PAVING THE WAY FOR BEAVERBROOK?

Endorsement by Unusually Hostile Press Makes London Think?

Lord Beaverbrook's Evening News contains a special article, "Beating the Odds," which raises the question in some quarters as to whether the paper is aiming at the Premiership or whether Lord Beaverbrook and Beaverbrook are merely determined to unseat Stanley Baldwin as leader of the Unionist party and its candidate for Prime Minister in the next general election.

After reviewing the immediate political outlook the article says: "Now it is time for the Conservative cabinet to reveal the constructive lines of the policy they intend to set up against the immediate policy of the Labourites. There has been times when I wonder why the shadow cabinet has not called active, modern-minded men like Lord Beaverbrook into its councils. Not even Lord Beaverbrook's opponents deny that he has that glowing, youthful outlook so essential to present day politics."

"He is much travelled, has an intimate knowledge of Canada and other parts of the Empire and possesses the gift of seeing upon what is agitating the thoughts of the most active minded men and women of the masses."

This unusually open approval by one who should naturally be a political rival, together with recent information that Lord Beaverbrook's papers are prepared to support the Liberals if the Unionists refuse, especially since he has been a persistent supporter of the idea that the Unionists should welcome a rapprochement with the Lloyd George wing of the Liberal party.

It is now common knowledge that a group of more Liberals under the leadership of Frederick Guest are actually anxious to link up with the Unionists. This wing being in especially close touch with the Beaverbrook group. Such a development added to the possibility of a dozen or more Liberals, imbued with the idea of bolstering up a real Empire policy, in the British political field, it is all the more possible for the younger wing to act as the party's nominal leaders such as Herbert Asquith, Simon and to some extent Lloyd George are giving to lead and Churchill is definitely swinging toward the Unionists.

NEED CHANGE IN SPEED LAW

Present Law is Not Observed by One Auto Driver in This Town

The town council should at its first meeting amend the law governing the speed of motor vehicles in the town limits. At present the speed limit twelve miles per hour, cannot be observed, as it is almost impossible to run cars so slow, especially on the hills.

In the meantime the police committee should instruct the policeman to use discretion in laying complaints against certain citizens for exceeding the speed limit. We believe that lately many careful drivers have been before the magistrate unjustly. Of course they could not say they were not exceeding the speed limit (12 miles) and were promptly fined, but they were not endangering themselves or any other citizen by going slightly faster. A speed of twenty miles on a straight away street is not excessive, and we know that many drivers go this fast, and some very much faster, but are never apprehended.

There are many reckless drivers in Campbellton, but when the police are out for victims to run their miserable total of fines, they seldom or never get these. Perhaps they are running too fast to get their numbers.

Then there is the speed artist who comes around corners so fast that he cannot keep to the right of the center of the street. This is the man the policeman should get after.

On Sunday last a young man drove around our streets for an hour or two so intoxicated that he could not tell right from left. We have taken charge of it.

There is also altogether too much blowing of horns. All day and into the night people are disturbed by the horn blower. There is no need of all this noise, and in fact it is forbidden in the law.

Campbellton is supposed to have a copy of it since the rule of the road was changed. Every driver should be furnished with a copy of this bylaw. Let us have a sane traffic bylaw.

Dr. Lowell M. Gray has opened a Dental Office in the Marquis Building Water St.

LIFE SENTENCES FOR BOY MURDERERS

Sentence of 99 Years Imprisonment on Charge of Kidnapping for Ransom

Chief Justice Cawley sentenced Nathan Leopold and Richard Loeb to life imprisonment for the murder of Bobby Frank. The sons of the famous Chicago lawyer named for them the life sentence saved them from the noose. Never has a minor been sentenced to death in the State of Illinois on a plea of guilty and he did not wish to establish a precedent.

Looking directly at the boys, Justice Cawley said: "I sentence you, Nathan Leopold to the penitentiary at Joliet for the period of your natural life for the murder of Robert Frank."

Turning back to Leopold, Justice Cawley said:

"I sentence you, Richard Loeb, to the penitentiary at Joliet for the murder of Robert Frank."

And then the final sentence:

"I sentence you, Nathan Leopold to the penitentiary at Joliet for 99 years for the kidnapping of Robert Frank."

AUTO ACCIDENT SUNDAY NIGHT

Three Cars Damaged on Callahan's Hill—None Injured Although Cars Badly Damaged

On Sunday evening as several cars were returning from down country there occurred a very serious accident which might have caused serious injury to more than one person. A Chevrolet car, driven by Mr. Hamilton of Black Lands was making a run for the hill and stepped on the car driven by Mr. Wm. Ferguson removing a couple of hub caps and damaging two fenders. The Essex Coach driven by Mr. H. E. G. Bridges, which was following Mr. Ferguson, stepped on the front of the Chevrolet and his car was turned over and severely damaged. Although the damage to the Essex coach was not so great as that sustained by the Chevrolet, the car coming toward town was proceeding at a very slow rate of speed. The car coming up the hill driven by Mr. Hamilton, would appear to be the cause of the accident inasmuch as it passed the two leading cars and came to grief by hitting the second and third. We are informed that the case has been put in a lawyers hands.

This takes the form of a contest, and besides the grand capital prize there are a number of local prizes for the best essay written by a local boy or girl.

His Worship Mayor McKay was appointed chairman of the local committee while M. A. Kelly, C. A. Alexander, H. E. G. Bridges, J. H. Moore, and E. Renault were named to act on said committee.

The first prize for the competition which is open to all those who are in high school or the lower grades is a $15,000 home and there are several other international prizes.

A heavy easterly rain set in early this morning and a large amount of rain has fallen.

PLANS FOR NEW COUNTY BUILDING AT DALHOUSIE

Architect Has Plans and Specifications Made and Tenders are asked for Erection of New Building—Great Power Given Council Committees.

In the dying hours of the semi-annual session of the Restigouche Municipal Council, held on Wednesday, July 2nd, without any notice being given the councillors or the public at large the following resolution was passed:

Moved by Councillor Montgomery seconded by Councillor Miller that Whereas the Building Committee did not act on the resolution of this Council regarding a Registry Office for the County that Whereas our County buildings are all old and out of repair. That the present Public Lands and Buildings Committee be authorized and be hereby authorized to have plans made by a Competent Architect for new County House, said building to be of brick and to include Registry Office, County Secretary's Office, Auditor's Office, Council Chambers and Court House with space room for Clerk of the Peace and Crown Prosecutor, and that said Committee be empowered and authorized to call for tenders for the same and that said Committee acting along with the Finance Committee be authorized to award contract for same. Carried.

The Public Lands and Buildings Committee is composed of the following: Couns. Montgomery, Miller, Savoie, Doyle, LeBlanc, Dalhousie, Malenfant, Lavasseur, Cool and Montgomery.

According to this resolution passed at the semi-annual session of the County Council these two committees have been given power to erect a new County House, without limit as to price. They are empowered to have plans and specifications made and call for tenders and award same without reporting to the Council.

This resolution was presented by Coun. Montgomery at the last of the session, when councillors were anxious to adjourn to catch the only train out of the shire town that evening, in order to get to their homes. Every councillor has been interviewed has admitted that he did not know this resolution contained the last clause, but understood that it called for plans and specifications to be prepared and an estimate only to be submitted at the regular annual session to be held in January.

When the resolution was put it was at first voted down but as some councillors were not in their seats, these were summoned and the vote retaken when it was declared carried. Two councillors were absent, Couns. Cheever of Eldon and Cool of Campbellton.

We understand that the attention of the Warden was called to the fact that the first Tuesday in July fell on a public holiday and that he instructed the Secretary-Treasurer to notify every councillor that the meeting would be held on Wednesday July 2nd. So far as we can learn, no such notice was sent.

This is a serious matter and one which, should be dealt with promptly. Citizens of Campbellton are today paying a large percentage of the municipal taxes, and with our already heavy burdens, this additional tax will mean a great deal.

It has been suggested that a special meeting of the County Council be called at once to deal with this matter. The Graphic has been informed that the following Councillors voted for the resolution: Montgomery, Miller, Murdoch, Doyle, Firth, LeBlanc, Savoie, McKinnon, Gillis.

Against the motion—Martin, Lavasseur, Belanger, Sauter and Malenfant.

TOO MUCH PROTECTION

The chief difficulty facing the Maritime Provinces is the 'high cost' of production brought about by too much protection on Canadian made goods. This is the idea expressed by Angus McLean, of the Bathurst Company, Ltd. in a letter to the secretary of the Maritime Division of the Canadian Manufacturers' Association, replying to a circular sent out by the association prior to the recent unemployment conference in Ottawa.

The St. Louis now ranks with the best hotels in the province.

HOTEL ST. LOUIS IMPROVEMENTS

New Thoroughly Renovated, More Baths and Other Improvements Made

The Hotel St. Louis is now up and open after a thorough renovating. The entire building has been repainted and repaired. A new furnace has been installed and radiators placed in all the rooms and halls. Fifteen baths have been installed, and running water in twenty-five additional rooms.

The St. Louis now ranks with the best hotels in the province.

HYDRO LINE IS ALMOST COMPLETED

New Pole Line to Deliver Hydro to Campbellton Rapidly Nearing Completion

The work on the new pole line from Matapedia to Campbellton is nearing completion. Already the poles have been erected from Matapedia to within two miles of the town limits. The remainder of the poles will be in place in a few days and the work of stringing the line will be started. If everything moves along with the speed and precision that has been maintained during the past month there can be little doubt but that there will be hydro in town early in October. From Matapedia North the company is progressing favorably and has partly completed their pole line. The company are using the steel towers for part of the distance at least and have the necessary material on hand along the line waiting to be assembled. Everyone will welcome the advent of hydro and no doubt we will be so pleased with the change in conditions that we will welcome even a twenty year contract.

BOLD ROBBERY ON MIRAMICHI

Two Men Under Arrest and Loot Recovered at Newcastle

Newcastle, N. B., Sept. 9.—With the return today of Chief of Police Hopkins it became known that one of the boldest robberies in years on the Miramichi had been completely cleaned up. An automobile, eight bales of netting, valued at $300 and a bear robe comprised the loot and it has all been recovered from where it was cached in the woods near Barryville, while the two alleged to have committed the robbery, Bert Miller, of Newcastle and Frank Barry, of Barryville, are locked up and a third man, whose name is not given out, is held as a material witness.

The automobile and the nets were the property of R. W. Crocker and were stolen from a garage in the rear of the property of Crocker's father at 3 a.m. That car broke down and an old car owned by Miller was then secured and a bear robe stolen from James Irard, a baker, formerly of St. John. Then the lot was taken to the woods near Barryville and was hidden. Chief Hopkins and Deputy Sheriff Doran have recovered all the loot as well as the parties. Miller was on a two years suspended sentence and Barry has a criminal record.

AN OLD TIMER VISITS HERE

Daniel Thompson Visits Scenes of His Early Boyhood—Sees Great Changes

There was in Campbellton this week one of the old time Restigouche in the person of Mr. Daniel Thompson, of Woodstock, who motored to Campbellton with his son Dr. Robert Thompson, whose son and daughter accompanied them. They were all guests of Mr. W. A. Thompson at the St. Louis hotel, who is also a son of this old gentleman.

Mr. Daniel Thompson who is now 93 years of age was born at Dalhousie, later he lived at Charlo, but returned to Dalhousie again. He is a very bright conversationalist, and the Graphic representative spent a very pleasant half hour with him.

One of the first jobs he worked at was the unloading of and hauling the Wm. Hamilton Monument from a sailing ship, which brought it out from Scotland, to its present site. Mr. Wm. Hamilton was the first lumber merchant on the Restigouche, and built a large lumber mill at Dalhousie.

Monday afternoon Mr. Thompson motored to Mission Point, crossing by the up-to-date ferry here. In the old days, said he, we went up to Duncan's point, boarded a birch bark canoe and were paddled across the river. There was no fine sawmill, church or schools at Mission Point in those days.

Needless to state Mr. Thompson saw many changes and great progress in this district. He left Dalhousie seventy-three years ago, but upon a recent visit he was able to find the remains of the old home he lived in, now used as a shed.

During the past seventy-three years Mr. Thompson has resided at Houlton, Me., and Woodstock, and talked most interestingly of the progress made in farming in that district, where so many potatoes are grown.

CANADIAN CHEESE GAINS MORE FAME

Has Found a Splendid Market, Directly Through Wembley Exhibition. Declares One of Trade Commissioners There.

London, Sept. 8.—"Canadian cheese has found a splendid market directly through the exhibition," one of the Canadian Trade Commissioners at Wembley announced. "Eight thousand pounds of cheese per week is used in the grounds by the caterers and they have also introduced it in all their London cafes. A Canadian dry milk dealer has just sold his output for the next five years to a British firm, an output valued at $800,000. Our fruit display has brought European orders for more than $1,000,000. A firm of show case makers has a small display, more for the reason of being represented at the exhibition, than anything else. European orders have come pouring in and the firm has decided to spend $100,000 on the opening of a permanent establishment in London. I can say that 60 per cent of the exhibitors here are delighted that they came to Wembley. Indirectly business is being done in hundreds of dollars has been stimulated and new channels of commerce opened."

The Canadian Pacific report that the flow of visitors to their gallery is as great as ever and that the three daily lectures and cinematograph performances in their cinema theatres continue to draw crowded audiences from one P. M. to closing time.

NOTICE TO ADVERTISERS

"You know, in your own business, what it would be if all your day's customers waited till minutes of closing time and then squeezed in and demanded instant and perfect attention. It is exactly the same when advertisers bring their copy into our office at the last minute and then expect the composing, room, boys enough time to turn it into snappy layouts. You do your best by our advertising only when you give us time to do our best by it."

DISTRICT MEETING HELD AT CHATHAM

Representatives of Methodist Congregations from Campbellton to Buctouche Meet in St. Luke's Hall.

Representatives from all the Methodist Churches between Campbellton and Buctouche assembled in St. Luke's Hall, Chatham in their Financial District meeting. There were present visiting officials of the church including, Rev. Dr. McConnell, Superintendent of missions, Rev. R. G. Fulton, President of the N. B. and P. E. I. Conference, and Rev. H. H. Outbridge, missionary of Japan and Dr. Watson of Sackville. Three sessions were held. The morning session presided over by Rev. H. C. Rice of Bathurst was devoted to the routine business of the District. It was, however, prefaced by a timely devotional address given by Rev. A. D. McCully of Richibucto, and concluded with a stirring account of the work of the Mt. Allison University is doing, by Rev. Dr. Watson.

In the afternoon the delegates met at 2.30 and listened to a helpful devotional address by Rev. Wm. Godfrey of Campbellton. This session was given over to consideration of plans for the observance of the centenary of the Methodist missionary movement. Historical sketches of Methodism in the district were given by Rev. L. H. Abbott and Rev. H. C. Price. The Rev. Dr. McConnell and Rev. R. G. Fulton outlined plans and objectives in missionary effort for centenary celebration.

In the evening at 7.30, a public meeting was held in the hall. Rev. J. H. A. Anderson brought mutual greetings from the Miramichi, history, and also gave a thoughtful, devotional address. Mrs. R. G. Fulton, whom the Chatham friends were delighted to greet, gave a fine account of the growth of the M. M. S. and the splendid results achieved. Her address was followed by a fine presentation of the worthwhileness of missions by Rev. H. Outbridge of Japan. His address was not only very illuminating but highly convincing, and could not fail to impress all who heard it.

Mr. McConnell's address was fully equal to the occasion emphasizing as it did, the world's great need of Christ, and the church's heroic efforts to meet that need, especially among the foreigners of our own and other lands.

Needless to say, Rev. R. G. Fulton did not disappoint the high expectations of his audience. In a brief speech in which was blended humor and seriousness, he pleaded for a generous response to the appeal of missions.

In concluding the splendid meeting, the Chairman expressed the thanks of the visiting delegates for the hospitality of the people of St. Luke's.

RED CROSS MEETING

The matter of the district health nurse came on duty during July and August was discussed, and it was decided that there were very important months as many children were ill.

An invitation was extended to the Dominion Director of Home Nursing to come to Campbellton and organize a class.

KEEP THAT CONFIDENCE!

Ever since the beginning of the world, confidence has played a tremendous part in the preservation of peace and honor.

Individuals, communities and nations filled with confidence in each other find true contentment and good feeling. Through this confidence, they are of mutual benefit to each other. Just as soon as that confidence is destroyed, that which was productive is gone and all concerned suffer.

Confidence is the basis of business today. Confidence is responsible for the great credit system in the commercial world.

When you buy merchandise or service from a business man in Campbellton, you get credit because of his confidence in you. He believes in you. He knows that you have built up a character and reputation that deserves his confidence.

Keep that confidence! Keep it for your own sake, as well as for the sake of others. Pay your bills promptly! If circumstances arise that you cannot take care of your obligations at the promised time, be frank with your creditor. Let him know that you are remembering his faith in you.

It is only through all of us keeping faith with each other that the granting of credit is possible. Let's create and maintain a "good pay" reputation for Campbellton. Let us build in this community with confidence!

We, whose names are signed below have confidence in the people of Campbellton, and ask them to justify this confidence by keeping their credit in good standing.

SOMETHING INTERESTING ABOUT OUR OWN HOME LAND

Idea Americans are Said to Have of Canada as Seen by a Canadian Author in U. S.

(Contributed by a Dominion Reader)
Down in New York they have a Canadian Club and a monthly organ of publication called The Maple Leaf. In the April issue Arthur Stringer, the ex-Canadian writer has the following article:

Omnia Mutantur, as they used to say on the Tiber. When I went from Canada to Oxford, a good many years ago, my professor Greek asked me how I got along on English roast mutton after so many winters of whale-blower. Last spring when I came from Canada to the States, every second New Yorker looked me earnestly in the eye and asked me what brand of Scotch I brought down with me.

And that set me to thinking. It reminded me how little my native country was understood on this side of the Line. For I loved my home so appropriately called the land of the Beaver for the simple reason that the Canadian, like the beaver, has to go about damning that home a bit before he considers it fit to live in. So, being of an investigative turn of mind, I occupied my idle days—for I'm only an author and have, of course, practically nothing to do—trying to get some general idea of Uncle Sam's general estimate of Johnny Canuck.

Canada, I found, was a large body of snow completely surrounded by run-runners. It grows the hardest wheat and the hardest liquor to be found on the continent. Along the Bay of Fundy it has the highest tides and along the St. Lawrence the highest birth rate in the world. But it's so cold that the new-born riches of Quebec still build their country palaces out of the ice blocks. The Four Hundred of Montreal wear ear-muffs, and the humble habitation grows his favorite muskletons with fur on to keep them from freezing. It is a country made up of forests that are forever being burned down and politicians that are forever being shown up; of Mounted Police who are forever tracking escaped murderers into the wastes of the Arctic; of lovely young ladies who wear bear-skin rompers without being the least bit camera-shy and who do their travelling (since there seems to be no railways) behind a dog-team of faithful huskies; of an ecotopographer old Hudson's Bay who exchanged beads for rabbit skins and grow their own chest protectors by maintaining a facade of chin-whiskers wherein even the slightest of swamp-thrushes could be peeped; of agile old ladies who frolic up and down the Coteau Frontenac Terrace on skins and snowshoes; of an organization known as the C. P. R. which originally built the Canadian Rockies and which can comfortably carry you into the Great Open Spaces where a man, oddly enough, is always a man, and where you can buy a dehydrated elk head for eighteen dollars or look a twenty-pound rock-bass off the hotel dock; of a humorist known as Old Steve Leacock, who pokes you in the eye with one hand while he drops his bitter pill of political economy down your throat with the other; and of an optimist named Steffanson, who flirts with the polar bear and finds them friendlier than the Royal Poinciana on a Sunday in February.

It is a land that claims a first mortgage on the Pole, yet cut Kipling dead because he called it "Our Lady of the Snows," a land where it is as impolite to breathe a word about winter temperatures as it is to speak of the "earthquake" in San Francisco. It is a land where the visiting sportsman pursues the lordly moose through the unlimited pulp woods and at the same time a land where you can't throw a snow-ball without hitting a well-known poet. It is a land where the rapid tumble joyously and the mining stocks do the same, with less meriment; a land where they make McLaren's cheese and Walkers Imperial, and the worst shakers and the best Maple Syrup in the world; where they say "Choosday" for Tuesday and go curling on their frozen rivers, and where they refuse to sell you an ice-cream on Sunday; and although they still claim a high degree of civilization they still politely decapitate each other at a game called Lacrosse and let the Daughters of the Empire burn Hearts in effigy every time a raises the mailing price of the Cosmopolitan. It's a land of modest workers who discover insulin and distill Canadian Club and perfect helium gas and sell polished silver horns to the tourists. It's a land of bird-wines and tilted Stearns and the most a land of far too many railroads and at the same time its own game in its own way, and its own game in its own way, and its own game in its own way.

FIVE VACANCIES IN QUEBEC ASSEMBLY

By-Elections About End of October—Opposition to Contest All Seats

Quebec, Sept. 5.—With the Federal bye-elections in Quebec province out of the way, interest returns to the question of filling the vacancies that exist in the Legislature, and already many names are being mentioned as possible candidates for these constituencies.

In all probability, however, no official steps will be taken in the matter by the Liberal party until they have started their big convention rolling on Sept. 14th; but once the ball is set in motion plenty of candidates will be available for each riding.

The Conservatives intend contesting all seats, it is stated, and they have hopes of capturing some of them, if not all, for the organizers here claim that the situation in the province is looking more and more rosy for the opposition.

At present there are five seats vacant in the Legislature, St. Maurice, Quebec county, Sherbrooke, Bonaventure and St. Ann's, Montreal, the last named being the latest vacancy, caused through the resignation of W. J. Hushion to become candidate in St. Antoine.

Writings are due to be issued for the federal bye-elections about the middle of October, with polling day on October 27th or Nov. 3rd.

YORK HYDRO MAN HAS NARROW ESCAPE

Touches Live Contact Carrying 26,000 Volts and Still Lives

Stratford, Ont., Sept. 3.—Knocked to the floor of the York Hydro-Electric sub-station at 1:10 o'clock this afternoon when his hand touched a live contact carrying 26,000 volts, William Carr escaped with his life. He is now resting in the Stratford General Hospital.

Mr. Carr was stationed in Stratford about six months ago by the Provincial Electric Power Commission and has been employed as meter inspector for this district. This afternoon he was talking with Mr. Wheeler, of the E. P. Company, another employee of the E. P. Company who arrived in Stratford last night about electrical matters, and during the discussion touched the contact board. Employees of the sub-station worked over him immediately after the accident and had him removed to the hospital in the city ambulance.

Dr. H. B. Kenner is attending him.

HOW FAST IS LIGHT, NEW TESTS MADE

Computed Rate is 186,000 Miles a Minute

San Francisco—Whether light travels exactly its estimated speed is a matter that Dr. A. A. Michelson, winner of the Nobel prize for physics in 1907, is endeavoring to determine by a series of experiments. The computed rate is 186,000 miles a second, and scientists have used this figure in proportioning their light year, the yard-stick of the universe.

Dr. Michelson recently announced that he suspected light travels a bit faster than 186,000 miles a second or possibly a little slower. He hazarded the guess that the physicists were about 20 miles off in their reckoning one way or the other.

He said that for a month he would try, with the aid of government engineers, to time light rays flashed from Mount Wilson to Mount San Antonio, a distance of 44 miles, in Southern California.

Special instruments were installed for the test. It was planned to reflect the rays back to their starting point by means of mirrors. The problem was to clock their passage over the round trip of 88 miles.

MONCTON BABY WINS SECOND PRIZE

Toronto, Sept. 2.—Master John Radford, aged 11 months, of Moncton, N. B., who motored all the way to Toronto Exhibition with his parents, won second prize in Class C for boys between 9 and 12 months at the annual baby show on Monday.

The father of the "Sweepstakes baby," James Taylor, of Toronto, is 42 years old. The mother of the child is his second wife.

TEN NIB, SWALLOWED THIRTY-ONE YEARS AGO, REMOVED FROM FOOT

Toronto, Sept. 2.—Thirty-one years ago Mrs. W. Cottrell swallowed a pen nib and it was extracted a few days ago by Dr. F. B. Wilson, from a swollen portion of her foot. The nib was introduced in the tissues which made it necessary to operate for its removal. The wound has healed up, and no further trouble is expected.

CARAQUET LADY GIVES DEMONSTRATION OF WEAVING AT TORONTO EXHIBITION

Madame Blanchard has Interesting Display of Articles Made from Flax—Exhibits Arranged by Women's Institutes.

Toronto, Ont., Sept. 8.—At the official opening of the Women's Institutes' Wing of the Women's Building at the Canadian National Exhibition Mrs. Robert Miller, wife of the president of the exhibition brought greetings from directors and from the Women's Committee. She stated that it was the management's desire to make the Women's Building of national interest.

High lights from the Women's Institute in the Exhibition are the exhibits of the provinces arranged by the Women's Institutes. Mrs. David Watt of Birtle, Man., president of the Federated Women's Institutes, expressed the appreciation of the outside-Ontario women for Ontario's kindness in connection with the exhibit, the first of its kind. She also thanked C. N. R. officers on behalf of the Federated Women's Institutes, for the following resolution was adopted:

"Under the head of the new business, the question of small-pox was brought up by Mr. Donald Fraser, and after considerable discussion the following resolution was moved by Mr. Donald Fraser, seconded by Mr. Harry O'Leary and carried unanimously:

"WHEREAS by Act of the New Brunswick Legislature the employer, who engages men who have not been vaccinated, is responsible for the expense incurred by the Health Department should a case of small-pox occur in the camp or boarding house through the unvaccinated person;

"THEREFORE RESOLVED that the members of the New Brunswick Lumbermen's Association will in future insist on all persons applying for work as above to produce their vaccination certificate and that, by way of notice, this action be made public through the press and also that each employer take this matter up with the clergy of his own diocese and request that they explain the situation to their congregations and bespeak their co-operation."

For Manitoba Miss Ella Carson and Miss Elsie McInnell, bee-keeping experts, gave what was described as an "outstanding feature" in their talk of bees and honey-making.

"Some people think that nothing but stinks grown on cows," remarked an Ontario demonstrator as she garnished with lettuce and tomato the dainty jellied products of the little-known and greatly scorned beef shank. "Does it really taste as good as it looks?" asked a visitor. A portion was transferred to a plate and passed over the railing. Judging by the visitors' faces it did.

Miss McDougall in the Nova Scotia booth conducted a series of health talks and demonstration on the preparation of nutritious meals for the children. Greatly admired are the hand-woven rugs and Indian baskets which they are showing.

"Why Pad Leaves Home," Ontario's playlet of a badly-run kitchen, was so realistic that the audience got quite lost in it. As the housewife was scurrying around trying to hurry with the preparations for the meal many pieces of advice were flung to her from the sympathetic women standing by. The meat and potatoes were cooked. The table was set. The call to dinner was about to be sounded. A woman leaned anxiously over the railing, and in a stage whisper said: "Oh lady, you've forgot to wet the tea."

WOODS WORKERS TO BE VACCINATED

N. B. Lumbermen Will Not Hire Men Who Have Not Been Vaccinated

At a meeting of the New Brunswick Lumbermen's Association held at Bathurst, N. B., July 30th, 1924, the following resolution was adopted:

"Under the head of the new business, the question of small-pox was brought up by Mr. Donald Fraser, and after considerable discussion the following resolution was moved by Mr. Donald Fraser, seconded by Mr. Harry O'Leary and carried unanimously:

"WHEREAS by Act of the New Brunswick Legislature the employer, who engages men who have not been vaccinated, is responsible for the expense incurred by the Health Department should a case of small-pox occur in the camp or boarding house through the unvaccinated person;

INSPECTING SCHOOLS

Mr. P. G. McFarlane, Inspector of schools is visiting schools in the County of Restigouche. Campbellton will be his headquarters for the month of September.

IS POSSIBLE CANDIDATE

In discussing possible Liberal candidates for the N. S. Local Legislature there has been an early appeal to the Hon. Mr. Sunday Leader of Halifax, mentioning the name of F. W. Dickie. Mr. Dickie, who is a prominent business man of Halifax, is a native of Restigouche, and friends here wish him success.

HOSPITAL REPORT

The analysis of Hospital service of Hotel Dieu Hospital for month ending August 31st 1924 was as follows:

Admitted	108

AVOID TROUBLE

Recently two Fredericton young ladies in going to the United States avoided the immigration officials and although one of them has since married both are being deported to their homes. Any person or persons going to the United States for a visit or otherwise should get full information from their nearest American Consular agent, who will gladly give them full instructions.

EXTRACT FROM THE UNITED STATES IMMIGRATION LAW 1924

One of the important clauses of the United States Immigration Act of 1924 provided as follows: Section 22-c of the Immigration Act of 1924 provides that "whoever knowingly makes under oath any false statement in any application, affidavit or other document required by the immigration laws or regulations thereunder, shall, upon conviction thereof, be fined not more than $10,000 or imprisoned for not more than five years, or both."

ASK BEFORE LEAVING

Any person from the counties of Bonaventure, Gaspé, Restigouche, Gloucester, and that part of Northumberland which is included in the Campbellton Consular district should get in touch with the American Consul at Campbellton before leaving home for the states. Even though you think you know all the regulations covering entry into the United States it would be a good plan to get expert advice. Many people are sent back every day from various ports of entry because of the fact that they are not armed with the necessary credentials. It is easier to go fully prepared than to leave to turn back and perhaps get some papers which you had never thought necessary.

THE SALVATION ARMY HARVEST FESTIVAL

We as Canadians and Christians at this time of the year have an opportunity of expressing in a practical way our appreciation of the goodness of God to us and our land during the past year. We as an organization have been blessed wonderfully especially with the young people's work. Our Hall has become too small, so we have to do some remodeling in order to have a Primary Department. The next two weeks will be set apart for this work. Our friends of Campbellton have helped in the past and I am sure that at this time and for this Special Work they will not fail us as we want to do all we can for the Young People. We thank you for your past kindness and trust for your help at this time.

TWO KINDS

A good newspaper contains plenty of two kinds of news: one variety tells about the day's happenings to people near and far; the other deals with news about things to yearn, eat and enjoy. Read the advertisements.

THE LATH MARKET

Reports from the New York lumber market state that construction of all kinds is falling off. The lath market is weak, and they are selling in large lots for $7.50, and car load lots at $8.00.

SO SAY WE ALL

"Patrons' home institutions," cried the country editor from week to week. "That is right," says the merchant, "give it to those who go to some other town to buy goods." Then with his heart filled with kindness to the loyal editor, he sends his job work to Toronto, St. John or some other city.

P. E. I. NEW GOVERNOR

Frank Richard Harris, Charlottetown has been appointed Lieutenant-Governor of P. E. Island, in succession to His Honor Murdoch MacKinnon. Mr. Harris comes of United Empire Loyalist stock, was born in P. E. Island and is a member of a family which has lived on the island for three generations.

MOTORING TO QUEBEC

Mr. J. A. L. Landon and Mrs. Landon left this morning by automobile for Quebec, where Mr. Landon will represent the New Brunswick Institute of Chartered Accountants at the annual gathering of the Dominion Association. They were accompanied by Chief Game Warden L. A. Gagnon and Ambrose Lager. Mr. Gagnon will be engaged with Quebec officials in connection with inter-provincial game matters and will also attend the convention.

A CURIOSITY

Harry Smith of Meagerville has an apple tree on his farm which is a real curiosity. It is bearing a good crop of apples, but in striking contrast is a wealth of apple blossoms, some of which are on the same limbs with the maturing fruit. Visitors who have inspected the apple tree pronounce it the greatest freak they have ever beheld.—Fredericton Mail.

GASPE SHIPPING NOTES

The "S. S. Lady Grey" with the Belgian Consul General and Madame De Selys of Ottawa on board was a recent arrival in our port where she spent a few hours. A large steamer from Spain arrived in port on Tuesday morning with a fuel cargo of salt for Robin Jones and Whitman Ltd. and after discharging same she sailed light for another R. de Chaleur port to load lumber for the United Kingdom.

MIGRATORY BIRDS

The open season for ducks, geese, and brant begins on September 15th, and ends on December 31st. The open season for black-bellied and golden plover and yellow legs opened on August 15th and will end on November 30th. The open season for woodcock and snipe begins on October 30th and ends on November 30th. The open season for partridge, the only game bird which does not come under the migratory birds convention, opens on October 1st and ends on October 30th.

THE LATH MARKET

The market looks stronger this week, but predictions as to what may be going to happen continue to differ widely. For 1 1/2 inch lath some producers now want $7.75, and the indications at the moment are that they will all soon be doing so. I would certainly be very rash in a wholesale man to sell to-day, without having previously bought, for a nickel under $7.50. The range for 1 5/8 inch lath is at this writing $8.75 to $9. It is reported that $9 has already been secured for small lots.

FORGOTTEN

We are afraid our subscribers have forgotten us entirely this week as up to noon, out of the thousands of most subscribers who owe us $2.00 or more, only eleven have remitted. This is indeed a very poor showing and we hope the coming week will bring better results. Forty-five last week, eleven this week. Now let our readers all endeavor to make the next report a record breaker. Let us have at least one hundred in the next six days.

DISCOURAGING OUTLOOK

Farmers are greatly discouraged over the outlook for the sale of potatoes. At the present time shippers are only paying 50 cents per barrel at loading points.—Fredericton Mail.

GOLF NOTES

The qualifying round for the ladies' Championship Cup had to be postponed on account of the rain. It will be played for on Friday the following day at 2.30 p.m.

SCALERS' EXAMS

Among those who were in Fredericton Wednesday to take the September scalers' license examinations were the following from Restigouche: Irvine H. McNair, Durham Centre; A. J. Winton, Jacquet River; H. H. Sherrard, Atholville.

CONDITION IMPROVED

J. Albert Payne Campbellton, noted hockey player, is now convalescing in the Lancaster Hospital, following an operation which he underwent last week. He is reported to be doing well and hopes to be discharged from the hospital shortly.—St. John Globe.

FIRE TUESDAY EVENING

About nine o'clock Tuesday evening the alarm sounded (not in a very satisfactory manner) for a fire in a house occupied by Leslie Hamilton near the Mill Creek Bridge. The fire department arrived in short order and soon had the fire under control. The occupants of the house were not in town at the time of the outbreak. The fire started in the kitchen of the house presumably from the kitchen stove.

The kitchen which is in the ell of the house was quite badly gutted and the remainder of the house damaged by fire and water. The damage is in the vicinity of $2000.

STREET IMPROVEMENT

We notice that the caretaker of Riverside Park is at work clearing and grading the earth between the curb and the sidewalk on the lower end of Water Street. This is a good idea and no doubt a few dollars will be spent in grass seed next year which will make this part of our front street looking very attractive. The street department are to be congratulated on the efficient manner in which the streets have been kept during the summer. Several of the streets which needed grading have been graded and the whole a marked improvement can be noticed. Is the supply of water in the town's several reservoirs so low that it is impossible to flush off the pavement at least once a month? If not it wouldn't cost much to have two or three men with several lengths of hose do this work after the traffic has quieted down.

A DELICATE AND SUCCESSFUL OPERATION

On Monday at the Hotel Dieu hospital a very unusual and serious operation was performed by Dr. McKenzie of Loggieville, the patient being Miss Margaret Croble, daughter of Mr. Walter Croble of Chatham. The character of the operation may be judged by the fact that about six inches of the base of the spine was removed and replaced by a part of the ankle-bone. The necessary work was performed by the aid of an electric saw in conjunction with a surgical chisel and mallet, and the grafting gives indication of being quite successful. Miss Croble is reported today (Saturday) as doing very well and her condition is favorable though she had two rather uncomfortable days chiefly owing to the effects of the anaesthetic.

We congratulate Dr. McKenzie upon the success of the operation at the present at stage and join with the many friends of Miss Croble and her family in hoping for permanent and satisfactory improvement.—Chatham World.

LOCAL NEWS

There is a very large attendance of pupils in both the Public Schools as well as the Convent School. Both school buildings are entirely too small to accommodate the needs of education in Dalhousie. The parents of the children must support the teachers in their good work.

The Board of Revisors for the Town of Dalhousie, Messrs. Wm. McNeill, H. E. Hocquard and Joseph Noel, have completed the preliminary step in the preparation of the electoral lists, for the year 1924. Over one thousand names appear on this year's list, which will be posted for thirty days, to give an opportunity to any one entitled to vote, and whose names do not appear on the list, to apply to the revisors in time to have their name added.

It is probable that the electoral lists now being prepared in the whole province of New Brunswick, shall be the lists upon which the General elections in the province will vote upon, consequently, it is important that interest be taken, so that every British subject of 21 years of age, male or female, be registered as a voter.

WEDDINGS

Merrithew-Ross
Mr. and Mrs. Earl Simpson, who have made many friends since they cast their lot in Dalhousie last spring, attended the wedding of Mrs. Simpson's brother G. Eldon Merrithew of Fredericton, N. B. to Miss Ruby Pauline Ross, only daughter of Dr. and Mrs. D. W. Ross also of Fredericton. The ceremony was performed by the Rev. G. C. Warren in the presence of about 100 invited guests.

The ceremony took place in the drawing room, which was transformed into a perfect bower of beauty with ferns palms and hydrangeas. The bride entered the drawing room in the arm of her father preceded by little Elizabeth Bebbington, niece of the groom, in a dainty gown of yellow georgette with gold slippers and carrying a basket of white sweet peas strewn with heart-shaped roses along the path of the bride as she walked up an aisle formed by six young men friends of the groom. Wallace W. Crockett, Capt. Horace H. VanWart, Ralph McFadden, Robert C. Hawkins, Frank Osborne and Dr. B. R. Ross, brother of the bride, holding aloft with ribbons, and stood in an alcove formed with ferns, palms and hydrangeas. She was crowned in a beautiful sheath gown of white satin with pearl trimmings, bridal veil of tulle caught to the head with a coronet of pearls and orange blossoms, she carried a shower bouquet of Ophelia roses and lilies of the valley. Her only ornament was a pearl necklace, the drawing of the drawing room Prof. W. J. Smith, A. R. C. O. played Mendelssohn's Wedding March and during the ceremony and the singing of the register he played several selections.

Following the ceremony a reception was held, after which a buffet supper was served. The bride's table was covered with a Venetian lace table cloth centered with the bride's cake surrounded by a miniature bride and groom.

The wedding took place on Saturday night, Aug. 30th, and late that evening the bride and groom left for Woodstock, where they spent a few days before going to the woods on a camping trip. On their return they will reside in Fredericton.

The bride who is a graduate of Mount Allison Ladies' College, one of St. James' Hospital, New York, was the recipient of many lovely wedding gifts, including silver, linen, cut glass, a Victory bond for $1000 and numerous cheques.

Among the out-of-town guests who attended the wedding were Rev. J. B. Darggett, of Messrs. Darggett, of Tyne, P. E. I.; Mrs. Frank Swin, of Donkton; Mr. and Mrs. Earl Simpson; Mr. and Mrs. Roy Barker; Miss Hayward of Presque Isle; Dr. and Mrs. Robertson of Mole; Mrs. Kewick; Mrs. and Mrs. W. B. Ridout; Miss Markey, Harland and Miss Love, Miss Gardner and Dr. R. B. Ross, of McAdam.

There is a new feature which exists today, that did not prevail when the service was first inaugurated about 1885; and that is the Tourist travel. At least one trip per week would have to be established between Carleton, P. Q. and Campbellton, touching at St. John, Maguasha, Fleurant, Escuminac and Dalhousie. That would mean two round trips the same day, a total distance of about 120 miles. This of course would be the costly part of the service; but it cannot be overlooked, now that the future holds such bright prospects for tourist trade. Visitors spending a few weeks in Carleton, one of Quebec's famous summer resorts, naturally would enjoy spending a few hours in the town of Campbellton and Dalhousie. The steamboat leaving Carleton early in the morning, and stopping at the different places could arrive at Campbellton in time to permit strangers to enjoy visiting the different places and seeing Campbellton's great buildings, the Schools, Hospitals, etc. With the great hotel accommodation that exists in the town now, and with the town going ahead by leaps and bounds, advertising could be done on a most successful scale, and if Dalhousie is

OF A NOVEL TYPE

An Important British Invention
Which Has Had Successful
Trial

London, Sept. 6.—A novel type of locomotive, embodying an important British invention, has had a highly successful 100 mile trial trip on the London and North-Eastern Railway. The engine which underwent this test was a 50 h. p. Diesel, fitted with the Lantz hydraulic transmission—named after the inventor H. Lantz, a British-born subject.

Primarily this locomotive was designed for shunting and yard work, but in order to give it a thorough trial and to judge its value in passenger service, particularly branch line running, it had to take a train of three corridor coaches and a brake van on a return journey between Tottenham and Cambridge. The weight of the train including the engine was 115 tons.

The test was made as exacting as possible, but scheduled times were more than maintained, the average speed being 13.55 miles and hour. The engine started without delay under all conditions, and fuel cost under full load was shown to be 0.07d per ton mile.

The engine is of the 0-4-0 type, and the power is transmitted from the new Lantz hydraulic (oil) transmission mechanism. Speeds forward and reverse are provided. The three gears are obtained by regulating the quantity of oil circulating in the gear.

On the down trip the maximum temperature of the oil was 108 deg. F., well within safe working limits. The engine required no attention except occasional oiling.

The trial showed that 'hydraulic' transmission as applied to locomotives is a practical proposition. Indeed, the trial marked a notable advance in railway traction and triumph for the Lantz hydraulic transmission.

This mechanism has given such satisfaction on the Continent that engines up to 1,000 h. p. have been equipped. Orders are being placed for large numbers.

Capt. Frank Allard of Carleton, P. Q. was in the shiretown last week, and had a long interview with Hon. Charles Marcell, M. P. for the Co. of Restigouche, Vice President for the Co. of Restigouche, for the New Brunswick Tourist and Resources Association, with head office in St. John, N. B. about the establishment of a complete steam ferry service on the Restigouche River, and upper part of the Bay of Chaleur. Capt. Allard had in his possession a letter dated 22nd. ult., received from Hon. Charles Marcell, M. P. for the Co. of Bonaventure, P. Q. stating that the $500 voted at the last session, for the service on the Restigouche River, etc., would not be used this year, consequently, he would be disposed to ask for an augmentation of subsidy.

Capt. Allard who for years has a good service with the "R. R. Call" between Dalhousie and Quebec points would be disposed to enter into a contract with a firm in Chatham, N. B. for the building of a steamboat, that would be suitable for the traffic of the future, between the towns of Campbellton and Bonaventure, St. Orme and Carleton, providing the governments of Quebec and New Brunswick granted each a reasonable subsidy.

The proposed new vessel would be constructed with a plan to carry two or three automobiles, considerable freight, and at least 75 passengers. Asked as to the New Brunswick subsidy, Capt. Allard said that he would be satisfied with the same amount as was paid while the Emerson and Tweedle Governments were in power, which had been obtained at the request of the late W. A. Mott, Ex. M. P.

He felt that with the same aid from the Quebec governments, he would be in a position to go ahead. With the prospects of the Fraser's building a mill at Escuminac, P. Q. another stopping place would be added to the "Time Table" if a new service were established.

There is a new feature which exists today, that did not prevail when the service was first inaugurated about 1885; and that is the Tourist travel. At least one trip per week would have to be established between Carleton, P. Q. and Campbellton, touching at St. John, Maguasha, Fleurant, Escuminac and Dalhousie. WEMBLEY BOOMS
CANADIAN TRADE

Canadian Exhibitors Reap Benefits and Are Receiving Large Orders

London, Sept. 8.—"Canadian cheese has found a splendid market directly through the Exhibition," one of the Canadian trade commissioners at Wembley announced Saturday. "Eight thousand pounds of cheese per week is used in the grounds by the caterers and they have also introduced it in all their London cafes. A Canadian dry milk dealer has just sold his output for the next five years to a British firm, an output valued at $800,000. Our fruit display has brought European orders for more than $1,000,000 boxes. A firm of show case makers sent a small display, more for the sake of being represented at the Exhibition than anything else. European orders have come pouring in and the firm decided to spend $100,000 on the opening of a permanent establishment in London."

"I can say that 60 per cent. of the exhibitors here are delighted that they came to Wembley. Indirectly, business amounting to hundreds of thousands of dollars has been stimulated and new channels of commerce opened."

The Canadian Pacific report that the flow of visitors to their pavilion is as great as ever and that three daily lectures and cinematograph performances in their cinema theatre continue to draw crowded audiences from 1 p. m. to closing time.

favoured with the construction of the proposed large C. N. R. Hotel, there will be greater need of the ferry service, as tourists spending some time in Campbellton or Dalhousie, could enjoy the sail to Carleton, where two splendid hotels cater every year to the tourist trade. If the future should see hundreds of tourists spending the summer months in Dalhousie, the trip to Campbellton and return, would be a most enjoyable one for those who would appreciate a change from the automobile or railway.

Naturally Mr. LaBelle, who is well posted on this matter, and who has worked so successfully in the past with Hon. Mr. Marcell, gave Capt. Allard to understand, that he would take the matter up with the New Brunswick government at once, and communicate with Hon. Charles Marcell, M. P. who would then be in a position to deal with the question at Ottawa, and could submit the matter to his Quebec friends pending the election of a new local member for the Co. of Bonaventure.

Notices are placed in several places calling for tenders for the erection of a new Court House, in the shiretown of Restigouche River, from the Bay of Chaleur. It is true that there are Light Houses at Carleton Point, Heron Island, Inca Arran Point, and on the two islands in the Port of Dalhousie; but to any one interested in the question of navigation, it does not seem necessary that in addition to the Light houses already established, and the Buoy, that Maguasha Point is a dangerous bit of land running out near the channel. It is known that vessels have come to wait for daylight, before proceeding to their destination at Dalhousie, Oak Point, Campbellton or Cross Point.

The need of a Lighthouse on Maguasha Point, P. Q. is being advocated by our pilots for the safety of vessels navigating the Restigouche River, from the Bay of Chaleur. It is true that there are Light Houses at Carleton Point, Heron Island, Inca Arran Point, and on the two islands in the Port of Dalhousie; but to any one interested in the question of navigation, it does not seem necessary that in addition to the Light houses already established, and the Buoy, that Maguasha Point is a dangerous bit of land running out near the channel. It is known that vessels have come to wait for daylight, before proceeding to their destination at Dalhousie, Oak Point, Campbellton or Cross Point.

A record automobile trip was made recently from Dalhousie to Shippegan, and return, when three automobiles owned by Mr. Ed. Canon, Frank Synette and Joseph Noel, carrying over twenty people, who desired attending a church picnic at Shippegan, Quebec, left Dalhousie on Saturday at 6.30 p.m., and arrived safely at Shippegan at 2.30 a.m. on Sunday morning. The trip was a 3.50 high class on Sunday, took in the picnic, where they met all their friends, and arrived back to their homes in Dalhousie, on Sunday evening at 10.30. The trip was a most enjoyable one, and there was no hitch whatever on the voyage. There were hundreds of people at the Shippegan Church, where the visitors, and they say that Shippegan stone church is one of the finest in New Brunswick.

The Great Impersonation

A stirring story of love and adventure.
One of the famous authors
best.
Published by arrangement with The British & Colonial Press Limited.

The woman showed her first sign of weakness. She began to shake. There was a curious look of fear in her eyes.
"I don't leave this place, Sir Evers-ton," she cried. "I must stay here!"
"Why?" he demanded.
"Lady Dominey couldn't do without me," she answered sullenly.
"What?" he replied, "Is far too deciduous. Personally, from a surgeon's point of view, I believe that you have encouraged in her that ridiculous superstition about the ghost of your son.
I also believe that you have kept alive
in her that spirit of unreasonable hatred which she has felt towards me."

"Unreasonable, you call it?" the woman almost shouted. "You who came home to her with the blood on your hands of the man whom, if only you had kept away, she might one day have loved? Unreasonable, you call it?"
"I have finished what I had to say,"
Mrs. Unthank declared. "I am compelled by important business to leave here for two or three days. On my return I shall embark upon the charges with which I have acquainted you in the meantime," he added, watching a curious change in the woman's expression. "I have written this morning to Doctor Harrison, asking him to come up this afternoon and to keep Lady Dominey under his personal observation until my return."

She stood quite still, looking at him. Then she came a little nearer and leaned forward, as though studying his face.
"Eleven years," she murmured, "do change many men, but I never knew a man made out of a weakling."
"I have nothing more to say to you," Dominey replied, "except to let you know that I am coming to see my wife in the space of a few minutes."

The motor-horn was already sounding below when Dominey was admitted to his wife's apartment. She was dressed in a loose gown of a warm crimson colour, and she had the air of one awaiting his arrival expectantly.
The passion of hatred seemed to have passed from her pale face and from the depths of her strangely soft eyes.
She held out her hands towards him.
Her brows were a little puckered. The disappointment of a child lurked in her manner.

"You are going away?" she murmured.
"In a very few moments," he told her. "I have been waiting to see you for an hour."
She made a grimace.
"It was Mrs. Unthank. I think that she hid my things on purpose. I was so anxious to see you."

"I want to talk to you about Mrs.
Unthank," he said. "Should you be very unhappy if I sent her away and found some one younger and kinder to be your companion?"
The idea seemed to be outside the bounds of her comprehension.

There were times during their rapid journey when Seaman, studying his companion, became thoughtful.
Dominey seemed, indeed, to have passed beyond the boundaries of any ordinary life. He seemed to have become like a man immersed in the toils of a past so absorbing that he moved as though in a dream, speaking only when necessary and comporting himself generally like one to whom all external things were of no importance. As they travelled, Seaman leaned forward in his seat in the somberly upholstered car, and heaved a sigh.

"Your home-coming seems to depress you, Von Ragastein," he said.
"It was not my intention," Dominey replied, "to set foot in Germany again for many years."
"The past still bites eh?"
"Always."

The train sped on through long chains of vineyard-covered hills, out into forests of pine, in the midst of which were great cleared spaces, where, notwithstanding the closely drawn windows, the resinous odour of the firs seemed to pervade the entire compartment. Presently they reached the station. Seaman glanced at his watch and rose.

"Prepare yourself, my friend," he said. "We descend in a few minutes."
Dominey glanced out of the window.
"But where are we?" he enquired.
"Within five minutes of our destination."

"But there is not a house in sight," Dominey remarked wonderingly.
"You will be received on board His Majesty's private train," Seaman announced. "The Kaiser, with his staff, making one of his military tours. We are honoured by being permitted to travel back with him as far as the Belgian frontier."

They had come to a standstill now.
A bearded and uniformed official threw open the door of their compartment, and they stepped on to the narrow wooden platform of a small station which seemed to have been recently built of fresh pine planks. The train immediately they had alighted, passed on. Their journey was over.

A brief conversation was carried on between Seaman and the official, during which Dominey took curious note of his surroundings. Around the station, half hidden in some places by the trees and shrubs, was drawn a complete cordon of soldiers, who seemed to have been recently disembarked from a military train which stood upon a siding. In the middle of it was a solitary saloon carriage, painted black, with much gold ornamentation, and having emblazoned upon the central panel the royal arms of Germany.
Seaman, when he had finished his conversation, took Dominey by the arm and led him across the line towards it.
An officer received them at the steps and bowed punctiliously to Dominey, at whom he gazed with much interest.
"His Majesty will receive you at once," he announced. "Follow me."

They boarded the train and passed along a richly carpeted corridor. Their guide paused and pointed to a small retiring-room, where several men were waiting.

"Here Seaman will find friends of mine," he said. "His Imperial Majesty will receive him for a few minutes later. The Baron von Ragastein will come this way."

Dominey was ushered now into the main saloon. His guide motioned him to remain near the entrance, and, at last, after a few minutes, stood at the salute before a seated figure who was bending over a map, which a stern-faced man in the uniform of a general had unrolled before him. The Kaiser glanced up at the sound of footsteps and whispered something in the general's ear. The latter clicked his heels together and retired. The Kaiser beckoned Dominey to advance.

"The Baron von Ragastein, your Majesty," the young officer murmured.
Dominey stood at attention for a moment and bowed a little awkwardly.
The Kaiser smiled.

"It pleases me," he said, "to see a German officer ill at ease without his uniform. Count, you will leave us.
Baron von Ragastein, be seated."

"Sir Eversdominey, at your service, Majesty," Dominey replied, as he took the chair to which his august host pointed.

"Through in all things, I see," the latter observed. "Sit there and be at your ease. Good reports have reached me of your work in Africa."

"I did my best to execute your Majesty's will," Dominey ventured.
"You did so well," the Kaiser pronounced, "that my counsellors were unanimous in advising your withdrawal to what will shortly become the great centre of interest. From the moment of receiving our commands
you appear to have displayed initiative. I gather that your personation of this English baronet has been successfully carried through."

"Up to the present, your Majesty," Dominey replied. "Important though your work in Africa was," the Kaiser continued, your present task is a far greater one. I wish to commend to you for five minutes without reserve. First, though, drink a toast with me."

From a mahogany stand at his elbow, the Kaiser drew out a long-necked bottle of Moselle, filled two very beautiful glasses, passed one to his companion and raised the other.
"To the Fatherland!" he said.
"To the Fatherland!" Dominey repeated.

They set down their glasses, empty.
The Kaiser threw back the grey military cloak which he was wearing, displaying a breast of magnificent steel corset. His fingers still toyed with the stem of his wineglass. He seemed for a moment to lose himself in thought. His hand and somewhat cruel mouth was tightly closed; there was a slight frown upon his forehead. He was sitting upright, taking no advantage of the cushioned back of his easy-chair, his eyes a little screwed up, the frown deepening. For quite five minutes there was complete silence.
One might have gathered that, turning aside from great matters, he had been devoting himself entirely to the scheme in which Dominey was concerned.

"Von Ragastein," he said at last,
"I have sent for you to have a few words concerning your habitation in England. I wish you to receive your impressions of your mission from my own lips."

"Your Majesty does me great honour," Dominey murmured.
"I wish you to consider yourself,"
the Kaiser continued, "as entirely removed from the limits, the authority and the duties of my espionage system. From you I look for other things.
I desire you to enter into the spirit of your assumed position. As a typical English country gentleman I desire you to study the labour question, the Irish question, the progress of this National Service scheme, and other social movements of which you will receive notice in due time. I desire a list compiled of those writers who, in the Reviews, or by means of fiction, are encouraging the suspicion which I am inclined to fancy England has begun to entertain towards the Fatherland. These things are all on the fringe of your real mission. That, I believe, of admirable friend Seman has already confided to you. It is to seek the friendship, if possible
the intimacy, of Prince Ternloff."

The Kaiser paused, and once more his eyes wandered to the landscape which rolled away from the plate-glass windows of the car. They were certainly not the eyes of a dreamer, and yet in those moments they seemed filled with brooding pictures.

"The Prince has already received me graciously," Dominey confided.
"Ternloff is the dove of peace," the Kaiser pronounced. "He carries the olive in his mouth. My statesmen and counsellors would have sent him to London an ambassador with sterner qualities. I preferred not.
Ternloff is the man to gull fools, because he is a fool himself. He is a fit ambassador for a country which has not the wit to arm itself on land as well as by sea, when it sees a nation, mightier, more cultured, more splendidly led than its own, creeping closer every day."

"The English appear to put their whole trust in their navy, your Majesty," Dominey observed tentatively.
The eyes of his companion flashed.
His lips curled contemptuously.
"Fools!" he exclaimed. "Of what use will their navy be when my sword is once drawn, when I hold the coast towns of Calais and Boulogne, when I cannot command the Straits of Dover?
The days of insular nations are passed passed as surely as the days of England's arrogant supremacy upon the sea."

The Kaiser refilled his glass and Dominey's.
"In some months' time, Von Ragastein," he continued, "you will understand why you have been enjoined to become the friend and companion of Ternloff. You will understand your mission a little more clearly than you do now. Its exact nature waits upon developments. You can at all times trust Seaman."

Dominey bowed and remained silent.
His companion continued after another brief spell of silent brooding.
"Von Ragastein," he said, "my degree of banishment against you was a just one. The morals of my people are as sacred to me as my oath to win for them a mightier empire. You first of all betrayed the wife of one of the most influential noblemen of a State allied to my own, and then, in the duel that followed, you slew him."

"It was an accident, your Majesty," Dominey pleaded. "I had no intention of even wounding the Prince."

The Kaiser frowned. All manner of excuses were loathsome to him.
"The accident should have happened
the other way," he rejoined sharply.
"I should have lost a valuable servant, but it was your life which was forfeited, and not his. Still, they tell me that your work in Africa was well and thoroughly done. I give you this one great chance of rehabilitation. If your work in England commends itself to me, the sentence of exile shall be rescinded."

"Your Majesty is too good," Dominey murmured. "The work, for its own sake, will command my every effort, even without the hope of reward."

"That," the Kaiser said, "is well spoken. It is the spirit, I believe, with which every son of my Empire regards the future. I think that they, too, more especially those who surround my person, have felt something of that divine message which has come me. For many years I have, for the sake of my people, willed peace. Now that the time draws near when

Amherst, Ontario.—"I must write and tell you my experience with your medicine. I was working at the factory for three years and became so run-down that I used to take weak spells and would be at home at least one day each week. I was treated by the doctors for anemia, but it didn't seem to do me any good. I was told to take a rest, but was unable to, and kept on getting worse.
I was troubled mostly with my periods.
I would sometimes pass three months,
and when it came it would last around two weeks, and I would have such pains at times in my right side that I could hardly walk. I am only 19 years of age and weigh 118 pounds now, and before taking the Vegetable Compound I was only 108 pounds. I was sickly for two years and some of my friends told me about Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, and when I had taken a bottle of it I felt a change. My mother has been taking it for a different ailment and has found it very satisfactory. I am willing to tell friends about the medicine and to answer letters asking about it."

A day out each week shows in the pay envelope. If you are troubled with some weakness, indicated by a run-down condition, tired feelings, pains and irregularity, let Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound help you.

The history of the fountain pen is very like that of the telephone, the telegraph,
the radio and a host of other present-day conveniences.
Fifty years ago no one thought a satisfactory fountain pen would ever be an accomplished fact. Scores of pens had been invented, but not one of them would write properly. They only worked at times; the ink flow could not be controlled.
But in 1853 came Waterman's Ideal—the perfect pen—one that would always work properly, one that would not leak, one that would meet the peculiar requirements of every man's hand.
From a beginning of 500 pens a year—made by

Cost of Rearing Grade Dairy Calves

(Experimental Farms Note)
What does it cost to rear a dairy calf to one year of age? This question is frequently asked by the stock breeder and figures have been collected at the Experimental Farm Nappan, N. B. during the past seven years along this line.

The cost depends very largely on three factors: (1) How the stock is bred, (2) The price of feeds in the district, (3) The kind of development desired—is a well-grown heifer wanted, one that will have size and constitution and can consume plenty of feed and make good use of it; or does that will be the size of yearlings when they have reached two years of age. There are too many of these last-mentioned heifers in the country to-day; there are heifers three years old that do not weigh as much as well-grown yearlings. That kind will very seldom, if ever, make a profitable cow, for once a calf is stunted, it is stunted not only in growth but production as well.

The average feed charges for the past four years were as follows:—Whole milk $2.25 per cwt., skim milk 20 cents per cwt., meal mixture $2.21 per cwt., roots $2.81 per ton, hay $12.92 per ton, green feed $3.40 per ton and the cost per heifer at one year of age was $53.02.

A comparison, the figures collected for 1913-14 are also being given as follows:—Whole milk $1.75 per cwt., skim milk 20 cents per cwt., meal mixture $1 per cwt., roots $2.81 per ton, green feed $2 per ton, molasses 20 cents per gallon and cost per heifer $31.25.

The feed cost is undoubtedly a large factor in feeding stock as will be noted from the preceding figures, nevertheless it pays to feed young stock well if profitable returns are to be expected from them later on as dairy cows.

The calf should have whole milk for at least the first month then gradually the whole milk should be increased and skim milk supplied in its place. If the whole milk can be spared it will pay to give the calf half whole and half skim milk until it reaches the age of four or six months. If this is not possible, the calf should have good clean skim-milk up to seven or eight months at least. At the end of two or three weeks, the calf should receive a little meal made up of (say) 300 pounds bran, 100 pounds crushed oats, and 50 pounds oil cake. At the end of six weeks it will consume one pound and this may be gradually increased up to 2½ to 3 pounds by the time the calf is 10 to 12 months of age. A small quantity of good clover hay should be supplied to the calves after they are two or three weeks old. By following this method of feeding at the Dominion Experimental Farm at Nappan, grade yearling heifers (Ayrshire and Holstein) have attained a weight of 600 to 870 pounds at one year of age.

SAFEGUARDING THE FOWLS FROM MITES

In addition to the yearly white-washing or disinfecting, dry lime should be scattered on the droppings board once a week, and the droppings removed daily.

The houses may be disinfected with creolin or some other good disinfectant before the whitewash is applied.

A satisfactory mixture for this purpose is 1 pint of creolin and 2 pints of kerosene oil in 5 gallons of water. One ounce of carbolic acid may be added to this to increase the effectiveness of the mixture. This solution should be forced into every crack and crevice with a spray pump, especially around the nests, roosts, and adjoining walls.

If these precautions are properly observed, mites are not likely to appear in the poultry house. These "red mites" are blood suckers, and come out at night to prey on the fowls, returning into cracks and crevices about the poultry house during the day. Their presence in any quantity—and they multiply with amazing rapidity—is ruinous to egg production, the fowls on which they prey soon becoming emaciated and useless. The measures recommended form a valuable safeguard against this pest.

What the King of Sheba Said
The Queen of Sheba thought she knew how to live; but when she saw Solomon's idea of comfort, what really broke her heart was the poisonous reflection that for the rest of her life the King of Sheba would be saying: "My dear, why can't we have so-and-so? Solomon has!" From "And Five Were Foolish" by Dornford Yates.

Eliminate the Non-Producer

(Experimental Farms Note)
Probably the greatest hindrance to the profitable keeping of poultry on the ordinary farm is the retention of a lot of fowl that are poor layers, due either to their being too old or of a type to produce meat, rather than eggs.

The production of eggs is the end of the poultry business in which the most profit can be made, so that a heavy egg producing type is the type that is best suited to ordinary farm conditions.

Generally speaking the pullet year is the most profitable period of a hen's life. It is advisable, therefore, either to mark the chickens when hatched, using a different mark for each year, or to band the pullets when they are put into winter quarters, so that at culling time the age of the different birds may be seen at a glance and only those that are required for breeding purposes retained after the first year's production.

For the careful breeder the use of the trap-net is the logical means to cul. The flock but the ordinary farmer does not use trap-nets so that reliance must be placed on physical characteristics. The high producer will be found to be of an active disposition, early off roost in the morning and late to go to roost at night and always busy. Her head will be clear cut, face smooth and free from wrinkles, with bright prominent eyes skin soft, pliable and of fine texture and a general appearance of health and vigour.

CULL ALL BIRDS THAT SHOW A LACK OF VIGOUR

A lack of vigour, a sluggish disposition, a coarse rough head with the touch. In contrast to this heavy layer will have skin that is fine in texture and the abdomen will be soft and pliable. This last feature is one on which great weight should be placed, but in culling reliance should be placed on a combination of features rather than on any one feature.

The Great Impersonation

Heaven has shown me another duty. I have no fear but that every loyal German will bow his head before the lightnings which will play around my sword and share with me the iron will to wield it. Your audience is finished, Baron von Ragsdaine. You will take your place with the gentlemen of my suite in the retiring-room. We shall proceed within a few minutes and leave you at the Belgian frontier."

Dominey rose, bowed stiffly and backed down the carpeted way. The Kaiser was already bending once more over the map. Seaman, who was waiting outside the door of the ante-room, called him in and introduced him to several members of the suite. One, a young man with a fixed monocle, sears upon his face, a queer, puppet-like carriage, looked at him a little strangely.

"We met some years ago in Munich, Baron," he remarked.

"I acknowledge no former meetings with any one in this country," Dominey replied stiffly. "I obey the orders of my Imperial master when I wipe my sword in every episode or reminiscence of my former days."

The young man's face cleared, and Seaman, by his side, who had knitted his brows thoughtfully, nodded understandingly.

"You are certainly a great actor, Baron," he declared. "Even your German has become a little English. Sit down and join us in a glass of beer. Luncheon will be served to us here in a few minutes. You will not be recalled to the Presence until we set you down."

Dominey bowed stiffly and took his place with the others. The train had already started. Dominey gazed thoughtfully out of the window. Seaman, who was waiting about for his audience, patted him on the arm.

"Dear friend," he said, "I sympathize with you. You sorrow because your back is now to Berlin. Still, a member of this, that the day is not far off when the sentence of exile against you will be annulled. You will have expiated that crime which, believe me, although I do not venture to claim a place amongst them, none of your friends and equals have ever regarded in the same light as His Imperial Majesty."

CHAPTER XV
Sir Edward Dominey, the latest and most popular recruit to Norfolk sporting society, stood one afternoon, some months after his return from Germany, at the corner of the long wood which stretched from the ridge of hills behind almost to the kitchen gardens of the Hall. At a reasonable distance on his left, four other guns were posted. On one side of him stood Middleton, leaning on his ash stick and listening to the approach of the beaters; on the other, Seaman, curiously out of place in his dark grey suit and bowler hat. The old keeper, whose time seemed to have cured of all his apprehensions, was softly garrulous and very happy.

"That's so right to have a Squire Dominey at this corner," he observed, watching a high cock pheasant come crashing down over their heads. "I mind when the Squire, your father, sir, gave up this corner one day to Lord Wendermere, whom folks called one of the finest pheasant shots in England, and though they streamed over his head like starlings, he'd not but a few crickets to show for his morning's work."

"Come out with a bit of a twist from the left, don't they?" Dominey remarked, repeating his late exploit. "They do that, sir," the old man assented, "and no one but a Dominey seems to have learned the knack of dealing with them proper. That foreign Prince, so they say, is well on to his birds, but I wouldn't trust him at this corner."

The old man moved off a few paces to some higher ground to watch the swiftness of the beaters through the wood. Seaman turned to his companion and there was a note of genuine admiration in his tone.

"My friend," he declared, "you are a miracle. You seem to have developed the Dominey touch even in killing pheasants."

"You must remember that I have shot higher cooies in Hungary," was the easy reply.

"I am not a sportsman," Seaman admitted, "I do not understand sport. But I do know this: there is an old man who has lived on this land since the day of his birth, who has watched you shoot, reverently, and finds even the way you hold your gun familiar."

"That twist of the birds," Dominey explained, "is simply a local superstition. The wood ends on the right, and they seem to be flying more to the left than they really are."

Seaman gazed steadfastly for a moment along the side of the wood.

(to be continued next week.)

Our European Trip

A Brief Account of our Pleasant Experiences with The Canadian Weekly Newspaper Party on our Trip abroad
By H. B. ANSLAW

Paris, June 28, 1924.
When we arrived in Paris last night we took a taxi to our hotel. We wish to tell our readers that the Paris taxi driver is in a class all by himself. They travel along the beautiful streets at a tremendous speed, yet they rarely have an accident. In fact, they could not learn of an accident of any kind. But they do travel, in and out among other traffic, with what appeared to us a half-brotherly escape, yet never a touch with another car. These taxis are everywhere and are at your beck and call. The rates are very reasonable, in fact to us seemed unreasonably low. An average fare was seven francs about 35 cents, and that was for four or five persons. The drivers were very courteous, but always had their hands out for a tip.

Thursday morning at 9 o'clock our charabancs were at our hotel to convey us about Paris. Along the left bank of the Seine we proceeded, viewing this river with its handsome bridges, its small craft and canal barges, which are such a factor in solving transportation problems in Europe. We passed many fine buildings and among them being the Hotel de Ville, the Louvre, renowned as the largest art gallery in the world, also the Royal Palace, and thence to the Arc de Triomphe, where France's unknown soldier lies buried and where a perpetual torch burns. Here our party laid a handsome wreath upon the grave. Rev. A. H. Moore of St. John's, Quebec made the address. The Minister of War of France was represented by General Gerard, head of Military affairs. The addresses were short and those of the French speakers uttered many kind words of the heroism of the Canadian Soldiers in France.

We were then taken for a tour of the city stopping first at the Trocadero, a beautiful structure and tower with wings in the form of a quarter circle on each side the whole making a huge crescent with many acres of gardens and parks, trees and flowers in abundance. Beyond this river Seine, then the Eiffel Tower, a gigantic steel structure almost a thousand feet high, from the top of which a complete panoramic view of the city and surrounding can be had. We crossed the river, passed the tower and many beautiful buildings including the palatial offices of the government departments, the Palace of Justice and other buildings.

We cross a bridge over one part of the river to an island on which is situated many large and important buildings, the one that we were specially interested in being the Notre Dame Cathedral, the beauties of which both outside and inside are almost beyond description. About an hour was spent here, it would require days to see it all. We cross the other branch of the river and presently we see a large monument in a square. This marks the spot where the famous prison, the Bastille stood. It was destroyed at the time of the French Revolution and this monument set up to mark the location of many tragedies and much cruel imprisonment.

In the afternoon we were driven to a suburb near Paris for a visit to the Chateau de Versailles, a large and important factory where standard medicines were manufactured, pills and powders, disinfectants, phosphates, etc.; we must not forget the tooth pastes, perfumes and toilet powders, so much in demand by the ladies. Refreshments were served to all and each one received a package containing several articles of their manufacture including of course perfume and toilet articles.

Returning to the city we saw that it was entirely surrounded by an old city walls and more ancient fortifications. Going out we paused a few moments at the gate and coming in we also stopped a short time. On inquiry we learned that an official measured the gasoline in our tanks as we left the city and again when we re-entered. Had we tanked up outside the city a tax on the increase of gasoline would be collected. Taxation down to a fine point.

We were driven back to the Hotel de Ville where we were officially received by government officials and the mayor and the city council. The French people in their speeches at this and all public receptions and banquets referred to the part taken by the Canadian soldiers in the war and paid strong tribute to their bravery and initiative.

In the evening every member of our party was furnished with a theatre ticket by the managers of the different theatres. We drew one for the Theatre Francaise, and with friends went to see a real French drama. It was a warm evening, and we found the piece, one of Victor Hugo's, too heavy for us after a very strenuous day, so at the conclusion of the second act we took our departure. We must admit that the acting was superb, and the costumes beautiful. One thing we noticed that is that the French theatres were stuffy and seemed to be ill ventilated. Perhaps if we had been able to follow the words, which of course were all spoken in French, we might have enjoyed it more. However, we went back to our hotel and enjoyed a good night's rest.

WILL TURN DEFICIT INTO A SURPLUS

W. D. Robb, Vice-President of C. N. R., Speaks in London

London, Sept. 8.—"We do not only think but we know that, given a fair opportunity, we shall be able to turn the deficit into a surplus and to turn the Dominion that its investment in the Canadian National Railway is one of the best the Government has ever made," declared W. D. Robb, Vice President of the C. N. R., last night, when he met a considerable number of English newspaper editors at dinner.

Mr. Robb gave his hearers a candid review of both the railway's position and Canadian conditions generally. He frankly told them that Canada was a place for hard work but he also made it clear that it was not a place for continual drudgery. "We want to help every settler. A discontented settler sending discouraging news home does more harm than thousands of dollars spent on propaganda can overcome while a contented settler does more to bring over than thousands of dollars in advertising. Being a Canadian myself it may be a rosy picture I am presenting to you but to me it is real and any man coming to live with us will see the same picture. The progress of the country and the prosperity enjoyed by the bulk of the people is positive proof of my assertions. It is doubtful if anywhere in the whole world the same opportunities exist for the worker to become his own master."

Alluding to Sir Henry Thornton, Mr. Robb said: "The Government has picked an ideal man. If they had hunted the world over I do not think they could have found another man to fill the position with more credit to himself and to Canada." He said that the Government had harmony, loyalty, team-work and confidence among all the C. N. R. workers and if I know anything about the signs of the times, the confidence which has been imparted to the officers and to the employees is now being imparted to the people of the whole Dominion.

NEW GAME REGULATIONS
Next to the observation of the shooting seasons themselves the most important factor for giving all hunters an equal chance to take game, and for giving all game a fair chance, is the observation of the bag limit and of certain simple shooting restrictions. Following the migratory Bird Treaty such restrictions have been provided throughout Canada and the United States, and thus hunters of both Countries are given equal privileges while the game stock is conserved as well.

BAG LIMITS
Daily Bag Limits in Nova Scotia, New Brunswick and Prince Edward Island: Ducks 25, Geese 15, Brant 15, Rails 25, Black-bellied and Golden Plovers, Greater and Lesser Yellow-legs 15 of all kinds, Wilson or Jack-snipe 25, and Woodcock 10.

SHOOTING RESTRICTIONS
The use of automatic, swivel or machine guns, or battery, or any gun larger than number 10 gauge is prohibited, and the use of any aeroplane, power boat, or motor vehicle is forbidden.
The shooting of migratory game birds earlier than one hour before sunrise or later than one hour after sunset is prohibited.

Tabusintac Lagoon
The use of "sink boxes" in the vicinity of Tabusintac Lagoon between the hours of 1 p.m. and one hour before sunrise is prohibited.
