Canadian Parliament Opened

Proposed Naval Scheme.—Acquiring of Branch Lines by I. C. R.— Amendments to the Bank Act Among Questions for Discussion.

Ottawa, Nov. 12.— The second session of the eleventh parliament of Canada was opened yesterday with much pomp by His Excellency Earl Grey. After the usual formalities, the new members were introduced. In the speech from the throne the governor-general congratulated Canada on its prosperity. The French treaty, the proposed naval scheme, the acquiring of branch lines by the I. C. R., the proposed amendments to the Bank Act, and other matters were referred to. These questions, it was announced, would all be laid before parliament at the present session. Yesterday's session was a brief one. R.

L. Eiden, leader of the opposition, gave notice of his intention to ask for a satisfactory explanation as to the delay in filling vacant judgeships in the West. Hon. Mr. Fielding announced that the government proposed to take no action at present in regard to the Payne tariff. It had been decided to wait, he said, until the government of the United States more clearly indicates its attitude toward Canada. G. W. Kyte, M. P., has given notice of a resolution to the effect that the maritime provinces should have preserved to them the representation in the house of commons which they at present enjoy.

Judge Pelton's Decision in Appeal Case

Judge Pelton filed his decision last week in the appeal in Chipman vs Durling, argued before him at the last sitting of the county court in Bridgetown, the 2nd inst. The plaintiff recovered a judgement against the defendant in the Supreme Court for $767.05 and brought the defendant up for examination under the "Collection Act" before a commissioner who made an order that the defendant pay the plaintiff fifteen dollars per month until the amount of the judgement was paid. The defendant appealed to the county court and his affairs were subjected to a very thorough and searching examination with a view of showing that he had bought cattle without having at the time any reasonable expectation of being able to pay for them. The learned judge reserved his decision until last week. He now decided that there was no fraud in the defendant's dealings and he discharged the order made by the commissioner for payment of fifteen dollars per month. Mr. O. S. Miller acted for Mr. Chipman and F. L. Milner for Mr. Durling. The decision of the county court judge is final.

GOOD COUGH MEDICINE FOR CHILDREN AND GROWN FOLKS TOO

"We could hardly do without Chamberlain's Cough Remedy," says Mrs. Flora Despain, of Floyd, Ky. "I found it to be so good for the croup and have used it for years. I can heartily recommend it for coughs, colds and croup in children and grown folks too." The above shows the implicit confidence that many mothers place in Chamberlain's Cough Remedy, a confidence based on many years' experience in the use of it. No one need hesitate to use this remedy for it contains no alcohol, opium or other narcotics and may be given to a child as confidently as to an adult. For sale by W. A. WARREN, BRIDGETOWN, A. E. A Cow's Account

Farmers do you keep records? It is doubtful if there is any one thing that will add more to the interests of farm labour, or make its usefulness more apparent in shorter time than one simple method of figuring. For instance, supposing that mixed farming is followed, an answer is desired to the query, which pays best, sheep, poultry, fruit, cows, steers or grain? It may be found after a year's record that the farm is best adapted for dairying. Then will naturally follow the investigation, which cow pays best? This phase of the question has not yet appeared to all owners of dairy herds, but is in truth at the very foundation of profitable dairying. Every farmer is interested in cutting out all unprofitable features of his business, he wants to produce plenty of good milk at the least cost, and to this end dairy records are indispensable. Why? Simply because they enable the watchful owner to detect those cows that give the most milk and fat in proportion to the feed consumed. Which cows will respond to a little extra grain? Which cow can I least afford to sell? Are any in my herd not paying? Will it pay me to get a good pure bred sire? The dairyman needs to know such points definitely, hence he must keep records of feed and milk. Forms are supplied free on application to the Dairy Dept. Agriculture Commissioner, Ottawa.

We thank Thee for this place in which we dwell, for the love that unites us; for the peace accorded us; for the hope with which we expect the morrow; for the health, the work, the food and the bright skies, that make our lives delightful; for our friends in all parts of the earth and our friendly helpers in this vale. Help us to repay in service one to another the debt of Thine unmerited benefits and mercies. Grant that we may be set free from the fear of vicissitude and death, may finish what remains of our course without dishonor to ourselves or hurt to others, and give at last rest to the weary. Robert Louis Stevenson.

Long and Honorable Stage Career of H. Price Webber

Augusta, Me., Oct. 2.— For the last third of a century, H. Price Webber, the actor-manager with his bushy locks and stage-like gait, his alert expression and ever-gentle manner has been a familiar figure on the streets of the capital city during the summer months. He is now spending his thirty-second consecutive season in Augusta.

Mr. Webber is said to be the oldest actor-manager in New England if not in the country. He personally looks after all the business and advertising of the company and concerns himself with the numerous details that in more pretentious organizations are executed by respective departments. His theatrical tours have pretty largely been through northern Maine and the Canadian provinces, where he is a great favorite.

Mr. Webber was born in Brixham, Devonshire, England, just 50 years ago. He was bound out as an apprentice to a printer at home, but not liking his position he fled to Halifax, where he entered the printing office of the late Hon. Jos. Howe who gave him the first job he ever had on the Nova Scotian. He next went to St. John, working successfully as compositor on the Globe, Telegraph, Journal and the Freeman.

After serving a short time at the case on the Moncton Times and Amherst Gazette he moved to Boston where he worked on several papers until the antimony in the type poisoned his eyes and compelled him to withdraw from the stage.

Having some success as an amateur performer he started in the show business, commencing at the Boston theatre under the management of J. B. Booth, being one of the supernumeraries on several occasions. He was afterwards agent for the Flora Myers company. Marietta Ravel, John Murray, and on the death of M. Leslie, in 1875, he was called to the management of the Boston Comedy company, with position he has retained ever since. Among the early actors at the old Boston theatre he recalls Mrs. J. B. Booth, one of the best in her day; Charles R. Thorne, Jr. Louis Aldrich, W. M. Leeman, W. H. Norton, Leslie Allen Rachel Noah, Shirley France and Helen Tracy. At one time Mr. Webber was a member of an amateur minstrel company in St. John.

Mr. Webber has for 38 years been connected with theatrical ventures, and for nearly a third of a century has personally filled some role on the stage. He has appeared in 513 different plays and farces has been in a total of 11,000 performances, and so evenly regulated has been his health that he has not been out of the bill a single night. As showing his remarkable memory, Mr. Webber recalled that once during his early stage efforts he played the juvenile role of a French actress in sixteen different plays in the short space of two weeks, taking a different character at every performance, and he named the plays and characters in regular order in which they were presented. The old-time plays in which he had almost frequently appeared for the last quarter of a century, and which seem to most delight the listeners are "British Born," "The Hidden Hand," "Ten Nights in a Barroom," "Fanchon," "Little Detective," and "Kathleen MacDonnell." Mr. Webber has been burned out twice, at Truro, in 1893, and Magog, Quebec, in 1901, losing each time all of his wardrobe and paraphernalia. These misfortunes which would have overwhelmed some individuals, only aroused the irrepressible Webber to further exertion. One of his most dramatic features has been his success in overcoming reverses.—Boston Post, Oct. 3rd.

NEARLY HANGED

While practicing gymnastics at Barrington Passage a few days ago Hartley Hopkins, the young man who won the one mile road race at the Shelburne exhibition, became entangled in a rope and was nearly hanged. When rescued he was unconscious and the two physicians who were called had difficulty in reviving him. He is doing reasonably well.

A Trade System

The retail merchants of Nova Scotia have formed a union for mutual protection. The objects of the union are to reduce the cost of purchasing goods by limiting the expensive travelling salesman system. These are matters that the retailers have largely in their own hands and the proposed reforms if carried out should largely reduce the cost of goods to the consumer. Many merchants lose in book debts what would in time amount to a surplus, and such losses would of course be avoided by the universal cash system. The cost of selling goods through travelling salesmen is perhaps an even more serious matter for the retailer, and the consumer. This amounts, even in the staples, to five per cent. or more while in many lines it is ten to fifteen per cent. The habit, for such it seems to be, of buying through travellers, has become so general that even city retailers wait to be called upon. The universality of the travelling salesman system is a result in the first instance of competition among wholesalers and manufacturers, but is a serious tax nevertheless, upon retailers and consumers. To break into it now is a serious undertaking that can only be accomplished by thorough organization and unity on the part of the retailers. The Nova Scotia experiment will be watched with interest by business men generally.—Moncton Times.

An Old Murder Recalled

(Shelburne Gazette)

Some of the older residents of this district will remember the Jenkins murder which occurred near Welsh town many years ago. It seems that a Mr. Jenkins and his boy were in town with their ox team. The boy started for home with the oxen and left the father behind. The old gentleman was naturally annoyed at this and remarked that he would settle with the boy when he got home. The next morning he reported to his neighbors that when he arrived home he found the oxen but not the boy. Search was made for him, and the body was found in a small brook. It was the general opinion that the old man killed the boy. Now after many years, his innocence has been established. A peddler dying in the United States recently confessed to the murder of eight boys, among them a lad near Shelburne, who was driving an ox team and whom he choked to death, and afterwards threw the body into a brook.

The Wealth of the Maritime Provinces

Look at the Maritime Provinces today, says the Montreal Star. A correspondent writes: "If people could see the immense crops of grains, hay roots and fruit that the farmers of the Maritime Provinces are gathering in this fall they would certainly have a new appreciation altogether of the great importance and still greater possibilities of that portion of Canada which lies east of the province of Quebec. The uninitiated are apt to think that the wheat crop of the Western Provinces is the only important factor in the wealth production of the Dominion, but this is fully equalled by the products of the Maritime Provinces."

The Star adds: It is pointed out that a crop of 100,000,000 bushels of wheat even at the price of $1 per bushel would only bring in $100,000,000, whereas last year the agricultural and industrial products of the Maritime Provinces brought in no less than $105,000,000. This season, despite the Nova Scotia colliery troubles, these figures according to present calculations will be considerably exceeded, principally owing to the great prosperity, which this year's crops are bringing to the farmers in the Eastern, in common with the Western Provinces. It will, therefore, readily be seen what this huge amount of money will mean to the Maritime Provinces. On the strength of its circulation, trade revival is to be noted in almost every portion of the Provinces by the sea. To this a provincial exchange adds: "The case is even better than the correspondent of the London paper and the Star represent, for the figures of production which they credit to the whole of the Maritime Provinces, are considerably less than those of the value of the products of Nova Scotia alone last year. This province produced in 1908 a total of more than One Hundred and Seven Million Dollars in products of farm, forest, sea, mine and factory."

Down With Profanity

Albany, Nov. 8.— William J. Kennedy, of Binghamton, N. Y., was a caller at the Press-Kickerbocker Express office. Mr. Kennedy is the prime mover of an organization the aim of which is to bring about a decrease in the use of profanity and swearing generally.

The plan is to form an endless chain against the use of profane language. Every person who joins the movement is expected to do all in his power to stop the use of foul language by others, and, of course, to refrain from it himself. By passing the idea along to his friends and acquaintances an endless chain is formed and much good can be accomplished by a conscientious endeavor on the part of the members.

The project is in its infancy, but the promoters are in earnest and a large number of people are joining the movement.

The idea occurred to Mr. Kennedy while on a visit to Schenectady while the New York State Verbon convention was being held there. Many of the delegates to the convention took up the movement, and while there has been no regularly organized society, the members made a verbal agreement to do their utmost to keep the plan alive.

ON GROWING OLD

To grow old is sad indeed, if what you want is to hold back the receding years, to keep your hair from growing white, your eyes from becoming dim, and the wrinkles from chiseling the r away across your brow. But if from all these vicissitudes to which life subjects you, you draw a bit of wisdom, of profit, of goodness, to grow old is to become free and large. One of the most beautiful things in the world is an old person who, made better by experience, more indulgent more charitable, loves mankind in spite of its wretchedness and adores youth without the slightest tendency to mimic it. Such a person is like an old Stradivari whose tone has become so sweet that its value is increased a hundredfold, and it seems almost to have a soul.— Charles signer.

Supposed Drowning Accident

Granville Man leaves Home in Boat on Thursday Morning and Not Returned.— River Searched for Body.

The gravest fears are entertained that a fatal accident has befallen Mr. Arthur Gesner, a young farmer of Granville who left his home on Thursday morning last, crossing the river to Round Hill where he intended to purchase cattle. On leaving home he told his wife he would return home that night and she sat up all night waiting for him but he has never returned and a party of Granville men are now searching the river for his body as it is thought he must have by some accident been drowned. It has transpired that he reached Round Hill in his boat on Thursday morning and saw two men with whom he talked regarding the purchase of a pair of oxen, but nothing farther can be learned of him except that he

$10,000 Robber is Caught

St. Louis, Mo., Nov. 14.— Andrea Flanders, who was wanted in Canada for robbery of a branch of the Bank of Nova Scotia at Rainy River of some $10,000, committed suicide this afternoon by blowing out his brains in a house at Newstead and Gillmore avenue, this city, where he had taken refuge after a running bout with four policemen of over two miles. Fifty shots were fired during the battle in which both Flanders and one of the officers were seriously injured. Chief of Detectives Smith had been searching for Flanders since last July when a banker reported to him that a stranger whose actions had aroused his suspicions had changed a $1,000 note issued by the Bank of Nova Scotia. Before Chief Smith could take action the stranger changed a second note for $1,000. Detectives got information that the man was living with a woman in Newstead and Gillmore avenues, where he was caught.

One Hundred Went Down With Ship

Singapore, Nov. 14.— The mail steamer La Seyne, of Messageries Maritime service, running between Java and Singapore and on her way to this port, was in company with this morning with steamer Onda, of the British India Line and sank within two minutes. Seven European passengers, including Baron and Baroness Beniczky, the Captain of La Seyne, five European officers and eighty-eight others, comprising native passengers and members of the crew, were drowned. NO TIME FOR PANIC.

The accident occurred about four o'clock in the morning in a thick haze. The vessels were steaming at a good speed, and the La Seyne was cut almost in halves.

There was no time for panic nor for any attempt on the part of the officers of the foundering steamer to get out the boats. The majority of those on board were caught in their berths and carried down with the vessel.

ATTEMPT TO KILL LORD AND LADY MINTO

Ahmedabad, British India, Nov. 14.— Lord Minto, the viceroy of India, and Lady Minto had a narrow escape yesterday from being killed by bombs. They were driving through one of the streets when, without warning, two bombs were thrown at their carriage. A Dragoon, who was riding alongside spurred forward with outstretched sabre intercepted the first bomb, hurling it some little distance away into a sand heap. The second bomb struck the viceroy's jemidar, a native, who was holding an umbrella over Lady Minto and fell harmlessly to the ground. Neither bomb exploded as the soft sand acted as a buffer. On examination they were found to contain picric acid.

CHAPTER XIX.

AT 7 o'clock the next morning Mr. Reawyk had a telephone call from his partner in New York. It was of such a serious nature as to cause him to dress hurriedly and leave without waiting for his breakfast, though Mrs. Reawyk followed him to the front veranda, begging him to wait for a cup of coffee.

"No, haven't time!" he snapped as he rushed into the waiting trap. "Go on, waiters. What's the matter? By George," he exclaimed, with a frown of annoyance, "I forgot about those jewels!" He fumbled in his pocketbook, produced a memorandum and handed it to his wife.

"Well," he said hurriedly, "this is the combination of the safe. Telephone to Michael, will you, and ask him to come over before he leaves for town? Get him to unlock the safe and bring the diamonds with him to my office. I'll put them in the safety deposit vault. There—haven't time to explain any more. My train is due in three minutes. Goodby. Now, Walters, let Molly have her head."

In a moment the trap had whirled through the open gates, and Mrs. Reawyk, marveling at what could take her lord away so suddenly, turned and went into the house, where she obediently telephoned her husband's message to her brother Michael.

Breakfast was late that morning, as two at least of the inmates of the house showed unmistakable signs of loss of sleep.

"How lovely!" exclaimed Miss Harriet as she glanced through a delicately tinted note, then turned to Richard. "Such a dear friend of mine is coming out this morning to stay over Sunday. I know you will be charmed to meet her."

"Delighted, I'm sure," drawled Richard indolently.

"Who is it, Harriet?" Mrs. Reawyk asked.

"Nellie Sempton."

Richard's indolence departed instantly. The name recalled several things.

"Er—beg pardon," he questioned, "is the lady rather tall and blond—about twenty-two or thereabout, with a rippling figure?"

"Why, yes!" cried Imogene delightedly. "Do you know her?"

"Well, no, not exactly," returned the smiling Texan. "She has—been pointed out to me." He screwed in his monocle and picked up a letter from Lord Croylaud's mail which lay beside his plate. "I'm awfully sorry that I can't be here when Miss Sempton arrives, but I find I shall have to go to New York this morning. Too bad, really."

"But you haven't even read your letters yet," chattered Miss Imogene.

"Can you tell from the outside that it's some horrid business?"

Richard nodded sadly and tapped a formidable official envelope.

"Too true," he murmured. "It's business and, as you aptly express it, horrid."

In one sense the Texan spoke the plain, unvarnished truth, for business of an unpleasant character called him in several directions. He had entirely forgotten until the mention of Miss Sempton's name recalled it to him that he had a smashed automobile on his hands, not to mention a prospective lawsuit from a justly irate farmer. Then, too, it would be most awkward to have the charming Miss Sempton extend her hand and say, with a most engaging smile: "How do you do, Mr. Peter Wilson? I knew you were not a chauffeur. How many other names do you happen to possess?" Yes, "horrid business" called him away from Irvington at once and bade fair to keep him away until Miss Sempton departed.

"Woolsey and I," he muttered to his inward, disgusted self, "must seek seclusion in some far-off, happier clime."

Breakfast was scarcely over when Mr. Corrigan was announced. He entered with a cheery good morning to every one, then went with Mrs. Reawyk to the library. Miss Schermerly strove with all her crafty wiles to lure Lord Croylaud away for a morning walk and a chat on the superior advantages of being a nobleman, but the nobleman in question met guide with guide and pleaded an excuse of having to catch the next train. He said he would walk to the station, especially as on foot he might dodge Miss Sempton if she happened to come earlier than expected, and started across the lawn.

On the lawn he lingered in the hope of seeing Miss Harriet once more, for he did not wish to leave Irvington without confessing her deception and declaring himself her humble worshiper from the Lone Star State. He had almost given up hope when he spied her coming from the house toward him. She, too, had been dodging difficulties in the path of a meeting with him alone. And now as she tripped across the grass he saw in her eyes a light, on her cheeks a color which caused his heart to bound, while the warm blood tingled through his veins.

"Lord Croylaud," she said, "before you go I want to thank you for what you did for Imogene and me last night. It was splendid of you to take the blame, and—"

"But how do you know what I did?" he asked her hesitatingly.

"Because," she said, "I saw you didn't go upstairs, and you told us we stayed in the ward room and—without lunch, which made her irresistible in the Texan's kind eyes."

"Oh!" he laughed. "I see."

Miss Harriet did not join in his merriment. She looked up earnestly and asked:

"Why didn't you tell the whole truth and explain to her?"

"I'm to tell her," he echoed, mistaking her meaning. "Good! Lord! How could I?"

Miss Harriet smiled, smiling happily.

"I think I understand. You wanted to save her?"

"Of course," answered Richard, relieved again. "Really, these sudden shocks almost broke his nerve."

"Now, tell me one thing more," continued the girl. "You are not an Englishman. I suspected it before, and last night I knew it. Who are you?"

Richard gasped and took a backward step, while the hot blood mounted to his cheeks and tinged the dusky bronze.

"Who am I?" he repeated earnestly. "A man who loves you with his heart and mind and soul—a man who has deceived you only that he might be near you, to touch your hand and look into your eyes—a man who has followed you from Tex."

"Harriet, Harriet!" came a cry of shrill distress from the front veranda.

"Harriet, the diamonds! They are gone!"

Mrs. Reawyk clung limp and disheveled to the railing, while Mr. Corrigan strove to hold her up and at the same time murmur words of comfort in her ear, a task in which he was greatly handicapped by shortness of stature and disproportionate rotundity.

"Gone?" cried Harriet, whitening to the lips. "Gone where?"

Mrs. Reawyk immediately forgot family traditions etiquette and everything else beside the crushing loss and her rising Irish blood.

"Don't be a fool!" she shrielled. "How do I know where they've gone? Do you think I've got 'em in my pocket?"

With this dramatic fling Mrs. Reawyk promptly fainted, sinking down into a huddled heap and dragging little Uncle Michael with her.

The household was already in an uproar. With Richard's assistance Mrs. Reawyk was laid upon a sofa, and smelling salts were administered in such generous quantities that she returned to consciousness with gasping protests and grists of rage. Miss Schermerly offered consolation in the form of various questions and was so offended by the answers she received that she retired to her room in righteous indignation. Miss Chittenden crept close to the edge of the circle of excitement and listened as one in a frozen trance. Both she and Miss Harriet, to say nothing of Richard himself, had worked out a solution of the problem by the simple process of deduction, and three hearts sank to the utmost depths of despondency. Uncle Michael added to the depression by a cheerful statement which gave at least a clew to the robbery.

"I'm not a bit surprised at this," he said, "and it's all Jacob's fault for being so puffed up and bristled headed," which was truly an Irish mixture of adjectives.

"What do you mean?" demanded Mrs. Reawyk, instantly taking the sting of her abused husband.

"Why, simply this," said the little lawyer coolly. "There was a cock-eyed vagrant nosing around the place several days ago, and I warned Jacob to place a detective in the house while the diamonds were in this toy safe of his, but he wouldn't do it."

Harriet flushed and her lips. Imogene gave evidence of approaching hysteria, and Richard, who had been ice cold shivers from the dawn of his spine. The Texan's "cock-eyed vagrant" was a man who had evidently helped her in her contents of the safe. He had evidently engaged her in the billiard room. It was simple, so pitifully simple, that the diamonds were gone, and so was Woolsey.

Richard's tripping back was now out of the question. He must stay and face the music, though the price he must pay the fiddler was a question he dared not dwell upon. He could only hope Miss Sempton would not appear until it was all over. He was now burning to get hold of Harriet and confess everything and then to shoot out the truth from the very housetop.

While not personally responsible for the loss of the diamonds, the Texan was morally responsible in view of the fact that he had allowed Lord Croylaud's valet to remain under the Reawyk roof when he knew in advance that the man was not a character to be trusted. The real master had wanted him discharged for theft, and while it never dawned on Richard that Bills might flinch from any one except his master—the law's prey of many of his kind—still it was his duty to have discharged the rascal without delay. Truly, the humor of the situation was in much the same condition as the missing gems.

With a very solemn face, but with a good deal of inward pleasure, Uncle Michael telephoned to Mr. Reawyk. He had given sound advice, and Jacob had decided him, hooted at him, laughed him to scorn and had finally suggested that he look under the bed for a burglar. Mr. Corrigan by all Christian precepts should have been sorry for his brother-in-law, but the plump little Irishman was not. On the contrary, he was glad with a gladness which filled him with delicious chuckles when no one was looking. He was even with Jacob at last! He meant to be more even before the day was out.

"Hello!" he called over the wire.

"Yes, I want Mr. Reawyk! Hello, Jake! Good morning! Wha—yes, Corrigan! Me! Don't you know my musical voice? Yes, yes, of course I know you are busy! But, say! I've got something interesting to tell you. You remember that fellow with a cast in his eye—the one you laughed at me about? What? That's it—the tramp. Here Mr. Corrigan covered the mouthpiece with his hand and released the merriment that was struggling with his insides. Then he took up his joyful narrative. "I looked under the bed for him last night, but he wasn't 'ead for anything. Go back to him. Bills," says I, "an' tell 'im 'ow it 'appened. 'E's a kindly disposed gentleman with a sweet, forgivin' nature an' won't 'old it agin' you that you was sneered of 'is terrible pistol, Mr. Williams, sir."

"Him?" sniffed Richard. "What was your other reason for coming back?"

The servant shifted uneasily, turned his hat round and round in his nervous hands and apparently decided to keep back nothing.

"Yes, sir," he began again; "I 'ad another reason. I fancied if I come back your lordship—er—I mean Mr. Williams—no, beg pardon—Mr. Williams, sir—that you would pay me what you promised me, which is better than starvin' to death in Nook York without no character, meanin' no offense an' awksin' you not to be angrier than you can 'elp. I sleep restless, Mr. Williams, sir. Then I come back. That's all."

"Is it?" asked Richard dryly.

"Yes, sir," answered the valet, with profound solemnity, "as Gawd is lookin' at us both, me a-standin' an' you a-sittin' down, m' lord."

The Texan arose and took several reflective turns up and down the room. Then he paused and stood with his hands in his pockets and his legs apart.

"Bills," he said, "I'm going to pay you a compliment. Without an exception you're the biggest liar between New York and San Antonio. It's a long stretch, my friend, and I'm not a flatterer."

Bills stared at him sadly, reproachfully, but made no answer. Richard continued:

"Of course I didn't see you when you left—that is, with my own eyes—and I didn't see you when you got off the train awhile ago, but just the same I have a chain of evidence which I trust will refresh your memory. When I employed you, you came to me with the following recommendations: 'Discharge him at once. He's a thief. The last time it was $25.00, and my jeweled cigar cutter. His friend, Mr. Drake of Scotland Yard, is also inquiring for his address.' So much for your character as endorsed by your former master. If I hadn't been, as you aptly express it, 'a bloomin' ass,' I would have spared myself the mortification of stating the fact. I didn't discharge you and must take the consequences. But let us proceed. Next you tried to blackmail me for the purpose of extorting $300 from one who had treated you squarely. Item three: Both Miss Reawyk and I saw you in whispered conversation with a—well, a cock-eyed tramp who was going out of the front gate. By the way, what was it you said to him?"

Bills looked uncomfortable.

"'E asked me for money, sir, an' I told 'im to go about 'is business, sir."

Richard wheeled upon the man sharply.

"You lie, Bills! You told me at the time that he asked directions to the station."

"Yes, sir," answered Woolsey, flushing to his ears. "I did lie the first time, sir. I—I didn't want to seem uncharitable inclined."

The Texan sneered and turned upon his heel. After another contemplative turn up and down he once more faced the culprit.

"Look here, Bills; I haven't finished with you yet. I have only told you the lightest part of it. After falling to gouge money out of me you hold conversation with a suspicious character and acknowledge that you told a lie concerning it. Next you disappear, claiming to go to New York at a time when no trains were running. For the present we'll accept the story of the freight, but can look that part up later. In the meantime, while you are in New York, of course your cock-eyed friend drops in on us sometime at 3 o'clock by the morning. He—er—watches in the billiard room while a pal slips through the open window of the library, opens Mr. Reawyk's safe and drifts away with a cool hundred and fifty thousand dollars' worth of diamonds. Question is, Who was the pal? I don't happen to be either a detective or a fool, but I have my own ideas. Mr. Reawyk is coming out here presently with a couple of what you call 'bobbies.' I believe I shall tell him everything about both of us—and never did the humiliation of his position so enter into Richard's soul as when he had to class himself with that miserable travesty of mankind—"but I have an idea that you will shortly represent an expression used both here and in England, which is to say, 'Collected Bills.' Am I clear?"

CURED OF LAME BACK WHEN 84 YEARS OLD

Gin Pills did it.

Anyone, seeing Mr. Samuel Martin, of Stratroy, Ont., for the first time, would guess his age at about 60 years, instead of eighty-four. He is as spry on his feet as a cat and is the picture of health.

It is hard to believe that Mr. Martin passed twenty years of his life in misery, suffering tortures from Lame Back. He tried nearly all the advertised remedies and household recipes, but received no benefit from any of them.

Some months ago, seeing Gin Pills advertised, Mr. Martin purchased a box from W. H. Stepler, a popular druggist of Stratroy. The relief, which Mr. Martin experienced after he had taken one box, was so great that he knew he had found the right remedy at last. He bought and used two more boxes of Gin Pills, which completed the cure.

Age is no barrier to Gin Pills. They never fail to cure Lame Back and Stiff Limbs, because they cure the Kidneys and Bladder, which are the cause of the troubles. Gin Pills also act on the Liver and assist in curing Biliousness. 50c a box, 6 for $2.50, at all dealers. Free sample from National Drug & Chemical Co. Dept. NS Toronto. 10

THE MAN IN THE STAGE

A good many years ago, long before skyscrapers and rapid transit were thought of and New York was just a big growing town, they used to tell a story that was chastely enough to curdle the blood of the most skeptical and to keep people of nervous temperament awake at nights.

The tale went that of a summer night a husband and wife returning home from the theatre, entered a Fifth Avenue stage far down town and for many blocks were the only occupants. Alittle above Fourteenth St however, the stage came to an abrupt stop, the door was opened, and three young men entered. One of the three had evidently been drinking heavily, for his companions were obliged to help him to his seat. The door was closed behind them, and the stage continued its journey northward.

About ten blocks farther on one of the young men rose and, bidding his friends good-night, stopped the stage and alighted. A few minutes later the second of the three said, "Well, good-night, Dick," pulled the strap, stepped to the sidewalk and walked off through one of the side streets. There remained in the stage only the husband and wife and the young man who was obviously under the influence of liquor and who sat in a crouching attitude in a corner of the stage under the dim flickering lamp.

After a time the husband noticed that the young man's head seemed to be drooping as if in sleep, and fearing that he might be borne beyond his destination, he rose, tapped him on the shoulder and called attention to the number of the street they had just passed. There was no response, and the husband repeated his words, leaning over as he did so. Then he suddenly straightened up, turned to his wife and said quickly, "We will get out here."

She began to protest, but he simply repeated the words, pulled the strap and helped her to alight. As they stood under the corner lamp post she turned questioningly and asked him why he insisted on their getting out of the bus so far below their destination.

"Because," he replied, "that young man's throat is cut from ear to ear."

THE REAL THING

"Rudyard Kipling, when he dined with me," said a literary Chicagoan, "told me about Simla."

"It seems that Simla is up in the India—and the ladies go there in the mountains—the hills as they say in hot weather to escape the heat of the low country."

"Well, Kipling said that one lovely cool morning at Simla, he was presented to a grass widow. They call those ladies grass widows whose husbands are detained by work in the hot cities of the plains."

"She was awfully pretty and charming and as they talked together in the pleasant coolness, Kipling said:

"I suppose you can't help thinking of your poor husband kneeling down below?"

"The lady gave him a strange look and he learned afterwards that she was a real widow."

THE WATER PIPE

He was six years old and had never gazed into the mystic lens of a microscope, as the New York Times tells the story. Several slides containing animalcula had been displayed to his astonished vision. He was too amazed to make any comment until he came to one slide that seemed more wriggly than any of the others. It was merely a drop of water. The little fellow gazed at it a long time with all its nimble particles of animal life, and finally exclaimed to his mother.

"O mamma, now I know what it is that bites you when you drink soda-water!"

SMITH VS. STRATHCONA

A Toronto man was driving through one of the back parishes of Simcoe County. Presently his companion spoke of a family named Strathcona.

"These people have a peculiar name," the visitor observed. "Strathcona, where did they get it?"

"Oh it wasn't always Strathcona," said the driver. "they used to call themselves Smith, but Lord Strathcona, you know, his name was Smith so when he changed his name, they changed theirs."

THE HAPPY MEDIUM

Ten-year old Thomas had been away for the holidays and on his return had to submit to fatherly interrogations.

"I hope you were a good boy, Tommie," remarked his paternal parent.

"Pretty good," was the cheerful response.

"Well, I hope you weren't a really bad bad boy."

"Not very," said Thomas thoughtfully. "I was just comfortable."

COULDN'T FORGET IT

Saturday night some miscreant lugged off a whole cord of my wood, and somehow I can't forget about it, declared Silas.

"Have you tried to forget it?" inquired his friend.

"Yes, Sunday morning I went to church, hoping I could get it off my mind, and before I had been there five minutes the choir started in singing 'The Lost Chord,' so I rot out.—Judge.

Mr. G. L. Garrow of 116 Millicent St., Toronto, writes under date of September 13, 1909, "One year ago this spring I contracted a severe cold in the chest, which developed into Bronchitis. I took three kinds of medicine and found no improvement. A friend of mine advised me to try PSYCHINE, and in three days I felt like a new man again. I desire to let others know what a valuable cure you have in PSYCHINE for it cured me where all other medicines had failed. I am more than thankful to be well again, and for the sake of others who may be ill, you may publish this testimonial."

VANITY'S VISIONS.

Search Among Your Heirlooms For Chantilly Shawls. Chantilly shawls have been pulled out of family treasure chests this season since one French house has set the fashion of using them cleverly for overdraperies. Extremely smart are the new stiff collars showing simple embroidered patterns on variously corded white materials. The encrass has suddenly become a fitted garment of silk elastic, smooth as a glove from neck to wrist and hip. Double fold silk hosiery comes in a creamy background sprinkled with gray disks the size of a pea. There are rumors that velvet will be a favorite material for winter, which means that both velveteen and corduroy will be in high favor. But it is certain that in street suits chevrons of mixed colorings and rougher fabrics will be used, while for dressy costumes the ever liked broadcloth remains popular.

For early fall tailored suits in heavy silks and a combination of silk and cloth are to be very smart.

Shepherd's checks are to be much worn this fall, and here is a gown of the material trimmed with velvet ribbon. It is in shirt waist style and very smart. The blouse is double breasted, closing with a single revers.

FADS AND FANCIES.

Strange Names For New Millinery. Veils With Eyeholes the Latest.

Black satin gowns, replicas of those worn by the aristocrats during the French revolution as an expression of their feelings, have been revived by lovers of the unusual in dress. The skirts are slightly trained, and the line of the corsage is relieved by a soft scarf of black lace. The soberness of this toilet is relieved by ornaments of diamonds or pearls.

One small hat that French modistes are turning out just now is called the casseroles by those who endow every fashion with a name. It is just the shape of a casserole, sits well down on the head, is slightly trimmed and is nearly covered with the marvelous new veil, which has diamond shaped openings for the eyes.

The sultran's turban promises to be popular in millinery shapes. It is of ottoman silk and is trimmed with aigrets and a jewel brooch.

In millinery who can tell what venturesome thing will boldly jump out? The celebrated houses in Paris are insisting upon small hats for everyday hours, and it is hoped they will succeed in their struggles.

Here are some more of the new sleeve designs that have the upper cap portion. The sleeves can be made in all lengths and are very smart.

SNAPSHOTS OF DRESS.

What the Schoolgirl Will Wear—Hats Made of Dress Material.

It is likely that the coat length for the fall will be that of the knee line. School coats for girls are designed on simple lines and are very smart when developed in shepherd's plaid, with cuffs and collars of red or green cloth trimmed with gilt buttons.

Hats made of the material of the dress are to be in high favor. They are simply trimmed with immense bows of ribbon. Moire hats and those of satin are widely seen.

Whether or not the leg o' mutton sleeve will return is not so serious a problem as the skirt question. There is, though, every evidence that this sleeve will prevail, but not in its old fashioned glory. There is no doubt that the manche that is gaining in popularity is the one that loosens up at the elbow. It is snug below, fitting like a glove to the wrist, and is not cut off until the curve of the hand is covered.

The blouse illustrated is a very useful model. It is good style when carried out in both wash and woolen fabrics and in silk is particularly attractive. The wide revers over the shoulders are especially becoming, and the sleeves are decidedly new.

FASHION'S DOINGS.

Vagaries of the Fashionable Sash Drapery—Natty Suits For Boys.

While some women have tried the effect of sashes of the gown material with thin stuffs, few have thought of using cloth in this manner. The result, however, is very good. If the cloth is not too thick, the sash falls gracefully with the drapery scheme and does not strike a jarring note, as is sometimes the case with a sash of satin or other material on a cloth costume.

For small boys there are very natty little suits of bengaline and others made on the Buster Brown order for grossy wear. Most of them are in white, but occasionally a color is seen such as yellow or blue, and on some of the suits there is a roll collar.

The soldier suit can always be trusted to make the boy happy. As illustrated, the suit is of real military blue cloth, with trimmings of red, and the rough rider suit is made of khaki, with brown trimmings.

WEDNESDAY, November, 17, 1909

The St. John Times had an interview a few days ago with a young man who was in search of work. He was under twenty years of age, had received a fair amount of education in the public schools, was sober and steady, but was in search of work.
He had not learned a trade nor studied for a profession, and could only do the ordinary work of a day-laborer.

"The mistake I made," said this young man, "was that I left school and went to work around a mill, and did not learn any trade. I would like to learn one now, for I am still young enough, but I must earn enough to pay my way."

There are hundreds of men in this country and thousands in this country who are in the same position, says the Times. They have no trade or profession, and if they have not secured steady work, and do not practise wisdom and economy in their expenditure, their outlook in life is far from being bright—even in this land of opportunity. In other and more populous countries this problem has forced itself upon the people and the governments, until they have developed an educational system which gives the youth practical training for life work.

The Monitor has frequently called attention to the growing disinclination among the youth of the day to apply themselves to the learning of a trade or any practical occupation which requires training to complete knowledge and skill in a particular line. It appears to be the idea of the young person leaving school that he or she should find some opening or position waiting for them which should pay them good wages without preliminary training. This is a fellacy which they cannot fail to discover in course of time. Unskilled labor never received the remuneration that is awarded the trained mind and hand. The man with a good trade such as carpentry, masonry, printing, iron working, tailoring, etc., may travel the world over and never be at loss for a position provided a fair degree of skill has been attained, while the untrained person is always at a loss and disadvantage in his relation to the business world.

APPLE SHIPMENTS

An exchange says:—The shipments of apples this season to European markets started slowly and for some time was much lower than last year.
But the week ending October 30th was a record breaker showing a total of 138,685 bbls., shipped. Of this Liverpool took 35,000 bbls., over 20,000 being from Montreal; London received 41,000 nearly all being from Halifax and Annapolis; Glasgow 27-400 all being sent from Montreal with 3200 from New York.

A feature of the week's shipments was the scattering to various European ports of a large quantity of the apple shipments. Besides the ports named above, Manchester, Bristol, Hull and Aberdeen all had large shipments from Montreal and the same port nearly a thousand barrels to South Africa, New York sent 10788 bbls to Hamburg and 4470 to Baltic ports. It is this German market that Nova Scotia or any part of Canada is now denied a market by the recent surtax. Boston out of a shipment of 13,000 barrels sent 3400 to Rio Janeiro.

It is thus seen that new markets for fruit export are opening up in different parts of the world which will help in our increasing shipments for future years.

NEWCOMBE—McLANNAN

The Baptist church at North Brookfield was the scene of a very pretty wedding on Wednesday, Nov. 10th, when Miss Alfaretta McLannan, youngest daughter of James McLannan, of that place, was united in marriage to Mr. Max D. Newcomb, of Bridgetown.

The church was handsomely decorated with potted plants and cut flowers and the day was one of the few perfect days sent by an indulgent Providence for just such occasions, a sort of left over summerday seasoned at either ends with a touch of 'fast.'

Promptly at three o'clock the bride entered on the arm of her father, to the strains of the Wedding March, and took her place beside the waiting groom. She was gowned in pure white with bridal veil, and carried a white bouquet. While all brides are beautiful this one was certainly a radiant vision. The ceremony was performed by Rev. Mr. Wilson, and Miss Doris Harlow gracefully presided at the organ.

Immediately after the ceremony refreshments were served at the home of the bride's father and soon amid showers of rice, the happy couple were driven in a carriage, appropriately decorated, to New Germany station where they took the train for Bridgetown, their future home.

Mr. Newcomb is one of the enterprising and progressive young farmers of the valley, and his wife is well known there as a successful and popular school teacher. Both bride and groom have many friends who will extend heartiest congratulations and best wishes.—COM.

EISENHAUR—FOSTER

One of the prettiest home wedding 9th, at the home of Mr. and Mrs. A.
J. Foster, 114 Bowler street, Lynn, Mass., when their daughter, Miss Abbie Blake Foster, formerly of Hampton, N. S., became the bride of Laurie C. Eisenhaur, of New Germany, N. S. The ceremony was performed in the parlor, which was prettily decorated with ferns, flowers, potted plants and autumn leaves, while from the ceiling hung streamers of white in graceful festoons. The officiating clergyman was Rev. Leon Miles, pastor of the first Baptist church of Peabody, who tied the nuptial knot in the presence of the immediate family at 9.30 o'clock, the double ring service being used. The bride and groom were unattended.

The bride wore a handsome gown of white batiste with lace and insertion, with a veil caught up with white ribbons, and carried a bridal bouquet of the same flowers.
The flower girl was Lena, a niece of the bride.
As the bride and groom took their places the wedding march, the bridal chorus from Lohengrin, was rendered by Leroy Dixon.

Following the ceremony a wedding lunch was served by Mrs. Lizzie Dixon, Mrs. Addie Wilson, Mrs. Mary Dixon and Miss Minnie Bent. The guest book was in charge of Miss Effie Bent.

There were many beautiful and useful wedding gifts, among them a silver serving set from the packing room of Allen, Foster, Willett Co., where the bride was employed as forelady in one of the departments, and a gold lined fruit dish from members of the firm, foreman and office girls.

The happy couple left Boston on the one o'clock boat for New Germany, Lunenburg Co., N. S., where they will make their home. The bride wore a handsome travelling dress of a mode shade, with hat to match, with ostrich feathers. Upon their departure they were showered with confetti. Mr. and Mrs. Eisenhaur have a host of friends who wish them many years of happy wedded life.

The Annapolis County Temperance

A METHODIST MINISTER RECOM-MENDS CHAMBERLAIN'S COL-IC, CHOLERA AND DIAR-RHOEA REMEDY

"I have used Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy for several years for diarrhoea. I consider it the best remedy I have ever tried for that trouble. I bought a bottle of it a few days ago from our druggist, Mr. R. R. Brooks. I shall ever be glad to speak a good word in its praise when I have the opportunity."—Rev. J. D. Knapp, Pastor M.

HIGH NOON

High noon of life today!
The shadows hide away
Beneath my firm-set feet.
Where moon and evening meet.
What toil, what childish fears,
What laughter and what tears,
While Phoebus climbed the height
Unto noontide bright.
Upon the path I took,
I face the east and look
A pathway rough and steep;
By chasms wide and deep;
O'er hills whose sunny cheer Brought heaven very near—
And over hill and fen
I'd take that path again.
I turn and face the west,
Which path will be the best?
So many, and a haze
Is over all the ways.
But far beyond the lea
The journey's end I see,
I pause and look a while,
Then start with fearless smile.
—John L. Shroy.

PARENTS SHOULD GO TO JAIL

Judge Leet, of Montreal, gave parole for the conduct of a training of their children. The lady, Pink Lomas, were up for trial for breaking into the house of Mrs. Allen, and stealing a quantity of jewellery.
The boys have had records, having been before the courts two or three times before.

His honor asked the mothers of the boys, who were present, how they could account for their sons coming, time after time, before the courts.
After hearing their excuses, he said he thought that in many cases in which boys under sixteen years of age appeared in court, the parents should be sent to prison, instead of the children. Fathers and mothers should know where their boys and girls were and what they were doing after night.
The case was taken on deliberate.

My son bought your EMPIRE LINIMENT
and a few bottles made a complete cure, so that I was able to put him back to work in the woods.
I will cheerfully furnish any further information to anyone and will say without hesitation your liniment cannot be excelled.
Yours very truly,
J. F. TRASK.

PHOTOGRAPHS

"Yes, I would like one of your photos ever so much. I haven't one of my own to

Now, be honest, how many people have you told this old, old story! And how long ago were some of these promises made? Count them up carefully and come in and get enough photos to square yourself.

Mr. and Mrs. H. E. Balcom, Paradise, will be "at home" to their friends Wednesday and Thursday, Nov. 24th and 25th, afternoons and evenings.

The little boy who was injured last week by the explosion of gun-powder was the son of Mr. Wheelock Marshall not Mr. A. J. Wheelock as reported last week.

The Dominion Atlantic Railway have 800,000 bbls. of apples to transport over their line from the Annapolis Valley to Halifax.—says the Herald.

Many of our readers will be interested in the article contributed by Mrs. Sarah J. H. Healy, published in this issue, under the heading "A Ramble on the Grounds of Old Port Royal."

Mr. C. M. Hoyt returned on Monday from a moose hunting trip, says the Outlook. He saw four bears and several moose, but the bulls and cows were together so he dare not shoot for fear of violating the law forbidding the shooting of cow moose.

The trial for the conspiracy on the part of the coal companies to increase the price of coal to consumers is still occupying the courts in Halifax. The proceedings are too long drawn out for general publication but the public have a deep interest in the facts which the trial is expected to substantiate.

Watch for the date of the Tennis Concert in next week's issue for you want to be sure and be there, as it will be something quite different from anything you have seen staged here before, and you will thoroughly enjoy the evening. All taking part are giving it every attention to make it a great success.

Annapolis and Bear River news are rarely omitted from the columns of the Monitor-Sentinel, but their absence will be noted in this issue. Our reporters in these towns are generally so punctual that we are inclined to blame the mails which have been responsible on one or two former occasions.

A humorous remonstrance is received from one of the Monitor-Sentinel's staff correspondents complaining of the liberty taken in "blue-pencilling" the writer's item. We know his objection cannot be serious, otherwise we should inform him that we want no correspondence that is not subject to editorial revision.

The death of Mrs. Edward Ruzles occurred at the home of her daughter, Mrs. W. S. Ryder, Maplewood, Mass., on Saturday last. Mrs. Ruzles left Clements, Annapolis Co., for Boston a few weeks ago, hoping her health would be benefited by the change. She leaves besides her husband, two sons and three daughters.

Mr. Webber and his company, of which his esteemed wife, under the stage name of Edwina Gray is the leading lady, completed here last week a three nights engagement, introducing three new plays which were well staged and played before large and appreciative audiences. Mr. Webber has been coming to Bridgetown for thirty years and his popularity increases with every visit.

In the police court on Wednesday, Stipendiary Pelton gave decision in the case of a man charged with having a portion of the carcass of a calf moose in his possession, says the Yarmouth Times, and fined him $25 and costs. Another man was tried on a charge of having killed the moose in question, was convicted and fined $50 and costs. Two other charges in connection with the affair were withdrawn by the prosecution.

At the Brewer's and Wine Merchants Exhibition recently held in London, England, the Annapolis Valley Cyder Co., Ltd., were awarded first prize in the colonial and foreign class for their bottled cyder. This class is open to the whole world (Great Britain excepted). The exhibition is held annually and last year the first prize was awarded to an Australian firm. It should be understood that the Annapolis Valley Cyder is non-alcoholic and was not competing with drinks of the alcoholic class. It is super-refined and in every way superior and its award of first prize was well merited.

The water rate taxes are being sharply collected, and by order of the Council, where the amount of the tax is not forthcoming the water is to be turned off. We understand a number of the factories have refused to pay the advanced rate of taxation charged to them.

Policeman Eggleshaw has been requested to accept his former position as chief of police of North Bay Ont. We understand that Mr. Eggleshaw has expressed his intention of resigning to accept this or another position open to him. Our citizens agree that Bridgetown has never had order more efficiently enforced than under Mr. Eggleshaw's regime, and we believe we express the opinion of our citizens in general in hoping Mr. Eggleshaw may be retained here.

The many friends of Louis A. Bath will be pleased to learn of his marriage which occurred at Portland, Oregon, to Miss Nettie Lehberg. The ceremony which occurred on Aug. 19th, was performed by Rev. Thomas Holmes Walker, pastor of Calvary Presbyterian church and the wedding was held in the new and pretty home of the bride and groom, 255 Cherry street. Mr. Bath, who is the younger son of the late Abner Bath, has a large circle of relatives and acquaintances here who are pleased to learn of the happy event. Mr. Bath is one of the many Monitor boys who have made a marked success in their chosen occupation, and who are scattered from ocean to ocean, and is now occupying a responsible position with Bushing & Co. who have the largest printing establishment in the West. The Monitor-Sentinel's cordial good wishes and congratulations are extended to Mr. Bath and his bride.

Dalhousie Teacher Married

At Dalhousie, on Friday evening, October 22nd, at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Freeman Shipp, there occurred an interesting event, when Miss Grace Darling Brooks was united in marriage to Mr. Joseph Devany, Rev. J. Balcom of Paradise officiating.

The bride is one of Centrelea's most popular young ladies and is well-known in Bridgetown and vicinity. She has been teaching in the Dalhousie school and the event was quite a surprise to her friends, who will extend best wishes to bride and groom.

I. C. R. PICTURES PROVE POPULAR.

New York Crowds See Them With Election Returns

At one of the principal Bulletin Stations of the New York Herald on election night, the waiting thousands on the street, eager for the election returns, had also an opportunity of viewing some very beautiful pictures of the scenery along the line of the Intercolonial Railway. It is the custom at the Bulletin displays to entertain the crowd, during the period between bulletins, with a series of pleasing and instructive views, the New York Herald management never permitting anything in the nature of low comedy, or any direct advertising. On this occasion the operator decided upon the Intercolonial pictures which had been gladly furnished at his request. Twenty-four views were flashed upon the screens, these being selected from every portion of the line. In a letter thanking the I. C. R. authorities for the use of the slides, the operator observes that the pictures proved most interesting, and were viewed by no less than 50,000 people.

Several noted lecturers will use Intercolonial Railway views to illustrate their lectures this winter, and the attractions of the "People's Railway" will thus be displayed to audiences of a refined and cultured class.

PROPERTY LOSS WILL

TOTAL $1,250,000

Kingston Ja. Nov. 15th.—while it is yet impossible to give an accurate statement of the loss of life and damage to property as the result of the storm, it is variously estimated that about fifty persons were drowned by the floods, and that the damage will not less than $1,150,000.

The banana plantations in the north and northeast portions of the island have been badly hit by the storm. Thousands of acres of trees have been levelled and the fruit trade is at a standstill for it is impossible to get the bananas to the ports for shipment.

Mr. and Mrs. Max Newcomb will be "at home" to their friends on the afternoons and evenings of Nov. 23rd, 24th and 25th.

Mr. and Mrs. Shoemaker, of Smith Cove, have closed their home there and gone to Boston, where they will reside during the winter, returning about May 1st.

Mrs. Emma E. Harris, wife of Rev. V. B. Harris, of Bedford, and daughter of the late Hon. W. B. Troop, of Granville, visited her mother and sister and her brother's family in Granville recently. Returning home she paid a visit to her aunt, Mrs. H. M. Phinney and other relatives in the vicinity.

Mr. Justice Longley Before Indian Club

The members of the Canadian Club and their friends enjoyed a rare treat and spent a very profitable time at Academy Hall last evening, on the occasion of a lecture by His Lordship, Mr. Justice Longley of Halifax, on "Some Men Who Have Made Canada." A special invitation had been issued to the advanced students of the Normal and Agricultural Colleges these and the Club members and friends crowded the Hall to overflowing.
M. Cumming, B. A., Principal of the Nova Scotia Agricultural College, President of the Canadian Club, was in the chair, and a number of the members of the Executive Council were with him on the platform.
The speaker, as he always does when speaking in Truro, HELD THE UNDIVIDED ATTENTION of the large audience, made up as it was of many varieties of taste and temperament from start to finish. His manner was as usual, polished, genteel and attractive and his language choice, clear and expressive. With one exception the discourse was void of the Judge's usual witty and frequent illustrations and stories, but was still one characteristic in most every other respect, and especially in that it was full of keen observation, consecutive thought, and with things bearing closely upon human nature.
The Judge in opening referred with but a passing remark, to such men as Baldwin of Ontario, and Pabineau, of Quebec, whose names only were REMEMBRANCES OF REVOLUTION AND BLOODSHED and went right on to the four men, who perhaps stand out in the public eye more than all the others who have a place in the history of the making of Canada, viz. George Brown, Sir John A. McDonald, Sir Charles Tupper and Hon. Joseph Howe. For an hour and a half the Judge told of the characters, acts and places held in public life by these men, and went fully into an analysis and comparison of the men, which was well worth while.
George Brown received least attention of all, being set forth as a man strong in his own opinions, unsuccessful in drawing other men and supporters around him, but attributed to him the launching of the idea of bringing into the Canadian Federation the great Canadian North-West, previously held by the Hudson Bay Company. He stood for very big ideal in government, but was outwitted on every hand by his contemporary and came on the field at about the same time—Sir John A. McDonald. SIR JOHN A. McDONALD WAS GIVEN FIRST PLACE by the speaker among those who had got a place in the history of Canada. He was Canada's first Prime Minister and with the exception of a brief period of four years, was Prime Minister until he died in 1891. He was not particularly intellectual, not a fadist; nor a hero. He was endowed with eminent governing power, accurate judgement, and a policy to do nothing that Canadian people would not approve of. He was thus able to Confederation to feel the pulses of all Provinces and to keep them working along in good nature to the final unity. He was large enough to deal with such enormous undertakings at the time as the construction of the C. P. R., and to politically handle all crucial events in the history of the country. His was a life and character of diplomacy in dealing with men and in this way a grand success.
Sir Chas. Tupper was another of the most eminent of Canada's statesmen, though entirely different from Sir John A. McDonald, and one who only was playing second fiddle for so many years because Sir John A. McDonald was in first place, his speeches and arguments were placed by the speaker as SUPERIOR TO SIR JOHN'S. He was heroic, not because he was fearless, more than his fellow countrymen. His foreboding in politics was above and most prominent the Dominion of the great statesman, Mr. Justice Longley. This was not within the political sphere of Sir Chas. Tupper, but he was the only great man, in the true sense of the word, produced in the early life of Canada.
The Judge referred at length to Howe's four famous letters to Imperial Government, or rather responsible government of the Empire's Colonies, to Sir John Russell, and his later four letters to Earl Grey, and on these he founded the greatness of Howe in public life. These he said are the bases on which we and other dependencies of Great Britain have

POULTRY NOTES

The dirty egg is a sign of ill-kept poultry yards and houses. Good feed and good care at this time makes the winter layers. It is a hard matter to overfeed the pullets at this time for extra nutrition is put into eggs.
There is no stock on the farm yielding better returns in proportion to the food consumed than hens.
Plenty of grit, ground shell, charcoal and good water should be at the disposal of the poultry at all times.
When given with care one of the best food for young and growing chicks, and the laying hens, too, is sweet milk.
Eggs are high now, but will be much higher during the winter, it is predicted by many; so give the moulting hens and pullets the very best care, and have a share in the profit of winter eggs.
Keep the hens in the best possible condition, clean the houses often, feed carefully of good, clean food, spray for mites and lice, and you will be apt as anybody to get eggs.

CROUP CURED AND A CHILD'S LIFE SAVED.

"It affords me great pleasure to add my testimony to that of thousands who have been benefited by Chamberlain's Cough Remedy. My child, Andrew, when only three years old was taken with a severe attack of croup, and thanks to the prompt use of Chamberlain's Cough Remedy his life was saved and today he is a robust and healthy boy," says Mrs. A. Coy, Jr. of San Antonio, Texas. This remedy has been in use for many years. Thousands of mothers keep it at hand, and it has never been known to fail. For sale by W. A. WARREN, BRIDGETOWN, A. E. ATLEE, ANNAPOLIS ROYAL, and BEAR RIVER DRUG STORE.

GIRLS, AVOID SOPHISTICATED.

If you want to be the kind of girl men like—if for no other reason—avoid sophistication as you would the plague.
Young girls sometimes get the idea that men like girls who know all about the ways of the world and who are quick to catch the meaning of an ill intension, but as a matter of fact, that's just the kind they don't like—at least not for very long.
Men always love innocence in a woman.
And not only good men of the world, men whose own morals are none too straight—perhaps these more than any others.
A man of the world, a man whom no one would ever think of calling a prig, asked me the other day what had happened to so change a little girl we both knew.
"She used to be such a nice little girl," he said, "but now she has a hard, worldly wise air and is always the first to catch and laugh at any double meaning. I'm sorry. She was always such a nice girl."
And that girl doubtless fancied she was far more attractive to men in her sophisticated state.
There are some of the unpleasant facts of life that all girls should know for their own safety. These are the rocks that lie in the common channel. These dangers her own mother should explain to her.

QUIT

Grumbling.
Saying that fate is against you.
Finding fault with the weather.
Anticipating evil in the future.
Pretending, and be your real self.
Going around with a gloomy face.
Fault-finding, nagging and worrying.
Taking offence when none is intended.
Dwelling on fancied slights and wrongs.
Talking big things and doing small ones.
Scolding and flying into a passion over trifles.
Boasting of what you can do instead of doing it.
Thinking that life is a grind and not worth living.
Talking continually about yourself and your affairs.
Deprecating yourself and making light of your abilities.
Saying unkind things about acquaintances and friends.
Exaggerating, and making mountains out of moleholes.
Lamenting the past, holding on to disagreeable experiences.

The man who has made two or three mistakes, who sees that the score is against him is far too apt, when he should be fighting the hardest, to begin to weaken, to be less determined, to say "what's the use." I can't win now anyway." And then, of course—he doesn't.
That is, most men.
But not all. There is another kind—thank goodness. It's the man who finds failure a tonic, who never fights so hard as when he is the nearest to being beaten, who never allows himself to doubt his ultimate success, who always says unflinchingly: "When I meet my Waterloo I mean to be Wellington."

STARTLING STATEMENT

It's Statement Like That of H. Heyman, Kingston, Ont. That is making Mi-o-na World Famous For Obstinate Stomach Complaints.

Mr. H. Heyman, 132 Colburne St., Kingston, Ont., says: Mi-o-na is worth its weight in gold as a remedy to quickly cure long-standing cases of dyspepsia. For years I had suffered with my stomach and could find no cure or even relief. I could not eat anything, as it would sour and form gas on my stomach that had a pressure on the heart. Heavy pains would come around my sides and pit of my stomach. I was unable to relieve my miserable condition. I was weak and languid and would feel as tired in the morning as on going to bed and perspiration would break out all over my body. I would be so weak from vomiting that I would fall to my knees. My head would ache and spells of dizziness would leave me unable to see. Doctors had termed the trouble gastritis, but failed to benefit me. I tried Mi-o-na, on advice of a friend, which cured me when all else failed. I am sound and well and feel grateful to Mi-o-na for my present health.

It's the known results obtained by Mi-o-na that places it far and away above all other remedies and cures S. N. Wearie in offering to refund the money if Mi-o-na fails to cure stomach trouble, 50 cents a box. Relief in twenty-four hours.
Heavy clothing is in order! During the recent cold wet spell that was brought home to us. But inclining our bodies for cold weather, let us not forget our feet. In more than one instance one would notice that with a heavy coat heavy dress and umbrella were worn, thin stockings and shoes. The incongruity in appearance is only equalled by the discomfort and danger to the wearer on a wet day.
