

FRENCH CALL U. S. NOTE HARD BLOW TO LLOYD GEORGE

Predict Anti-Bolshevik Opinion in England Will Turn on Premier.

COLBY DOCUMENT WILL CHANGE BRITISH VIEW

Claim Lloyd George Sought to Save Himself by Protest on Recognition of Wrangel.

Paris, Aug. 17.—The following semi-official statement from the Quai d'Orsay has been given exclusively to the Public Ledger foreign office:—
"The Quai d'Orsay is particularly pleased with the phrasing of Secretary Colby's note. It defines the attitude regarding the Soviets in the same terms which the French Premier would have used had he to express his idea in a diplomatic document. In the present circumstances the French Government is greatly strengthened by being thus supported by the United States."

"In the Lloyd George-Mittrand debate there is a fundamental divergence on the policy to adopt regarding Soviet Russia. Mittrand wishes to hold the Soviets beyond the pale of consideration. They represent an ephemeral regime and do not speak for the Russian people. Lloyd George, on the contrary, who for months has been trying to admit them into the concert of powers, is persuaded that they constitute a durable form of government and that to ignore them is to wish to ignore the future, at least in Russia. If one reviews the decisions of the English Premier, the advocate he has not ceased to make all the last year to recognize the Soviets, whether it was the Prinkipo affair, the possible economic conversations with Kamenev and Krasin or the London conference proposition, he finds constantly the same thought—to prepare an understanding with the Soviets."

Lloyd George's view is repudiated. "France is happy to note that America repudiates Lloyd George's viewpoint and that its appreciation of the Soviet domination, its American view is in full agreement with the French. The Colby declaration is likely from what one learns here to produce a profound impression on England. Lloyd George confessed only with certain reserve that he had advised Poland and to recapitulate and that he had renounced the engagements made at Riga. It is probable that some more light is thrown on the affair a note worthy part of English public opinion, all that which is anti-Bolshevik, will turn against him. It is to be noted that he has proposed so strongly against the isolated recognition of General Wrangel by France. By calling attention to a trifling fact of Mittrand, that of having acted without warning him, he hopes to hide the very serious fault he committed in forgetting Tuesday the agreement made the preceding Sunday."

"All the moves of Lloyd George in this affair, the postponement of the session of Parliament, the visit with the King and the cabinet councils have only one end—to throw in sharp relief the insignificant sin of France so as to throw in the shadow the capitulation of Lloyd George. It is this that British opinion will see more clearly now after the publication of Colby's judgment of bolshevism."

Wrangel Recognition Not Reprised. As to the story in certain French papers that recognition of General Wrangel by France is a sort of act of reprisal against the abandonment of Poland by Lloyd George, that is nothing but legend. Nothing has been further from the thought of f. Mittrand or from the tendencies of French policy which more than ever is attached to the Entente, than to imagine making reprisals."

WARSAW LEARNS OF POLISH SUCCESSES

Pilsudski Leads Successful Counter Offensive on Warsaw Front — Reds Driven Back.

Warsaw, Aug. 17.—Reports of Polish military successes came to Warsaw today, while the population was eagerly awaiting news from Minsk, where the Polish peace delegates are meeting with the representatives of the Soviet government. The only report of the delegates was a Moscow wireless message stating that the party had arrived in Minsk.

A successful counter-offensive was launched on the Warsaw front Monday under the leadership of President Pilsudski, as commander-in-chief. On the northern front, where ten Bolshevik divisions are striking to reach the Vistula as part of the manoeuvre against Warsaw, and on the Warsaw front, it was announced today that the Reds have been driven back at several points.

Polish movements, aided by heavy artillery, are forcing their Bolsheviks gradually to withdraw from various places, where for days pressure upon the capital has been greatest.

In the fighting in the region of Radzymin, northeast of Warsaw, the Poles have taken many prisoners, including a Bolshevik commissary and a brigade commander. During the battle here a Polish Chaplain of the eighth infantry division, Ignacy Korupka, was killed while leading the attacking forces, clad in his church robes and with a crucifix in his hand.

Five Polish officers were also killed and eleven wounded. The French tactics are being used throughout the counter-offensive. The Poles are bringing in only a few batteries for the capital's defence line and are waiting completion of the arrangements to strike at the Soviet forces with a rush of artillery, followed by repeated infantry attacks.

DUBLIN PRESS DISAPPOINTED BY LLOYD GEORGE

His Statement Relative to Settlement of Irish Question Not Kindly Received.

URGE BOYCOTT OF PART OF ULSTER

Separate Treatment for Ulster Proposition Makes Discussion Wholly Futile, Says Independent.

Dublin, Aug. 17.—Disappointment is voiced in the press of Dublin today at the statement made by Premier Lloyd George in the House of Commons yesterday relative to a settlement of the Irish question. The discussions in the newspapers centre variously upon the three stipulations specified by the Premier as a basis for consideration of a settlement: Separate treatment for the six counties of Northern Ulster; no secession of any part of Ireland from the United Kingdom, and no agreement involving any detraction from the security of the British Isles or of their safety in case of war.

The Freeman's Journal, which has advocated Dominion Home Rule and which, under its present ownership, represents large business interests in Dublin, suggests as a reply to the Premier, a "financial and commercial boycott of that part of Ulster which is causing all the trouble," a reprisal which it says, already is being enforced to some extent.

The Independent says the Premier's first condition, insisting upon separate treatment for Ulster, "makes any discussion with him wholly futile," and adds that the Premier "knows that the minimum settlement which has the best chance of success is the bringing into operation of a constitution similar to that of the Dominion overseas."

The Times, Unionist, says that the Irishmen expected an important statement on the Irish policy and "there are only two possible policies if the country is to be saved from anarchy: one of reconquest, the other conciliatory and two months hence both attempts must be more difficult and costly than they would be today."

JURY HOLDS GOVT TROOPS RESPONSIBLE

For Death of Boy Who Was Shot and Killed in Dublin After Curfew Aug. 10.

Dublin, Aug. 17.—Government troops are accountable for the death of Thomas Farrell, a boy who was shot and killed after curfew on the night of August 10 during the celebration here of the reported arrival of Archibald Mannix, of Australia, was the decision of a coroner's jury today.

The deceased died of shock and hemorrhage through bullets fired from the guns of military without justification. We strongly condemn the action of the military in empowering youths to endanger the lives of citizens, and record our deepest sympathy for the relatives of the deceased. Strong military precautions were taken at the inquest. Two armored cars with machine guns were on guard.

Other evidence of apprehension over the prevailing unrest is seen in the erection of barbed wire defenses at four court houses. Special protection also has been given the Kildare Club, a resort of high officials and unionists.

This is probably the greatest seizure of liquor ever made in Canada. Police Magistrate Smith signed the order for confiscation and added a fine of one thousand dollars against the company for unlawfully having liquor for sale. The wholesale value of the stock according to invoice was $237,000.

SERIES OF AUTO ACCIDENTS AT ST. STEPHEN

Ford Car With Four Occupants Jumps Off Bridge Into Creek; Serious Injuries Follow.

RUNAWAY PLUNGES INTO DRUG STORE

Goes Wild Down Kirk Hill, Scoots Across Water Street Into Drug Store.

Special to The Standard. St. Stephen, N. B., Aug. 17.—Two serious automobile accidents have happened here within the last twenty-four hours, and in one of them the question of life or death is still involved.

Monday evening a young man named Frank Campbell, who drives an auto for Chas. Cones' livery garage in Calais, started for a dance at Robbinston, Maine, about twelve miles below Calais, accompanied by his wife and two of their friends, Mrs. Thomas McGrath and Miss Charlotte Clarke. At Robbinston, Campbell is alleged to have connected with some prohibition whiskey, and was pretty well under its influence when the start was made for Calais at about midnight. The ladies were offered a chance to go home in another car, but preferred to remain with Campbell.

They had not proceeded far when the Ford went over the side of a bridge and alighted in the bed of the creek below and in tide water. Mrs. Campbell and Mrs. McGrath were helpless from their injuries, and Campbell was in the same condition from the fall, and all would have perished from the rapidly flowing tide had it not been for the heroic exertions of Miss Clarke, a girl about eighteen years of age. She was herself stunned and bleeding, but plunging her head and arms beneath the water repeatedly, succeeded in first dragging one, and then the other of the women to safety on the beach, and then hauled the man out. In her endeavored condition, she crawled up the steep bank to the road, where she finally halted a passing car, after three had passed without noticing her. The victims were brought to Calais Hospital, where it was learned that Mrs. McGrath was in a serious condition with her chest, spine and head injured, and her recovery is still in doubt. Mrs. Campbell is severely injured, though less seriously, and Miss Clarke sustained many cuts and severe contusions. Campbell was placed in the Calais lockup, but this morning had to be removed to the Calais Hospital on account of injuries to his spine and head.

Tuesday evening, John Norton, foreman of chocolate making in Ganong Bros' candy factory, was coming down Kirk Hill, on Main street, in his car that he has been driving for a few weeks, when a tire blew out with a report like a young cannon. Instantly the car got from the control of Mr. Norton and shot down the steep hill like a rocket across Water street, crowded just then with other cars, teams and pedestrians, and shot right over the sidewalk and into the confectionery, cutlery and perfumery stores of George F. Crawford, carrying away the door and one side of the plate glass front. The car was clear inside the store when it was stopped and had demolished two "silent salesmen" show cases filled with confectionery, cutlery and perfume. In its brief but meteoric plunge, and grazing a valuable marble soda fountain. Strange as it was, no person received a bruise or a scratch, or an injury of any kind, but the car was smashed so that a track was necessary to haul it to a repair shop. Mr. Crawford's damage will amount to $2,000, and it will take several hundred dollars to repair the car.

HELD ON CHARGE OF MURDER

Officials Refuse to Abide by Coroner's Jury in Case of David St. Jean.

Ottawa, Aug. 17.—Despite a verdict of accidental death rendered by the jury at the inquest held last night at Cherry Lake, Que., David St. Jean of that place was brought to Hull today to face the charge of having wilfully murdered his aunt, Miss Phyllonene Lafond, near that village on Sunday night, by shooting her with a rifle. The shooting took place at the home of a neighbor, Mrs. James Crites. According to the ante mortem statement of Miss Lafond, as testified by Dr. Desjardins, "a man who she simply termed 'he' made improper suggestions to her and on her refusal 'he got mad' and shot her with a rifle. She did not state the name of her assailant. Dr. Desjardins said that he found Miss Lafond about five o'clock Sunday afternoon lying across the doorway of the Crites home with a bullet wound in her neck from which she died shortly afterwards."

St. Jean is claimed, later met his brother-in-law, James Crites, to whom he said the rifle had discharged accidentally, the bullet striking a cedar log in the house, ricocheting, hitting Miss Lafond. St. Jean will be arraigned in the Hull police court Wednesday morning.

ORGANIZATION MEETINGS FOR NATIONAL PARTY

MACKENZIE KING HAVING TROUBLE

Ottawa, Aug. 17.—The first of the provincial organization meetings of the National Liberal and Conservative party will be held here tomorrow, when the supporters of the Government in the Commons and Senate from Ontario will meet in room sixteen in the new parliament buildings. The object of the meeting is solely and distinctively organizational. ## POLES RECAPTURE STRATEGIC POSITIONS

Force Bolshevik Back, Causing Them to Abandon Considerable Booty.

Paris, Aug. 17.—Tireless efforts by the Poles to push back the invading Bolsheviks have resulted in the capture of important strategic positions. Three days ago the Polish forces faced an extremely critical situation, with the Red center virtually reaching the outer forts of the capital. On the right wing the Soviet troops had captured Palutsk-Serock bridgehead, driving the Poles from the fork where the Narew joins the Bug.

On Sunday, however, the Poles launched a counter offensive from Norogivsk, clearing the north bank of the Narew an yesterday they recaptured the Serock bridgehead before the Bolsheviks had time to establish themselves. Operations are now proceeding against the Pulitusk forts. The Bolsheviks in their retreat abandoned considerable booty which has not yet been inventoried. Operations by the Polish ight gained the Vlepris and the Middle Bug continue according to plan.

Warsaw is holding well according to the latest news received here to night. The Poles, who were beginning to repeat their old despairing cry "God is too high and France too far," fortified by the counsel of France's expert soldiers, have now plucked up spirits with immediate effect.

It is considered significant in military circles that the Moscow wireless has been unusually silent today.

REDS ANXIOUS FOR RENEWAL OF BLOCKADE

Berlin Soviets Claim Small Baltic Nations Regain Faith in Moscow.

Berlin, Aug. 17.—The Soviets not only welcome the Entente blockade, but actually have sought to provoke it. This has been flatly stated to your correspondent at the Bolshevik headquarters at Berlin, where Soviet diplomatic, commercial and passport agents are doing a rushing business. What Russia intends to gain from a renewal of the blockade is set forth in a communication from the Moscow Government to various Soviet agencies in neutral European capitals which I am able to quote.

Four distinct advantages are to be derived from the blockade:

First, as the effects would be mainly felt by the border states, particularly the small Baltic nations, the result would be a closer Entente with Russia, and it would immediately put an end to the state of fear and suspicion which these border countries have been living, and regroup them around Moscow.

Second, as Hungary was one of the first to join the blockade on the pretext that Hungarians had been attacked, which was long sought for and found.

Third, labor in the Entente countries will receive a new stimulus, and revolutionary radical elements in the western nations will have additional cause to agitate against their governments.

Fourth, as the Soviets are now concentrating to arouse a national sentiment at home, a blockade will prove a helpful aid in welding the factions. The Bolsheviks anticipate an important disadvantage from a blockade. That is in the Ukraine, where General Wrangel is enjoying the benefits of the Black Sea ports and may be supplied by the Allies. However, Victor Kopp, the Soviet "ambassador" at Berlin, back from Moscow, is said to have brought assurances from his government that Mustafa Kemal had been enlisted as a faithful ally who can be trusted to throw all sorts of obstacles in the way of the border into the Straits and the Black Sea. The Bolsheviks have further assurances that Italy will not associate herself with the Entente's blockade, and it is even reported here that a secret arrangement has been reached between Italy and Russia.

The Russians are now heralding in defiant tones an offensive to be begun simultaneously against Hungary and General Wrangel. From what I understand the Red army has enormous reserves ready for this purpose. In the cavalry alone the reserves are said to number nearly 250,000 horses. Artillery, too, is plentiful. The Bolsheviks are boasting they have captured so much ammunition from the Poles and by a severe military dictatorship at home have been able to increase the output of the factories to such an extent that the Soviet Government actually refused the offers of guns and ammunition which are alleged to have been made to agents here. Germany lately has been sending chemicals to Russia, and from Scandinavia has received agricultural machinery, originally shipped from the United States, so it is pointed out that the blockade can hardly do more than at the present. Besides the German-Russian relations easier.

MEETING TO CONSIDER OFFERS

Montreal, Aug. 17.—A meeting of past and present directors of the Shamrock A. A. together with the officers of the Lacrosse Club and the players was called last night here to consider an offer made by the directors of the New Westminster Exhibition Company to have the champions of the National Lacrosse Union visit the Pacific coast this summer to play New Westminster a series for the Minto Cup. The idea was received with favor but the guarantee not being considered sufficient the New Westminster Company was asked to increase it.

TENNIS NOW HOLDS FIRM GRIP ON EVERY NATION ON GLOBE

(New York World.) A foreign invasion of lawn tennis players is looked for when the American Davis Cup forces who have been playing so ably in England return. That is the word that is being passed around at the clubs and seemingly emanating from official sources. It would not be a bit surprising if an Englishman or two, the giant Frenchman, Andre H. Gobert, and a couple of the Hollanders who gained the final round of the matches for the famous international cup paid a visit to this country.

Plans for the entertainment of the prospective visitors are already being made. The open question is official minds is whether or not the men are obligated to their respective national associations to compete in the Olympic tournaments at Antwerp next month. Any way, preparations are being made at Southport, Newport, Southampton and at Forest, a number of years of foreign players to participate in the battles across the nets in this country. Every effort is being made to prepare for a record-breaking competition next season for the Davis Cup. Its location indicates an international contest that will witness all former ones, as the list of eligible nations which may challenge has greatly increased. The newcomers are by no means to be despised as their foremost victors of the racket have already won their standing on the courts.

Little Bob Meusel Is Latest Wonder

Second and Final Maine and Maritime Circuit Races Yesterday in Railway Town Had Many Thrills—Every Heat a Horse Race.

For a kid in his first year in the majors, Bob Meusel is becoming more and more a wonder. To see the vast improvement made steadily by this young star is amazing even to the oldest followers of the game. When he first took up his position at third base during the recent Yankee trip in the West his general manner of fielding was crude. But during his brief occupancy of the hot corner the young Californian has developed into a star, rivaling even Ward, and now is able to pick them up anywhere.

In right field Meusel already has proved his worth, and of course, one need say nothing about his prowess at the bat. Not that his average is mounting about 400 or anything like that, but his form at the plate has improved consistently, even though his percentage has fallen a bit. Meusel was placed fifth in the batting order for the express purpose of making pitchers afraid to pass "Babe" Ruth, and he has accomplished practically that. "Babe" still gets his majority of hits before bringing Meusel up to the plate with several anxious runners on base.

LEONARD WILL DEFEND TITLE

New York, Aug. 17.—Benny Leonard, lightweight champion of the world, will defend his title at Madison Square Garden about the middle of September, as it was announced today by his manager, Billy Gibson. Ricard announced he would select the opponent from Joe Welling, Eddie Fitzsimmons, Johnny Dundee, Lew Tendler and Charlie White. Leonard is to receive a guarantee of $50,000 but must post a forfeit of $50,000 to guarantee that he will make the lightweight limit for the bout.

MONCTON HAVING POLICE TROUBLES

R., Truro, who was arrested and locked up by the Moncton police two or three weeks ago, is still strolling around town waiting for the midnight train from St. John, finished taking evidence today. An adjournment of three weeks was taken to give a decision. Judge Bennett, chairman of the commission, intimated that as a result of the inquiry another investigation would be held to inquire into the police system in this city for the purpose of correcting any errors, if they are found to exist, and also to give the citizens a better understanding as to the duties of the police.

Yeard, Chief License Inspector for Ontario last week, fourteen convictions, three sent to jail, and fines amounting to $6,650 were registered. The list of those convicted included Dr. Murdoch, Mayor of Hurley River, who besides being fined $2,000 and costs was sent to jail for 10 days. Premiers Martin and Murray Differ Former Objects to Latter's Claim That Maritime Resources Have Interest in Resources of Prairie Provinces.

Regina, Sask., Aug. 17.—Premier W. M. Martin today characterized a claim of Premier George Murray, of Nova Scotia, that the Maritime Provinces have a proprietary interest in the natural resources of the Prairie Provinces as a "bold and presumptuous assertion." Premier Martin, in a statement, makes it clear that he has no objection to the Maritime Provinces receiving better financial conditions from the Dominion Government if they can secure them, but he holds that the question of these terms is one which must be settled apart altogether from the question of the return of the natural resources of Manitoba, Saskatchewan and Alberta to these provinces.

When several miles up the river, McLeod went forward with a pole to sound, as they wanted to avoid the rocks near the wharf. As the boat suddenly came into deep water and the pole shot down, McLeod lost his balance and fell overboard.

The outbreak was first reported from Lunenburg County and it is widely distributed along the South Shore.

In dollars and cents the saving to Canadian buyers of goods from the United States will, it is stated, reach huge proportions, even during the period of suspension from August 15 to December 15.

To Make Hairs Vanish From Face, Neck or Arms

FRENCH MOVE MAY HALT AID FROM BRITAIN

Russian Action Forsaking of Allied Policy of Co-operation.

MISUNDERSTANDING UNFORTUNATE NOW

Unless Matter Straightened Out British Bankers Cannot Continue Financial Aid to France.

(Copyright, 1920, by Public Ledger Company.)

London, Aug. 17.—The Russian terms of peace with Poland are so much better than expected that neither the British Parliament nor the people are prepared to oppose them, hence the Prime Minister was compelled to recommend their acceptance by Poland. Did the terms endanger Polish independence, parliament and the people would counsel rejection whatever the consequences to Great Britain. The French attitude regarding General Wrangel is not understood and explanations are awaited by the British. The people are not willing to make war to enforce a French secret treaty with Russia as it is considered the Versailles treaty overrides all previous treaties and any treaty that runs counter to or supplements its provisions must be submitted to the League of Nations.

British bankers favor inducing Russia to recognize pre-war monetary debts to France, but this is not a territorial or political obligation. It can be accomplished, not by making war on the Russian people, but by refusing them credit and financial assistance until Russia agrees to honor the pre-war monetary obligations incurred for railway construction and economic development. It is hoped that the misunderstanding between France and England will be adjusted by a meeting of Premiers Lloyd George and Millerand.

May Endanger Understanding

Should France pursue her Russian policy without consultation or agreement with Great Britain it will endanger both the political and financial understanding between the two countries. Even with the closest ties it will be difficult for British bankers to continue to meet continental demands for accommodation. Should these ties be loosened it will be practically impossible for them to render further assistance, indeed, already they have inflated their advances, mainly because the exchange difficulties and because of their desire to render every possible assistance to Great Britain's allies' far beyond the level they would have been willing to do but for this desire to help continental countries to the limit of their power.

A further advance in the Bank of England rate of discount is already overdue. The ratio of 12 per cent reserve to deposit liabilities in the middle of August with the autumnal demands still to meet already urgently demands that the Bank of England minimum rate of discount be higher than 7 per cent. The money market has expected a further advance in the bank rate for some weeks. That no advance has been made is due to the desire to render every possible assistance to countries in financial distress. Every canon of sound finance demands higher rates of interest in the London money market and it is evident that if the political factors further complicate the economic and financial situation we may witness higher money rates and greater stringency in the London money market than ever witnessed in modern times.

Danger to Exchange Situation.

Moreover, it is clear that disagreement between the allied nations when the financial situation demands the closest possible co-operation, must have a dangerous effect upon the exchange situation. Europe still is buying immense quantities of products from nations to which payment can be made over a long period of years and these nations will not be willing to grant the necessary credits if the existing political and economic and financial situation is likely to last indefinitely and grow worse rather than better.

This means in turn that while the money rates may rise to an unprecedented level, rates of exchange may fall to lower levels than any one has hitherto conceived possible. Under the agreement between France and England the value of the franc has been much less subject to depreciation than formerly. Should this agreement be brought to an end by action of the French Government, the former relation of the franc to the pound would be resumed and both would fall. But, in view of the great difficulty of France in paying for goods with goods, the franc must fall much further than the pound.

Therefore in the interests not only of France and Great Britain, but of the entire world, it is sincerely hoped that the present misunderstanding between the Allies will be resumed and that all nations, including Russia, Germany and the United States, will, without further delay, adopt a policy of co-operation and mutual assistance, without which a financial catastrophe of unprecedented magnitude will soon become inevitable.

Winter Furs at Summer Prices

PERSONAL comfort is an important consideration with everybody. When Winter winds begin to blow, one naturally thinks of the cozy comfort of nice, warm furs. But how much more practical and economical it is to think of Winter comforts while still enjoying the warmth of Summer.

Our August Fur Sale

offers many opportunities for the exercise of this practical policy.

Pre-season selling helps to reduce the costly overhead of idle sales periods in Summer. This saving is passed along to our customers in lower prices that will be out of the question this coming Winter.

That is putting the facts plainly,—but why shouldn't you know the truth? Those who fail to buy furs now are sure to pay more for them next Winter, for higher prices on furs are inevitable.

Practical economy should prompt you to anticipate your Winter needs and buy furs at Summer prices.

POWERS ARE PLACING INDIVIDUAL AIMS AHEAD OF SUPPORT TO POLAND

Negotiations Show U. S. Opposing Red Recognition—France, the Payment of $5,000,000,000 Soviet Debt—England, Commercial Supremacy.

(Copyright, 1920, by Public Ledger Company.) Washington, Aug. 17.—The subordination of the late of Poland to the individual aims of the United States, England and France stands today as the principal result of the negotiations in international circles since the Spa conference, when Poland was first assured that some form of assistance would be given in an effort to check the Red pollution of Europe.

Summarized, the aims of the three governments are: United States—A checkmate of any form of recognition of Soviet government by any of the powers.

France—Payment of the $5,000,000,000 advanced by the French republic to the governments that preceded the rule of Trotsky and Lenin.

England—Commercial supremacy of Russia, which English financial and the business interests fear will fall into the hands of Germany.

Although the United States and France seem to have drifted closer together as the chasm of Anglo-French diplomacy widens there is still divergence in the position of the two governments. France does not countenance any form of Bolshevik recognition, but France has not stated definitely that she will oppose any dismemberment of the former Russian empire.

The indications which have reached Washington are that France will adjust her policy if need be to obtain repayment of the gold that she dropped into the Russian pit.

Material Aid Abandoned Plans for material assistance for Poland have in the meantime been abandoned. There has never been the slightest intimation from officials of this government that there had been evolved any definite steps for carrying on the use of all "available means" to help the Poles check the Red onrush.

Diplomatic advisers from abroad are that France and England are gradually discarding proposition after proposition to stiffen the Polish legions.

State Department officials today were inclined to believe the unofficial despatches from abroad that the idea of military aid in any form had been abandoned altogether.

The actual motive behind such a decision, it was understood, was the realization on the part of both Lloyd George and Millerand that it would be virtually impossible to obtain domestic support for military aid of sufficient strength to be effective.

The situation was further complicated, according to the belief expressed, here by the action of Great Britain, as pointed out in an exclusive Public Ledger cable this morning, in disregarding the terms of the Hythe agreement and setting out on a policy of placating bolshevism.

It has been felt in Washington for some time that considerable pressure is being brought to bear in England for a piece in the Russian economic field. British interests have been for

TO NEGOTIATE NEW WAGE AGREEMENT

U. S. Shipping Board and Longshoremen to Get Together on Wages and Working Conditions.

(Copyright, 1920 by Public Ledger Co.)

Washington, Aug. 17.—The United States Shipping Board announced today that the first meeting for the negotiations of new agreements covering long shore wage scale and working conditions will be held in New York on September 15. This action is in keeping with the decision of the board to fix wage scales by direct negotiation following the dissolution of the national adjustment commission, which base had jurisdiction over long shore matters on the Atlantic and Gulf coast during the war.

The meeting in New York will be held for the purpose of fixing wage scales and working conditions in the North Atlantic district from Norfolk to Portland, according to the announcement. The shipping and stevedoring interests of the North Atlantic coast including the International Longshoremen's Association, and the Shipping Board will be represented at the meeting.

A second conference will be held in New York, on September 27, to work out an agreement covering wage scales and working conditions for members of the International Longshoremen's Association employed on the Gulf coast, the announcement said. During the early part of October, a third conference will be held for the same purpose at Savannah for the South Atlantic district.

To maintain the American Merchant Marine on a sound and permanent basis the Shipping Board feels very strongly that the fullest amount of co-operation and same action on the part of all concerned is vitally essential, the announcement said.

"This means that all must strive toward the bringing down of the present already high cost of operation in order that foreign competitors may be more effectively met.

"This view is reflected on the broad-minded and patriotic action of the operating departments, deck officers, engineers, radio operators, sailors, firemen and stewards in consenting to continue on the basis of the present wage scale."

ARMY WORM PREVALENT IN NOVA SCOTIA

The army worm is now prevalent in parts of Nova Scotia and doing a very considerable amount of damage. Considering this, and remembering the seriousness of the outbreak in 1914, it will be well to be on the look-out for these devastating caterpillars.

The army worms are from 1 1/2 to 2 inches long and the variety prevalent this year are particularly dark in color.

The eggs are laid in low-lying areas and the young caterpillars feed unnoticed until large enough to become active, when they assume the marching habit over grain fields.

Method of Control. Trenches.—A good method of control is to dig trenches 3-12 inches in depth in advance of the line of march of the caterpillars with post holes every 15 feet along the trench. The side of the trench next to the protected field should be straight and the earth loose so it will not be possible for the worms to climb out.

The caterpillars wander along the trench and are caught in the post holes and can be killed by pouring coal oil on them.

Nothing New. It is stated that a gipsy has been arrested for false pretences in the matter of selling a horse. Anything novel about that? It would be rumour if the sale were on the level, Romany Rye or without it.

Attaining a length of as much as 30 feet at times, the anasconda is a native of Brazil and Guiana.

Qualified Failed to Finish— Jump—Thomson of Canada

Olympic Stadium, Antwerp, Aug. 17.—The progress of athletic advancement throughout the world was demonstrated today by the wide distribution of honors in the third day's contests in the seventh Olympiad.

For the first time in these games the United States athletes failed to one of the six points places when all four who qualified for the 5,000 metre race failed to finish. In all the other final and qualifying rounds today, however, the United States men were placed, in several cases after sensational performances against superior competition.

R. W. Landon, of the New York A. C., won the high jump with a new Olympic record of 1.93 1/2 metres, although it was announced he had made 1.94 metres until a sag of the bar was reannounced. Three other United States athletes were placed in this event.

In the eliminations for finalists in the shotput and broad jump, two of the United States team, qualified in each event, although legitimate hard luck interfered with their performances in the latter event. The shotputters, misunderstanding the French officials, put the shot a long time before discovering it was just a warm up and later some of them did not do so well as in the practice. In the broad jump the negro, Sol Butler of Dubuque College, the United States record holder, pulled a tendon in his second jump and was unable to qualify.

Three United States athletes also qualified in the finale in the 110 metres hurdles in which one of them is expected to run second, as Earl Thomson, representing Canada, is acknowledged the best in the field.

The most sensational and pleasing performance of the day was that of the half miler in the 800 metres final which Earl Eby, of the Chicago A. A., almost won.

A. C. Hill of England, won by a yard. B. G. D. Rudd of South Africa, favorite in the race faltered at the tape while Hill slipped through unobserved.

United States Lost. In the first round of the tug-of-war the British team defeated their United States opponents.

Proposed Agreement With Pulp Co. Laid Over for Further Consideration—Considerable Discussion on Matter at Special Meeting Yesterday.

The agreement between the city and the Nashwaak Pulp and Paper Co. was further discussed by the City Council yesterday morning in committee, and again adjourned until this morning at 11 o'clock, when it is expected the city engineer will be on hand.

Commissioner Jones furnished a statement showing a daily average of 3,000,000 gallons available from Spruce Lake, and by tapping Moose Lake a further 2,000,000 gallons could be obtained.

Commissioner Thornton contended the pulp company should give the city a guarantee of at least $5,000 per year and pay the interest and sinking fund on one-third of the cost of installation of the new main, about $8,500 per year.

Commissioner Bullock supported the agreement, as did the Mayor, but it was decided not to take action until the city engineer had been heard.

SECRET ARMY WORKS WITH JUNTA.
 All these obviously treasonable acts are going on all the time, and it is only because the Magdeburg diebeaters called attention to them that the public is awakened to the danger. Organizations such as the Escherich secret army in Bavaria, which is alleged to have been working hand in hand with the exposed military junta, are still allowed to go on. Who pays these armies and what they do is a question that is asked often by many. The answer is that maybe partly the government, partly monarchist organizations furnish the funds although the former, it is said, pays "unconscientiously." These armies do what is known in Germany as "colonization" work, which appears to consist of moving a regiment into an untenanted area on a fine morning, armed with light artillery, machine guns, rifles, grenades and minnowwerfer, ostensibly for catching butterflies. When night comes, everything has disappeared except men and empty lorries. Where has all the "colonization" paraphernalia gone? ask the credulous. The answer is that it has been interred for future use.

OLD DISCIPLINE HAS BEEN INTRODUCED

Hohenzollern Uniform and Colors Still Much in Evidence—Munitions Being Stored for Future Eventualities.

(Copyright, 1920, by Public Ledger Company.)
 Berlin, Aug. 17.—Disclosures of the last few days regarding mysterious movements of the military junta which has been fabricating news of the existence of a phantom Red army Germany have led to further investigations which are revealing an astounding state of affairs within the actual German army. The Ebert government seems to have lost control of the army, whose spirit it has vainly tried to republicanize. They were witnessing the spectacle of an army refusing to get into the harness of governmental control yet bearing contentedly the yoke of the old army discipline which the imperial military clique somehow has been able to reimpose. It is a condition which has really existed since Noske, though it has never stood out in the glaring light in which the public is now viewing it with amazement.

The army's subterranean activities at Magdeburg and other centers uncovered by the government's civilian police are perhaps the most flagrant breach yet of the rules of the republican army. To a long list of mutinous infractions may be added an organized movement to prevent the disarmament of Germany in defiance of the Spa agreement, continual enlistment for training in the military forces, the aid in the escape of culpables demanded by the Ebert for war crimes, and not least of all, planning another monarchist rising.

Already unmistakable signals of trouble are seen in the appeals army officers are publishing in reactionary newspapers calling upon loyal Germans to be ready. The Deutsches Zeitung today carries the following advertisement, signed Count Pfeil, an officer of Ludendorff's staff.

"When the German nation again comes to prefer hard iron to the weakness of soft gold then let those who remember my glorious old battalion come follow me."

As the address given was somewhere in upper Silesia the government ordered an immediate investigation there. But the government will find nothing. It is impotent against the army—the real ruler in Germany today. The government has been able successfully to cope with and overcome opposition in parliament, but with the army which it set up for its protection it can do nothing.

The very forces that brought about Noske's resignation are still at work in the same direction. Doctor Gessler, the war minister, finds himself in the same uncomfortable berth, faced with the same difficulties as Noske. He issues orders, decrees, requests, etc., but if they do not please the army they are not carried out. An order was issued a few weeks ago forbidding officers to wear the epaulettes of the old uniform, yet not a single officer has been seen wearing new shoulder straps. The Stamm division which is only a new name for Eberhard's notorious North sea brigade, which, of course, has not been disbanded, is still flying the Hohenzollern colors and the officers speak of the colors of the new republic as "Jew's rag."

Died Yesterday

Cleveland Shortstop Hit on Head by Pitched Ball and Died in Hospital Early Yesterday Morning of Fractured Skull.

New York, Aug. 17.—Raymond Chapman, shortstop on the Cleveland American baseball team who was hit on the head by a ball thrown by Pitcher Carl Mays in yesterday's game with the New York Americans, died in the St. Lawrence Hospital at four o'clock this morning. He never regained consciousness after an operation which was hurriedly decided on a little after midnight when a portion of his fractured skull was removed by surgeons who hoped against hope that he might recover. A little after it was decided to operate, Manager Tris Speaker, already deeply apprehensive of his condition, telephoned news of the report to Chapman's wife in Cleveland, who immediately started for New York.

News of his death cast a gloom over the members of both teams and the baseball world in general. Mays was overcome with grief when the news of Chapman's death was told to him. The accident occurred at the start of the fifth inning. Chapman was the first batter up and was hit by the first ball pitched. So terrific was the blow that the report of the impact caused spectators to think the ball had struck his bat.

Mays acted under this impression, fielded the ball that rebounded half way to the pitcher's box and threw it to first base in order to retire Chapman, when it was noticed that Chapman had collapsed at the home plate. He was lifted to his feet by other players. Then he stood dazed for a moment, staggered and crumpled at their feet. Physicians were called from the grandstand and they administered first aid, still not knowing that he had sustained a fractured skull. Two players, with Chapman's arms about their shoulders, started to walk him off the field. He appeared to walk at first almost unaided, but a few moments later his legs became limp and he had to be carried to an ambulance.

Mays said that the ball he threw was a "sailor" (one that breaks sharply on one side due usually to a rough spot on the cover. He asked for another ball before pitching to Speaker, who followed Chapman at the plate, and the ball which fatally injured the shortstop was thrown out of the game.

In baseball circles it was believed that Chapman's death would seriously hamper Cleveland's chance of capturing the pennant. He was a veteran and one of the main stays of the team.

Extra Heavy Run
Of Herring Here

Down the Bay Boatmen Are Offering Five Dollars Per Hogshead, Fishermen Demand Ten Dollars and Will Hold to Price.

There is at present a very heavy run of herring in the harbor, and all are what is termed perfect oil fish. As a result the boats are arriving from down the bay and the boatmen are offering five dollars per hogshead for the fish. The price the waterfront refuse to accept, as they are satisfied that the fish are worth at least ten dollars per hogshead, which has been paid. It is understood that one well yesterday sold sixty hogsheads to the boatmen for five dollars per hogshead thinking that others were doing the same, but that no more will be sold at this low figure.

The local fishermen pay a high rate for the fishing privileges in the harbor and now that there is a real good run of fish it appears to them that they should make some profit of their hard work.

America. On my return to England
I find my British friends asking me to explain to them the anti-British feelings of the American people. They ask, "Is it really true that the comradeship of the English-speaking peoples during the war has been forgotten and that we are hated in America?"

I will endeavor to explain American feelings towards us at the present time as they appeared to a Britisher who has visited the other side of the Atlantic fairly frequently.
America, just as Great Britain, is suffering from an attack of disillusionment and disgruntlement. America is disgruntled at the moment—of that there is no doubt. She expected the war was over that everything and everybody were going to settle down in the best of all possible worlds. With the coming of peace the people of America expected that many of their problems would be settled and all would be well. Exactly the contrary is the case.

The cost of living has risen alarmingly—although just before my visit from New York some of the big department stores announced a twenty per cent. reduction in prices—and the whole tendency is upward. Rents are three and four times their pre-war figures.
Domestic help of any kind is almost impossible to obtain, and difficult though the lot of the British housekeeper may be, she is fortunate indeed in comparison with her American sister. In many parts of the United States it is not a case of being satisfied with one or two servants, but "help" of any kind is impossible to get. Then labor leaders are much to the fore, and to a British visitor the possibility of a complete stoppage of trains, and similar problems, seemed very familiar. American business men are in an apprehensive mood about business conditions in the future, and owing to the restricted immigration the large employer does not know where he is going to find the unskilled labor he requires.

Another matter which is also receiving considerable attention in the press is the fact that many thousands of able-bodied men and women are returning to Europe with their pockets lined with good American dollars, which at present rates of exchange in many countries turn their fortunate owners into veritable millionaires.
The Rumanian, Czech-Slovak, Pole, Ruthenian, who returns to Europe with $10,000 has a fortune in the currency of his native land.
I have purposely mentioned all these matters before dealing with Anglo-American relations because I wished to emphasize that the American is at the moment passing through a phase of disillusionment. He is worried with his domestic problems, he is extremely dissatisfied with his own Government, and not even in England have I heard politicians more country traitors than in America.

The pendulum is undoubtedly swinging in the wrong direction at the moment as regards Anglo-American friendship. But personally I believe this is merely a healthy reaction after the exceptional conditions which existed during the closing months of the war. The League of Nations and all European arrangements are at present unpopular, and America would like to forget the existence of the Balkans, Eastern Europe, Armenia, and elsewhere if she were allowed to do so. She desires nothing better than to think America, first, last, and all the time. Her feelings are not so much anti-British, therefore, as essentially pro-American.

There is, of course, a certain amount of anti-British feeling which will probably increase rather than diminish, till after the Presidential election in November.
In business circles there is a certain amount of suspicion of British Trade policy in foreign markets;
whether fomented by those desiring to promote ill-feeling between us matters not, for it is there. In England before I left, I heard British business men talking about "American astuteness and American efforts to capture the world's trade." In America they are saying just the same things about Great Britain.

Not once but fifty times I was told British manufacturers understood the export business much better than Americans, and that we were trying to establish a monopoly in the world's oil supplies outside American territory.
In conclusion, let me record two recent happenings to illustrate the friendly feelings towards us entertained by many of the American people. When the British University team established a world record for the two-mile race in the presence of 30,000-odd spectators at Philadelphia, the British athletes received an ovation.
There was, I believe, no discordant note. During my last few days in New York before sailing, Fifth Avenue, the greatest shopping street in the world, was a mass of Englishmen. The shopkeepers of Fifth Avenue were paying a tribute to a visiting delegation of British drapers. If twenty-one American haberdashers came to London I wonder whether Regent Street, Oxford Street, and Bond Street would be a mass of
"Stars and Stripes."

Open Sesame.

"Did you have any trouble in seeing that captain of industry whose time is reputed to be worth almost a million a minute?"

"How did you contrive to get into his private office?"

"I stood just outside the door and engaged his secretary in a loud conversation about golf, in which I displayed a superior knowledge of the game."—Birmingham Age-Herald.

GERMANS PREDICT UPRISING IN SAAR

Claim the Workers Are Inflamed by Measures of French Officials.

(Copyright, 1920, by Public Ledger Company.)

Berlin, Aug. 17.—Serious difficulties have arisen in the Saar valley between the population and the French army of occupation, according to German newspapers, which may result in a general uprising of the workers and miners elsewhere. The state of siege, declared by the French commander on Friday as a result of a strike of administrative officials, has been sharpened as a counter-measure against a fresh outbreak. German versions of the occurrence in the Saar stress the rights of the population which, it is pointed out, still refuses to work under the conditions imposed by the international administration.

Reports describe the French military authorities' perfunctory measures as having infuriated the population, which is trying to sabotage by way of retaliation. Railway stations and switches have been destroyed and it is expected this will be followed up by more serious action which is bound to prove embarrassing to the occupation authorities. It is said here this is a mere introduction to what is to follow, not only in the Saar, but in the Ruhr, if the French ever occupy it.

Particular concern is exhibited here over the alleged suppression by the French, of Saar newspapers, the arrest of editorial staffs and the expulsion of the mails in the occupied territory of certain Berlin and Frankfurt journals. The Frankfurt Gazette has been barred from circulation by the French commander for an article describing the so-called black troops activities in the occupied region.

"Relief"—
Drifting, drifting, over the bounding main,
For many a stormy wind shall blow
before they race again.
Sailing, sailing, along earth's driest
shore,
And everyone is mighty glad that captains are o'er.

BRITAIN SEES SHE MUST CARE FOR CHILDREN

Beginning to Realize Frightful Infant Mortality Which Prevails.

MANY DEATHS WERE PREVENTABLE

National Baby Week—Educational Movement to Draw Attention to Child Welfare

(Copyright, 1920, by Cross-Atlantic News Service.)
LYDIA KINGMILL COMMANDER.
London, August 17.—The fourth British National Baby Week recently held was of the utmost importance. This year London took second place, the principal conferences being held in the Midlands, Manchester, Leeds, Birmingham, and other big industrial centres.

National Baby Week is an educational movement, which was begun by Lord Rhonda, who unfortunately died during the second celebration in 1918. The work is being carried on by Lord Rhonda's associates including his daughter, formerly Lady Mackworth, now Viscountess Rhonda, in her own right. The directing power is a Council, of which the Queen is Patroness.

The motto of the Council is "Save the Babies," and its seal is a figure of Britannia tenderly holding an infant in her arms. The motto is an entreaty, a warning, a command; and the seal is more a suggestion of what should be, than an expression of what is. Britannia alone has not been tender of her infants.

The Registrar-General gave for 1918 these figures:
Per 1,000 of population, London, breathe 15.8; civilian death rate, 15.7; per 1,000 of population, 96 great towns, birth rate 17.9; civilian death rate, 18.

These figures take no account of naval or military losses. Without these the death rate, which began in 1915 has at least brought England, for the first time in her national history, face to face with a distinct loss in population. The 1918 figures show a slight improvement, but are by no means what they should be.

There have been efforts to save the babies in England for many years—social efforts to help the constant struggle of the mothers, each yearning and striving to save her own. But there was national apathy. Babies were well enough in their places but their place was a very small one in the national consciousness. Free trade was a live subject, and so were world commerce, and taxation and the land question. But babies? Well, babies were just babies—let their mothers take care of them.

Then came the war with its appalling destruction of life, and for comfort the nation turned to the babies, babies that were to fill the places of the slain and give fresh life and vigor to the stricken nation.

But there was little comfort there, for the terrible fact was brought to light that for every soldier who had laid down his life on the battle fields of France or Flanders five babies had died at home in sheltered England.

Not was that all. As the dead are not the full toll of war, but are vastly outnumbered by the maimed, the blind and the diseased, who stumble on through broken years of half-life, so with the babies. Where there is a high death rate there are always many damaged for life who yet survive. In 1918, of 533,392 children inspected, 259,000 were found to be defective—cripples, weak-minded, deaf and dumb, blind, or otherwise imperfect.

At last there was alarm, consternation, questioning. How could the babies be saved?

Many babies as sober, comfortable Bath.

Mother's Love and Care.

But all investigations, the most careful study of housing, feeding, sanitation and nursing, brought into high relief the great central fact that of first importance to the baby, far out-distancing every other thing is Mother-love, Mother-care. No other service, no matter how exact and scientific, can act as a substitute for hers. Years ago, when first the duty of society to its children was realized by a few advanced thinkers, there grew up a tendency to belittle the part of the mother. She was primitive, instinctive, it was said. The child of today was born into a complete civilization, and science, organized, powerful, and scientific could minister to the needs of the modern infant as the mother could not. Nurseries, playgrounds and schools, trained nurses, teachers, and play directors, were to substitute the home and the mother, and all would be well.

Science and system were to turn out perfect children—standardized, like bridges and paving stones, and ready out houses. So many times for sleep, as many feeding times for this and times for that, no handling and no spoiling, and the ideal infant, that would grow strong and sturdy, never get sick and never die, was bound to appear.

Unfortunately all this science was most unscientific, for it left out of consideration the greatest thing in the world—love. Those who serve the baby today do not fall into that mistake. They have found out that God knew what He was doing when He made Mothers and they say, with Coleridge:

"A Mother is a Mother still,
The holiest thing alive."
or the French say:
"The heart of the Mother can never be replaced." Over and over it has been proved that where Mother-love is fully developed it blossoms into self-sacrifice and devotion that is able to triumph over the grossest material difficulties.

Thus the Jewish Mothers of the Whitechapel district, through intense love of children, lose fewer babies than their Irish and English neighbors, living under the same conditions.

At the Eye Hospital at Liverpool it is found that where Mothers are admitted with their children the babies recover in half the time that in other hospitals do.

In Moscow the largest Foundling Hospital in the world, with thousands of infants in its care, some mothers, after leaving their babies, go round to another door and apply for employment as foster mothers. Then led by love, they manage to find and feed their own children in English city of the race, for twice as many among the mother-fed foundlings survive as among those who fall to the care of foster-mothers.

In Roscommon County, Connaught infant mortality stands at low figure of 36 per 1,000; housing is vile, poverty is extreme, and there is no social service.

But the mothers are Mothers indeed. They live in their homes, they feed and care for their little ones, and, because of the well-known English city, the disease of vice are practically non-existent. Hence babies live and flourish. In the other hand, in an important industrial English city, the death figure is 132. The mothers go out to work, they make plenty of money, but the Mother-love is weak. Pleasure and drinking replace baby tending, and in spite of the most intelligent and devoted work done by the municipality, the babies fade and perish.

So all intelligent care of the baby, from centres around the mother. Housing, feeding, training, health, must rest on the baby, as life flows, through the mother. The wise nation will see in the call "Women and children first." Not merely a beautiful sentiment or a noble ideal of self-sacrifice, but a noble preservation.

The future belongs to those nations that faithfully, intelligently, and lovingly heed the motto: "Save the Babies," and thus stop the worst and most cruel waste in the world.

FLOUR MARKET REMAINS LIFELESS

Minneapolis, Minn., Aug. 17.—The Northwestern Millers' Weekly Review of the flour trade says:
The flour market has remained lifeless, as buyers have refused to follow the slight advances in flour prices due to the strength of cash wheat. Even with these advances flour is now cheaper than at any time since last November, with the exception of a few days late in July. The revival of trade in wheat futures is apparently holding flour prices down to the benefit of the public, but to the indignation of the farmer.

The mill feed market is more active, owing to scarcity of supplies and the desire of the buyers to get shipments before freight rates go up. The flour output has materially improved in the past week. The Kansas, Oklahoma hard winter wheat mills reporting an output representing sixty three per cent. of capacity, the Ohio Valley soft winter wheat mills, forty-seven and a half, and the spring wheat mills, forty-five.

Branch of the Red Cross Formed

Meeting Held at Buctouche Recently Was Addressed by Miss Bertha Ruddock—Branch Formed and Officers Elected.

At a meeting held at Buctouche recently the first branch of the Red Cross formed under the new peace time policy was formed. A well attended meeting was held which was addressed by Miss Bertha Ruddock, the traveling representative of the N. B. Division of the Canadian Red Cross Society. Her remarks were listened to with close attention and it was decided to organize a branch of the Red Cross for the district. One member struck the keynote of the peace time policy by saying "Disease is our worst enemy now. We sent money to fight the Germans. Why not work to fight disease which is all about us?"

The following officers were elected: President—Mrs. G. Michaud. Vice Pres.—Mrs. Henry Irvine. Sec.—Mrs. A. Dymart. Committee Ways and Means—Mrs. Dr. Delaney, Mrs. Felix Michaud, Miss Emma McLaughlin, Mr. A. Dymart, Mr. H. Irvine, Mrs. A. Legere, Dr. LeBlanc, Mr. Burrows, Mr. A. Rolichand. Knitting Committee—Mrs. LeBlanc, Mrs. P. M. Legere, Mrs. M. Bourke, Mrs. McLaughlin.

Miss Ruddock's lectures are being heard with much interest and her experience of how the Red Cross is organizing so as to be ready for any emergency is showing people that patriotic work by no means ended with the war. The lecture plan has been very successful and great things are hoped for from this first branch formed. Their efforts in the aid of public health will set an example which is hoped many other towns may follow.

Connie Plans To Buy Up A Winner

Connie Mack, Manager of the Athletics, is going to buy a winner if he can't get one any other way. The long, lean leader of the Mackmen has dug out of his old sock a real chunk of cash and he swears he will equal Babe Ruth's home-run record this year. To date Brewer has had 20 circuit clouts, which is the greatest number ever made on the circuit.

Clark Griffith who has one of the best first-batters in the big leagues in Joe Judge, the Corona boy, is also bidding for the services of Brewer. Mack apparently has more cash to offer.

Modern Ball.

Players running bases under America Cup rules would simply go through the motions and the umpire would give a guess to whether they would have reached the sacks in time or not. In this way risk of spiking would be eliminated.

MEANEST MAN.

Herold Lloyd asserts that he once worked for the meanest man in Montana. "I was just a kid," says the Holm Film Company comedian, "and I had been working for this old skin-flint over a year without a rest. I kept asking him for a vacation and he kept putting me off.

I drove over to a neighboring town with a load of shingles. The horses got scarce at a street car and ran off throwing me high and dry for a broken leg. And as I lay in the hospital the next morning I received a collect telegram from the boss saying: "Your vacation started yesterday."

Will 400 Hitter Be Found This Year?

Sisler, Speaker, Jackson and Ruth All Nearing Coveted Mark.

Will we have a .400 hitter this season?

It looks that way with four sluggers—Sisler, Speaker, Jackson and Ruth—all hovering around the .400 mark. The first three were hitting above the supreme figure a few days ago, and the mighty Babe was climbing fast with resounding wallops.

By Cobb was the last to hit .400. He might be up and about this season, but for injuries and sickness. Cobb hit over .400 since the game first got 1914. Jackson, then with Cleveland, hit .400 the same year.

LeJole, that graceful slugger of a few years ago, holds the modern record mark of .422, made in 1901. Willie Keeler of the old Baltimore Orioles hit 'em where they ain't at the rate of .432 in 1897.

There have been fourteen men to hit over .400 since the game first got its start in 1871. Fifteen players hit above that prize mark in 1887, when "Tip" O'Neill hit for the astounding figure of .492. However, in justice to the players of today, it must be explained that a base on balls counted as a hit that year and the batter was allowed four strikes and six balls.

Also the four strike rule was not in vogue. With the same rules in operation today, Babe Ruth, who is walked so often, would be hitting over .600.

It can be plainly seen from the number of high hitting marks this season that the ban against "doped" pitching is having its effect.

"These international contests do no good," said a yachtsman today. "What possible advantage can there be when the committee evidently just want drifting matches?"

MILK AND WHISKEY MAKE GOOD DRINK

Moncton, Aug. 16.—A local Ivory stable proprietor, who is also in the milk business, was charged in the police court, today, with delivering whiskey as well as milk to his customers. A woman testified that milk and whiskey had been delivered at her house by the accused. His case was adjourned for further evidence.

Quebec, Aug. 16.—(Canadian Press) Seaman did not get started on his mission to the Prince. He made his way instead to the servants' quarters and knocked at the door of the butler's sitting-room. There was no reply. He tried the door in vain. The door was locked. A tall, gruff-faced man in a scotch kilt came out from an adjoining apartment.

"You are looking for the person who arrived this evening from abroad, sir?" he enquired.

"I am," Seaman replied. "Has he looked himself in?"

"He has not the Hall, sir?"

"Let!" Seaman repeated. "Do you mean gone away for good?"

"Apparently, sir, do not understand his language myself, but I believe he considered his reception here, for some reason or other, unfavorable. He took advantage of the car which went down to the station for the evening papers and caught the last train."

Seaman was silent for a moment. The news was a shock to him. "What is your position here?" he asked his informant.

"My name is Reynolds, sir," was the respectful reply. "I am Mr. Peckham's servant."

"Can you tell me why, if this man has left the door here is locked?"

"Mr. Parkins looked at him before he went out, sir. He accompanied—Mr. Miller, I think his name was—to the station."

Seaman had the air of a man not wholly satisfied.

"It is usual to lock up a sitting-room in this fashion?" he asked.

"Mr. Parkins always does it, sir. The cabinets of cigars are kept there, also the wine-cellar key and the key of the plate chest. None of the other servants use the room except at Mr. Parkins' invitation."

"I understand," Seaman said, as he turned away. "Much obliged for your information, Reynolds. I will speak to Mr. Parkins later."

"I will let him know that you desire to see him, sir."

"Good night, Reynolds!"

"Good night, sir!"

Seaman passed back again to the crowded hall and billiard-room, and exchanged a few remarks here and there, and made his way up the southern flight of stairs towards the west wing. Stephanie connected without hesitation in front of the fire, reading a novel, in a bodice opening out of her bed-room.

"Princess," Seaman declared, with a low bow, "we are in despair at your desertion."

She put down her book.

"I have been insulted in this house," she said, "tomorrow I leave it."

Seaman shook his head reproachfully.

"Your Highness," he continued, "believe me, I do not wish to presume upon my position, but I am only a German tradesman, admitted to the circle like these for reasons connected solely with the welfare of my country. Yet I know much, as it happens, of the truth of the matter, and the matter which is causing you distress. I beg you to reconsider your decision. Our friend here is, I think, needlessly hard upon himself. So many of his friends will be his reward when the end comes. So much the greater will be the rapture with which he will throw himself on his knees before you."

"Has he sent you to reason with me?"

"Not directly. I am to a certain extent, however, in confidence in this enterprise. I brought him from Africa. I have watched over him from the start. Two brains are better than one. I try to show him where to avoid mistakes. I try to point out the paths of danger and of safety."

"I should imagine Sir Everard finds you useful," she remarked calmly.

"I hope he does."

"It has doubtless occurred to you," she continued, "that our friend has accommodated himself wonderfully to English life and customs."

"You must remember that he was educated here. Nevertheless, his aptitude has been marvellous."

"One might almost call him super-natural," she agreed. "Tell me, Mr. Seaman, you seem to have been completely successful in the installation of our friend here as Sir Everard."

"What is going to be his real value to you? What work will he do?"

"We are keeping him for the big things. You have seen our gracious master lately?"

"I know what is at the back of your mind," she replied. "Yes! Before the summer is over I am to pack up my trunk and go to the States."

"It is then that time comes," Seaman said impressively, "that we expect Sir Everard Dominay, the typical English country gentleman, whose loyalty there has never been a word of doubt, to be of use to us. Most of our present helpers will be under suspicion. The authorized staff of our secret service can only work underground. You can see for yourself the advantage we gain in having a confidential correspondent who can day by day report the changing psychology of the British mind in all its phases. We have quite enough of the other sort of help arranged for. Plans of ships, aerodromes and harbors, saltings of convoys, calling up of soldiers—all these are the A. B. C. of the secret service profession. We shall never lack our friend here for a single instant, but from his town house in Berkeley Square, the host of Cabinet Ministers, of soldiers, of the best brains of the country, our fingers will never leave the pulse of Britain's day by day life."

Stephanie threw herself back in her easy-chair and clasped her hands behind her head.

"These things you are expecting from our present host?"

"We are, and we expect to get them. I have watched him day by day. My confidence in him has grown."

Stephanie was silent. She sat looking upon the fire. Seaman, keenly observant as always, realized the change in her, yet found something of mystery in her new detachment of manner.

"Your Highness," he urged, "I am sure here to speak on behalf of the who at heart is, I know, your lover. He will plead his own cause when the time comes. But I am here to plead for patience, I am here to implore you to take no rash step, to

CHAPTER XXIII.

Seaman did not at once start on his mission to the Princess. He made up his mind to wait until the quarters were quiet and knocked at the door of the butler's sitting-room. There was no reply. He tried the handle in vain. The door was locked. A tall, grave-faced man in a sombre black suit came out from an adjoining apartment.

"You are looking for the person who arrived this evening from abroad, sir?" he enquired.

"I am," Seaman replied. "Has he locked himself in?"

"He has left the Hall, sir."

"Left?" Seaman repeated. "Do you mean gone away for good?"

"Your Highness," he continued, "behave me, I do not wish to presume upon my position. I am only a German tradesman, admitted to circles like these for reasons connected solely with the welfare of my country. Yet I know much, as it happens, of the truth of this matter, the matter which is causing you distress. I beg you to reconsider your decision. Our friend here is, I think, needlessly hard upon himself. So much the greater will be his reward when he comes. So much the greater will be the rapture with which he will throw himself on his knees before you."

"Not directly. I am to a certain extent, however, his major-domo in this enterprise. I brought him from Africa. I have watched over him from the start. Two houses are better than one. I try to show him where to avoid mistakes, I try to point out the paths of danger and of safety."

"I should imagine Sir Everard finds you useful," she remarked calmly.

"I hope he does."

"You must remember that he was educated here. Nevertheless, his aptitude has been marvellous."

"One might almost call it supernatural," she remarked. "You say, Seaman, you seem to have been completely successful in the installation of our friend here as Sir Everard. What is going to be his real value to you? What will he do?"

"We are keeping him for the big things. You have seen our gracious master lately?" he asked hesitatingly.

"I know what is at the back of your mind," she replied. "Yes! Before the summer is over I am to pack up my trunks and fly. I understand."

"It is when that time comes," Seaman said impressively, "that we expect Sir Everard Dominey, the typical English country gentleman, of whose loyalty there has never been a word of doubt, to be of use to us. Most of our present helpers will be under suspicion. The authorized staff of our secret service can only work underground. You can see for yourself the advantage we gain in having a confidential correspondent who can day by day reflect the changing psychology of the British mind in all its phases. We have quite enough of the other sort of help arranged for. Plans of ships, aeroplanes and harbors, salutes of convoys, calling up of soldiers, small these are the A. B. C. of the secret service. We shall never ask our friend here for a single cent, but from his town house in Berkeley Square, the host of Cabinet Ministers, of soldiers, of the best brains of the country, our fingers will never leave the pulse of Britain's day by day life."

Stephanie threw herself back in her easy-chair and clasped her hands behind her head.

"These things you are expecting from our present host?"

Stephanie was silent. She sat looking into the fire. Suddenly, a kindly old servant as always, realised the change in her, yet found something of mystery in her new detachment of manner.

"Your Highness," he urged, "I am sure here to speak on behalf of the man who at heart is, I know, your lover. He will plead his own cause when the time comes. But I am here to plead for ourselves. I am here to implore you to take no rash step, to do nothing which might imperil in any way his position here. I stand outside the gates of the world which you can make a paradise. I am no judge of the things that happen there. But in your heart I feel there is bitterness, because the man for whom you care has chosen to place his country first. I implore your patience, Princess. I implore you to believe what I know so well—that it is the sternest sense of duty only which is the foundation of Leopold von Ragnstein's obstinate attitude."

"What are you afraid that I shall do?" she asked curiously.

"I am afraid of nothing—directly," he answered.

"Indirectly, then? Answer me, please."

"I am afraid," he admitted frankly, "that in some corner of the world, if not in this country, you might while for some reason or other, unfavorable, take advantage of the car which went down to the station for the evening papers and caught the last train."

Seaman was silent for a moment. The news was a shock to him.

"What is your position here?" he asked the informant.

"My name is Reynolds, sir," was the respectful reply. "I am Mr. Peckham's servant."

"Can you tell me why, if this man has left, the door here is locked?"

"Mr. Parkins locked it before he went out, sir. He accompanied Mr. Miller, I think his name was—to the station."

Seaman had the air of a man not wholly satisfied.

"Is it usual to lock up a sitting-room in this fashion?" he asked.

"Mr. Parkins always does it, sir. The cabinets of cigars are kept there, also the wine-cellar key and the key of the photo chest. None of the other servants use the room except at Mr. Parkins' invitation."

"I understand," Seaman said, as he turned away. "Much obliged for your information, Reynolds. I will speak to Mr. Parkins, sir."

"I will let him know that you desire to see him, sir."

"Good night, Reynolds!"

"Good night, sir!"

Seaman passed back again to the crowded hall and billiard-room, exchanged a few remarks here and there, and made his way up the southern flight of stairs towards the west wing. Stephanie considered without hesitation to receive him. She was seated in front of the fire, reading a novel, in a boudoir opening out of her bedroom.

"Princess," Seaman declared, with a low bow, "we are in despair at your desertion."

She put down her book.

"I have been insulted in this house," she said. "Tomorrow I shall leave it."

Seaman shook his head reproachfully.

"Your Highness," he continued, "behave me, I do not wish to presume upon my position. I am only a German tradesman, admitted to circles like these for reasons connected solely with the welfare of my country. Yet I know much, as it happens, of the truth of this matter, the matter which is causing you distress. I beg you to reconsider your decision. change," Dominey observed, swinging round as a single Frenchman with a hat which crossed the hedge behind them and fell a little distance away, a crumpled heap of feathers. "No, I think," he added, turning to his companion.

"Marvellous!" Seaman replied, with faint sarcasm, "I envy your nerve."

"I cannot take this matter very seriously," Dominey acknowledged. "The fellow seemed to me quite harmless."

"My anxieties have also been aroused in another direction," Seaman confided.

"Any other trouble looming?" Dominey asked.

"You will find yourself minus another guest when you return this afternoon."

"The Princess?" Seaman asked.

"The Princess," Seaman asserted, "I did my best with her last night, but I found her in a most peculiar frame of mind. We are to be relieved of her anxiety concerning her for some time, however. She has decided to take a sea voyage."

"Where to?"

"Africa."

Dominey paused in the act of inserting a cartridge into his gun. He turned slowly around and looked into his companion's expressionless face.

"Why the mischief is she going out there?" he asked.

"She must tell you that," Seaman replied, "than why Johann Wolff was sent over here to spy upon our perfect work. I am most unhappy, my friend. The things which I understand, however, threatening they are, I do not fear. Things which I do not understand oppress me."

Dominey laughed quietly.

"Come," he said, "there is nothing here so serious as to threaten our position. The Princess is angry, but she is not likely to give us away. This man Wolff could make no adverse report about either of us. We are doing our job and doing it well. Let our clear consciences console us."

"That is well," Seaman replied, "but I feel uneasy. I must not stay here any longer. Too intimate an association between you and me is unwise."

"Well, I think I can be trusted," Dominey observed, "even if I am to be left alone."

"I have every respect except as regards the Princess," Seaman admitted, "your department has been most discreet."

"Except as regards the Princess," Dominey repeated irritably. "Really, my friend, cannot you understand your point of view in this matter. You could not expect me to mix up a secret homecoming with my present commitments."

"There might surely have been some middle way?" Seaman persisted.

"You show so much tact in other matters," Dominey muttered.

Rosamund joined them to turn, bringing news of Stephanie's sudden departure, with notes and messages for everybody. Caroline made a little grimace at her host.

"You're in trouble!" she whispered in his ear. "All the same, I approve. I like Stephanie, but she is an exceedingly dangerous person."

"I don't know whether she is," Dominey mused.

"I think men have generally found her so," Caroline replied, "which had one wonderful love affair, which ended in a duel and her lover being banished from the country. Still, she is not like the sort of woman to be content with a banished lover. I fancied I noticed distinct signs of her being willing to replace him whilst she has been down here."

"I feel as though a blight had settled upon my house party," Dominey remarked, with a faint irreverence.

"Fancy Eddy and Mr. Ludwig Miller and now Stephanie?"

"And who on earth was Mr. Ludwig Miller?" Caroline enquired.

"He was a fat, flaxen-haired German who brought me messages from old friends in Africa. He had no luggage, but a walking stick, and he seems to have upset the male part of my domestic life last night by accepting a bed and then disappearing."

"With the plate?"

"Not a thing missing. Parkins spent an agonized half hour, counting everything. Mr. Ludwig appears to be one of the most mysterious characters which go to make up an imperfect world."

"Well, we've had a jolly time," Caroline said reminiscently. "Tomorrow here and I are to go and suppose the other. I must say on the whole I am delighted with our visit."

"You are very gracious," Dominey murmured.

"I am sure, perhaps, expecting to see a little more of you," she went on deliberately, "but there is a very great compensation for my disappointment. I think your wife, Everard, is worth a double shot. She is a perfectly sweet, and her manners are most attractive."

"I am very glad you think that," he said warmly.

She looked away from him.

"Everard," she sighed, "I believe you are in love with your wife."

There was a strange, almost a terrible mixture of expressions in his face as he answered—a certain fear, a certain fondness, a certain almost desperate resignation. Even his voice, as a rule so slow and measured, shook with an emotion which amazed his companion.

"I believe I am," he muttered. "I am afraid of my feelings for her. It may bring even another tragedy down upon us."

"Don't talk rubbish!" Caroline exclaimed. "What tragedy could come between you now? You've recovered your balance. You are a strong, steadfast person, just fitted to be the protector of anything so sweet and charming as Rosamund. Tragedy, indeed! Why don't you take her down to the South of France, Everard, and have your honeymoon all over again?"

"I can't do that just yet."

She studied him curiously. There were times when he seemed wholly incomprehensible to her.

"Are you still worried about that Undank affair?" she asked.

He hesitated for a moment.

"There is still an aftermath to our troubles," he told her, "one cloud which leans over us. I shall clear it up in time—but other things may happen first."

COMBINED PICNIC GREATLY ENJOYED

The annual combined picnic of St. Peter's and Holy Trinity churches was held yesterday on the Bishop's grounds at Ferryburn. The Committee in charge report that it was a great success. The Sunday school children, headed by the City Cornet band, paraded to the depot in a body and went out to the grounds on the 10.30 train. Large crowds went out on the afternoon trains at 12.30 and 2.30, and the returning trains in the evening were also loaded to capacity. It was very warm during the afternoon; in fact too warm for comfort. However, it caused a great business for the refreshment booths and they did a rushing trade. The many other games and amusements provided were also very popular. His Lordship Bishop LeBlanc, Mar. Walsh and many priests of the parishes in the city were in attendance.

The Board of Health has received word from the office of the Deputy Postmaster General that mail relating to vital statistics will go free of postage in the closing hours of the last session of the Parliament.

However, a notification was received from the Deputy Minister yesterday, saying that the promised remedial measure had been put into the act. The following is the text of the communication:

With reference to the departmental circular No. 84 of the 8th of July, in regard to provincial franking privileges being abolished, postmasters are informed that the portion of section 150, page 99, of the 1920 postal guide relating to vital statistics has been retained. Section 150 of the regulations as amended reads as follows:

Forms used by clergymen, medical men and others, when making returns of marriages, births, and deaths, and (Province of Quebec) parish registers containing written entries of births and marriages and interments, which clergymen send each year to the Prothonotary of their district, and which the Prothonotary sends back to the clergymen, are allowed to pass free of postage; but, if said registration is required, the usual charge of 10 cents must be prepaid by stamps in every case.
