NORTH COUNTY TEACHERS INSTITUTE HOLD THIRTY-SIXTH ANNUAL MEETING

Private Houses Were Turned Into Temporary Hotels to Accommodate the Seventy Teachers Who Were in Attendance

A Public Meeting Was Held Thursday Night at Which an Address of Welcome was Read by D. G. Schofield, Secretary to Trustees—Interesting Program was Carried Out

NEXT MEETING OF INSTITUTE TO BE HELD AT CHATHAM

The thirty-sixth annual meeting of the Northumberland County Teachers' Institute was held in Blackville, October 30th and 31st ult. Prin. G. H. Harrison, president, and Inspector Colonel G. W. Mersereau, M. A., present at all the sessions, and R. P. Steeves, M. A., Director of Agricultural Education, and the Blackville Trustees and many of the school children present at most. The 70 teachers attending received the best of accommodations in the private houses that were turned into temporary hotels for their benefit, and very much of the great success of the Institute was due to the work of the energetic local committee, Misses Lottie E. and May A. Underhill, assisted by Principal Ryder. At the public meeting on the evening of the 29th, the people of Blackville turned out en masse completely filling the hall and the best of music was provided instrumentally by Thomas Rees and the other members of the Blackville Orchestra and vocally by Melvin Ross and Miss Laura McCarthy. The visiting teachers were heartily welcomed in an address read by D. G. Schofield, secretary to School Trustees, and in a neat speech by Rev. L. Beaton. Much instructive and useful advice was given to teachers and trustees by Director Steeves and Inspector Mersereau, and President Harrison greatly assisted in all the discussions of the Institute.

The Institute opened at 10 a. m., Thursday, October 30.

After routine work and a short address by the president, Inspector Mersereau spoke. Col. Mersereau deprecated teachers doing fancy work at recess. She should supervise children's play. The teacher had children with her only one quarter of the time, but had four fifths of the influence in moulding their lives. Parents used to do much of the teaching 50 years ago, but they are today kept so busy providing bread and butter for their children that the children's training must now be left almost wholly to the teacher. The teacher was by far the most important factor in the community.

Mr. Steeves said pupils were not doing enough play. In Ontario the School ground system was regulated. The writ of civilized society was the home. The school helps the home. The home must be led to help the school. Teachers' salaries will increase as soon as the home realizes that what the school is doing is a benefit to it. When pupils, for instance, demonstrate success in school gardening, the farmers will take notice.

The following committee were appointed:

Nominating—Inspector Mersereau, Misses K. I. B. McLean and M. J. Dunnett.

Finance and audit—H. S. Murray, G. A. Wathen, A. L. Barry.

Resolutions—H. H. Stuart, L. R. Hetherington, Miss Lottie E. Underhill.

Excellent model lessons were given by the Blackville teachers, as follows:—

On Numbers, to primary pupils—Miss May A. Underhill.

On Writing to Grade IV—Miss Stella C. Power.

On Current Topics, to Grade VII and VIII—Principal Ryder.

Miss Underhill developed the idea of addition very nicely.

Miss Power taught writing in natural slant along lines of the Palmer Method.

Principal Ryder's class covered a wide range of current events, showing that they had looked up all such recent happenings as the Volturno disaster and the incidental benefit of wireless telegraphy, completion of Panama Canal, and the invitation to foreigners to attend the opening. U. S. political parties and new tariff and its effect on Canada, marriage of Prince Arthur, return of Duke and Duchess of Connaught, Ulster and Home Rule, Monument to Gen. Braddock, Mexican Civil War, the Blorde Equimaus, Dwarfs of New Guinea,

Mrs. Pankhurst in the U. S. A., Provincial Premier's conference, &c. Each of these subjects was so used as to bring out a lot of incidental information, and showed that the pupils had been led to keep abreast of the times.

Adjourned till two p. m.

Thursday Afternoon

The preceding lessons were discussed by Messrs. Harrison, Mersereau, Stuart, Barry, McKinnon and Ryder and Misses Underhill, Power and McLean.

The general opinion was that the muscular movement of the forearm was better than the old finger movement. Mr. McKinnon said he had good writers by the old method.

The lesson on current topics was very warmly commended by the Inspector, Prin. Stuart and others.

The Inspector said every teacher should receive a daily paper and take it to school and use it. The pupil should be given as wide an outlook as possible, and led to think for himself. Principal Stuart emphasized importance of teaching current as well as past history. History was making now faster than ever before. For instance, the forcing of China by Russia to sign a treaty giving up her right to send emigrants to Mongolia meant much to us, as China's surplus population would soon have to find an outlet in Australia or America. In noting the different parties in any country the leading principles of each should be taught—Progressive, Prohibitionist, Labor and Socialist as well as Democrat and Republican, Conservative and Liberal. The teacher does not seek to impress his personal opinions on his pupils but merely leads them to enquire into and discover the real difference between the parties so that the child may be able to form an independent and intelligent opinion for himself. The new Civics text was very valuable. Prin. Ryder thought that all third and fourth parties were only of mushroom growth and were not worthy of much notice.

Mr. Steeves gave an address of over an hour on Agricultural Education. He said that the child who learned so much before he went to school, often soon became discouraged by the new conditions in school. By Grade VI 50 per cent. had left school. Only 5 per cent. reached High School and only one per cent. went through college. Yet most of the public money was spent for the High School and College minority. The reason for this was that the child had been trained on too narrow a system. Agricultural Education would supply the lacking interest and keep the child at school and lead him to settle on the land and stay in the province. People leave farm because they do not understand the capability of the farm. Agricultural Education will hinder but will help all other studies. It will be given largely out doors in the form of school gardening which should go with Nature Study. N. B. now has 23 school gardens. He hoped to see 100 next year. In Kings County where there are most school gardens, a district with only three teachers had Domestic Science, Manual Training and School Gardening and yet its pupils for the last two years had carried off the eighth grade medal given for highest standing in the ordinary studies. He wanted each teacher to have Trustees prepare this fall for a school garden. Government will give Trustees $20 a year for expense of ploughing, manuring, &c., and the teacher $30 for supervision. Garden should have a little plot for every child. The government would also grant from $20 to $40 for expense of putting up a little building to store tools, etc. The school garden should be well fenced with lock gate. He expected grants would soon be raised to $30 for trustees and $50 for teachers. There will be first, second and third prizes for best gardens in each county, to be divided between trustees for expenses and teachers. Pupil should be so interested that he will prepare an experimental plot for himself at home. The government will provide pedigree seed. In Ontario they have parish agricultural fairs for school competition. We have as good a country as any; all that is needed is that young people should know it. In one district in Ontario where there was a school garden the district's yield of oats had increased from 39 to 77 bushels per acre and potatoes from 171 to 288.

In reply to Mr. Steeves, 7 teachers present said they had taken the agricultural course, 3 of whom had a chance to apply it. To get grant teachers must take a summer course. But work would be paid for this year if teachers took course next summer. In Dayton, O., where there are 14 school gardens there are 1700 home gardens as a result.

Pres. Harrison and Inspector Mersereau discussed this paper. The Inspector said he wished to have a garden in every school. Nine-tenths of children cannot be educated from books.

The address of welcome was as follows:

"I am here in the name of the Trustees and the people of the village of Blackville, to welcome the delegates of the Teachers' Institute as this is the first time we have had the honor of having the Teachers' Institute held in Blackville, and to express our appreciation of the work in which you are engaged. You may rest assured you have the sympathy of the people of Blackville in your endeavor for the advancement of education, in the upbuilding of the individual, the community and the nation. Canada is a young country making immeasurable progress, and if she is to attain the greatest development it is necessary that the young generation should be properly educated because the time will soon arrive when they will have to shoulder the duties and responsibilities of our country, and any influence that can be carried to the country by teaching would be of great value to the young generation. If the people of Blackville give their children the proper education they will be able to obtain any reasonable results from them. The children form the family; families form the community, and the nation. As the children are educated so shall the family be and as the family is educated so shall the nation be. I am safe in saying that New Brunswick has the best educational system in the world. There should be closer connection between the home and the school. Parents in some cases are not in sympathy with the teachers, and instead of cooperating with them in the education of their children to bring out the best results, I will close my address by bidding the delegates of the Institute welcome, thrice welcome, to Blackville and extending to you all the privileges of the village and hoping that at some future time you will again hold your Institute meeting here.

CANADA FAVORS IMPERIAL UNITY

British Postmaster Samuel's Impressions of Visit to the Dominion

The Right Hon. Herbert L. Samuel, Postmaster-General, arrived home in London after an absence in Canada of nine weeks. Giving a graphic account of his visit to the Dominion, Mr. Samuel said what impressed him most was the degree of development already attained by the new cities of the Canadian West.

"I had expected," Mr. Samuel said, "to find some at least of the remotest towns bearing all the marks of hastily created civic communities with badly paved roads, unlighted streets, and ramshackle public buildings. On the contrary, although their growth has been a matter of a very few years, they have all provided themselves with many miles of admirably laid out roads, adequate sewerage, water and lighting systems, well equipped schools and really splendid public buildings. The best feature of all is that these communities take great pains in planning their towns, which is their picturesque and utility leave our English cities far behind.

"The impression I received of the working classes throughout my tour is that on the whole they are prosperous. The sole reason for a certain amount of unemployment in the West is on account of the recent financial stringency. These conditions, however, are passing away in consequence of the very bountiful harvest, which has done much to restore the financial balance."

Mr. Samuel referred in the high terms of praise to "that admirable institution known as the Canadian Club."

Speaking on the question of naval defence, the Postmaster-General said he was particularly struck by the imperial sentiment which prevailed in the desire for closer union with the Mother Country, inspiring the whole nation.

"I feel sure," Mr. Samuel said, "that the Ministers of Great Britain, no matter what party may be in power, would be well advised, when opportunities offer, to go to see these vast new provinces of the Empire. The people of Canada are full of deep pride in their country and of boundless confidence in its future, and, at the same time they are animated in the East and to the West by the warmest sentiments of attachments to the Empire as a whole."

HAVE ADDED ANOTHER PAIR

The Miramichi Black Fox Company Have Added a $16,000 Pair of Dalton Foxes to Their Pen

The Miramichi Black Fox Company of whom we had the pleasure of writing up some few weeks ago, have just added more strength to their already well equipped ranch by the addition of a pair of the famous P. E. Island Dalton foxes, now making four pairs of the finest strain of foxes on the market.

This last addition to their pen is valued at $16,000, and are expected to arrive at their ranch at Douglas-town next week.

After the third pair had been added some few weeks ago, the company had only about twenty-five shares of stock to offer for sale which were quickly taken up and great is the demand for stock that the company is now offering one hundred more shares to the buying public. These are to be sold within the next ten days, after which no more shares will be available.

The fox business, as everybody knows, is proving one of the very best investments on the go, and this company is now one of the safest and strongest companies doing business in the province. New buildings have been erected on their ranch, and the services of Mr. W. H. Ford, of Summerside, P. E. I., have been secured to look after these valuable animals. The very best prospects for dividends are held out, and we feel we are safe in saying that stock taken in this company will prove valuable to the investor.

Nathaniel Laird, superintendent of a Sunday school, was sentenced to serve not less than one year nor more than four in Sing Sing prison for the larceny of $40,000 from his employers the Kenaisito Company, New York. Laird's speculations extended over two years. The money, he said, was spent in high living.

KILLED IN WOODS BY FALLING TREE

Gordon McRae, of Chatham, Was Killed in Woods Near Redbank

Gordon McRae, aged 28 years, accidentally met his death while in the woods above Redbank, Saturday afternoon. He was employed in one of A. & R. Loggie Company's logging camps and was working with others in felling trees. The tree at which Mr. McRae was working struck another tree in its descent and glanced and before the young man could get out of the way it struck him across the head knocking him down and rendering him senseless.

His fellow workmen began at once to take him to medical help and reached Redbank that evening where a doctor was summoned, but he passed away in a very short time after his arrival there. The body was brought to Chatham Sunday. The news of the sad accident spread very quickly and much sympathy is expressed for his relatives. Mr. McRae lived with his uncle, William McRae, and is survived by one brother, Herbert, and one sister, Maggie.

A peculiar fact in connection with the accident is that the young man engaged to go into the woods for one month. His month was up Friday, but he finally decided to stay in the woods one more day and was coming out to-day. Almost at the last hour of the day death stepped in.—Monday's Gazette.

The local team have decided to take part in the bowling tournament to be held in St. John Nov. 26th and 27th and the team selected will be Brown, McMurray, Arseneau, Lank and Hennessy. ANNUAL SESSION OF THE ANGLICAN DIOCESAN SYNOD.

The Annual Convention of Clergy of the Anglican Church Opened Tuesday Afternoon—Bishop Richardson's Charge More Than Usually Interesting.

The annual session of the Diocesan Synod of Fredericton opened Tuesday afternoon at the Church Hall at 2.30, with His Lordship Bishop Richardson in the chair. Seated on the platform were among others, the Right Rev. David Williams, Bishop of Huron, Archdeacon Forsythe, Raymond and Markham, Canons Hoyt, Hanington, Cowie, Smithers, Chancellor Dr. Allen, and members of the Cathedral Chapter. After prayers and roll call the Rt. Rev. Dr. Williams was introduced to the Synod. Certain routine matters were transacted and then followed His Lordship the Bishop's charge.

There was a large attendance of both the clergymen and laity present at the Synod Monday. The majority came in on Tuesday evening's trains, while many arrived Tuesday morning from the North Shore and southern points.

Quiet Hour for Clergy
Monday evening beginning shortly before nine o'clock a quiet hour was held at the Cathedral, being largely attended by the clergymen of the diocese who had arrived on the evening's trains. The Bishop of Huron conducted the service, which was a most impressive and solemn one.

Tuesday morning at 9.15 Morning Prayer was said at the Cathedral, and at 10.30 Communion service held at which the Lord Bishop of the Diocese was the celebrant. The attendance at both services was large. All the visitors speak in praise of the appearance of the restored Cathedral, the opinion being that the work has been well done and one in which its founder, the late Metropolitan Bishop Medley, would feel proud.

Anniversary Service
Last evening the anniversary service at the Cathedral was held at 8 o'clock with the Bishop of Huron as special preacher. The choir and organ proceeded from the Cathedral chapel down the south aisle of the church and up the centre aisle to the chancel and sanctuary. Special music had been arranged by Organist Smith for the occasion. Rev. Dean Schofield and Rev. E. B. Hopper took part in the service and the First Lesson was read by Archdeacon Forsythe, and the Second Lesson by Archdeacon Newham. The anthem was "How lovely are the Messengers." His Lordship Bishop Richardson conducted the benediction services.

In Bishop Richardson's charge to the Diocesan Synod, he said in part: "Since the last meeting of the Synod the returns of the recent census have been published, and we are in a position to know something of the progress that the church has made within the last ten years. As most of you are probably aware, the figures seem to show that the Church of England Synod has been forging rapidly ahead. The Roman Catholics are still in the huge majority, although it is to be noted that their percentage of the total population is not so high as it was ten years ago. Leaving them to one side, it will be of some interest to compare the standing of the leading non-Roman Catholic bodies.

According to census of 1901, the figures were as follows:

Methodists	916,856
Presbyterians	842,442
Anglicans	681,494
Baptists	318,005

By the returns of 1911, the following is the standing:

Presbyterians	1,115,324
Methodists	1,079,892
Anglicans	1,043,617
Baptists	382,666

It will be perceived by these figures that the Presbyterians have taken the lead, the Methodists dropping in to second place, whilst the Anglicans are still third. The relative standing, however, has changed considerably. The Presbyterians now lead us by 72,307 instead of by 160,948 as in 1901, and the Methodists by 38,875 instead of by 363,459 as in 1901. Stated in terms of percentage, the Anglican increase has been 53.05 per cent.; Presbyterian increase 32.39 per cent.; the Baptist increase 20.33 per cent.; and the Methodist increase 17.78 per cent. Put in another way, of the total increase in population during the decade, the Anglican took 19.70 per cent., the Presbyterians 14.87 per cent., the Methodists 8.88 per cent., and the Baptists 3.52 per cent.

It would be a matter of great interest to know what is the exact significance of these figures. Of one thing there can be no doubt—they cannot be taken as a safe guide in estimating the actual propagating power—if I may use the term—of the respective churches. If the total increases in population had been due solely to natural causes, if that is to say, there had been no immigration, we should be justified in assuming that the figures mean precisely what they say. In other words, it would be obvious that the progress made by the Church of England in Canada during the past decade had been 20.72 per cent., greater than that of the Presbyterians, 32.78 per cent. greater than that of the Baptists, and 35.27 per cent. greater than that of the Methodists. But we know that the total increase was not due to natural causes only, but largely to the unprecedented immigration. The real significance of the census figures, therefore, can only appear in the light of that fact. The question is necessarily a very complex one, and requires the most careful consideration.

Captain Inch was in a serious mood as he boarded the Mauritania at New York, to go back to England and report officially the loss of his ship to the British Board of Trade. "The old Vermont is somewhere on the ocean," he said, "and I will watch for her all the way over. I don't suppose we will run across the derelict, but it will be picked up and towed to port some day, and when that time comes I will travel the world over to see my ship once more. I spent many years of my life on her deck."

The gall of distance from a hotel house at Snowden in the Jubal Chapin, near Suez, attracted the attention of the captain of the mail boat Madagascara while on a voyage to Madagascara. The berthhouse was bursting with medical assistance. The captain lowered a boat and sent the doctor to the shipboard. It was found that one of the passengers was being treated by a surgeon in his tent. The doctor operated and saved the man's life.

MASTER WORKMAN

SMOKING TOBACCO

It is a continuous strain for a builder to watch his buildings go up.

A pipe-full of MASTER WORKMAN tobacco is a great soothing when some deep thinking has to be done. This world-famous brand may now be had at all tobacconists for 15c. per cut.

Clipping the Horse

The subject of clipping the horse is a matter of considerable discussion at this time of the year. The following suggestions may be of benefit to those who are contemplating clipping their horses. In the first place, never clip a horse that has a fine coat of hair, as it will then be necessary to clip it every fall and spring thereafter.

Good Price for Holsteins

The Holstein is rapidly gaining favor in the British Isles, and at a recent sale of 87 head of this breed from the herd of A. and J. Brown, Hedges Farm, St. Albans, an average price of $212 was obtained, which is a record for Holsteins in England.

The Moulting Period

Many inquiries are received from time to time as to the proper treatment of fowls during the moulting period, at which time of every year—preferably during the summer months—the fowls should shed their old coat of feathers, which in the course of time are replaced by a new one.

Groom the Cows

From the sanitary standpoint, it is more essential to groom the cows than the horses. It requires not more than one minute to properly brush the flanks and spruce and dry the udder of a cow preparatory to milking.

Soil Management Important

"To be careless in the treatment of soil is as fatal to profitable agriculture as to be indifferent in the care of live stock on the farm," declares A. R. Whitson, of the Wisconsin soils laboratory.

A Necessary Food Supply

Some comparisons of records indicate that infinitely better returns are obtained from some dairymen than from others. One lot of milk testing 3.4, delivered at a factory last month was 21,580 pounds, the yield of 29 cows in two herds.

Layers vs Show Birds

To build up a strain of great layers calls for as much scientific knowledge and care as it does to produce superior show birds. But in the work of building up champions of either class a far different treatment exists.

Bedding for the Cow

One of the things that is easily forgotten, and one that is often neglected, is the bed for the cow. Many farmers are quite liberal feeders and use considerable care in watching the wants of the cows, but they forget to provide a good bed for her.

Overfat not only debilitates the fowls, but impairs the action of every organ in the body.

FORWARD TO THE LAND

(Fredericton Gleaner)
Of recent years much has been heard of the so-called "back to the land" movement, which had reference more particularly to those who had deserted the rural communities for the attraction of the city.

The present year marks the fortieth anniversary of the founding of the Women's Christian Temperance Union which had its origin in a great temperance movement which swept the United States in 1873. It was not until some years later, however, that the world organization was formed under the leadership of Miss Francis Willard. The first general convention of the world's W. C. T. U. was held in Boston in 1891 and the second in Chicago during the world's Columbian Exposition. London had the convention next in 1895, then Toronto in 1897, Edinburgh in 1900 and Geneva in 1902. It returned to Boston again in 1906, went to Glasgow in 1910, and Brooklyn was selected for 1912.

The arrival of the foreign delegates started the wheels of convention activities. A glance at the register maintained at the convention headquarters that the evidence of the fact that the gathering is destined to be the most representative in character in the history of the world-wide organization.

Great Britain and her colonies have sent the largest delegation from across the seas. Mrs. Hillion L. M. Stevens, vice-president of the organization, president in the place of the Countess of Carlisle, who was unable to represent, but who sent a letter of regret.

Mrs. Stevens, who was presented with a loving cup by Lady Aurea Howard, daughter of the Countess, in behalf of the foreign delegates, announced that the Countess had contributed $5,000 for white ribbon missionary work.

Other prominent delegates from England are Lady Hope, the leader of the movement for the establishment of Coffee houses in England; Miss Agnes Slack, an honorary secretary of the world's body, and Miss Annie Strankie-Cameron, who is world's secretary of the Young People's Branch.

Miss Ellen N. Stone, the famous missionary, who was captured and held for ransom by the brigands of Macedonia, will sit in the convention as a representative of Bulgaria. The Australian delegation is headed by Lady Holder, the president of the organization in that part of the world. Scotland and South Africa have sent good size delegations, and far away China, Japan, India, Argentina and Uruguay, will have their representatives.

Historic Plymouth Church, the pulpit of which was occupied for many years by Henry Ward Beecher, was well filled at the preliminary devotional services, many men being present. The time was given up to brief addresses by many delegates, to one sentence prayers and to singing. Miss Elizabeth Greenwood led the services.

Women of every creed and station wearing the snowy badge of the Women's Christian Temperance Union, attached emblems from every land and from every state in the Union and every province of Canada, gathered in the "City of Churches" in readiness for the opening of the ninth Triennial convention of the World's W. TERMINAL WORK
GOING ON WELL

O. W. Nordin Says Progress is Bound to be Slow--Project Will be Successful One

O. W. Nordin, of Nordin, who was in St. John's recently spoke of the terminal work for the Hudson's Bay railway, with the progress of which he is in close touch through the captain of his ship, Alette, which is on its way back from Port Nelson where the vessel recently brought 3,000,000 feet of lumber from Texas and Halifax for construction work at the northern terminal of the road.

"In any big undertaking like that," said Mr. Nordin, "the progress is bound to be slow, and there must be a lot of difficulties to contend with, but from what I hear from the captain of my ship, the work seems to be going ahead pretty well, and they have already constructed a good wharf at Port Nelson. In the spring a great deal more piling ought to go down, but at the present time the hard weather is setting in, and little more can be done during the winter. It looks, however, as if the project would turn out to be very successful later on."

TEACHERS INSTITUTE ANNUAL MEETING

 but do other people. The result of the present school system was unsatisfactory. Not two per cent. of pupils complete the course, and this in many cases not because of financial reasons but because the school course did not interest the child. Thus undesirable citizens were produced. The remedy was Vocational and Industrial teaching. This would increase attendance and raise the standard of education and civilization. 89 per cent. of the undesirable of the town left school in Grade V or VI. Industrial education would have saved them. Temperance and other societies were trying to overcome the great social and moral evils of the day, but they were dealing with the finished product. The schools could prevent this idleness and poverty that produces undesirable. Skilled workers produce more wealth to the benefit of both themselves and the country. Industrial and agricultural education would save the state.

Prin. Stuart urged the curing of so much inattention at school, which results from either the carelessness or poverty of parents, by intelligently effective compulsory education. Child labor should be abolished and poor children assisted by the State until through with school. The poorest should have equal chances with the others. Every uneducated citizen is a weakness and menace to the State. The average child has a poor chance in a miscellaneous school. Good graded schools can be secured all over the country by consolidation of the smaller schools. Blackville, with five or six miscellaneous schools within three or four miles was an ideal place for a big consolidated school. The latter might cost a little more but it would pay to give the pupils a better chance with less grades to a teacher. We must change our methods at once. The West is filling up, and our increase of population must soon cease to emigrate and stay at home and learn to live in smaller space. To do this they must have instruction in Agriculture. China is now sending steel rails to America cheaper than the local product, and the white man must soon increase his producing power or see his standard of living descend to the level of the Asiatic. Hence more efficient industrial education is needed. But the aim of the schools should not merely be to develop refinement, skill and power, but to cultivate an independent thinking, investigating spirit that will produce a generation of workmen who will see to it that when they labor every worker shall receive the full product of his toil, the man who refuses to do any useful work being compelled to keep his hands off the industry of others.

Inspector Mersereau agreed with Mr. Stuart that if the white man was to maintain himself in competition with the more virile Asiatic he must adopt better methods of education, else the white would disappear before the yellow as the red had before the white. He called upon Mr. Steeves to supplement Mr. Murray's address by speaking on the Agricultural side of the question.

Mr. Steeves spoke along the same lines as in the afternoon interesting his hearers as thoroughly as he had the Teachers earlier in the day.

Adjourned.

Friday Morning
 Institute resumed at 9.
 Miss Ida C. Lynch read a paper describing just how she and several other Chatham teachers had taught primary Nature Work.

1st, the children's attention had been drawn to plants in general.

2nd, the plant's work—to find food for itself.

3rd, the plant going to school, with the Sun as teacher.

4th, What the plants study, that is, how to prepare their food—cook it; and where to buy it—from the earth, air and water.

5th, sending the plants to school—planting them in earth, damp sawdust, blotting paper, etc., so that their growth by absorbing water may be observed.

6th, the development of the root to draw food from the soil.

7th, how the food comes from the soil, and how the little plant breaks through to the air.

8th, the cooking of the plant's food in its leaves.

9th, the development of the flower to produce seed that there may be a new plant next year.

In the autumn the little tots were taught to observe all the insect and other inhabitants of the garden, to discriminate between useful and harmful birds and insects, &c., to observe the winds, &c., and to arrange seeds they brought. Caterpillars were caught and their transformation observed. Many useful subjects were taught along with the Nature Study as incidental. The children were always interested and delighted with the study.

Inspector Mersereau, the President, Mr. Steeves, Mr. Hetherington, and others expressed themselves much pleased with the paper.

Prin. Stuart spoke of the humanizing and civilizing influence of Nature Study. Children were far more merciful to and careful of harmless birds, animals and insects now than they used to be. This was the result of Nature Science Studies.

Mr. Steeves spoke highly of the pioneer work in Nature Study done by the late Drs. John Brittain and G. U. Hay.

Mr. Murray read a paper on Manual Training, covering pretty much the same ground as his speech of the night before. He said that of those who leave school early, 5 per cent. leave because of illness or death; 10 per cent. from mental inefficiency; 10 from vicious habits; 10 put to work by selfish parents; 10 go to private schools, but 45 per cent. leave because they find school dull and uninteresting. The present system tends to discourage manual work. But if boys were used to manual work in schools they would take to it readily afterwards.

The paper was discussed by Messrs. Stuart, Daley, Barry, Hetherington and Mersereau.

Mr. Barry, who had taken manual training himself would like to have a chance to teach it in Newcastle.

Prin. Hetherington graphically described the great industrial schools of Liverpool, Belfast, Hamburg and Geneva. He thought industrial education could be had without manual training in the elementary schools.

The Inspector defended the experimental methods of the last few years. Clay modelling led up to something better. Now, any girl who has had manual training can make a decent box and act in an emergency.

A very valuable paper on How to teach Bailey's Botany to advanced grades, was sent by Dr. Philip Cox of the U. N. B. and referred by Inspector Mersereau, who referred in very feeling terms to Dr. Cox's great work in this county. It was resolved to ask the Chief Supt. to have the paper printed in the Educational Report.

Adjourned.

Friday Afternoon
 Secretary-Treasurer's report showed receipts of $24.50 and expenditure of $26.50 since last institute; cash on hand, $28.25.

Audit committee reported Sec. Treasurer's accounts correct.

On recommendation of Pres. Harri- son and motion of L. R. Hetherington the Sec. Treasurer's salary was increased to $10 a year.

On recommendation of the Resolutions Committee, the thanks of the Institute were extended to R. P. Steeves, Dr. Cox, all who helped in the public meeting, the Trustees, the people of Blackville who boarded the teachers, and the L. R. C. and M. S. N. Co.

On motion of Messrs. Hetherington and Stuart, a vote of thanks was given Misses Lottie and May Underhill for their work in preparing for the Institute.

On recommendation of the Nominating Committee following officers were elected:
 President—L. R. Hetherington, M. A.
 Vice-pres.—Miss Ida C. Lynch, Sec. Treas.—H. H. Stuart.
 Additional members of Executive—Misses Sadie B. Hogan and E. Jessie Fowle.

Next meeting of Institute will be in Chatham on last Thursday and Friday of September next.

Mr. Barry read a well prepared paper on Physical Training.

He showed that Physical training was needed to keep the child in health, without which mental progress would not be satisfactory. It also tended to develop the pupil's self control and moral character. It should be given regularly and systematically, gradually proceeding from easy exercises to difficult, all faults being corrected by the teacher. Good ventilation was needed. Sports should be encouraged. Wellington once said that the battle of Waterloo had been won many years before on the English football fields.

Mr. Barry's paper was discussed at length by Inspector Mersereau, who emphasized the importance of Physical Training to prevent the race from deteriorating and to enable us to keep our country from our competitors.

He also advised teachers not to tolerate dirty schoolhouses.

Interesting discussion followed on keeping schoolhouses clean, on Primary Reading and Farm Arithmetic, and after a most helpful and enjoyable meeting the Institute closed.

GRIT SENATE TO BLOCK PROGRESS

The Opposition are Determined to Block any Measure of Effective Naval Defence

Ottawa, Nov. 2.—The certainty of no session until January has caused a complete lull in political matters in the capital. Speculation as to the legislative programme arouses little interest as the cabinet's proposals have been well concealed and the general public has little idea of what new matter will be brought before Parliament. The Opposition press is busy formulating a naval policy, or rather a series of naval policies, for the Government. So many schemes have been put forward by the Opposition as the Government's policy that they have probably guessed some features of the Government's proposals.

For the Government to introduce any scheme of naval defence that would be effective is to invite its destruction by the Senate as long as that body is controlled by Sir Wilfrid Laurier. It appears that for yet another year this non-representative body will be in opposition to defeat the will of the representatives of the majority of the people. The Opposition are determined to block any measure of effective naval defence also the attempt of the Government to aid in highway construction.

For a year they have demanded a redistribution bill, and now announce that if one is introduced this session their hostile majority in the Senate will kill it. Representative government has become impossible under Laurier's control of the Senate, which he filled with useless heeled bound to him by ties of gratitude for participation in the division of the spoils so frequent and remunerative under the fifteen years of graft rule.

Some of the bills sure to come before Parliament are naval defence, redistribution and highways. All these are likely to be regarded ineffective by the Senate. Any attempt to revise the tariff on the lines endorsed by the people of 1911—a tariff commission—will meet a similar fate.

Thus four important questions cannot be successfully dealt with because a body of men who represent nobody except a defeated political leader refuse to give their assent.

Consolidation of the railway act, reports on ocean and railway rates will be before Parliament. An expansion of the policy of aid to agriculture is certain. The estimates will include votes to continue the Government's policy of development of our transportation systems. There will probably be a measure increasing the jurisdiction of the Grain Commission over the eastern section.

What will be of great interest is the report on the construction of the National Transcontinental, now in the hands of the Government, and which illustrates the graft and waste of the Laurier regime. Reports on the alienation of the public domain under Laurier rule will also be brought down and the exposures will drive some men from public life.

Control of the Senate by Laurier will rob the coming session of much of its effectiveness, but may eventually rid Canada of this useless legislative body. However, there will be many matters of interest and much fighting if Laurier continues his rule or wreck policy and his lieutenant's campaign in Chateaugay and Bruce indicate that such a policy will be continued.

"I ATTRIBUTE MY HAPPENINGS OF EARLY DAYS. CURE SOLELY And Entirely To Taking "Fruit-a-tives"

HULL, Que., Dec. 24th, 1909

"For the past twelve years, I had painful attacks of Dyspepsia. I could not digest my food and everything caused the most agonizing pain in my stomach. I also had a fearful attack of Constipation and at times, I had no movement of the bowels for two weeks. Three doctors attended me for two years and gave me all kinds of medicine but did me no good. My weight came to only 80 pounds and everyone thought I was going to die. Finally, I had the good fortune to try "Fruit-a-tives" and as soon as I began to take them, I felt better. I persisted in the treatment and to my great joy, I steadily improved. Now I feel very well, weigh 115 pounds, and this is more than I ever weighed even before my illness.

I attribute my cure solely and entirely to "Fruit-a-tives" and can never praise them too much for saving my life. To all who suffer from Dyspepsia and Constipation, I recommend "Fruit-a-tives" as a miraculous remedy.

HAPPENINGS OF EARLY DAYS. Taken From The Advocate's Fyles Forty-five Years Ago

Just forty-five years ago the 8th of school, New Brunswick. Married in this month the death took place at Chatham of the Hon. John M. Johnson, M. P., and his obituary is written in Nov. 12th, 1868, issue of The Advocate.

For a year previous to his death of the late Mr. Johnson had shown signs of falling health, but it was only during the last two months that it became painfully perceptible that his career was rapidly drawing to a close.

Speaking of the late Mr. Johnson's public life, The Advocate had this to say:

"In him New Brunswick has lost one of her most accomplished men, and Northumberland one of its brightest ornaments. In his palmiest days few men in the Dominion outperformed him either as a public speaker or in forensic ability, and his death will leave a vacancy in the Bar of New Brunswick not easily filled.

"As a public debater he was rarely equalled, and for quickness of perception and logical sequence in argument he stood unrivalled in the profession of which he was one of the brightest ornaments. No man within the bounds of New Brunswick had a better reputation as a lawyer, and his way was long open to the highest legal honors his country could confer upon him.

"His career as a public man covers a period of about twenty years; the greater part of this time he represented this country in the parliament of our province, and has held some of the most important offices in the gift of the Crown.

"When the plan for Confederating these provinces was first publicly agitated, he was one of its warmest supporters, and aided with his abilities to bring about a result he believed to be so desirable for the permanent good of the whole Union. He was one of the delegates that perfected the Scheme of Union in England and was soon after elected as Northumberland's first representative to the Commons.

"He saw the first session of these United Colonies at Ottawa, and his work as a statesman and legislator has closed forever. A brief account of his history is given in the Canadian Parliamentary Companion as follows:

"The Hon. John Mercer Johnson was the son of the late J. M. Johnson Esq., a timber merchant in Liverpool, England, who emigrated to Miramichi, N. B., and afterwards became sheriff of the County of Northumberland, N. B. Born in Liverpool, England, October 1818. Came to America at an early age. Educated at the Northumberland County Grammar

Flour varies from time to time in baking quality. This is because wheat continually varies according to soil conditions, etc.

Therefore, if baking results are to be constantly high, baking tests are essential. It is unreasonable to expect you to make these tests at your expense.

So from each shipment of wheat delivered at our mills we take a ten pound sample. This is ground into flour. Bread is baked from the flour. If this bread is high in quality and large in quantity, we use the shipment. Otherwise we sell it.

By simply asking for FLOUR bearing this name you can always be sure of more bread and better bread.

THE HALF-SPEED MAN AND WOMAN

What It Means When You Feel "All Out of Sorts"

You know what it means to feel "all out of sorts." Most people have felt this way at some time. Nervous, out of order, irritable, languid, depressed. An aching head, a farred brain, appetite bad and digestion weak. With some people this condition comes and goes; with others it is chronic; they can't shake it off. It interferes with business, stunts recreation and robs life of all its joys. These men and women are only able to live and work at "half speed."

Half speed people have less than abundant natural vitality which enables others to go "full-speed ahead" through life. Their energy and nerve power have evaporated—they cannot work long without breaking down. The trouble is nerve weakness and is caused by poor, watery blood. You can begin to improve your condition today by taking Dr. Williams' Pink Pills. They make rich, red blood once more pulsate through your veins and your nerves thrill with fresh vigor. Here is convincing evidence that new strength and full health can be had through the use of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills. Mr. Newton Maxwell, North Tryon, P. E. I., says: "I am a farmer and naturally have to work very hard. The result was that I found myself very much run down. My blood became thin and watery, and my muscles shabby. I took doctors treatment but it did not help me and I grew so weak that I could scarcely work at all. As I found the medical treatment was not helping me I decided to try Dr. Williams' Pink Pills, and in these I found the medicine I needed, as in a short time I was restored to my old health and vigor. I shall always recommend these pills to all sufferers."

Dr. Williams' Pink Pills are sold by all medicine dealers, or will be mailed, post paid, at 50 cents a box or six boxes for $2.50 by The Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

MRS. EATON FREED OF MURDER CHARGE

Bursting Into Tears She Thanks The Jury--Hopes Her Trials are Over

Plymouth, Mass., Oct. 30.—After Mrs. Eaton had left the court room after being acquitted on the charge of murdering her husband, the jurors through their foreman, asked that they might be allowed to meet her. The permission was granted and they formed a semi-circle in the corridor. Mrs. Eaton came out from the judge's lobby and thanked them individually. As she did so, she burst into tears for the first time since her trial started.

A little later Mrs. Eaton gave out the following statement:

"I am so glad most of all, because of my aged mother and my lame child, both of whom need me. It means so much to them. I shall go home probably late to-day and I hope that a new life will be opened to me and that the trials and tribulations which have been mine in the past are ended."

Because of the prominence of Rear Admiral Eaton, the trial of Mrs. Eaton, who was his second wife has attracted country wide interest. The Admiral took a prominent part in the battle of Santiago. After his retirement he settled down on a little chicken farm at Assinippi, where he died on March 8 last.

As a result of the report made by the physician, who had attended him the day before the medical examiner held an inquest, portions of the internal organs of the Admiral were sent to Professor Whitney of the Harvard medical school, who reported that they contained a large quantity of white arsenic. The grand jury reported an indictment against Mrs. Eaton, charging murder. She was arrested March 19.

Her trial commenced October 19. The government sought to show that Mrs. Eaton poisoned her husband by placing arsenic in his beverages and his medicine, and that she was jealous of his attentions to other women.

Mrs. Eaton's counsel contended that the Admiral's death was due to self-administered drugs, but did not attempt to show whether the alleged overdose was taken intentionally or by accident.

KILLED TRYING TO MAKE RECORD

Percy Lambert, holder of many world's automobile speed records, was killed on the Brooklands motor car race track Friday while he was making an attack on the hour record. He was travelling at the rate of 114 miles an hour, when one of the tires burst, and caused the machine to turn turtle at the top of the embankment, and then fall to the bottom.

Only on Monday, Lambert captured the fifty miles' world's record, in twenty-seven minutes, 2 2/5 seconds. On February fifteen on the same track, he had established a record of 103 3/4 miles for an hour and at the same time, 100 miles record of fifty seven minutes, 49 3/4 seconds.

Because the tax collector of Oxford, Penn., refused to accept checks in payment of bills, the citizens paid him in pennies. On the first day more than 12,000 pennies were paid in, and the flood kept on until the collector yielded the point.

The number 13 is barred from use to a great extent in London because of the superstition connected with it. There are many streets which have no number 13, and the London City Council, in making up the recent automobile registration, omitted numbers containing 13.

Our Job Printing Department

There is a difference between plain Job Printing and the kind of Printing that draws business. At one time any kind of a printed letter-head or envelope would do so long as the work was done by a printer. Good paper and high priced ink, the customer did not know enough about to be fussy. It is not so now. The customer today figures these items into his contract for printing the same as he does the quality of the goods he purchases to carry on his business.

This is the class of customers who have their printing done at The Advocate Job Dept. Only the best lines of writing paper are kept in stock and the highest grade of inks used for all work. There is not a CHEAP line in our office, for experience has taught us to carry only the best and the most serviceable.

People who leave their order for printing with this office, have that inward feeling of assurance that they are going to get just the kind of a job they want. They do not speculate, they know, and they are never disappointed. We spare no pains to give our customers just what they want, and that is one reason why this office has gained the reputation it has for turning out the highest class of Job Printing only.

If you are not yet a customer, join our list and have your letter heads and envelopes, or whatever nature your work may be, printed in an artistic manner. It does not cost any more for good printing than it does for the cheaper kind, and a small order is given as good care as a large one.

We are now in a position to handle all kinds of

and would be pleased to quote prices for this class of work at any time. We guarantee strict satisfaction in all cases.

Remember that this office is in better shape to handle your Printing than it has ever been before, due to the fact that only competent printers are employed and the most modern machinery used.

WOMAN AND MOSES

But it was the Groben Mine that decided him, far more than Mrs. Chichester's words or Avril's. The Groben Mine brought back all Doreen's misdeeds, opened once more all the forgotten cupboards of his mind and revealed in all their grotesque misshapeness the reckless acts of Doreen.

A letter from the American lawyer Trefusis had employed, stated that Lancaster had possessed himself of the mine, and was beginning to reap a golden harvest. "You have no redress," said the lawyer, "unless you prosecute him for stealing your papers, and then, of course, you would have to bring in the former Mrs. Trefusis as accomplice. I fancy that he would probably claim that she gave him the papers, and that he did not know they were stolen. Besides, the point of the whole thing is not that he stole them, the stealing of them has nothing to do with his becoming possessed of the mine; as it was not yet assigned to anyone, he was as free as anyone else to buy it. That he became cognisant of its existence and of all details concerning it through the papers is beyond dispute, but there was no clause of any sort to prevent his purchase of the mine, to prove that he acted in any way fraudulently except from a moral point of view, in taking advantage of the knowledge imparted from the papers."

Arthur Trefusis groaned. It would seem apparently that Lancaster had done enough wrong to Trefusis in robbing him of his wife without taking his mine also. At that moment, Trefusis did not quite know what angered him the most, or which loss he regretted least. He ground his teeth that he had lost a fortune through "that woman," the epithet he now applied to Doreen. Why should he have any scruples with regard to a woman, who, not content with being unfaithful, robbed him of a fortune in order to give it to her lover? Rapidly, sore with the thought of the Groben Mine, he wrote to Mrs. Chichester and Avril.

To the former:

"I was waiting Avril's pleasure. I did not want her to marry until she had silted every scruple."

"Darling, surely you cannot mean what you say? I am only waiting your commands. I think you must know that I cannot consent to part with you. You must marry me. If there are arguments, there is yet no law against my marrying you. Are you ready to brave a little of the world's opinion in order to make me happy?"

After he had written he became set and obstinate, and drove Doreen's image from his mind.

Luckily, Avril did not know that it was the Groben Mine that had really settled the matter for her. There are not many men who would forgive being done out of a fortune of several hundred thousand pounds, and when Arthur Trefusis remembered that it was his wife's lover who had robbed him, it seemed obvious that it was absurd to regret her. He could not help realizing, however, that it was hard on Doreen not to be asked to share the spoil, it seemed like a just retribution, and just retributions are not particular as to the bitterness of their impositions.

"After all he had had a chance of breaking off, Avril said to herself, and had not taken it. After all he cared for her," the wedding was fixed for an early day in May, and right thing to a person in my position. You forget that I am divorced. There are no depths too deep. There is no mud too foul for me now."

"Don't, don't talk like that. Look here, surely I could help you. I don't want half my allowance." His face was flushed with the ardour of his sacrifice and fear of insulting her.

Doreen's voice trembled.

"You are too, too good to me, but I couldn't. No, really, I believe it will be a good thing for me. It will give me an interest in life. One has to work very hard."

"I can't bear to think of it."

"Oh, you will get accustomed to the idea. I never thought I could wear a ready-made gown at three guineas, yet look at this." She struck a rough blue serge as she spoke.

"You look awfully nice."

"So the shrimps and mussels tell me, for no one else has seen the dress yet; but they are very lenient and after all they are the only creatures I need please now."

"What about me?" The young man's accent was passionate.

"You—" For one moment their eyes met, and she trembled at the thought of what life might yet contain.

"You are a dear, good boy, to whom I am very grateful. You have a splendid career before you. You will marry some nice girl and be happy ever after, like all good boys in the fairy tales. I shall want to continue to be your friend and shall not be allowed to."

"Don't talk like that."

"Well, one day you shall marry Mouché."

"I wish you wouldn't, Mrs. Trefusis."

"Miss Maclaren, Doreen Maclaren, your honour." Doreen loved to relapse into a brogue.

"Doreen," George Farquharson pronounced her name absently.

"Isn't it extraordinary to think how when one is little one never imagines how tragic one's future may be? Do you know that when I was a little child I had a Roman Catholic nurse, and I had made up my mind to become a nun. A nun, and now I am divorced. Do you see how intensely funny it is?"

George Farquharson left very heartsick, and for the first time wondered what life meant by its eccentricities.

CHAPTER XVI

The winter which had seemed long and dreary by anticipation seemed to have merged abruptly into spring, and to have, as it were, pulled up sharp on the eve of Avril's wedding day. The wedding was to be in London, and a clergyman with broader views of orthodoxy had been found to perform the ceremony on the strength of the veracity of his Bishop's counsel.

"My dear fellow, I can't advise you. I don't know what to say. You must do as your conscience dictates. I can't command you to perform the service, nor can I forbid you to do so. The man of God groaned and wished things were clearer, which others have done before him, and came to the conclusion that he might be saying them from worse things than marriage.

All concerned had decided to have a very, very quiet wedding. Avril could not but confess to herself that it was not quite the realization of her girlish dreams, but to be married without the trappings of festival, and she felt that there would be less comment if there was less "reclame."

The evening before the wedding Avril felt it incumbent upon her to make snatches at misfortune. To probe to the very root of the uncertainty that troubled them, in order to secure her position more fully the next day.

"Arthur, are you sure, quite sure that you feel we are doing right, that you don't regret what you are doing?"

Arthur had to endure the remembrance of the "Groben Mine" to add poignancy to his answer. To charge it, as it were, with truth filtered from reminiscence of bitterness.

"I know that I intend marrying you whether it is right or wrong, and that we should both be fools to destroy our own and each other's happiness for an idea." Then as she remained silent, not quite satisfied, he went on: "Do you regret it?"

Her look was sufficient answer, then diffidently she put the question: "In the years to come do you think you will feel differently?"

"I shall always be grateful to you for having cared for me, for Mouché's sake I hope you will not draw back if not for mine."

In the conversation of both there was an avoidance of a direct answer, which is often the presage of trouble to come.

Both looked pale during the service, and the few present noticed the hurry there was in Trefusis's manner, as if he longed for the ceremony to be over. It seemed to him as if the words of the clergyman had a different meaning to him to what they had when he married Doreen. Perhaps he had not listened to them. "To love and to cherish until death us do part," the image of Doreen, pretty, careless, childlike Doreen, rose up in his mind.

CURE SICK HEADACHE.

Avril felt sick that she could feel so much better if they could once talk over the whole position, yet she knew that from very love of her Arthur would not tell her all he felt. Once in his sleep she heard him murmur "Doreen." That night she lay awake till morning, wondering if he still cared for Doreen. She was glad when his constituents grew dissatisfied at his long absence and clamoured for his return.

She wanted occupation, yet she dreaded going to their country place. How would she be received? She had yet to learn the philosophy with which England meets the inevitable, especially if it is accompanied by a big balance at the bank.

While she as still unmarried respectable England protested, but it was not going to have the doors of Chatts Park closed upon it because it cried over spilled milk. The living was in Arthur Trefusis's gift, and it would be most unbecoming of the man to whom he had given it to show the cold shoulder to his patron. So, after all, the county received her very amicably, and the dear English country pursuits brought brightness if not perfect peace.

Naturally the question of Mouché's return was opened out. Her father wanted to see her. His relations cried out at his leaving his child with Doreen. It was monstrous. Cruel to the child, unheard of, yet, as if by tacit consent, neither pressed on the other the point of Mouché's return.

"Of course, if she went on the stage, the child must come away." That Arthur Trefusis had decided upon, but while Mouché was with her mother it had been easy to send her remittances under the guise of providing for the child, and Doreen was not absolutely obliged to seek work. She too, realized that while the child was with her she must not think of the stage. While it was with her, how long, how long, would it last, this bliss? Every morning she dreaded to receive the letter that with one fell blow would end the short space of happiness. How happy those two were together! Doreen wondered how she could ever have wanted any other society than her child's, it was now her only comfort.

Presently the position became less strained. Trefusis was an ideal husband, and with enough to make life pleasant to her, and who can regret anything during a summer in Italy? The perfection of the scenery, the complete harmony of nature and the architecture, and human presentment seemed to chase away the cobwebs of the mind, together with the incongruities of other surroundings. It was the first time Avril had been abroad, and her delight and ignorance gave Trefusis employment. He was an ideal cicero.

"After all I have more, a great deal more than other women," she often said to herself, but it is when we try to persuade ourselves that we are happy that our hearts are breaking. At every turn Avril realized that there was one approach to his heart she would never enter. Then just as she was becoming accustomed to being called Mrs. Trefusis, just when Doreen's image seemed to be leaving a shadowy recollection like a vivid dream only, there came a letter from Trefusis's solicitors containing an extraordinary piece of news. Captain Lancaster was dead.

Arthur wondered whether Doreen would be sorry.

"I merely tell you this in case you should now think it worth while to take some steps towards recovering the mine."

Once more the fact of Doreen's existence crossed the path of both.

"What do you intend to do?"

"If it is to be had cheap I will buy it," said Arthur.

"But you won't—you won't bring an action." Avril's voice was almost an appeal. An action would mean Doreen's name being brought up in the papers. It would be reminding the world that he had two wives. Somehow Avril could not get rid of the feeling that Arthur had two wives. She wished she had never known Doreen or Mouché. It would never have obtruded itself so forcibly upon her.

"Certainly not if you do not wish it." To himself he wondered why she should object, then he remembered Doreen's share in the transaction, and wondered whether it was out of kindness to her.

"Yet it would be a grand thing to get hold of it again." There are very few people who think they have enough.

Avril detected wistfulness in his remark.

"Of course if you think it is necessary."

Doing Well in West

James M. Falconer, who went west a short time ago, writes this paper that he is doing well in Calgary where he is now living. Building operations, he says, have been dull of late, but they have good crops and a fine season, and best of all, money is coming up. The finding of oil a short distance from the city has brought on a lot of excitement, and he says it is interesting to see from one to two hundred people lined up in front of the land office to file claims.

Got His Leg Jammed

Jack Woods, while at work at the bridge, met with an accident, which might have proved more serious, had not assistance arrived when it did. He was paying out a rope to the tug when his left leg got caught somehow in the coil which was getting smaller, giving it a tight jam between the knee and ankle. Ned Crocker, who was working near, saw his predicament and got him clear, or his fingers would have resulted not only in a broken leg but he would have been otherwise injured. He will be laid up for a few days in consequence.

Special Services

On Sunday evening next, Nov. 9th, the Rev. Dr. Cousins will commence a special series of addresses which should prove helpful to all classes of this community. The first subject is: "Is it possible for one to live a Christian life in the town of Newcastle?" Opportunity will be given at each service for questions to be sent to the pastor in writing which will be answered on the following Sunday evening. Service to commence at 7 o'clock. All are most cordially invited.

Painful Accident

Early Thursday morning of last week as Mrs. Wm. Harriman was walking along the I. C. R. track in company with Miss Annie Harriman, who was leaving on the Maritime, she had the misfortune to fall into the ash pit near the watering tank, receiving painful bruises about the head and face, rendering her unconscious. Miss Harriman at once brought assistance and Wm. Dunn drove her home in the Miramichi back. Medical attendance was given and everything done for the injured lady. We are pleased to state she is rapidly recovering.

WANTED—A SMART BOY

A good opportunity is being offered by The Advocate to any smart boy, about 14 years of age, to learn a good trade. The boy who has ambition is the boy who will work himself up in the world but his ambition should not be wholly the earning of good pay at hard labor. It is a mistake for any young boy to wear out his life trying to do a man's work because he can get a man's pay. It is much better to learn a trade that will stand by him the year round and when in very few months he can earn more pay at easier and cleaner work, and be better off both socially and financially, than he otherwise would be by working at hard labor. This office wants a boy to learn the printing business, and will push along any smart boy who will take up the work. Better wages can be commanded in a few years than a boy could ever hope to get by day's labor. Call at the office and talk it over.

THE ADVOCATE'S STEADY GROWTH

New Advertisers Gradually Coming in and Subscription Lists Steadily Increasing

The proof of the standing of a newspaper in a town is shown by the amount of advertising it carries, and the amount of space taken up by the merchants. A glance through the pages of The Advocate will show how our efforts are being appreciated in endeavoring to turn out a first-class weekly paper.

Congratulatory remarks are constantly being made, and we assure our friends that they are appreciated. It is certainly good encouragement and we trust we will be able to live up to what is expected of us, and more.

We are pleased to see our old advertisers taking up their space again, for we believe they recognize the benefits derived from their ads. in this paper. Our subscribers will be quick to notice this, and as it will be an inducement for new subscribers to have their names on our lists, it will also have a tendency to increase the advertiser's business.

New contracts for outside advertising are gradually being taken out, and as they invariably ask for the best positions, we would like to state that if there are any other local merchants who are intending taking up space, it would be well for them to select positions now while the Christmas season approaches, rather than leave it off until the best positions are taken up.

THREE DAY MISSION TO BE HELD HERE.

The Rev. Fr. Pacifique, Capuchin Missionary, Will Visit Miramichi.

The Sixteenth Centenary of the Constantinian Edict, known as the Edict of Milan, authorizing the Christians to practice Christianity in public, build churches, etc., is being solemnly commemorated throughout the Catholic world during the present year.

This solemn commemoration assumes, with other things, the form of a Jubilee which terminates on the 8th of December, of the present year. The Rev. Fr. Pacifique, the well known Capuchin Missionary, who, a few years ago, gave a very successful mission in some of the parishes on the Miramichi, will on special invitation reach Nelson by the Maritime express on Monday, Nov. 10th and will immediately after the celebration of the Mass in St. Patrick's Church at Nelson, preach a sermon suitable to the occasion and will preach twice a day until Thursday inclusively. On Thursday afternoon he goes to Douglastown for the purpose of giving a similar mission in St. Samuel's Church there, concluding on Sunday morning at the half past eight Mass, whence he will proceed to Newcastle, preaching at the last Mass at St. Mary's Church. He will then continue until Wednesday morning inclusively, preaching in the morning and at night. Announcements to this effect have already been made in these churches, and particulars as regards to hours, etc., will be given in due time.

The case of the Thompson lady, accused of two robberies in Campbellton was disposed of in short order by Judge McLatchey who sentenced the brothers to four years in the Boys' Industrial Home at St. John.
