CAPTIVE BALLOONS TO DISCOVER MOVES

A New Feature of Warfare - All Paris Awaits Result With Calm - German Army Showing Great Patience and Fortitude.

[By Special Wire to the Courier] PARIS, Oct. 7.-Captive balmovements of the allied armies and powerful searchlights to point out the positions and to blind the defense during night attacks are being used by the Germans in the battle to the north and east of Paris, which is still without defimite result.

Military science is frequently lost sight of, and the contest becomes merely the hurling of forces against one another.

Night combats have become an element in the action. They are telling on the stamina of the troops on each side, many of whom already are worn out on the firing line in the seemingly unending struggle.

The French public, who throughout have shown calm, are patiently awaiting a decision. The changing actions at various points along the battle line, as indicated by the war office statement, fur-nish opportunity for diversified comment as to their significance.

Lieut. Col. Rousset, the military critic of La Liberte, sees in the latest manoeuvres of the Germans somewhat of the daring. A large spreading movement on the flank of an adversary, he says, can have the inconvenience, generally grave of enlarging the space which exists between the moving troops and those on the front. This must necessarily have a reasonable limit under the risk of transforming the plan into a detached operation simply, which would be very perilous for those executing it. Such a movement, moreover, says Lieut.-Col. Rousset, has hardly a chance of succeeding, and onso when not discovered, which loes not appear to be the case, judging from the war office statementing on the situation, declares that the material organization of unanimous in saying that the Ger-mans have had excellent practical instruction, and that from a technical point of view, they fight with a remarkable method.

The Germans know, he says, how to be patient and to wait They realize the ground with real art. There they make themselves invisible, and give many a grue-some surprise to the impetuousity of the French. Their machine guns are very numerous and sometimes grouped. They have one company of machine guns per regiment. They are always hidden, often set at the edge of woods, seeking to have an oblique fire.

The Germans first lines of march, General Cherfils continues, are covered with sheaves of corn or are well concealed otherwise. In the advance of them are their eite marksmen. Nearly all the French officers who lost their lives says the general, were killed by these firers, who always were hid-den. Their junction with diverse units is complete, and the accord between the artillery and infantry s of a permanent intimacy. The infantry advances only when sup-

If their technical supremacy is manifest, their moral inferiority, he says, stands out. They fight only two or four against one, and nearly always flee in front of the

[By Special Wire to the Courier] LONDON, Oct. 7.-The correspondent of The Post in Petrograd, in a disquisition contrast-ing Russian and German strategy to the disadvantage of the latter, "Instead of following sound military principles of seeking out the enemy's strength and endea-vering to smash it, the Germans seem to follow the lines of least resistance. Whether this is the result of basing war upon the ex-periences of the parade grounds and manoeuvres arranged beforehand, it is difficult to say, but certainly the German army is only "Both of the great German de-feats, in Galicia and in Western Russia, exemplify the same de-feat in tactics of following the line of least resistance. In both cases the Russians caught them in precisely the same trap. In the latter case the Russians left a gap of twenty miles open like a mouse trap door, and the Germans marched gaily in. They found no opposition until they met an un-pleasant surprise at the fanastic bends of the River Niemen, and while trying to force the Niemen,

IS A RAID ON CITY OF LONDON BEING PLANNED BY ZEPPELIN?

LONDON, Oct. 7.-In a despatch from The Hague, the correspondent of the Daily Express says that German newspapers reaching there indicate that Count Zeppelin is now at Wilhelmshaven, on the North Sa, with his staff. Wilhelmshaven is the point from which the great raid on the British Isles is to start. One of these papers publishes an interview with the Count, in which he is quoted as saying that he had not forgotten England, and would prove it

It is also reported, the correspondent of the Express continues, that Count Zeppelin was summoned recently by Emperor William to Mainz. The Emperor said to the Count that he relied on him for a great work, and offered to make him commander-in-chief of the German air fleet. The Count smilingly refused, but said he would accept the title when he returned from

IBy Special Wire to the Courier]

LONDON, Oct. 7.—(1:10 p.m.) -The conflict along the rivers of Northern France, although now in its twenty-sixth day, shows fewer signs of an early end than it did two days ago.
Then General Von Kluck appeared dangerously threatened by the enveloping movement of the allied armies. To-day that resourceful commander, having obtained fro man unknown quarter heavy reinforcements, is apparently engaged, in his turn, in at-tempting to outflank the French and British lines.

This counter stroke is viewed here as the supreme feature in the situation in the western theatre of the war, and its full significance can be gauged only by the actors, who alone are privileged to witness the drama in which they are engaged. Simultaneously with his newlylaunched turning movement, Gen-eral Von Kluck has been trying to cut right through the centre of the Allies' extended left at Lassigny. The official French com-munication says that this attempt was foiled, but it is not doubted that the effort will be renewed, and in the event of success it would compel the left wing of the French army to retire towards the coast in order to escape the Ger-man lines stretching out simultaneously from the north and east. The fighting in this neigh-borhood, described in the official French report as "more and more violent," must, it is believed, reach to Antwerp and largely influence the fate of that fortress. The surest way of raising the siege of the temporary Belgian capital would be the success of the French turning movement on the

Neither the German or French commanders have claimed any decision in this unprecedented strug-gle. Indeed, the German report states that nothing decisive has yet resulted from the attacks and counter-attacks in the district ex-tending from Lille to Roye by way of Lens, Arras and Albert. Allies Are Relieving and Resting Their Men in Many Places-Summary of War News is Very Indefinite Again To-day.

LONDON, Oct. 7 .- (10.20 a.m. -With the exception of the left wing of the allied army, where there is reason to believe that lively actions are being fought, the great battle front in the western arena of the war, may to-day be described as a gigantic "sniping" engagement in which riflemen have been replaced by batteries of heavy artillery masked along the heights of the Aisne and the Meuse. These desultory artillery duels seem to have succeeded the desperate infantry chargs with which, during the servers of the heatle it was early stages of the battle, it was sought to clear out the extended lines of entrenched troops on either side. One result of the present stage of operations has been a very appreciable diminution in the casualties. Observers recently at the front declare that the allies are well content to play this waiting game; they now outnumber the Germans and for this reason can give their troops rest, while the invaders must keep their men constantly in the trenches. The most important develop-ment of the fighting in France is the reported movement of a German army, said to be 20,000 strong, southward through Belgium by way of Temple Neuve, and Tournai, in the direction of the French border. Belgian mili-tary critics predicted recently that the allies would meet disas-ter if they stretched their line on the left wing too far, and it is be-lieved here that the Germans are now seeking to crush the enveloping movement which remorseless-ly has been closing around General Von Kluck, the commander. of the German right, for the past three weeks. The latest official Paris communication ignores this movement. It declares that the situation in this locality remains the same, but admits that the fighting along the left wing north of the Oise is becoming more and more violent. Calm prevails in the center, with the allies gaining a little ground in the northern part of the heights of the Meuse.

forth that the Russians are attroops reported to be advancing from Semlin, but this seems hard ly likely because of the enormous distance to be covered before these armies can hope to get in touch with each other.

Indirect reports current in London make the declaration that the Russians still are pushing the German forces back in the direction of East Prussia. The Germans are declared to be greatly handicapped in this retiring move ment because of the enormous number of horses, which have dicd in the swampy country around Suwalki. As a consequence much of their artillery has had to be abandoned.

Another whisper of peace has been heard as a result of the efforts of the German peace asso-ciation, whose president has been at The Hague, to bring about a meeting of international pacifists. This meeting, however, is said to have failed because of transportation difficulties. The same reason has led to the abandoning of the attempt to convoke The Hague peace bureau.

It Helped Recruiting in Old Land

LONDON, Sept., 25 (Corres-ondence of Associated Press) pondence of Associated Press)

—At the headuarters of the London recruiting offices, the authorities have compiled a chart which throws an interesting light on the physiology of recruiting. It covers a period between August 11 and ept. 7, when 51,094 men en-listed in London. It shows how recruiting remained at a daily average of 1,200 while the news from the front was not dicquieting; how it rose when the news was not so satisfactory and how it went up with a rush when the casualty list was announced. On Monday, Aug 24, the news was "German advance all along the line" There were 1,481 recruits On Tuesday there was a further advance and the recruits went up to 1547 On Wednesday when it was announced that there were 2,000 casualties at Mons, the figures advanced to 1561. On Thursday, with report of the further retirement of the British troops, 2,000 recruits were added

By Saturday, the 29th, when the news was "British fight against tremendous odds," the total was raised to 2,000 for the day, and even on Sunday, usually a slack day, 1,250 men enlisted. But the following Monday, August 31, when photographs of the first British wounded were printed, recruits resonded with a rush and 4,001 men enlisted. Now that the War Office has had a chance to deal with the first 500,000 recruits for the new army, it is anticipated that before long the standard will be put back to the old level. At the London recruiting headquarters the names and addresses are being taken of thousands of men just under 5 feet, 6 inches, and they are being told to settle down for a few weeks and wait down for a few weeks and wait until they receive a telegram.

An official said it was not that the army did not want to 5 feet, s inch men, but recruiting had-to be damped down somehow to give the War Office a chance to deal with the men and it was decided that the simplest way was to raise the standard.

MONTREAL, Oct. 6.—Considerable grain was offered by local exporters over the cable last night, but the acceptances were few and far between today, as only sales of a few loads of wheat were made. The local market for coarse grain was also quiet, the demand for all lines being limited, but prices show no further change. Business in flour is quiet, both for local and export account and the demand for mill feed is limited. In baled hay the feeling is easier and prices have declined 50c per ton.

Cheese is firm, with a fair demand from local exporters for all offerings.

The butter market is more active, with sales of some round lots of finest creamery to local houses. The trade in eggs is fairly active.

THE SITUATION.

The news from the French front is of the same desperate nature on both sides. There has been practically no advantage to either, and at the same time, it is equally true, no vital setback. The troops of the Kaiser are still making a long-continued and herculean effort to break through the lines of the Allies, and are manifestly massing still more troops for that purpose. For their part, the British and French forces are comporting themselves with equal valiance, and thus Sham Fights on Sunday, Says the struggle of giants keeps up.

The Russians in East Prussia are still consistently successful. In the war with Japan their officers for the most part were a dissolute lot, and the men, although willing and biddable, were often badly, and sometimes criminally, handled. A good commander, although the cruel business of war is to kill, never needlessly sacrifices life, something which was done time and time again at Port Arthur and other points. All this has been clearly charged with results which are astonishing the enemy.

Sir Robert Borden's announcement that the Government will call for a second Canadian contingent of 22,000 men is in accord with the true Canadian spirit. Our boys did splendid work in the Boer war, and once again they can be counted on to give a thoroughly good account of themselves.

HEARST'S INAUGURAL.

As the new Premier of the Province Hon. Mr. Hearst has very properly issued an inaugural address to the

It is a straightforward and manly document, and one which emphasizes the fact that the aim of the new Administration will be to carry on the splendid traditions, objects and achievements such as those attained under the leadership of the late Sir James Whitney. It is also empha-sized that Above all we will maintain unsullied and unimpeached the high standard of clean, honest administration of public affairs set by him." As will be seen by the subject matter of the address elsewhere in this sue, proposed measures are outlined of great practical value, notably the taking of all possible steps for greater food production. Mr. Hearst has already proved himself to be a capable and far-seeing administrator, and that he will worthily wear the mantle of the late lamented Chief is unquestioned. Moreover, he has the sincere support of all his colleagues in the Cabinet, men who have previously proved their worth in no uncertain manner.

ROOSEVELT ON THE SITUATION.

Ex-President Roosevelt must, of course, have his say with reference to anything of world importance, but as he both writes and speaks with virile force, that incident must not be measured up against him. He is now penning a series of articles on "What America Should Learn From the War." In his opening screed he says in part: "In these articles I desire to ask my fellow-countrymen and country-women to consider the various lessons which are being writ in letters of blood and steel before our eyes.

"I wish to ask their consideration, of the immediate need that we shall realize the utter hopelessness under actually existing conditions of our trusting for our safety merely to the good-will of other powers or to treat-ies or other bits of paper or to anything except our own steadfast courage and preparedness.

"Second, I wish to point out what a complicated and difficult thing it is to work for peace and how difficult may be to combine one's duty in the endeavor to bring peace for others without failing in one's duty to secure peace for one's self; and therefore, I wish to point out how unwise it is to make foolish promises which under great strain it would be impossible to keep.

"Third, I wish to try to give practical expression to what I know is the hope of the great body of our people. We should endeavor to devise some slightest use in a serious crisis. Force unbacked by righteousness is abhorrent. The effort to substitute for it vague declamation for righteousness unbacked by force is silly. The policeman must be put back of the judge in international law just as he is back of the judge in municipal law. The effective power of civilization must be put back of civilization's collective pose to secure reasonable justice etween nation and nation.

First, consider the lessons taught v this war as to the absolute need Dr. Gandier Will Not be Tolerated.

[By Special Wire to the Courier] TORONTO, Oct. 7-Principal Gandier of Knox College, the seconder of a resolution whereby the Toronto Presbytery yesterday went on record to the effect that: "There is nothing in the present national situation to warrant "Sunday manoeuvres" asked whether in view of the call asked whether in view of the call for 22,000 men for a second contingent, he would wish to modify the resolution. He candidly stated that he would not.

"Do you think," he was asked, "that the action of the Presbytery is likely to raise an antimilitary spirit through the country?"

"That's what we should like to do," responded Principal Gan-dier. "We don't want a military spirit in Canada. We hate and ab-hor it. I believe of course that hor it. I believe of course, that we should fight for our posiion, but the militry spirit is curse nd we shall try to kill it I wouldn't stand for it for a minute, It would turn this country into a state as bad as Germany at once, If the place is to go military mad, and we are to draw our children and young folks away from the Sunday Schools, and from places that are worth attending, we shall soon have no country worth fighting for."

"When would you train the men?"
Principal Gandied was asked.
"Not on Sunday," he replied.
"Six days a week is plenty."
"Would you take them away from their work?" he was asked.

"Far better take them away from their work," he replied. "Then you would have a prolessional army instead of a citizen army," was suggested to Principal Gandier.

"There is no use arguing the se," he replied. "The question is whether we should spend our Sundays in sham fights, and I don't think we should. We should lose our high moral citizenship and come down to the plane of militarism in Germany at once The announcement of the call by this war as to the absolute need under existing conditions of our being willing, ready and able to defend ourselves from unjust attack. What has befallen Belgium and Luxemburgnot to speak of China—during the past six weeks shows the utter hopelessness of trusting to any treaties, no matter how well-meant, unless back of them lies power sufficient to secure their enforcement."

ROMANCE ALL GONE

London Daily Telegraph.)

In France (name deleted by censor), Oct. 4—Since the beginning of the war I have been in the field with the soldiers of four armies. The two points which chiefly interested me are the strategy of the campaigns and the actual conditions under which the officers and private soldiers fight. The life which not only the men but the officers are called upon to lead in operations such as the battle of the Aisne is monotonous. War is the Aisne is monotonous. War like a huge machine, into which are thrown materials of different sorts to emerge as finished articles, each exactly like the other. The butcher of Rouen and the Norfolk country of Rouen and the Norfolk country squire go into the muddy trench side by side. They sit there a few days and are ordered forward in a blindmans buff of a night attack. They struggle over a few hundred yards of contested ground and disappear to-gether. In the army lists they are then reported as "wounded, missing." Individuality Counts for Nothing

In this war individuality simply loes not count. There are no independent commands. Army corps are brown about like companies. The Colonels and brigade commanders are only subalterns, and many miles behind them, out of sight, the Gen-eral Staff works out the movements of these huge units. No one of less authority than a corps comander has any idea of what is going on.

Romance of Battle Gone. The French army wil fight with all perseverance until the last man is killed, but the joy and romance of the old-time battle is gone, and war has become a business. From what have seen of the German soldiers I do not think they like it. The Germans are credulous people. They have been told their existence is threatened, that their cause is holy, and that they cannot lose, because one can beat the Germans. They nave been herded like sheep to slaughter, while bands play and the Emperor shouts "Deutschland ueber Alles." But they are not fighting on Cooking Stoves Save Their Lives But there is one thing in the Ger-nan soldier's favor. He is Leing made as comfortable as condition permit. His trenches beyond the Aisne were waiting for him. His smokeless travelling cooking stoves are always on hand with something hot. The German soldiers have often told me that these cooking stoves save their lives.

Nerves Don't Trouble British I never realized the shortcoming saw the British at the front. In spite ing the past year, owing no doubt to of the nature of the fighting they have retained their individuality, as a demiciled in their new home. thing for themselves. They still joke and speak in the language of the ring and playing field. They take their ounishment as a market of the kind friends who have so frequently contributed towards making more seriously than they have to.
They know what they are doing—no other army does—they do not let their nerves get the better of them, and the impression they gave me was ar longer than anybody else.

Only the General Staff is getting ny pleasure out of this war, and for it is only intellectual pleasure here is no imagination or romance hatever about it. Greatest Game in the World. Reports are brought in and sifted and weighed against each other, and finally 50,000 troops are sent ward a mile or two in one place cr withdrawn in another. It is all piay ing for position, and trying to think ver satisfaction is still to be had om the war rests with the staff More Congested Fighting Likely. The fighting in France is likely to ecome more congested from week to eek, rather than less so, provided ity, and businesslike methods, the flanking movement of the allies are successful. The German army may be driven from line to line, from e Brussels road to Mona, and from he Mons road to Namur, until at last this army is withdrawn into Ger-many, but Germany is heasth one enormous fortress, protect:d by the most complete system of defences which forty years of thought could levise. Extending from sea to sea, Germany took no chances on any 11.2 s neutrality. She is as much protected against Denmark, Holland, Belgium, Received from the County Extending from sea to sea, Gerwitzerland and Austria, as against Russia and France. Last, Most Desperate Stage Once within its own borders the German army can no longer be outlanked, and in that case we shall see lose formations, indeed, parallels and ountermines and trenches twentyfive yards apart, where one can hear the enemy's soldiers talking, as at Port Arthur. Here we shall see siege operations on a scale not hitherto even imagined. That, in my opinion, will be the last and most desperate will be the last and most desperate stage of the war. method of action, in common with other nations, whereby there shall be at least a reasonable chance of securing world-peace, and in any event of narrowing the sphere of possible war and its horrors.

"To do this it is equally necessary unflinehingly to antagonize the position of the men who believe in nothing but brute force exercised without regard to the rights of other nations, and unhesitatingly to condemn the well-meaning but unwise persons who seek to mislead our peoples into the belief that treaties, mere bits of paper, when unbacked by force and when there is no one responsible for their enforcement, can be of the CANADIANS ON BOARD.

GET RID OF HUMORS AND AVOID DISEASE

Humors in the blood cause internal derangements that affect the whole system, as well as pimples boils and other eruptions. They affect all the organs and functions, membranes and tissues, and are directly responsible for the readiness with which some people contract disease. For forty years Hood's Sarsaparilla has been more successful than any other medicine in expelling humors and removing their inward and outward effects. It is distinguished for its thoroughness in purifying the ward effects. It is distinguished for its thoroughness in purifying the blood, which it enriches and invigorates. Late Edward Wallace

Edward Wallace, an old resident of the city passed away this morning at the age of 54 years after a short ill-ness. Of a retiring disposition, he did not take an active part in any public affairs, but he nevertheless collected a large circle of friends who will mourn his loss. The funeral will take place on Saturday from the late residence, upon Stanley street, to Green-wood cemetery.

BRAVES ARRIVE

AT PHILADELPHIA

PHILADELPHIA, Oct. 7.—The Boston National League baseball team, which will meet the Philadelphia Americans for the championship of the world, arrived here last night to prepare for the opening game of the series scheduled for Friday. Despite the injury to third baseman Smith in yesterday's game at Brooklyn, the Boston players continued to express confidence in their ability to defeat the present world's champions. Smith's injury was the more disap-

Smith's injury was the more disap-ointing because it was uncalled for, was the direct result of his fight spirit and the indirect result of his carelessness. Smith was wearing a new pair of shoes, equipped with new pair of shoes, equipped with spikes longer than those to which he had been accustomed. It was quite natural that he should try for second on his long hit to right centre which bunced off the wall for that would have left him on second with the win-ning run and only one out. He might have made second standing up had he kept on after rounding first. But nearing second Smith seemed to hesitate whether or not to slide. He finally decided to hit the dirt when he saw the play would be close. Cutshaw, who covered, swung in toward the runner after taking the throw-in. Smith had begun a hook slide meantime. His right ship struck Cutchen's time. His right shin struck Cutshaw's left leg and the long spike catching the soil threw the full weight of the catapulting body on the ankle joint.
Fred Mitchell, the former American League player, who is now coaching the Boston pitchers, witnessed yesterday's game at the American League grounds here between the Athletics and New York Highlanders. He declared that the loss of Smith might weaken the batting strength of the Braves, but that Deal is an equally good fielder. Pitcher Rudolph and Catcher Whaling also arrived here ahead of the rest of the squad, and witnessed the Athletics in action. witnessed the Athletics in action.

Interest in the coming series appears to be greater than in former years. Nearly a thousand boys and men were in line last night awaiting a chance to purchase tickets for the series at the opening. Joseph Banks, the 18-year-old Camden youth who took his place at the entrance to the store where the tickets will be sold store where the tickets will be sol early yesterday morning, retained his position last night, although he was relieved several times by his brother.

THE STORY OF Baxter

By KATE DOUGLAS WIGGIN Copyright, 1913 by Kate Douglas

Waitstill

"Don't waste too much time and strength here, my dearest," said Ivory. "Do you suppose for a moment I shall keep you long on this lonely farm? I am ready for admission to the bar or I am fitted to teach in the best school in New England. Nothing has held me here but my mother, and in her present condition of mind we can safely take her anywhere. We will never live where there are so many memories and associations to sadden and hamper us, but go where the best opportunity offers and as soon as may be. My wife will be a pearl of great price," he added fondly, "and I intend to provide a right setting for her!"

Ivory was right. Waitstill Baxter was indeed a jewel of a woman. She had little knowledge but much wisdom, and after all knowledge stands for the leaves on a tree and wisdom for the leaves on a tree and wisdom for the fruit. There was infinite richness in the girl, a richness that had been growing and ripening through the years that she thought so gray and wasted Those lonely tasks, too hard for a girl's hands, these unrewarded drudg-eries, those days of faithful labor in and out of doors, those evenings of self sacrifice over the mending basket, the quiet avoidance of all that might vex her father's crusty temper, her pa tience with his miserly exactions, tience with his miseriy exactions, the hourly holding back of the hasty word—all these had played their part; all these had been somehow welded into a strong, sunny, steady life wisdom, there is no better name for it, and so she had unconsciously the best of all harvests to bring up dower to a husband who was worthy of her. band who was worthy of her.

These were quietly happy days at the farm, for Mrs. Boynton took a new if transient hold upon life that deceived even the doctor. Rodman was nearly as ardent a lover as Ivory, bovering about Waitstill and exclaiming: "You never stay to supper, and it's lonesome evenings without you! Wil it never be time for you to come and live with us, Waity, dear? The days crawl so slowly!" At which Ivory would laugh, push him away and draw Waitstill nearer to his own side, say ing, "If you are in a hurry, you your ormorant, what do you think of me?

"We can peyer wait two more days, Rod; let us kidnap ber! Let us take the old bobsled and run over to New Hampshire where one can be married the minute one feels like it. We could do it between sunrise and moonrise and be at home for a late supper Would she be too tired to bake the biscuits for us, do you think? What do you say, Rod, will you be bes man?" And there would be youthful unaccustomed laughter floating out from the kitchen or living room, bring-ing a smile of content to Lois Boyn-ton's face as she lay propped up in bed binds up the broken hearted," she whispered to herself. "He gives unto them a garland for ashes, the oil of joy for mourning, the garment of praise for the spirit of heaviness." The quiet wedding was over. There had been neither feasting nor finery, nor presents nor bridal journey, only a homecoming that meant as deep and was gray, and suddenly the winte heralds came floating down like scouts seeking for paths and camping places. Waitstill turned Mrs. Boynton's bed so that she could look out of the win-dow. Slope after slope, dazzling in white crust, rose one upon another and vanished as they slipped away into the dark green of the pine forests.

 there fell from out the skies
A feathery whiteness over all the land;
A strange, soft, spotless something, pure as light.

It could not be called a storm, for there had been no wind since sunrise, no whirling fury, no drifting, only a still, stendy, solemn fall of crystal flakes, hour after hour, hour after hour.

Mrs. Boynton's book of books was open on the bed, and her finger marked a passage in her favorite Bible

"Here it is, daughter," she whispered. "I have found it, in the same chapter where the morning stars sing foy. The Lord speaks to Job out of the whirlwind and says, 'Hast thou entered into the treasures of the snow. It hast thou seen the treasures of the hall?' Sit near me, Waitstill, and look out on the hills. 'Hast thou entered into the treasures of the snow?' No, not yet, but please God I shall, and into many other treasures soon." and into many other treasures soon," and with the glittering army of the snow-fiakes, all day long the snow grew deeper and deeper on the ground, and on the breath of some white winged wonder that passed Lois Boynton's window her white soul forsook its "earth lot" and took flight at last.

They watched beside her, but never knew the moment of her going. Her face was so like an angel's in its shining serenity that the few who loved her best could not look upon her with anything but reverent joy. On earth she had known nothing but the "broken arcs," but in heaven she would find the "perfect round." There at last, on the other side of the stars, she could remember right, poor Lois Boynton!

For weeks afterward the village was shrouded in snow as it had never been before within memory, but in every happy household the home life deepened day by day. The books came out in the long evenings; the grandsires told old tales under the inspiration of the hearth fire; the children gathered on their wooden stools to roast apples and pop corn, and hearts came closer together than when summer called the housemates to wander here and there in fields and woods and beside the river.

Over at Royntons' when the snow

Over at Boyntons', when the snow was whirling and the wind howling round the chimneys of the high gabled old farmhouse, when every window had its frame of ermine and fringe of icicles and the sleet rattled furiously against the glass, then Ivory would throw a great back log on the bank of coals between the firedogs, the kettle would begin to sing and the cat come from some snug corner to curl and from some snug corner to curl and purr on the braided hearth rug.

School was in session, and Ivory and Rod had their textbooks of an evening, but, oh, what a new and strange joy to study when there was a sweet woman sitting near with her workbasket—a woman wearing a shining braid of hair as if it were a coronet; a woman of clear eyes and tender lips, one who could feel as well as think, one who could feel as well as think, one who could be a man's comrade as well as his dear love! Truly the second heaven, the one on "this side of the stars, by men called home," was very present over at Boyntons'.

Sometimes the broad seated old hair Sometimes the broad seated old hair-cloth sofa would be drawn in front of the fire, and Ivory, laying his pipe and his Greek grammar on the table, would take some lighter book and open it on his knee. Waitstill would lift her eyes from her sewing to meet her husband's glance that spoke longing for her closer glance that spoke longing for her closer companionship and, gladly leaving her work and slipping into the place by his side, she would put her elbow on his shoulder and read with him.

Once Rod from his place at a table on the other side of the room looked and looked at them with a kind of instinct beyond his years and finally crept up to Waitstill and, putting an arm through hers, nestled his curly head on her shoulder with the quaint charm and grace that belonged to him. It was a young and beautiful shoulder, Waltstill's, and there had always been and would always be a gracious curve in it where a child's head might lie in comfort. Presently with a shy pressure, Rod whispered: "Shall I sit in the other room, Waitstill and Ivory? Am I in the way?"

Ivory looked up from his book quietly shaking his head, while Wait-still put her arm around the boy and drew him closer. "Our little brother is never in the way," she said, as she kissed him. On midsummer evenings the win-dows of the old farmhouse over at Boynton's gleam with unaccustomed lights and voices break the stillness. ening the gloom of the long grass grown lane of Lois Boynton's watching in days gone by. On sunny mornings there is a merry babel of chil-dren's chatter, mingled with gentle maternal warnings, for this is a new brood of young things, and the river is calling them as it has called all the others who ever came within the circle of its magic. The fragile hare-bells hanging their blue heads from the crevices of the rocks; the brilliant columbines swaying to and fro on their fall stalks; the patches of gleam-ing sand in shallow places beckening little bare feet to come and tread them; the glint of silver minnows darting hither and thither in some still pool; the tempestuous journey of some weather beaten log, fighting its way downstream-here is life in abundance luring the child to share its risks and

When Waitstill's boys and Patty's girls come back to the farm they play by Saco water as their mothers and their fathers did before them. The paths through the pine woods along the river's brink are trodden smooth the river's brink are trodden smooth by their restless, wandering feet. Their eager, curious eyes search the way-sides for adventure, but their babble and laughter are oftenest heard from the ruins of an old house hidden by great trees. The stones of the cellar, all overgrown with blackberry vines, are still there, and a fragment of the brick chimney, where swallows build their nests from year to year. A wil-derness of weeds, tall and luxuriant, springs up to hide the stone over which Jacob Cochrane stepped daily when Jacob Cochrane stepped daily when he issued from his door, and the pol-ished stick with which three-year-old Patty beats a tattoo may be a round from the very chair in which he sat, expounding the Bible according to his own vision. The thickets of sweet clover and red tipped grasses, of waying ferns and young alder bushes hide all of ugliness that belongs to the deserted spot and serve as a miniature forest in whose shade the younglings foreshadow the future at their play of home building and housekeeping. In a far corner, altogether concealed from the passerby there is a secret from the passerby, there is a secret treasure, a wonderful rosebush, its green leaves shining with health and and yet, but please God I shall, and into many other treasures soon," and the closed her eyes.

All day long the air ways were filled the Waitstill Boynton steps cautiously faults and frailties, has long been peace. On a chill, dreary night was raised from its unhonored resting place, not far from the ruins of his old abode, and borne by three of his disciples far away to another state. The gravestones were replaced, face downward, deep, deep in the earth, and the sod laid back upon them, so that no man thenceforward could mark the place of the prophet's transient burial amid the scenes of his first and only triumphant ministry.

"It is a sad story, Jacob Cochrane's," Waitstill said to her husband whee she first discovered that her children had chosen the deserted spot for their play, "and yet, Ivory, the red rose blooms and blooms in the ruins of the man's house, and perhaps somewhere in the world he has left a message that matches the rose."

are Adopted.

War may have its drawbacks, but it has its blessings too. Since the Kaiser started on his mad rampage, early in August, the Brantford city council has been on its good behaviour. In other words, contentious matters are tabooed, and to the observant one at the council board there is found to spirit of "business only" prevails ing. The result is that business is transacted more expeditiously, and there is more business. Last might's session was a model one. It showed that committees are doing their work and committees, and doing it thoroughly. Reports presented were adopted.
