late a knowledge of its merits, yet such is the saisaction manifested by that portion of the Public who have been made acquainted with its character and contents, that its list of patrons continues contents, that its list of patrons continues contents, that its list of patrons continues contently and rapidly to increase. This paper is now listributed regularly every week over a wide porion of the Union, and the most satisfactory assures are received that it will eventually become ine of the union paper in the American press. No exertions will be spared to establish its permanent reputation more extensively; and if the liberal sanction of those for whom it is especially designed shall warrant, its future maprovement—both as regards typographical neatness and embellishment—will be materially advanced.

APOSTROPHE TO THE APPROACHING COMET.

From the London New Monthy for May.

"It may be considered as telerably certain, that the comet will become visible in every part of Europe about the latter end of August or beginning of Sept. next. On the night of the 3d of October, about midnight, it will appear in the East, at an elevation of about thirty degrees; and will be a little above a line joining the bright star called Castor with the star called the a, in the Great Bear. Between that hour and sunrise it will ascend the firmament, and will cross the meridien near the zenith of London about noon." Edinburgh Review

Must be consumed baked burnt to cinders? Is it?

Or green-each deep ere long will be a Red-sea

One quarter more - and show us no more quarter

(And be it fact of falsehood, I've no share in't,)

That men shall see a strange and fearful birth-

That thou, O Comet! wilt become a-parent?

For have not several "pages" brought us here

A piece of news too heavy for a porter-

That thou, within a quarter, wilt appear-

Is it not stated, to astound all earth,

SONG. THE TAKING OF THE SALMON. From Stoddard's Artof Angling in Scotland. A birr! a whirr! a salmon's on, A goodly fish! a thumper! Bring up, bring up the ready gaff, And if we land him, we shall quaff Another glorious bumper ! Hark ! 'tis the music of the reel, The strong, the quick, the steady ;

The line darts from the active wheel,

SAINT ANDREWS

NEW-BRUNSWICK.

Mave all things right and ready. A birr ! a whirr ! the salmon's out, Far on the rushing river, Onward he holds with sudden leap Or plunges through the whirlpool deep, A desperate endeavour!

Hark to the music of the rest! The fitful and the grating; It pants along the breathless wheel, Now hurried-now abating.

A birr! a whirr! the salmon's off !-No, no, we still have got him ; The wily fish is sullen grown, And, like a bright imbedded stone, Lies gleaming at the bottom. Hark to the music of the reel 'Tis hush'd, it hath forsaken; With care we'll guard the magic wheal, Until its notes rawaken.

A birr ! a whirr ! the salmon's up, Give line, give line and measure But now he turns? keep down ahead, And lead him as a child is led. And land him at your leisure. Hark to the music of your reel! 'Tis welcome, it is glorious ; It wanders through the winding wheel, Returning and victorious.

A birr ! a whirr ! the salmon's in, Upon the bank extending : The princely fish is gasping slow, His brilliant colors come and go, All beautifully blended. Hark to the music of the neel, It murmurs and it closes Silence is on the conquering wheel,

Its wearied line reposes. No birr ! no whirr ! the salmon's ours, The noble fish-the thumper Strike through his gill the ready gaff, And bending homewards, we shall quaff

Another glorious bumper Hark to the music of the reel, We listen with devotion; There's something in that circling wheel That wake's the hearts emotion !

SONG. From Stoddart's art of Angling in Scotland. Bring, oh bring the osier creel ! Bring me flies of fifty kinds,

All things right and tight,

Trailer red and bright,

Casts of midges bring

With a gaudy wing

Dark and wily dropper-

Made of plover hackle,

And a cob-web tackle.

Show me where the alder grows,

To them lead me, quiexly lead,

Watches round an eddy,

Pointed up and ready,

On the surface wheeling

From his safe concealing.

" There as with a pleasant friend

I the happy hours will spend

O'er the dark and chancy nook,

Every motion awaying,

Bring me rod and reel,

Bring the osier creel,

Flies of every feather,

Where the trout are playing;

Send me glorion weather.

The Bargor Whig states that a small lot

Urging on the subtle hook.

With a hand expert,

And on the alert

Reeds and rushes, moss and mead,

Lead where the river flows.

Where the rooing trout.

With his eager snout

Tempts him rising sly

Till a careless fly

All things well and proper,

Bring me showers, and clouds, and winds,

Check not your sorrow-call it incontrolable : Grief may be disagreeable-yet endure-It grows more pleasant when it's inconsolable,

Whee'er is not horror-stricken, hums ; Let him think only of the earth's destroying; A quarter's misery ere the comet comes He thus, at least, is certain of enjoying.

Mine he sweet wrotchethes and Mear despair ; Long for this weight of woe I've been a waiter; Troubles we've had, 'tis true, and "tails" to spare-But none like thine, Celestral Agitator!

Talk not of fierce Lord Durham -- hot brain'd Hume-Give each his tail, and fate may save us from it; What jack-o' lanterns make us mortals fume d-Of Cobbett think not-think upon the comet!

Why, what's O'Connell? Him we may defy, With All his "joints," to shake us in our beds; For Ireland's self may now in candor cry,

"Ye little tails, hide your diminished heads!" A great enlightener, bidding others cease, Will wag a tail of fire ere summer ceases; Then will the house divide-then England's peace Will end in England split into two pieces!

I care not what the Tories now endure, Nor what the whigs have got, nor who have bo't em; For when the Radicles will come in sure-Who' will, I ask, insure the Thames next autumn

Oh, Press ! prodigious "organ," cease to blew Your bellows, while the fiery foe's about; But rather as a mighty "engine" show How we're to put the coming comet out.

I feel its heat-its glare is on my cye. So ends "my tale," another's within reach-My pen is shrivel'd, and my ink is dry! From the Treaton Emperium and American. COLONIAL.

WE The Lundrsigned having heard that rumours are affoat detrimental to the character of the Branch Pilots out of the Port of St. Andrews N. B. as a Body, think it necessary to state that several qualified Pilots, at Sundry times, offered their services in the line of their profession, to Masters Commanding vessels owned by Nehemiah Marks, Esquice, and that these services have been uniformly rejected. On a recent occasion Capit, Huitton of the Nehemiah, in reply to several of our number who offered him their services, stated that Mr. Marks would not allow him to take a pilot as the vessel was not insured. We are of opinion that in consequence of the Nehemiah having no Branch Pilot on board, she went ashore on Saturday the 29th August last.

The use of the term "resolute," and the manner in which it was caught up and cheered by the house, sufficiently indicate the temper of the house, and the intentions of government with regard to the intentions of government with regard to the measure. The further postponement of the supplies also indicates a steady determination on the part of the present administration not to be undermined by their opponents. It is clear that the members of the Cabinet, who, no doubt, have good information of what is passing in the enemy's camp, anticipate the necessity of guarding against surprise.
