GERMAN FORCES RETREAT IN AISNE SECTOR
FRENCH ARTILLERY BLASTS CADORNA'S TROOPS SECURE HUNS OUT OF THEIR LINES IN TAGLIAMENTO POSITIONS
RETREAT BY THE GERMANS ON THE CHEMIN DES DAMES

Berlin Officially Announces Withdrawal in the Aisne Sector, But Gives No Details and Makes No Explanation of Move--Retirement Forced by French Bombardments--Further Enemy Withdrawal Likely.

London, Nov. 2.—The Germans have retreated from points along the historic Chemin des Dames sector, on the Aisne front in France, where for several months the French troops of General Petain had been keeping them sharply to task.

Just where the retrograde movement took place and how far it extends cannot yet be told, as the German official communication announcing it merely says that the Teutons, "unnoticed and undisturbed by the enemy," systematically withdrew their lines from the hilly front in this region.

The entire line to the north of the Aisne, where the Germans were last reported as facing the French, is undulating in character from the Soissons sector eastward to the vicinity of Craonne, and therefore it is impossible to delimit from the rather terse acknowledgement of withdrawal the terrain which has been given up.

Nevertheless it seems that the Germans, tired of the terrible ordeal they had been forced to undergo from the French artillery and violent infantry attacks, have decided to fall back upon Laon, capital of the department of the Aisne, which, with its network of railways, has been the quest of the French. It is possible, and seemingly probable, that the withdrawal of the Germans will compel also the falling back of the German forces in the turn of the battle line in this region running northward to St. Quentin, if, indeed, it does not affect the German positions as far north as Arras.

Berlin, via London, Nov. 2.—The Germans have retreated from points along the Chemin des Dames in the Aisne sector of the front in France, according to the German official communication issued this evening.

The communication gives no reason for the manoeuvre, but says that it was made during Thursday night, systematically and without interference from the French troops. The statement says also that no fighting has taken place since the retreat from Italy. The text follows:

"In Flanders there has been lively activity on the Yser. Unnoticed and disturbed by the enemy, we systematically withdrew our lines from the hilly front of the Chemin des Dames last night. Our airmen successfully attacked London and English coastal towns during Thursday night, systematically and without interference from the French troops. The statement says also that no fighting has taken place since the retreat from Italy. The text follows:

"Nothing new has been reported at this time from Italy."

HEDJAZ RAILWAY CUT IN RAID BY ARAB ALLIES
Troops of Arabian King Destroy Considerable Portion of Line.

London, Nov. 2.—The following official communication was issued this evening, concerning the operations in Arabia:

"It is reported that Arab troops of the King of Mecca raided the Hedjaz railway recently, killing and capturing the British garrison and destroying a considerable portion of the railway."

BRITISH FORCES NOW NORTH OF BEERSHEBA

Gen. Allenby's Troops Raid Turkish Lines and Capture Prisoners and a Machine Gun.

London, Nov. 2.—A British official communication issued this evening dealing with the operations near Jerusalem says:

"General Allenby reports that he is now holding the position covering Beersheba on the north. We have successfully raided another portion of the Turkish front."

"A large number of Turks were killed and fifteen prisoners and a machine gun were brought back."

SEVEN ARE KILLED ON AMERICAN TRANSPORT

Casualties on Finland Total Eight—Ship Herself is But Slightly Damaged.

Washington, Nov. 2.—"Seven dead and one missing," was the toll of the German U-boat which attacked the American transport Finland, a home-bound, in foreign waters yesterday, the navy department announced today.

A report from a French Atlantic seaport says the American transport Finland is in drydock there. The vessel received such slight damages from the German torpedo, which recently struck her that it will not be long before she puts to sea again. The torpedo struck a coal bunker, which lessened the effect of the explosion.

Among those on board the Finland were several survivors of the crew of the transport Antilles, which was torpedoed and sunk some time ago.

MORE DISTURBANCES FEARED IN PETROGRAD

Maximalists Persist in Plans for Demonstration and May Try to Seize the Supreme Power.

Petrograd, Nov. 2.—The Maximalists continue their preparations for a demonstration, the date of which is being kept secret, but is believed to be set for November 4. It is persistently rumored that they intend to take armed action to seize the supreme power. Even the "Pravda" newspaper condemns the proposed demonstration, while the government is receiving offers of help from all quarters and will publish the proceedings, by force, if necessary.

EXPLOSION DAMAGES SUB. YARDS AT KIEL

Ten Persons Were Killed or Wounded, German Paper Says.

Copenhagen, Nov. 2.—The Kiel News Nachrichten reports that thru the explosion of a torpedo in the submarine yards at Kiel a submarine vessel was badly damaged and ten persons were killed or wounded. The newspaper says that "all other reports are without foundation," referring probably to reports of extensive mutilations in which various ships are said to have been damaged.

BATTLE ON A WARSHIP

Three Officers and a Number of Sailors Are Killed in the Fight.

London, Nov. 2.—Three officers and a number of sailors of the German navy were killed in "another" mutiny at Kiel, early in September, according to a despatch from Amsterdam to The Daily Express, which claims to have authentic details. The outbreak occurred aboard the battleship Kron Prinz and Schleswig-Holstein, and started when the men revolted against being drafted into the submarine service.

The sailors on the Kron Prinz threw Admiral Schmidt overboard, and stabbed and threw overboard Lieut. Raul, the admiral's aid, and another officer. A battle on the ship's deck between the officers and sailors followed. Three officers and a number of sailors were killed. Similar scenes occurred on the Schleswig-Holstein.

Admiral Schmidt was rescued, but one succession of shell holes filled with stagnant water, lay before them, and to their left was a marsh. They skirted that marsh and struggled forward up the heights, paying for every yard of the advance, for the Boche fought well here, defending every fortified shell hole. Raked by machine gunfire, shelled constantly, with grenades falling around them and a dip of occasional hollows to shelter them, they went forward to their objective. Meetheele had to be taken. It was to our advantage what Bellevue Farm was in the last advance. Our whole line depended on our success in this movement.

CLAMOR TO GO TO THE FRONT

Italy's Veterans, Old and Young, Anxious to Grapple With the Enemy.

Rome, Thursday, Nov. 1.—Italy is undergoing a re-birth of patriotism. Everywhere men are clamoring to go to the front. Even the Garibaldi veterans have marched in a body to offer their lives on their country's altar. Thousands of younger veterans of the present war, interned in hospitals or in invalided homes, are insisting on returning to their commands.

The trouble-makers, who two weeks ago said they were tired of the war and who were willing to listen to German agents, now either are in hiding or are hastening to admit that they were misled.

The new ministry is busy organizing the country on a better basis and seeing that the army's war needs are met with. The fact that King Victor Emmanuel has returned to the army shows how confident he is in the spirit of the country, since he always remains in Rome during critical political periods.

CANADIANS CLOSE IN ON PASSCHENDAELE

Dominion Outposts Get Into the Village, While Meetheele, Strong Covering Position, is in Our Hands.

By W. A. Willison. Canadian Headquarters in France, via London, Nov. 2.—The Canadians have closed in further toward Passchendaele. Following the great battle on the left wing, when our troops on the extreme left proved their marked superiority over the enemy while our right outposts ventured into Passchendaele itself, the fighting has been intermittent all along the line. Opposite Meetheele, where the front lines are now together, the Canadians and the Boches under the Red Cross flag buried their dead and evacuated their wounded on Wednesday afternoon. Stretcher-bearers of both forces passed and repassed one another in the mud and slime.

When our left moved forward Oct. 30 this battalion approached Meetheele. In a thousand yards of rising country, one succession of shell holes filled with stagnant water, lay before them, and to their left was a marsh. They skirted that marsh and struggled forward up the heights, paying for every yard of the advance, for the Boche fought well here, defending every fortified shell hole. Raked by machine gunfire, shelled constantly, with grenades falling around them and a dip of occasional hollows to shelter them, they went forward to their objective. Meetheele had to be taken. It was to our advantage what Bellevue Farm was in the last advance. Our whole line depended on our success in this movement.

The town was replete with concrete strongholds and was strong in machine guns. Seventy-five yards beyond was another point equally powerful. Canada's oldest battalion captured Meetheele. That capture will live in Canadian history for the daring of the battalion which made it, just as the capture of Bellevue Spur, when the full story can be written, because of the gallantry of the men who took part in it and the splendid record of one man upon whose judgment, in a critical moment, much of the success of the whole attack depended. Bellevue Farm was to our attack on October 25 what Meetheele was to our left on October 30. When the attack was launched our left centre was held up. Our barrage had passed with it our forces to the right and left. Upon the decision of the moment depended the success of the battle.

The decision was left to a man on the spot. That man commanded the support of the battalion. It was a time to test his solitary qualities to the utmost. There was no hesitation to call for further artillery support meant the bringing of the barrage back. No such call was made. Issuing his orders in the open, under shellfire, he called upon his men to advance, and advance they did. Nothing could stop them. Going forward gloriously they cleaned up eighteen pill-boxes on the way, gaining their final objective and winning for the Canadian troops that necessary "jumping-off" place which was so vital to the success of further movements. Men who know declare that the leadership shown in this instance was one of the most striking exhibitions of the best military qualities in the history of the war. The way was paved for the successes of Crest Farm and Meetheele.

Gain Valuable Ground. Last night there was further fighting on both the right and left flanks, our outposts gaining valuable ground. The grand total of prisoners taken now amounts to about seventeen officers and over five hundred and fifty other ranks. Information gathered from them indicates increasing unrest in Germany.

Bread riots are reported in Hamburg as far back as last April, when the disturbances were of such a nature that the soldiers in training there stood to for eight days, expecting to be called out any moment. According to another prisoner there is much dissatisfaction in Germany, and in the trains and semi-public places discussions and comparisons of the political situation with the recent revolution in Russia are frequent. Another prisoner confirmed this, but did not believe the unrest would go as far as a revolution, as the disciplinary measures are so strict.

Enemy Plans Confused. Much confusion in the enemy's plan of resistance against our attacks, together with proof of his heavy losses, was the information afforded by the examination of other prisoners.

Our machine gun barrage was so effective on October 30, that the reinforcements were entirely cut off from the enemy. In some instances, for example the 22nd Bavarian Infantry Reserve, in which both the front and reserve companies sustained very heavy casualties, the men in front, on seeing they could not expect any reinforcements, surrendered. The morale of the Bavarians is weakening fast, having been greatly reduced in the last few days of conflict, with the Canadians. Men are reported to have cleared out of the front line and gone into a siding before the attack, while one company in the sector deserted entirely.

WON'T AFFECT WAR'S RESULT, CECIL STATES

Struggle May Be Prolonged by Italian Reverse, But Allied Win is Sure.

ECONOMICS MUST COUNT

Allies Have the Necessary Resources, and Enemy is in Precarious Condition.

London, Nov. 2.—Lord Robert Cecil, minister of blockade, in his weekly talk with the Associated Press, declared today that there is no danger that the Italian reverses will affect the result of the war.

"What has happened may affect the duration of the war, or it may not," Sir Robert said. "Sooner or later, the economic side of the war is likely as anything else to produce the desired effect according to the extent of the resources of the allied powers and the enemy to carry on an economic offensive."

In this connection, Lord Robert pointed out the great preponderance of the entente allies' resources. He added: "The central powers already are in a very precarious condition. I see nothing but greater economic ruin for them after the war, the longer it lasts."

He declared that the allies were doing, and will do, all possible for Italy, and would regard the battle fought in the Italian theatres as one comprehensive front.

"What has happened only means that we other governments must make stronger exertions," he said in conclusion. "We cannot afford to neglect any chance. Our information is that the spirit of Italy is untouched, and that there is no sign of disagreement or panic at the reverse, but only a strengthened determination to finish the fight."

PESSIMISM RETURNS
Railway Reports Are Not Encouraging—Gains by Stocks Largely Lost.

Poor Railroad Earnings. Further cause for the market's hesitation after the first hour was furnished by the additional railroad reports submitted in the course of the day. These were actually encouraging and so far as they related to such important systems as New York Central and Reading, disclosed heavy net losses.

Gains of two to five points were made at the outset by United States Steel and other leaders which suffered greatest impairment in the turbulent trading of the preceding day. The rise was halted on profit-taking before the end of the first hour, but was resumed later. Recessions from best quotations were almost universal before the close, the weakness of metals and investment rails prompting fresh liquidation in other quarters.

Total sales again approximated one million shares, to which United States Steel contributed considerably more than 25 per cent. at a net gain of 2 3/8 points. ZEPHS FOR THE TRENTINO. Geneva, Switzerland, Nov. 2.—The newspaper La Suisse's Lake Constance correspondent says a fleet of zeppelins left there Wednesday for the Trentino front of the Austro-Italian theatre.

Investigate the Sugar Famine. Sugar is scarce, so scarce that house-keepers can get only two or three pounds at a time. And it's twice the price it was before the war!

We are told that quite a lot of the raw product, instead of going into sugar, is being made into spirits. If distillation of grain for spirits is now prohibited in the States because of the scarcity of the former, why should we not keep all our raw cane juice for sugar as a food and not turned into spirits for either drinking or explosives? We've got millions of gallons of spirits now in bond that might be used for explosives, and if we used that then all our cane juice could be turned into sugar, both to increase the supply and to reduce the price.

The government should make an investigation and then take action. They might find things almost as surprising as they found in the bacon inquiry!

ITALIANS ESTABLISHED IN NEW DEFENCE LINES

Cadorna's Forces Occupy Positions on West Bank of Tagliamento River--Italians and Austro-Germans Battle in Some Sectors--Italy Seething With Patriotic Fervor.

London, Nov. 2.—On the Italian front the Austro-Germans and Italians are in combat along the middle and lower regions of the Tagliamento River, with the Teutonic forces on the east and General Cadorna's army on the western side of the stream. As far as is known the enemy has not yet been able to cross the river, which is in freshet, but it seems apparent that from the Carnic Alps south along the battle line to the head of the Adriatic the Italians now are holding their new line of defence securely.

Meantime, with the Italians waiting for eventualities on the eastern Friuli Plains, the sentiment in Italy among all classes is seething with patriotic fervor, with even the old Garibaldi veterans and men invalided home as a result of injuries in the present war desiring to rush to the scene of hostilities and lend their aid in repelling a further invasion of the enemy.

STIRRING WAR SCENES.

Italian Headquarters in Northern Italy, Thursday, Nov. 1, 5 p.m.—(By the Associated Press.)—The immensity of the convulsion thru which the Italian army is passing makes individual impressions count for little. Yet, as an eye-witness at the extreme front up to the day of retirement and then as a participant in the retreat to the new position westward, the correspondent's experience is typical of those hundreds of persons that the army removed from the danger zone.

It can be stated that we are located with General Cadorna and the general staff. His sturdy figure was often seen as he went to and from the front, where the Duke of Aoste, commander of the third army, and General Capello, commander of the second army, were in personal charge of the wall of steel that the Italians had erected inside of Austrian territory.

Nearby at that time was the official station where our despatches were rigidly scrutinized. The whole city was given up to the supreme military administration, with the streets crowded with all ranks of soldiery.

This gives a glimpse of the scene which changed with such suddenness when the crisis came last Friday night. From that hour the correspondent tried to make frequent notes from which the entries should give the main sequence of events. At noon Friday, there was a succession of air raids. The alarm was sounded by triple gongs, followed by sirens and bells. The streets were cleared, the shops were closed and business was suspended. Retirement Decided On. The first definite information was thus given the Austro-Germans had crossed the Isonzo in a hush of silence. Friday night the gravity of the situation led to the consideration of a retirement of the army and the Italian territory. (Continued on Page 6, Column 4.)

CHIEF CORONER TO CONDUCT INQUIRY

Mayor is in Favor of City Paying Grant to Bartlett's Parents.

WAITING FOR DOCTORS

Complaint Made That Men Are Kept Stripped Too Long.

That there will be a thorough investigation into the death of W. J. A. Bartlett, who died of pneumonia following a cold believed to have been contracted while taking his medical examination, is assured by Chief Coroner Dr. A. Jukes Johnson, who will personally conduct the inquiry, following the withdrawal of Dr. Julius London.

Dr. London made the preliminary examination, but withdrew on account of his connection with the militia as a captain in the Army Medical Corps. Dr. Johnson said that there would be a thorough inquiry, not only into the death of Bartlett, but the whole procedure of the medical examination will be investigated.

Major Church and members of the board of control also desire to see a thorough investigation made and the mayor stated yesterday that he had received many complaints about the conditions at the armories.

He thought that the city should make a grant of $1,000 to the parents of the man, and held that they were entitled to it as their son was in the militia.

The mayor has not yet received a reply from the message he sent to Major-General Mewburn, minister of militia and defense, asking for an investigation.

Neither Do Stimulants Restore the Tired, Worn-out Nerves.

And so it is with the nerves of the human body. You may by use of stimulants accomplish the work in hand or by deadening the nerves with narcotics you may stop the headaches.

Any temporary relief obtained is won at an enormous expense to the nervous system and you are left more exhausted than ever.

The introduction of Dr. Chase's Nerve Food was revolutionary in the treatment of nervous diseases, because it replaced the old idea of obtaining temporary relief with the new method of reconstructing the starved and depleted nerve cells.

A little patience is required to follow out this building-up process, but this is the only way in which disease of the nerves can be really cured.

The Food Cure. Mrs. A. North, Grand Street North, Brantford, Ont., writes: "Both my husband and I can speak very highly of Dr. Chase's Nerve Food."

Dr. Chase's Nerve Food. As strength is restored the appetite is sharpened, digestion improves, you get the good of the food you eat, headaches disappear, you find yourself gaining in confidence, in vigor and in energy.

50 cents a box, a full treatment of 6 boxes for $2.75, at all dealers, or Edmondson, Bates & Co., Limited, Toronto. Do not be talked into accepting a substitute. Imitations only disappoint.

CONSCRIPTIONIST LIBERALS BEHIND UNION GOVERNMENT

"Our Country First" is Slogan of Great Hamilton Convention, Which Hears Blunt Statements From Hon. F. B. Carvell and Hon. S. C. Mewburn.

By a Staff Reporter. Hamilton, Nov. 3.—A great banner above the stage in the assembly room of the Royal Connaught Hotel yesterday bore the legend "Our Country First." It was a slogan of the big convention of the conscriptionist Liberals...

The convention was a highly successful affair and most of the electoral ridings in Ontario, G. G. S. Lindsey of Toronto, presided, and the resolutions were adopted endorsing conscription and a union government.

When the convention was called to order, only two hundred were present, and it looked for a time like a dead affair. But the hon. Mr. Carvell, and a great many delegates including women from Toronto and nearby points, the hall was filled and was packed to capacity at the opening meeting last night.

The best of good feeling and harmony prevailed, and all the resolutions presented were passed with little discussion. These resolutions declared for conscription of men and women, endorsing the union government and pledged conscriptionist Liberals in every riding to support the government.

Mr. Carvell said that it had wrenched itself severely to part company with Sir Wilfrid Laurier on the issue of conscription. He had tried to persuade himself that he might vote for the referendum, but then the question arose what would happen if the referendum were defeated?

play all around. He referred to a statement of Sir George Foster, and said: "Forget your differences." "Judicials must be abandoned because the men at the front had sacrificed everything for the defence of Canada."

There were three resolutions, and in moving the second resolution, Mr. Carvell said that he had wrenched himself severely to part company with Sir Wilfrid Laurier on the issue of conscription.

members of the house would no doubt choose their parliamentary leader for the session, and that he would be a member of the house who had seen longer service in the legislature than I had. I had no doubt that a convention would be held when a leader would be elected and the Liberal policy be enunciated before the next general election. Yours faithfully, H. H. Dewar.

CANADA'S UNHAPPY CHOICE IS UNION OR LAURIER. Editorial, Toronto Telegram: Union government was not necessary, and is not ideal. The alternative to union government is Laurier government. The possible dangers of union government can be met after Canada has overthrown the actual dangers of Laurier government. Loyalty to Laurier must now be recognized as treason to the soldiers. Every deserter from the cause of Laurier is a recruit for the cause of Canada and liberty.

LABORITE IS LIKELY TO OPPOSE MEWBURN. Rumor Has Rev. W. E. Gilroy as Candidate to Fight Minister of Militia. Hamilton, Saturday, Nov. 3.—There is a possibility that Major-General S. C. Mewburn will be opposed at the coming federal elections by Rev. W. E. Gilroy as a laborite. While the opinion has been freely expressed that the new minister of militia and defence should secure election by acclamation, labor men for some time have been advocating the placing of candidates in both the east and west ridings. Rev. Mr. Gilroy has already been awaited upon, but so far has made no definite statement. Furthermore, he will not commit himself until the union government and General Mewburn have made clear where they stand on "conscription of resources" and certain other principles involved. "Personally I am not averse to taking an active part in the political campaign to uphold certain principles which are dear to me," said Mr. Gilroy. "Where the union government and General Mewburn stand on these principles I do not yet know. If these principles are not to be upheld by them, then it would be the proper thing for those who hold them to enter the field with a candidate."

Among those present were: Sir George E. Foster, Sir Edward Kemp, Edmund Bristol, Hon. Thomas Crawford, Hon. W. D. McPherson, Hon. Dr. Fyfe, Hon. R. Russell, M.L.A.; Owens, M.L.A.; and Mark H. MR. DEWAR'S POSITION. Editor World: I regret that in these days of so much journalistic misrepresentation the report from Port Arthur which appears in your issue today gives a very erroneous version of the position of the win-the-war men in the mind of your correspondent. Not as Bad as Painted. Hon. Frank B. Carvell, minister of public works, said that he was not half so fierce as people cared to think. He was a plain country lawyer living in a small country town, who made a modest living practicing law and took an active part in politics because he was interested in public affairs. He was still a radical, a democrat and a low tariff man, but the tariff would have to wait until after the war. He had been the first man in Canada to propose an income tax, and it had taken him three years to educate the government up to adopting the principle of the income tax. The present income tax law was entirely insufficient, and he promised that a much greater burden of taxation would soon be laid upon the wealthy men of this country. If the war lasted a year longer the government of Canada would have to raise one hundred and fifty million dollars of revenue every year in order to meet interest charges and pensions. He therefore announced that the minister of public works all unnecessary expenditures in his department would cease and the patronage system and the patronage list would be abolished.

Sorry to Part. Mr. Carvell said that it had wrenched itself severely to part company with Sir Wilfrid Laurier on the issue of conscription. He had tried to persuade himself that he might vote for the referendum, but then the question arose what would happen if the referendum were defeated? A voice: "What will happen if the union government is defeated?" Mr. Carvell: "If union government is defeated Canada will be in the position that Russia is in today." Mr. Carvell elicited great applause by saying that there were thousands of men swagging around this country in the King's uniform drawing fat pay who had never gone to the front and never intended to go. He wanted the men fired, and a large number of them were doing any work that that work be done by returned soldiers.

Not Mewburn's Fault. Gen. Mewburn, who followed, said that he hoped Mr. Carvell was not referring to him. He had been wearing a uniform and had been drawing more or less pay and had not gone to the front, but it was not his fault that he had not seen active service. He said there was no place in the country where so many men were being drawn fat pay and doing nothing as in New Brunswick. On Nov. 1 he had fired 32 of those officers, also Mr. Carvell had wired him to do nothing until he got to Ottawa.

"I went ahead and fired them," said Gen. Mewburn, "and I did not replace them with the men Mr. Carvell wanted, but with returned soldiers." Gen. Mewburn said that he was probably the first man in Canada to recommend conscription, and he met with opposition from members of the cabinet and from members of parliament irrespective of party. If the government had brought the Militia Act into force long ago we would not be in the fix we are in now.

Unjustly Condemned. He said that many officers were unjustly condemned who were not going to the front. It is not their fault, but the fault of the rotten system of recruiting, which sent over fresh units instead of sending over drafts to replace the units already overseas. He told of one case where he found a battalion from the west quartered in the east for more training, and the officers, the bandmen and the non-commissioned officers were treated with respect. He said that he had fired some of those officers he met with a storm of protest from members of the government and members of parliament.

Sir John Gibson conducted the initial proceedings and G. G. S. Lindsey, Toronto, was unanimously chosen president, and it was from members of parliament that Sir Wilfrid Laurier, Stewart, Guelph, permanent secretary, Mayor J.C. Booker, officially welcomed the delegates on the opening of the meeting. It was a time to drop partisanship, said the mayor. He emphasized the point that this was a Liberal win-the-war convention and that he first thought of every true Canadian, that the war must be won. The argument in favor of conscription was that equality of service might prevail.

Col. McCulloch, spokesman for a delegation representing the Win-the-War League of Ontario, presented a resolution of greeting to the delegates.

Afternoon Session. At the opening of the afternoon session, telegrams read by the secretary were received from J. A. Campbell, Dundas; W. A. Charbon, Norfolk; F. F. Parise, West Lambton; Hon. George P. Graham and G. Frank Brock, Toronto, all expressing the regret of the senders at their inability to be present.

G. G. S. Lindsey, in opening the afternoon session, said it was proper that the people should get together for the common weal of the country. To the women present he extended a resolution of greeting, and said that there was no question in their right to participate in the settling of the great problems presented to Canada.

When Great Britain is at war, Canada is at war," he said, "and the question is, are we going to quit? Are we going to cheer our own returning troops or those of the United States? He asked Mr. Lindsey spoke of the gallant work which the Canadians had done and were doing at the front, and read some recent despatches describing their actions.

"Are you going to stand for party strife in face of that?" he asked. "The answer came a woman's reply, emphatically: 'No.'"

He not only appealed to the mothers of Ontario but to the fathers, and asked if their answer to the men at the front was going to be party strife. "To hell with party during this war!"

As to the origin of this convention Mr. Lindsey said he and some others had no party, that their wing of the government was opposed, and after conferences it was decided to outline a win-the-war policy. Then the union government was formed and it was decided to have a referendum on the purpose should be to support the candidates whose ideals were the same as those forming the league.

Mr. Lindsey said the referendum was made by Sir Robert Borden, and observed: "The unionist candidates must be fairly chosen. Some Liberals believe the party could win a referendum on the platform 'We don't want victory at such a price,' he said.

In conclusion, he paid a glowing tribute to the living and the dead, who had sacrificed in order that the sacred cause of justice and democracy may be preserved.

Gen. S. C. Mewburn, minister of militia and defence, was introduced by Chairman Lindsey as the first speaker. He was appointed minister of militia for a great many years.

Gen. Mewburn in opening said that it had been the first man in Canada to propose an income tax, and it had taken him three years to educate the government up to adopting the principle of the income tax. The present income tax law was entirely insufficient, and he promised that a much greater burden of taxation would soon be laid upon the wealthy men of this country. The present income tax law was entirely insufficient, and he promised that a much greater burden of taxation would soon be laid upon the wealthy men of this country. If the war lasted a year longer the government of Canada would have to raise one hundred and fifty million dollars of revenue every year in order to meet interest charges and pensions. He therefore announced that the minister of public works all unnecessary expenditures in his department would cease and the patronage system and the patronage list would be abolished.

Not as Bad as Painted. Hon. Frank B. Carvell, minister of public works, said that he was not half so fierce as people cared to think. He was a plain country lawyer living in a small country town, who made a modest living practicing law and took an active part in politics because he was interested in public affairs. He was still a radical, a democrat and a low tariff man, but the tariff would have to wait until after the war. He had been the first man in Canada to propose an income tax, and it had taken him three years to educate the government up to adopting the principle of the income tax. The present income tax law was entirely insufficient, and he promised that a much greater burden of taxation would soon be laid upon the wealthy men of this country. If the war lasted a year longer the government of Canada would have to raise one hundred and fifty million dollars of revenue every year in order to meet interest charges and pensions. He therefore announced that the minister of public works all unnecessary expenditures in his department would cease and the patronage system and the patronage list would be abolished.

Sorry to Part. Mr. Carvell said that it had wrenched itself severely to part company with Sir Wilfrid Laurier on the issue of conscription. He had tried to persuade himself that he might vote for the referendum, but then the question arose what would happen if the referendum were defeated? A voice: "What will happen if the union government is defeated?" Mr. Carvell: "If union government is defeated Canada will be in the position that Russia is in today." Mr. Carvell elicited great applause by saying that there were thousands of men swagging around this country in the King's uniform drawing fat pay who had never gone to the front and never intended to go. He wanted the men fired, and a large number of them were doing any work that that work be done by returned soldiers.

Not Mewburn's Fault. Gen. Mewburn, who followed, said that he hoped Mr. Carvell was not referring to him. He had been wearing a uniform and had been drawing more or less pay and had not gone to the front, but it was not his fault that he had not seen active service. He said there was no place in the country where so many men were being drawn fat pay and doing nothing as in New Brunswick. On Nov. 1 he had fired 32 of those officers, also Mr. Carvell had wired him to do nothing until he got to Ottawa.

"I went ahead and fired them," said Gen. Mewburn, "and I did not replace them with the men Mr. Carvell wanted, but with returned soldiers." Gen. Mewburn said that he was probably the first man in Canada to recommend conscription, and he met with opposition from members of the cabinet and from members of parliament irrespective of party. If the government had brought the Militia Act into force long ago we would not be in the fix we are in now.

Unjustly Condemned. He said that many officers were unjustly condemned who were not going to the front. It is not their fault, but the fault of the rotten system of recruiting, which sent over fresh units instead of sending over drafts to replace the units already overseas. He told of one case where he found a battalion from the west quartered in the east for more training, and the officers, the bandmen and the non-commissioned officers were treated with respect. He said that he had fired some of those officers he met with a storm of protest from members of the government and members of parliament.

Sir John Gibson conducted the initial proceedings and G. G. S. Lindsey, Toronto, was unanimously chosen president, and it was from members of parliament that Sir Wilfrid Laurier, Stewart, Guelph, permanent secretary, Mayor J.C. Booker, officially welcomed the delegates on the opening of the meeting. It was a time to drop partisanship, said the mayor. He emphasized the point that this was a Liberal win-the-war convention and that he first thought of every true Canadian, that the war must be won. The argument in favor of conscription was that equality of service might prevail.

Col. McCulloch, spokesman for a delegation representing the Win-the-War League of Ontario, presented a resolution of greeting to the delegates.

Afternoon Session. At the opening of the afternoon session, telegrams read by the secretary were received from J. A. Campbell, Dundas; W. A. Charbon, Norfolk; F. F. Parise, West Lambton; Hon. George P. Graham and G. Frank Brock, Toronto, all expressing the regret of the senders at their inability to be present.

G. G. S. Lindsey, in opening the afternoon session, said it was proper that the people should get together for the common weal of the country. To the women present he extended a resolution of greeting, and said that there was no question in their right to participate in the settling of the great problems presented to Canada.

When Great Britain is at war, Canada is at war," he said, "and the question is, are we going to quit? Are we going to cheer our own returning troops or those of the United States? He asked Mr. Lindsey spoke of the gallant work which the Canadians had done and were doing at the front, and read some recent despatches describing their actions.

"Are you going to stand for party strife in face of that?" he asked. "The answer came a woman's reply, emphatically: 'No.'"

He not only appealed to the mothers of Ontario but to the fathers, and asked if their answer to the men at the front was going to be party strife. "To hell with party during this war!"

As to the origin of this convention Mr. Lindsey said he and some others had no party, that their wing of the government was opposed, and after conferences it was decided to outline a win-the-war policy. Then the union government was formed and it was decided to have a referendum on the purpose should be to support the candidates whose ideals were the same as those forming the league.

Mr. Lindsey said the referendum was made by Sir Robert Borden, and observed: "The unionist candidates must be fairly chosen. Some Liberals believe the party could win a referendum on the platform 'We don't want victory at such a price,' he said.

In conclusion, he paid a glowing tribute to the living and the dead, who had sacrificed in order that the sacred cause of justice and democracy may be preserved.

Gen. S. C. Mewburn, minister of militia and defence, was introduced by Chairman Lindsey as the first speaker. He was appointed minister of militia for a great many years.

Gen. Mewburn in opening said that it had been the first man in Canada to propose an income tax, and it had taken him three years to educate the government up to adopting the principle of the income tax. The present income tax law was entirely insufficient, and he promised that a much greater burden of taxation would soon be laid upon the wealthy men of this country. If the war lasted a year longer the government of Canada would have to raise one hundred and fifty million dollars of revenue every year in order to meet interest charges and pensions.

SATURDAY MORNING, NOV. 3.

Winning the War.

There is a different tone in the convention of the Hamilton Liberals to that of the Winnipeg gathering some weeks ago. There is of course much smoldering party feeling, but not more on one side than on the other; and the conceptions that have gripped the great thinkers and leaders among all the nineteen allied nations are too important, too significant, too vital, to be crowded out of the way by mere local and temporary interests, however weighty, however dear to those who are unable to open their eyes to the wider horizon.

In a prairie or forest fire all kinds of animals herd together for shelter, the common danger canceling for the time the natural enmity that exists among the tribes of the world. We are in a far worse conflagration than any forest or prairie fire, and the life of the nations is at stake, but there are many who cannot perceive this, who would linger to fight out their ancient quarrel, reckless whether the flames of war overtake them or not.

The real leaders of the nation, those who are able to see whether the great currents are tending, are a unit in regard to the necessity of making the war the one sole object in life until it is settled and settled forever. It was said early in the conflict that if we lost the war nothing else mattered. This is a cold, immovable fact; and it is the one extraordinary thing about the political world that there are men, and men of considerable eminence, who are willing to be of a minority which disputes this fact. If they cannot help on the projects on which the majority are agreed, upon which nineteen nations are agreed, they should at least not hinder. All the issues that may seem important will safely keep till after the war, except those which have to do with furthering the work of the war itself.

When General Mewburn was speaking of his pleasure that the Military Service Act had been adopted, and his regret that it had not been adopted earlier, he was interrupted by some one who asked why it was not adopted three years ago? "Why did you not agitate for it three years ago?" was his very natural retort. There has been wide agreement among the military men from the beginning on the necessity for compulsory or national service. The civilians thought they knew better, as they are apt to do about many things, and national service was delayed in Britain and the colonies to the general loss and injury of all concerned. As long as the nation thought it could play politics and go to war; could divide and fight at home and conquer abroad; could spend its energy and interest on domestic problems and not weaken its field forces; could face a united and single-headed enemy with divided and retarding counsels reading its own purposes and plans, and hoped to win, so long would the nation fail to get its full strength into the fight. Germany, not to be conquered except by the full strength of all her foes.

Getting the Submarines.

Submarine warfare is probably engaging more concentrated attention on both sides of the war at the present time than even aviation. The latest official statements are fairly satisfactory to the allies. That is to say, we are about holding our own. The Germans have more subs. than when they began, but we have more mercantile marine by 14 per cent., it is said. Of course we need vastly more, and huge preparations are being made. But it is some comfort to know that in spite of the vast destructiveness of the Germans our mercantile fleets are on the increase. Submarine vessels are changing their character all the time, and the latest types are much larger than even the Deutschland, which crossed to America. Vessels of 5,000 tons are being turned out as rapidly as possible from the German yards, much more rapidly, in fact, than men can be trained to handle them. The Kaiser's sailors shrink from submarine service, knowing that the chances of a return to the fatherland are of the slightest. The service, apart from war risks, is of the most unhealthy and nerve-wrecking description. Three months are required to tone up a man after one of these under-sea voyages. This is a problem which the Kaiser probably did not reckon with.

The methods of attack are being concentrated in the destroyers, a type of speedy vessels which give the submarine no chance if they get within range. Even submerging does not protect them, as great bombs are sunk on the trail of the submarine which explode with such violence as to be effective at very great distances under water. Just as the explosion of dynamite under water kills fish by the shock, so these explosions by shock and by crushing the comparatively slender plates of the submarine destroy it.

The destroyers have been utilized in convoying vessels, and these convoys now serve the double purpose of traps or bait for the submarine and protection for themselves. As the submarines can get no single vessels they are compelled to attack the convoys, and the swift destroyers are on the spot the moment a periscope or a torpedo track is detected, and one of the deep sea bombs finishes the career of the submariner.

In a war of mere destructiveness such as Germany has elected to carry on there is nothing to excite compassion for the foe. There is no dastardly, cowardly, contemptible act which the Germans have shunned. But they have capped their own climaxes in under-sea warfare. More than anything else their practice has justified the criticism of one of their own officers: "You English will always be fools, and we will never be gentlemen." It is a proud title to bear, that of fool, bestowed by such lips.

National Anthems and Their Moral.

A real storm has been raised by the refusal of the leader of the Boston Symphony Orchestra, Karl Muck, to play the United States national anthem, "The Star Spangled Banner." Muck is Prussian by birth and apparently by sympathies, and is recalcitrant in spite of the fulminations of Theodore Roosevelt, who believes that any Prussian in America who refuses to play "The Star Spangled Banner" should be interned and his orchestra disbanded. Geraldine Farrar, who is of the same persuasion as Muck, also declined to sing "The Star Spangled" anthem, and as an intimate of the crown prince no doubt thought she was making good. The public outcry has been such, however, that Geraldine has backed down, and on Thursday night gurgled out "Oh say, did you see?" with the most loyal. Mr. Muck may be inclined to follow this admirable example on fuller consideration, and then, again, he may not. There is not a Prussian in creation who is not convinced, after the Russian chaos and the Italian disaster, that the Kaiser is not putting it over his enemies like a tent. The audacity of Muck and Farrar is a case in point and ample testimony to the confidence that Germans feel. The German map is marvelously convincing, and the Kaiser undoubtedly dominates a right-of-way across Europe from Antwerp to Constantinople. The spirit that insists on the national anthem in America is the same spirit that will insist upon the restoration of the shattered ideals of peace and justice in Europe. The whole Prussian nation is so impregnated with the Prussian virus that it is scarcely to be expected that Karl Muck or Geraldine Farrar or their like could escape the taint, but it serves as a warning to the rest of the world, when intelligent and traveled people like Muck and Farrar act as they do, not to place any reliance on the sudden reversal of German sentiment that is looked for in some sanguine quarters. The war will not be over till the German map shows another color, and the German armies have been forced to confess that they have met their masters. The German system combined with the German spirit has so far been victorious. The system of the allies is so far deficient that the finer spirit they are inspired with has been handicapped and balked.

We must persist until the wisdom of the children of light is equal to that of the children of this world as the Prussians conceive it. When a good spirit is wedded to the incredible folly of the Russian masses as displayed since the revolution, or is hampered by the lack of co-ordination and co-operation that is still evident in the operations of the allies, it must be apparent that we have still many things to learn. The war is a tremendous school, and the penalties for fudging are severe. There are too many of us yet who do not appreciate the fact that we are engaged in a life and death struggle in which our liberty, our property, our land and our language are still at stake. To people like Muck and Farrar it is still a perfectly reasonable thing to refuse to sing any national anthem but "Deutschens Uber Alles!" They see that we are not making war yet.

Good to the Horses.

Lieutenant Percy Arnoldi, who is home wounded, has been telling the Humane Society about the treatment of horses at the front. His apology for the men who ill-treated their horses touched the profoundest philosophy. "The trouble is," he said, "they don't understand the horses' feelings. They don't know they're human."

Saint Francis could have preached no better doctrine; and all who are familiar with dumb animals, and who take the pains to try to understand them, and to study their nature, are aware that to treat an intelligent animal with less regard than a human being is merely to lose one's opportunities and waste one's resources.

"What's good for a man is good for a horse," was an old proverb quoted by Mr. Arnoldi as a key to success with animals at the front, as in character and temperament they are akin.

The British are understood to treat their animals better than the French and Belgians; but whether this is out of genuine good feeling or from a proper sense of commercial values does not transpire. At any rate cruelty to horses is severely punished, and it is satisfactory to know that our troops maintain our national traditions for humanity in this as in other respects.

Other People's Opinions

Spanish Language.

Editor World: In view of the importance of the trade relations that will exist between Canada and the South American republics after the war, might I suggest the formation of a society in Toronto for the study of Spanish language and literature? While European nations are recuperating after the war, Canada should vastly extend her trade in South America and Mexico, and a working knowledge of Spanish would be a valuable asset. A society, with a central meeting place, could do invaluable work in the coming winter. Perhaps some of your readers would give their view on the matter.

The Aftermath.

By Robert Partridge.
 The hand I clasped lies trampled red,
 The lips I pressed are cold.
 From that dear face the smile has fled,
 All still, that heart so bold.
 My life is empty, drear and bare—
 My all—is but an empty chair.

A hero? Yes; to me console
 Comes in that thought, and blest
 In knowledge that his mighty soul
 Lies not in earthy rest.
 But that may not efface the pain,
 The agony . . . that never again . . .

If I am bitter—should I rave,
 When memories dim my mind;
 And see nought but a blood-stain'd grave,
 Where lies . . . that heart . . . so kind?
 Can I be blamed should thoughts arise,
 And I hurt curses to the skies?
 Oh, help me, Lord! . . . vindictiveness,
 And malice, too, is rife
 Within my heart . . . Let me care
 Once more that brave young life.
 I am but human . . . make me brave
 To nurse that balm—a soldier's grave.

Fathers of Noble Sons.

By Dr. James L. Hughes.
 Fathers of noble sons are we—
 Heroes who died for liberty;
 Sons who to us will ever be
 Living in loving memory.

Glad they were men whose hearts were true,
 Proudly we saw them go to do
 Duty for home and empire, too;
 Duty for right with vision new.

Sons such as ours brought no sad tears;
 Lives such as theirs ne'er gave us fears;
 Deep in our hearts thru coming years
 Grandly will ring their parting cheers.

ITALIANS ESTABLISHED IN NEW DEFENCE LINES

removal of the headquarters westward. The commander of the troops in this section read to them, with emotion, General Cadorna's stirring appeal to the soldiers to stand firm, and all joined in loyal shouts of "Long live Italy!"

Saturday morning the correspondent was summoned at daylight and informed that all must leave at once as the headquarters had been removed. The railway was given over to troops, artillery and stores. Private trains and the telegraph had been suspended. All sorts of vehicles and horses were impressed for military requirements. Thousands of persons were walking along the roads, and the refugees, carrying the pitiful remnants of their household goods salvaged in their flight before the invaders.

The correspondent succeeded in boarding an automobile of the last British Red Cross unit to leave. A final look, at midnight, from the top of the Red Cross building found that the eastern horizon was ablaze with continual explosions as the Italians blew up munition depots and bridges. The Germans advanced to the enemy and screen their own retreat. A fierce bombardment was punctuated with star shells from such side, while the Germans attempted to discover their opponent's position.

Clogged the Roads.
 At daylight Sunday the vast traffic of the railway mainline clogged the roads for miles. The Red Cross automobile party expected to make 80 miles inside of two hours, but it developed that it would take at least two days to achieve this distance.

The withdrawal of the heavy guns and the munitions supplies revealed a military genius of the highest order, the enemy succeeded in looting the difficulty of the huge military removal. A torrential rain increased the hardships of the soldiers and added to the misery of the women and children who had walked seemingly endless miles over the roads and thru the fields all night.

Sunday morning at a railway crossing, a steady succession of flat cars assisted in the removal of the artillery. The monster guns were mounted on double cars, and covered by boughs as a screen against air raiders. The rain was providential, as clear weather would have permitted the enemy aeroplanes to bombard the roads and block the withdrawal.

Along the line of retreat were many wounded being carried on stretchers. The Red Cross car took aboard one soldier with a shell wound in his arm. Sunday night this car made only 15 miles, where the wounded man was taken to a hospital.

The military occupied the entire town and there was no room for lodging. The mayor had posted a proclamation ordering strangers away. An Italian officer offered to permit the correspondent to sleep on the ground in the barracks, but later a place was obtained in the stall of a stable adjoining a hotel.

Monday morning the Red Cross party crossed the Tagliamento River, which at this point is about the width of the Hudson River. The Red Cross car took aboard one soldier with a shell wound in his arm. Sunday night this car made only 15 miles, where the wounded man was taken to a hospital.

PROLONGED WAR STRAIN HAS WORN RUSSIANS OUT

Kerensky Says Allies Must Take Up Heaviest Part of the Burden—Russia Loyal to the Entente, Premier Declares.

Petrograd, Nov. 2.—Russia is worn out by the strain of war, and must have help, Premier Kerensky yesterday told the Associated Press. He said that Russia claims as her right that the other allies now should shoulder the burden which she has borne.

"Russia has fought consistently since the beginning. She saved France and England from disaster early in the war. She is now worn out by the strain, and claims as her right that the allies now shoulder the burden." Thus he explained Russia's position. The premier was seated in the library of the former private office of the emperor in the Winter Palace. The correspondent called attention to widely contradictory reports on Russian conditions, and asked the premier for a frank statement of the facts.

"It has been said by travelers returning from England and elsewhere to America that opinion among the people, not officially, but generally, is that Russia is virtually out of the war," he explained.

"Is Russia out of the war?" Premier Kerensky laughed. "That," he answered, "is a ridiculous question. Russia is taking an enormous part in the war. One has only to remember history. Russia began the war for the allies. While she was already fighting England was only preparing and America was only observing."

"Russia at the beginning bore the whole brunt of the fighting, thereby saving Great Britain and France. People who say that Russia is out of the war have short memories. We have fought since the beginning, and have the right to claim that the allies now take the heaviest part of the burden on their shoulders."

"At present Russian public opinion is greatly agitated by the question, 'Where is the great British fleet, now that the German fleet is out in the Baltic?'"

"Could an American army be of use if sent to Russia?"

"It would be impossible to send one," said Kerensky. "It is a question of transport. The difficulties are too great."

"If America cannot send troops what would be the most useful way for her to help Russia?" was asked.

"America Can Help." "Have her send boots, leather, iron, and," the premier added emphatically, "money."

The premier was asked regarding the morale of the Russian people and the Russian army. He answered: "The masses are worn out economically. The disorganized state of life in general has had a psychological effect on the people. They doubt the possibility of the attainment of their hopes."

Washington, Nov. 2.—Secretary of State Lansing has issued a statement saying: "There has been absolutely nothing in the despatches received by the department of state from Russia, nor in information derived from any other source whatever to justify the impression created by The Washington Post today, principally by the headline, 'Russia quits war,' that Russia is out of the conflict."

Credits totaling $25,000,000 to Russia have been authorized by the treasury. There remains available for Russia here $184,100,000. Apparently there is no intention to withdraw any of the unexpended credits.

Great Britain's advances to Russia are perhaps almost ten times as great as the sum advanced by the United States. It is estimated that since the war began England has advanced at least $2,000,000,000 to Russia, and it is known that she was still advancing funds a short time ago.

A high percentage of the money advanced by England has been spent in the United States, much of it during the first year of the war, when Great Britain virtually assumed Russia's obligations for munitions and other supplies in this country.

Washington, Nov. 2.—Premier Kerensky's statement that America's most effective help to Russia would be the sending of money, was regarded here as possibly forestalling a formal request for the transportation of gold to Russia, but it was thought more likely that what the premier had in mind was the establishment of credits here up to the purchase of supplies to be shipped to Russia.

"Have her send boots," the premier was quoted as saying in response to a question as to how America could help best, "leather, iron" and, with emphasis, "money."

The sending of actual money out of the country to any of the allies would establish a precedent here and would be diametrically opposite to the American Government's present policy, which aims at the conservation of the huge store of gold piled up since the war started. As a means of making conservation effective, what was placed by parliamentary provision on the list of commodities which may be loaned for export, and the federal reserve board, under Secretary McAdoo's supervision, announced a policy of holding gold in reserve to the minimum.

American gold officials asserted today, can do Russia more good than remains in this country. There is unanimity of opinion among officials that Russia's need would have to be supreme to warrant the actual transportation across the ocean of any appreciable amount.

Ready to Make New Loans.
 The American Government apparently is entirely willing to grant further requests for credits. It has granted Russia's requests with alacrity in the past, and Secretary McAdoo has announced repeatedly that the government would place money where it would be most effective in fighting Germany.

So expeditiously has the treasury acted in establishing Russian credits that until today Russia had not expended the first of three credits of $175,000,000 granted her in this country, totaling $225,000,000. The formal transfer today to Russian account of $17,700,000 from the treasury to the Federal Reserve Bank of New York, brought the total she has withdrawn up to $190,000,000, or $15,900,000 more than the first credit of $175,000,000 granted her.

There still remains a credit for Russian expenditure for munitions, leather, iron and other needed commodities, of $124,100,000, without the authorization of another credit and there is every indication that if another credit were needed it would be granted promptly.

SOLDIERS PUNISHED

Results of Several Courts-Martial Are Announced.

Notice was posted by the military authorities yesterday afternoon that 37 soldiers who had recently been tried by the civil authorities on charges of "absent without leave" had been convicted and sentenced to terms of detention varying from 28 days to one year. One will serve terms in the Ontario Reformatory, and seven at the Toronto Industrial Farm. Two others were given suspended sentences.

Ensign Norman C. K. Boshor, No. 2 Co. Special Service Battalion, who was tried recently by court-martial on "without leave" charges, was sentenced to 12 months' imprisonment for neglecting his equipment, including his rifle, and for an act of insubordination and military discipline. He was sentenced to imprisonment with hard labor for one year and three months, and to receive 100 days of his equipment. Pte. P. C. Travis, First Depot Battalion, First Bn. C. R. was convicted and sentenced to 30 days hard labor on a charge of stealing a comrade's goods. Pte. T. R. O. R. was found guilty on a charge of "malting" beer, and was sentenced to a charge of "conduct to the prejudice of good order and military discipline."

The court of the trial by district court-martial of Corp. Fred W. Layman, of the Special Service Battalion, on Oct. 24, was announced yesterday. He was found not guilty on all charges, but was found guilty of without leave, and was sentenced to 28 days' imprisonment for his charge, but was found guilty of without leave, and was sentenced to 28 days' imprisonment for his charge, and was sentenced to 28 days' imprisonment for his charge, and was sentenced to 28 days' imprisonment for his charge.

Farmers Want to Buy Potatoes From Trades and Labor Council

The Trades and Labor Council has received letters from farmers asking it to sell them potatoes at 60 cents a bag, according to an alleged press notice of two weeks ago. In view of the prevailing wholesale quotations of at least $1.10 a bag, this request from producers has caused some merriment among the ranks of the Trades and Labor Council. It is not in the potato business, and the misapprehension of the potato growers is said to have arisen from an address recently delivered by a farmer whose figures must have been misquoted.

Hopes Women Will Adopt This Habit As Well As Men

Glass of hot water each morning helps us look and feel clean, sweet, fresh.

Happy, bright, alert—vigorous and vivacious—a good clear skin; a natural, rosy complexion and freedom from illness are assured only by clean, healthy blood. If only every woman and likewise every man could realize the wonders of the morning inside bath, what a gratifying change would take place.

Instead of the thousands of sickly, anaemic-looking men, women and girls with pasty or muddy complexions; instead of the multitudes of "nervous wrecks," "run-downs," "brain fags" and pessimists we should see a virile, optimistic throng of rosy-cheeked people everywhere.

An inside bath is had by drinking, each morning before breakfast, a glass of real hot water with a teaspoonful of limestone phosphate in it to wash from the stomach, liver, kidneys and ten yards of bowels the previous day's indigestible waste, sour fermentations and poisons; thus cleansing, sweetening and freshening the entire alimentary canal before putting more food into the stomach.

Those subject to sick headache, biliousness, "nasty" breath, rheumatism, indigestion, and particularly those who have a pallid, sallow complexion and who are constipated very often, are urged to obtain a quarter-pound of limestone phosphate at the drug store, which will cost but a trifle, but is sufficient to demonstrate the quick and remarkable change in both health and appearance awaiting those who practice internal sanitation. We must remember that inside cleanliness is more important than outside, because the skin does not absorb impurities to contaminate the blood, while the pores in the thirty feet of bowels do.

KENNEDY GUILTY IN CONSPIRACY CASE

Charge Against Purdy is Not Proven and He is Let Free.
TRUE BILLS OF MURDER

Grand Jury Also Returns One True Bill of Manslaughter.

Byron E. Kennedy was found guilty by the jury in the assassinations, sitting until one o'clock this morning, of conspiring with Mabel Hughie and Isabella Cook to procure an instrument for the purpose of performing an illegal operation upon the person of Clement McCarthy. Mr. Purdy was found not guilty on a similar charge, and was discharged by Mr. Justice Kelly after being advised to having a lawyer. Kennedy was committed to jail to await sentence.

The feature of the afternoon's proceedings was the cross-examination of B. E. Kennedy, one of the accused, who was unable to explain why he should testify on oath that his lotion, alleged to have been used for illegal purposes, was absolutely harmless, while at the same time the instructions accompanying its sale warn women against its use during pregnancy.

Asked to Give Advice.

Mrs. Turner, alleged to be a friend of the defendant B. E. Kennedy, testified to having been asked to advise Miss Hughie as to the purposes of the lotion sold by Kennedy, and to have refused to participate in the matter. Miss Hughie, very reluctantly gave evidence to the effect that she heard the prisoner, Kennedy, advise Miss Hughie to try the lotion and see if it would prove successful for the purpose intended. Mrs. Isabella Cook, one of the defendants, stated that she had heard the prisoner, Kennedy, say something must be done in the matter, no matter how much the cost, and that she was with Miss Hughie for over 40 hours engaged in explaining the use and purpose of the lotion sold by Kennedy.

Detective Bought Some.

Detective Montgomery was the next witness in the box, and testified that he went to Kennedy's office and bought a packet of the lotion alleged to have been used by Hughie. He testified that he bought a packet of the lotion from a man who followed Detective Montgomery, stated that Inspector Kennedy had warned the accused man, B. E. Kennedy, against giving increasing evidence. The sergeant then recounted Kennedy's evidence to the effect that Miss Hughie and Mrs. Cook had come to his office to buy a lotion and antiseptic powders. Kennedy, according to this evidence, is a shoe manufacturer with a hobby for selling rubber goods, lotions and antiseptics.

A Smith, a Chemist of the City.

A Smith, a chemist of the city, stated, in course of examination, that he put up just one mixture for the antiseptic solution which Kennedy is the managing director.
B. E. Kennedy was now put in the box. Giving evidence, he stated that he sold both a lotion and a mixture of Miss Hughie. He had made no change in the ingredients of the lotion. Shown Mr. Smith's formula, the witness referred to the occasion when Mrs. Turner called on him. He left them together. Nothing was said about Miss Hughie's condition. Later, Miss Hughie called on him and bought a packet of the lotion, paying $4. He heard of Miss Hughie's condition only after the sale had been effected. Further, he testified that he had no personal knowledge of what use had been made of the lotion bought. The prisoner disclaimed all knowledge of any derogatory statements made to his wife, or whether he ever met Dr. Clemer, recently convicted on the charge of conducting an illegal operation. The other prisoner, Purdy, an entire stranger to him, had come into his store on only one occasion, and there was absolutely no truth in the statement that Purdy had mentioned "something must be done, no matter what the cost."

Tight It Harmless.

Cross-examined by Peter White, K.C., witness stated his emphatic belief that his lotion was harmless.
Mr. White: Then why, sir, do we find in your own instructions to this lotion, "This preparation is dangerous to women during the period of pregnancy?"
I did that for business reasons.
The witness was not a warning, but as an incitement for the unfortunate.
Further examination elicited the evidence that the package which Kennedy sold for $2 cost him 35c.
Mr. White: Altho principally a shoe manufacturer, your principal line of business has been, I take it, this Antiseptic Chemical Co.?
Yes, for three years past.
The witness, who underwent rigid cross-examination with considerable composure, denied the statement to the effect that Miss Hughie was advised as to the proper use of the lotion for the specific purpose desired. The cross-examination counsel led the thread of his examination to the point of getting the witness to say just what Mrs. Turner was to have explained to Mabel Hughie relative to the lotion.
Mr. White: Can you tell the jury why Mrs. Turner refused to explain to Miss Hughie just how this lotion was to be used? What was Mrs. Turner asked to explain?
Merely the exact method involved in the use of the lotion.
Merely the exact purposes, you mean?
Dr. N. A. Paul called to give evidence as to the nature of the lotion in question, stated that if used in proper quantity it would prove harmless, but dangerous for women if taken in abnormal quantities.
Counsel having addressed the jury, and the judge having charged them as to their duty in the matter, they retired at 1:10 p.m. and brought in their unanimous verdict at 12:40 a.m.

REGISTERED MEN CANNOT GET WORK

Because Category Was Not Stated, They Are Turned Down.
VICTIMS PROVOKED

Trouble Arises From Classification Not Being Marked on Counterfoil.

Failure by the military service council to state in the counterfoil issued to men subject to the present call who have reported for military service at the post-offices, the category to which they were assigned by the army doctors has aroused criticism by those who are thus handicapped.
John F. Mitchell, 101 Ford street, and Henry Peacock, 467 Gunn's road, who on examination were assigned to Category C, have reported for military service. They were employed in a munition plant which recently they have since made numerous applications for work, and in each case have been required to submit the counterfoil issued by the office, which merely stated that they had reported for military service. The consequence is that employers will not consider their applications, believing that they will possibly be drafted into the army in a few weeks. According to a recent announcement, only men in Category A will be called under the first draft, and therefore, they are not liable. The postmaster with whom they filed their applications has retained their medical sheets, and the certificates relating to their category are being destroyed. They say as a result, have been unable to obtain work, and feel very keenly over the matter.

Incumbent Feared.

At the offices of the Ontario Registrar under the Military Service Act, it was stated that the reason the category is not being placed on the counterfoil is because it was considered possible that many counterfoils might be "wrongly marked by inexperienced clerks." The registrar's office also point out that employers should not object to employing a man because of his category, as no employer would be penalized for employing even a Grade A man, so long as he was not retained after being actually called to the colors.

Men exempted by the tribunals will issue with certificates of exemption by the registrar's department.

The sending out of these exemption certificates will be held in force after Nov. 12, but even then, it is stated, the date of issuing an exemption certificate depends on whether a man's case is due to come up before a tribunal in November or in early December.

ADVERTISING FROM CUSTOMERS' ANGLE

Last of Talks on Merchandising at Convocation Hall, Was Largely on This Phase.
Frank Stockdale, the merchandising expert, gave the fourth and last of his series of lectures to Toronto merchants on Friday night in the Convocation Hall. His topic for the evening was "Getting the information the customer wants." In advertising, he said, too often the merchant decides what the customer ought to know and advertises to tell him that, but the better way was to find out what kind of information is desired, and give it. He cited several instances where surprising results were obtained on investigation. The fundamental in advertising were simplicity of language and specific and positive facts. "Start always with a customer's interest, not yours," he said. Understate rather than overstate. A merchant should be an authority on his goods and he could find out about his merchandise from the travelers, and his wholesale houses. "Always make a study of a customer's competitors," he advised his audience, "and then study your goods and your advertising, but mainly study your customer."

Many a slow man develops into a sprinter when he has a chance to run into debt.

BOYS' PLAY ENDS IN YOUTH BEING SHOT

Examination Showed That Bullet Was Lodged in Lungs, Near Heart.
With a bullet wound in his left lung, close to his heart, 17-year-old William Clark was rushed to the General Hospital at 6 o'clock last evening. The bullet was fired from a rifle in the hands of a 13-year-old boy named Joseph Davis of 104 Chester avenue. Davis was arrested at his home later on in the evening by Acting Detective Crowe, charged with wounding.

Several boys were playing in a barn at the rear of 121 Arundel avenue.

The police say that Davis and another boy went into the stable with the gun and were ordered out by Clark. The latter says that when Davis and his companion went out into the yard the stable door closed. The shot was fired from a .22 calibre rifle. It went thru the door and struck Clark in the back. The boy was attended by Dr. Morrison of Danforth avenue and then rushed to the hospital. In the meantime Davis ran away. It is believed that the gun belonged to an uncle of young Davis living on Parliament street. The boy returned the gun and then went home, where he was arrested by the detective who called to the late last night an X-ray was made and it showed that the bullet had penetrated the lung and was lodged close to the heart. Altho Clark's condition is very serious, doctors reported his condition so favorable at midnight that they hold out every hope for the lad's recovery. His home is at 84 Eighth street.

CHICAGO MAY HAVE RACES WHEN WANTED States-Attorney Tells Bert Collyer That Very Best Class Must Be Interested.

Chicago, Nov. 2.—Attorney General Bert Collyer, who is seeking restoration to Chicago and willing to lend his aid to that end, but holding that any such attempt must have behind it a substantial number of horse breeders and local business men of moral and financial standing.

Advocating a law to give the sport a legal foothold in the state, Mr. Collyer, however, sets his face against the present form of wagering.

Before Chicago or the state may have racing a spontaneous demand for it must spring from those representing the best element.

Nothing less will do. Nor can such an attempt to put over the Austin meeting or the Hawthorne one, which year hope to conduct a gambling saturnalia under the guise of an endeavor to improve the breed of the thoroughbred.

It is foolish and useless for this element to think that it can bring the officials as to their true intent or purpose.

A racing law in the State of Illinois is what the sport needs, and such law is by no means visionary.

But betting as it regards the sport should be, and of secondary nature. Racing has its utilitarian aspect, now as never before, in the improvement of the breed of the thoroughbred is a vital issue, with us as with all nations engaged in the war, and not a mere subterfuge.

Let those who may now view it only from its sporting side study it as one of the important elements in the salvation of democracy to the world and we will have racing back. Chicago lacked by the very class I have indicated as being the only ones who may bring its rehabilitation about.

WEEKLY SPORT LETTER By Frank G. Menke. New York, Nov. 2.—Bob Fitzsimmons never was credited with being a brash fighter. The stories of his ring battles are glowing tributes to his amazing endurance powers, his terrific punch and his gameness.

There is no elaboration of his shrewdness. Yet an analysis of every great fight in which the Australian warrior mixed is eloquent evidence of his craftiness.

Rarely during the heyday of his career did Fitz win a fight without apparently being in a bad way during the early rounds. Fitz was an absolute master in faking grogginess, and time and again by that method lured his foes to their doom.

A nose that bled easily aided Fitz in his trick of deceiving opponents as to his real condition. He figured the odds were that he would win.

No better illustration of the shrewdness of the wonderful Australian—and his trickiness—can be painted than the story of his fight with Gus Ruhlin in New York.

The bout was staged on Aug. 10, 1900, while Fitz was making his great "comeback" that was to give him a chance to win back his title from Jim Jeffries. Fitz had won each of his battles since the Jeffries affair with knockouts.

He was anxious to add Ruhlin's name to his list of victims. Gus just then loomed formidably along the horizon, and Fitz knew he had to hurdle Gus—in a convincing way—to assure himself of the chance to go on again with Jeff.

Ruhlin, a heavy hitter, a fast, clever boxer, and one endowed with splendid endurance powers, had the additional advantage of the teaching of Jim Corbett. The Californian had spent many weeks schooling Ruhlin for that fracas and had coached Gus so well in defensive and offensive tactics that he felt sure Gus would be returned victor.

"I'll keep him—keep on jabbing—watch your stomach, and don't let him fool you with a show of grogginess," was Corbett's advice to Ruhlin as "Big Gus" stepped into the ring on August night. It was good counsel, but—

Ruhlin followed orders to the first round. He jabbed—and jabbed—and then jabbed some more. Soon he had blood trickling from Fitz's nose. In the second round Ruhlin continued to beat a tattoo on the Australian's face, with the nose his particular target.

In the third round Ruhlin became a bit bolder and started shooting stiff punches to Fitzsimmons' body. Quickly he had Fitz looking like a man without a chance. Fitz seemed slow and uncertain of foot; his body was being peppered with a fusillade of heavy wallops, and again and again Gus banged Fitzsimmons' nose.

As the fourth round ended, Fitz was a pitiful sight. His face was one solid mass of blood. But the crowd hadn't noticed that tricky Fitz was the sneaky artist. Every few seconds he would rub a glove on the blood from his nose and spread it around on his face, making a ghastly spectacle of himself.

As the gong sounded, he floundered around and almost had to be led to his corner. When he got there, he kept muttering: "Where's the chair—where's the chair?"

Fitz seconds had to place him into it, and Fitz stopped down like a man worn to absolute exhaustion. It seemed inhuman for his seconds to permit him to start the fifth—send him out so early in the fight, when the bell rang they let him go. Fitz tottered toward the center.

Ruhlin, disregarding Corbett's advice, pushed at Fitz. "I think he's getting pushed at Fitz. He figured the odds were that he would win.

As Ruhlin came within range, Fitz started a seemingly mad stampede toward the center. He started his right arm as if for Ruhlin's nose, and then, as Gus threw up his hands in a right ready for the Australian's attack, he started his left arm as if for Ruhlin's stomach.

Gus Ruhlin crumpled to the floor, going into a state of coma which lasted more than seven hours. After the fight, a friend remarked to Fitz: "You looked very bad in the fourth, Bob."

Whereupon Fitz replied, with a grin: "Hain't I 'a' great little fighter?"

BARS DIRECT TRADE WITH EUROPEANS

United States Food Administration Takes Control of Flour Shipments.

PACKAGE SALES CUT

American Millers Will Receive Share of Export Orders.

New York, Nov. 2.—The milling division of the United States food administration announced here tonight that effective immediately, all direct trading by American millers, exporters and blenders of flour with European countries is prohibited. This business will be handled hereafter only by the food administration.

The new regulations were made, it was stated, "to centralize the handling of flour to European neutrals, and in order to protect the interest of consumers who have necessarily had to pay a relatively high price for flour purchased in very small packages."

WHITE MICE IN DEMAND TO TEST AIR IN U-BOATS

United States Government Purchases All Available Supplies for Naval Service.

New York, Nov. 2.—White mice are in urgent demand in New York and throughout the United States generally. Because the United States Government is using the little animals to test impurities in the air in submarines, thus using a large part of the available supply, the research laboratory of the department of health may have to discontinue testing pneumonia germs for the physicians of the city, it was announced tonight.

CITIZENS DISAPPOINTED.

Kingston, Nov. 2.—Altho Kingston was promised Hydro-Electric power by Act 11 it has not yet arrived and the utilities commission and citizens generally are very much disappointed. The reason given for the delay is that it is impossible to get the necessary machinery for the sub-station here. Electrical manufacturing companies all had their staff depleted owing to the war.

HEALTH OF DR. BELAND REMAINS QUITE GOOD

Civilian Who Escaped From Germany Tells of Canadian Minister's Work.

London, Nov. 2.—The Canadian Associated Press had an interview with a civilian who has just escaped from Germany and who was an intimate fellow-prisoner of Dr. Beland, former postmaster-general of Canada. This person escaped on his third attempt, having twice served periods of solitary confinement as punishment for previous endeavors. Dr. Beland, he says, enjoys good health. He did not originally regularly live in prison, but has done so since June, when he was out twice weekly under guard. He says he has recovered his spirits a good deal after the blow of his wife's death. The news of her death, he says, was kept from Dr. Beland three days, apparently so that he should not have a good excuse for asking to go to Belgium to attend the funeral. Dr. Beland had mentioned going to Hudeben camp, but prefers to remain in his present quarters. He is well liked by his fellow-prisoners. He has given his medical services freely among the British prisoners, who maintain a kitchen at their own expense, in which Dr. Beland is most efficient cook. He has received parcels from Canada and the high commissioner, London, for which he is most grateful.

BRITISH-BORN REFUSED LANDING IN DOMINION

Two Families, Provided With Passports, Denied Entry at Victoria, B.C.

Victoria, Nov. 2.—Two families, British born and armed with British passports signed by the British consul at Kobe, Japan, were refused a landing from a Japanese steamer by the local immigration department early this week, under the ruling of orders-in-council prohibiting the entry of persons, skilled or unskilled, into British Columbia. Claiming to have been born in England, the heads of the families stated that they had been sent to the Orient as representatives of a prominent rubber manufacturing firm. They had their up and down, and with dwindling finances it was decided to cross the Pacific to Canada. The two families were forced to go to Seattle, where their cases will be taken up by United States immigration officials.

TO HELP NATURE SHED A BAD COMPLEXION

Beauty devotees are enthusiastic over the beautifying qualities of merozized wax. Nothing discovered within recent years accomplishes so much, so quickly, without harm, at such small expense. The principal reason for its wonderful merit is that it works in harmony with physiological laws. Instead of hiding complexion defects, it removes them. It actually takes off the aged, faded, yellow, freckled or blotchy surface skin—gently, gradually, causing no inconvenience. It is Nature's way of renewing complexion. When the natural process is retarded because of deficient circulation or nerve tone, and hastens the skin shedding. The new complexion which appears is a natural one, youthful, healthy, exquisitely beautiful. If you've never tried merozized wax, get a little like cold cream, washing it off in the morning.

C.P.R. WILL APPEAL COLLISION AWARD

Seeks to Benefit Under Judgment Against Norwegian Steamer Storstad.

Montreal, Nov. 2.—The Canadian Pacific Railway Company is appealing to the supreme court against the judgment of Mr. Justice MacLennan, of the admiralty court, to the effect that the proceeds of the sale of the Norwegian coast steamer Storstad, which was wrecked on the coast of the Canadian province of Nova Scotia, should be divided pro rata amongst the claimants for the loss of life as a result of the sinking of the C.P.R. liner, Empress of Ireland, in the St. Lawrence River, about seven miles northeast of Fisher Point, on May 29, 1914. The C.P.R. claims that the funds for distribution should be divided pro rata amongst all claimants—claimants for material loss, as well as for loss of life. The biggest claimant for material loss—the loss of the Empress of Ireland.

Civilian Who Escaped From Germany Tells of Canadian Minister's Work.

London, Nov. 2.—The Canadian Associated Press had an interview with a civilian who has just escaped from Germany and who was an intimate fellow-prisoner of Dr. Beland, former postmaster-general of Canada. This person escaped on his third attempt, having twice served periods of solitary confinement as punishment for previous endeavors. Dr. Beland, he says, enjoys good health. He did not originally regularly live in prison, but has done so since June, when he was out twice weekly under guard. He says he has recovered his spirits a good deal after the blow of his wife's death. The news of her death, he says, was kept from Dr. Beland three days, apparently so that he should not have a good excuse for asking to go to Belgium to attend the funeral. Dr. Beland had mentioned going to Hudeben camp, but prefers to remain in his present quarters. He is well liked by his fellow-prisoners. He has given his medical services freely among the British prisoners, who maintain a kitchen at their own expense, in which Dr. Beland is most efficient cook. He has received parcels from Canada and the high commissioner, London, for which he is most grateful.

BRITISH-BORN REFUSED LANDING IN DOMINION

Two Families, Provided With Passports, Denied Entry at Victoria, B.C.

Victoria, Nov. 2.—Two families, British born and armed with British passports signed by the British consul at Kobe, Japan, were refused a landing from a Japanese steamer by the local immigration department early this week, under the ruling of orders-in-council prohibiting the entry of persons, skilled or unskilled, into British Columbia. Claiming to have been born in England, the heads of the families stated that they had been sent to the Orient as representatives of a prominent rubber manufacturing firm. They had their up and down, and with dwindling finances it was decided to cross the Pacific to Canada. The two families were forced to go to Seattle, where their cases will be taken up by United States immigration officials.

Beauty devotees are enthusiastic over the beautifying qualities of merozized wax. Nothing discovered within recent years accomplishes so much, so quickly, without harm, at such small expense. The principal reason for its wonderful merit is that it works in harmony with physiological laws. Instead of hiding complexion defects, it removes them. It actually takes off the aged, faded, yellow, freckled or blotchy surface skin—gently, gradually, causing no inconvenience. It is Nature's way of renewing complexion. Canada's Victory Loan Will Keep the Workers Busy

WHEN the war started many people predicted the ruin of Canada's industries.

But time has shown that the natural resources and basic industries of Canada are of immense importance in helping to keep Great Britain supplied with food, munitions and equipment.

Because of this, there has been a steady cash market for the farmers, as well as plenty of work at good wages for all the workers in other lines of industry.

But now the time has come when Great Britain can purchase her supplies on this side of the Atlantic only on credit. If Canada does not grant this credit, Britain will be obliged to place her orders where credit is available. If Canada does grant this credit our cash markets will be continued and the workers kept busy.

The Only Way to raise the money needed to establish this credit is by borrowing from all the people of Canada through the sale of Victory Bonds.

Every man and woman in Canada, therefore, is vitally interested in the success of Canada's Victory Loan, for upon its complete success depends the continuance of Canada's agricultural and business prosperity.

Everybody Benefits—Everybody should Buy Canada's Victory Bonds when they are offered November 12

Issued by Canada's Victory Loan Committee in co-operation with the Minister of Finance of the Dominion of Canada.

SOLDIERS' INSURANCE GREATEST PROBLEM

Matter Will Be Up Again Before City Council on Monday. From the impassioned private session of the city council on Thursday afternoon, when the insuring of soldiers was considered behind closed doors, there is every indication that the meeting of the city council on Monday will be an interesting one.

Soldiers' insurance will likely be discussed at length with at least three possible courses of action being strongly supported by members of the council. This is regarded as the greatest problem facing the city at the present time, and with no conclusions reached at the private session there is every possibility of the subject taking much of the time at Monday's meeting.

The recommendation of the board of control that 139 acres of land in the Ashbridge's Bay industrial area be set aside for storage tanks, which industries as wish to locate in that area but do not care to locate on leasehold property may also cause considerable debate.

CIVIC EMPLOYMENT BUREAU. More Citizens Are Making Use of Institution Than Formerly.

Larger numbers of citizens are making use of the civic employment bureau, according to the report for last month. During October of this year 984 positions were filled, compared with 602 in October, 1916. In October offers of 461 positions outside the city were received, but only 20 per cent of these were filled. A few returned soldiers have been referred to the bureau for positions, but securing positions for them was difficult on account of their disabilities. Places were found for five of them.
