Sweet Eva!

CHAPTER XXXVII.

It was about two o'clock on an autumn afternoon when Philip reached Apsley. The country was looking its loveliest, he thought; up there in London he had almost forgotten how good the fields and hedges smelt, and what glorious tints of red and yellow the artist hand of early October should paint into a landscape. He had not told them at home that he would be coming, so there was nobody to meet him. He left his suitcase at the station, and set off to walk to the Highway House. He was glad to be back again—he expanded his lungs and drew a deep breath of the fresh country air. Until this moment he had not realized how heartily he detested London; his thoughts flew ahead to the hunting—the gallop over fields and ditches—and the wild, exhilarating rush through the cool air.

The old "Guv'nor" would not be here this year! The thought brought a cloud to his brow; so many things seemed to have gone out with his father—the whole world seemed to have turned upside down since that sunny morning when he married Eva Dennison.

He wondered what she was doing and if she had been even faintly hurt because he had not said good-bye to her. The thought of last night made him ashamed. He knew he had made a fool of himself with Kitty Arlington, and it seemed all the worse because he had no spark of feeling of any kind left for her. He supposed that Peter had been mad, too! The ghost of a smile crossed his face at the remembrance of his brother-in-law's black looks! Poor old Peter! It had been rather hard that, though he had paid the piper, he had not been allowed to call the tune.

He took a short cut across some fields to avoid going through the village; he got a glimpse of the Dennison's house through some trees on the right, and for the first time it occurred to him that they might think it strange he had come home without Eva. He had arranged an excuse to give his mother, but old Dennison had not hitherto entered into his calculations.

He shrugged his shoulders and turned in at the gates of the Highway House. A couple of his father's Alredales came bounding from the stables as they heard his step. They barked vociferously when he spoke to them, jumping up and pawing him in an excess of delight; they ran ahead of him to the house uttering little cries of welcome.

Philip's face glowed. It was worth staying away for a few weeks, after all, since it made him appreciate the old place like this. He went round to a side door which was always kept to the foot of the staircase and called to his mother.

"Philip!" There was a little cry of delight, and the next moment she was in his arms.

Presently she held him off and looked into his face with fond, tear-dimmed eyes.

"Phil! Oh, my dear boy! Why didn't you tell me you were coming?—I'd have met you—or sent the car. Oh, it is good to see you again! And Eva . . ."

"He felt that she looked beyond him to the empty hall, and he answered hurriedly—

"She hasn't come; Peter's staying with her, so I left them to do a round of the theatres. She's coming down for the week-end or something." He made a comical little grimace. "You mean that I'm not welcome alone?"

"My darling boy!" She kissed him again, though there was a little note of anxiety in her voice. "But I wish you had brought her. Phil—I should like to have seen her. Besides . . ."

"You've only been married such a little time!"

"Phil! Oh, my dear boy! Why didn't you tell me you were coming?—I'd have met you—or sent the car. Oh, it is good to see you again! And Eva . . ."

"He felt that she looked beyond him to the empty hall, and he answered hurriedly—

Philip frowned. "What does it matter what people say? It's such twaddle . . ."

"One has to mind what people say, whether it's twaddle or not," she said with a little wavering smile. "Besides . . . Phil, do you know that your father and I were never separated for one single day? He never went away without me. And I . . . well, of course, I never wished to go away without him."

Philip laughed rather constrainedly. "And very nice, too," he said. "But—things are different now, you know, mother. Besides—everything's all right—Eva could have come if she liked. She's got Peter there. She said she would rather stay with him."

Mrs. Winterdick knew Philip too well to argue with him, and she saw that he looked harassed and unhappy. "If I could only have seen Eva," she thought. She felt now that she could have spoken to Eva frankly. She had often wished since they left the Highway House that she had done so before.

But she was glad to have Philip home. They went the round of the gardens together, her hand through Philip's arm and sometimes his arm around her waist.

"Quite like old times—eh, mother?" he asked once. But he knew that he did not mean that; he knew that they could never even attempt to turn back the page. Wherever he was, and whatever he was doing now, it was of his wife that he constantly thought. Where was she? What was she doing? He wished now that he had not left her. He hated to think of her at that no doubt Calligan was there, too.

When they got back to the house he went to the study to write to her. He began a dozen sheets and tore them all up. He had never written her other woman in the world," he said with convincing sincerity.

CHAPTER XXXVIII.

It was after dinner the same night that Philip told his mother the real object of his visit.

They were in the drawing-room; Mrs. Winterdick knitting as usual and Philip roaming restlessly round the room.

The piano was closed to-night; there was no one to play, and Mrs. Winterdick had just remarked how she wished Eva had been there.

The piano was closed to-night; there was no one to play, and Mrs. Winterdick had just remarked how she wished Eva had been there.

"I never get any music now," she said mournfully.

Philip glanced at the piano and away again; it seemed only yesterday since he had tried to kiss his wife in this very room; his heart seemed to be stored with bitter memories like that.

"Well, Mater, they're rotten! They're—they're a thundering sight worse than—than anything you can ever imagine . . . I—that's why I'm here . . ."

"Yes, Phil." She put one white hand on his arm with a little comforting gesture.

"It's impossible to go on living as we are," he said hoarsely. "Don't think she's to blame—she isn't! It's all my fault—I've been a rotter to her from start to finish . . . She's too good for me—I . . . so—so I want to clear off—go abroad."

Mrs. Winterdick said nothing, but her face whitened a little.

British Shipbuilding.

London. (By Canadian Press.)—Despite the fact that the workers in the shipyards of Great Britain are already unemployed by reason of the impossibility of competing for tonnage under the present cost of production, motor-ship construction last year constituted a record and promises this year to eclipse that record.

According to 'Motor Ship,' Great Britain led the world in this type of ship construction, her quota of the total number of ships launched or completed in 1921 being 27, compared with 12 for Denmark and 11 for Germany and 24 divided between Sweden, the United States, Holland, Italy, Norway, France, Spain and Portugal. The aggregate tonnage completed was 333,475. In addition, 239,850 tons were launched, but were not completed at the end of last year. These figures are exclusive of any vessels under 1,000 tons deadweight.

Could Not Eat

Constipation is caused by a torpid condition of the liver. Dosing with salts, castor oil, etc., to move the bowels, cannot afford more than temporary relief.

If you are to rid yourself of this ailment and the scores of annoying symptoms and diseases which come in its wake, it is necessary to get the liver right by such treatment as is suggested in this letter:

Mrs. Alvin Richards, R. R. No. 1, Seely's Bay, Ont., writes: "For two years I was afflicted with indigestion, and in the morning when I got up my head was bad. I had a poor appetite, and just felt like eating certain foods. I used many different medicines as a laxative without benefit, and the doctor's medicine did not help me at all. Finally I read Dr. Cassel's Kidney-Liver Pills, and found them better than anything I had ever tried. I can highly recommend them to anyone troubled with constipation or kidney trouble."

Did "Key Note" Cause Roof to Fall?

Vibration caused by musical instruments, abetted by the weighty snow, is being considered by scientists as a contributing cause for the disastrous collapse of the Knickerbocker Theatre roof, Washington. Slight swayings, which may have been caused by certain notes struck by the orchestra or the huge pipe organ, possibly assisted in making the roof supports insecure, according to several noted scientists and experts upon sound action. "Although I cannot say what key it was, I believe that there was one on the Knickerbocker organ which was in harmony with the vibration of the theatre building," said a member of the Musicians' Union. He stated that he had played the organ in the ill-fated theatre on several occasions, and he recalled the time that the organ used at the St. Louis Exposition was installed in the music hall in the east, and upon the striking of a certain note the skylight was shattered. After an investigation the removal of the large footstaps on the organ was ordered.

Bloodless Revolution.

Political Crisis in Portugal Ended-- Sinn Fein Convention Approves Agreement-- Ard Fheis Adjourns for Three Months-- Newfoundland Fishermen Drowned.

PORTUGUESE TROUBLE OVER LISBON, Feb. 22. The political crisis has ended with bloodshed. It has apparently resulted in the overthrow of the Republic guard, which has been carrying out a policy of repression since the assassination of Premier Sidonio in December, 1918. The Government will return to the capital and the Chamber of Deputies will meet to-day.

WORKED A MIRACLE. DUBLIN, Feb. 22. The dramatic suddenness of the peace agreement reached at the eleventh hour between Free State and Republican leaders was sprung on Ard Fheis at National Sinn Fein Convention to-day, and the huge gathering of delegates, impatient at any delay in the signing of the treaty with Great Britain, gave its unanimous approval to the agreement for three months. The feeling was that in preserving the Sinn Fein organization intact, like a miracle had been worked. The result will be to ensure an election is held it will be the judgment of the people in the terms of the institution in which the treaty will be embodied as it is upon the treaty itself.

ADJOURNS FOR THREE MONTHS. DUBLIN, Feb. 22. The agreement to adjourn Ard Fheis, the Sinn Fein National Convention, for three months was reached to-day among the political leaders in the body. The agreement provides that no voice in Dail shall require the resignation of the Provisional Government and that there shall be no election meanwhile. When the election is held a new constitution under the Anglo-Irish Treaty, it is stipulated, shall be submitted to the country. The reaching of the agreement was announced to Ard Fheis by Mr. De Valera amidst a storm of cheers. He stated it provided for adjournment of Ard Fheis for three months, that Dail Eireann would continue to function in the meantime, but that no vote in Dail was to be regarded as a party vote requiring the resignation of the President and cabinet, and that no parliamentary elections should be held in the meantime. Also that when such elections were held a constitution should be submitted to the people as well as the Anglo-Irish Treaty.

HOPING FOR UNITY. DUBLIN, Feb. 22. The first day's debate in Ard Fheis seems to have cleared the atmosphere, and the feeling of the delegates assembled again to-day was that Sinn Fein would retain its unity despite bitter feeling over the Anglo-Irish Treaty. The political correspondent of the Freeman's Journal says that late yesterday feeling among the delegates in favor of an understanding which had found expression only in whispers during the morning, had become the dominant note of the assembly. Indeed as the day wore on it seemed that the great bulk of the delegates were opposed to division on any subject. The sentiment for unity seems to overshadow all else, although few seemed to envisage any practical road for its achievement. The Irish Independent says that delegates from the country in daily touch with the people, and with recollection of many cases of disastrous consequences from former dissensions, showed true appreciation of the grave dangers involved in the prospect of a split. They perceived that with the nation divided its power even to insist upon complete fulfilment of the treaty would be impaired. The Freeman's Journal says editorially, "The most significant feature of the proceedings was the determination of documentarians to avoid contact with the Irish people as long as possible. They denounced the idea of an immediate appeal to the nation."

SCHOONER WRECKED; TWO NEWFOUNDLANDERS DROWNED. GALVESTON, Texas, Feb. 22. Seven men, including two from Newfoundland, and one from New Brunswick, part of the crew of the fishing schooner Caldwell Colt, of Pensacola, lost their lives when the craft was wrecked on a reef during a gale on February 13, near Tortugas Light. Word of the tragedy was brought here by the Morgan liner Florinto. The Newfoundlanders were, Jeremiah Clark, cook, and Matthew O'Brien, 57 years old. Only two men of the crew of nine survived and these only after days of suffering.

He said the question which had become urgent could not be undertaken prior to a settlement of the Upper Silesian difficulty.

BOLD YOUNG MEN. BABYLON, N.Y., Feb. 22. Twenty-five young unmarried men of this Long Island town to-day issued a manifesto declaring they will not be seen in public with young flappers who wear their gossamer unbuttoned or their stockings rolled down to a point of impropriety. The manifesto concludes, "The young men of Babylon are not prudish, but they have a better notion of propriety than did the young men of ancient Babylon."

ANOTHER CHARGE AGAINST BOTTOMLEY. LONDON, Feb. 22. Horatio Bottomley, M.P., has been summoned to appear in Bow Street Police Court to answer a charge of converting to his own use 5,000 pounds, part of the property of the Victory Bond Club. Bottomley to-day said he would suspend all political and journalistic activities until the matter had been cleared up.

THE COMING COAL STRIKE. CHICAGO, Feb. 22. The United Mine Workers of America do not want railroad employees to join them in a strike. John L. Lewis, President of the Miners said to-day in an address opening a conference of leaders of mine and railway unions. Mr. Lewis, spoke of what he termed the "coming strike" of the miners, and said his organization wanted only the full moral support of carrier employees. "We are ready to fight, although I am not yet absolutely convinced that operators will force us to carry out our plan for a strike," he said.

The eye fell out of a coconut in Minneapolis, Minn., and the fact revealed that the milk in 200 cocoanuts was Jamaica rum. Revenue officers were soon able to account for the milk in these cocoanuts.

A Talented Family.

The Earl of Lytton, who is to succeed Lord Ronaldshay as Governor of Bengal, is an interesting member of a family that has never produced a dull or commonplace man or woman. His father was the Post Ambassador, "Owen Meredith," who was "Viscero of India in the late seventies and held various other distinguished posts. His grandfather was the still more famous Bulwer Lytton--orator, poet, dramatist, and novelist; and he himself has combined a love of literature and a liking for active public life ever since his earliest years. He compiled the standard biography of his grandfather, was British Commissioner for Propaganda in France in 1918, and has represented both the Admiralty and the War Office in the House of Lords. His eldest son, Viscount Knebworth, has already shown, at the age of eighteen, that he possesses the family intelligence.

The only brother of Lord Lytton, Major Neville Lytton, married the daughter of Mr. Wilfrid Blunt, Baroness Wentworth in her own right, a lady who is a descendant of Byron. Major Lytton is an athlete, soldier, artist, writer of one of the best books inspired by the war, and a dozen other things. One of the Lytton sisters married a brother of Mr. Balfour, a second is wife of Sir Edward Lyttons, and the third sister went to prison more than once as an ardent suffragette. Lady Lytton who was Miss Palema Plowden, is pretty, graceful, artistic, and witty; and Mr. Balfour once described her as "Society's most brilliant ornament."

SUCCESS.

This I would claim for my success--not fame nor gold. Nor the throng's changing cheers from day to day. Not always ease and fortune's glad display. Though all of these are pleasant joys to hold; But I would like to have my story told By smiling friends with whom I've shared the way. Who, thinking of me, nod their heads and say: "His heart was warm when other hearts were cold."

"None turned to him for aid and found it not. His eyes were never blind to man's distress, Youth and old age he lived, nor once forgot The anguish and the ache of loneliness; His name was free from stain or shameful blot. And in his friendship men found happiness."

Caterpillars That Cost Millions.

About fifty years ago M. Trouvelot, a French entomologist, was experimenting with silkworms in the small town of Medford, Massachusetts. One day he received from a European friend a few eggs of the gipsy moth, which he placed on a window-sill. The window was open, and a puff of wind blew the eggs into the garden.

M. Trouvelot had quite forgotten the incident, when one day in the following summer he discovered, on a tree near his house, a colony of grey caterpillars with red and blue spots. He killed all he could find; but next year they reappeared in greater numbers, and the entomologist, alarmed at last, warned his neighbours--only to be laughed at for his pains.

A score of years passed. Then, in the summer of 1889, the plague came at last. Medford was black with caterpillars. Soon not a leaf was left on any tree, and every blade of grass was eaten up.

From Medford the caterpillars spread to new districts until they had stripped over two hundred and twenty square miles of land of every trace of vegetation. All efforts to stop the plague were futile. For many years the State spent £80,000 a year in desperate efforts to subdue it; and when at last it was conquered it had done damage estimated at many millions of pounds.

Further Prorogation.

The current issue of the Royal Gazette contains a proclamation further proroguing the Legislature to March 8th. As two weeks' notice of the intention to call Parliament together must be given, the present prorogation means that in no case can there be proclamation for the Assembly of the Upper and Lower Houses before March 22, and it may be that still further prorogation will then take place.

Sisto Not Located.

Nothing has been heard to-day from the Sisto which has for some time been jammed in the ice off this port. The ship is having a hard time as she reported some time ago that her forepeak was full of water.

Disbandment of Naval Reserve.

Following the Washington Conference, the results of the British policy of retrenchment is the disbandment of the Nfld. Royal Naval Reserve. It is learned that Commandant Kerr of the Briton has received orders from the Admiralty to close up the Briton is now up for sale by tender. The staff from the Home-land will likely be ready to proceed home by the next Sackem. The disbandment of the Naval Reserve will be learned with regret, not alone for sentimental reasons, but also for the amount of trade which the force circulated.

Sable I. Outward.

S.S. Sable I. sailed to-day at Harvey & Co.'s premises before proceeding to Halifax. Owing to ice conditions on the passage the Sable I. was unable to make Louisa Bay. The ship reported that when leaving Halifax, the harbor was frozen over and people were walking on the ice of George's Island. Only two passengers were booked to sail by the ship. They are A. S. Green and H. Landau.

Hiking Round the World.

HAVE THE HIKERS LEFT ST. JOHN'S—WERE PREPARED TO WALK TO PORT AUX BASQUES FOR SEASON WILL VISIT EVERY CAPITAL CITY.

Have Frank and Jane Richards of Los Angeles, who have most in St. John's for some days in the course of their world hike, left the city? They told the Telegram yesterday that they could make enough money they would leave on the Sable I. If not, they declared they would walk to Port aux Basques. Mr. Richards, when a walk would be best, repeated his statement, qualifying it by saying that he and his wife would make the attempt for a wager of $50,000! Their names are not on the Sable's passenger list, so if anybody would like to see them walk to Port aux Basques, provided they are still in town, let them come forward with the $50,000. This offer to make the attempt is a suggestion a problem which may worry some of our expert mathematicians. Here it is: If an express train takes three weeks to get to Port aux Basques in mid-winter, how long would it take the world hikers to walk the distance? Mr. Richards told the Telegram that there is a fund of $200,000 put aside for the purpose of inducing married couples to undertake a hike around the world. The reward for completing the route mapped out, if it be done within eight years. Only married couples can undertake it, and they must start with no money but 1000 post cards which they have to sell in business places only. This is the only way they can make money to pay expenses. Certain rules are laid down, one of which they must break each day. A man whose expenses are paid from the fund must follow them and if he catches them breaking a rule he gets $5,000 and the trip is off. The only way they can make money to pay expenses. TABLET UNVEILED IN OFFICE OF HARVEY & CO. LTD.

A very impressive memorial ceremony took place yesterday at 1 p.m. in the main office of Harvey & Co. The occasion was the unveiling and dedication of a memorial tablet, erected by the firm to the memory and honor of its employees, who participated in the Great War. The full staff of Messrs. Harvey & Co., together with representatives from the Butcher Factory and the Tub Factory, as well as relatives of those who went west, were present at the ceremony. The service was most impressive and solemn, and was fittingly conducted by Rev. (Capt.) A. Clayton, and Rev. (Lt.-Col.) P. T. Nangle, the Padres of the Regiment. The whole assembly joined in the service, the order of which was as follows:

Annual Meeting of Holy Name Society.

The annual meeting of the Holy Name Society (Catholic Parish) was held on last Sunday. The annual reports which were read showed the Society to be in a flourishing condition. The President, Rev. (Lt.-Col.) P. T. Nangle, presided in connection with the building of the new Palace, and the Society pledged itself to do all in its power, and make special efforts to help in this matter. A resolution of sympathy on the death of the late Pope Benedict was proposed by the President and seconded by Mr. C. W. Ryan, who claimed that the Society had a very special reason to pass this resolution. He recalled the fact that when Dr. Greene was in Rome two years ago representing the Archbishop he had the honor of a private audience with Pope Benedict, and amongst other privileges obtained from him his special blessing for all the members of the Holy Name Society. The election of officers resulted as follows:— President, M. P. Murphy; Vice-President, J. Keen; Treasurer, W. H. St. John; Secretary, J. J. Buckley; Assistant Secretary, J. J. Whelan; Assistant Secretary, H. Brown; Librarian, A. W. Knight; Marshal, J. Boone; Assistant Marshal, P. Anderson; Chairman, J. J. Slattery; Country Clergy, J. R. Gordon, S. Angel, E. J. Power, T. J. PRO MEMORIA.

(By Malcolm Parsons.)

Sons of the men who made Great Britain great, Cradled on rugged Isle, and Vikings all, They lifted high the banner of our land And fared them forth to die, at duty's call. They little recked of what the years might bring To each, in wealth or power, in love or fame, They trod the broken road,—passed the "Divide"— And writ on history's page, a noble name. Honor their memory, ye who know their deeds, A greater love than this no man hath known Than that they died that You and I might live. Go! Cut their record clear upon the stone.

NEW LABOR ALLIANCE.

CHICAGO, Feb. 23.

Leaders of Miners and Railroad Labor Unions, in joint session to-day, voted to form a Protective Alliance, through which United Mine Workers would receive full support of a majority of the Nations railroad employees in the miners strike proposed for April 1. The alliance, as yet, does not call for a sympathetic rail strike, however.

His Diary.

February 22nd.—All the afternoon at the club where I play at Bridge, to my great content and do mighty well. At night again play at Bridge. By the foreign despatches, I learn how an air coach did catch fire in the United States and over thirty poor men lost their lives thereby. Indeed, a sad occurrence and shows, I think, how far from perfection, are these gas air coaches.

ALL DEAD IDENTIFIED. NORFOLK, Va., Feb. 22.

The number of dead from the crash of the giant army dirigible Roma, at the Army Base here yesterday, reported to-day at thirty-four, all identified. DELHI ACCLAIMS PRINCE.

LONDON, Feb. 23.

The extremely enthusiastic demonstration accorded the Prince of Wales yesterday, in regard to a severe blow to the non-cooperationist movement in Delhi, for which people attended spontaneously in enormous masses, was a Rouser cable from Delhi. The occasion was the Prince's visit to the people's fair in the vicinity of Delhi. The organizers had intended to carry out a programme of sports, including races and wrestling matches, but the huge crowd, estimated at two hundred thousand, swamped the enclosures, and when the Prince arrived on horseback, with a few members of his staff, he literally pursued him round the grounds, cheering continuously. The Prince rode through the masses for half an hour, shouting and smiling and delighted at reception. Police and military were powerless to prevent the crowds advance.

Amper House at the Crescent.

EDDIE MCGINLEY ATTRACTS LARGE AUDIENCES. The holiday programme seen at the Crescent yesterday was one that certainly held the audience, and in the last night's cold blast, immense numbers braved the elements to see the above popular house. Eddie McGinley, the popular comedian, presented all previous acts as he rendered an entirely new bill of monologues, jokes, dances and funny stories which kept the good humour of the audience at a very high pitch. His comic song was easily the hit of the evening and had everybody rolling in fits of laughter. Eddie sets out to make his audience laugh, and there is anybody who hears him and doesn't laugh, they'll better consult a doctor. Each night Eddie springs a new one. Hear him and enjoy a good laugh.

Hutton, the Clergy of the Archdiocese and Brothers from Mt. St. Francis and Mount Cashel. Preceding the distribution, the College pupils staged Sir E. Bulwer Lytton's drama, "Richelieu or the Conspiracy." The play, which is in 4 acts, centres around the court of Louis XIII. of France. The performance was very pleasing and many of the impersonations would be counted creditable in a more pretentious troupe. It would be invidious to point out any single player, but Master A. Bown as Cardinal Richelieu and Master E. Martin as Roland De Mortemar, having rather heavy roles, were more prominent than the rest. The Dramatis personae are as follows:—

Louis XIII: King of France—

- Master J. Power
- Gaston, Duke of Orleans, Brother to the King Master A. Collins
- Count De Baradas, the King's Favourite Master K. McGrath
- Cardinal Richelieu, Minister of France Master A. Bown
- The Chevalier De Mauprat Master A. Larkin
- Roland De Mortemar, Ward to Richelieu Master E. Martin
- The Sieur De Berlinghen, one of the Conspirators Master H. Conroy
- Clermont, a Courtier Master J. Summers
- Joseph, a Capuchin Monk, Richelieu's Confidant Master D. Meaney
- Francis, a Page to Richelieu Master G. Archer
- Hugnet, an Officer in Richelieu's Household—a Spy Master George Halley
- De Lorme, a Spy Master B. Summers
- First Secretary of State Master G. Brownrigg
- Second Secretary of State Master J. O'C. Lynch
- Third Secretary of State Master H. Carey
- Captain of the Archers Master P. Nugent
- Courtiers, Pages, Conspirators, Soldiers

Following the play, the principal, Rev. J. E. Ryan, gave a brief report of the years work in doing so he thanked His Excellency for his patronage and the personal interest he displayed in the schools affairs. To His Grace he also extended the warmest expressions of gratitude, assuring him of every co-operation. It was due to the wise guidance of the Archbishop and the priests that the day is drawing near when the church in Newfoundland will be supplied with new priests. At present there were no less than 33 pupils of the College

A Reasonable Suggestion

BILLIARD GAMES FOR CHAMPIONSHIP.

Editor Evening Telegram.
Dear Sir:—Apropos of the proposed Billiard Tournament in aid of the Memorial Fund I would like to make a suggestion which would find favor with the Committee of management. As you are probably aware, locally In-Club public tournaments in the past have not been altogether an unqualified success, largely due to the fact that spectators in their anxiety to help their own team have sometimes overstepped the mark, and resorted to the same kind of ragging that one hears from the fans of the Baseball game. This, of course, is manifestly unfair to the players, and for the welfare of the game it is sincerely to be hoped that any tendency towards horseplay on the part of spectators will be checked, and checked promptly.

So much in passing, and now to come to this suggestion. Instead of an In-Club Tournament, why not inaugurate a series of games for the championship of Newfoundland. The games could be arranged in a manner similar to the Football fixtures, i.e. each player to play against every other player; in this way each would get a good try-out, besides extending the games over quite a period, and thereby affording an opportunity to raise quite a large sum of money for the Fund. Surely it is about time in view of the fact that we have so many Billiard enthusiasts in this country, to afford an opportunity to the players of proving their right to be regarded as the Billiard Champion of Newfoundland.

Trusting that this suggestion will be seriously considered.

Yours sincerely,
Feb. 22, 1922. BILLIARDIST

Still Clearing Line.

The work of clearing the railway line is still continuing, and will not be completed for a few days yet. The main line is still frozen over between Brigus Junction and Holyrood. The plows cannot do much in this connection, as men have to break the ice and remove it from the rails. The Caribou line is not yet clear and no train will be able to leave for Conception Bay for a few days.

Scarcity of Trained Nurses

Enquiries at several of the principal institutions which supply nurses for private cases, indicate that there is not a sufficient number of trained nurses to meet the demand. During the summer months, the nursing profession passed through a very lean period, partly due to the fine weather, but more particularly owing to a general shortage of money, which impelled private patients to dispense with the services of a trained nurse during the period of convalescence. Now, however, notwithstanding the mildness of the winter, humanity is afflicted with many ills, and the demand for nurses for private cases, far exceeds the supply. The difficulties of the hospitals are of another kind. The matron of the London Hospital states that there is no shortage at present of trained nurses for hospital work, but it is difficult to find the requisite number of candidates to fill vacancies as they arise; and no doubt, other hospitals are in a like case. The London Hospital has to fill 208 vacancies every year. Last year only 156 candidates were available. The number of applicants was, of course, in excess of that figure, but many of them were unable to pass the necessary educational test. If suitable candidates are not forthcoming in adequate numbers, there will be a shortage of trained nurses in a year or two. The conditions prevailing in the nursing profession have been greatly improved in recent years, and there is no other profession in which candidates are paid wages while they learn their duties.

Makes a Family Supply of Cough Remedy

Really better than ready-made cough syrup, and saves about $1. Each bottle easily prepared.

If you combined the curative properties of every known "ready-made" cough remedy, you probably could not get as much real curative power as there is in this simple home-made cough syrup, which is easily prepared in a few minutes. Get from any druggist 2 1/2 ounces of Pinex, pour it into a 16-oz. bottle and fill the bottle with syrup, using either plain granulated sugar syrup, clarified molasses, honey, or corn syrup, as desired. The result is 16 ounces of really better cough syrup than you could buy ready-made and saves easily $2. Tastes pleasant and never sooths. This Pinex and Syrup preparation gets right at the cause of a cough and gives almost immediate relief. It loosens the phlegm, stops the nasty throat tickle and heals the sore, irritated membranes so gently and easily that it is really astonishing. A day's use will usually overcome the ordinary cough and for bronchitis, croup, hoarseness and bronchial asthma, there is nothing better. Pinex is a most valuable concentrated compound of genuine Norway pine extract, and has been used for generations to break up severe coughs. To avoid disappointment, ask your druggist for "2 1/2 ounces of Pinex" with full directions, and don't accept any thing else. Guaranteed to give absolute satisfaction or money promptly refunded. SIDE TALKS.

By Ruth Cameron.

HAVE YOU ANY SUCH VANITIES?

I offended a friend quite deeply the other day without in the least intending to. She had been to a specialist in the big city for treatment of her eyes and was telling me about the trip. "Of course you have heard of Dr. S.," she said. "Then I made my tactical mistake. I hadn't, and I said so. Fatal error! 'What! Not heard of Dr. S? Why, he is at the very head of the profession,'" she said. "You must have." Foolishly I persisted in being ignorant.

She Hasn't Forgiven Me. "Well, I never knew anyone who hadn't heard of him before," she bridled.

I met her the other day and I know by her manner she hasn't forgiven me yet.

Isn't it funny the way people seem to feel a personal stake in the doctors and dentists, and even in the shops and markets they patronize, and the kind of car they chose to buy? If you do not admit the desirability of the doctor or the shop or the car, you have not merely expressed a point of view to which you have a perfect right, you have given them a personal affront.

Because She Wouldn't Trade With Her Grocer.

I know two sisters who passed through a long period of coldness because one of them withdrew her trade from the shop which her sister had recommended to her "when she came to town."

And I have heard men argue with the most impassioned vehemence trying to convince other men of the vast superiority of their make of car. Had they been hired by the manufacturer to advertise the car they could not do better work. One would think they were going to get fat commission to hear them talk. Whereas all they are really after is the maximization of their ego by convincing someone else that the car they have had the wisdom to select was the best car on the market.

I Am Offended.

There is a certain type of oil store which I bought when I was something of a pioneer in that direction. My feeling for that store, my insistence on showing off its intense heat, my desire to impress people with its manifold charms and efficiencies, my sense of personal affront when anyone dares to suggest that it is not always as fragrant as it might be, are some of my contributions to this form of vanity.

What are yours?

Devon "Dont's".

Superstitions linger in those countries most removed from the hustle of the great cities. Down in Devonshire there are many warnings for those who would be "lucky". Never turn a bed on a Friday or a Sunday.

Never buy a broom in May, or you'll sweep one of the family away.

Never give boots or shoes as presents as the recipients will walk away from you.

Never look at a new moon through glass, for you'll have no luck while it lasts.

Never sit down thirteen at a table.

Never have a yellow broom inside the house.

Never sweep dirt out of the front door, or bad luck will come in at the back door.

If you meet a cartload of hay it is a sure sign of a lucky surprise, but never look at the back of a load of hay, or a disappointment will follow.

To pick up a piece of coal and put it in the first fire you see means very good luck.

Then, again, neither brooms nor shoes must be placed on a table, for this is a sure sign of a quarrel.

If you stir with a knife, you stir up strife.

In fact, Devonshire folk seem to have a superstition for everything.

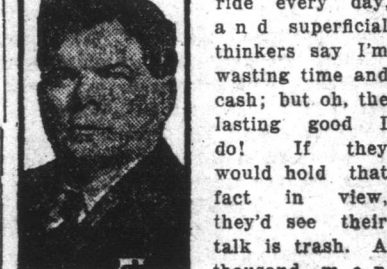

Death Toll of Babies in Cities.

Christiania, Capital of Norway, in the matter of the death rate of babies, stands first among the cities of the world. The infantile mortality per 1,000 is only 32. London's rate is 93. The highest in Great Britain is that of Wigan, an industrial town in Lancashire, 125. Berlin's rate is 144, while those of New York and Chicago are unofficially reported at 97 and 111. No city has such a record as Bombay, India, where, according to official figures, 430 babies out of every 1,000 die before they reach the age of 13 months.

DOING GOOD.

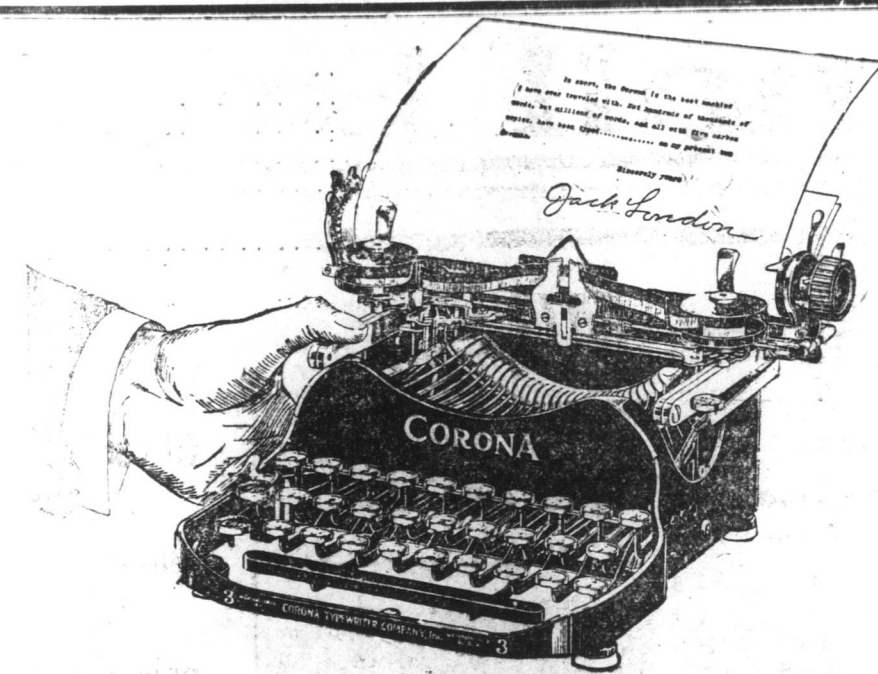

VALT MASON

I rejoice, joyride every day, and a superficial thinker says I'm wasting time and cash; but oh, the lasting good I do! If they would hold that fact in view, they'd see their talk is trash. A thousand men have better fare because I choo-choo everywhere, they bless me as I pass; and worthy men like Henry Ford accumulate a humble hoard because I burn the gas. John D. is able to upbuild Research Foundations, amply filled with scientists severe, who find the germ that causes mumps, and make the blamed thing jump the bumps, wink out and disappear. And skilled mechanics in their homes spend happy evenings reading pomes and playing dominoes, because my wagon knows no rest, but journeys north and east and west, wherever the long road goes. And towns like Akron shed the blues, and figure daily in the news upon the throbbing wires, because I soak my Sunday hat and fountain pen and Maltese cat, to buy some rubber tires. I burn up all the country roads, and people look from their abodes, and say I am a crank; I'm always wasting gas and oil, when I should tackle honest toil, and boost the savings bank. But oh, my friends, the good I do! The world would bless me as I choo and chug along my way; a hundred industries succeed because you see my auto speed, the merry "livelong day!"

FISH SHIPPED BY THE "PRESIDENT COAKER"

SUMMERS, K.C.:

In this connection it has been alleged that the Minister of Marine and Fisheries was to purchase 50,000 qtls. of Labrador codfish.

Q.—Will you explain how that fish was purchased and with whose authority?

A.—The Minister of Marine and Fisheries was authorized by Minute-of-Council on the 19th November 1920 to purchase 50,000 quintals of codfish of the present season's catch, either directly or through an agent at prices not exceeding $3.00 for Choice and $2.00 for Prime Labrador Codfish plus expenses. The position was that there was quite quantity of fish in the hands of the fishermen in the middle of November when markets were glutted, sales were unobtainable and the trade had made up their mind not to purchase at the prices then being paid. In about eighty to one hundred craft containing fish when we started buying. Many of these vessels had been lying in the harbor for two weeks. Very few of the merchants were inclined to purchase at $3.00 a qtl. Public meetings were called at this time. The resolutions passed at those meetings objected to the Fish Regulations being continued in force and asking the Government to raise the Regulations. The Government considered that if the wishes of the convenors of the meeting were agreed to that the price of fish would fall to about $4.00 a qtl. The Government had considered this matter from time to time, and I also consulted with the Exportation Board. The Board tried to form a syndicate to purchase, but this idea failed. There was a quantity of about 250,000 qtls. of fish supposed to be on vessels and in the markets unsold and stored here at that time. If the slump had come it would have cut the price of that 250,000 qtls. of fish as well as fish in fishermen's hands, that is the slump would have covered probably 350,000 qtls. of fish at $4.00 a quintal according to our belief. We decided to purchase the fish in order to prevent the slump abroad and the slump locally because we realized that if the fishermen sold their fish at $4.00 a qtl. the price abroad would slump to that extent, and fishermen with fish unsold would only obtain enough to pay for their supplies and would have nothing whatever to live on during the winter.

Q.—Under the Minute-of-Council you had authority as Minister of Marine and Fisheries to purchase 50,000 qtls. of fish?

A.—Yes.

Q.—And there was a credit of $500,000 placed to your Department?

A.—Yes, in the Bank of Montreal.

Q.—How much fish did you buy under that authority?

A.—We bought about 35,000 qtls. It was purchased in St. John's and Port Union; 7,500 was purchased at Port Union.

MR. WINTER:

Q.—Where was the "President Coaker's" cargo bought?

A.—The whole of it was bought at Port Union. The cargo consisted of 7,500 qtls. No. 1 Labrador fish purchased from the fishermen at Port Union at $3.00 a qtl. It was a week before the vessel was loaded after she was chartered. There were many vessels discharging fish. A certain quantity of this fish was placed in store in a separate bulk specially for the cargo of the "President Coaker." I made arrangements with Mr. Sellars to act as agent for the Department of Marine and Fisheries under that authority to purchase two cargoes of fish. One was to be purchased here in St. John's and loaded on board the "Jean Wakely" and the other was to be purchased at Port Union and loaded on board the "President Coaker." Mr. Sellars drew up charters for those two vessels and sent them to the Department of Marine and Fisheries. He chartered from the Trading Co. the "President Coaker" in his own name to take the cargo of fish. The price of freight and demurrage, etc., were the same for both cargoes. Both vessels bore precisely the same charters. The arrangement with Mr. Sellars was that he was to purchase two cargoes of fish. He was to charter the "President Coaker" from the Trading Co. and he was to load that cargo at Port Union. The price at which the "President Coaker's" fish was purchased was $3.00. It was all No. 1 fish; there was no No. 2 put in her; $3.50 was paid by the Department for the fish to Mr. Sellars that went into the cargo of the "President Coaker." The 50c. was the amount that the Department had arranged to pay Job and Barr and to Sellars for what he bought at Port Union for expenses in handling the fish.

Q.—The Minute-of-Council gives you authority to buy fish either yourself or through an agent?

A.—Yes, at $3.00 for the No. 1 fish and expenses. The fish was billed to the Government at $3.50, the 50c. being the amount allowed for expenses. Fifty cents was what we considered we were out in the handling of the fish in connection with the transaction. The fish that went in the "Jean Wakely" was bought at $3.00 for No. 1 and $7.00 for No. 2. The price paid to Sellars for the fish in St. John's was the cost plus $1.00.

Q.—Why was Sellars paid $9.00?

A.—Sellars was the first man I asked to handle the fish. Under a previous arrangement I had with the bank for purchasing fish, Mr. Murray was to be an agent for purchasing fish. He was to pay $3.00 for No. 1 that he purchased. He had to take it in store, pack it and take it out, for which he was to receive $1.00 per qtl. In addition to the cost. He was also to stow it in the vessel. That arrangement came off when the bank went back on it and the arrangement with Murray to buy was cancelled. It was through Mr. Sellars being in daily touch with me as a member of the Exportation Board that he made the deal with Murray. What we wanted to do was to get somebody to buy fish whom we could confide in and we trusted Mr. Murray.

When Mr. Sellars agreed to purchase the load of fish for the "Jean Wakely" that was the first fish that was purchased under this agreement at St. John's. Mr. Sellars knowing all about the arrangement with Murray, he expected to handle fish in connection with the "Jean Wakely" at $1.00 per qtl. for expenses. I could not go to anyone else, and I could not take everyone into our confidence. The most pressing thing was to get vessels in the stream to start discharging so as to allay the excitement amongst the fishermen and keep prices up, and Sellars asked $1.00 for his trouble, the same as I had arranged previously to pay Murray. I then went to Port Union and they were loading the "President Coaker" the same time as they were loading the "Jean Wakely" here. I figured out the cost and I said $3.50 will bring us out very well for expenses. I came back here and tried to get Sellars to take the same amount but he refused. Barr and Job offered to do it for $3.50.

Covering all expenses there was $9.00 paid for No. 1 of the Jean Wakely's cargo, and $3.50 for the President Coaker's whole cargo. The Jean Wakely did not get $9.00 for the whole cargo because it contained some No. 2.

Q.—Do you think $1.00 a quintal an excessive price to charge?

A.—Well, half a dollar was enough in Outports, but I had agreed by letter to give a dollar before we discovered the 50c. would pay, and he would not release us from our obligation to pay him the $1.00. Mr. Sellars was to purchase the fish at Port Union. He was unable to go to Port Union to purchase it and I arranged with Mr. Russell to buy the 7,500 quintals at Port Union for Mr. Sellars. The fish had to be put on board the ship, the bill of lading, invoice and all documents sent to the department in order to get payment. The same thing happened in connection with the J. Wakely's cargo. Documents were deposited before the cargo was paid for. The Trading Company made no profit out of the transaction except the 50c. which was the cost of getting it aboard, storing, buying, handling and stowing it. The President Coaker belonged to the Trading Company and the charterer was Mr. Sellars, and the terms of the charter were the same as the Jean Wakely's, that is, the freight was half paid when the documents were handed in, and the balance paid on delivery of the fish on the other side.

On receipt of the documents at the department from Port Union, the cheque was issued in favor of Mr. Sellars for the amount which covered the cost of the fish, the half freight and the insurance. Mr. Sellars credited the Trading Co. at the Bank of Nova Scotia with that amount. I know that he issued a cheque in favor of the Trading Co., and handed it to the bank for exactly the same amount as our bill for the President Coaker.

Q.—Mr. Sellars charged you $9.00 for the J. Wakely's cargo?

A.—Yes.

Q.—He charged $3.50 for the President Coaker's cargo?

A.—Yes.

Q.—Where does Mr. Sellars come in for his profit?

A.—He made nothing whatever on the President Coaker's cargo, not a cent. The amount of the cheque that was paid him for the cargo, according to our invoice at Port Union, he handed it over to the Bank of Nova Scotia and it went to our credit. From the Department of Marine and Fisheries there was one cheque issued for the President Coaker.

CAPT. DAVE:

Q.—When you made the arrangement with Murray, you contemplated the fish would be put in store and shipped on board and stowed?

A.—Yes, that is why I offered him the $1.00 and it included the insurance in store for a month. Instead of my signing the charter for the Trading Co. it was sent to Port Union and Mr. Russell signed it.

Those two cargoes were then placed in my hands to dispose of. Both the vessels arrived at Gibraltar about the same time. We sent the Jean Wakely to Greece and the sale of the J. Wakely's cargo turned out very good. The loss on the J. Wakely is not very great. The President Coaker was kept at Gibraltar for a few days because we were trying to secure cold storage for the cargo in Spain. I tried to get Haves to store it. I tried to get Lazo to store or buy it in Spain. We could not get anyone to take it. I made up my mind to send it to Genoa. The Consorzio was in charge of all fish going into Italy at that time, and they refused to come to any satisfactory arrangement for the President Coaker's cargo. I had her bill of lading altered so as to have it consigned to a firm in Roumania, and landed at Genoa in transit in order to secure cold storage at Genoa. Had to secure cold storage at Genoa to receive the fish and make arrangements for it being baled before being stored. The vessel left for Genoa, encountered a heavy gale after being out several days, was damaged, and had to return to Gibraltar for repairs. Two or three days after leaving Gibraltar the second time, encountered another hurricane and again returned to Gibraltar with a considerable quantity of water in her hold. After repairs she again left for Genoa and I think it took her 40 days to reach Genoa. Encountered calm, head winds and on arrival there a good deal of the fish in the bottom and of the sides was damaged. The result was that there were about six or seven hundred quintals of fish destroyed. The fish was landed and put in cold storage. There was no sale for it because Genoa was filled with Consorzio fish, and it remained there during the summer and the last of it was sold probably about August. A fair amount was received for the fish, but expenses of cold storage and handling it was equal to half the proceeds. The cargo fetched about $50,000, and $25,000 of that went for cold storage expenses for handling, etc. We have obtained steamer carrying 4000 only act prompt to enable make prompt loading Tracey states consider quality very satisfactory. Training Fish to Fish.

There is a curious fish called the remora, which is one of the laziest creatures in the world.

On the top of its head is a powerful sucker, by means of which it attaches itself to the underside of other fish, or even of boats. In this way it makes journeys of hundreds of miles without moving a fin.

The natives of many part of the world make use of this habit by training remoras to fish for them. A ring is fastened to the tail, to which is attached a strong cord.

When a native desires fish for dinner he picks the remora out of a tank and throws it over the side of the boat, letting it swim about at the end of the cord.

Presently a tug is felt, and the owner knows that the remora has fastened on to something big. He hauls in his line, and up comes the fish with its captive. So strong is this fish that it will bring in a giant turtle twenty times its own weight.
