Sabbath in the Country. The creaking waggon's in the shed. The busy flail is heard no more The horse is littered down and fed, The harness hangs above his head,

His leathern gloves and hooked bill To-day the woodman throws aside The blacksmith's fiery forge is still. The wooden wheel of the old mill Sleeps by the mill-dam wide.

The whip behind the door.

The miller's boat is anchored where, Far out, the water-lilies sleep; You see their shadows mirrored there, The broad white flowers reflected clear. Within the mill-pond deep.

The harrow's in the garden shed, Hoe, rake, and spade are put away ; Unweeded stands the onion bed, The gardener from his work hath fled; 'Tis holy Sabbath day.

Upon the wall the white cat sleeps. By which the churn and milk-pans lie A drowsy watch the house-dog keeps, And scarcely from his dull eye peeps Upon the passer-by.

And sweetly over hill and dale The silvery-sounding church bells ring; Across the moor and down the dale They come and go, and on the gale Their Sabbath tidings fling.

From where the white-washed Sabbath-school Peeps out between the poplars dim, Which ever throw their shadows cool Far out upon the rushy pool, You hear the Sabbath hymn.

From farm and field, and grange grown gray From woodland walks and winding ways, The old and young, the grave and gay, Unto the old church come to pray, And sing God's holy praise.

About dawn vesterday morning our pickets in front of Lamar's battery were driven in, and almost simultaneously the enemy's column were seen some four hundred yards off, advancing with the bayonet, at double quick, to the assault. Our troops within the battery had been hard at work the evening before in throwing up another battery, and were almost worn out with fatigue. The first round that was fired at the Yankees was by Colonel T. G., Lamar himself. His men hasteled with alserity to their pieces, and were soon pouring grape and cannister against the frapidity approaching enemy. At each discharge great gaps were visible in the Yankee ranks, but sill they came on without firing a single voiley, it was afterwards ascertained that their muskets?

> The present critical state of European affairs render these publications unusually interesting during the forthcoming year. They will occupy a middle ground between the hastily written news-items, crude speculations, and flying rumons of the daily journal, and the ponderous tone of the future historian, written after the living interest and excitement of the great political events of the time shall have passed away. It is to these periodicals that readers must look for the only really intelligible and reliable history of current events, and as such in addition to their well established literary, scientific, and theological character we arge them upon the consideration of the reading public.

The Mother's Reply to " Rock me to Sleep." My child, my child! thou art weary to-night Thy spirit is sad, and dim is the light;

Thou would'st call me back from the To the trials of life, to thy heart as of yore; Thou longest again for the loving care, For my kiss on thy lips, my hand on thy hair, But angels around thee their loving watch keep,

And angels, n d;will "rock thee to sleep."

"Backward?" av Onward, ye swift-rolling Gird on thy armer! Dry up thy tears!

Count not thy trias, nor efforts, in vain, They'll bring thee the light of thy childho again. Ye should not weary, my child, by the way,

But watch for the light of that brighter day Not tired of "sowing for others to reap,"
For angels, my child, will "rock thee to slee Tired, my child, of the "base, the untrue,"

O, I have tasted the cup they give you, Felt the deep sorrow in the living green Of a low mossy grave by a silvery stream; But the dear mother I sought for in vain, Is an angel presence, and with me again: And in the still night, from the silence so deep, Come the bright angels to "Rock thee to sleep." Nearer thee now than in days that are flown,

Purer the love light encircling thy home, Far more enduring the watch for to night, Than even earth-worship away from the light
