RUSSIAN BATTLESHIPS ARE BEING SENT TO ADRIATIC SEAS

Krugers Fleet So Disaffected That He Was Forced to Return to Sebastopol and Disband, Leaving One Warship Behind—Mutiny on Pobedonozets Soon Dies Out, But Kniaz Potemkine Now Cruising at Will

St. Petersburg, July 2.—(4.40 a.m.)—The unprecedented spectacle of powerful modern battleships cruising around in the Black Sea in the hands of a crew who, under the rules of international law cannot be regarded as other than pirates, and of the admiral in command of the rest of the Russian fleet frankly confessing his inability to cope with the situation, and ordering the crews of his warships to be driven, has stupored the Russian admiralty.

The whereabouts of the errant battleship Kniaz Potemkine is unknown; no plans for capturing her have been devised, and the policy of non-interference seems to be at present in vogue. The Kniaz Potemkine has sailed from Odessa, and is now at large, and her crew, reinforced by sympathizers from shore, is still in control of the vessel.

On the Georgi Pobedonozets, which came in its fortunes with the Kniaz Potemkine after its arrival at Odessa and landed its officers, the more loyal or more timorous portion of the crew gained the upper hand and agreed to surrender and disarm the ship.

The rest of the squadron returned to Sebastopol without venturing to take up the gauntlet thrown down by the mutineers on the Kniaz Potemkine, and Admiral Kruger, after a council of war, finding that he could not depend on the crews of his ships and permission to disembark the disaffected officers and sailors to seek the vessel and go ashore.

WAS SURROUNDED.
St. Petersburg, July 2.—A telegram from Odessa gives the following details of the movements of the Kniaz Potemkine and the vessels of the Black Sea squadron after the arrival of the latter.

The squadron arrived at Odessa in line ahead, flying signals. The Kniaz Potemkine replied to the signals, while the other vessels of the squadron, cutting her off from the shore.

The Kniaz Potemkine hoisted the red flag and made seawards at full speed and anchored in the roadstead opposite the offices of the volunteer fleet. The other vessels of the squadron, however, disappeared, subsequently returning to the Black Sea.

The Kniaz Potemkine approached and before long found herself in the centre of a council of war. Two battleships took up positions to the right and left, with the Kniaz Potemkine in the centre. The mutinous ship suddenly broke through the encircling vessels and steamed almost in her forward direction, anchoring in the roadstead.

The rest of the squadron returned to Sebastopol without venturing to take up the gauntlet thrown down by the mutineers on the Kniaz Potemkine, and Admiral Kruger, after a council of war, finding that he could not depend on the crews of his ships and permission to disembark the disaffected officers and sailors to seek the vessel and go ashore.

His signals to "Come Back" Replied Which Sends Him Scuttling Home Mianis One Boat.

Sebastopol, July 2.—(Via St. Petersburg, July 2.)—Immediately after the Black Sea squadron arrived here Saturday a council of admirals and captains was held on board the flagship, the Admiral Kruger presiding. The council resolved to ungar the machinery and authorize the officers and men to go ashore.

The Kniaz Potemkine, which was steering a southerly course when she left Odessa, would, within a few hours, be south of Russian limits, and may next be heard from in some Balkan or Turkish port.

The spirit manifested thru the fleet goes far to explain the defeat in the battle of Japan, and the position of the crew, especially those of Admiral Negobatoski's division, were drafted from the Black Sea to the Pacific.

The proclamation attached to the dead body of Kniaz Potemkine's sailor Onchuk at Odessa, which was received yesterday, confirmed the statement of the authorities that the revolt was entirely spontaneous and that the mutineers were not in a mind to offer a stout fight.

NOW MUTINY HAS ENDED

Surrender of Second Mutinous Warship Gives Authorities Full Control of Situation.

Odessa, July 2.—The Kniaz Potemkine sailed yesterday apparently in the direction of the Bosphorus coast, and the exciting scene which resulted in her capture and the strikers return to work. The manufacturers are hopeful, "they think that the men will resume work tomorrow."

The only element of immediate danger from mutinous sailors now appears to be the Kniaz Potemkine. The authorities are under military censorship and do not contain the slightest reference to the happenings in the harbor.

An unconfirmed report says that the Kniaz Potemkine transferred a number of revolutionaries, including students and some Jewish girls, to a British steamer, the name of which is not given.

The Georgi Pobedonozets, immediately upon entering the bay last evening, ordered into port papers with the local authorities, which resulted in the landing of all the officers.

From the outset several of the crew demanded that she refrain from the use of force. These increased in numbers until it was finally decided to negotiate with the authorities, to whom they handed over the flag and the breach locks of the guns. The prefect has closed the Hotel Kremia, because shots were fired from the windows.

Foreign Warships Will Now Be Excluded From Four Harbors—Early Mobilization Predicted.

Stockholm, July 2.—(Bulletin)—The government has issued a proclamation, to become effective immediately, declaring Stockholm, Karlskrona, Gohenburg and Paroand to be war ports, and excluding all foreign warships from these ports.

These official denials ARE MATTER OF POLICY and a denial of the mobilization of troops by the provisional government of Norway Friday was quite natural, as both Sweden and Norway are keeping their preparations secret, as not to unnecessarily excite the two peoples. The general opinion here is that Sweden will mobilize in the near future, so as to emphasize her condition.

OPPORTUNITY GIVEN FOR PROSPECTORS TO "MAKE A PILE"

Some Hints at "Gobbling" of Territory.

Ontario Laws Generous

The poor man has as much chance as the rich in the emphatic statement of Thomas W. Gibson, director of the provincial bureau of mines, in speaking of the Ontario laws that provide for the staking out of claims in the cobalt area of Temiskaming.

The conditions under which the prospector may make a bid for fortune, as explained by the official, certainly hold out allurement to the man of small means and big ambitions. By paying $10 he can get a government license that gives him the whole area, or such of it as he may wish to acquire, in a range over. He has a year in which to carry on the hunt for the cobalt lode—a plucky surface reconnaissance that is a sign of mineral wealth beneath—and when he has made his strike, he stakes out his 40-acre claim, that being the regulation size fixed by the government, and what the other yield in his own exclusive property. The government exacts no royalty or taxes, but stipulates that $50 a year be spent in mining work at the end of four years the prospector has the option of buying from the government at $50, or leasing the property.

"The laws are unusually liberal," admitted Mr. Gibson. "Personally, I think the public is entitled to get more benefit from the wonderful richness, but these are the laws."

He thought the government had done a great deal toward the developing of mining in the district since the Temiskaming Railway surveys had given them their discovery. The bureau of mines had practically made the district known to the world by its issue of printed forms descriptive of the rock formations, and the issue of a geological map, a great deal of information of value to prospectors had been given out, and Prof. W. G. Miller's report was much on the ground, and was very valuable.

He pointed out the richness of the ore in spots Mr. Gibson remarked that he had an 800-lb exhibit in his office. That was actually taken from the cobalt at Cobalt Station, from which neighborhood the output keeps increasing. He referred to a case that he knew of in which a man going to Temiskaming thirteen months ago had since taken out $100,000 for an outfit in working from $100,000.

Something About Cobalt.
The name "Cobalt" is perhaps somewhat of a misnomer, as the ore is not mined for itself alone, nor for the nickel and the arsenic, but for the silver. Mr. Gibson calculates that $500 or more would be made up of the cobalt, and the nickel and the arsenic, and for this reason and for the reason that the cobalt gives the distinctive coloring, the amalgam is known under that name. The market for cobalt itself, however, is not so large as that of the silver, and the process of separation is purely a mechanical one.

All Gobs to the Fore.
Every portion of ore has been and is being shipped to New York, says Mr. Gibson. The reason as given is that there is no competition in the building. The "Earl Innes" is spoken of vaguely as the cause of the accident. It is reported that the Earl Innes is a man who has been buying, while it is not generally known that capital from the big combine has secured several hundred acres of pine land.

Announces Appointment of Plenipotentiaries, Who, Thanks to Japan's Insistence and President's Tact, May Enter Upon Much Desired Treaty.

Oyster Bay, July 2.—President Roosevelt to-day authorized the following announcement to be made relative to the pending peace negotiations between Russia and Japan.

"The president announces that the Russian and Japanese governments have notified him that they have appointed the plenipotentiaries to meet in Washington as soon after the first of August as possible.

"The two Russian plenipotentiaries are Ambassadors Muraviev, formerly minister of justice, and now ambassador at Rome, and Ambassador Rosen. The Japanese plenipotentiaries are Baron Komura, now minister of foreign affairs, and Minister Takahira.

"It is possible that each side may send one or more additional plenipotentiaries if the plenipotentiaries in Japan will be entrusted with full power to negotiate and conclude a treaty of peace, subject, of course, to ratification by their respective governments."

ALL SATISFIED.
A day or two ago the Russian and Japanese governments formally communicated to the plenipotentiaries full names of the plenipotentiaries they respectively had selected. Acting as an intermediary between the plenipotentiaries of the Russian government and those of the Japanese government, the plenipotentiaries assured that the selection was satisfactory, the president, according to the official statement, had authorized the public announcement of the envoys.

Some delay was occasioned in the selection of the plenipotentiaries by the insistence of Japan that the envoys should be of equal rank and full power to conclude peace and negotiate a permanent treaty. The Japanese government indicated pointedly that the emperor would not purport to define its terms and then let Russia take the initiative in the proposed conference in which the plenipotentiaries would proceed with their deliberations.

WAS IN THE END.
The plenipotentiaries insisted that the plenipotentiaries should have conferred on their treaty-making powers, and that the plenipotentiaries be entered upon in a spirit of perfect equality. Such, too, was the position taken by the plenipotentiaries. He maintained that only by clothing the envoys with ample authority to accept or refuse the proposed peace treaty, a lasting peace be achieved. He strongly urged the plenipotentiaries to accept a reasonable proposition of Japan. The plenipotentiaries of the Russian government are indicated clearly in the statement of the plenipotentiaries. The plenipotentiaries practically concludes the preliminary negotiations before the plenipotentiaries are to be arranged, but the conference now seems assured.

EARLY IN AUGUST.
While no absolute date for the meeting of the envoys has been fixed, it has been assumed that the plenipotentiaries will be held in Washington about the first of August. It is probable that Ambassador Muraviev will start soon for Washington for an appointment between a considerable staff of secretaries, clerks and interpreters. St. Petersburg, July 2.—(4.15 a.m.)—Negotiations for an armistice between the armies of Russia and Japan. It can be definitely stated, are now in progress. The plenipotentiaries of the Russian government have not reached a stage where any further announcement can be made. Acting as an intermediary between the plenipotentiaries of the Russian government and those of the Japanese government, the plenipotentiaries assured that the selection was satisfactory, the president, according to the official statement, had authorized the public announcement of the envoys.

Some delay was occasioned in the selection of the plenipotentiaries by the insistence of Japan that the envoys should be of equal rank and full power to conclude peace and negotiate a permanent treaty. The Japanese government indicated pointedly that the emperor would not purport to define its terms and then let Russia take the initiative in the proposed conference in which the plenipotentiaries would proceed with their deliberations.

WAS IN THE END.
The plenipotentiaries insisted that the plenipotentiaries should have conferred on their treaty-making powers, and that the plenipotentiaries be entered upon in a spirit of perfect equality. Such, too, was the position taken by the plenipotentiaries. He maintained that only by clothing the envoys with ample authority to accept or refuse the proposed peace treaty, a lasting peace be achieved. He strongly urged the plenipotentiaries to accept a reasonable proposition of Japan. The plenipotentiaries of the Russian government are indicated clearly in the statement of the plenipotentiaries. The plenipotentiaries practically concludes the preliminary negotiations before the plenipotentiaries are to be arranged, but the conference now seems assured.

EARLY IN AUGUST.
While no absolute date for the meeting of the envoys has been fixed, it has been assumed that the plenipotentiaries will be held in Washington about the first of August. FOR AN ARMISTICE.
St. Petersburg, July 2.—(4.15 a.m.)—Negotiations for an armistice between the armies of Russia and Japan. It can be definitely stated, are now in progress. The plenipotentiaries of the Russian government have not reached a stage where any further announcement can be made.
