Students, Attention!

Rare Chance to Secure a College Education.

We have made arrangements that enable us to place within the reach of a limited number of deserving students, opportunities for securing, on easy terms, a classical or commercial education. A little work during the vacation season will secure this for the one worthily striving for such a boon, but who may not be in possession of sufficient money to realize his heart's desire. The facilities at our disposal enable us to offer a year's board and tuition at

St. Dunstan's College

to any three young men who will fulfill the necessary, easy conditions required. These may be beginners, or former students of the College who have not been able to complete their course. In addition to this we have at our disposal four scholarships at the of Charlottetown. A full course in this excellent Commercial College may be won by any four young men or women, in town or country, who will fulfill the easy conditions we require. Whenever anyone satisfies the requirements in either of the cases enumerated he or she will be given a certificate entitling the holder to the educational advantages offered. A rare opportunity is here placed within reach of those desirous of acquiring a good education, and no time should be lost in taking advantage thereof. Only a little work is required in order to secure the coveted boon, and all can easily be accomplished during this summer's vacation, so that the winners may enter either college at the opening of the next academic year.

Napoleon Versus Clemenceau & Co.

In a recent number of the Revue des Deux Mondes, there appeared a speech of Napoleon I., delivered in February, 1801, on the question of religious liberty. At that time he was on the eve of undoing the work of destruction wrought by the French Revolution. With his penetrating genius he recognized the vital necessity of restoring the relations with the Church which had been severed when the red fury that destroyed so much, swept over France. At the opening of the nineteenth century, just as at the opening of the twentieth century, there were many persons in France who whilst prating of liberty, equality, and fraternity would deny to the Church all that these words stand for. Napoleon had no patience with these men whose inconsistencies angered him. He summoned into his presence some of them who held important positions under the Government, and roundly berated them for their opposition to his plan for permitting French Catholics to enjoy the liberty to which they were fully entitled. The words he employed on that occasion were not published at the time, but were preserved for posterity by M. Lagade, Secretary General for the three Consuls, who, happening to be present, jotted down Napoleon's words whilst they were still fresh in his memory. Opp of his descendants gave these notes to M. Vandal who has had them published in the Revue des Deux Mondes.

Here is how Napoleon's voice, sounding across the nineteenth century, rebukes the Combes, the Clemenceaus and Brindes of to-day: "Talk of priests! Can a Government hope to keep the people loyal to it and at the same time persecute them for holding opinions most dear to them? That the majority of the French people are attached to the Catholic religion is a fact that you cannot get rid of. Do you want me to put myself in opposition to this majority? They declared ten years ago that the people are free and sovereign. It is high time that this declaration should be made good. Have they not been shouting down ever to our days 'Long live liberty! Long live humanity!' And a free people cannot go to Mass, and a humane Government drives from their homes old men of eighty years whom exile will soon kill.

We must make words stand for what they represent. The advocates of popular sovereignty and of humanity reproach men for respecting public opinion and for summing up like from exile; victims, whom public opinion would restore to their native land. Am I then a religious bigot? Do they wish me to be considered a fanatic who would bring back the Church to which he belonged? I desire that all religions be tolerated and I would not have the religion of the majority of the nation excepted from the principle of toleration."

Such were the sentiments of the greatest genius that ever guided the destiny of France. Napoleon went straight to the heart of matters. He had no patience with those who were Liberals in words, but tyrants when it came to the question of acting. He had nothing but unmitigated contempt for those who, while brawling lustily about liberty, equality, and fraternity, acted as if these words stood for nothing but the letters of which they were composed. In a clear and concise manner he pointed out to his critics that the sovereignty of the people was nothing but a fiction if the people were not free to worship God as their conscience dictated. With withering scorn he declared "have they not been shouting down ever to our days 'Long live liberty! Long live humanity!'"

And a free people cannot go to Mass and a humane Government drives from their homes old men of eighty years whom exile will soon kill!" He recognized that France should live up to her high sounding profession, and that a beginning should be made by a restoration of her ancient Church.

Contrast Napoleon's attitude with that assumed by the present rulers of France, who speak and act as if liberty were an appanage of those only who follow Clemenceau & Co. in their serenade war upon the Catholic Church. We can imagine with what withering scorn Napoleon would regard this policy of weakening France, through internal dissensions and religious persecution, in order that the Combes and the Brindes and the Clemenceaus may feed their hatred of the religion of the overwhelming majority of their countrymen.—N. Y. Freeman's Journal.

Minard's Liniment Cures Distemper.

Affecting Letter from a French Bishop.

Some idea of the sufferings of the French clergy through the "liberty, fraternity and equality" of the present infidel Government of France, also an idea of the sublimely Christian character of the sufferers, may be gained from a letter addressed recently by the Bishop of Digne to a Paris paper, the Gaulois. The editor of the paper had forwarded to the Bishop $180, the gift of an anonymous lady donor, sent for the relief of some "poor priest." Where was the most necessitous object of this benevolence—the poorest priest—to be found in France, the diocese indicated by the Archbishop of Paris as the poorest in France? So to the Bishop of Digne the Gaulois transmitted the money. The Bishop's acknowledgment is, in its beauty of sentiment and pathos and affecting expression, worth many times the amount.

He (the Bishop) dwells on the second floor of the unpretentious house of an official, and an old woman is his only servant. He travels second-class, and lives economically. His priests are in an astounding state of poverty, and admirable in their self-denial. What he might be inclined to spend on himself would be so much withdrawn from what is necessary to them. "You should see their presbyteries!" says the Bishop. "The French priest is a man of many sorrows. Several of our parishes have been compelled to quit them, because the roof fell in, and the rain drenched them out, leaving no other shelter to be found in a village of 50 to 60 inhabitants. There is no need to talk of casual (shabby) offerings. The honoraria for Masses are on the lowest scale, and are frequently not to be had."

Then the Bishop describes the mode of living of his priests. "Some parishes," he writes, "are for five or six months snowed up, and are several weeks without any communication with the outside world. All must lay in provisions for the entire winter, and bake their own bread. Happily, our curates are industrious and accustomed to be content with little. One of them lived on 300 francs ($60) a year, and devoted the remainder of what came to him from the State ($120) to various good works. Another is not very anxious for the future, because he says he will be able to pull on with a franc (20 cents) a day, honorarium for his Mass, and another franc earned by his sister. Some of our clergy live by winding clocks making or mending, whilst others do some knitting or agricultural work. All this is not very dignified nor becoming to the priesthood; but necessity has no law, and our poverty is our excuse."

The amount that came to the priests from the State was $180 per annum, but that is now withdrawn, and the donation from the unknown lady was to make up for it to one priest for one year. "In the beginning of the year," the Bishop says in concluding his letter, "I tried to reassure my clergy against the apprehension of want, and, although at the end of my resources, I promised them that necessities would not be wanting. So how Providence has rewarded that act of faith; and you are His messenger. I know well that people would not content themselves with admiring our disinterestedness and our firmness. I was certain that they would not let us perish of hunger, with such an aureole on our forehead."

Easter Thoughts.

Easter should find us risen from sin as Christ rose from the dead, to die no more. The example of our Saviour's resurrection is the model of our perseverance in grace; our faith in His resurrection is the solid foundation of our perseverance; the glory of His resurrection is one of the most touching motives for our perseverance; the sacrament of His resurrection is the seal of our perseverance.

"Christ rising again from the dead," says St. Paul, "dieth now no more; death shall no more have dominion over him." Do you also reckon that you are dead to sin, but alive unto God in Christ Jesus our Lord? Why is the resurrection of Christ the only one chosen by God for our model? Why not the raising of Lazarus? Because the latter was only for a time; Lazarus was to die again. If we are not firmly determined to abide sin, our resurrection may be like that of Lazarus; it is certainly not like that of Christ.

Christ gave His resurrection as the pledge of the truth of His teaching, and therefore it follows that all Christian faith is founded on the resurrection. If Christ be not risen from the dead, then our faith is vain; but if He be risen, then nothing is more solid than our faith. Our faith is the basis of our conversion and the resurrection is the basis of our faith. The Apostles were very different men, once they were convinced that Christ was risen, from what they had been before. If our faith does not change, why should our resolution? We shall have the same reason for keeping them a month from now as we have for making them now. There will be no new light to change our views. Let us be guided by faith and we shall persevere.

The resurrection of Christ puts before our eyes the glory and blessed immortality to which we should aspire as our eternal reward. If Job, suffering all manner of affliction, reproached by his friends, insulted by his wife, was sustained by the thought: "I know that my Redeemer liveth and in my flesh I shall see my God," why should not we be sustained to even a greater degree, since we know that the Redeemer has come to whom Job was only looking forward?

Finally, Jesus Christ risen becomes by an excess of love, and by a marvellous effect of the Sacrament of His Body, the seal of our perseverance; since, risen and immortal as He is, He wishes to be our Paschal Lamb, and to immortalize Himself anew on our altars, to unite Himself intimately with us and make us live in Him and by Him. "Christ our pasch is sacrificed," says St. Paul. He made Himself the food of His disciples on the very day of His resurrection, when the two with whom He walked on the road to Emmaus "knew Him in the breaking of bread." Food is taken to maintain life, and the food of the soul is intended to preserve the life of grace received in the Sacrament of Penance. Consider the words which the priest utters as he gives us Holy Communion, Corpus Domini nostri Jesu Christi sanctissimum animam tuam (May the body of our Lord Jesus Christ preserve thy soul)—not for a few days or a few months, but in vitam eternam (to everlasting life). Such heavenly food would not be required for a temporary life. "This is the bread coming down from heaven, so that if any one shall eat of it he shall not die," says our Lord in the sixth chapter of St. John's Gospel. "He that eateth this bread shall live forever," not with material life, but with a spiritual and supernatural life.

It would be a terrible thing if the festival of the resurrection should be the beginning of sin, and yet it often is. Sinful habits laid aside for Lent are taken up again. Was it for this that Christ rose again? "He was delivered up for our sins and rose again for our justification." And the sinner who is truly converted will say: "O Lord, thou hast begun in me, and thou wilt continue. Thy grace will always show me the path in which I should walk, and I will follow it till I shall arrive at the glory whither it is intended to lead me."—Casket.

The life story of Sister Mary of St. Jane de Chantal who died in the Good Shepherd Convent, Detroit, a few weeks ago, is out of the ordinary. Born in Scotland and reared a Presbyterian, she married one of her own faith, name Downie. In their home as a servant was an Irish girl, a Catholic, through whom, Mrs. Downie was converted. So enthusiastic was she in her new faith that she brought about the conversion of her husband before his death in Scotland. In 1872, when her four children, Mrs. Downie, then a widow, came to America and in the year opened a small dry good store in Detroit. Twenty-five years ago one of her daughters, took the veil and is now in the cloister as Sister Mary of St. Marguerite, located in Germantown, Pa. Seven years after the daughter became a nun, Mrs. Downie decided to follow her child's footsteps, and, after entering the order, a strange coincidence caused her to be assigned to the institution in Kansas City, Mo., where the daughter was in charge as mother superior. Later she was stationed at another house of the order and finally at Detroit, where she died at the age of eighty-five years.—Sacred Heart Review.

Does Your FOOD Digest Well?

When the food is imperfectly digested the full benefit is not derived from it by the body and the purpose of eating is defeated; no matter how good the food or how carefully adapted to the wants of the body it may be. Thus the dyspeptic often becomes thin, weak and debilitated, energy is lacking, brightness, sleep and vim are lost, and in their place come distress, lost appetite, depression and languor. It takes no great knowledge to know when one has indigestion, some of the following symptoms generally exist, viz: a continuation of heartburn, gas, flatulence, belching, acid eructations, gas in the stomach, etc.

BURDOCK BLOOD BITTERS

It constantly effects cures of dyspepsia because it acts in a natural yet effective way upon all the organs involved in the process of digestion, removing all clogging impurities and making easy the work of digestion and assimilation.

Mr. R. G. Harvey, Amherstburg, Ont., writes: "I have been troubled with dyspepsia for several years, after using three bottles of Burdock Blood Bitters I was completely cured. I cannot praise B.B.B. enough for what it has done for me. I have not had a sign of dyspepsia since."

Do not accept a substitute for B.B.B. There is nothing "just as good."

Sessional Notes.

As already stated, the readiness and unanimity with which the members of the prohibition Government and the members supporting the Government jumped to their feet to oppose the amendment to bring clubs within the provisions of the Act may be fairly assumed as evidence of their sincerity in the temperance cause.

Mr. Mathieson pointed out the reasonableness of the amendment. Under the prohibition act, as it stands, the poor man feels that if he provides himself with liquor, he is likely to be brought before the court and exhibited as a disgraceful citizen, while a rich man, a member of the club, can have as much liquor as he desires, and may become drunk if he pleases, and is not amenable to the law, in fact he is completely shielded by the law.

The Legislature met yesterday afternoon after the Easter holidays. In the evening the debate on the resolution relative to the subsidy tabled some time ago was resumed. Mr. Mathieson exposed to a masterly manner the false and untenable position assumed by the delegates and showed how Sir Wilfrid Laurier had been driven by pressure to introduce a saving clause in his address to the King. We will refer to the debate later.

Among the questions asked in the Legislature yesterday afternoon was one by Mr. Kichan asking the Commissioner of Public Works to lay on the table all tenders received for the construction of the new bridge over the Midgell River at Midgell, or for any part of the said construction or any work in connection therewith. After considerable discussion and a refusal, the commissioner finally agreed to table the tenders.

Mr. Prowse, as seconder of the amendment expressed his pleasure at the knowledge that temperance sentiment had made such advances in our Province. There was one obstacle, however, in the way of this advancement and that obstacle, he pointed out, this amendment was intended to abolish. He could not understand how such an injustice should have the sanction of law, that some rich men should have the privilege of securing all the liquor they desire, while the poorer men have to abide by the provisions of the prohibition act.

The Leader of the Government is to deliver his budget speech tonight. The news from Ottawa yesterday is of a very sensational character. The Fredericton Gleaner and some other papers, last week, made charges of a very serious character against the Minister of Railways, Mr. Emmerson. The Minister was charged with most scandalous immoralities in his private life. These papers stated that Emmerson was the man, at least one of the men, hinted at by Mr. Fowler in his "wine, women and graft" declaration in the House of Commons. When the House meets today, it is said Mr. Emmerson will make a statement denying these charges and announcing his determination to take legal action against the papers in question. In the mean time he has tendered the resignation of his portfolio to the Premier and the resignation has been accepted. He is not now Minister of Railways. Next!

Mr. A. J. McDonald was very much surprised the members of the Government refrained from expressing their views on an amendment of so much importance as the one before the House. It would be interesting to know just where they stood. He had always voted for temperance; his record in the Legislature would show that. He was informed that many young men of Charlotte town were being ruined through these clubs. This amendment was intended to meet and wipe out this evil. If the sentiment of the people was against the system of clubs, the Legislature was the proper place to discuss the matter. It was entirely wrong to have class divisions, and he favored the amendment because it was as fair for one as for another.

Mr. Fraser thought that nothing could afford stronger evidence than the conduct of the Government in the matter under review. This Government had passed the prohibition act, and the amendment before the House would improve the act, as it would exclude clubs throughout the Province. Yet no member of the Government had a word to say in its favor. It seemed quite evident the Government had Provincial Subsidies Debated in the House of Commons.

In accordance with notice given some time previously, Sir Wilfrid Laurier, on Monday of last week, moved that an address be presented to His Majesty, the King, praying for an amendment of the British North America Act, relative to the payment of subsidies to the different Provinces by the Federal Government. This address is in pursuance of and in accordance with the resolutions passed at the conference of the Provincial Premiers with representatives of the Federal Government, held at Ottawa in October last. The proposed changes in the specific and per capita subsidies are those set out in the resolutions of the Ottawa Conference and must be now quite familiar to our readers, as they have been published in the HERALD more than once within the last few months; therefore, to economize space, we need not repeat them here. All the circumstances attendant upon, and leading up to the introduction of this address in the Commons and the debate ensuing thereon, amply bear out the correctness of the attitude assumed towards this important question, by Mr. Mathieson, Leader of the Provincial Opposition, and his political associates in the Legislature and in the Province, and prove beyond per-adventure the untenability of the position taken by our delegates to the Ottawa Conference.

If our Province is saved from loss and humiliation in connection with the per capita allowance to us from the Federal Government, we owe it to the vigorous protest entered by the Opposition in the Provincial Legislature, and in the Federal Parliament, as well as to the protests of the electorate of this Province, expressed in the resolutions passed at public meetings and in petitions to the Legislature.

As we have stated, more than once already, the published records of the Ottawa conference showed that Premier Peters and Hon. Mr. Hughes, the Island delegates, had not only not done anything to advance the case of this Province; but had absolutely failed to carry out the expressed demand of our Legislature, in safeguarding our right to receive the per capita allowance on a maximum population. When the Legislature met and these gentlemen were called upon to give an account of their stewardship, something very extraordinary took place. The Premier, in his place in the Legislature, declared that the only matter discussed was the specific subsidy for Legislatures and Government, and that the per capita allowance came up only incidentally. If this were so the presence of the Island delegates at that conference was useless and unnecessary; because there had never been any dispute over our increase of $70,000 under that head. It was agreed upon in the regular scale at the Conference of 1887 and had not been changed since then. Now, Mr. Hughes' version of the Conference proceedings was quite different from and contradictory of that stated by the Premier. He said the per capita matter had been up for discussion at the conference; but that the delegates had been assured by Sir Wilfrid Laurier, Mr. Fielding and the Minister of Justice that no safeguard was needed in the case of Prince Edward Island. We will let the Premier and Mr. Hughes reconcile their different versions as best they may; but we will show from the proceedings in the Dominion Parliament how absolutely worthless is the statement of either one or the other.

The votes and proceedings of the House of Commons and Hansard show that on the 21st day of March, Mr. Lefurgey—by Mr. A. Martin asked: Under the proposed arrangements at the recent conference between the representatives of the Provincial Governments and the Dominion Government, relating to increased subsidies and other matters, does Prince Edward Island receive eighty cents per head of her maximum population since the entered confederation, and does she so receive eighty cents per head on this population until her population increased? If not, how or on what basis is the eighty cents per head to be paid?

Mr. Hon. Sir Wilfrid Laurier (Prime Minister). The question of my hon. friend (Mr. A. Martin) is engaging the attention of the Minister of Justice, and my hon. friend will have an answer, when the address to His Majesty, which has been given, is brought up for discussion in this House.

This is the very matter which Premier Peters said had not been discussed at all at the conference, and which Mr. Hughes said the Minister of Justice had pronounced upon. The value to be attached to either statement may be inferred from the above declaration of Sir Wilfrid Laurier, that on the 21st of March the question was engaging the attention of the same Minister of Justice. Here we have, not only Premier Peters and his friends driven into a corner from which there is no escape; and the falsity of their position held up to the public; but we have Sir Wilfrid Laurier driven to cover and forced to seek shelter behind the Minister of Justice. On the following day, March 22nd, Mr. Lefurgey gave notice that when the question of the address would be taken up in the House he would move that the following words be inserted immediately after section B: In the case of Prince Edward Island, the population to be taken to be that upon which under the law, in that behalf, the annual payments now made by the Dominion are fixed until the actual population is by any census ascertained to be greater, and thereafter any increase of the population so ascertained, to govern." The matter had now reached an climax, for on the same day Sir Wilfrid Laurier gave notice that he would add a paragraph to the address which would attain the object for which the opposition members here and in the House of Commons were contending.

No doubt, Mr. Peters and his friends feel very much elated that Sir Wilfrid has come to the rescue and relieved them from the terrible anxiety caused by the reprehensible conduct of our delegates. The Province has been saved from loss and from humiliation; but to whom is the credit due? Surely not to our delegates to the conference, who sat dumb and allowed our rights and privileges to be jeopardized and then stood up in the Legislature and endeavored by contradictory and ridiculous statements to hood-wink the public. Not to the Government following in the Legislature who, without exception, fell over one another in their anxiety to back up the Government in their false position. Not to the Government press that exhausted its ingenuity in misrepresentation to belaud the issue and mislead the people. The thanks of the people are due to the Provincial Opposition, whose exposure of the Government's false and disastrous course roused public opinion against it; and to the Opposition members at Ottawa, who so strongly pressed upon the Government the wrong about to be inflicted on our Province, that the Premier of Canada was forced to insert in his address to the King, a clause safeguarding our rights.

On Monday March 25th, as above stated Sir Wilfrid Laurier moved his address and the very first thing he did was to add the following clause of which he had given notice on the 22nd: "D. Nothing herein contained shall in any way supersede or affect the terms of any particular Province upon which such Province became part of the Dominion of Canada or the right of any Province to payment of any special grant heretofore made by the Parliament of Canada to any Province for any special purpose in such grant expressed."

Sir Wilfrid made a long speech reviewing the whole subsidy question since confederation. The address was seconded by Mr. Fielding and speeches were made by Mr. Foster and others. It is impossible for us to give even the most outline of the speeches made in this debate, except some notice of what the Island members said. Mr. Lefurgey was the first of the Island members to speak. He concluded his speech by moving that Prince Edward Island be treated differently from British Columbia: In this distribution, which the Prime Minister said was arranged in a fair spirit, it is fair that British Columbia should have $100,000 extra, besides an increase from $35,000 to $150,000 that is over four times as much as she got before, while Prince Edward Island only gets three times and a small fraction as much as she got before. If Prince Edward Island got the same proportion of increase she would get $125,000 and that would be only a small part of what is due to her. But that is not where the greatest injury is done to the smaller provinces. The hon. gentleman who has spoken on the question considers it as it stands to-day, but this is an arrangement which is expected to last for the next twenty years, and how much will the subsidies be per capita at the end of that time? In twenty years, with all the improvements going on in this country, with the Transcontinental Railway and the Georgian Bay canal, Ontario and Quebec will double their population. That will mean that Ontario, in place of getting as she does now $1,740,357, will then get twice that much, whereas in twenty years Prince Edward Island will get no more than she is getting to-day. She will get probably less, if the Premier be true enough to move an amendment so that

Mr. Speaker. There is one amendment before the House, and, unless this is an amendment to the amendment, I do not see how I can put it.

Mr. A. Martin. This is an amendment to be moved as soon as the other is disposed of. I thought that under your ruling of a few minutes ago, Mr. Speaker, the position was that you were going to take the vote on the first amendment. I yielded the floor to my hon. friend from York (Mr. Crockett) on the understanding that the amendment was to be disposed of and I proposed to move a second amendment.

Mr. Speaker. The ruling was that if the hon. member (Mr. A. Martin), as he is stated at the time intended, subsequently to move an amendment, if he seconded the resolution of the hon. member for Prince (Mr. Lefurgey), he could not speak again. However, if this is not intended to be an amendment to the amendment it is out of order at the present time.

He concluded by moving his amendment seconded by Mr. Lefurgey.

This amendment was negatived. After some other members had spoken Mr. A. A. McLean, member for Queen's moved that "an additional allowance of $100,000 be granted to the Province of Prince Edward Island." Mr. Speaker. There is one amendment before the House, and, unless this is an amendment to the amendment, I do not see how I can put it.

Mr. A. Martin. This is an amendment to be moved as soon as the other is disposed of. I thought that under your ruling of a few minutes ago, Mr. Speaker, the position was that you were going to take the vote on the first amendment. I yielded the floor to my hon. friend from York (Mr. Crockett) on the understanding that the amendment was to be disposed of and I proposed to move a second amendment.

Mr. Speaker. The ruling was that if the hon. member (Mr. A. Martin), as he is stated at the time intended, subsequently to move an amendment, if he seconded the resolution of the hon. member for Prince (Mr. Lefurgey), he could not speak again. However, if this is not intended to be an amendment to the amendment it is out of order at the present time.

He concluded by moving his amendment seconded by Mr. Lefurgey.

This amendment was negatived. After some other members had spoken Mr. A. A. Our Grand Demonstration OF THE "MENZIE LINE" OF WALL PAPERS. Has been a signal success, and it is now beyond a doubt that this beautiful paper will prove to be a most popular and a charming wall decoration. The Menzie Wall Paper Co. are the only manufacturers in Canada not in any combine, and they have taken advantage of this, to place their products on the market at a very small price, and also to sell the bordering by the roll at the same price as the sidewall papers. They were the first manufacturers in Canada to sell bordering in this way, and the fact that no concern in Charlottetown ever advertised or sold bordering in this way until we entered the market with the "Menzie Line," seems to be pretty conclusive evidence as to who was responsible for the move here. In soliciting patronage, as we most respectfully do, we ask it on the merits of the Papers alone, and believe that people of town and country will thoroughly appreciate the fact that we have placed this splendid opportunity within their reach of beautifying their homes at a trifling cost. If the sales of Wall Paper during the past few days is any criterion of what is to follow, then the success of our venture is already assured. We thank our numerous patrons most heartily for the interest taken, and would say that an abundant supply of sample books is now ready and will be sent to homes and offices in any part of the city, and called for as required. The following are extracts from the "Menzie Empire," of Toronto, which may prove of interest in regard to the "Menzie line": The field covered by the Menzie Line embraces not only the Dominion of Canada, but Australia, South Africa, and other countries. The demand for the line has grown so steadily that not only will the places mentioned consume a large share of next year's output, but as time passes, there is a strong probability that a goodly share of American markets will be supplied by this plant, and other businesses will be secured in the Far East. The Menzie Line equals anything produced in the United States, and in many instances is superior to the product of the American wallpaper mills. It can compete favorably in all open markets, and under the aggressive management of the company, has an assured future. The name of Menzie Line has caught the popular fancy, and once used the merit of the goods accomplish the end sought, winning the heartiest approval from the public. "The company does not accept any retail orders wholly through the trade, dealing with the largest and most reliable dealers of every country invaded by the Menzie Line. A large force of travellers is on the road, and the product of the immense plant is properly and attractively introduced in many lands. "Another feature which has been largely responsible for the rapid advance of the firm has been the care devoted to the securing and employment of experienced and talented color men and patterns. Through this policy of employed skilled men it is possible to secure through the Menzie Line grades of wall paper that previously had to be imported from Germany and France. The skilled designer can secure any effect that his taste dictates by using the product of this new, modern and well conducted mill, which in so short a time has accomplished so much in bringing this industry up to the highest possible level. Mea Culpa

By Susan M. Bass

I dreamed I saw the Saviour climb Up Calvary I Up Calvary I I sorrowed, oh, I sorrowed, sore To see the heavy Cross He bore; I cried, "Ah, Christ, and most it be!" He sighed, "This Cross was made by thee!" I dreamed I saw the Saviour scourged Up Calvary I Up Calvary I I wept to see the drops of gore Ooze from the cruel thorns He wore; But lo, His voice! It called to me: "The sharpest thorn was set by thee!" I dreamed I saw the Saviour slain On Calvary I On Calvary I When thro' His hands the hard nails tore, My heart was pierced to the core; But hark! A whisper from the Tree; "These spikes are but the sins of thee."

—Sacred Heart Review.

A Convert Who Suffered

English exchanges chronicle the death of a distinguished convert, Very Rev. Canon James Spencer Northcote, D. D., late provost of the Cathedral Chapter of the Diocese of Birmingham, and formerly a president of Oseot College.

Canon Northcote was one of the last remaining of the distinguished band of converts who accompanied Cardinal Newman into the Church at the time of the great Tractarian movement. His career was marked by many personal sacrifices for the faith to which he gave his allegiance.

Dr. Northcote was the second son of Mr. George Barons Northcote, of Penton Court, Devonshire, and was born on May 26, 1821. He studied at Oxford, and was admitted to the Anglican ministry. In the autumn of 1845 Dr. Newman joined the Catholic Church, and among those others who did the same about this time was Mrs. Northcote. Mr. Northcote himself retired from active clerical duty to consider his position, and decided to follow his wife. For this his father renounced him and forbade him his house, and it was only after forty years, a few months before the elder Mr. Northcote's death, that they were reconciled.

The death of the convert's wife in June, 1853, left her husband free to begin his studies for the Catholic priesthood. He was ordained priest on July 29, 1855.

Within a few years the Canon's children, of whom there had been six, were claimed by death, all except his eldest daughter, who became a Sister of St. Dominic, and was known as Sister Mary Angela. In 1877 the Canon was attacked by what he thought was writer's cramp, but which soon declared itself as creeping paralysis. He first lost the use of his hands; a few months afterwards the disease attacked his feet, and very soon he had to be wheeled from place to place. But no one ever heard him murmur. He continued to hear confessions. Every week he was wheeled into his confessional in the church, and for weary hours he sat there giving counsel and consolation to others, while unable to move himself a single inch to relieve his cramped position. At last, when he was unable to raise his hand without help, he had to give up the work of the confessional.

He still had one consolation. His daughter, Sister Angela, was allowed to come to him to write his letters and to read to him. This privilege he enjoyed for several years. But one day Sister Angela did not come. They said she had a cold and was staying in bed, but she hoped to be with him in a day or two. Within the week she was dead. When the news was brought to him the tears rolled down his cheeks. "God's will be done," was all he said, and no one ever heard him repine or complain. He could not see many visitors, nor for very long at a time, and as he had lost the entire use of his hands and limbs, his only resource was to read. This was done under great difficulties, for as he could not raise his head to turn the page, he had sometimes to wait an hour till some chance visitor came to his assistance. Then God took away his sight. First one eye became totally blind, and only a glimmer of light was left in the other. His death was very painful. It seemed as though the nerves of the body died one by one, and each one caused him exquisite pain. But all through there was no complaint, no impatience, and great gratitude for every little service done for him.

To the present generation the venerable Canon was only known by his writings, which remain as a literary heritage to the Catholics of England and a perpetual memorial of the scholarship and industry of his gifted author.

The Richest Woman That Ever Lived.

Cardinal Rampolla, Secretary of State to Pope Leo XIII., discovered among the manuscripts of the Escorial when he was Papal Nuncio at Madrid a biography of Saint Melania the younger, which he has lately translated, edited and had printed at the Vatican press. What follows is an abridgement of his narrative.

An Ancient Foe

To health and happiness is Scrofula—its ugly as ever since time immemorial. It causes blemishes in the neck, disfigures the skin, inflames the mucous membrane, wastes the muscles, weakens the bones, reduces the power of resistance to disease and the capacity for recovery, and develops into consumption.

"Two of my children had scrofula some which kept growing deeper and kept them from going to school for three months. Ointments and medicines did no good until I began giving them Hood's Sarsaparilla. This medicine cured the sores to heal, and the children have shown no signs of scrofula since." J. W. Morgan, Woodstock, Ont.

will rid you of it, radically and permanently, as it has rid thousands.

The author of this biography was named Gerontius. From A. D. 405 until 439 he was in the service of and daily association with Melania, and after her death he succeeded her as the head of a monastery which she founded. An eyewitness, he tells who Melania was, the amount of her fortune and what she did with it.

Melania and her husband were both Christians and wished to follow literally the Saviour's precept: "Go and sell all that thou hast and give to the poor, and thou shalt have treasure in heaven." They therefore resolved to devote their immense possessions to the cause of Christ.

History records that during the fourth and the beginning of the fifth century after Christ certain patriotic Roman families amassed enormous wealth in building and endowing churches, monasteries, nunneries, hospitals and endowing and adorning their altars with vessels of gold and silver.

They relieved the necessities of thousands of the poor and needy, sending vessels and messengers with money and necessities for them and to the hermits and monks of Egypt, Jerusalem and Antioch. After twenty-seven years of continuous effort they had at last reduced their once colossal fortune to the remnant of a small estate in Spain. They then went to Jerusalem, where they ended their days and were buried in a monastic retreat which they had built and endowed.

Gerontius never could give the number of slaves that Melania at one time owned, but stated that in two years eight thousand were liberated. He states that her annual income was one hundred and twenty thousand pounds weight in gold, equal to more than thirty millions of United States gold coin, and taking the purchasing power of specie in the sixth century A. D. fully equal, it is estimated, to $175,000,000 today.—Catholic Standard and Times.

Look at the Bright Side.

Some are always looking for the dark side. Such generally find it. The pessimist said to the optimist who had exclaimed "It's a beautiful day," "Ah, yes, that may be, but it is raining somewhere."

One of the clever kind, a good old woman who looked for the bright side, said to one who remarked "Well, grandma, I notice you have only two teeth," "Yes, 'tis true, but I thank God that they are fornicist each other."

An old fabler relates to the two water buckets in a well. These buckets were connected with each other by a rope which passed over a pulley, so that when one bucket was going down into the water the other was coming out. The story is that one of these buckets fell into a scented melancholy because, as it remarked, "I notice that no matter how full I come up I always go down empty." The other bucket was always cheerful saying: "I have always observed that no matter how empty I go down I always come up full."

Look at the bright side. A priest asked an old woman who was about to die: "Well, grandma, what have you learned in your long life?" "I have learned," she said, "that I, like others, have worried about a great many things that never happened."

The Lord cares for the sparrows and for the lilies. How much more will I not care for you, O ye of little faith.—Catholic Universe.

The Jews are beginning to feel their strength in the United States. They have protested against the mention of the name of Christ in the Constitution of the new State of Alabama, as being an attack upon their religious convictions, and they demand that the "Merchant of Venice" be no longer read in the schools of Chicago. Catholics have had, and still have, to sit patiently under much greater grievances without receiving any of the public sympathy now given to the Jews. For instance, the Catholics of Pennsylvania have to pay their share of the cost of decorating the new Capitol of the State, although part of the decorations consists of a series of mural paintings accusing them of persecuting Protestants. They protested loudly against these paintings, but in vain. Coming nearer home, it is only a short time since one of the literature text-books in the schools of Nova Scotia was Charles Kingsley's novel "Westward Ho," which dealt more unfairly with Catholics than the "Merchant of Venice" does with the Jews. Shakespeare makes us pity Shylock in the end, and shows that he had received sufficient ill-treatment from so-called Christians to sour a much sweeter temper than his. Kingsley excites in his readers nothing but hatred and contempt for Poppa.—Catholic.

Mrs. Morgan-Morgan, a lady well known in Rome for the past seven or eight years, passed away the other day. She was a convert, and the wife of a Presbyterian minister.

After thanking the Lombard pilgrimage on one of the last days of February for the generous contribution (40,000 francs) which it brought in aid of the French clergy, the Pope said that prayer was still more available, and was necessary in order to obtain from the Most High peace for the troubled Church of France.

Many Women Suffer

UNTOLD AGONY FROM KIDNEY TROUBLE.

Very often they think it is from some other "Female Disease." There is less female trouble than they think. Women suffer from backache, dizziness, nervousness, irritability, and a dragging-down feeling in the loins. So do men, and they do not have "female trouble." Why, then, should all your troubles be Female Disease? With healthy kidneys, few women will ever have "female disorders." The kidneys are so closely connected with all the internal organs, that when the kidneys are wrong, everything goes wrong. Much distress would be saved if women would only take

"Mamma" said tiny Esther "why does the milkman call 'Milk-bo'?" Why doesn't he just say milk? That's what he sells, isn't it?"

And then her sister Laura smiled in all the conscious superiority of one who goes to school regularly. "Shows you aren't educated!" she said. "If you'd learnt French, you'd know that 'cau' stands for water, and dad says that the milk about here is half water. He's only telling us what he's selling, that's all!"

A witty Irishman, was repeatedly interrupted in a political speech by a butcher, the proprietor of a large sausage-making plant. When some one tried to remonstrate with him, he retorted: "If I had this speaker in one of my sausage machines, I'd soon make mince meat of him."

Then the Irishman quoted from the platform, with a smile. "Is thy servant a dog that thou shouldst do this thing?"
