Great Offensive Took Foe Entirely by Surprise

British This Morning Penetrated Hindenburg Line to Depth of Five Miles Along Thirty Two Mile Front, St. Quentin to the Scarpe-- Teutons Demoralized by Great Drive

By Courier Leased Wire

LONDON, Nov. 21--The Hindenburg line has been broken to a depth of four or five miles, the war office announces.

British troops stormed the first system of the Hindenburg line defenses on the whole front between St. Quentin and the Scarpe River.

The British infantry and tanks pressed on and captured the second system of defenses over a mile beyond

The attack was begun yesterday by the Third Army. There was no artillery preparation and the Germans were taken completely by surprise.

The second system of German defenses captured by the British is known as the Hindenburg support line. The British captured Benavis, Lameau wood, La Vacquerie, the defenses known as Welsh Ridge, and Ribecourt village. Their operations are continuing.

The British also fought their way through Couillet Wood. Lieut-General Sir Julian Byng is in command of the attacking army.

Several thousand prisoners have been taken. The whole German line west of the canal Du Nord to the Bapaume-Cambrai road has been captured.

The towns of Havrincourt, Marcoing, Graincourt and Anex and Neuf Wood have been captured by the British.

The drive covers a part of the field of last year's offensive on the Somme and the section of the Arras battle front south of Arras. The British centre in this thrust is nearly opposite Cambrai, the important German base and railway centre, from which the British line on the Bapaume-Cambrai road was about nine miles distant as it has stood for several months past. "The main force of the push just launched is apparently at Cambrai along this road.

What is known as the Hindenburg line was established by the German command last spring when the famous "strategic retreat" on the Somme front was carried out. It was a supposedly impregnable barrier, which had been in careful preparation.

London, Nov. 21--A large number of tanks moved forward in advance of the infantry when the attack was opened and broke through successive belts of German wire defenses, which were of a great depth and strength.

The announcement follows "Yesterday morning the third army, under command of General the Hon. Sir Julian Byng, delivered a number of attacks between St. Quentin and the River Scarpe. These attacks were carried out without previous artillery preparation and in each case the enemy was completely surprised.

"Our troops have broken into the enemy's positions to a depth of between four and five miles on a wide front and have captured several thousand prisoners, with a number of guns. Our operations are continuing.

"At the hour of assault on the principal front of attack a large number of tanks moved forward in advance of the infantry and broke through successive belts of German wire which were of great depth and strength.

Careful Preparation. The British and French showed in the Arras battle last spring and in the French drive on the Aisne front that the line was by no means a bar to their progress and serious inroads were made upon it in various attacks on both these fronts. No definite break, however, sufficient to permit the penetration of a large force which could debouch for large field operations had ever been effective.

The British movement in its early phases gives the appearance of being the most ambitious that has been undertaken by them on the western front since the creation of their new armies gave them the power to strike effective blows. The attack came almost without warning, the only preliminary symptoms being a series of somewhat elaborate trench raids. Even the rather extensive operations in this sector reported last night by the British war office which the German staff announced it had taken measures to meet, gave hardly a hint that a push in any such force or over such a wide extent of front was in prospect.

There has been little speculation over the possibility of a British attack in force on the western front this fall in any area other than that of Flanders, where the main British effort for several months past has been expended. Even here the latches of the season and the difficult nature of the ground at this time of year particularly seemed to give little basis for expectation of anything more than local strokes here and there.

It has been apparent, however, that German attention was largely centred on the Italian front, where the military move in force intended to crush Italy is now in full swing. Admittedly numbers of German troops have been largely drawn from the Russian front, where the collapse of the Russian military machine had made it unnecessary for the Germans to maintain much more than trench garrisons. It is considered possible, however, that the British secret service had knowledge of a weakening of the German front in the west by the withdrawal of highly trained experienced troops to give backbone to the push in northern Italy, an opportunity thus being afforded to catch the Germans unawares and hit them a crushing blow while their strategic reserves in France and Belgium war area was depleted.

The element of surprise, the reports reveal was a large factor in the initial British success as contrary to the almost invariable rule in this war, there was no advance preparation by the British artillery, the troops going "over the top" and falling upon an enemy apparently without any explanation that he was about to be attacked.

Regret Having Disregarded America's Entry as Immaterial

By Courier Leased Wire

Amsterdam, Nov. 21.--Theodor Wolf, in The Berliner Tageblatt concludes a long article on France's reliance on America by saying:

"Inasmuch as France probably will be unable to tap fresh resources, Clemenceau too must pin his faith on America's aid. If hope on America did not exist, then not only would there have been long since outbreaks of moral crises in all the Entente countries but an unmistakable readiness in the direction of peace would prevail.

"It is now shown how foolish were the German arguments that America's entry into the war was immaterial and would not prolong the war."

MURRAY'S STATEMENT

Enemy Casualties Were More Than Double Those of British

TROOPS FOUGHT WELL

Gen. Dobell Relieved of the Command Owing to Illness

By Courier Leased Wire

London, Nov. 21.--(via Reuter's Ottawa Agency).--The chief feature of the dispatch of General Murray, commander-in-chief in Egypt, in dealing with the operations in Palestine from March 1 to June 28, is his summing up of the results of the first battle of Gaza. He says:

"We took 958 Turco-German prisoners and two Austrian field guns, and caused the enemy eight thousand casualties. We had four thousand, a large proportion of which were slight. The failure to capture Gaza was due to the delay on March 26, owing to fog and the lack of water in the country around Gaza, which prevented the battle being a complete disaster to the enemy."

General Murray pays tribute to the utmost gallantry and endurance and the splendid fighting qualities of the troops.

He states that on April 20 his total casualties were seven thousand.

On April 21 General Dobell, commanding the eastern force, emphasized the opinion he previously expressed and which he said was supported by all his subordinate officers, that in view of the great strength of the positions to which he was opposed, a renewal of the direct attack would

Daily Mail Replies to Sir Edward Carson's Counter-Criticisms

By Courier Leased Wire

London, Nov. 21.--In reply to Sir Edward Carson's attack on Lord Northcliffe, The Daily Mail today singles out Sir Edward's complaint concerning attacks on Admiral Jellicoe, the first sea lord, and says:

"The proper course is not to make a vague complaint about 'attacks' but to answer the specific criticism made. If Sir Edward Carson or any other minister is satisfied with the conduct of the battle of Jutland, let him make a reasoned reply to Admiral Henderson's criticism."

The Daily Mail last month printed an article by Admiral David Henderson, criticizing the direction of the British fleet in the Battle of Jutland.

CLEMENCEAU'S ONLY WAR AIM TO BE VICTOR

French Premier Defined His Attitude to Chamber of Deputies

VOTE OF CONFIDENCE

By Courier Leased Wire

Paris, Nov. 21.--The minority of 65 in the vote of confidence given to the new Premier, M. Clemenceau, in the Chamber of Deputies last night was made up almost entirely of Socialists, although some of that party abstained from voting. One Socialist, Andre Lebey, voted for Premier Clemenceau.

Paris, Tuesday, Nov. 20.--The war aim of Premier Clemenceau is to be a victor, he told the Chamber of Deputies to-day.

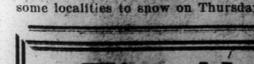

"If Germany to-morrow expressed a wish to enter into the society of nations I would not agree," M. Clemenceau said, "for Germany's signature cannot be trusted.

"You ask what my war aims are. My aim is to be a victor." During interpellations after the Ministerial declaration, Deputy Pierre Foregot demanded the firm handling of the political scandals. He declared that Louis J. Malvy, former Minister of the Interior, either is a traitor or that Leon Dautet, Malvy's accuser, is a scoundrel. He demanded that the connection with the scandals of Joseph Calliaux, the former Premier, should be made clear. Premier Clemenceau made an approving gesture and M. Calliaux applauded, but the Premier in reply refused to enter into details. He assured the Chamber that justice would be dealt rapidly and relentlessly for crimes against the country.

The Premier expressed sympathy with the Socialists and idealists, but declared that experiments were impossible in war time. He turned the laugh on some of his interrupters by saying that the only advantage of old age is that one becomes deaf.

WEATHER BULLETIN

Toronto, Nov. 21.--Depressions are developing over the Great Lakes and off the middle Atlantic coast and the outlook is very unsettled from Ontario eastward. Forecasts: Winds increasing to gales, shifting to west and north west with rain, turning in some localities to snow on Thursday.

Medicine Which Made Surgeon's Work Unnecessary.

Astoria, N. Y. — "For two years I was feeling ill and took all kinds of tonics. I was getting worse every day. I had chills, my head would ache, I was always tired. I could not walk straight because of the pain in my back and I had pains in my stomach. I went to a doctor and he said I must go under an operation, but I did not go. I read in the paper about Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and told my husband about it. I said 'I know nothing, will help me but I will try this.' I found myself improving from the very first bottle, and in two weeks time I was able to sit down and eat a hearty breakfast with my husband, which I had not done for two years. I am now in the best of health and did not have the operation. Mrs. JOHN A. KOENIG, 502 Flushing Avenue, Astoria, N. Y.

Every one dreads the surgeon's knife and the operating table. Sometimes nothing else will do; but many times doctors say they are necessary when they are not. Letter after letter comes to the Pinkham Laboratory, telling how operations were advised and were not performed; or if performed, did no good, but Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound was used and good health followed.

CARMELO CALLEJA IS ON TRIAL

Crown's Evidence in Murder Case Completed Last Night

Crown evidence has all been submitted in the trial of Carmelo Calleja, the Maltese charged with the murder of a fellow countryman, Gio Batta Bonello, in July of this year. Many witnesses were brought forward by the Crown during yesterday afternoon, and shortly after six o'clock an adjournment was made until eight o'clock when the case was proceeded with until the crown concluded its case a few minutes before eleven o'clock last night.

In the afternoon the principal witnesses were Detective Schuler, who was the first officer of the law on the scene of the crime after the body was found, Dr. Chapin, who gave testimony regarding the blow on the head, and Mr. Watson of the Watson Manufacturing Company, who was questioned regarding the underwear that was found on the prisoner near the body, and the other garments found in the room of the prisoner. Maltese friends of the deceased and of the prisoner, also were in the witness box.

Detective Schuler related the incident attendant upon the finding of the body, what evidence had been unearthed at that time and subsequently. Dr. Chapin, a physician of twenty years' standing, questioned for his opinion of the manner in which the deceased had come to his death, stated that he had either suffocated or drowned in the water. The blow on the back of the head had been struck before the death of Bonello, because there had been a hemorrhage. He admitted it was possible that the injury had been sustained by the man falling backwards, had he fallen with sufficient violence and had struck his head on a stone. The cut was horizontal and Dr. Chapin testified it was quite possible for one man to strike another with a blunt instrument and inflict a wound of this character.

Two hundred dozen suits of underwear similar to the drawers found near the body and the shirt found in the room at 100 Dalhousie street, were manufactured each day, so it was possible that hundreds of men in the city were clad in identical undergarments, was the evidence extracted from Mr. Watson by the defence.

Afternoon Session. George Ashton, photographer, identified a number of photographs that had been taken by him in company with Detective Schuler shortly after the crime. Views from different positions had been taken and were offered as evidence. Detective Schuler of the Brantford Police Department, who was the first police officer to visit the scene after the crime had been committed, took the box and was questioned by Crown Attorney A. J. Wiles. He told of finding a blood-stained cap on the bed of the creek some few feet down stream from where the body was found. The cap was found on August 4th, some time after the crime was discovered. Grappling irons were used in dragging the creek. The witness told of searching in the nearby bushes on the day when the body was found, and of recovering the following coat and the underclothing in the bushes.

On the following day an armit had been found nearby corresponding to the one found on the previous day by Detective Schuler. There were many broken branches of trees and pieces of driftwood nearby that could be used as clubs. The witness described the bushes and ground near where the tragedy had occurred. Bushes and heavy foliage obscured to a large extent the view of the creek, but on the bank opposite where the body was found, a hole was opening between clumps of bushes of about twenty feet.

The body was but partly in view, but the witness noticed that it only lay the victim apparently had struck on the left cheek, but also at the base of the skull. Among other things taken from the clothes of the murdered man was a money order receipt made with the prisoner, who had evidently purchased an order for $100 for Carmela Bonello in Malta. Other trinkets, including cash and a watch, were produced. The position of the vest was apparently an important factor, nor were the suspenders connected with the trousers at the back. The Crown endeavored to show that this evidence indicated that a money belt had been removed from the body of the murdered man.

Witness told of discovering an undressed man in a room at 100 Dalhousie street, where the prisoner resided. The shirt apparently belonged to the prisoner and corresponded to the drawers that had been found near the body at Dalhousie Creek. Regarding the finding of the cap, Mr. Boddy for the defence inquired whether witness would swear that the stain on the cap were blood. Witness admitted that there were only two or three spots much smaller than peas. He was questioned as to how he identified the spots as blood, witness replied, "from the color it was red."

The defence elected the information that the man was nailed to shore feet first and that the disarrangement of the clothing was due to some extent at least to the efforts made to recover the body. Mr. E. J. Trummer, clerk of money order department of the local post office gave testimony that there was a record at the Post Office of the order that had been issued during the month of May. Geo. Batta Bonello was the remitter and Carmela Bonello Malta the payee. H. S. Pierce, undertaker was summoned by Chief Lewis the same day the body was found. The body when witness answered was badly decomposed. The cut at the back of the head was on a level with the ears and was eight through to the skull. He distinctly remembered a bruise on the left side of the face of the murdered man. Witness' recollection of the weather at that time differed from that of previous witnesses. He testified that the weather on the day the body was found was not very warm nor was it warm on the previous days. Other witnesses claimed that the weather was quite warm.

The drawers that had been found near the scene of the crime were wrapped around and wrapped around the body when he was buried. Later the body was disinterred from the Catholic Cemetery and the drawers recovered, in the presence of Dr. Chapin and Detective Schuler. Questioned by Mr. Boddy witness could not say whether the wound on the head had been inflicted before or after the death of Bonello, on the head, and Mr. Watson of the Watson Manufacturing Company, who was questioned regarding the underwear that was found on the prisoner near the body, and the other garments found in the room of the prisoner. Maltese friends of the deceased and of the prisoner, also were in the witness box.

Mr. Watson of the Watson Manufacturing Company, makers of underwear, gave testimony regarding the underwear. He testified that the drawers found in the room at 100 Dalhousie street were of the same size as the drawers found near the body and that the two garments were but of a pair. Cross-questioned by the defence he stated that 200 dozen suits of this underwear were turned out at the factory at Galt and that it was possible that hundreds of men in Brantford were wearing underwear of a similar standard.

Chief Slemin of the Brantford Police Department told of visiting the rooms at 100 Dalhousie street where a quantity of clothing was found. Subsequently the same night Calleja was summoned and interviewed at the police station through the interpreter, Charles Gauci. On that occasion the prisoner had been warned that he was suspected of the murder of Bonello and that his replies to the questions could be used against him.

Charles Gauci, the interpreter, was placed on the stand and corroborated the testimony given by the previous witness. A copy of that interview was given the witness and he distinctly remembered truthfully translating the warning to the prisoner that it was not necessary to answer the questions asked by the chief. Witness admitted that he was not sworn to interpret that night, but had previously been sworn before the magistrate.

John Howarth, police court clerk, admitted to the defence that he was not sworn on that occasion. The Chief, Detective Schuler, the interpreter, the prisoner and himself were present on that occasion. The interview lasted from before twelve o'clock until three o'clock the following morning. The defence objected to the introduction of the prisoner's statement on that night on the grounds that the stenographer was not sworn in and that the prisoner did not actually understand what was being said to him. The defence stated that it would be quite in order to introduce the statement. The statement was then read.

The statement consisted of questions by the Chief, Police and answers given by Carmelo Calleja, the prisoner, on the night of August 4th, at the police station shortly after his arrest. He was arrested at 100 Dalhousie street, some time after eleven o'clock and was immediately taken to the office of Chief Slemin. An interpreter was secured and the prisoner put through a grilling until about three o'clock the following morning. The services of Charles Gauci, the Maltese interpreter, who is acting in the present trial, were utilized on that occasion. Cross-examined by the defence, Camilla testified to having seen money in Calleja's possession, a money order for $100, and other money, but there were other bills, which the prisoner wore in a money belt, and which he showed on the witness stand.

When asked by the defence, Camilla testified to having seen money in Calleja's possession, a money order for $100, and other money, but there were other bills, which the prisoner wore in a money belt, and which he showed on the witness stand. He had seen four pairs of drawers in the prisoner's room, but none were cut short. The money on exhibit, he was confident he had never seen before. Although the others were of the same material, they were all much newer.

Emanuel Spittari, residing also at 100 Dalhousie St., had seen the shirt on exhibit, hanging behind the door in the bedroom, and near them a pair of drawers similar to the exhibit. Witness was not certain whether the ends of the legs had been cut off or not. He did not know to whom the drawers belonged. The Crown recalled that the police court Spittari had been unable to identify the shirt, and the witness admitted that he was still not certain. He had seen others like that on exhibit, and also two pairs of drawers. He doubted whether he could identify these again. He stated positively that he had never before seen the drawers on exhibit.

Lomie Tompa of Toronto, son-in-law of Calleja, was visited by the prisoner in Toronto on July 31. Calleja went to the Adelaide street post office, and sent $100.00 to his wife in Malta. He had often sent money to Malta for Calleja, and had written letters for him. He believed the prisoner's character to be of the best. Calleja often visited the witness in Toronto. Geo. Batta Camilleria last saw Bonello alive at 7 a.m. Monday, July 30th, at 145 West street, in the morning. We left there and went over by the Armeries on the benches there. Q.—Did you see George Batta Bonello that morning in the park? A.—I did not see him. I saw him Sunday night. I did not see him Monday morning. This was perhaps the most important part of the statement that was admitted as evidence in the trial yesterday. Paul Sand, the man referred to by Calleja, was in the box and denied absolutely that he had been with the prisoner on that Monday morning, although he corroborated the prisoner's statement that the two had been together during the afternoon. Paul Sant, a Main street, had known the prisoner about the same time he was also summoned with Camilla to the police court after the arrest of the prisoner. He denied being with the prisoner on Monday morning. The other witnesses saw that afternoon in Victoria Park and was also with the prisoner about 4 o'clock at the Armeries. Dr. Chapin saw the body on Wednesday night, August 4th, at the request of the defence. Witness had performed post-mortem examination. The wound was probably caused by the head coming in contact with a blunt instrument. The blow in his opinion would have made the man unconscious. It was quite possible that the man had been dead some time when the body was found. The man unconscious in water would either suffocate or drown. The lungs had been examined, but as the body was badly decomposed, it was impossible to ascertain whether or not death had resulted from drowning. The blows were the causes of death in the opinion of witness. The blow could not be self-inflicted.

Questioned by the defence witness stated that the wound had been inflicted before death. It was possible that the wound was inflicted by accident if the deceased man fell backwards on a stone or other hard substance. The blow in his opinion, would be inflicted with the purpose of stunning rather than killing the victim. The wound, in opinion of witness, was caused by a blow from a fall. Paul Bonello, brother of the deceased, residing at 9 Main street, had last seen his brother alive on Sunday night, July 29th, at another house before his death had been in possession of a sum of money, carried in a belt on his person at all times. Every two or three months his brother would come to his home in Malta and for this reason he did not place his money in the bank. The deceased and the prisoner had worked together and knew each other. Two or three months before the prisoner deceased had sent money to Malta. At that time $100 was sent away. Since that time he had worked steadily for $3 or $2.75 a day. He had four months before his brother's death, that he had just actually seen the money belt.

The hearing was resumed at eight o'clock last evening, with a large crowd in attendance in the court room. "Can you speak English?" Giuseppe Camilla, the first witness, was asked. "No," he replied. (A ripple of laughter swept the room.) He lived with Calleja and other at 100 Dalhousie street. He had never, some to work on a farm prior to Bonello's death. Witness was a brother-in-law of Calleja. When leaving 100 Dalhousie St. witness left a pair of black trousers, the shirt found by the police at the above address, which he identified as the prisoner's, although the witness had worn it at times himself. The drawers found near the body of Bonello he had never seen before. When examined by the Crown, Camilla had sworn to have seen, Camilla pair, owned by Calleja in the room occupied by himself and the latter, but he had seen, however, had not had the legs cut off short as had those on exhibit.

THE SITUATION.
 It is the position of all returned officers in a message to judge, that no matter what may happen elsewhere, the decision of this war will rest on the Western front. The Huns may over-run other fields, but in the last analysis that is the area in which the final word will occur. For this reason there is every cause for satisfaction that the Allies are not only more than holding their own, but also exercising a steady pressure, which is telling more and more each day.

General Haig reports still further progress on the Arras front for a distance of nearly forty miles between St. Quentin and the River Scarpe.
 In a series of attacks most satisfactory results have been attained, and a considerable quantity of material taken. Berlin makes the admission that ground has been wrested from the Kaiser's forces.

In Palestine the power of the Turks to offer effective resistance of any sort seems to have vanished.
 British troops are now only about twelve miles from Jerusalem and that city will doubtless soon be in their hands.

The Italians continue to hold back the foe with great tenacity, but it seems to be considered that they may have to give further ground. The Austro-Germans still continue to receive heavy reinforcements, and the fighting is of a most fierce description.

British progress in East Africa continues so steadily that the end
 may be regarded as now in sight.
 At the Anglo-American conference
 Lloyd George intimated that ships constitute the present biggest help which the United States can now give.

(Since the above summary was written, news has come over The Courier leased wire of a smashing and shattering blow delivered by the British against the Hindenburg line.
 The War Office announces that the latter has been broken to a depth of between four and five miles on a front of thirty-two miles, between St.
 Quentin and the River Scarpe. Many important centres have been captured and prisoners are coming in by the thousands. It is one of the hammer blows which in their cumulative effect will finally bring the Hohenzollern outfit to their knees.)

IN THE ELECTORAL FIELD.
 In South Bruce the Independent candidate, Mr. W. Beckwith, has retired from the field, leaving A. E.
 McNab, Liberal Unionist, and R. E.
 Truax, Liberal, to fight matters out.
 Mr. Truax carried the constituency last time by 124. In North Huron the Liberal Unionist candidate, A.
 Saunders, has also withdrawn. This leaves two contestants, James Bowman, Conservative Unionist, and A.
 Hislop, Laurier Liberal. Mr. Bowman defeated Hislop in the last general contest by 198.

One of the features of the Ontario list is the number of candidates, Laurier at heart, who are masquerading under such titles as "Independent Liberals" and "Win-the-War" Liberals. They do this because they realize that the pledge of the white-plumed knight to at once suspend the Military Service Act, if he wins at the polls, is not popular with vast numbers of Liberals in Ontario.

No one should be deceived for an instant by such tactics.
 There is only one straight issue in this contest and those who are not out and out for Union Government and the extension of immediate and needed aid to the brave boys on the firing line must be classed as against the "win-the-war" administration.
 The men who designate themselves as above related make their false statements in their canvass that Laurier proposes to let the first draft of 100,000 go and then to take a referendum, and also that under his auspices 100,000 can be secured from Quebec.
 Both assertions are arrantly and stupendously false.
 Quebec in all for Laurier because he proposes to stop the military service levy, and if he wins Canadian troops will be shamefully abandoned and betrayed.
 Can you afford to help do that or sleep at nights if you do?

LAST MINUTE CANDIDATES
 In many Ridings, especially Ontario, Laurier candidates brought out at just about the last minute, are recognized as having no chance whatever. Their inclusion in the list was made in order to hear ten other candidates of like complexion elsewhere, and some of them are going to lose their deposits. They are in the language of the street, merely "bluff" contestants.
 It is further pointed out that the results of the contest on Dec. 17th will give Laurier far more seats than he will finally hold. The soldiers' vote ceases on that date, but the counting of it and allocating of it will be a slow business. The vote of soldiers in Canada should be announced close on the heels of the election. Then will come an announcement of the soldiers' vote from England. Perhaps nearly a month after the election, the vote
 from Flanders will be available.
 Thus some very close constituencies may be in doubt for weeks. As the soldier vote will go overwhelmingly for Union Government, the Laurier-ites in some constituencies, though apparently elected by the home vote on December 17, will be afterwards eliminated.

THE WOMEN.
 One of the grandest and most notable features of the war has consisted of the magnificent manner in which the women have rallied to the support of the cause throughout the British Empire.
 Their spirit of self-sacrifice has been as noble as it has proved inspiring, and what greater test of bravery can there be than that of parting with loved ones bound for the danger zone and then the waiting. The men in action have all the zest and inspiration of conflict; the women at home have none of that incentive, but they have not sat with folded hands—far from it. They have been busy in a hundred ways on behalf of the boys at the front and now in this and other communities they are bending their every effort on behalf of sending aid to the brave lads and upholding the Union and Win-the-War Government.

They very properly do not know any politics at such a time. All such trivialities are swallowed up in the one great cause and they are setting an example in this regard which should be a lesson to those who are for holding back and the skulking of Canada from the battlefield.
 With the exception of Quebec reports from all over the Dominion are to the effect that women votes and women influence will exercise a paramount effect in the emphasis with which Canada in this solemn time will pronounce for Canada's continued and unabated part on behalf of the Empire and human liberty.

Here's to the women; God bless them.
NOTES AND COMMENTS.
 Haig continues habit of sending most heartening reports.
 Mr. Cocksbutt has been instrumental in having two thousand soldiers located in Brantford for the winter. That's the kind of man to continue as representative.
 Women voters have the opportunity in their first Dominion election to render a great and loyal service, and they are going to do it, never fear.
 Scratch an Independent, or any other kind of Laurier candidate, and you will find that under the veneer there is blind allegiance to him and his proposed halting of Canadian effort in the war.
 If Laurier wins, help for the boys
 at the front loses.
 That fire bell sounded exceedingly well to-day. Let's hope that there will soon be still further occasion for it.
 It looks as if evasion was being sanctioned by the military boards in Quebec. The circumstances call for drastic action by the Union Government, and without any doubt it will be taken.
 There are more than 400,000 and soon will be 500,000 men who have put not only their whole earning capacity, but their lives, as well, at the service of the Government—which means at your service. They are doing your job as well as their own. Have you done anything to compare to what they have done?
 Will then come across. You can spare it without hurting you. Fine investment, safest in the world, are Victory Bonds, yielding you 5-1-2 per cent.

Dr. Cassell's Tablets
DYSPEPTIC FOR SIX YEARS

Hall's N. S. Sergeant tried everything on the market, but only Cure was Dr. Cassell's Tablets.

Sergt. Duncan MacNeil (home address, 116 Pleasant street, Hal-fax, N.S.), writing from Europe, says: "For six years I suffered from frequent attacks of Dyspepsia, and though I tried all the remedies on the market I obtained little or no relief. I had not been long with the C.E.F. when my old trouble returned. Then a friend told me about Dr. Cassell's Tablets, and the first box brought such pronounced relief that I continued, and to make a long story short complete cure was effected."
 A free sample of Dr. Cassell's Tablets will be sent to you on receipt of 5 cents for mailing and packing. Address: Harold F. Ritchie and Co., Ltd., 10 McCann street, Toronto.

Dr. Cassell's Tablets are the supreme remedy for Dyspepsia, Kidney Troubles, Sleeplessness, Anaemia, Nervous ailments, and Nerve paralysis, and for weakness in children. Specially valuable for married mothers and during the critical periods of life. Price 50 cents per

KILLED IN ACTION.
 A letter from the front received to-day by Mrs. Jordan, 52 Ontario street, conveyed the sad news of the death of her husband, Pte. Arthur Jordan, who went overseas with the 84th Battalion. The notification was not official, but was in the form of a letter of sympathy from the late Pte. Jordan's fellows in the Canadian Machine Gun Company. Pte.
 Jordan was a prominent member of the Salvation Army while residing in this city.

 Good Work By Mr. Cocksbutt.
 Mr. W. F. Cocksbutt took up this matter some two months ago with the military authorities, and the outcome is directly attributable to his efforts. The incident constitutes still one more illustration of the alert manner in which he always looks after the interests of his constituency.

BRITISH WERE
 not be justified by any reasonable prospect of success. General Dobell strongly opined that deliberate methods must be adopted and even a resort to trench warfare might be necessary pending the arrival of reinforcements. After full discussion General Murray most reluctantly consented to this change in policy.
 Meanwhile it became apparent to General Murray that General Dobell, who had previously suffered a severe touch, was no longer in a fit state of health to bear the strain of further operations in the coming hot weather. Therefore General Murray most respectfully relieved him of his command to which Lieutenant-General Sir Phillip Chet-wode was appointed.

WOUNDED IN HAND.
 Word was officially received that Pte. Earle Steves was admitted to the Sixth Field Ambulance Hospital in France on November 6th, with a gunshot wound in right hand and contusion in the back. He enlisted with the 125th Battalion, and was formerly employed at the Brandon

KILLED IN ACTION.
 Private Frank Cochrane Perry was today officially reported killed in action on the sixth of this month.
 The information was received by his father, Mr. Herbert Perry, 365 St.
 Paul's Avenue, from the Director of Records, Ottawa.

THREE OF A KIND.
 A full house may beat three of a kind in the great national indoor sport of draw poker, but in the circles of law and order the two are practically synonymous. Three inebri-ates will face the magistrate in the police court to-night. Archie Anderson will face a charge of non-support, Adam Aird one of cruelty to animals, and Frederick John Walters one of false pretences.

GOOD NEWS.
 The dull and leaden skies overhead did not dampen or depress the spirits of loyal Brantfordites, as the news of what will probably prove the greatest victory of the war, was flashed over The Courier leased wire this morning. The good news spread rapidly after once being bulletined, and was heralded in by the ringing of bells and the blowing of whistles throughout the city. Good news, and we can stand lots more of it.

REPRIATED.
 After nearly three years spent in the confines of a German prison camp, Sergt. John Blanchard has been released, according to word received in this city, and is now with his former regiment, the Col-stream Guards, once more. Sergt.
 Blanchard, who was a member of the police force at the outbreak of the war, was immediately recalled to England as a reservist, and went through the battle of the Aisne, where he was believed to have been killed, and for two years regarded as lost. A year ago came word, however, that he was a prisoner of war, and he has now been repatriated once more.

MURDER CASE GOES TO JURY

Summing up of Charges Against Calleja Made this Morning

Circumstantial evidence, admitted by the crown to be of that character, and charged by the defence as the only evidence that has been introduced in court in the trial of Carmelo Calleja, charged with the murder of Gio Batta Bonello, will prove the important and decisive factor in the verdict of the jury which is expected some time this afternoon. This morning the entire session was devoted to the addresses of the crown and the defence to the jury.

Last evening the crown concluded the introduction of its evidence and this morning A. H. Boddy, for the defence, announced that he would place no witnesses in the box. It was after twelve o'clock when the court was adjourned until half past one, when the crown replied to the address of the defence to the jury, and the Judge charged the jury. The verdict was expected to be reached this morning at 10.15 A. H. Boddy for the defence, announced that he would not introduce any evidence on behalf of the prisoner.

N. F. Davidson prosecuting attorney, commenced his address to the jury at 10.20, and outlined the development of the case from the arrest of the prisoner to the present time. He described his position in relation to the Attorney-General, the people, the jury and the prisoner.

He was here in the position of one having no personal relation with the alleged crime. There was a very harmful and false impression prevalent, that the result of the case depended on the prosecution. Even in this case suggestions had been made by court officials regarding the outcome of the case. The idea was abhorrent. It should not be forgotten that the life of the prisoner was in the hands of the court. Even at this eleventh hour the duty cast upon him was such that if it were whispered to him that one witness of the Crown wished to change his evidence that would benefit the prisoner, it would be a duty as well as a privilege, to hear him.

I don't think that I have ever conducted a case where the evidence has so closely followed the story I told the jury in opening, and your duty is now to find your verdict only on the words of the witnesses, paying no heed to my words only so far as they assist you in applying your judgment to the evidence received and receivable in this court.

There was death prior to August 1st. The man was Bonello, who did not commit suicide. He had a cut 2 or 3 inches long horizontally on the back of the head. The blow was struck before death, and the body, dead or alive, was projected 12 or 15 feet into the sluggish water. These were facts proved, and uncontradicted, and therefore should be considered final. If it were whispered to him that one witness of the Crown wished to change his evidence that would benefit the prisoner, it would be a duty as well as a privilege, to hear him.

The dead man wore braces which were unbuttoned at back, and the waistcoat was turned up. The deceased carried his money in a belt around his body. It had not been proved as to the precise fact that Bonello was carrying the belt that morning. However, the dead man's clothing was disarranged, a belt missing and the prisoner in possession of $100 the following day.

Was robbery the motive? Was murder the crime? Was the prisoner the guilty man? In your judgment, was the fact that a cheap watch and some personal articles left on the person of the man, sufficient to make you negative the theory of robbery based on the evidence that the prisoner and the deceased were in company in Victoria Park on the fatal morning? Was there any doubt that the prisoner

LOOK AT CHILD'S TONGUE IF SICK CROSS, FEVERISH

When constipated or bilious give "California Syrup of Figs."

Look at the tongue, mother! If coated, it is a sure sign that your little one's stomach, liver and bowels need a gentle, thorough cleansing at once. When peevish, cross, listless, pale, naturally, or in feverish, stomach sour, breath bad; has stomach-ache, sore throat, diarrhoea, full of cold, give a teaspoonful of "California Syrup of Figs," and in a few hours all the foul, constipated waste, undigested food and sour bile gently moves out of its little bowels without griping, and you have a well, playful child again.

You needn't coax sick children to take this harmless "fruit laxative"; they love its delicious taste, and it always makes them feel splendid. Ask your druggist for a bottle of "California Syrup of Figs," which has directions for babies, children of all ages and for grown-ups plainly on the bottle. Beware of counterfeits sold here. To be sure you get the genuine, ask to see that it is made by "California Fig Syrup Company." Refuse any other kind with contempt.

er was seen returning alone from West Brantford later in the morning? These were the two vital points. If there was any reasonable doubt in the minds of the jury, based on the evidence that the two men had gone over to West Brantford that morning, it would not be safe. If the jury were not satisfied that the prisoner had been accurately identified returning from West Brantford later in the morning, it would be unsafe, in his opinion, to render a verdict of guilty.

If there were no doubt regarding the accuracy of these two vital points before referred to, the jury "would have gone a long way toward reaching a final decision." Forrugea, a fellow countryman, who was well acquainted with both the prisoner and the dead man, had clearly recognized the two men on that morning sitting in Victoria Park and had later seen the two leave and go down Market street. Although the evidence was circumstantial, in many cases this evidence was preferable to a great mass of details of evidence of actual witnesses of a crime. The vital point of the presence of the two men in the park that Monday morning depended solely on the statements of Forrugea, but that witness' testimony had been consistent.

The other vital point was the return of the prisoner from West Brantford. In statements dogmatic and equally unqualified to those of Forrugea, Calleja had definitely testified that he had recognized Calleja. The two men had so clearly recognized each other that each had saluted the other. Was there any doubt of the day? None because the receipt for the money paid for the horse purchased that morning from Charles Lee by Calleja.

It should be remembered that practically all the witnesses had been questioned, shortly after the crime, in the police station and, therefore, incidents had become fixed in the minds of the witnesses. Chief Lewis had said that the scene of the crime was 20 minutes walk from Victoria Park. Was there sufficient time between 9.30 and 12 o'clock for the two men to walk over, the crime to be committed and the prisoner to return?

It should be remembered that the prisoner was well acquainted with that secluded spot. He had been seen fishing there within a fortnight previous. The prisoner knew the spot. He knew the prisoner had money. He wished to dispose of the money or part of it as early as possible. He took the early morning train on the following day to Toronto to see his son-in-law. Would the prisoner go to Toronto to send money to Malta when during the residence of the son-in-law in Toronto for five months the prisoner had not sent any money to Malta from Toronto. It was only three months previous that Calleja had sent money to Malta. So much for the motive, apparently robbery.

The Crown described the arrest, and the question that had been asked on the night of August the 4th in the police station. The Chief of Police was to be complimented on the thorough and excellent manner in which he had conducted the interview.

The Crown read extracts from the prisoner's statement. The prisoner admitted being in the park that morning, but claimed that his companion was Paul Sand. The crown claimed that his companion was Bonello.

Paul Sand also had denied being with the prisoner that morning. "Why did the prisoner lie about it?" There were two alternatives. Either the prisoner had lied to cover traces of the crime, or being in the hands of the law, had merely lied through principle. Did the latter cause seem reasonable? Three or four months previous to the crime, the prisoner had drawn $150 out of the post office bank. He had then sent $100 to Malta and kept the balance for himself. His statement on that night showed that he had spent the balance, and his earnings in the meantime were less, because of an injury sustained by him.

had both given evidence, and had denied the ownership of the drawers found near the body and the shirt found in the room at 100 Dalhousie street. The prisoner admitted owning the shirt. Mr. Watson had said the two garments were of similar goods. Mr. Watson, before seeing the prisoner, had testified that the material of the drawers would stretch, and that while the drawers now measured 42 inches around the waist, had probably been 40 inch drawers. When a tape measure had been placed around the prisoner, it was found he took drawers of 40 inches measurement.

"If you come to the conclusion that the drawers belonged to the prisoner, where does it leave you?" asked the Crown.

The prisoner needs money. He had held a passport since March enabling him to travel. Did he want money to send to Malta or to leave the country? Whichever was his desire there was evidence showing the prisoner needed money. He knew that Bonello had money. Did they go fishing with the fish line found there and produced in court. Did the prisoner get the fatal blow, rob the body and, finding a body, dead or alive, remove his clothes and take the body out into the shallow creek? Did he then in his haste put on his clothes, forgetting the drawers and hasten away from the scene? This was a theory, and did the evidence not substantiate it in every detail?

"Does the situation not resolve itself into a case similar to two men seen entering a house, one coming out and a dead body found in the house," inquired the crown.

If the jury thought that he had had intended to commit murder or not, he would be responsible. "My duty is now done, the responsibility now rests with you," concluded the Crown.

EVERY MERCHANT SHOULD TRY TO MAKE HIS STORY POPULAR

Service, as well as Merchandise. Counts. Read of the Methods Adopted by This Merchant

Here is the story of how one man, starting a business, overcame the handicap of a community which bought largely from out-of-town concerns. He was good at analysis, and as a result, was able to appeal to his home-town residents. He talked business-sense to them in his advertising, believing that each and every one of them had intelligence enough to understand, and pride in their own city and homes—enough pride to spend their money at home if anything like an equal proposition was offered. His methods were successful and make interesting reading:

One of the first things he advertised was that he was going to make it unnecessary for anyone to go to a bigger city for anything in his line. He guaranteed that not only would he offer goods as attractive and up-to-the minute as any of the big city stores could, but he guaranteed that the prices would be as low as the latters, and lower, if possible.

In one of his earliest advertisements he asserted that, while he had lived in the city in question for years, and knew many of the population well enough to be on friendly terms with them, he did not want his store patronized only for that reason. He claimed that, while there should be friendship in business, on the part of the retailer toward the customer, there was no real call for it on the part of the customer toward the retailer. In other words, there was no reason for a person to trade in his store unless convinced that a dollar spent there bought a dollar's worth of business. He decided, at the start, to do business on as small a margin of profit as possible. Instead of trying to do a small business at an excessive profit, he was going to do a large business at a small one.

He made it plain to his clerks that they must treat all customers equally. That he would not allow a clerk to set aside choice stock in anticipation of a visit from Mrs. Jones, the rich woman, when Mrs. Smith, the poor man's wife, might want to buy those very goods.

He decided on a stock limited in quantity, but varied. He knew that success in business depended on selling goods, not holding them.

RIVAL ADVANTAGES.

The question of purchasing power was made the basis for the following statement:—The advantage possessed by the big city merchant as a result of larger purchasing power is not so great as is popularly supposed. His larger patronage naturally requires the purchase of a larger stock, which means that his money must be spread over a wider range. But, admitting that the larger merchant might be able to buy a suit or other merchandise at wholesale at a dollar or two cheaper than I, as a result of his large purchases, there is no reason to believe that that saving is passed on to the consumer. His rent or taxes are greater than mine, his light and heating bills are higher, his help cost and every other item of expense go down on the wrong side of the ledger, and in order to cover them his goods have to be marked at least as high, if not higher. The result is that as his "mark-up" must be as great, his values cannot be better.

ABOUT BARGAINS

Another comment concerned bargains:—"Bargains," he said, sometimes are not what they appear to be. It is only too true that often skim milk masquerades as cream. My policy is to offer real bargains on one kind of goods at a time, and let the rest of my stock speak for itself. My customers gain on that thing because of the low price, and I gain on the goods needed and bought in the store because my bargain brought them there. Again, my gain comes from the quantity of regularly priced goods bought, and not from prices higher than would be fairly paid anywhere else.

Now aside from the question of price, there are these things to be considered: When you buy out of town, you have to pay cash invariably. The out-of-town merchant does not know you or your circumstances, and, in justice to him, you cannot ask for credit. Here it is different. I make it my business to know you, and, while I prefer cash sales, I extend credit to you, if you desire it at any time, in the same way the metropolitan stores open charge accounts.

When you buy out of town, you generally go in person to get the goods. This means the expenditure of carfare, which may or may not be refunded to you, but it also means the expenditure of time and energy that no merchant on earth can give back. Shopping in my store will conserve your strength and your time, as well as money spent in railroad fare.

If goods that are bought out of town go wrong, you are sure to have trouble in exchanging them, if you are allowed that privilege. The out-of-town dealer does not know you and is not anxious to take back damaged goods for new or to refund your money. If you succeed in getting satisfaction, it carries with it the expenditure of more carfare, time and energy. Trading here will do away with all unpleasantness when things go wrong, as well as saving time, strength and money. I am anxious to be shown where I am wrong, and I will be more pleased at having my business-faults pointed out than my virtues. The former hurt me and need correction; the latter do not.

There shall be no qualification of my assertion that your money will be given back if you are not satisfied, and there will be no woe-begone expression on my face if I have to give it back to you. And last, but not least, if I haven't what you want, tell me, and I will get it for you for the sake of the service, if not for the profit.

The fact that he started from the opening day, to do an excellent business, and that he has continued to do so ever since, are conclusive proof that modern merchandising methods, as adopted by him, are specifics for most of the business of the smaller city merchant.

WISE TO THE GAME

THIS is the type of man OUR community needs. The man who is "WISE to the game." The man who CAN'T be "April-fooled." He is on to all the tricks of the mail order business. He's got them all down PAT, and so he smiles as he passes up the gold brick on his way home with his basket of home bought goods on his arm. Take a good look at this man, for we need more of his kind. Every community needs men and women who will INVESTIGATE for themselves, who will compare home values with out-of-town values. Let US all get wise to this game and place our money in the "Trade-at-Home" basket.

WHOLE ARMY OF OUT-OF-TOWN AND MAIL-ORDER SHOPPERS CAN GIVE NO VALID REASON FOR STILL DOING SO

In a certain Western Ontario weekly newspaper there appeared recently an advertisement of a business man who hit the buying-away-from-home habit so squarely on the head that we here publish his announcement, substituting the name Brantford instead of the town concerned. How does this strike you, dear reader?

You know as well as we can tell you that every man for himself is a "free trader." "British liberty," bred in the bone. Some people go to Hamilton from Brantford to buy shoes and other things they can't get at home, or they think they can't and don't try. Business people, too. People from Hamilton go to Toronto, Toronto folks (lots of them) go to New York, and the whole crowd from Brantford who go to Toronto can't give one single straight reason why they do, only they "do as they like." Of course, one would think that a man getting his shekels in a town would try and do his business where he lives, but all don't and it's no use to worry. They have gone, will go, and keep on going. They want business; could not go away anywhere unless they got it. Sometimes they want more than business, and look to the fellow (as they ought) next door for the friendly hand. If you are one of these high and mighty people, think it over, and try and get off the train with your goods as though they really belonged to you. Of course it's a free country, but you walk into any of your home stores and do business as you have to when you go away or send away, and if you don't feel more comfortable in your clothes, you need treatment on the square. When we say business people, we include the whole lot, from the man in the pulpit to the peanut man, or from the peanut man up. It's the business of both. They take pay for what they give, and get shekels that keep the exterior presentable. "Clothes are more moral support than religion." DO YOU BELIEVE IT? Do we hear somebody say you are talking strong? War talks strong, and this is War on the fellow that does his business away from home, and he needs licking. Stripped of a whole lot of feathers, this present war is a commercial war, and if the plans of the Allies bear any fruit, it means getting together to get business that never would have been lost if we (the British) had not been, as Admiral Beatty so well said, "so complacent." In times of peace prepare for war, and the human race has not yet got beyond the fighting stage. The time will come when the "how shall he down with the lamb," but up to now, it's fight all the time. Some people call it friendly rivalry, but scratch him and the fight is there. Friendly rivalry between the churches and friendly rivalry between political parties,—bosh. Fight (at bottom) all the time. "Opposition is the life of trade." You like that. It sounds like cheap goods. But, "opposition is the death of trade." Think it over and buy your goods at home.

BIG GUNS

THE guns of the BIG CITY have been raking the country with deadly fire for more than forty years. The guns are Bossed by the mail order kings. The bombs are the catalogues. Many a fine community, many a thriving town, has been ruined by this constant hammering. But deadly as this catalogue siege is, WE have weapons in our OWN possession that are able to beat back the siege guns. The trouble is we don't use these weapons. We have allowed ourselves to be bombarded without retaliating. Yet OUR weapons, if USED, mean victory to US. Reason, knowledge, Common Sense, Community Pride, Co-operation—THESE are our weapons. But it is up to each one of US to KNOW this, to USE this knowledge. And, having learned it, we must work at it. Then, let every man, woman and child ENLIST in this Shop-in-Brantford campaign. Let us beat back the siege guns.

MY PLEDGE

As a Resident of Brantford I Hereby Pledge Myself:—

- 1st.—That I will Boost Brantford at all times.
- 2nd.—That as a Booster I will buy, as far as possible, everything I need for myself or for my family, in my home city.
- 3rd.—That I will, where possible, purchase Brantford-made goods in preference to goods manufactured in other cities or towns.
- 4th.—That I will, on every occasion, urge my friends and neighbors to buy in Brantford and Boost Home Industries.

INSTITUTIONS OF CITY ARE IN GOOD CONDITION

Minor Repairs Needed At House of Refugee, Says Grand Jury

Public institutions in Brant county are in first class condition, according to the report of the Grand Jury, submitted to the Honorable Mr. Justice Masten, presiding Judge at the Brant Autumn Assizes. One institution only, the House of Refuge, is in need of minor repairs. Five institutions in all were inspected.

The Report

"The Honorable Mr. Justice Masten, Presiding Judge at the Court of Assize and General Gaol Delivery for the County of Brant, May it please Your Lordship: "We the Grand Jurors at the Autumn Assizes for the County of Brant, beg to report as follows: "Upon this your first visit to our County, we desire to congratulate Your Lordship upon your accession to the Bench, and trust that you may long be spared to fulfil the duties pertaining to such position, for which your training, long experience and ability so well fit you.

"We thank you for your address, to which we listened with deep appreciation, and heartily concur in your remarks relative to the Victory War Loan and Food production. We would urge upon each resident of the county the necessity of subscribing to this loan, and would emphasize the fact, that it is not the large amounts only, but the small amounts as well, which are needed to make the loan a success and help in winning the war.

"We would also urge upon the farmers the great need of food production, and upon the residents generally the need of economy in the use of food, as well as the use as far as possible of perishable foods, thus conserving other foods for the use of our men at the front.

"In compliance with your instructions, we performed the duties in connection with the indictment brought before us, in which we found a 'True Bill'.

"We then visited the gaol, where we found everything most satisfactory.

"House of Refuge "In connection with the House of Refuge, which we next visited, we would recommend that the inside wood work be re-painted, and that the condition of the plastering, which in many places is broken, be remedied, and that the walls and ceilings be re-decorated. That the ventilation in the kitchen be improved, and suggest that possibly a fan and hood installed over the kitchen range, to carry off the steam and smell of cooking, might prove effective in this regard. Also that the sleeping apartments of the aged women should be made brighter and more comfortable. We would also recommend the installation of fire escapes similar to those in use at the hospital, as in our opinion the fire escapes now provided, are inadequate for aged people.

"We would also call the attention of the proper authorities in that behalf to the fact that there is at present in this institution, a woman suffering from tuberculosis in an advanced stage, and we think that this is not the proper place for such cases, and would recommend that if possible, proper provision be made for her.

"Brant Sanitarium "From the House of Refuge, we went to the Brant Sanitarium, where we found everything in excellent condition under the capable management of the matron.

"Hospital "We next visited the Brantford General Hospital, where we found everything in splendid shape. We believe the institution to be very efficiently managed by the matron, Miss Forde. We desire to compliment the proper authorities on the recent improvements to the grounds and surroundings, which have been well planned and carried out. In our opinion, an extension will be required soon for the purpose of providing an

FAT MAN SUGGESTED FOR TORONTO

Many Report Big Gains in Weight—Prospects Fine for Large Membership

So many people have reported extraordinary gains in weight during the past few weeks as a result of taking Tanlac, that some one jokingly suggested a few days ago, that Fat Man's Club be organized in Toronto.

Only a short time ago Edward Earle, a well-known carpenter, employed by the Canadian Pacific, residing at 17 McGeorge avenue, Toronto, said: "When I tell you I have gotten complete relief from five years of suffering and have actually gained fourteen pounds in weight besides, you can readily see why I think so highly of Tanlac." Mr. Earle described his sufferings as resulting from a serious case of indigestion and stomach trouble and stated that his recovery has been complete.

Just a few days previous, Peter Bostwick, employed by the Guin Packing Co., residing at 155 Lappin avenue, Toronto, said: "I have just finished my second bottle of Tanlac and have gained twelve pounds. I suffered for over two years with stomach trouble and was so weak I could hardly keep going. I am gaining in weight and strength every day and my stomach is in splendid condition. I don't believe there's another medicine that equals Tanlac."

Reporting a gain of fifteen pounds, Mrs. Emma Baker, 39 Mariposa avenue, Toronto, said: "Honestly, I have gained fifteen pounds and my neighbors as well as myself are surprised at the great change Tanlac has made in me." Mrs. Baker further stated that she had suffered for more than a year with stomach disorders and nervousness, and had been unable to get any relief until she took Tanlac. "Mr. Earle and I both think Tanlac the greatest medicine in the world," she concluded.

William R. Chitty, employed by the Russell Motor Car Co., and residing at 22 Grosvenor street, Toronto, in a recent statement said: "I have gained ten pounds on two bottles of Tanlac and feel better in every way than I have in three years. It's just wonderful how Tanlac took hold of my troubles and built me up." Mr. Chitty further said that he had suffered from stomach trouble and nervousness until he was about all in, when he took Tanlac. He declares that Tanlac made him feel like a new man.

A gain of six pounds in weight was reported by Harvey Hamilton, shoe maker, employed by Coppard & Chatterton Co., who resides at 1305 Centre street and Toronto. Mr. Hamilton stated that he had been in a general rundown condition for five years, and that Tanlac has put him on his feet and increased his strength and energy in a remarkable manner.

Dozens of other well-known people have made remarkable statements in this connection recently and are appearing daily as still others prove the merits of this medicine and tell of the results they have obtained from its use. "I have gained twenty pounds in actual weight and now I know for myself what a wonderful thing Tanlac is," stated William S. Pickell, a well-known paint contractor, living at 15 Windsor avenue, Windsor, Ont. He went on to say that he had been entirely relieved from a severe case of stomach troubles, which had kept him in misery for a year.

Another remarkable gain in weight is told of by Mrs. William Green, 141 Hunter street, Hamilton, in her statement: "I have actually gained twenty pounds in weight by taking Tanlac and my friends and neighbors seem amazed at the wonderful change in my condition." Mr. Green further stated that he had experienced a wonderful relief from stomach trouble and nervousness through the use of Tanlac.

James Raib, machinist for the Canadian Bridge Company, 123 Ontario street, Walkerville, says: "I have taken only three bottles of Tanlac so far, but have already gained ten pounds in weight. I had suffered for over a year with a miserable case of catarrh and nothing ever did me any good. Tanlac has given me more relief than any other medicine I ever took."

There is nothing really remarkable in the foregoing statements, as thousands of people all over the country have taken Tanlac with the same results and in many cases far greater. Take, for instance, the case of Mrs. Viola Ives, 315 Cross street, Little Rock, Ark., U.S.A., who gained forty pounds; that of Mrs. G. W. Williams, of Gadsden, Ala., U.S.A., who gained forty-eight pounds; or that of O. H. Mahatrey, Nashville, Tenn., U.S.A., who gained forty pounds; Mrs. O. C. Cason, Acworth, Ga., U.S.A., who gained thirty-five pounds and hundreds of others too numerous to mention.

Tanlac is sold in Brantford by Milton H. Robertson and Co., Ltd., in Paris office here and who were let out a month ago, presumably because they had joined the striking telegraphers and linemen a few weeks previously. There are two girls in the head office at Quebec

(From Tuesday's Daily.)
With a vague feeling that escapes from the danger lay ahead, he padded until ten o'clock that night. Darkness was then falling, and his weary arms could scarcely lift the paddle. He camped on the river on the spot where they had dined on the second day of the other journey.

He fell asleep with the premonition like a cold hand on his breast. In the morning it awakened him all of a piece. He abruptly sat up to listen. There was no sound. "What is the matter with me?" he thought wonderingly.

"Something is upon you," that still voice seemed to whisper. He looked to his gun. His heart failed him a little, he was so terribly alone. Inside him he offered up an unspoken prayer that whatever was coming might come quickly, before fear of the unknown should unman him.

Hastily cooking his breakfast he never ceased to listen. Therefore, he was scarcely surprised when he finally heard that most startling sound in the wilderness, human voices. An instant later a long dug-out swept into view upstream with four men in it. Courage warned Ralph's breast again; to be sure it was bad enough but it was real.

At sight of Ralph the men in the dug-out set up a shout. Arriving abreast of his camp they swung around and beached their craft below. In the bow was a white man strange to Ralph, Joe Mixer and Stack sat amidships, while the stern paddle was wielded by a handsome, muscular young half-breed. They all got out. Ralph awaited them on the top of the bank. Burly Joe approached with an anticipatory, cynical grin; little Stack kept partly behind him.

"Hello, partner!" cried Joe. Ralph seeing that he actually expected to keep up the fiction of friendliness, smiled grimly. "What do you want?" he asked.

Ralph's warning of danger had served him well. Joe seeing him cool and prepared was completely disconcerted.

"What do I want?" he repeated, falling back with a scowl. "That's a nice good morning to hand out to a man!"

"What were you looking for," asked Ralph, "an address of welcome?"

Joe turned purple and shook his fist. "I'll show you!" he cried. Little Stack stepped from behind Joe. Physical terror gave his face a greenish cast, but his chagrin at seeing his careful plans about to be destroyed was stronger still.

It emboldened him to put himself in front of Joe. "Wait!" he implored. "You mustn't quarrel! Let me explain!"

Joe turned aside with a muttered oath. A fawning note crept into Stack's voice. "We've taken the doctor by surprise," he said. "He thinks we're spying on him. You can't hardly blame him."

"You're a good guesser, Stack," said Ralph grimly. "It's nothing of the kind," cried Stack virtuously. "You must remember I told you long ago I wanted to take a trip through the wilds if I could get the chance. Mr. Mixer was willing to go, so I engaged him and these men to guide me."

"Why explain?" said Ralph. "It's nothing to me. The river is free to all."

"I didn't expect this from you," said Stack with an aggrieved air. "I thought we were friends. What have you got against me?"

"Nothing," said Ralph; "but you're in bad company."

Joe could no longer hold himself in. His face was purple.

"Who do you think you are?" he cried thickly. "You stinking dude! You smooth-face poisoner! You rabrah college boy. It makes my stomach turn to hear you hisping. What are you doing in a man's country? Go home to your pink teas and your toe-dancing!"

Ralph could not help but smile at the style of Joe's invective. The smile maddened Joe. The foulest dregs of English speech were ished up to express his feelings. The other white man laughed obsequiously. He was in Joe's pay.

The half-breed pitched pebbles into the stream, handsome and unconcerned. Ralph took it all steeley eyed and smiling still.

"You stand there like a little Goraughty!" cried Joe with a string of oaths. "What can you do against the four of us? We've got you where we want you now, and you know it! You'll be sinking another time before we're done with you!"

"Now, you're talking!" cried Ralph, bright eyed. "The truth is coming out at last!"

Stack all but wrung his hands at the turn things were taking. "Gentlemen! Gentlemen!" he implored. "Ah shut your head!" snarled Joe.

"You hate him as much as me!" Stack turned paler still, and darted a furtive look at Ralph and cringed and tried to smile indulgently.

"Don't listen to him," he said to Ralph. "You've made him mad. He doesn't mean what he says. It wasn't half an hour ago he said to me, 'Won't it be sport to surprise the doctor!'"

"There's no need for you to quarrel like this. We don't want to intrude upon your privacy. Come to our camp to supper to-night and talk things over quiet and shake hands on it!"

Ralph preferred Joe's honest obsequy to this. He made no answer. "Ah come on!" said Joe. "I'm sick of your palaver!"

He pulled the smaller man back to the dugout. Stack got in, nodding and smiling over his shoulder in a comic and pitiable attempt to propitiate the grim Ralph.

They pushed off. As the dugout disappeared around the first bend below, Stack had the effrontery to wave his hand to Ralph.

Ralph sat down to do some hard thinking.

His charming dreams were rudely shattered, and like every man suddenly roused to action, he felt a little ashamed at having been caught dreaming. He remembered precautions he might have taken had he been wide awake.

When his anger cooled—in spite of the smile he had been no less angry than Joe Mixer—he was a little appalled by his situation. Four against one is heavy odds.

If he had had even so much as a dog to keep watch while he slept!

How could he venture to sleep and leave himself open to a night attack? He resolutely put that unnerving thought out of his head. "I shall travel exactly as if they had not come!" he decided.

The more he thought the greater loomed his difficulties.

In a manner of speaking he was trapped in the river just the same as if they had him on a road between high and unscalable walls. He could not go back against the current, and he could not leave the river.

With his clumsy boat and one paddle, against their dugout and four men, there was not the slightest possibility of his escaping them down-stream. They were free to follow him at their leisure and play with him like cat and mouse.

Ralph was amazed, as any open-hearted man might be, at the suddenness of the discovery that he had active and malignant enemies.

Joe Mixer's hatred he instinctively understood, and returned. Those two had been formed to hate each other. He likewise understood now that the evil fire Nahnya had lighted in Joe's breast was no mere ephemeral flame.

It was clear that Joe hoped to reach Nahnya through him.

"I'll lead him a chase," Ralph thought grimly. This brought up the thought that Joe might be the means of keeping him from returning to Nahnya. Ralph ground his teeth at that, and understood the desire to murder that is born in men's breasts.

In Stack, Ralph realized he had a more dangerous enemy than Joe. In vain he untrussed his own brain to discover a reason for Stack's being in Joe's galley. He had never laid eyes on the little man until they took their places in the stage together.

It was true he had never thought much of the little Jack-Straw, but there had never been anything but friendly exchanges between them. There was a mystery here that tantalized him.

The upshot of his cogitations was, Ralph seemed to accept Stack's invitation to visit their camp that night—not to eat with them, his gorge rose at the idea, but to go after supper.

"I'll surprise 'em," he thought grimly. "Nothing like bearding them in their own den. I'm bound to find out something. One man's strength isn't enough against four. I've got to use all the wits I have, too. I've got to meet them on their ground. He for lie. Beastly crooks! I'll go further than lying if necessary to keep them out!"

All day they remained ahead of him in the river.

About nine o'clock, while it was still fully light, he came upon their camp in the accustomed camping-place where Nahnya had stopped on the second night of the previous journey: the spot where Nahnya and Ralph had effected their midnight reconciliation.

Smash Through to Victory BY VICTORY BONDS

OVER at the battlefront, rolling onward remorselessly, its guns belching forth disaster and death to the enemy, the Tank smashes through all obstacles that bar the way.

And here in Canada the Victory Loan brings to every one of us the privilege of helping to crush the Hun with our money.

We cannot all serve in the trenches; we cannot all fire a gun or help to man a Tank; but we can all buy Victory Bonds.

What of your money? Is it helping to smash through to Victory?

The amount of the Victory Bonds you buy is the measure of your fighting power.

"Women have never been content merely to clothe themselves, nor, for the matter of that, until very recently have men; but men have grown a new sanity while women, if we read aright the signs of the times have grown naught save a new insanity, for a great number of women, the fashions have become the motive power of life."—W. L. George.

Of all the futile things that people require of themselves, of all the questions of styles enter. There are styles in Everything From Basinets To Coffins.

As we all know there are styles in words. There are the stylish slang phrases the rubbernecks' and the committed directly or indirectly for the sake of some woman being able to have this year's instead of last year's styles.

And yet last year's may become her much more, may make her more graceful and attractive. Really, when you stop to think of it, isn't it as strange a mania as many of those to which we give technical names, and which are considered sufficient cause for giving people free lodging at the state's expense?

One Must Be Married in Style. One might think that anything so intensely personal as getting married might be done to suit oneself, but, no, if you have the right kind, or a wedding every minutest detail from the precise moment the wedding invitations shall be sent out, is dictated by fashion. Even people who like to be original must perforce keep their originality within the container of these forms.

As for styles in clothes the subject I really started to write upon— I am simply overwhelmed when I think of their multiplicity of the fearful rapidity with which they change, of the intensity with which every woman above the deadline of absolute poverty, fights to dress as nearly as possible like all the rest. Think of The Crimes Committed For Clothes.

I don't suppose there is a crime in the calendar which has not been

Courier Daily: Pattern Service

GIRL'S ONE-PIECE DRESS.

By Anabel Worthington.

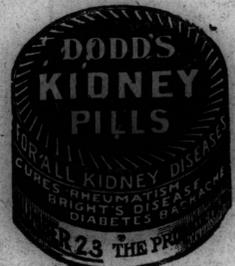

Straight from the shoulder hangs this stunning little dress, No. 8492. It is a style which is equally suitable for the fourteen-year old or her junior sister. The popular drop shoulder is a feature and the sleeves are set in without fullness. The dress fastens at centre front. The inset vest is rolled to form reverses to which the big collar is attached. As the reverses are rolled rather low, a shield of the same material is used to fill in the opening. The long sleeves have deep cuffs of satin to match the collar. The narrow sash which crosses twice and ties at the front is also made of the satin.

The girl's one piece dress pattern No. 8492 is cut in sizes 8 to 14 years. As on the figure, the 8 year size requires 2 1/2 yards of 36 inch, with 3/4 yard 36 inch lines for vest and shield and 3/4 yard 36 inch contrasting goods.

To obtain this pattern send 15 cents to The Courier, Brantford. Any two patterns for 25 cents.

Austrian Capital Shows Many Indications of War

Food is Very Scarce and Prices are Prohibitive—Some of the Food Problems—Clothing is Very Dear—The Rich Spend Freely

The Austrian capital has always had the reputation of being one of the gayest and most high-heated cities in Europe, and it has not entirely changed its character even now, but to the keen observer there are many curious and interesting differences which show how deeply the stupendous war has affected it.

The question which touches the whole population, from the highest to the lowest, most nearly is that of the food supply. The state of semi-starvation at which the poorer classes have now arrived has come on gradually, and has been marked by such distinct stages, that they have almost come to regard it as natural, and have ceased to wonder at it.

Some Food Problems

The bread with which the people are supplied has gone through many stages. There was a time when it was made almost entirely of maize flour; then the maize gave out, and barley was chiefly used, since April of this year it has consisted chiefly of bread, horse chestnuts, and dried beans, with a small percentage of musty flour.

The Rich Spend Freely. In spite of the high prices, there never was greater luxury in dress in Vienna than during the last two years. Many fortunes have been made, so that the wives and daughters of these nouveau riches are resplendent in garments of finished elegance, furs, jewels, dainty shoes and stockings and costly lace.

PUT CREAM IN NOSE AND STOP CATARRH

Tells How to Open Clogged Nostrils and End Head-Colds.

You feel fine in a few moments. Your cold in head or catarrh will be gone. Your clogged nostrils will open. The air passages of your head will clear and you can breathe freely.

Tell your druggist you want a small bottle of Ely's Cream Balm. Apply a little of this fragrant, antiseptic cream in your nostrils, let it penetrate through every air passage of the head; soothe and heal the swollen, inflamed mucous membrane, and relief comes instantly.

IF MEALS HIT BACK AND STOMACH SOURS

IF MEALS HIT BACK AND STOMACH SOURS

If meals hit back and stomach sours, "Pape's Diapepsin" ends indigestion, gas, dyspepsia and stomach misery in five minutes.

It is what you just ate is souring on your stomach or lies like a lump of lead, refusing to digest or you belch gas and eructate sour, undigested food, or have a feeling of dizziness, heartburn, fullness, nausea and taste in mouth and stomach headache, you can get blessed relief in five minutes.

Ask your pharmacist to show you the formula, plainly printed on these fifty-cent cases of Pape's Diapepsin. Then you will understand why dyspeptic troubles of all kinds must go, and why they relieve sour, out-of-order stomachs or indigestion in five minutes.

Get some now this minute and rid yourself of stomach trouble and indigestion in five minutes.

Every kind of clothing has become enormously dear and not only clothing, but all the little necessities of daily life in connection with clothes. Elastic containing real India-rubber, is almost unobtainable—for the last piece I bought I paid at the rate of $8, a metre; a pair of shoes, which costs a shilling, a reel of sewing cotton about the same; all linen goods are so dear that two ladies of my acquaintance have been wearing their dresses in the dining-room curtains made up into costumes.

The Rich Spend Freely. In spite of the high prices, there never was greater luxury in dress in Vienna than during the last two years. Many fortunes have been made, so that the wives and daughters of these nouveau riches are resplendent in garments of finished elegance, furs, jewels, dainty shoes and stockings and costly lace.

TABERNACLE TOPICS

The tabernacle meeting last night was the greatest meeting yet held. By a quarter to eight the building was crowded to the doors.

Dr. Hanley's message was, "Our Heroes and Our Heritage." The speaker was in fine fettle and never appeared to better advantage since coming here. He was entertaining, inspiring, instructive and by his unexcelled oratory and vivid descriptions, led his audience as well from outdoors of laughter to the depths of pathos, and touched the whole gamut of feeling.

BRANT CHAPTER I.O.D.E. ENDORSED W.F. COCKSHUTT

Approved His Nomination As Union Win-the-War Candidate

Brant Chapter I. O. D. E. held its regular monthly meeting in its new quarters, the club room, Y. W. C. A. with the Regent, Mrs. Gordon Duncan, in the chair. Routine business disposed of, reports of the committee in charge of the furnishing of the billiard room in the G. W. Y. Home were given, and an expenditure in connection with the same ordered to be paid.

Talent money, to the amount of $45, was handed in by members in addition to the cheque sent by Mr. Littlefield of the Kerby House in acknowledgment of the services rendered by the members at the Bell Memorial banquet. A couple of ladies handed in $25 which had been received in "tips" at the luncheon.

Several new names were proposed for membership and fifteen were enrolled as new members. Pins in recognition of sons and husbands overseas were presented to Mrs. W. C. Boddy and Mrs. W. C. Brookes.

The Chapter, as a whole, heartily endorsed and expressed their sympathy in connection with the resolution which had been presented to Mr. W. F. Cockshutt, as the win-the-war candidate in the coming election, the resolution having been read at the meeting by Mrs. W. C. Livingston.

A gratifying report of the Flag Day recently held for British Red Cross was given, showing that a total of $400 had been collected, this work having been undertaken by members of Brant Chapter and others.

Another urgent request was made for names to complete the autograph quilt, there still being some 400 names of privates needed. Anyone desiring to have names on this quilt may send names accompanied by ten cents for each name, to either Mrs. Aird or Mrs. J. L. Sutherland.

It was announced by the Regent that at a meeting of the Ministerial Alliance held recently, they agreed to assist in every way with the proposed scheme of holding annually a "Sanitarium Sunday."

The members decided to adopt the recommendation of the executive in bringing Madam Gardin, the celebrated grand opera singer, to Brantford under their auspices early in the new year.

DENY SINKING. By Courier Leased Wire. London, Nov. 20.—An official report received here from Berlin denies the statement made by the British admiralty on Sunday that a German mine sweeper was sunk in the engagement of Saturday off Heligoland. It says, however, that a fishing steamer is missing.

Pending resumption of proceedings all the accused, except Desjardins, the government detective, accused of acting as an agent, E. Lalumiese and Tremblay, who have made confessions bearing on the dynamiting of the house of Lord Atholstoun, will be released on bail. His Lordship remarked that apart from these three men, the crown's case did not appear very strong.

Greater Love

Half hidden in the files of the London Gazette, where it is set forth with all the ponderousness of official language, is a story of self-sacrifice that stands out pre-eminently, even in this age of deeds of superlative courage and super-heroism.

The record is contained in the announcement of the award of the Albert Medal of the First Class to Lance-Corporal Charles Henry Anderson, late of the 1-14th Battalion of the London Regiment, who lost his life in France in November last. The official narrative is as follows:—On November 28, 1916, Lance-Corporal Anderson was in a hut in France, with 11 other men when, accidentally, the safety pin was withdrawn from a bomb. In the semi-darkness he shouted a warning to the men, rushed to the door, and endeavored to open it so as to throw the bomb into a field.

Failing to do this, when he judged that the five seconds during which the fuse was timed to burn had elapsed he held the bomb as close to his body as possible with both hands in order to screen the other men in the hut. Anderson himself and one other man were mortally wounded by the explosion, and five men were injured. The remaining five escaped unhurt. Anderson sacrificed his life to save his comrades.

SYNOPSIS OF CANADIAN NORTH WEST LAND REGULATIONS

The sole head of a family, or any male over 18 years old, who was at the commencement of the present war, and has since continued to be a British subject or a subject of an allied or neutral country, may homestead a quarter-section of available Dominion Land in Manitoba, Saskatchewan or Alberta. Applicant must appear in person at Dominion Lands Agency or Sub-Agency for District. Entry by proxy may be made on certain conditions. Duties—Six months residence upon and cultivation of land in each of three years.

In certain districts a homesteader may secure an adjoining quarter-section as pre-emption. Price $300 per acre. Duties—Six months residence upon and cultivation of 50 acres extra. May obtain pre-emption patent as homesteader but not on certain conditions.

A settler after obtaining homesteaded patent, if he cannot secure a pre-emption, may take a purchased homestead in certain districts. Price $100 per acre. Must reside six months in each of three years, cultivate 50 acres and erect a house worth $300.00.

Holders of entries may count time of employment as farm laborers in Canada during 1917, as residence duties under certain conditions.

When Dominion Lands are advertised or posted for entry, returned soldiers who have served overseas and have been honorably discharged, receive one day priority in applying for entry at local Agents' Office (but not Sub-Agency). Discharge papers must be presented to Agent.

W. W. COLE,
Deputy Minister of the Interior.

From The Countryside HARLEY

(From our own Correspondent)
The league on Wednesday last was well attended, Mr. Lyons, of Northfield, taking the topic. Mrs. Catton led the meeting. Miss Eva Ryder sang a solo. Rev. Mr. Zimmerman closed with prayer.

The Ladies' Aid met at the home of Mrs. Walter O'Reilly; twelve members and two visitors were present. Geo. Clement, who has been treasurer, has resigned, and Mrs. Metcalf was appointed in her place. Mrs. Clement was presented by the members with an address and purse.

A large number of friends met at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Geo. Clement on Thursday evening last and presented them with an address, leather couch and hearth rug. An enjoyable evening was spent in music and singing and speeches. Mr. Bert Cox acted as chairman. Mr. and Mrs. Clement thanked their friends for being so kind, and gave them a cordial invitation to their new home in Fairfield.

The many friends of Miss Maggie Shellington will be sorry to hear of her serious illness and wish for a speedy recovery.

Mr. and Mrs. Clark Dean and Mr. and Mrs. Walter O'Reilly and daughter, Hazel, motored and spent Sunday with the latter's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Shaver, Brantford.

Mr. and Mrs. S. Clement and son, Gordon, motored and spent over Sunday at the home of their son, William Clement, of Clinton.

Mr. and Mrs. J. W. Marshall motored and spent Sunday at the home of Mrs. W. Dean, Brantford.

Mr. and Mrs. Jno. Force spent over Sunday at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Clark Haamer, Norwich.

Mrs. Jane Metcalf received a telegram from her mother, Mrs. J. W. Marshall, her stepson, Lieut. A. E. Medcalf's death in action.

Mr. and Mrs. W. Ryder motored with Mr. and Mrs. Harry Force, Woodbury, to Black Creek and spent Sunday.

KELVIN NEWS

(From Our Own Correspondent)
The Free Methodist Quarterly meeting on Sunday was quite largely attended.

Mr. and Mrs. Neeney of Norwich, were in this section on business one day last week.

Miss Vera Palmer is spending a few weeks with her father at Niagara Falls.

Miss Hannah A. Johnston, attended the funeral of her brother, the late Stewart Johnston on Monday at Tweedside.

Mrs. E. Massecar spent Thursday with her sister, Mrs. A. Wright of Brantford.

A number of the farmers are drawing their turnips to Scotland depot at Philippsburg.

Mr. David Phillips spent Sunday afternoon at Cedar Lawn.

Mrs. Theodore Caldwell has returned home after spending a few months in the Dominion.

Mr. George Wright of Mt. Vernon was in this section on business one day last week.

Mr. N. S. McCormick and family of Toronto were paid by Mr. A. G. McCormick's farm.

Some of the farmers are busy these days with their fall plowing as winter is nigh at hand.

Rippling Rhymes

There ought to be some sort of law forbidding noisik rank and raw, at night, when people would repose, and do some snoring through the nose. At 10 o'clock I soak my head and straightway toddle off to bed, and hope to give my life, new zest by having one good piece of rest. An old crowd prowls round my shack and splits the welkin up the back. Joy riders scoot along the street and raise pink thunder and repeat. A young man with a cheap guitar comes singing where the damsel are, and their abode is just next door—how can a weary mortal snore! The milkman's wagon jolts along, the milkman smites his brazen gong, and makes the night a discordance, the while selling cowbills by the dozen. And now a dog lets out a wail; there's tinware fastened to its tail, and like a shot I hear it scorch beneath my open sleeping porch. All through the night the uproar goes; one must be dead to find repose, and when at dawn I leave my couch, I have a large and lasting grouch, my head is sore beneath my tile, and I forget to sing and smile.

INSANE, POISONED THREE

By Courier Leased Wire.
Baltimore, Nov. 20.—Mrs. Edwin A. GUNBOAT GOT ROUGH

New York Nov. 20.—Edward (Gunboat) Smith, the pugilist was arrested at Sheepshead Bay last night on a charge of assault brought by his former manager James J. Buckley after they had had an altercation in front of Smith's home and a doctor had taken seven stitches in Buckley's mouth. Smith was released on bail pending a hearing at Sheepshead Bay Thursday.

Buckley and Smith broke their business relations after a disagreement in San Francisco recently.

DRINK HOT WATER IF KIDNEYS SUFFER

Eat less meat and take Salts' for Backache or Bladder trouble.

Uric acid in excess excites the kidneys, they become overworked; get sluggish, ache, and feel like lumps of lead. The urine becomes cloudy; the bladder is irritated, and you may be obliged to seek relief two or three times during the night. When the kidneys clog you must help them flush off the body's urinous waste or you'll be a real sick person shortly. At first you feel a dull misery in the kidney region, you suffer from backache, sick headache, dizziness, stomach gets sour, tongue coated and you feel rheumatic twinges when the weather is bad.

But less meat, drink lots of water; always get from any pharmacist four ounces of Jad Salts; take a teaspoonful in a glass of water before breakfast for a few days and your kidneys will then act fine. This famous salt is made from the acid of grapes and lemon juice, combined with lithia, and has been used for generations to clean clogged kidneys and stimulate them to normal activity, also to neutralize the acids in urine, so it no longer is a source of irritation, thus ending bladder weakness.

Jad Salts is inexpensive cannot injure; makes a delightful after-dinner should take now and then to keep the kidneys clean and active. Druggists here say they sell lots of Jad Salts to folks who believe in overcoming kidney trouble while it is only trouble.

Women's Institute

NORTH BRANT WOMEN'S INSTITUTE.
At the Provincial Plowing Match at Oak Park Farm Oct. 24th to 28th, the North Brant Women's Institute as auxiliary of the Department of Agriculture and Farmer's Institute was intrusted with the onerous task of providing dinners and lunches for the fifteen thousand patrons who gathered in crowds and take part in this exhibition of progress, in one important branch of farm work. A week of frequent showers may have ploughed the soil and not injured plowing, but did not tend to increase the comfort of the day for onlookers or workers, yet success and appreciation crowned every effort.

This was due not alone to the District President Mrs. G. T. Wood of Grandview and her able staff of officers and the effective assistance of the thirteen Branch Institutes, who were each represented by their allotted quota of active, energetic workers and a number of extra ones, all intent on doing more than their share, but to the cordial consideration and generosity of the farmers, who patiently waited to be served, when the dining tents were crowded with accounting lunches, never questioning prices, who were known, that the profits were for Red Cross work.

This generous response contributed also to the success of the young ladies who assiduously mowed the crowds and made possible the splendid addition to the treasury of $1721.33, from all sources, after all Toronto expenses were paid for this patriotic work, in which all takes such an interest.

The ags were pretty souvenirs of Oak Park and the Plowing match designed and printed by Mrs. G. T. Brown. The Institute desires to express its appreciation of the assistance freely given by many individuals and many firms only regretting that the list is too long to allow mentioning each one here.

The food provided was of the best from the fine ham (which takes first place on account of its soaring price) and the cream bread and butter sandwich-makers well always have pleasant memories of those excellent slices) and the delicious pies of which it seemed impossible to supply enough; the rolls, hot waffles and doughnuts were favorites the fragrant coffee was ever in demand winning even the commendation of Supl. Pitman either because it was made on those convenient electric stoves, or on its own merit.

This applies not only to the meals served to the crowds but also to the banquet to the Wentworth delegation and to the evening Banquet of the Plowing Association at the Masonic Temple. Tea and cake were not forgotten that all tastes might be gratified.

The effort entailed a great amount of arduous work on the part of the ladies notwithstanding the energetic assistance of the members of the Farmers Institute, county officials and many other gentlemen, but it was ungrudgingly and cheerfully taken up and carried through, not alone because they are such zealous Red Cross workers but as a practical proof of their desire to assist every effort of the Farmers toward greater and more effective production.

Oak Park Farm and the many kindesses of the genial proprietor Mr. Balley and his charming wife will be long and pleasantly remembered by North Brant Women's Institute.

Triumphant in their stroke against the British troops are pushing brai, now only three miles two days the British have most as much ground as four months of the Battle of Somme.

As it was unlike any operation on the western front the success of General Byng's artillery prepared only tanks to cut the wire, British infantry holes in the German British cavalry is now taking the drive toward Cambrai border beyond, by the suddenness of Tuesday, the Germans Wednesday, but the British steadily toward the front. Nearly a score of towers have been taken and eight thousand prisoners captured. The Germans driven from the high ground, the British have taken the main links in the German system, is at the mercy of the artillery. While the British on a front of 32 miles Quentin and the Scarpe, effort was on a fifteen-mile front. In England the British have an advance of more miles has been made, and Noyelles the British three miles of Cambrai, south they are at Grevin, pushed strong attacks without the usual preliminary fire.

The Germans had planes on the front and ish airmen, by flying at fifty feet because of the rain, sacrificed the first stages of the attack. What effect the British have on the Austro-Germans is not yet apparent. Italians are holding the line. The new tactics of the British are holding the line.
