Lloyd-George Says It Was the Former First Lord Who Advanced Idea.

London, Sept. 19 .- The Times correspondent at British headquarters eferring to the part played by tanks,

'In one short hour they did more military service, killed more Ger-mans in uniform and had greater influence on the war than all the zeppelins have ever done. It may be they will not continue their successes indefinitely. The surprise, of course, was a factor in their for-midableness.

"It may be that after this war is done we, the Germans and all the Allies alike, shall be building monsters, huger and each more horrible than the last, till there will be land battles of whole fleets of dread-noughts and terrestial monsters, but what is obvious at the moment is that we have done it first this time We have used nothing which is not entirely civilized and in accord with every convention that was ever signed, and we have scored heavily."

GIVES CHURCHILL CREDIT. London, Sept. 19.—The British war minister, David Lloyd George, gives credit to Winston Spencer Churchill, the former first lord of the admiralty, for the new armored cars which have appeared in the British lines on the Somme front. In an interview yesterday, Lloyd George said: "It is really Winston Churchill, more than anyone else to whom credit for the new armored cars is due. He took up with enthusiasm the idea of making them a long time ago, and met with many difficulties. He converted me, and at the ministry of munitions we went ahead and made them.

Those Who Helped. "The admiralty experts were invaluable and gave the greatest possible assistance. They, of course, are experts in the matter of armorplating, Major Stern, business-man at the ministry of munitions, had charge of the work of getting them built, and he did the task very well. Col. Swinton (of the intelli-gence department of the general staff) and others also did valuable

Asked for his personal opinion about the cars, the war minister said: "We must not expect too much from them. But so far have done very well, and reflect credit on those responsible for them. The enemy has by no means a monopoly on inventive ingenuity."
