WINNIPEG. July 4.—Crop conditions thruout the Canadian prairie west are ideal. The rains in Manitoba and eastern Saskatchewan would assist materially in bringing the crop forward. The latest report from the statistics branch of the department of agriculture says: "Present warm spell following showers weather has rapidly advanced growth of crops in Saskatchewan. The Orange Order Gives Strong Opposition

Special to The Sunday World.

WINNIPEG, July 4.—Sir R. P. Roblin, after fourteen years of undisputed power, is up against the fight of his life. It is Roblin against the field, No one talks of the "government" or of Mr. T. C. Norris, who happens to be the leader of the opposition. It is Roblin we hear about, Roblin who is the issue, Roblin who is good or bad. The provincial election, to be held next Saturday, will be a vote of confidence or want of confidence in the provincial prime minister. Both sides are confident and appear to have plenty of money. Where the Liberals are getting theirs is a matter of speculation. There are the usual protests about fraudulent naturalization, bogus registration, and other iniquities, said to have been perpetrated by the party in power, but so far as can be observed the Roblin government has refrained teen years of power. the Roblin government has refrained Roblin's Strength. from any high-handed measures, being anxious to cultivate public opinion. Michael Austani, who first ddescribed himself as Mike Murphy, told the police he was asleep in the room shared by Caron and himself, when he was blown from bed by the terrific explosion. STEAK FLORENTINE.

Select a good cut of sirloin, wipe and trim as usual. In a fryling pan slowly try out four or five slices of fat salt pork until the pork is crisp and brown. Skim out the pieces and put aside. Add to the hot fat six onions quartered and sliced and cook very slowly for half an hour, by which time they should be quite tender and a deep yellow, but not really brown. Add one cupful and a half of thin strained tomato, season well with red pepper, also salt to taste, cover and simmer 30 minutes longer. Broil the steak as usual. Spread a thin layer of onions on a hot platter, on this arrange the steak. Sprinkle with the remainder of the onions, cover closely for three minutes, then send to the table.

CREAM OF CHESTNUTS.

Stew until tender one pint of blanched chestnuts, pound to a paste, adding one-half teaspoon of salt; stir this into two and a half pints of boiling milk; season with a pinch each of white pepper, nutmeg and grated lemon peel or one-half teaspoon of lemon extract, and if necessary a little more salt. One cup of cream whipped or plain may be added to the last.

CHERRY SALAD.

Lettuce, cherries, mayonnaise dressing, cherry juice and peanuts. Arrange crisp lettuce leaves on a flat salad dish. Scatter the cherries thru the leaves. Pour over a mayonnaise dressing, first adding one tablespoonful of cherry juice instead of vinegar. Then arrange a few cherries over the top. The cherries should be stoned and a peanut placed inside to keep the shape.

EMPRESS' VICTIM'S FUNERAL MONDAY.

Increase Weight The remains of Alfred Simper, one of the Empress of Ireland victims, recovered by divers from the submerged hull of the liner, were brought to Toronto on the 5.40 train on Saturday evening. The funeral takes place on Monday, from A. W. Miles' chapel, to Prospect Cemetery. Simper formerly lived on Bellwoods avenue. The body of his wife, who was drowned with him, has not yet been recovered. The trouble with most thin folks who wish to gain weight is that they insist on drugging their stomach or stuting it with greasy foods, rubbing on useless "flesh creams," or following some foolish physical culture stunt, while the real cause of thinness goes untouched. You cannot get fat until your digestive tract assimilates the food you eat.

Thanks to a remarkable new scientific.

Peerless British and American Navigators Ready for Flight

The good ship of the air, "America," in which Lieut. Cyril Porte (left) of the Royal British Navy, and George Hallett (right), the young American pupil at Glenn Curtiss' school, will attempt within a few days to cross the Atlantic Ocean, in her final tests on July 2nd, rose from the surface of Lake Keuka carrying a load of 2107 pounds. This made her total weight in the air well over 5000 pounds. Considering that the propellers were only making 1150 revolutions per minute, the speed of the America, carrying this heavy load, was remarkable.

Lieutenant Porte, who is in New York making final arrangements for his trans-Atlantic flight, said Saturday that he expected to start on his perilous journey about July 28. Lieutenant Porte had hoped to get away earlier, but the addition of hydroplane boards to the America and the suspension of work on the flying boat at Hammondsport until Monday resulted in his change of plans.

In the next 350 miles of the flying path there is an average of foggy days beginning at 40 per cent. and gradually declining to 10 per cent. In August the densest fog area has been reduced on the avarage to sixty miles in diameter, with 40 or 45 per cent. of foggy days. The reduction is ascribed to the disappearance of much of the floating ice from the ocean's surface.

They declare that the suit is really one which will establish a precedent and which will fix the exact standing of the French merchants' trade with customers who are traveling or returning to the United States. Naturally the Paris press sides with French exporters, and very indignant comments are made on the high-handed methods of the American treasury department's commercial spies in Europe.

Gifford Juryman Remembers Tragic Failure of Circumstantial Evidence

(Special to The Sunday World.)
ALBANY, N.Y., July 4.—The jury in the case of wealthy young Malcolm Gifford, jr., charged with the murder of Frank J. Clute, an Albany chauffeur, late this afternoon stood seven for conviction of murder in the second degree and five for acquittal. The jury at that time was deadlocked, with apparently no possible chance of agreement. Actime was deadlocked, with apparently no possible chance of agreement. According to a report from the jury room, one of the twelve men declared that he would not vote for a verdict of guilty against Gifford if he were locked up for the next sixteen months. He recalled the hanging of a man named Durant in San Francisco on Jan. 7, 1898, for the murder of two young women chofr singers in a church beifry. Durant was the organist of the church, and strong circumstantial evidence and strong circumstantial evidence pointed toward him, as he was seen to enter the church at about the same time as the two singers. He left a short time later, but the two young women were never seen alive again Durant was hanged with a declaration of innocence on his lips. Two years later the pastor of the church on his deathbed confessed to murdering the two young women after he had out-raged one of them. For this reason the juror, it is said declared he would not vote to convict Gifford on the evidence that was presented by District Attorney Alexander

If you pay $5,000, you can't buy smarter appearance or more "up to the min-ute" design. You can buy more wheel base—but with it you must accept the greater cost of upkeep.

AMERICAN GIRL IS ENGAGED TO ROMAN PRINCE

The announcement has also caused a number of young noblemen to cease visiting the Grand Hotel, where Miss Stallo has been staying, and leave for the Riviera, owing to sudden alleged at tacks of "illness." When Miss Stallo arrived at the hotel with the Duchess Torlonia as her chaperone, nobody suspected her hand was already pledged to the young son of the comnander of the Papal Noble Guards. Prince Carlo called, as did many er club bachelors of the fashionable fox hunting club, and all wooed the American girl with equal favor and warmth. It was particularly noticed that Miss Stallo was so cordial to all that nobody could accuse her of showing any particular favor to Prince Rospigloisi. CHICAGO'S CURSE WARNS THE HEIGHT LIMIT THEORISTS

LEAVE IT TO LAW OF SUPPLY AND DEMAND

The fight to protect the property wners of New York from the attempt to limit the height of buildings is atand any attempt to permanently hold down the height of skyscrapers here be bitterly fought by property-ers. Therefore, the following con-tion from Mayor Harrison of Chi-to the New York fight should interest:

be of interest:

"I am utterly opposed to any attempt on the part of grown-up cities to regulate and limit the height and bulk of buildings. Such enterprise might well be manifested when the plans for a city are in the making, but I think it unjust, and unfair to make regulations limiting the height of buildings when people have been allowed for years past to build without restrictions of this sort.

"There is neither reason nor common sense in telling capitalists or corporations that they cannot build above a certain height when there is a structure on the adjoining property that is much higher. There is such a regulation in Chicago, but I do not believe in it. I feel that such things should be left to the law of supply and demand.

"On the other hand I feel that

"On the other hand, I feel that son

"On the other hand, I feel that some restraint must of necessity be put upon the location of trades and industries. Otherwise residence districts might easily be subject to destruction. I think that business should not be established in a residence neighborhood without the consent of that neighborhood and the frontage consent of adjoining property holders.

Chicago's Experience.

"In Chicago we have no zones, but business centres have sprung up in different parts of the city. There is the down-town district, the Wilson avenue business district, another in Hyde Park, another at Sixty-fourth and Cottage Grove avenue, and others elsewhere.

"These centres spring up in response to the law of supply and demand. They do not happen in response to waves of civic sentiment fostered by uplift associations. Owners of the property are resigned to the changes when they come because business property brings a higher revenue than residence property.

"Chicago has had epidemics of the

for such enterprise that has been discovered there.

Progress in a Straightjacket.

"In a general way every city has its business centres, its residence districts, its tenement and its manufacturing districts. There are tidal waves of progress that do rather freakish things sometimes, but an attempt to bend the growth of a city into certain defined lines regardless of what the future may hold in store for the community, or what the owners of the property may desire, would seem to be placing progress in a straitjacket. We did that in Chicago some years ago, and now we are cursed with a grotesque look that confines the activities of the city proper as rigidly within its confines as if its body were bound by bands of steel. for such enterprise that has been dis-bands of steel. City builders and promoters of plans for cities should be more concerned with the future than the present. Pretty ideas are often most impracticable, and when caught from the crest of a wave of temporary enthusiasm are apt to prove very embarrassing to those who have to solve the problems created by them.

The Chicago loop district is a shining example of this sort of thing, and men fired with ambition to be city builders might well look upon the curse of Chicago and pause before they give free rein to their theories."

SAFETY FIRST NOW RULE IN FOGGY WEATHER

Determined measures are now being taken by lake vessel owners to reduce to a minimum collison in fog, and to insure a strict observance of the pilot rules by the masters. The time is physcological in which to make such measures effective as the general public has become quite thoroly aroused on the subject. Several fine ships have recently collided in fog in various parts of the world, and many lives have been lost. One vessel has been lost on the lakes thru collison in fog, tho fortunately no lives were sacrificed. Vessel owners realize that the danger must be eliminated as far as possible from lake navigation, and it can only be accomplished by strict compliance with the pilot rules. While the bridge of the modern steamer is crowded with appliances for the swift control of the ship the navigator stands in respect to fog where he has always stood—helpless as to the direction of sound or the bearing of any object. The cnly safeguard in fog is cautious navigation and the adoption of separate courses for ships going in opposite directions.

This is precisely the thing that the Lake Carriers' Association is seeking to achieve on the lakes, and if its example means anything it will eventually accomplish it. Atmospheric conditions on the lakes are such that a on the lakes are such that

Masters Must Obey.

There is not a master employed on a Lake Carriers' vessel who does not thoroly understand that separate courses are to be followed on the lakes, and yet a recent letter received by the Pittsburgh Steamship Co., from one of its masters would seem to indicate that there are a considerable number of offenders, the he does not state who the offenders are. In his etter he says:

"I have given a great deal of thought to Safety First, and steering the outside and inside courses is cer-tainly along that line for everyone in the sailing business. It seems to me that it will cost many lives and a lot of property before we can get the captains in line, and I think it is time something was done.

"When one talks to a captain that does not run the outside and inside courses, the chief argument he gives us is 'I don't want our office to tell me how I shall steer my boat.' Anyone will have to admit one cannot do much with him by talking. When one standpoint it is time to act."

H. Coulby, president of the company, ord. immediately sent a copy of this letter to all of his captains, and made seto all of his captains, and made several straight-from-the-shoulder comments on it. There can be no mistaking his meaning in relation to the vessels of his own fleet. He has told his masters that if he finds any violation of the rule, even tho the ship may not meet with disaster, that he shall feel it his duty to take such action, with reference to the navigating officer, as tho there had been a serious collision. That ought to carry serious collision. That ought to carry its meaning home to every one. "I have many times heard that the statement has been made," said Mr. Coulby, "that the master does not want the office to tell him how he shall pilot his ship." Men making these statements do not seem to realize that there is a responsibility upon the management to see that the men in charge of their ships obey the law; and any manager having knowledge of his captains willfully violating the law, such as running his ship in full speed in the fog, is in my judgment just as vulnerable to the most severe criticism as is the master himself.

On the other hand, a master who thru great skill got his boat safely out of harbor thru obstacles, was roundly rebuked by the company because the element of chance entered into the maceuver, and he was most emphatically told never to attempt such a thing again. That is the policy which is making for safe navigation on the lakes.

The Monetary Times, Which Speaks With Authority, Declares Canadian Property is Good Investment

PLENTY OF SOUND BUSINESS TO BE DONE

Trade Depressions and Other Disasters Cannot Be Blamed to Real Estate, But to Unscrupulous Speculators

Canadian real estate often is blamed or trade depression, money losses, mining stocks of oil shares or other things sometimes enter disfavor—because unscrippiousness and simplicity become mixed with honest snterprise and endeavor. Real estate in Canada is an excellent investment if the man who sells it intends to give good value for money received and if the man who sells it intends to give good value for money received and if the man who sells it intends to give good value for money received and if the man who sells it intends to give good value for money received and if the man who sells it intends to give good value for money received and if the man who sells it intends to give good value for money of the man who sells it intends to give good value for many begons to the basic facts still remain. The population of Saskatchewan, as an example of growth has increased five-fold in ten years, which is preportionately the largest immigration problem ever handled by any country.

A Big National Task.

The hundreds of thousands of new-comers who arrive in Canada every year must have houses and gardens, sowers and sidewalks, paved streets, fire protection, proper civic govern-ment, rallroads, and so on. They must be fed and clothed and supplied with all the necessities which modern life demands. For this there must be cultivated and and factories. The spreat distances of the country require the extabilishment of safotories in many sections and of warehouses at numerous, points. Giving the newcomer agained and the factories of the country require the extabilishment of safotories in many sections and of warehouses at numerous of the country require the extabilishment of safotories in many sections. The growth of other wise than affect hand values.

It will be of intrices to examine the record of growth in Canada in yearing and the proportionately and the processing the processed of gather clients, selling the minory depth of the man warning and proportion for the proportion of the p task, and one which cannot do otherwise than affect land values.

It will be of interest to examine the record of growth in Canada in various directions. The growth of Toronto, for instance, is probably unequalled on the American continent.
When the city was incorporated in 1634 its population was 9254. Between 1909 and 1911, there occurred an increase of 81 per cent, and since then there has been a gain of more than 35,000 every year. The housing of so many new arrivals in one city is partly responsible for such a fact that in 1913 approximately 40,000 real estate transactions were negotiated in Toronto and its suburbs. The area of the city is 30 square miles compared with Buffalo's 42 square miles, Cleveland's 46 and Detroit's 49 square miles. The plans of Toronto Harbor Commission, providing for the reclamation of 644 acres of marsh land, will also provide for a large industrial erge. Growing sites for 1000 new factories. The benefits of such an extensive scheme will be realized easily. Such development is proceeding in many parts of Canada.

Shacks Must Come Down.

The rapidity of development in the cities has led to a remarkable combination of ancient and modern buildings. The modest frame office frequently stands beside the high fireproof skysoraper. It means that there is considerable rebuilding to be done. This fact was noted by a London stockbroker, who, upon his return to England from Canada, said. "A vast amount of capital will be required practically to rebuild Montreal. The principal streets are occupied by a medley of shacks and fine buildings the former in large preponderance. The shacks must eventually come down."

The annual report for 1913 of Mr. C. F. Roland, industrial commissioner of Winnipes, gave some specific instances illustrating the increase of values of down-town property in that city in ten years. The following may be cited as typical examples:

Property.

The many parts of Canada are strong foundation; where outside capital flows unceasingly; where, in a word, growth is the order of the day, there must be a natural increase in land values. The recognition of this fact has been the basis of speculation. The unfavorable factor is a foating army of land sharks, discounting that fact again and again, until the holders of hundreds of acres and thousands of so-called city and thousa Price frontage ft., 1902 Approx. price frontage ft., 1913

Mortgage Payments Kept.

As a side light on real estate as an investment, it is interesting to know that 73 loan and trust companies and building societies in Canada in 1912 south-east corner Portage avenue and Garry street (two blocks west from Main street).....$450 $4,500 and in default on mortgage was legal than $2,000.000. The amount overdue and in default on mortgage was legal than $2,000.000.—a striking record. All the Canadian loan companies, thruout the sharp depression and stringency of 1913, reported that payments of interest and principal were being well met.

Stocks Are Susceptible to Influences—Credit is a Delicate Mechanism—American Capital is Coming— Easier Money and Abundant Harvest Ensure Greater Business

By Geo. H. K. Mitford.

STOCKS are susceptible to influences. It has always been so. Just at this time, it is perhaps more pronounced. In fact for the past few months it has taken little to sway the market one way or the other. There has been little indeed to attract prices upward. There has been considerable to attract downwards.

In the hustle of things, when progress is forging ahead, when industries are active and demand exceeds the supply, it takes a stronger influence to work adversely with the inarket than when the reverse is the case, it takes a stronger influence to raily a market and even a minor influence will have strong effect in contributing to its weakness. TOCKS are susceptible to England, that Canada had disposed of too many securities in New York already, and was neglecting the overseas market. This is evidence that the situation is being felt there.

They can see it better than we. We are too close to get a clear view. Nevertheless it is a fact that capital in unlimited amounts is ready for investment in Canadian municipalities and industrial enterprises. I venture to say that when this inflow is once started in the larger figures it will be realized to a great extent; that the longer the present condition exists to the south, the more likelihood there is of its coming in quantities; that it will be but the beginning of a new business era; that personal value will be recognized as never before.

This seems to touch the situation pretty well. Whether men wish to believe it or not, the fact remains that goods are being left on the merchant's shelves. As a consequence he is unable to meet his obligations.

Commodities are declining in price and the "high cost of living" seems to be receding. Everything points to a satisfactory solution of the difficulties which have hampered progress and the adjustment will undoubtedly open up a path whereby even greater achievement will undoubtedly open up a path whereby even greater achievement will be possible.

SUMMER FRUITS AND VEGETABLES AT THE CIVIC MARKETS

Prices Are Kept Up, Altho the Supply is Above the Normal—Flowers Are Fine

St. Lawrence Market did a thriving business Saturday morning, when the best farm products from local points were placed on the market at reasonable prices. Fresh vegetables were at their best and fruits of all kinds were very plentiful.

In the flower stalls, roses sold for 25c a dozen, as did snapdragons and carnations. Orchids were 50c a bloom, or $3.50 for a large pot. Lovely fresh pansies were 10c a bunch, sweet peas 25c, Sweet Williams and Canterbury bells 16c a dozen. Well assorted hanging baskets were $1 each.

Fresh fruits were very plentiful and the jovial proprietor of the popular stall was kept busy getting rid of his baskets of exceptionally fine cherries at $1 and $2 per basket. He was offering large ripe plums for $5c and $60c.

25c and 25c a pound and cream 45c a quart.

In the vegetable stalls the same atmosphere of plentifulness prevaded. Carrots, I unions and beets were three bunches for 10c, radishes, lettuce and parsley two for 5c, and rhubarb six for 25c. Cauliflower were 20c a head, cabbages 10c and cucumbers 5c. Beans were 15c a small measure and peas 35c for a half peck. Ducks sold for 90c each and chickens 30c. Live stock was lacking. The old lady's grandson said the weather was too hot to bother with bunnies and white mice.

MARKET MAINTAINED STEADY UNDERTONE

LONDON, July 4.—Money and discount rates were easy. The stock market influenced by cheap money and more favorable Mexican news maintained a steady undertone. Consols rose a quarter of a point despite the announcement of the Indian Rallway loan. Home Ralls, Kaf irs and Diamonds held steady, while Mexican Ralls closed from one to three points higher, but Brazilians were easy. Trading in American securities was light with a good tone. The closing was quiet with prices ranging from unchanged to % higher than yesterday's New York closing.

ACTIVITY LACKING IN IRON AND STEEL

Six Months' Record Show Business Below Standard in U. S.—Better Now.

Developments in the iron and steel industry during the past six months have been, to say the least, disappointing. Except for a brief period of semi-activity at the beginning of the year business has been exceedingly slack and mills, running at a rate far below capacity, have been the volume of order, on their books gradually dwindling. On Dec. 31, last, the United States Steel Corporation reported unfilled orders of 4,282,108 tons, and this had been reduced to 3,998,260 tons on May 31.

much more than half of the total placed in the same period of 1913.

Any attempt to compare the rail figures would be misleading as a large proportion of 1913 rail orders was placed in the fall of 1912, whereas the only important rail order for 1914 delivery placed before the year opened was that of the New York Central which was distributed to the mills, in the last week of December.

Most trade authorities agree that, altho there has been some betterments in conditions in June, orders running approximately 50 per cent. higher than in May, no real activity in the trade is to be looked for before the earlier fall months.

opened with a prophecy that it would be the most brilliant London had seen for a decade, and the west-end prepared for record business. But it has not materialized.

Many circumstances, each comparatively insignificant by itself, have contributed to this result. During the last few months the trade boom reached it zenith, and is now certainly on the decline; the outbreak of hostilities between Mexico and the United States delayed the annual invasion of the Americans; and the uncertainty of the political situation is having a tightening effect upon the national pursestrings. People with money are adopting a policy of "wait and see," and the solden visions of the west-end have vanished into space.

RUDYARD KIPLING NO M.P.

LONDON. July 4.—Mr. Rudyard Kipling has declined an invitation by the Bordesley Liberal Unionist Association to contest the constituency at the next election on the retirement of Mr. Jesse Collings.

FOR SUNDAY NEWSPAPERS

H. W. Thornton the American general manager of the Great Eastern Railway of England, has added two Sunday newspaper trains to the schedule of his company. These trains enable towns in the east of England to get their breakfast newspapers at how things are run. The management of the T. B. D. Camp invites inspection and are arranging for parents' visiting days this year. The pleasant trip on the radial line and a day in camp with sonny should be much appreciated by many of the fathers and mothers. Special rates are being arranged for over the radial and a prospany of field sports and squatics will be put on at camp visiting days. On Saturday, July 18, the first visitors' day, the camp regatta will be held visitors' day, Saturday, July 26, an atherese fast time instead of promotions.

will be the feature.

The most popular feature with the boys at camp is the Supreme Order of the Camp Hat. Every camper, if he is a live wire, can join the order, the badge of which is a camp hat specially made by the order. Entry to the order is made on merit, the candioate being required to obtain twenty-five points in camp activities before being initiated. After having been admitted to the order it is necessary to keep hustling to win the various degrees, as an additional twenty-five points have to be won for each degree. As degrees are won the hat is emblazoned with the emblems thereof and the member is initiated in the most approved manner by willing campers who have already been thru it. The initiation ceremonies provide many an evening's fun round the camp fire. There is nothing more highly prized by the boys than this mystic camp hat. First year campers are distinguished by white hats. Boys in camp their second year become members of the blue company, their emblem, a blue camp hat, announcing to all that the boy under the blue hat is a veteran camper. The fellows who at the end of the camp can show a hat emblazoned with the four degrees of the order has reason to be proud, for before taking his fourth degree, and becoming a wise old owl, he has proved himself to be a camper in the true sense of the word. He has lived up to the standard of the degrees of the camp hat, which demand that a camper must wear the broad smile, be ready with the helping hand and taken all round must be a dead game. er must wear the broad smile, be ready with the helping hand and taken all round must be a dead game sport. That's the kind of fellow everyone likes to know and the only kind to go camping with.

A war canoe is being purchased by the combined clubs and will be shipped to camp. The boys are dreaming of canoe trips—fifteen fellows in a war canoe decked out in camp regalia and club colors on a cruise over Lake Simcoe where once Champlain. with his escort of Indian braves was the first white man to make the trip in a war canoe.

A very representative meeting of boys from all parts of the city, interested in pet stock of various kinds, was held. After a discussion it was decided to organize a club under the name of Toronto Boys' Pet Stock Association, the chief interest centreing round rabbits and guinea pigs. After electing officers the meeting adjourned till Friday. August 25. when a table show of English and Dutch rabbits and multi-colored guinea pigs will be held. Ribbons will be given as prizes. The officers elected were: Nelson Kelly, President; H. C. Low, Vice-President; Alfred Dawson, Secretary.

On account of the rain last Monday night the ball game between the Moss Park Farmers and the Poultry Association had to be postponed. It will be played off this coming Monday night.

To purchase a war cance for the use of all provinces of the T. B. D., a subscription list has been started to which every boy is invited to contribute. If every fellow gave one cent the cost would be covered but as it would take too long to collect from all, and as the cance is wanted for camp next week, the boys are invited to hustle in their nickels, dimes and quarters.

"Is your brother, cousin, or former schoolmate a peon in some distant region?" he asks in The London Morning Chronicle, and adds that "if you do not know, find out, and you may yet save him from a tragic end." OF MME. CAILLAUX

The method of capturing the white peons is thus detailed:

"But by what bait are these young men caught and ultimately drawn into the web of the unscrupulous exploiter of the tropics? The gaudy blankets, those pots, pans, and cutlasses which attract the simple Indians have their parallel in the seductive advertisements of the European and American capitals. Offers of high wages, rapid advancement coupled with oil and rubber 'booms,' are dangled before the eyes of youths who, pulsating for adventure, greedily respond. All unsuspecting, they sign away their freedem, never counting the cost of living and travel in countries where protective duties change the value of a sixpenny tin of salmon to half a crown, and a three-guinea suit of clothes to three times that sum. The history and accounts of certain of these young men have come into my possession; here is the story of onea Britisher.

YORK, THE COUNTY OF CONCRETE BRIDGES

Untried Methods of Construction Required, Just a Couple of Years Ago, Persistent Persuasion From Those Who Had Faith in the New Bridge Material

By David K. Billings FEW years ago, such a short time back that it seems but yesterday, engineers began phecy great things for concrete construction, Altho steel had hardly reached the pinnacle of its use for hig engineering feats, men came out and championed this new artificial stone as the new material which would revolutionize once again the work of engineers.

Huge buildings made of concrete were erected as expriments and then the bridge engineers began to investigate and apply the new method of construction to their work. While it cannot be said that Canada has led the world in this revolution against steel for bridge work, it has not lagged very far be-hind and of the whole Dominion the smallest district around Toronto. principally York county, has been the pioneer in testing the efficiency of concrete in the building of

A year or so ago the scientific papers of the world were full of descriptions of the concrete bridge over the Etobicoke river between York and Peel counties and the Middle Road. Not that this bridge is of a remarkable size, it has a span of only 79 feet, but because it was a ploneer and entered a field that engineers had feared to risk their reputation upon and counties their money, All Kinds of Bridges.

York county and the districts in the immediate vicinity of Toronto have samples of practically every kind of concrete bridge yet attempted. Commencing with the small concrete slabs used to span creeks under eighteen feet wide right up to the huge open spandrel arch bridge with beam approaches, which in all 476 feet long, has just been completed over the Credit river at Oakville, there is an almost unbroken string of bridges that include every intermediate size and style. Of the six open spandrel arch bridges in Canada three are in the vicinity of Toronto, while out of ten concrete truss bridges in the entire Deminion, five have been built in York. The advantages claimed for the concrete bridge over the steel bridge are many, and York county has been a pioneer in learning of these advantages. In many eases the price of a concrete bridge is less than that of a good steel bridge but it is in its permanency and lack of upkeep for paint ahat it has a certain claim to supreriority. A concrete bridge of good quality will improve with age, the concrete hardening as the years pass by, the life of a steel bridge on the other hand is limited to fifty years or thereabouts.

ditions that determine the 'ge to be used in spanor ravine are many, 'r must consider the s to work upon, the height of the bridge and the width of the span. In nearly every case the roadway will be in constant use. It is demanded at a certain level without gradients and the bridge must be designed to provide that. It is not in every instance that a concrete bridge can be used, but in nine cases out of ten it has been found possible to adapt or invent a suitable model.

crete bridges is the ordinary earth filled arch. This bridge may be used to span almost any river, altho the largest in Canada at present has a span of only 116 feet. It is only when the arch is not too high, however, that this earth filled approach, such as that over the Harbord street ravine is successful, as the enormous weight of the earth filling must be allowed for in building the arch.

Very few of these bridges have been erected in York county, the open spandrel taking their place in the favor of local engineers. The concrete truss bridge is the standby for spanning rivers where the clearance over the water is not sufficient to allow of an arch. The truss bridge is really an arch with a suspended floor. The beam bridge of which that on Bathurst street is an example is another style used for medium length spans and is one of the most omical bridges known to the bridge engineer, for use over fairly Breaking Down Prejudice.

Frank Barber, one of the best known bridge engineers in Toronto, who has perhaps done more to champion the concrete bridge than any other local engineer, tells some interesting incidents of the fight that has been necessary to break down the prejudice in favor of steel bridges. In the case of the Middle Roads bridge it was many moons before the township council could be persuaded to sink the money of the township in what many considered a white elephant and it was not until the engineer had taken a personal liability that they would consent to the erection of the bridge.

"There are no others like it, they will crack and possibly collapse," they argued. But cold calculations finally won out and so successful has the truss bridges been that not a single bridge has a sign of a crack in it while the various township and county councils after inspecting existing specimens are demanding that their bridges be of this design, Similar barriers were met when it was suggested that the new Oakville bridge should be built of this material. The councillors naturally were wary of experimenting with $60,000 of the counties money. The Wadsworth bridge over the Humber at Weston was completed and then they ordered a bridge of the same kind.

Simcoe county, one of the largest and wealthiest counties in Ontario, has but two concrete county bridges in its entire area. The first bridge of the kind erected several years ago settled and since then with that uckless example before them the councillors have not had the courage

"It is not any harder for us to experiment than others," said Mr. Barber, "but the pioneer work that must - be done to gain the confidence of the public in these bridges is necessarily hard on account of the large sums involved in the erection of the Concrete Arches

Of the World.

The concrete bridges near Toronto, while they are not eclipsed by any bridges of their kind in Canada, do not yet compare with those erected in foreign lands. The longest concrete bridges in the world at present are the following: Span, Rise,

Capturing Canadian and British Markets

An Ambassador of Business Tells What the Briton Must Do to Land Any Trade, and What Canada Must Cultivate to Keep Commerce Moving Along Smoothly.

By Ralph W. Bell.

HERE are ambassadors in every dountry; good ambassadors and bad and indifferent, but there is only one ambassador of international business, and he, to use a colloquialism, is a "cracker-jack." George Henry Scragg is his name;

he has been in Toronto lately, and he was also here before. He is a young man, an amazingly young man, considering the fact that he is the special envoy of a number of English firms, which seek to learn how to do trade with the United States, and is also charged by The London Daily Express to visit the land of the maple and make a thoro investigation and report with regard to the Canadian market for British products.

Mr. Scragg is an American. He is a man with ideas, and that is the interest and enthusiasm in the commercial world. He had a new idea in business efficiency. Mr. Scragg thought that some firms were not getting the business in the foreign market that they ought to get, others, he knew, contemplated a campaign in the foreign sales market, but they wanted information first, So George Henry Scragg decided that he was going to act as a business expect, a consulting expert, for such firms as these, and before he started this business he educated himself thoroly by spending nearly six years in studying trade conditions in South America, France and in England. There are not many Americans who have been able to adapt themselves and their native hustle to British commercial ideas, but Mr. Scragg

It might be thought that such an extremely successful young man as Mr. Scragg might show that he was aware of such success to an undue extent. Not a blt of it. George Henry Scragg is one of the quietest and most unassuming young men that ever existed. He is fair of hair, and blue of eye, of medium stature, and with an expression at once se young and so pleasant that the stranger would not think for a minreason that he has aroused so much | ute that he was meeting one of the smartest business men of the day until he had talked to Mr. Scragg for just about two minutes.

Scragg first came into the public eye in Great Britain, when he published the official program for the aeroplane flight all round England, three years ago. He got the concession for the official program from the Aero Club for fifty pounds, He did not offer them fifty pounds; he offered them a cup of that value. About a month before the flight British publishers awoke to the fact that there was big money in that program, and began to bid $25,000 and more for the concession. They were two months behind time, Scragg and his associates netted some $170,000 net profit on the deal. Three million copies of the program

In France Scragg defied an extremely powerful French advertising trust, and he won, The trust compelled obedience to its terms by an arrangement with the paper whereby advertisers who sought to get out of the way of the trust were refused space in the future, Before very long the advertising trust was suggesting terms of compromise,

It was after this that Scraes went back to England with the idea. he is carrying out today. But he was the conservatism of the Briton to contend with, for he was suggesting something startlingly new, and he was also aware of the fact that he was only 26 years old. So he made himself into a limited liability company, and hired as assistant and manager of his London office a man much older than himself. So the London business men got the idea that altho Scragg was young he had the sense to have older men around-Soon after Scragg got the editor of The London Dally Express, Ralph D. Blumenfeld, so much interested in his proposition that after half an hour's conversation Blumenfeld said; "Done, you're the man for me." Mr. Scrage has two distinct campaigns in hand at present, the Canadian campaign, for The Daily Express, and his own private campaign in the States. Before he left England he had received as many contracts as any man could be expected to handle from British firms who want to know how to get the American market. The writer will, however, confine himself to Mr. Scragg's ideas on the establishment of real trade relations between Canada and Great Britain, and

"Adaptability is the keynote success in the export trade," said

Mr. Scrage. It applies to Canadian and British alike. Both have different methods, and before the best of trade relations have been established the two must adapt thems lives the one to the other and the other to the one. Their trades must marry! The merchant who wants to sell his goods abroad must be sure in the first place that there is a real demand. If there is no demand, then he must be prepared to create a demand, and in a way agreeable to the temperament of those to whom he wishes to sell. Lots and lots of goods fail because they are not pushed properly. Others, for which there could be no possible profitable, demand have been forced on the market. As long as you are going after a market you might as well go after it right. It does not do for the American or Canadian salesman to think that any old thing will do for the British market, and that the methods over there are old-fashioned and slow, and have no push. I know better than that. The British merchant is not a fool, for if he were he would not have gained the prsition he holds. The whole thing is that his methods are different. They may be better methods, or they may

Can You Put a Price Tage On a Baby?

> W HAT is a baby worth? The hard-working father of a half-dozen husky, hearty and non-producing youngsters says: "I wouldn't take a million dollars any one of them. And-I ouldn't give a copper cent for another." Yet when the other joins the brood it instantly receives the million-dollar rating.

The weary and unhappy mother leaves her baby in the hallway, willing to take the chance of it having the good fortune to find a home. The kidnapper puts a fluctuating price on the heads of his victims. He rates them according to the uttermost farthing possessed or possible of being obtained by the parents. And he never overvalues the

Every baby that is born becomes at once a more or less valuable asset. There is a scientific price mark on it.

The economic value of a baby has been made a recent subject of international importance. It has occupied the attention of philanthropists, educators, investigators, civic reformers, writers and humanitarians. Putting a money value on human life is one of the economic results of thought and research.

With so many human beings in the world apparently fighting for food to live, with all the talk about the needy and unemployed and the means and measures suggested for changing the congested conditions of the great cities, one might gain the general idea that life is mighty cheap and there is no special sense in trying to conserve it.

But conservation is a popular, potent word in the work of the modern world. "We are trying to conserve everything from babies to forestsa sort of a "Babes and the Wood" conservation policy.

The 100 Per Cent. Baby.

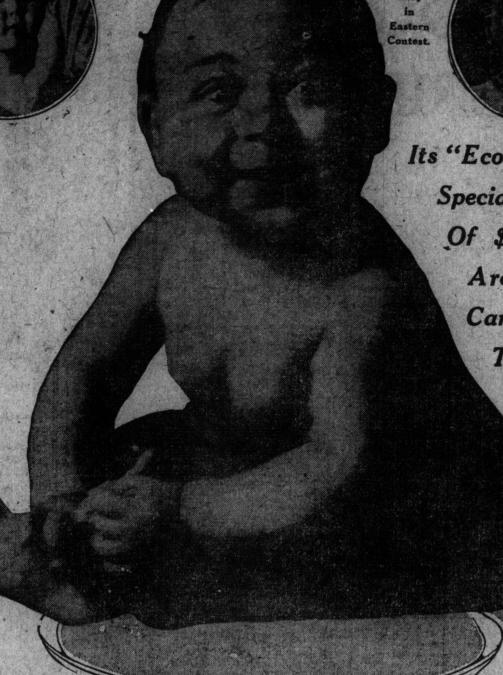

Where, a dozen years ago, families simply knew that they had a new baby, now they are trying to make it a 100 per cent. baby. They want it to beat last year's baby, who was only a 90 per cent. baby, altho it was 10 points nearer perfection than its brother of the year before.

In an article written in one of the magazines, the writer emphasizes the increased valuation of bables by saying that, a dozen years ago, he asked a woman in one of the lower districts of Chicago where she got the pallid and feeble baby that was wailing its sickly life away in squalld surroundings, and which she acknowledged was not her own. "I bought him," she said in a matter of fact voice. "I gave twenty-five cents and a canary bird for him. I could have had a dark baby for nothing, but I wanted a blonde." It has been computed by one au-

Its Honor, THE BABY, was never before so important in the history of the human race. It is the subject of more planning and experimenting than any other one thing in the world. babies as if they were cattle. It is repugnant to me, is often heard from some mother. But there is another side to the question. The baby show is an example. The babies on ex-hibition show mothers and mothers-to-be the results that can be obtained thru taking care of their baby. They see the added pleasure of a healthy baby over a puny, sickly whimpering child that needs much more atention and gives not a frac-tion of the satisfaction.

The Toronto Baby Show Not a Commercial Step.

"We have come to the extreme limit of commercialism. The penduium has swung to the limit and now must recede. We should not feed a baby because it is worth a hundred dollars or because it will be worth a thousand dollars when it grows up; that it is the wrong principle, and the sooner we get away from it the better. The better that the state of the st better. The baby show is not a step toward the commercialization of the baby. If it was I would have nothing to do with it. It is a step in the opposite direction, and as such I hope that the next show will eclipse all others as a living example of prize baby culture."

But using this sordid language again, bables are growing dearer in all parts of the country.

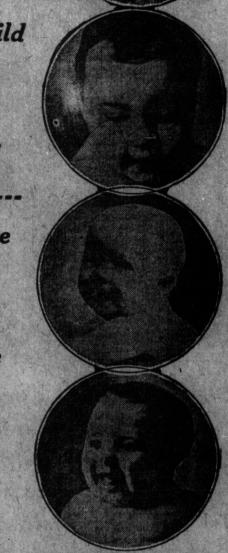

It is not unusual to have childless rich persons offer big prizes for babies. Five or ten thousand dollars babies. Five or ten thousand dollars is not an exorbitant figure, and, even at that, the baby coveted is not always obtainable, altho it may be a struggle for the parents to feed it. There is a real traffic in babies going on. A thousand dollars offered for an orphaned baby is not a figure that excites the authorities and the supply never quite reaches the demand.

baby depends somewhat upon where he lives.

Fity cents a day is regarded as the actual average cost of caring for a child 18 months old. In some places this has been raised to 59 cents. In Toronto it has been computed that it costs $150 a year to support a year-old child. Another economist gives the figure of $140.

The superintendent of the Hebrew Orphan Asylum of New York City says of the 1200 or more children under his care it costs nearly $190 a year per child. The verdicts rendered in the different courts, when a suit is heard regarding the death or maining of a child, prove that children are valuable as economic propositions.

A few months ago in Washington, D.C., in connection with a fund raising campaign for the Florence Crittenton Home, a wealthy man offered to give the institution $250,000 for a certain baby that was exhibited. There was flat refusal on the part of the mother to give up her baby. The Home was the only real home she had ever known, and she is reported to have said, that before she had the baby, she would willingly have given her own life to aid the work—but the BABY WAS BEYOND PRICE!

A Suggestion In Eugenics

By ELBERT HUBBARD.

S EVERAL places have adopted laws providing for a physical examination of the prospective bridegroom, when he applies for his license.

Getting a certificate of health, however, is a rather uncanny affair. It is suggestive, to say the least. It implies that somebody cannot pass. Altogether, it involves a degree of publicity that is rather embarrassing for quite a number of people con-

Nature works by indirection. She gets the thing she wants by going after something else.

In this matter of eugenies, let us take a lesson from

My suggestion is that, before the marriage coremeny is performed, let one little requirement be observed; that is, have the bridegroom present to the bride an insurance policy on his life. The amount he can fix himself, but the amount will mirror his financial status—say, for a minimum of One Thousand Dollars. A life insurance policy implies the health of the individual, and all examiners will understand and appreciate the importance, as well as the import, of the bridegroom's

An insurance pelicy puts the whole thing on a gracious, graceful and generous ground, An insurance policy is a very valuable gift; and, when it comes as a love token, it will be especially prized.

If a woman gives her life into the keeping of a man, why should not the man, in return, give her at least a life insurance policy?

Not only is a life insurance policy a guaranty of health, but it is also a guaranty of something quite as important,

O BE ABLE to secure a life insurance policy is a privilege. Not every man can get one.

But in the past, anybody could get married (and can yet), who is able to pay a license fee of a dollar or so.

As for the clergyman, he can be stood off.

A life insurance policy is a certificate of character, a Certificate of health, a symbol of economic sufficiency and

It certainly cannot be regarded as a hardship for a state to require the bridegroom to present the bride a life insurance policy, because the real fact is that no man has insurance policy, because the real fact is that no man has any business to get married, taking upon himself the obligations that marriage involves, unless he has the ability to keep up his premiums.

Viewing the subject from every possible standpoint, it seems to relieve the embarrassment covering a very delicate proposition, It is graceful, gracious, generous and altogether in the line of common sense,

It puts the man on his good behavior. Not only must he be able to pass the examination, but he must have the money to pay for the first year's premium.

Just before marriage a man is generous, if he ever is in his life. The woman who expects her husband to take out a life insurance policy after they are wedded may find postponement and manana snoozing on the door step.

The post-nuptial agreement was nearly as bald a proposition as the suggested health certificate.

The life insurance policy softens down the angularities of both.

HAT the state has a right to fix the conditions under which marriage shall occur is freely admitted, and no honest or capable man would object to the insignificant tax involved, especially in view of the fact that the policy is worth the money.

Under these conditions its issuance would be not only a duty but a privilege.

You cannot very well pass around a certificate of

You cannot very well pass around a certificate of health at the supper table for the entire family to inspect. Neither would it look well on the piano among the other bridal presents. A life insurance policy, however, is often found among these presents. No one is ever shocked. Its lines are pleasant and all that it suggests is beautiful and Life insurance really after all is for the insured. He is the beneficiary. The fact that he is insured makes him a better citizen, and I believe a better husband and father.

ONLY THE GOOD SHOWS SURVIVE THE HEAT

Broadway Managers Still Believe in "Forcing" Shows to Get the Long Run Advertising—Can a Young Actor Retire? — Hammerstein Boosts the Movies de Lux.

NEW YORK, July 4.—Sweltering heat has gripped Broadway, but the few shows that survive the spring are not dying the their audiences wilt.

In a way, summer runs mean mighty little, save to the producers, who keep their shows on as long as they can for "long run" advertising, but still they are a certain test. Even the hardiest gambler will not play a show to staggering losses week after week. A show that survives the summer on Broadway may not be a world beater, but it must possess more than average merit.

Oscar Hammerstein has almost decided," for nobody knows, Oscar himself included, what Oscar Hammerstein will do tomorrow. A thirty thousand dollar organ is to be installed and "movies de lux" are to come to stay.

More Tiring Joys

The old roller skating rink that clung so long to Broadway, just below Fifty-third street, expired some months ago under the remodelling hands of the architects and blossomed out the other night as "The Broadway Rose Garden Theatre and Danse de Pierrette." You can dine, see motion pictures from outside critics has always tures and dance all at the same time.

Exactly what value a long New York run possesses in increased returns from outside critics has always been a matter for argument. I have heard three of our biggest managers declare their firm belief that, in most cases, the forced running of a show does not repay the cost, but this year every one of those three are forcing shows on torrid Broadway. Were they, honestly expressing their opinions, or cannot they evade the "long run, superstitions."

Evry authors' contract reads so much of the gross, "as shown by the box-office statement," that is the humber one line. Such statements are printed forms with the seats listed at the house prices, and not one word reads the house prices, and not one word reads to the list figures. In other words, the list figures. In other words, the manager receives two dollars and twenty-five cents for a two dollar seet, and only pays the author his royalty on two dollars. That is what makes every author in the land so grouchy these hot mornings. It has long been a sore in his financial fiesh, and, now that Manners has got away, with the every author is hurrying back to town to have a personal interview. He added the organ.

For the balance of the week the each of the been of the land sore of the statements are printed forms with the seats have been sold to ticke "Fatse Magistrate," and it out-Raffies "Raffies." Growing plants around the edges of the mezzanine floor help out the illusion, and one more amusement for "the tired business man" has come to worry him.

It takes an iron-clad constitution, now-a-days, to live thru the terrible strain of going somewhere every night, while Ma and the girls are in the country. The old cry "New York is the best summer resort in the world." certainly was not invented by a local purchased business man with a conscience.

WHAT "STOCK" AS A TRAINING SCHOOL

diss frances Slosson, who plays the role of the "wise" stenographer, Catherine Wiggins, in "Help Wanted." herself a graduate from the University of Stock, comes forward to voice her opinion concerning stock companies and stock training.

"The whole question of stock training," says Miss Slosson, "seems to me to rest entirely with the calibre of the organization in which one may get that training. Probably the most remarkable acting companies in America were the old Augustin Daly Stock Company and the Empire Stock Company. In those days the word 'stock' meant something. It must have meant a great deal, for a majority of the foremost stars of the last twenty years can be traced to one of those two organizations.

The Seattle engagement was concluded on Saturday, July 4, a legal holiday, and with his pockets filled with money in denominations of $500 and $1,000 bills, the manager found himself in the predicament of being unable to pay hotel or other bills because no merchant could make the change and the banks were all closed. Finally, according to Mr. Williams, he gathered around him Herbert Kelcey, W. J. Le Moyne, Nelson Wheatcroft, Mr. Walcott and the other members of the company, and had to borrow from each a sufficient sum to meet the bills and get the organization to the next town.

Blames Actor-Manager's System for Drama's "Decadence" in England Looks as if Broadway Was Being Moved Bodily to London This Fall.

LONDON, July 4.—Far from being a failure the American invasion of the London theatrical world is just beginning, according to William A. Brady in an interview. He added the piquant criticism that the cherished English institution of actor-manager was chiefly to blame for the present decadence of the drama here, which had made the American invasion possible. Incidentally Mr. Brady, who is staying at the Savoy, drew a deadly parallel to prove his thesis, He said:

"The fall opening will see practically all American plays? We are going to move the theatrical map over bodily from Broadway. Here is what London theatregoers will see next fall:
"The Yellow Ticket," The Misleading Lady, "Too Many Crooks." Under Cover, 'Seven Keys to Baldpate,' "Things That Count,' 'A Pair of Sixes,' Sam Bernard in another musical comedy, practically the Winter Garden show; 'The Girl from Rector's,' also a play by Walter Hackett a: the Prince of Wales'; Sir Charles Wyndham in 'Nobody's Widow,' also a dramatization of 'Tante' at the Haymarket Theatre.

It was Mr. Frohman's habit to spend his vocation by touring each year, but Mr. Warner, the business manager of the company, had been called to San Francisco and Mr. Frohman was ieft in charge of the management and all of its minor details. During the summer months, besides the resular photo-play service to which its patrons have been accustomed, this theatre will show some of the most celebrated feature films produced on both sides of the water. Capturing Canadian and British Markets

the Canadian markets because they have failed to adapt themselves to conditions. They ship their goods over here in pounds, shillings and pence, and expect the man on this side to figure it out in dollars and cents. The American salesman offers all the advantages purely and simply because of this lack of adaptation, not because the goods are any better, even if they are as good. I believe that in many lines good. I believe that in many lines British goods are the best the world can produce. English firms should send men over here to study conditions. Some of them have sent a man over," added Mr. Scragg, smiling; "if they were to do this in all cases when they wish to get a Canadian market then such absurdities as the following would not occur: A big English firm decided to sell collars in Canada by post. Their catalog was in English money, and the prospective buyer saw that the collars cost something like five shillings a dozen. After he had looked up the rate of exchange, which he was sure to have foraotten if he ever knew it, he saw that this worked out at little less than he had to pay out here. But the unfortunate man did not know what duty he had to pay on collars, and he did had to pay on collars, and he did not know how much the postage would cost him, and finally he real-ized that he would have to wait about thirty days to get the collars! Can you blame him for buying in Canada?

Mr. Scragg's next point was one to which hardly too much attention can be paid by the Canadian manufacturer. "Canadian manufacturers should look to their export trade to prevent hard times from hitting them," said Mr. Scragg earnestly. "Canada has growing pains. She is a country where periods of extreme prosperity must not and cannot be taken as an annual event. This year looks as the it were to be a hard year. With a good export trade Canadians need not fear it. They can go on manufacturing goods, employing hands, sure in the knowledge that their foreign business will take all the stock that they can put out. Canada has preferential markets in France, and her goods are welcomed in England before American goods would be. Establish really healthy export trade and the manufacturer can almost afford to snap his fingers at a bad year in other respects, and the whole of his staff of employes can snap their fingers with him!"

"As far as advertising in the start of employes can snap their fingers with him!"

"As far as advertising in the papers is concerned, it is a case for the man on the spot. He knows what you can only guess at. Another thing that the Canadian manufacturer should remember is that the Canadian public, like the American public, is one which reads advertisements. The British public is only just beginning to read them British ads are not, on the whole, so attractive as those on this side of the water, but it by no means follows that what is successful advertisement in this country will be successful in England. There was an example of that which shows also that if a British and a Canadian trade name are very nearly similar, and the two articles are entirely different, then the "attacking" firm ought to give the goods a fresh name in the country of attack. An American firm employed certain letters to advertise a certais underwear. An English firm employs the same three letters to advertise a tobasce. vertise a tobacco. The only difference in the two advertisements as far as the big display letters were concerned was that the middle and the final letter are changed about, or something similar. Now, that American firm took underwear over to England under a label that every Englishman would be sure to confuse with tobacco! When he saw the American ad posted he thought of smoke instead of pyjamas!

Miss Blanche Ring is going back the variety stage for twenty weeks so. She is to get $1500 a week, it reported. Later, she asserts, she w have a new comedy by Catherine Chi hoim Cutting, who is kept busy sin the New York City success of "Kit McKay."

POMPEII'S LAST DAYS IN BIG FILM

Big Italian Film Production the Attraction at the Grand This Week.

That the elementary feelings and eighteen centuries ago as they ere today is most forcibly illustrated in the photo-grama exquisite, Last Days of Pompeli," the famous Last Days of Pompeii," the famous pasquall light part production which will be presented for the first time in Toronto at the Grand Opera House this week. The principal characters of the story are Nydia, the blind flower girl, who passionately loves the handsome and wealthy Greek youth, Glaucus, who pities the blind girl, but is, himself, in love with Ione, the beautiful Athenian maiden. Another virile factor is the proud Egyptian priest, Arbaces, whose passion for Ione leads him to terrible extremes, even to murdering her brother, Apecides. Then there are the idle pleasure seekers, Glodius, and Sallust, friends of Glaucus, and the repulsive sorceress of Vesuvius, who, herself, had her love tale; Burbo and Stratonica, keepers of the tavern, the gladiators and host of others, all woven into a tale of masterly quality and absorbed to the statement of the statemen of the tavern, the gladiators and host of others, all woven into a tale of masterly quality and absorbent interests; all actuated by the passions of love, hate, avarice and ambition; each with their petty jealousies and parallel joys and pleasures. It was the same world then as it is today, the only difference being that the development of Christianity and civilization has taught the world of today a better control—perhaps thru knowledge and perhaps thru fear. All the knowledge and study in the world cannot convey one-half as much of the awful magnitude of the eruption of Mt. Vesuvius and the destruction of Pompeli, as a few short minutes of Pasquali's great photodrama, "The Last Days of Pompeli," adapted from Lord Lytton's famous novel. With the reader and student much is left to the imagination, but in the picture it is brought out in vivid realism, and the impression is photographed forever on the brain thru the world's most wonderful camera—the eye.

During the engagement will be given every day.

In an open letter published in The Daily Telegraph, Yvette Guilbert makes a fervent appeal to militant suffragettes in England to renounce the evil of their ways and turn to gentleness, that most fatal weapon of the weaker sex. The following paragraphs are gleaned from the document:

The stall holders tittered quite frankly. The late Cardinal Rampolla believed that music is the greatest of all the arts because we have never been told that we will see beautiful paintings or hear great orators in heaven, but we are told that we shall hear grand music. Indignation of musicians in the United States has been aroused over the engagement of Edwin H. They contend that Mr. Lemare is practically the "official organist" of the exposition.

The near-landsman is often confused as to the exact difference between the gross tonnage, net tonnage and displacement of vessels. All mercantile nations have agreed to consider the gross tonnage of a vessel its entire interior capacity, measured in tons of 100 cubic feet.

The net tonnage is the figure obtained by subtracting from the gross tonnage the space utilized by the officers' accommodations, crew and gear for working the ship; and, in the case of a steamship, all her propelling machinery, such as boilers and engines. The net tonnage of a ship is therefore the space used for carrying pasfore the space used for carrying pas-

T is a matter of pride in some quarters that tea is making notable inroads upon the popularity of the venerable and widely cultivated Mr. John Barleycorn. Tea rooms are blooming like the flowers of spring all over Canada and in England it has been noted that alcohol is now giving place to tea, which continues to be drunk by all classes in ever-increasing quantities.

The Tea Houses Blossoming

And yet tea has its perils no less great than attend the use of alcohol, for, unlike alcohol, it has no feeding properties whatever, but acts purely as a stimulant, its effect in this respect being due to the alkaloid called theine which it contains.

You, who have sounded all the moods of fragrant, soothing tea, may declare—and most firmly believe it, too—that it satisfies hunger in a degree, just as the scientific sharps have declared regarding alcohol taken in moderate quantities; but as a matter of fact there is no autriment in it whatever.

Theine, when taken by itself, stimulates the circulation of the brain—but not appreciablly that of the heart—and thereby lessens the sense of hunger. It is said that this stimulation is not followed by a corresponding period of depression, altho in this case statistics are not easily available.

ONE of the marked characters ONE of the marked characters of tea is the tannin contained in it. Indian tea has about twice as much as the Chinese growth. It has a marked effect on the digestion, even in the presence of other fluids. In all cases it retards the digestive process to an extent that would astonish those who have not inquired into the matter; and it has been recommended that a pinch of bi-carbonate of sodf should be added to the brew of persons with weak digestions so as to

The tea habit can be carried to the same disastrous extent almost as is possible with alcohol. As a matter of fact, in Russia, where teadrinking is a fixed national custom, there have been cases of intoxication from this source of such frequency as to divest the cases of any novelty. If one finds the bi-carbonate of soda distasteful another way of obviating the pernicious effects of tea is to take it not with, but several hours after, meals, when the digestion is fairly complete; and, in this particular, the English habit of "5 o'clock tea" is to be commended.

Just before the end of the story is reached the series will stop for a short period, and those who have followed it will be given an opportunity to complete it, for which a prize of $10,000 will be given for the best result.

As an extra special attraction for Monday and Tuesday Miss Florence Turfner and her own English company will present "The Murdoch Trial," a magnificent four-reel production replete with human interest.

NEW BUT TERRIBLE HOPE FOR FAT PEOPLE

HE surgeon now offers a sovereign remedy for the unfortunate few who are burdened by too much fat. At any rate, Dr. Floyd H. Spencer reports a case in which a woman found complete relief upon the operating table.

The proper amount of physical exercise was impossible in her case. She could not dress in any manner that would prevent her from being the object of pity or ridicule on the part of those who beheld her.

The operation was a perfect success. An incisioin was made in the abdomen, the fat was removed with the knife and the parts replaced. Health and vigor resulted and there has been no return of the malady. It was an extreme case and a heroic remedy, but the doctor is inclined to view it as a foundation for hope on the part of many who are similarly afflicted.

"I have more than we are to the girl's face. "I have more than we can spend in a life time. Ah. I know you do not love me," he hastened to say, seeing she was about to speak, "but I think that will come in time."

More in a spirit of pique because of Hume's conduct than for any other reason. Valeria consented, after some hesitation. Hume, reading of the mar-

Marriage brought to Valeria the realization of the fact that she hated the man whose name she now bore. Overwrought by the events of the last few days, the girl savagely repulsed few days, the girl savagely repulsed her husband as he attempted to en-

Immediately after Travis' departure, the thief examined the contents of the purse. To his delight, he found it contained almost $800. The sound of footsteps oustide, caused the man to hastly conceal his loot.

Making himself easy in one of the chairs, Travis grimly awaited Hume's return. The knowledge that his theft had been discovered filled the thief with terror. In vain he pleaded with Travis. That gentleman was inexorable in his demand that the money be restored within twentyy-four hours.

When Hume reached the Grim mansion he found Valeria wondering what important reason could have resulted in Hume's unusual equest.

Hume had already mapped out his plan of action. "I'll tell her exactly what has transpired and throw myself on her mercy. For the sake of the past she may help me," he thought.

At this moment the butter entered.

That—in effect—is what makers say when they charge you higher prices. And 18 makers do that. They are asking for tires up to one-half more than present Goodyear prices. The inference is wrong. Those extra prices are all unjust. The verdict of users as shown by sales is that No-Rim-Cut tires are the best in the world. And in four ways they certainly are.

Itisutterly impossible, so far as men know, to build a better tire than Goodyears, measured by cost per mile.
For years and years we've employed scores of experts to find out ways to better them. Their efforts have cost us a fortune each year.
No-Rim-Cut tires mark the present-day limit, to the best of their belief.

How They Excel

No-Rim-Cut tires, in at least four ways, excel every other tire.

Our "On-Air" cure is employed by no other maker. This extra process adds tremendously to our own cost, but it saves many times the amount in blow-outs.

The backward movement of the pedals is left free and the break is manipulated by the regular foot pedal. St. Onge has an enviable record as a bicycle star, and he told story after story of sterling competitions, in which he and other great stars participated in the nineties and later. After these many years he is still a cyclist, and entertains thousands of people by his trick riding, learned at a time when every boy was trying to ride on his rear wheel. While here, St. Ongvisited a number of stores and clubs where he could see photographs of old rivels, some of whom are now dead. He was also taken to the Motordrome where, for the first time in his life, he was treated to what he called "a real thrill." When the riders at the track learned the identity of the visitor they arranged a practice race, and pulled off a number of stunts which they would not dare to do in the pres-ence of the track officials. BUILD THE ROADS

The election is over, and the provincial government has been returned to power. The people have endorsed its policies, and it is now the duty of the administration to put them into effect. One of the most important of these is the construction of 50,000 miles of good roads in the province.

Up to the present time there have been too much talk and too little action in regard to this important matter. Ontario is far behind most of the American states, including those which are neither as populous nor as wealthy. It is the constant wonder of Americans and continental tourists that a community so prosperous and progressive should still be disgraced by roads of the worst kind, and which are practically impassable for months in every year. Our loss thru reports that tourists circulate in regard to Ontario highways is large.

Tho we realize this, and tho we have been talking about good roads for a long time, very little has been done. The Board of Highway Commissioners for York County, a body that is supposed to have financial assistance from the provincial government, has been in existence for three years, but as yet the results are disappointing; tho a few miles of highways have been improved, the work has been neither well done nor enduring. in some places isolated stretches of five or six miles have been built, and then left with sections of very bad road at each end of the improved portion, making it useless. Highways that have been made have not been maintained, and already many of them are dropping back into their original condition. This involves, of course, the absolute waste of money spent upon them in the first place. All this is due to the lack of a big, comprehensive plan laid down by the government and administered by an energetic highway expert.

The continuous delays and red-tape entanglements that have marked the attempts to build roads in the past must be done away with. Instead of getting out and doing the work, there is a strong tendency on the part of officials to make elaborate surveys, long reports, and to listen to arguments as to the way the work should be done. It is this kind of thing that has delayed the much-needed Toronto-Hamilton road, a simple propo-

The foolish policy of building macadam roads on important highways must also be abandoned. A little money is saved on the first cost, only to be lost three or four times over on maintenance. This type of road is absolutely unsuited to modern traffic. The Americans have found this out, and they are building roads with cement foundations. Why can't we learn from them, instead of making costly experiments ourselves? The Lincoln Highway is to be built of concrete wherever practicable, and this means for most of its length.

But, above all, let us get something definite done, and done quickly. What the people want is action. A wide, modern highway, forty or fifty miles long, between Toronto and Hamilton, would be a more convincing proof of the government's sincerity in regard to road construction than any amount of pre-elec-tion promises or long statements handed out to the press. The people have given the government a mandate to build roads, let them do it, and do it now.

Sand too Deep" Even the finest design and materials of the highest quality are not enough. But when these are combined with the workmanship of men who have been trained for twelve years in Jackson methods, then you get a car of enduring dependability.

There is a standard of perfection for every detail of workmanship that goes into Jackson cars and it's a mighty high standard. It's the standard that keeps eight and nine-year-old Jackson cars in daily use on the road, giving their owners that faithful service that has made the Jackson reputation.

Jackson shops have always been run on quality production—never on a quantity schedule. Every detail is considered worthy of the best workmanship.

Take the Jackson steering gears, for instance. You can depend on their Safety for they are made throughout in Jackson shops. The infinitely careful workmanship in assembling and the hair-line accuracy with which every part is finished assures their perfect action and absolute safety. We build into them the utmost strength.

The same degree of painstaking workmanship that distinguishes the Jackson car mechanically, is also exercised in its finish. Jackson bodies receive nineteen separate and distinct painting operations, all performed by hand, and the result is a lustrous, UST a few days ago an important artistic "find" was discovered in a small picture belonging to a Toronto lady, now resident in Vancouver, which has proved to a very beautiful and genuine Constable. The owner had seen and admired the picture, and bought it for its artistic value, having no idea of the real merit of the treasure which had come into her possession, until she presented it to the sight of local experts, who quickly identified it. The picture, which is very small, is a very beautiful little English landscape, of Constable's well known coloring and characteristics.

A N ANCIENT picture, which has been in the possession of the Keele family for almost three hundred years, has just been taken to England last week, for positive identification as to its painter. The picture is a study of an old man, and a little child, and bears all the marks of a master brush in the flesh tints, the grouping, and the expression on both faces. The lack of a signature on the painting makes the work of identification more difficult and the the antiquity is undoubted, and places the value of the antique upon it, the positive identification of the painter will make the work much more valuable.

It was a couple of weeks ago, when my husband was spending the weekend at Rochester. I had a girl friend of mine to come and stay with me while he was away.

Returning to the city Monday morning early he did not come home, but went, right to the office. Later, he phoned me and told me he had brought me home some silk stockings, and I thinking my girl friend was out on the verandah, asked him if he had brought her anything. He said no, so I told him he had better buy her something at Eaton's, and pretend he had brought it from Rochester, as she would think he was pretty cheap. Afterward I went into the dining-room, and there was my girl friend sitting reading. I certainly felt embarrassed, knowing that she had overheard my conversation with my hubby.—E. M.

THE AMAZING ARGENTINE

By JOHN FOSTER FRASER

The country covers 2,000,000 square miles; it has a population of about 7,000,000. In range it goes from the torrid tropics on the north to the far south, where "you need a heavy coat, even in summer time." It has a sweep of level country extending for 2000 miles, but next to Brazil, it has great forests, and to the west it runs into the Andes Mountains (which are simply our Rockles continued in the next)." The far south is the Patagonian wilderness. It has several navigable rivers, and it still has unexplored territory.

The Province of Mendoza, in the snadow of the Andes, is a bit of old Spain, as to its industries. It is the vineyard of the republic. In 1913 it produced about 80 million gallons of wine. Irrigation is required, and is practised largely.

Tucuman, in the northern part of Argentina, is the centre of a tropical industry, the making of sugar. This part of the country resembles the jungles of Brazil. Around Tucuman there are 25 sugar mills, which produce annually about 200,000 tons of sugar, of which 60,000 to 70,000 is exported. new individuality, an enthusiastic young nationality, says John Foster Traser. "You insult an Argentine if you mix him up with Chilians Brazilians, and other South Americans. He does not thank you for being reminded that his father sailed from Italy, or his grandfather from Spain. He has no affection for any old land from which his sires came. The beginning of the world for Argentina was May, 1910, when the republic was set up." In the markets of the world regentina means wheat and cattle. It has tracts of land captle—before it had sufficient markets for its meat, it is said that heras of cattle were used as ammunition in warfare by being driven against opposing forces. So far as agriculture is concerned Argentina's resources are in their infant stage of development. Transportation however, was, and is the one big problem in the progress of the country, and in railways and destric tramways there is invested in Argentina three hundred million pounds of British capital. There are 20,000 miles of railway. Even more than Canada it is a land of distances; it has few villages; its towns are far apart; it has no manufacturing centres.

I have traversed districts which three years ago were a wilderness; but a spur of railway has been driven into them, and instantly farming has been started. I saw hundreds of freshlybullt homesteads—crude, and the life harsh, but it was the beginning of great things—and alfalfa had been laid down, cattle were feeding, and wide spaces which previously were sandy and apparently inhospitable were carpeted with the bright green of new wheat. Just as in Canada, there is a belief that the breaking up of the land has decreased the severity of the frost, so there is a belief in Argentina that rains follow the plow. Places which formerly had little rainfall, and which had a doubtful agricultural future, are proving successful. Yet, without the advance of the railways the country would have been as forlorn as when the Indians roved the pampas." mmigrants yearly. Chances of settling gether a very fascinating travel book. Sveryday Happenings Seen With a Glamer of Remance Thru the Eyes of a Young Girl.

"Is this fact or fiction?" is the question that I continually asked myself while reading Margaret Lynn's "A Stepdaughter of the Prairie." Perhaps it is merely a story, but I am certain that it is a true story, in the sense at least of being true to life. Anyone who has ever been a really normal child will readily assent to this.

It is a simple unromantic life that the author has pictured here, but she has taken events and circumstances that an ordinary person might term commonplace and woven about them a sweetness and charm that is quite delightful. That she writes from a first hand knowledge of the prairies and of child life is very evident. The book is a series of sketches of pioneer life on the Missouri prairies viewed thru the eyes of a wide-awake little country girl with a strain of poetry in her make-up, Perhaps love of the prairies is something to be acquired. Anyhow this child was not born with it; the discovery of their beauty and mystery came to her by degrees. She was a lover of books, especially poetry, and Tennyson was her dear delight.

The purpose of the novel is to depict human life and to disclose the secrets of human character. A novelist should be a psychologist. The portrait painter can produce the outward traits of can produce the outward traits of character, and ever suggest internal essence, but it needs the psychologist to analyze the soul. A novel should go to the very roots of motive; it should touch the secret coils of conduct; it should exhibit men not as they appear to the world, but as they really are to themselves and to their Maker. The novel which does this benefits not only the individual reader, in so far as he himself is concerned, but also the community of which the individual is an integral part.

The story of Dr. Jekyll and Mr. Hyde, by Robert Louis Stevenson is familiar to all of us. It is the arcient Pauline description of the war within ourselves. The thing we would we do not, and the thing we would not that we do. Horror pursues everyone as they follow its story, but no one can read it without a stirred conscience. No one can lay it down without some stern resolve to set a closer watch upon his virtues and put a closer curb upon his follies.

A. There are statistics quite in line with the foregoing. For instance, as against 12 murders in a year in Londen. 12 are committed in Los Angeles, Cal., altho the respective populations of the two cities was 7,000,000 and 400.000. That year there were but three murders in Seattle with a population of $20,000.

The suicide rate appears to be confirmatory of the foregoing, California, the "land of sunshine," leading the whole nation. The rate in New York is 16.5. It is 35.2 in Los Angeles, 27.5 in San Francisco and 59.9 in San Diego.

There are of course many factors entering into an explanation of the facts, but scientific men are inclined in view climate as one of the most important of them. The stimulating affect of bright sunlight upon the system is everywhere recognized and first severywhere recognized and first severywhere recognized and first severywhere recognized and first severy where recognized and sunloughts.

The work of the imaginative writer, whether poet, dramatist or novelist is always necessary to over-strung in material pursuits, as a means of quickening those finer sympathies which materialism represses; and it is because the novel thus answers an increasing need in modern life that we judge its destiny to be secure and its power inestimable.

Politics

introduction of the "'bolish the bar" slogan, with its appeal to temperance sentiment, made this appear still more probable, and some sanguine opponents of the government even prophesied a landslide. To them the actual result, which left the house practically unchanged in the relative strength of parties, must have brought keen disappointment. It is evident, however, that the electors were determined not to be stampeded into dismissing a government that at least has been clean and honest, besides being in important directions able and progressive. Had Sir James Whitney done nothing 'else than establish his hydro-electric policy, he would have deserved public confidence, and further opportunity to carry it to completion.

While no one would deny to clergymen the right to form and hold their own political opinions and to advocate these on the platform, there are evident and reasonable objections to their doing this from the pulpit. In that rostrum the minister reigns supreme. He is not subject to interruption, nor is debate permitted. But, simply because he enjoys the privilege of unfettered utterance, it becomes his duty to use that privflege with discretion, and to remember that, however convinced he may be of the truth and righteousness of his convictions, those who differ from him may be equally conscientious and sincere. Even the introduction of a great "moral issue" gives no greater license, more especially if it is of the type which presents itself not as a matter of right or wrong, but as a controversy over the proper means of abating the evil involved. Political questions should be argued from the platform, not the pulpit.

The Tragedy of the Hapsburgs

Few men have had their lives so filled with tragedy as that which has attended the aged Emperor of Austria, Uneasy lies the head that wears a crown, and certainly the head of the dual monarchy has supped full of sorrows. His brother, Maximilian, who vainly strove to establish his throne in Mexico, was at last captured and executed. His only son, the Crown Prince Rudolph, perished under circumstances that have never been revealed. His wife fell a victim to an assassin's hand, and now his nephew, carefully trained to grasp the reins when they slipped from his aged hands, has also died a violent death. The new heir, young and personally popular, will have the difficult task of reconciling the conflicting claims of Austria and Hungary, and of holding together two states that are showing an increasing tendency to drift apart. Austria-Hungary is one of the danger spots of Europe, and its internal troubles seriously weaken the strength of the Triple Alliance.

spects, romantic and extraordinary, and even in these advanced days it is unusual to find a woman who so held attention in all civilized countries of the world. In her own country her crusade against war elicited strong resentment from the militarists, which occasionally took overt form. But the Baroness never faltered, and both by voice and pen continued to preach international goodwill. To the late Alfred Nobel, whose secretary she was for a time, she owed her first inspiration, and it was only fitting that the Peace Prize he founded at last came to her. It is generally understood that, in calling the first Hague Conference, the Czar responded to the appeal of her principal book, "Lay Down Your Arms."

President Wilson and Treaty Rights

In the debate last week over the appropriations for the Foreign Office, Sir Edward Grey disposed of the fable that, in his Panama tolls policy, President Wilson had acted in consequence of either bargaining or diplomatic pressure. No correspondence had passed, the foreign secretary remarked, since the president came into office, and he had followed his own line. Sir Edward Grey gave full credit to Mr. Wilson's real and great motive—his belief that a government which is to use its influence among the nations to make relations better, must never, when the occasion arises, flinch or quail from interpreting treaty rights in a strictly fair spirit. This, it is gratifying to find, is the view taken by the great majority of the leading newspapers of the United States, without distinction of party. The passage of the repeal act is regarded by them as the greatest victory so far achieved by the president, and as an emphatic declaration that the rule of justice and equality is to be restored at Panama.

indifference to human life, and his utter disregard of property rights. Reputable correspondents with the constitutionalist army think it almost criminal for the United States to appear even in seeming alliance with the so blood thirsty a ruffian. Yet Professor Frederick L. Monson in the New York Herald describes his experiences in Mexico eight years ago when Villa proved a faithful and capable guide thru the wilds of the interior and would have profited materially thru treachery. Professor Monson says he found Villa's a kindly nature—in fact a sort of Robin Hood, taking from the rich to benefit the poor. "I left him as I found him," writes the Professor, "a humane, powerful and resourceful man."

Germany is now running a neck and neck race with the United Kingdom and the United States in the extent of its foreign trade and industrial products take rank with those of the most advanced na-

For years educational authorities have attributed this remarkable expansion to the excellence of the German school system. One of the latest articles on this subject is contributed by C. Smith-Rossie to the English Review, and it presents in illuminating form the view of the German master. He is not content with merely teaching the regular elements or the vocational trade. He believes, we are told by Mr. Smith-Rossie, that even in the humblest trade or in unskilled labor itself, men become the better citizens if they are taught the rudiments of citizenship and are awakened to broader views of life and the world.

Continuation schools for lads between fourteen and eighteen are compulsory in most of the German states, and the work is not done in the evening when the lads are weary from their day's work, but during two afternoons weekly and Sunday morning. Leave of absence is compulsory on employers on week days and the three years' course includes classes in religion, taught on the week day, whilst the citizenship courses usually run on the Sunday. These latter are not devoted to electoral duties alone, but include the care of each household and of the individual health, the proper form of nourishment, food, recreation and the special dangers of particular trades. All this in addition to special training for the particular line of work in which the students are engaged.

The Progressive Party

The Progressive party in the United States will take a lively part in the elections this fall and may capture a number of seats. Colonel Roosevelt is flaying the Wilson policies and appealing for support to big business while at the same time relying for votes upon the farmers and wage earners.

He attributes the business depression in the United States to the cut in the tariff made by the Underwood law and to the apprehension caused by the promise of more anti-trust legislation. He declares that all the warfare upon the big combinations "during the last twenty-four years" has ended in "flat failure."

Mr. Roosevelt, no doubt, gets his twenty-four year period by going back to the date of the passage of the Sherman law, but as a matter of fact no federal trust prosecutions of any consequence occurred until the Roosevelt administration was well under way. The prosecutions, especially those conducted by Attorney-general Wickersham under the Taft administration, had a salutary effect, and we doubt if the Progressive party will get very far upon a platform that says in effect that the trusts must not be interfered

By this time next year the Grand Trunk Pacific will be operating passenger and freight service across the continent, and the Canadian Pacific may feel real competition from its new rival in bidding for the big tourist trade to the Panama Exposition. The G. T. P. will be handicapped to some extent by the fact that Prince Rupert is nearly 500 miles north of Vancouver, but this can be overcome to some extent by a faster train service and perhaps by better boat service on the Pacific coast. For several years the Grand Trunk has been running steamers between Seattle and Prince Rupert and the service could be easily extended southward to the golden

HEN Mrs. Besant was here in That was 700 years before the days 1893 she was interviewed by John. Ezekiel, say 125 years lat esant told her to choose the best and Lamb!" was to be. "And I will se ighest in her own faith and live up one shepherd over them, and he to that; not to question the divinity of feed them, even my servant. Christ, but try to be Christlike; and he shall feed them, and he sh of Nirvana, that it was not a loss of their shepherd." And this is dentity, but the development of the firmed in Revelation xxii., 16, nigher consciousness Miss Fenton Bible students are not generally vent home, she related, and turned lievers in reincarnation. Then intentedly to Revelation and read: The Lamb that is in their midst shall eed them and lead them to living ountains, and God shall wipe away all tears from their eyes." She added I have just been reading a notice of Elsa Parker's "Letters of a Living-Dead Man" (a book which has not she winds up with the remark: "The old simple belief-the old simple docong perceived that "everyday buanity" is not very anxious to learn Snoch and the prophets Isaiah, J nything new, and vastly prefers to migh, Zecharlah, Ezekick, Zer og along the ordinary rut to hear- amos, Obadiah, Joel. But I am scarcely even wn unwillingness to learn, while they rning that deters them. I can tesquite possible to stand still, or almost so, with regard to the conditions of ache gnaws away and the old aspiration drags at our heart-strings, simple faith," and the least analysis nows us that "simple faith" is the most intricate unintelligible thing in the world. Of course, I am not writing for those who do understand, but or the multitude to whom the sim-

HAT is the simplicity, for example, about the passage (Revi vii., 17), quoted by "Faith Fen-. on"? She did not quote it quite correctly, and I suppose, like most Bible readers, gave no heed to the patchwork character of the passage. Let us take the authorized version—to allay prejudice, for I prefer the revised version. I will take the 16th verse also: "They shall hunger no more, neither thirst any more; neither shall the sun light on them, nor any heat. For the Lamb which is in the midst of the throng shall feed them, and shall lead the sun and give us an excuse for the cause the trouble. It is always some else who is a blame. What we may shall feed them, and shall lead us, and give us an excuse for readers, gave no heed to the patch-Lamb which is in the midst of the throne shall feed them, and shall lead them unto living fountains of waters; and God shall wipe away all tears from their eyes." The 21st chapter opens with the statement which is far from simple for most people, and very diffisimple for most people, and very difficult for all every-day humans to realize: "I saw a new heaven and a new earth: for the first heaven and there was no more sea." And the Revelator records that (verse 3) he where the statement which is far from simple for most people, and very difficult for the first heaven and the first earth were passed away; and there was no more sea." And the Revelator records that (verse 3) he where desire world. Our test to exhibit ourselves as marty "heard a great voice out of heaven saying: Behold, the tabernacle of God is with men, and he will dwell with them, and they shall be his people, and God, himself, shall be with them, and be their God. And God shall wipe away all tears from their eyes; and there shall be no more death points." This is a "simple enough, the faith of Karma, thal and be their God. And God shall wipe away all tears from their eyes; and there shall be no more death, neither sorrow, nor crying, neither shall there be any more pain: for the former things are passed away." Now, why this condition should be described as unintelligible when it is called Nirvana, and be described as "a simple faith" when it is taken as the account of a new heaven and a new earth, I cannot say, but I think we are safe in putting it down to religious prejudice.

There is another aspect of the many and they are wreathed and come up upo my neck." This is a simple fait enough, the faith of Karma, that we nearly acceptable to a large number of up who wish others to reap what we sown, and that we might reat the good harvest that others have sown, and that we might reat the good harvest that others have sown, and that we might reat the good harvest that others have sown as we understand its in violability we begin to seek out the seated in the heart of every creature. There is another aspect of the question which is worth study. I have observed that people who believe in a simple faith are rarely great Bible students. They may read in the Bible a good deal, but they don't read it thru and thru. They stick to favorite chapters and skip difficult texts, and by leaving out all the problems attain salem which now is: for she bondage with her children. But a fine simplicity. They rarely take the pains to compare one passage with another, or think out any theory that would harmonize the contradictions or difficulties which close students encounter. They generally forget that the fine things in the New Testament have been said hundreds of years, sometimes thousands of years, before in the Old Testament, or some other scripture. In Isalah xlix, 10, we read: "They shall not hunger nor thirst: neither shall the heat nor sun smite them: for He that hath mercy on oring it unto us, that we may hear and do it? But the Word is ve them shall lead them, even by the nigh unto thee, in thy mouth, and thy heart, that thou mayest do it." springs of water shall He guide them."

"Faith Fenton," and Mrs. (xxxiv, 23) had no doubt who John 's text (Isalah xxv., 8): "He more be heard in her, nor the from older writings, the Bo

That is St. Paul's reading of the riddle, but whether by Paul or John, by Buidha or Christ it all comes back to ourselves. We must find the kingdom within and the Lamb seated there on the throne. And Moses was very explicit. "This comandment which I command thee this day, it is not hidden from thee, neither is it far off. It is not in heaven, that thou shouldest say, Who shall go up for us to heaven, and bring it unto us, that we may hear it, and do it? In a chair sat a beautiful girl, her lips tightly closed, her eyes staring straight before her, and her very muscle tense with a powerful effort of self-control. In another sat a young man whose face expressed seriousness but confidence. In his hand he held an open watch which he observed closely, only raising his eyes now and then to glance at the beautiful girl, who seemed to be in such agony.

Five seconds, ten, fifteen, twenty sconds passed. The position of neither the young man nor beautiful girl had changed. Suddenly her eyes gleamed with a light, her bosom heaved, she clasped her hands convulsively, and—"I must speak!" burst from her bloodless lips.

"Twenty-four seconds," said the young man, as he closed the watch and put it back into his pocket. "You lose the caramels by six seconds exactly."

He had bet on a sure thing, but she won out.

Time, 30 seconds. Tecumsehs 4, Quebec 1.

Quebec began to liven up and Torpey was given a busy session. They had much the better of the play for fully five minutes. Carmichael replaced Rountree. Felker came down and from well outside found a hole for his shot. It went in below the bar. Time 15. Tecumseh 5, Quebec 1.

Thirty seconds later McGregor came and slipped another thru. Tecumseh 6, Quebec 1. The quarter ended soon afterward with the score: Tecumseh 6, Quebec 1.

Third Quarter.

The play opened very slowly and poor passing was shown on numerous occasions. Felker took a hard shot from well out, but it hit Collins behind the ear and laid him out. On the next attack White intercepted a pass when a score looked imment. Scott broke away and was inside before the local defence was aware of his presence. Henry tallied in ten minutes. Quebec 2, Tecumsehs 6. One minute later Felker bored in and secured the ninth goal of the day with a grassburner. Tecumsehs 7, Quebec 2.

The play was very loose, but finally Roberts, after a couple of tries, put one in. Time 8.00. Tecumsehs 7, Quebec 3.

Rowntree was up a minute later, and from thirty feet out he let drive. The ball took a funny bound and Cummings missed it. Tecumsehs 8, Quebec 3. The quarter ended with the score Tecumsehs 8, Quebec 3.

The period opened with alternate attacks on the nets, and the defence men began to work out, finally Roberts shooting over the heads of players and finding the top corner of the net. Time 2.30. Tecumsehs 8, Quebec 4.

Chances galore were in view in the early minutes. Shots were turned aside by hairbreadths, while heavy body-checking offset the great speed with which some of the players tried to bore in. The Quebec home supplied most of the ginger, giving Torpey lots of work. McGregor went in, but stiff body-checks brought his leg out again, and he had to retire again in favor of Carmichael.
