make their way back alone two hundred miles to Cape Evans, where they had to wait until the sea ice was heavy enough for their transportation. In the meantime they made a home for themselves in the snow drift, building an ice house 13 by 9 feet. For more than six months they lived on seal in this locality, with a few biscuits, some corn and sugar. Acute enteritis attacked some members of the party, and handicapped them greatly in their journey to Cape Evans. They must have suffered great hardships, being forced to subsist during a 230 miles journey, through an Antarctic winter on provisions intended for only one month. The records brought back include Amundsen's letter to King Haakon of Norway, found in a cache made by the Norwegian explorer, when he reached the Pole, one month before the Scott Party. An iceberg 21 miles in length was encountered by the Terra Nova on her return voyage, in lat. 64.15, long. 16.15 east. Later the ship passed through a sea of icebergs, being compelled to steam half a dozen miles at slow speed along the edge of one of them.

Operation for Piles Cured.

Zam-Buk Was Then Tried and Worked a Cure.

Writing from Poplar, B.C., Mrs. C. Hanson, wife of the proprietor of the Commercial Hotel, says: "I suffered for years with bleeding piles. The pain was so bad at times that I could hardly walk, and ordinary remedies seemed utterly unable to give me any ease. Finally I decided to undergo an operation, and went to the Sacred Heart Hospital in Spokane. There they performed an operation and did all they could for me. For a time I was certainly better, but within 12 months the trouble started again and the piles became as painful as ever. I tried liniments, hot poultices, various pile cures, and indeed everything I could think would be likely to do me any good, but still I continued to suffer, and the shooting, burning, stinging pains, the dull, aching and wretched 'worn-out' feeling that the disease causes continued as bad as ever. "One day I read about Zam-Buk and thought I would try it. The first one or two boxes gave me more ease than anything else I had tried, so I went on with the treatment. In a short time I began to feel altogether different and better, and I saw that Zam-Buk was going to cure me. Well, I went on using it, and by the time I had used six boxes I was delighted to find myself entirely cured. That was three years ago, and from then to the present time there has been no return of the trouble. "Zam-Buk is a sure cure for piles, eczema, ulcers, abscesses, cold sores, chapped hands, varicose sores, burns, scalds, bruises, inflamed patches, and all skin injuries and diseases. Druggists and stores everywhere, 50c. box, or Zam-Buk Co., St. John's, Nfld., for price. Refuse harmful substitutes.

Stormy West.

After a short respite the weather up west again became stormy yesterday and from early morning until about 2 p.m. it snowed hard with a N. W. gale. The trains were thus impeded as the cuts were all filled with snow and the tracks covered. No. 1 rotary crossed the Topfalls from Kitty's Brook to Millertown Junction in the morning, but the snow piled up along the line and Tuesday's express bound west was retarded. To-day the rotary is preceding the express on the run west.

Still Ice Bound.

The S. S. Ethie is still detained at Placentia as that port and the whole Bay is ice covered. A day's heavy easterly wind is wanted to clear it and until this occurs the Bay will remain blocked. It is thought that the Coben now due there with coal must come on here, nor is it likely the Portia will be able to enter the Bay.

Hockey

The Victoria played the St. Bon's at the Prince's Rink last night before a small number of onlookers and defeated them by five goals to four. Gus Herder refereed the game, which was exciting but uninteresting as there was little or no combination in evidence and the players felt inclined to revive the old-time game, 'puckin' kug', as there was too much slashing.

Other Medicines May Help But Dodd's Kidney Pills Always Cure—That's Why They are Woman's Friend.

Prevel, Gaspe Co., Que., Feb. 12 (Special)—Mrs. John McRea, wife of a well-known farmer, living near here tells of her remarkable recovery from an illness of two years' standing. "I was a sufferer from kidney disease, brought on by a cold and a strain," Mrs. McRea says. "My eyes were puffed and swollen, my muscles cramped, and I suffered from neuralgia and rheumatism. My back ached, and I had pains in my joints. "For two years I was under the doctor's care, but he never seemed to do me any lasting good. Then, on the advice of friends, I started to use Dodd's Kidney Pills.

"Two boxes made a new woman of me. There's only one sure cure for kidney disease, and that is Dodd's Kidney Pills. Other medicines sometimes help, but Dodd's Kidney Pills always cure. If you are a suffering woman, it is almost a certainty you haven't tried Dodd's Kidney Pills for ninety per cent. of the ills of women are from bad kidneys.

Morris's Extravagance And Uselessness.

Editor Evening Telegram.

Dear Sir.—Last evening's Herald contains a curious jumble of mixed metaphor under the caption "A Wave of Progress Has Struck This Colony." It is quite evident even to the most casual reader that that article was never originally intended to apply to this country, but has been so manipulated as to make it appear in a slight degree applicable to local conditions. The editor of the Herald is at his wit's end to prove that Morris's reign of extravagance has been helpful to the country, and so is glad to pounce upon even shoddy read-made, which offers a pretext for trumpet blowing. By reckless and unparalleled spending of public money, Morris has created in the minds of a few unthinking people the impression of prosperity. Such prosperity is merely fictitious, as we will find out later when we are called upon to pay the piper. We are living upon borrowed money and as we cannot go on borrowing forever, it stands to reason that some day we must stop sorrow.

To borrow money and to spend money for the purpose of railroad building or in the encouragement of agriculture, is laudable, but the manner of spending it must be well considered. It must be spent so as to insure some substantial returns to the country. Morris and his gang of spendthrifts have squandered public money in a manner shameful to contemplate. Then the Herald man calls upon us to "let Morris finish his work." Yes, and incidentally finish us as well.

We will finish Morris's work for him, Mr. McGrath. What return can the country expect from that so-called agricultural policy of Morris's, which has cost the country over $100,000? Might as well expect a return of last year's winds. The article referred to above starts off with a flourish of trumpets and ends with a wail. A dirge which says as plainly as words might say, Morris's agricultural policy has been a complete failure. To quote the melancholy paragraph, it says, "Looking at farming conditions as they exist in the Colony to-day one thing is certain, and that is it will take considerable more than an act of Parliament and a few newspaper articles to establish agriculture as a leading industry in this island." I daresay Morris will endorse that statement in every detail, for his utter and miserable failure to promote agricultural development must bring that painful realization home to him, in full force. His farming policy has been a dismal failure, and for the $100,000 spent in support of that more than futile scheme it is doubtful if he can prove that even one turpentine has been raised in the country. There is not even a single example of his two-blade grass to be seen, and the Southside Hills are still unwhitened by sheep. Turning to the pages of last evening's Telegram, one is met with another evidence of Morris's insufficiency, his incapacity I might say, this evidence is found in a letter from "Miner," who complains of the manner in which mines are conducted, without due regard to the safety of the miner.

What is Morris doing with that royalty received from Bell Island? Why is there not a State Mine Inspector? We heard a lot from Morris about the encouragement and fostering of the mining industry. What has he done to encourage it? He offers a certain sum to the lucky discoverer of any mineral deposit, subject to certain conditions. Just another instance of Morris's cheap way of promoting good. Offer money. That is all. It does not call for any great amount of brains to evolve such a scheme of encouragement. Any school boy might do as well. What has been done by the Geological Department of late, since no coal boring has been done? Where has our Geological Surveyor been engaged? Oh, yes, nearly forgotten, he has been busy for a time at the Festival of Empire. Now I see he is anxious to get back to the coal fields. Mr. Joseph Downey says our coal fields cannot be worked at a profit, even though there is plenty of coal, as Mr. Howley states. Mr. Howley might know of workable seams of coal in the country, but I must say that his reports of boring operations are anything but encouraging.

Yours truly,
ARTHUR ENGLISH.

Mr. McDoald Replies.

Editor Evening Telegram.

Dear Sir.—Please allow me a word in reply to "Fairplay" whose letter appeared in the Herald of the 11th inst. "Fairplay" charges that my letter was "an attack on His Honor Mayor or Ellis." I wish to make it clear that I have always regarded Mr. Ellis as one of our best citizens, and I am well aware that he ranks high in the estimation of all classes in this community. It was for just these reasons that I was surprised that the Mayor did not oppose the proposition that was put forth to pay the Secretary of the Council $200 for so-called extra services.

Mr. Mullaly, also on the 11th inst., in the columns of the Telegram, explains that the Mayor did think the amount excessive. Well, if that is so, it is strange the report of the proceedings did not say so. Mr. Mullaly seems to have gathered the opinion also, that I reflected on the Mayor, and he appears troubled about it. Now Mr. Editor, it looks to me as if Mr. Mullaly is trying to take "backwater." I like a man to maintain his position and stick to his guns. If we are to look for a reflection on the Mayor, what more do we need than Mr. Mullaly's own words spoken at the Council meeting "that the Council was being turned into a Santa Claus Society" and the taxpayers' money was being thrown up for scrambles." This sweeping charge was made with the Mayor in the chair, the Council afterwards voted away $200 of the taxpayers' money to Mr. Slattery, thereby proving that Mr. Mullaly's charge was true, viz., "that the taxpayers' money was being thrown up for scrambles." What I and other ratepayers would like to know is, why

Mission Service.

Last evening and this morning the services in connection with the Mission at the R. C. Cathedral were attended by large and devout congregations.

Tuesday night and yesterday morning some thousands of girls approached the Sacraments of Penance and Holy Communion, and the Redeemptorist Fathers were delighted with the large attendances of children despite the stormy weather. At evening prayers last evening a sermon was preached on the forgiveness of our enemies.

Enjoyable Event.

A large and delighted audience attended the Flower Sociable at the Lecture Hall, Queen's Road Congregational Church, last night. Rev. Mr. Thomas, who occupied the chair, delivered a brief address after which a sketch, "A Meeting Amongst the Flowers" was given with an entertainment consisting of songs, recitations and instrumental pieces. The following took part—Misses Butler, Thomas, Hanlon and Pippy, Messrs. Crocker and Willis and Master J. Thomas. All were encored, and after the entertainment ice cream, candies and refreshments were served by the Ladies' Aid. The reverend chairman before the close thanked all who had contributed to the success of the affair.

With the Puck.

Another practice was held by the city fourteen last night. The selecting committee will meet to-day to pick the best seven to play the Wanderers when they come. The home team will be captained by Gus Herder. Again the President of the League has had word from Grand Falls. The hockeyists there are anxious to visit St. John's if it could be arranged for the latter part of February.

Police Creates Scene.

No small amount of excitement was created on Military Road, yesterday afternoon, when a citizen, it is alleged, for no breach of the law, was arrested by Constables Kelly and Henderson. Eyewitnesses say that the former officer attacked and struck this man without provocation. Only last month Constable Kelly hit a man he was arresting on Duckworth Street, and for which he was censured. Yesterday's scene will elicit an enquiry.

YET UNREPORTED.—There is still no word of the sealing steamer Kite, which is bound to Conche, putting in anywhere and the belief now is that she is jammed in the northern floe.

Rattlesnake Venom May Cure Epilepsy.

(By A. St. George Joyce, in the 'Technical World Magazine,' New York.)

Down in the Texas Panhandle, five years ago, a man was bitten by a rattlesnake. The man was an epileptic. He recovered from the poison of the snake-bite. Two years passed and during all that time there was no recurrence of the epilepsy. Before the chance meeting with 'crotalus horridus' on the Texas prairie he suffered from epileptic spasms every two or three days. The strange coincidence between the bite of the rattlesnake and the cure of the epilepsy was brought to the attention of a Texas physician, who made a statement of the case, which finally reached the attention of Dr. Thomas J. Mays and Dr. Ralph H. Spangler, of Philadelphia. Dr. Spangler, chief of the Medical Clinic of the Methodist Episcopal Hospital of Philadelphia, had been experimenting with rattlesnake venom in the treatment of other diseases.

Dr. Spangler had several cases of epilepsy under his care, and with the Texas instance in mind, he determined to try the effects of hypodermic injections of a solution of the dried venom of the rattlesnake. The reaction varied with each individual, but in each case there was the characteristic swelling, discoloration of the arm—where the venom was injected—and more or less severe pain. By the third or fourth day the symptoms disappeared and at the end of a week a second injection was made, at some distance from the first. Gradually, as with repeated treatments the local symptoms became less marked, the strength of the dose was increased. The effect on the epilepsy was very marked. Almost from the start the number of attacks decreased. The treatment continued and at the end of a year all of the patients were apparently cured, or, at the worst, were greatly benefited. Dr. Spangler has so far treated 110 patients and has administered about 2,000 injections of the venom. Institutions for the administration of the venom treatment are to be opened both in Germany and Philadelphia. The venom which Dr. Spangler uses comes from Texas. The 'milking' of the rattler to get its poison requires considerable nerve and a steady hand to hold the squirming monster and enrage it in order to make it give up its poison. The snakes are usually selected when torpid from recent feeding, and are handled by first lassoing them at the back of the head with a leather thong attached to a long stick. As long as the thong is drawn taut around the rattler's neck it is impossible for him to withdraw his head and he is powerless to strike. While one man holds the thonged stick another pricks open the snake's mouth with the sharp edge of a small china cup or with a spoon. The pressure of the fangs on the end of the surface forces the poison fluid from the sacs and the 'milked' snake is put back in his cage wild with rage. It is necessary to handle approximately a score of the reptiles in this manner before a sufficient quantity of the poison can be obtained for experimental purposes.

Dr. Spangler found that following the injections of venom the number of attacks was lessened. Patients which previously had been subject to 'fits' every week were not attacked, during the venom treatments, for two and three months. The injections continued and in the course of about a year none of the patients under the treatment had had a single attack.

Dr. Spangler found that the venom injections had the effect of lengthening the period of coagulation of the blood. This, physicians considered a remarkable discovery, since it had been previously determined that rapid coagulation was the real cause of the epileptic attacks in sufferers. The quick coagulation, or blood-clotting, was the cause of the fits.

In eighteen patients, Dr. Spangler, with venom treatment, had increased the time of coagulation from 2½ to 2 minutes to between 5 and 6 minutes during six months' treatment with the rattler venom. The normal period of coagulation of the blood is about 7 minutes.

Dr. Spangler believes that his venom treatment of epileptics will ultimately be used by the medical fraternity everywhere. If so, it will prove a big boon to mankind. He was the first physician in this country to use the venom in connection with epilepsy and so confident is the medical world that the disease has at last been conquered, that arrangements are now under way for the building of a sanitarium to further Dr. Spangler's experiments. There has just been opened at Cassel, Germany, such a sanitarium, at which the 'rattler' venom method of treating epileptics is being extended. Dr. Fackenheim, a noted European specialist, is directing the work of the institution there.

In every case which Dr. Spangler has treated with the venom there have resulted not only permanent cures and a decrease in the number of epileptic attacks, but there has always followed a general building up of the physical and mental condition of the epileptic. He recently exhibited to the writer eight cases which were under his observation. Through the use of the snake venom the epileptic attacks of the sufferers have either been permanently cured or have not occurred for periods of from four months to three years.

One was the case of an eleven year old school girl who had been taking the venom injections at weekly intervals for seven months. The first week she had a series of three modified attacks in twenty-four hours. At the time I saw her she had had only three minor attacks in seven months. She now attends school regularly and is physically well.

REID-NEWFOUNDLAND CO.

The Most Rational Remedy for Boiler Troubles,

"APEXIOR."

NOT A BOILER FLUID, but a compound having a base of 98 p. c. carbon, to be applied direct to the surface like paint. Absolutely stops Corrosive Pittings and the adhesion of Hard Scale in Boilers.

ZINC PLATES are not necessary in a boiler, the whole of the interior of which is covered by "Apexior."

EVAPORATOR COILS coated with "Apexior" only require to be tapped with a piece of hard wood to instantly remove all incrustation.
