Splitting Pains in the Muscles Driven Out Quickly by "Nerviline."

Rheumatic Pains Go—Suffering Ceases—Cure Comes in Even Chronic Cases.

For aching bones and sore muscles nothing will soothe away the pain like Nerviline.

For nerve-wracking twinges in the muscles, for torturing backache or lumbago, you'll find Nerviline is full of amazing power.

You see, Nerviline has the power—its about five times stronger than ordinary remedies, and can penetrate very deeply. It contains juices and extracts of certain herbs that give it a strange power to drive out congestion, inflammation or pain.

You are safe in using Nerviline. Just rub it on—it won't blister or burn, and can do nothing but good.

Whenever there is pain or suffering Nerviline will go and will drive it out. It penetrates to every cell of a sore muscle; it sinks to the heart of every stiff sore joint; it searches out the pain of rheumatism quickly.

Give Nerviline a trial. See how fast it will limber your lame back, how quickly it will cure neuralgic headache, how fast it will break up a bad cold or ease a sore throat.

The best family pain-remedy ever made is Nerviline. Forty years of great success proves this.

For emergent ills, when the doctor isn't handy, there is nothing better than the 50c. family size bottle; trial size 25c., all dealers.

THE HEIR OF Lancewood

CHAPTER I.

Lord and Lady St. Just were out in the pleasant grounds of King's Rest walking under the shade of a grove of chestnut trees; the day was warm and beautiful, the sky blue and cloudless, the birds were singing gaily, the air was filled with the sweet breath of flowers. In the distance, where the grounds sloped, ran a broad, clear, deep river; the water seemed to sing as it ran, yet it was a deep, dangerous stream, with swift-flowing currents and whirling eddies. "How beautiful the river looks this morning," said Lord St. Just. "Vivien, we must have a new pleasure-boat, I find our present one not only leaks, but is unsafe. Ah, here come the boys!"

But there were only two of them, young Oswald and little Arthur, Master Francis having refused with great dignity to leave his nurse. Lord St. Just stood by laughing heartily—for the big boy had put himself "in harness," and the little one was driving him with the greatest glee, laughing as he flourished his little whip.

"Look at my horse, mamma!" cried little Arthur—his beautiful face was flushed with exercise, his curls were tossed by the wind.

He looked so beautiful that Lady St. Just caught him in her arms and kissed him.

"Do not stop me, mamma—look at my horse!" cried the child.

"Take care of him, Harry," said Vivien; "he is very little—mind he does not get into mischief. What a noble boy he is!" she said, turning to her husband. "And how strange it would be if, after all, Oswald left Lancewood to him!"

"Oswald must marry," decided Lord St. Just. "We have fortune sufficient for our children—we need not want his."

They both remembered the words. They stood watching the boys until they disappeared behind the trees.

"They will not go near the river, I hope," said Lady St. Just.

"No," replied her husband, "Oswald has more sense."

And then, with the sun shining on them, the song of the birds in their ears, the sweet perfume of the flowers floating round them, they re-entered the house.

For some hours on that bright sunlit morning no one suspected anything wrong. Lord St. Just rode over the estate—he had many little matters to attend to; Lady St. Just had letters of invitation to send out; the servants were busy. No one thought of the absence of the two boys extraordinary.

Lady St. Just was more thoughtful than usual this morning—for, as they entered the house, her husband had told her the time was come when they might safely tell the young Sir Oswald his history. She was thinking deeply of all that would arise from it, or she might have found time to inquire if the boys had come in.

The first person who suspected anything wrong was one of the gardeners, who, passing by the river, saw a pleasure-boat floating slowly upside down.

He wondered to himself as to what it meant, and then went to the boat-house and found both boat and oars were missing.

"Some one's mischief," he grumbled to himself, but after a time he felt uncomfortable. Lord St. Just had forbidden the boat to be touched, and if he saw it on the river, would be displeased. Besides, who had launched it? None of the servants had touched it—none dare. Lord St. Just would never dream of taking it out. Surely the boys had not been near.

He hastened his steps as he saw Lord St. Just riding through the grounds.

"My lord," he said, "the pleasure-boat is on the river, upside down."

Lord St. Just looked displeased—he did not like his order to be disobeyed.

"Who has had it out, Simmons? It was not safe," he said.

"I cannot tell who has touched it, my lord—I do not know who would dare to do so. The oars are missing, too."

Lord St. Just touched his horse with his heel and galloped to the bank of the river. Yes, there, surely enough, the Bluebell was floating upside down.

Lord St. Just looked puzzled. Who could have launched the boat after his express prohibition? He waited until the gardener came up to him.

"Have you no idea," he asked, "who has done this?"

The man replied "No." Suddenly he looked into his master's face.

"The young gentleman who is visiting here, my lord," he said—"would he be likely to touch the boat? Perhaps he has not been told about it."

"I have never mentioned it to him," replied Lord St. Just, startled.

"Then may be, my lord, he has taken it out—and, finding it leaked, let it float away. But where are the oars?"

Lord St. Just leaned for a minute against his horse's side. He grew faint, pale, sick with deadly fear. He said—

"Go to the house and ask for— But no, hold my horse, I will go myself. Oh, my wife, my wife!"

Heaven only knew how he reached the house. The servant who opened the door looked at him in wonder. Lord St. Just placed his finger on his lips.

"Where is her ladyship?" he asked, in a low voice.

"In her own apartments, my lord," was the answer.

"Do not tell her that I have returned," he said.

And then he hastened up to the nursery. What was the horrible fear that went with him—that clutched his heart with an iron hand—that stopped his breath—a terrible, awful, deadly fear? He had seen the two boys running in the sunshine—where were they now? Great drops of agony stood on his brow. Strong man as he was, he stood with the door-handle in his hand, not daring to turn it; then he tried to reassure himself.

"How foolish I am!" he thought. "They are very likely here, and all right. Heaven have mercy on me!" (To be Continued.)

"ECHOES of the Past;

OR,

The Recompense of Love!"

CHAPTER I.

"Harvey's getting at 'em at every sentence. How our chaps are cheering! And the House is filling up—look at them pouring in! By George, this man's got the right stuff in him! Cool as a cucumber, too. I congratulate you, Chesterleigh, on an acquisition. You and Graham have got a wonderful chap among your new men, anyhow."

Lord Chesterleigh nodded only; he was absorbed in the flow of eloquence, now pleading with deep notes in the musical voice, now bitter with the invective of reproach, now scornful as Clive Harvey taunted the government with past broken promises, and charged them with the pretense of keeping this one by offering a futile and deceptive bill. His opponents tried to howl him down, and interrupted almost every sentence; the House resounded with angry yells from one side, and ringing cheers, which rose to a perfect tornado, from the other, as Clive Harvey brought a brilliant speech to a close with a soul-stirring appeal for justice for the poor and homeless.

As he sat down slowly, his clean-cut face slightly flushed, his eyes still flashing, the great Mr. Graham rose from his seat and, amid renewed cheers from his party, went up to the young man, and, holding out a hand, spoke a few words of congratulation. Lord Chesterleigh leaned back and drew a sharp breath.

"That was fine!" he said. "A born orator. He will go far; how far, I wonder! Harvey? Harvey? Why, he must be a son of Rafterborough's!"

"That's right," said Lord Stanford. "The third son. You remember old Rafterborough? 'Dandy Raff, you know! By gad, he'd have been frightfully wild if he had been here to hear this boy of his to-night! A Tory of the Tories to breed such an out-and-out Radical; for that's what he would call him, of course! Oh, ah, yes; I remember the whole business! Lucy"—he referred to his wife, Lady Stanford—"was telling me all about it the other evening. Old Raff has regularly quarreled with this young chap, and has cast him off. Fortunately for Clive Harvey he has his mother's portion; not much, if I recollect rightly; but enough to get him into the House and keep him going, I suppose. Here's the division. By George, they've only carried the bill by the skin of their teeth! Hark at our men cheering; and look how they are gathering round young Harvey! Let's go over to the club, Chesterleigh."

The two men descended from the gallery. The corridors and the lobbies were filling with men pouring out of the House; Mr. Graham's tall figure towered above them; beside him walked the young man, Clive Harvey, the hero of the evening. He was pale now; but he bore himself modestly, and responded calmly but pleasantly to the congratulations which were still pouring in on him, and, strange to say, from his opponents as well as his own party. Mr. Graham saw Lord Chesterleigh, and, with his hand upon Clive Harvey's arm, made his way to the two peers.

"Chesterleigh, Stanford, I want to introduce my friend Mr. Harvey to you," he said, with the smile which had often soothed a stormy House, and turned uproar to peace.

The three young men shook hands, and all four walked into the Palace Yard. As they stood talking over the debate to which Clive Harvey had given so dramatic a finish, a beautifully appointed carriage with a pair of splendid horses drove into the yard and stopped beside them. The carriage was open, and its only occupant was a young girl. She was very beautiful, fair, with a mass of light golden hair, with hazel eyes, and a complexion almost worthy of the word perfect. The face was a trifle haughty for so young a girl; and both the hazel eyes and the well-shaped lips were spoiled by an expression of pride and coldness; and, as she saw Lord Chesterleigh, the voice with which she said "Father!" was marred in its music by the hauteur indicated by the carriage of her figure and the turn of her head.

Lord Chesterleigh raised his hat. "Coming, Edith," he said, with a smile of parental fondness. Then he turned to Clive Harvey and said: "I want to introduce you to my daughter. Edith, this is Mr. Harvey, a son of my old friend, Lord Rafterborough. He has just made a wonderful speech; a speech that has pretty considerably cut down the government majority. You would like to congratulate him."

Clive Harvey approached the carriage, Lady Edith bowed rather coldly; then, as Clive turned slightly, so that the light from one of the electric lamps fell on his face, her manner changed; she leaned forward, and, with her proud face melting with a smile, held out her hand.

"Of course I congratulate you, Mr. Harvey," she said. "I am sure it must have been a very great success, because my father looks so pleased and so happy. It is the first time I have seen him smile since our side was turned out. I not only congratulate you, but—I thank you."

Lord Chesterleigh laughed. "You must give my daughter a better opportunity than this for thanking you, Mr. Harvey."

Lady Edith took the hint quickly. "Wednesday is my day, Mr. Harvey," she said; "and Wednesday is tomorrow."

"Thank you," said Clive Harvey, speaking for the first time.

The girl smiled on him as if she had found his voice as much to her liking as his face. With a hearty shake of Clive's hand, Lord Chesterleigh got into the carriage, and it drove off. Clive put on his hat and followed the conveyance on his way out of the Palace Yard. There was a crowd of other carriages, and the Chesterleighs had to stop just outside the gate, so that the young man came up with it. As he raised his hat in response to the girl's smile and a little gesture of impatience, some one brushed against him, and a woman stepped in front of him. She was a middle-aged woman, dark, and flushed of face, her red and overfull lips were parted, and her eyes—they were almost black—were fixed angrily and threateningly on the face of Lord Chesterleigh.

Clive noticed that the woman's teeth were clenched, and that her bosom was heaving as if with excitement; and an instant afterward he saw her raise her hand—it seemed to him as if to throw something at Lord Chesterleigh. Instinctively, mechanically, he caught the upraised arm, and held it motionless. At the same moment the carriage drove on; with a gasp of rage and disappointment, the woman turned upon Clive and struck at him with her free hand. Clive released his arm, but let his hand slide down to hers, and, holding it firmly, drew her out of the crowd.

"What is the matter?" he demanded. "What were you going to do?"

The whole incident, the woman's approach to the carriage and her threatening gesture, had only occupied a moment or two, and no one but Clive had noticed them, for the crowd was thick; Lady Edith's back had been turned to the woman, and Lord Chesterleigh had been looking in another direction.

When, during illness, a constant supply of hot fannels is required, a good idea is to put a steamer over a saucepan of boiling water on the hot stove, and lay the fannels in the steamer. In this way they can be changed easily and frequently, and are much hotter than if wrung out of hot water.

OFFICIAL.

LONDON, Sept. 12.

The Governor, Newfoundland: The French Government report that cannonading continued yesterday and throughout the night. The enemy's attempted attacks were frustrated. The Russian Government report further success at Tremulwla in Galicia, taking five hundred prisoners and an advance south of Riga. The general attitude is of calm confidence. Initiative is passing to the Russians. The Italian Government report small actions resulting to their advantage.

BONAR LAW.

WHITE STAR LINE'S STATEMENT.

LIVERPOOL, Sept. 12.

The White Star Line made the following statement to-day to the Canadian Press regarding the German Government's explanation as to the torpedoing of the Arabic: The German excuse contained in the note, published to-day, is just as audacious as the previous one, and absolutely unsupported by the facts. The great point made in the supposed attempt on the part of the Arabic to ram the submarine, but everyone knows that courses must frequently be changed in the Channel. Any change of such a kind could not possibly have been taken by the Germans to mean an attempt to ram. There is not the slightest question that the Arabic did not ram, for the simple reason that the submarine was not seen by Capt. Finch. Moreover, the Arabic did not try to escape. The only precaution taken was to put the helm hard over, directly the torpedo was seen.

LONDON BUDGET.

LONDON, Sept. 12.

There are still no signs of waning in the battles which are fought along the eastern front, that now runs almost directly north and south from Riga to the Roumanian frontier. From Riga southward to the Galician border the Germans and Austrians are continually receiving reinforcements and supplies of munitions by railway and river, are endeavoring to force their way to Dvina, the main trunk of an important railway line. The Russians continue their offensive and, according to their accounts with excellent results. Austro-German offensives is making slow but steady headway, particularly along the front from Sionim to Pinsk. Elsewhere the German official reports daily recount the capture of a few thousand prisoners with machine guns. The Germans big effort, however, is expected to be made against Vilna and Dvinsk, westward, near which towns heavy engagements are being fought. Having reached the Dvina at Frierichstadt, and driven the Russians across the river, the Germans are in a better position to advance to Dvinsk, as there is no danger of any outflanking movement. The slowness of operations is probably due largely to the condition of the country, and the heavy roads. Every day's delay giving the Russians breathing space, and enables them to make preparations for greater resistance, on chosen lines protected by marshes and swollen rivers. The Russians are increasing their activities in the Caucasus. It is believed that the arrival of Grand Duke Nicholas will be the signal for more important operations, which will lessen the burden of the allies, who are trying to force the Dardanelles.

No report has been received from the latter front for upwards of a week from the allies, although it is apparent from Turkish reports that there has been considerable fighting. Optimistic rumors, however, are again afloat, probably due to the statement recently made by Lord Roebt Cecil, Under Secretary for Foreign Affairs, that the allies are not far from great success. There has been little or no cessation of artillery engagements on the western front. A few isolated attacks by German infantry have taken place, but according to Paris have been repulsed. There have been no further air-raids or bomb throwing. Diplomats still keenly await the outcome of the Balkan negotiations, but it is said that Serbia has agreed to cede Macedonia to Bulgaria if Bulgaria joins the allies, and that the latter have agreed, in case of victory for the allies, that Serbia shall have Bosnia, Dalmatia, Croatia and Slavonia.

ACTIVE ON FRENCH FRONT.

PARIS, Sept. 12.

Last night saw unintermitted artillery fighting in several points along the line in France, according to a communication given out by the French War Office to-day. There has been, furthermore, a particularly violent artillery engagement in the Department of the Meuse and along the front in Lorraine.

CROWN PRINCE'S FAILURE.

PARIS, Sept. 12.

The violent fighting in the Argonne on Wednesday and Thursday was the result of an effort of the army of the Crown Prince to break through the French lines. The attempt was made with powerful artillery and a large number of troops. Apparently it had no result. The Germans were able to penetrate the French trenches on a portion of the front, but were checked immediately. They renewed the attack again and again, but with such severe losses that they gave up the effort. This offensive movement, it is said on good authority, has not modified the situation in the Argonne. By making it, the Germans have had greater losses, according to French official figures, than they have inflicted. The army of the Crown Prince has attempted several times in previous months to break through the French front, but so far has scored no definite success. The statement is made here that this army has lost upwards of one hundred thousand men, one corps alone losing forty thousand men from its ranks, which are being continually depleted, and refilled.

IN THE CAUCASUS.

PETROGRAD, Sept. 12.

The following official statement has been issued at headquarters army of Caucasus. There have been skirmishes between our cavalry and Kurds in the region of Ouran Kare, in the district of Van. Our advance guards engaged the Turks in the section of Karak.

GERMANY AND THE ARABIC.

BERLIN, Sept. 12.

"Dignified and satisfying" is Germany's characterization of the German note on the Arabic case. The paper asserts that the destruction of the steamer violated none of the provisions of the agreement presented to the United States Government by Ambassador Von Bernstorff, "for there is no doubt that the steamer intended to attack the submarine." Germans declare "there is every reason to believe the Arabic acted in accordance with his instructions." If cordance with his instructions, if the United States has demands to make they must be directed not to Germany which has observed the terms of warfare, but to Great Britain which permitted passengers to board a vessel whose captain was instructed and determined to commit belligerent action as opportunity afforded.

BERLIN AND THE HESPERIAN.

BERLIN, Sept. 12.

The German Foreign Office and Admiralty state to-day that they had no news regarding the Hesperian incident, concerning which Ambassador Gerard asked for information recently. The question whether Americans lost their lives when the Hesperian was blown up would probably have a bearing on the ultimate answer to Washington.

GERMAN GOLD.

PARIS, Sept. 12.

German journals announce that there is at least $250,000,000 in gold still in Germany in private hands. The special correspondent of the Echo de Paris at Geneva, however, says that it is very likely that this gold has already crossed the frontier. For some time German capitalists have been prudently putting their gold in places of safety abroad. Within three months, says the correspondent, Swiss banks have received from Germany very large sums in gold, and deposits in other neutral countries are said to be even greater.

TURKISH OFFICIALS RESIGN.

LONDON, Sept. 12.

The Times correspondent at Athens forwards information from Constantinople that the head of the Ecclesiastical side of the Government under the Sultan, and the Prefect of Police of Stamboul have resigned. The Shiek ul Islam, the correspondent says, resigned because of his disapproval of the policy of the ministers in depriving Greeks and Jews of privileges conferred upon Germans. The Prefect of Police protested against a draft involving 300,000 men. The Prefect, the despatch adds, was threatened with death and was compelled to withdraw his resignation.

AMBASSADOR'S DENIAL.

NEW YORK, Sept. 12.

The German Ambassador denied to-day that he had used or attempted to use James F. Archibald, the American messenger of Dr. Dumba, as a messenger to Berlin.

ARMENIAN PROTESTS.

LONDON, Sept. 12.

The Sofia correspondent of Reuter's Telegram Co., sends the following under date of September 7th: Premier Radoslawof to-day, received a deputation from the Armenian Colony, who handed him a memorandum, describing the desperate situation of Armenians in Turkey, begging him to intervene. The deputation was supported by Bulgarian deputies belonging to various parties, and by a number of Bulgarian journalists. The Premier said he would send the memorandum to the Bulgarian minister at Constantinople with instructions to communicate it to the Porte. After stating what Bulgaria had already done on behalf of the Armenians, the Premier expressed the hope that the Porte would give due attention to Bulgaria's friendly advice, the more so as Turco-Bulgarian relations at present were of the friendliest.

FAMILY FOOD.

Crisp, Toothsome, and Requires No Cooking.

A little boy asked his mother to write an account of how Grape-Nuts food had helped his family. She says Grape-Nuts was first brought to her attention where she visited. "While I was there I used the food regularly. I gained weight and felt so well that when I returned home I began using Grape-Nuts in the family regularly. "My little 18-month-old baby shortly after being weaned was very ill while teething. She was sick nine weeks and we tried everything. She became so emaciated that it was painful to handle her and we thought we were going to lose her. One day a happy thought urged me to try Grape-Nuts soaked in a little warm milk. "Well, it worked like a charm and she began taking it regularly and improvement set in at once. She grew well and round and fat as fast as possible on Grape-Nuts. "Sometime ago several of the family were stricken with La Grippe at the same time, and during the worst stages they could not relish anything in the shape of food but Grape-Nuts and oranges, everything else was nauseating. "We all appreciate what your famous food has done for our family. "There's a Reason."

REPUDIATES INTERVIEW.

NEW YORK, Sept. 12.

Count Von Bernstorff last night made the following statement to the Associated Press: "I have never granted an interview to anyone, and any interview purporting to come from me is a fake." On Saturday evening the Ambassador issued a similar statement, when shown a newspaper containing an interview purporting to have been given through a person close to the Ambassador, in which he was quoted as saying: "If the States severed diplomatic relations with Germany, war would follow immediately."

NEW YORK, Sept. 12.

Count Von Bernstorff left here today for Washington, accompanied by his secretary. It was the Ambassador's first visit to the capital for about ten days. No intimation was given by the Ambassador as to how long he intended to remain at Washington.

Again on the Move!

Mr. W. A. Munn received a cable on Saturday night from his son at Cairo containing the word "Leaving," which conveyed to Mr. Munn the intelligence that the Newfoundland Regiment was leaving for the front. That front is generally understood to be the Dardanelles, as Lord Kitchener when inspecting the Regiment at Aldershot told them he intended to send them to the Dardanelles. The land operations in connection with the Dardanelles campaign are being conducted on the peninsula of Gallipoli. This peninsula is about 45 miles long. The peninsula in shape is not unlike a kippered herring with the tail attached to the mainland of Turkey and at the head a piece of land like a foot in shape. The Allies have occupied two lots of ground: (1) the toe end of the foot; and (2) a larger stretch of ground in front of the ankle of the foot. They have occupied most of the toe end and are getting round the west of the big knuckle of the big toe, but it is this big knuckle, Acha Baba, which has caused all the trouble in this region for months past. Acha Baba is fortified like Gibraltar and it is proving a difficult proposition. The great development of the past month or two have, however, taken place not on the Krithia line in the vicinity on Acha Baba, but further north on what may be pictured as the ankle of the foot. Troops from home and Australia and New Zealand occupy territory around the front of the ankle and on part of the ankle. The immediate objective is the ankle bone, Sari Bahr. The possession of these heights will give them the command of the main road through the rest of the Peninsula and will give them a commanding position to bombard the forts which occupy the side of the heel from the flat of the foot to the back of the ankle. On this heel are concentrated a very large number of forts which dominate the Gallipoli side of the most crooked and narrow part of the Dardanelles between the Narrows and Nagara Head. It is on this ankle and around it that troops are being sent as there is much more room for them to operate than there is at the toe end of the foot, and the difficulties are not so formidable as Acha Baba, which hindered advance in the Krithia region. When Grand Duke Nicholas set to work in Asia Minor, Turkey will be more and more handicapped in sending reinforcements to Gallipoli and the chances of success will be increased.

Man Missing
Drowned Over Bowring's Wharf.
Timothy Sullivan, a veteran seaman of St. John's, is supposed to have been drowned on Saturday night or early Sunday morning. On Saturday he had been working on the schooner Mildred, which was moored to the Eastern side of Bowring Bros. Western wharf undergoing slight repairs before loading fish for abroad. He was also engaged to go on the vessel as watchman for all Saturday night. Watchman Fleming of Bowring's premises saw Sullivan several times during the night and was talking to him. He last saw him about three minutes to twelve o'clock just as he (Fleming) was in the act of making his rounds. After a minute or so of a conversation Sullivan left to go aboard the Mildred. Fleming asked him if he needed any help getting aboard, and Sullivan said "no, I'm a good climber." That was the last watchman Fleming saw of poor Sullivan who then went out to the front of the Western wharf and boarded the Burin schooner Auralee. After having a chat with the Auralee's crew he left to go aboard the Mildred which he reached safely. About 7.30 yesterday morning a man named Carroll went to look for Sullivan, who had not returned home when expected. Carroll went into the cabin of the Mildred where he thought Sullivan would be and found the hat, coat, collar and tie of Sullivan, but there was no sign of himself. The surrounding circumstances led Carroll to believe that the unfortunate man ran hurriedly to the deck and went overboard. The matter was then reported to the police. Yesterday the dock was dragged for the man's body, without success. To-day the search was resumed and the body recovered at 1 p.m. Deceased was a well known sailor man and was one of the crew who with Bartlett and Henry of the Arctic expedition a few years ago. He was 45 years old and is survived by a widow, to whom much sympathy will be expressed.

CAPTURE OF PETROGRAD IMPOSSIBLE.
LONDON, To-day.
Gen. Ruzitsky, commander of the Russian northern armies, in an interview with a Times correspondent attached to his headquarters, declared he considered the capture of Petrograd impossible, because the military situation of Russia with relation to ammunition, rifles and fresh troops is slowly but surely improving. In addition to this he pointed out that between the present front and Petrograd the ground offers endless difficulties to the German advance. Quite apart from the fact that the approaching winter will hinder the digging of trenches, Russia has gained an opportunity to take breath, he said, and having continued the campaign throughout the winter will begin war afresh in the spring with new armies and a new object of operations.

Man Missing
Drowned Over Bowring's Wharf.
Timothy Sullivan, a veteran seaman of St. John's, is supposed to have been drowned on Saturday night or early Sunday morning. On Saturday he had been working on the schooner Mildred, which was moored to the Eastern side of Bowring Bros. Western wharf undergoing slight repairs before loading fish for abroad. He was also engaged to go on the vessel as watchman for all Saturday night. Watchman Fleming of Bowring's premises saw Sullivan several times during the night and was talking to him. He last saw him about three minutes to twelve o'clock just as he (Fleming) was in the act of making his rounds. After a minute or so of a conversation Sullivan left to go aboard the Mildred. Fleming asked him if he needed any help getting aboard, and Sullivan said "no, I'm a good climber." That was the last watchman Fleming saw of poor Sullivan who then went out to the front of the Western wharf and boarded the Burin schooner Auralee. After having a chat with the Auralee's crew he left to go aboard the Mildred which he reached safely. About 7.30 yesterday morning a man named Carroll went to look for Sullivan, who had not returned home when expected. Carroll went into the cabin of the Mildred where he thought Sullivan would be and found the hat, coat, collar and tie of Sullivan, but there was no sign of himself. The surrounding circumstances led Carroll to believe that the unfortunate man ran hurriedly to the deck and went overboard. The matter was then reported to the police. Yesterday the dock was dragged for the man's body, without success. To-day the search was resumed and the body recovered at 1 p.m. Deceased was a well known sailor man and was one of the crew who with Bartlett and Henry of the Arctic expedition a few years ago. He was 45 years old and is survived by a widow, to whom much sympathy will be expressed.

Wedding Bells.
LUSH-OGILVIE.
St. Thomas's Church was the scene of a pretty wedding at 2 p.m. Saturday when Miss Lillian Maud, third daughter of Mrs. Austin Lush, and Alex. G. Ogilvie, of Scotland, were in the employ of the Royal Stores Branch at Grand Falls, were united in the bonds of matrimony. The ceremony was performed by the Rev. Herbert Pike, of St. Mary's, cousin of the bride, and the Rev. Dr. Jones, Rector. The bride was very neatly attired in a gown of merv silk, trimmed with chateau lace, and to be matched. She was attended by her sister, Miss Ida Lush, who was attired in Japanese silk, and her niece, Miss Edith Lush. Her brother, Mr. Charles Lush, performed the duties of father given. The groom was very ably supported by Mr. John Miller of the Royal Stores, this city. After the ceremony the party drove to Smithville, where a reception was held. Refreshments were served and the health of the happy couple enthusiastically toasted. At 5.30 o'clock the party drove to Donovan's, where the bride and groom joined the train for Kelligrews to spend the honeymoon. They will reside at Grand Falls. The bride, who is a very popular young lady, receives a large number of valuable presents, including several cheques. The groom's present to the bride was a gold pendant and to the bride a bracelet and pendant and chain. The Telegram extends best wishes.

NEW TYPE OF GIANT BIPLANE.
Copenhagen, September 6, via London.—The new type of giant biplane, undergoing tests in Germany, is said to have a measurement of 42 1/2 metres across the plane. The motors develop 30 horsepower, and each works three propellers. These biplanes are capable of carrying sufficient fuel for flights of eight hours. They are equipped with wireless and searchlights. Each carries twelve bombs, weighing twenty-two pounds a piece, and five machine guns. Biplanes of this type will have crews of eight men, and will be able to travel to London and back in five hours. The engineers who constructed them obtained the idea from a Russian machine. They say that the new air craft will supersede the Zeppelin.

AT THE INSTITUTE.—The Rev. Alex. Jones delivered an interesting and eloquent address at the Grenfell Hall last night to a crowded audience from the words: "What do you know about God?" The singing throughout was hearty and inspiring.

In Milady's Boudoir.

I pity the woman who worries all the time for, as long as she does so, all the beauty treatments in the world will not make her attractive. Gradually this never ending worry affects the secretions of her stomach and bowels, disturbs the proper elimination of waste products from the system, affects the caliber of her blood, until dyspepsia, with its brood of attendant miseries, claims her for its own. Insomnia proves a strong ally of dyspepsia and makes life at night even more miserable than does dyspepsia by day.

Finally her mind becomes so unfit to stand even the suggestion of a mental strain and the heart action is so weakened that one sad day, some shock, which she is unable to withstand, will finish her. I was reading the other day of an interview of a woman with her physician. She was telling him, in a tragic manner of her perpetual worries. The doctor's eyes twinkled as he said to her: "My dear woman, what a pity that you don't possess a keener sense of humour. It is a wonderful help in this daily life of ours. If you could train yourself to see the ludicrous side of things, by the time you had worried over your husband's comings and goings a few times you would be so amused at your ungrounded fears and anxiety that you would have broken away from the nervous tension and relief would take the place of groundless worry."

Miss Noel who had such great success at her Patriotic Garden Party on Tuesday evening wishes us to thank the British Band for their presence and enlivening music, the Telegram for its item which helped to make it the grand success it was. The total proceeds $65.50 has been forwarded to St. John's. Miss Noel herself, and the other ladies who assisted her are despatching the thanks of the community for their thoughtfulness and untiring efforts in the interest of our wounded soldiers.

The patriotic spirit in our midst is something commendable, in young and old alike. Some young girls of the west end arranged a small concert last week to help swell the patriotic fund. The concert was held at the home of Mr. Jordan Sheppard, who actually took the trouble of removing some partitions from his house to make the affair a success. The sum of $3.00 was realized which was handed over to the W. P. A. and acknowledged by them. Well done girls, and friend Jordan as well.

Mrs. B. Crocker, Missionary Teacher at Reccaire, Hermitage Bay, is spending a time in this town, a guest of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Ross.

Miss Bessie Allan, who has spent some months here with her aunts, Mrs. Holt and Miss Allan, leaves on Tuesday next for Montreal. All Miss Bessie's friends in wishing her good-bye will look forward to another pleasant visit next season.

For several days past the weather has been wet and very unfavorable for hay-making, etc. To-day is an improvement as we have a westerly wind and bright sun.

I enclose herewith a letter just received from Mrs. W. H. Ellis, of Plymouth, formerly Miss Minnie Thomey of this town. She takes a great interest in our Regiment and in fact, Newfoundland affairs generally. Perhaps a few notes from it would be interesting.

CORRESPONDENT.

Hr. Grace, Sept. 11th, 1915.

FROM MRS. W. H. ELLIS.

5 Desborough Road,
23rd Aug., 1915.

My Dear Friend,

We'll, here are as far away from the end of the war as ever, but one thing is certain, and that is victory for us, but what a price we have to pay for it. Our finest and best men killed in thousands, and the sights of wounded and maimed are something awful to witness. Three hundred and eighty more poor fellows were brought in yesterday to hospitals, it is so sad to see them. But mind, they don't murmur a bit, but call out from the Red Cross train windows "Are we down-hearted? No!" Where are our boys, I don't see anything of them in the papers. I should like to know if any of them are in Plymouth, or likely to be. The young man Taylor has his father well, and a jolly fine man he was too, no mistake about it. The only two Harbor Grace boys we had killed to see us were Charlie Ruffin and Laurance Hayden, and that's some time ago now. They must have left Plymouth or they would have been here before this as they both promised to come whenever their ship came in harbor.

While Will and I were at Penzance in dock, so we went looking for him, but one of the men or officers said he was then at Devonport to pass an examination in gunnery; I hope he succeeded. I feel so proud to think our Newfoundlanders are getting ahead.

The submarines have been busy again the past week and sunk 24 ships; you can imagine how uneasy I am all the time Will is at sea until I get his wire. I just got a letter from him and he will finish discharging today, and in the hopes of leaving a card, and if it turns out so, as mind it's mighty lonely for me when he is away. I just got the 4 p.m. Herald, the latest news is two German cruisers sunk and the super-dreadnought Moltke, all Germans, and seven torpedo boats in the Gulf of Riga.

I sincerely trust the Labrador men are all doing well this summer. I report the badge Dr. Paterson gave me. I had a pin put in it and it is a real pretty brooch, all the better because a bit of home. Give any of the boys our address as we shall always be glad to see them. Polly told me Dr. Parsons would be coming but I haven't seen him yet.

Your old friend and well-wisher,
M. E. ELLIS.

Household Notes.

Before cleaning bronze dust very carefully with a fine camel-hair brush and a soft cloth. Then dip a cloth in sweet oil and wipe over the entire surface, after which polish carefully with a soft chamouis leather.

When darning table linen it is best to use a raveling from the goods. Where there is a hole, put under it a piece of the same material, carefully matching the pattern. If the darning is carefully done, the hole will not be noticeable.

To have pansies flower in the house, sow the seed in shallow boxes of sandy soil. When they are rooted, transplant them to window boxes or separate pots. Keep them quite warm--give them an abundance of water and a great deal of sun.

When separating the yolks from the whites of eggs, a little of the yolk will sometimes slip into the white. To remove this dip a clean cloth into warm water and wring it dry. Touch the yolk with a point of the cloth and it will cling to it at once.

Soap Bubbles and Life.

By RUTH CAMERON.

RUTH CAMERON

A group of children were blowing soap bubbles on my veranda the other day. As the exquisite little spheres, each with its scrap of cloudy rainbow, floated past me, soared up toward the sky and swooped down to a tragic death at the point of a grass blade, it came to me with new poignancy how marvelously beautiful and graceful they were.

If the apparatus to make them were very costly or if it took years of study to learn how to produce perfect soap bubbles, how should wonder at them and talk about them! But the apparatus is a clay pipe and the stupidest child may be the artist, and so we accept them as a commonplace and forget that they are one of the most beautiful things in the world.

The Wonder Of The Human Eyebrow. Stevenson tells with much relish of a woman who said she could wonder herself crazy and more poetical understanding, fresh interest in things for their own sakes and enduring astonishment at the most common.

It is a rare and wonderful quality. Isn't it, this enduring astonishment at the common things of life, this ability to keep our eyes open to the beauty in simple daily things--in sunsets and the perfection of a single flower, lights sparkling through a mist, the line of a wave as it breaks the mating light in a young girl's eyes, the droop of a tired child's head toward its mother's shoulder--all the wonderfully beautiful things that we do not have to travel nor pay nor wait to see.

My Neighbour's Poppy Garden.

A neighbour of mine has a little poppy garden. It is only a few feet square. Every morning she comes out to see what new poppies have bloomed in the night. She hangs lovingly over each exquisite blossom, speculates eagerly over the bud that is just getting ready to shed its sheath, and tells the children wonderful stories of the gowns the fairies make out of the crinkly, china silk petals. A little later she will garner the precious seeds to put away for next year's garden.

Intensive Cultivation Of Happiness. We often hear of intensive cultivation in the agricultural sense of making ever foot of ground give such a high yield that one does not need to cultivate a large territory. It is possible to apply the principle of intensive cultivation to life--that is, to make every foot of a humble life give such a high yield in interest and happiness and the perception of beauty that one does not need a more extensive territory for one's crop of happiness.

The following lines which just naturally belong here were sent me by a letter friend. I regret that I cannot give credit for their authorship. Perhaps some reader friend can help me out.

"Give me not scenes more charming, give me eyes To see the beauty that around me lies; To see the shine of souls, see angels shy Among the faces of the passers-by. I do not ask for more to seek and love me, I do not ask for brighter eyes to move me, But sharper sense to miss no halting Of fellowship in spirit seeking mine."

The Crescent Picture Palace presents to-day Maurice Costello in "The Moonstone of Fez," this great feature is produced in two reels by the Vitagraph Company. George Ade, the great American humorist writes "The Fable of Highfaluting Tillie and Her Plain Parents," this is one of the best Fables we have shown. "Dickson's Diamonds" is a great detective story pictured by the Edison Company. "The Sewing Machine Girl" is an up to the minute burlesque comedy, and "Search the Scientific Detective" is a lively comedy with the Biograph stars. Mr. Harvey Collins sings "Dear Old Girl," Frank Morrell's great song.

VITAGRAPH COMPANY'S ARTISTS IN A MOTHER'S LOVE.

The Nickel Theatre has a charming feature film for to-day which is easily one of the best ever shown in St. John's. It is entitled "Mother's Love" and is in three reels played by the famous Vitagraph artists. The celebrated stage folk, Mary Maurice, James Morrison and Dorothy Kelly are seen in the leading roles. It tells of the abiding love of a mother which is an ever-present protection from the evils that surround us. Everyone should make up their minds to see this grand picture. There are three other reels, one of them showing John Redmond reviewing the Irish Volunteers. Messrs. Hunkins and Cairns will be heard in solos this evening. The former sings: "O dry those tears," and the latter: "A little bit of heaven."

BRITISH THEATRE.

It is pleasing to note that Madame Timmons enters upon her seventh week at the above Theatre to-day and it is safe to say that her popularity is undiminished and also that she is undoubtedly the best and most artistic singer ever to have visited these shores. She will sing Louis Denza's popular composition: "Finicull-Finicula" and for her second offering will oblige with the late Madame Lillian Nordica's favorite southern melody: "Mighty Lak' a Rose." She has sung the latter number before but at the earnest solicitations of many of her admirers she will repeat the song at every performance both to-day and tomorrow. The pictures have as usual, been selected with the greatest care. The two reel masterpiece being one of exceptional brilliance both in theme and method of its portrayal.

Wedding Bells.

HUELIN-SEELEY.

A very pretty wedding was solemnized at St. James' Church, (Channel), September 8th, when Miss Lovetta Huelin and the Reverend Maxwell H. W. Seeley were united in the holy bonds of Matrimony by the Rev. H. J. Read, Rector of the Parish. The bride was charmingly dressed in white satin with overdress of lace and wore a veil and coronet of lilies of the valley. The bride was attended by her sisters, Lilly and Jennie, and Margaret Seeley, niece of the groom. They were becomingly dressed in pink satin which formed a nice background. The groom was ably supported by Mr. Isadore Huelin, brother of the bride, and the bride's boys were Mr. John Read and Mr. Percy Carrier. After the ceremony the company returned to the home of the bride where a reception was held which was attended by many of the relatives and friends of the happy pair. The Rector in proposing the health of the bride and groom gave a short history of his acquaintance and wished them both every happiness and success for the future. On behalf of the bride and himself the groom thanked the Rector for his kind remarks and good wishes. The best man arrived that morning from Halifax where he was training as a soldier of the King. His presence in uniform gave the whole affair a military appearance. The bride was the recipient of many useful presents. The happy couple leave by S. S. Portia on the 16th inst., en route to Jackson's Arm, in the mission of White Bay, where they will reside in the future. Com.

Brigades Parade.

Avalon Battalion (C. L. B.), attended Divine Service at St. Michael's Church at 11 a.m. yesterday. The turnout was large and Lieut.-Colonel Rendell was in charge. Rev. A. Stamp read the lessons and an impressive sermon was delivered by Rev. C. H. Barton. After service return to the Armoury was made via LeMarchant Road. The music displayed by the band was excellent. The Old Comrades were also on parade and presented a fine appearance. Under command of Lieut.-Col. Conroy, the C. C. C., mustering 300 strong, paraded yesterday morning to St. Patrick's Church. Last Mass was celebrated by Rev. Fr. Sheehan, after which the battalion made a tour of the city before going back to their hall, the band furnishing lively and patriotic airs en route.

To-night the world-renowned Ian Mackenzie and company open their engagement at the Rossley East End Theatre. High class artists, both vocal and instrumental which should prove a great drawing card. Ian Mackenzie is in his line of business what Harry Lauder is in his. He has a magnificent voice and will show the people of St. John's that he will make a name here for himself as elsewhere. With him is Miss Gertrude Ashton and Young Wallace, the marvellous violinist. Last Thursday there arrived a shipment of films sent by express to Mrs. Rossley from Jack Rossley who went on a flying visit to New York; there are other new films on the road. The Freedom of the Seas.

London Daily Express:--There is an implied suggestion that Great Britain has used her naval predominance to hinder and hamper the traffic of ships that do not fly her flag. This grotesque fable can hardly be believed even in the German-speaking cities of the Middle West. Great Britain has created an Empire by the courage and might of her sons. She has spent her treasure in guarding the shores of her outlying Dominions--and she has opened wide her doors to the traders of the world. She has, indeed, often encouraged foreign trade at the expense of her own, and has neglected the measures and the reforms necessary for the preservation of her prosperity. We, indeed, are fighting for freedom on the seas as well as on land.

Mid-Ocean Collision

American Steamer Allagash Hammed Amidships by Norwegian Barque Ravenscourt.

With funnels tottering, holes punched in side, and almost everything movable on deck amidships smashed, the American steamer Allagash, bound from Copenhagen to New York, crippled into this port yesterday morning, in a leaky and disabled condition. The Telegram interviewed an officer of the ship. The Allagash, which is owned by the American Trans-Atlantic Co., of New York, left Copenhagen at 9 o'clock on the evening of Wednesday, August 31st for New York in ballast. Six days later she put into Thorshavn to bunk. She remained there six days longer and then resumed the voyage, leaving on the 30th. The passage was moderate and nothing out of the ordinary happened, not even a single ship of war was sighted up to Friday last, the 10th. Cape Race was passed about 2 p.m. on that day, but the ship was not sighted as it was foggy at the time. The ship went along slowly about 15 miles off the Cape, and occasional soundings were taken. The fog continued thick up to 10 p.m., when it cleared a bit. The engines were then put at full speed. The captain went below a half hour after to the cabin leaving the second officer in charge of the ship which was struck by the barque's jibboom nearly foundered and is only hanging now. To make matters worse some plates became loosened below the water line and the ship started to leak and the inrush of water could not be coped with owing to the pumps being broken. The Norwegian suffered serious damage also. She lost foremast and bowsprit and nearly all her head gear was carried away and her fore peak filled with water. The captain of the barque asked the captain of the steamer if he (the latter) would stand by him. This was done and lifeboats were swung out and lashed to the ship's side to be ready at a moment's notice, if necessary. Meanwhile repairs were going on in the engine room and it was impossible to take the disabled barque in tow. The crew of the latter would not abandon her, knowing that the lumber laden vessel would remain afloat. At seven o'clock Saturday morning last temporary repairs were finished to the engines, which were put in working order again, and the steamer was ready to proceed to St. John's. It was then very thick and the barque could not be seen so a search was made for her. At 9.30 a shot went up and the sailing ship was found. The captain of the Norwegian then asked the captain of the American if he would tow him to St. John's, but the reply was in the negative, as the latter thought it imprudent and too dangerous, as his ship was leaking badly and that the hole punched in her side was only five feet out of the water, so that if he took the barque in tow he would be risking the loss of both vessels and both crews. Then it was agreed that the steamer would proceed to St. John's and get assistance to send out. The Allagash left the barque at 10.45 p.m. Saturday, the barque being then drifting about helplessly, and reached here at 6.30 a.m. yesterday. The tug John Green was sent out yesterday evening to tow the disabled barque to port. The John Green is expected back with her to-night. A fortunate matter in connection with the collision is that the Norwegian was going very slowly, otherwise the Allagash would have fared worse than she did and possibly no one would have survived to tell the tale. The Allagash which is called after an Indian Chief, has a mixed crew comprising Danes, Swedes, Russians, Americans and Finns. Her captain was here before. She is 3295 tons gross, 2492 net and built in 1905. The Norwegian barque Ravenscourt is 1462 tons gross, 1373 net, built in 1922. Messrs. Bowring Bros. are agents and Mr. P. Cook supplies her with coal. The barque was in tow but had to let go again and return to port as the strain was more than she could hold. The Prospero was then engaged and left port at 1 p.m. to-day in quest of the prize.

YOUR BOYS AND GIRLS

One of the most important facts to remember when feeding infants with cows milk is the very large proportion of water which is found in normal human milk, for it teaches us that it is a highly diluted food by which the best results can be obtained in infant feeding. It also explains to us how careful we should be not to over-tax the comparatively slight power for absorbing a concentrated food which exists in the early months of life.

The intervals of feeding constitute a very important part of an infant's life and therefore they should be definite and strictly adhered to. The danger points of dilution and intervals must ever be kept in view in infant feeding. Pasteurized milk must be considered as perfectly pure, sweet milk, ready for modification and administration.

St. Joseph, Levis, July 14, 1903. Minard's Liniment Co., Limited. Gentlemen,—I was badly kicked by my horse last May, and after using several preparations on my leg nothing would do. My leg was black as jet. I was laid up in bed for a fortnight and could not walk. After using three bottles of your MINARD'S LINIMENT I was perfectly cured, so that I could start on the road.

The Eastern Trust Company.

A few reasons why an estate can be better administered by the Eastern Trust Company than by a personal executor or administrator:—

1. The Company affords the estate absolute security; it has a paid-up capital of $931,000.00, and a reserve fund of $229,300.00.
2. It has a long experience in the work of administering estates; it is incorporated for this business of acting as a trustee, and, unlike many other trust companies, it does no other.
3. Its existence is perpetual. Your estate, in the event of the death of a personal executor or administrator, must look around for a substitute, and the work of administration is impeded during that time, and the new executor is unfamiliar with the policy of his predecessor, and confusion results. This company's existence is perpetual, and there is a continuity of policy in its administration that the death of its officers does not break.
4. It possesses the confidence of governments, universities and prominent charities and administers their funds.
5. A number of other advantages which will appear in due course.
