THE CANADIAN NORTHERN MAY COME INTO CHATHAM

Interesting Announcement Made To The Planet By W. H. Moore Secretary And General Manager Of The C. N. R.—New Railway For Maple City

W. H. Moore, Secretary and General Manager of the Canadian Northern Railway Company, in an interview with The Planet, stated that it was quite probable that the Canadian Northern would establish a line to Chatham.

Mr. Moore was in Berlin on Thursday attending the annual banquet of the Board of Trade of that place. At the banquet he delivered an address on transportation and intimated that Berlin might hope to secure a line in the course of the completion of the new arrangements and routes contemplated by this road.

The Canadian Northern, which is backed by McKinnis and Mann, of Toronto, is at present considering a trans-Atlantic route. Mr. Moore is a former newspaper man, who has been entrusted with the responsible position of General Manager. He is at present considering lines through Western Ontario, and engineers are now at work figuring on the cost of the proposed works. After the banquet Thursday evening, Mr. Moore was interviewed by a Planet representative in connection with the route through Ontario. He was asked if it was the intention to include Chatham in the list of towns which would be granted this new railway facility. He said:

"The matter is very much undecided at present. It is the intention of the company to proceed with the line if it can be proven a paying proposition. I see no reason why Chatham should not be included among the cities to be tapped, if it can be shown that there would be sufficient traffic to warrant it.

"Off-hand, I would say that Chatham would have less difficulty getting the road than even Berlin, owing to the fact that the country through Kent is level and less trouble would be met with in constructing the road.

"Our engineers and traffic experts are at present busily engaged in considering the different cities which it is the intention to visit, and the provisional plans will be issued in a few weeks."

In view of the statement made to The Planet by Mr. Moore, that Chatham should have a better chance than Berlin to secure this road, the following statement, made by Mr. Moore at the banquet, would go to show that Chatham's chances are by no means small:

"There are now over 4,000 miles operated. It is in six out of nine of the provincial capitals. The Canadian Northern is coming into Western Ontario. In all the plans that have been laid the management has always had Berlin in mind. It is seized of the manufacturing importance of Berlin; representatives will shortly be sent here to make a careful estimate of 'business to be done; and engineers to see if a suitable line can be located here. He hoped the C. N. R. may contribute to the future growth and prosperity of Berlin."

It is expected that the engineers and traffic experts will be in Chatham in the course of a couple of weeks to look over the ground. They should be given a cordial welcome.

"BUSY BERLIN" GIVES ROYAL WELCOME TO ITS VISITORS

Big Board Of Trade Banquet Was A Grand Affair—Representatives From Chatham Board of Trade Were Present

Robert Gray, President of the Chatham Board of Trade, C. H. Mills, Secretary of the Board of Trade, and R. W. Angus, have returned from Berlin, where they attended the annual banquet of the Berlin Board of Trade, when the guests of the evening were Hon. Mr. Lemieux, Postmaster General, and W. L. King, the Deputy Minister of Labor.

Every possible thing was done by the people of Berlin for the visitors. A large reception was held at the residence of Mr. Laing, and rigs and autos were at the disposal of the guests all during the afternoon.

Berlin is a very hospitable city. Men of business gave up commercial cares for hours at a time to show their town to the visitors. It is essentially a manufacturing centre, but the thing which strikes the visitor more forcibly than anything else is the general air of prosperity which is found all over the city, especially in the workingmen's district. Nearly every workman in Berlin owns his own home and keeps it well. All of the houses are of brick, and it is almost safe to say that there is not one shack in the whole town. All of the lawns are well mowed and beautiful, and the factories even display this same thriftiness.

The prettiest spot in Berlin is the Victoria Park. This beauty spot which was once nothing but a swamp is 'fitted up with artificial lakes, trees, flower beds, etc. In one of these lakes is situated a large island connected to the main shore by a small foot bridge. On this island is erected a band stand where open air concerts are given during the summer months. There is also situated in this park a large pavilion which is used as a headquarters for picnics, dancing, etc.

The banquet itself was a huge affair. The interest of course centred around the speeches of Mr. Lemieux and Mr. King, the latter being an old Berlin boy. They were there as guests, but the people of Berlin took advantage of the Postmaster General to impress on his mind Berlin's needs of a postal delivery and better mail service through the country. They made strong appeals to the Minister which will no doubt bear fruit. The people of Berlin know how to get after things, and the result is that they get them. When they are talking about, or working for the city, they are a unit. Every man helps. There are no jealousies. The people are naturally friendly and the result of their citizenship is plainly noticeable to a visitor, when he looks around and sees the prosperity which reigns everywhere.

Mr. Sims, the President of the Board of Trade, was master of ceremonies for the day and he forgot nothing and left nothing undone to make the day a success from every standpoint.

Berlin is the largest town in Canada, it has more varied manufactures than any other manufacturing centre in the Dominion. Berlin offers to the industrial owner or employee a healthy, advantageous and economical site. Over seventy per cent. of its labouring people own their own homes. This proves the success of its manufacturing as well as their employees. Ten new factories located in Berlin during 1906. The town is centrally located in the County of Waterloo, one of the best agricultural counties in the Province.

Berlin has splendid railway facilities. The Grand Trunk Railway, the Canadian Pacific and the Radial electric lines connect the town with the leading business centres of the Province. The Canadian Northern Railway will at an early date make Berlin a divisional point. Berlin owns its own gas and electric power plant, its waterworks, its electric street railway and is the only town in Canada that has a filtration sewage system.

In educational institutions it stands second to none in the Province. The Collegiate and Technical Institute admits pupils from the Public schools to the Manual Training and Domestic Science Department. There is also a first class business training school in the Berlin Business College.

Berlin is noted for its parks. Victoria Park is probably the finest in Ontario. Numerous places of amusement provide first class entertainments for the public. Also the home of the famous 20th Battalion Band.

Population, 1906, 12,151; assessment valuation, 1906, $5,229,059; water mains, 25 miles; granite walks, 18 miles; sewers, 20 miles; post office revenue, 1906, $25,000; customs receipts, 1902, $131,698.71, 1906, $209,175.00; inland revenue, $93,000; number of factories, 74; number of hands employed in factories, male, 2,800, female, 1,900, total 3,800. Wages paid by manufacturers in 1906, $1,500,000; total value of output of the factories for 1906, $7,250,000; seven chartered banks, one Collegiate and Technical Institute, best equipped Manual Training and Technical Institute in Ontario; four Public and two Separate schools; two Roman Catholic Colleges, one Business College; twenty churches, one hospital, two railroads, G. STRATFORD TOO

Toronto, July 5.—The postmaster-general, Hon. M. Lemieux, is in the city to-day, and has ordered the sorting cases sent to Berlin at once for the new free postal delivery system.

He also announces that Stratford is to have free delivery at once, and the routes are now being organized. There will be about eight postmen. As Stratford covers nearly as much ground as Hamilton, and as there are no street cars, delivering there is somewhat of a problem.

THE STYLE OF HAIR WORN

Is an important factor to produce a younger and refined face and a well shaped head to any lady or gentleman. Prof. Dorenwend, who will be at the Garner House, Chatham, Thursday, July 11, 1907, can demonstrate this to anyone calling on him at his show rooms. He has ladies' and gents' wigs, toupees, bangs, wavy and plain fronts, switches in every length and shade, that he will gladly adjust on any lady's head free of charge to prove this. Don't fail to see him.

SUCCESSFUL SOCIAL

A very successful lawn social lawn social was held at Bridge End last Thursday evening, under the auspices of the Presbyterian Church. The festival was held on the beautiful lawn on Mr. D. Johnston, which was tastefully decorated for the occasion.

After a tempting supper the crowd gathered together to listen to an excellent program of song and elocution. The first was a piano duet by Miss Nellie Moody and Mr. Everett Gordon. Mr. N. H. Stevens, of the Canada Flour Mills, ably occupied the chair and gave an interesting address. Chas. Weldon gave several excellent bass songs, which were much appreciated. Miss Hazel Bedford, elocutionist, gave readings, in which she showed much ability. Joe La Porte sang a song and was much applauded.

A very large crowd was present and an enjoyable evening was spent by all.

The proceeds amounted to something over $100.

WELL KNOWN HERE

Mrs. Charles H. Eberts, William street, and her son, Benj. F. Eberts, were called to Detroit to-day on account of the death of Mrs. Eberts' brother, John H. Clegg. Mr. Clegg died suddenly in Asheville, N. C., where he was visiting his sister, Miss Emma Clegg. He was president of the firm of J. H. Clegg Company, chartered accountants, and was well known throughout the United States as an expert auditor. He was an enthusiastic oarsman and at one time he and his partner, Standish, were the champion double scullers of America.

Deceased was 59 years of age. He leaves a widow and two children, Mrs. Wrightson, of Detroit, and Robert, of Chicago. He was well known in Chatham and vicinity, and leaves a large number of relatives and friends, who extend their sympathy to his family in their bereavement.

SPLENDID CROWD

A large crowd took advantage of the Erieau band excursion last night, and every person seemingly enjoyed themselves. The weather was fine, boating and fishing good, splendid bathing. Music was furnished by the 24th Regimental Band, and the dancing platform was well-filled at all times. The bowling alley was kept busy. Ice cream and lunches served at Bungalow. Next band concert Monday night. Join the happy crowd.

A DANGEROUS SPOT

Recently a little boy was walking on St. Clair Street, near the Aberdeen Bridge, when he fell into an excavation, and narrowly escaped an accident. There was a danger lamp about 20 ft. distant, but too far away to be of any service. It would be well for those in charge of such work in the city to take extra precautions to have proper signs to warn pedestrians of danger.

Fortunately nothing serious happened in the case cited above, but a broken limb might have resulted.

ARE DISGUSTED

The members of the Dresden bowling club, consisting of Doctors Wiley and McDonald, and Messrs. Dever, Wells, Weir and Wilson, were in town Monday evening, having come here on the electric railway. After having tea at the Empire Hotel, they shortly afterwards left for home. T. N. Wells, editor of the Dresden Times, speaking about the tournament, stated that they were treated very shabbily by the Phillimore rink. The understanding was that Dresden was to play 15 ends for the Sutherland-Innes trophy, and they would only allow Dresden 15 ends, and in the game which followed, the same rink played 18 ends in order to win from one of the Chatham rinks. All the outside rinks were also disgusted with the treatment received at the hands of Chatham. — Wallaceburg Herald-Record.

Erieau is one of the popular summer resorts on the Canadian shore of Lake Erie.

I've a cottage at the Eau, I can easily come and go, I enjoy myself, you know, For a time.

There you freely breathe Ozone, You can call your life your own, Your verandah is your throne, It's sublime.

There the sky looks clear and blue, And the white-caps not a few, Dance and toss right in your view, It's a treat.

There the water gently in, And your heart they're sure to win, As they break so cool and thin, At your feet.

You can read or you can sleep, You can laugh, talk, smoke or eat, You can feel that your retreat, Is your own.

You can borrow, you can lend, You can neighbor with a friend, And upon their love depend, Without a groan.

When you rise at early dawn, You can fix your "tackle" on, And meander down alone, The pebbly shore.

And if the fish won't bite, You've enjoyed the walk all right, And got an appetite, That is more.

Then away out from the shore, You go gliding quickly o'er, Like the bravest Commodore, The waters blue.

Till the sun has reached on high, His zenith in the sky, And the time and hour draw nigh, For dinner, too.

Then a sleep, a bath, and low, Shadows long begin to show, That 'tis evening at the Eau, Day is past.

See! the moon begins to crawl, Far above the glittering wall, And replacing "noisy" roll, Is up at last.

Far above the lake a haze Has just risen 'fore my gaze, And my eyes, in rapture raise, At the sight.

Far across the rippling deep, Simmering waters it will creep, While we all are in sleep, So good night.

LITERARY

In the June number of McClure's appear the opening chapters of Memories of My Childhood, by Ellen Terry. It is charmingly written and many little incidents are related in such a natural manner that the reader can imagine he is holding a conversation with the popular actress.

Rochester's Pure Milk Campaign, by Samuel Hopkins Adams, is an account of the action the city of Rochester has taken to supply pure milk to the population. During the summer months milk is sold by the city authorities, and though this is done at a financial loss, it has been found that the death rate of children under five years of age has been more than cut in half since this plan has been adopted.

By Airship to the North Pole, by Walter Wallman, describes the attempt he is going to make this summer to reach the North Pole, and the airship in which it is to be made.

The Life of Mary Baker Eddy, The Fight of the Copper Kings, and Reminiscences of a Long Life, are continued, which, in addition to five stories and a couple of poems, combine to make a very attractive number.

Perhaps the article in the June number of the Journal of Modern Construction, which will be of most universal interest is Septic Tank Sewage System Constructed of Concrete, by D. A. Wiley. It is an account of the Sewage system which has just been completed at Marshall, Texas.

The Man, Method and Materials, by H. H. Holt describes some new mineral building materials that appear as if they were going to be invaluable to the building trade.

Some examples of Concrete Construction work for Railroads are given by D. A. Wiley.

The House plan with description and Detailed Plans, and estimated cost this month, is for a small house of the kind for which there is such a demand at the present time.

CHIEF BUTTS IN

Leamington, July 5.—Some of the young farmers of Moresa and Gosfield have formed a racing association and hold a race meet every Tuesday night on the townline between the two townships at concession 5, about three miles from town. Chief of Police Kimball, who is a county constable, is threatening to go out next Tuesday evening to put a stop to the fun. The boys say that if he attempts anything of the kind he will be tarred and feathered. A lively time is expected.

The Nordheimer Permanency of Tone

As a rule when a person buys a piano it is not with the intention of replacing it with a new one next month, next year or within five years. It is regarded as a permanent fixture in the home, and the most important feature next to the owners themselves.

It is evident that great care should be taken to select a piano which will retain its original brilliancy, power and quality of tone for years and years and years. And such a piano is the "Nordheimer."

It has a lasting, permanent tone, as you can prove for yourself if you play on one which has been in the home of a friend for ten, fifteen, twenty years or more.

The "Nordheimer" is perfectly constructed by experts from the finest grade of materials procurable. It is built with the idea of not only satisfying the most critical ear for tone-quality when new, but for retaining its original superb tone, so that it will still satisfy the critical ear in years to come.

Those who own a "Nordheimer" are the only ones who can really appreciate to the fullest sense the wonderful, pure, sweet, brilliant, yet powerful tone of the peerless "Nordheimer" piano. May we not have the pleasure of a talk with you, with the object in view of placing "Nordheimer" in your home?

Our Mr. R. V. Carter will visit Chatham frequently in our interest and will be pleased to furnish you with any information you may desire. Correspondence addressed to him in care of the Garner House will receive careful attention.

DID MONTREALERS UP.

Fakir Had Scheme to Make Illicit Whiskey—Netted $15,000.

Montreal, July 5.—One of the slickest confidence men Montreal has ever had to deal with has just disappeared after cleaning up about $15,000.

His scheme was to make illicit manufacture of liquor, and most every man he tackled said "Fine," and bit, thinking that there was a unit of money in it, but the old story—they were disappointed. There is not much danger of the fakir being prosecuted, because the ones whose money he got are so badly mixed up in the conspiracy to make illicit liquor that they are afraid to act.

His proposal to each individual, supposed to be absolutely confidential, and only made to that person, was to become partners with him in the making of the illicit stuff.

He had all the plans arranged, he claimed, to make a thousand gallons a week. The manufacture of whiskey was to be carried on under the cloak of a Canadian wine factory. The whiskey was to be made from sour wine, which, experts say, furnishes a whiskey of sixty overproof.

In letting his accomplices have a look at the machine that was to turn out their thousand gallons of whiskey a week, which was to be sold for three thousand dollars, he told them that he would have a small, inexpensive still on the premises for the revenue men to find in case they should be warned in some way or other of what was going on.

He had a subterranean chamber and passage dug in an old warehouse at the rear of the Dominion Button Works on Visitation street, and there the thousand gallon still, which cost eleven hundred dollars, and those who saw it say it was a beauty, was installed.

That night, while the arch-schemer was buying champagne for some of his victims, the big still was quietly taken apart and shipped away to no one knows where.

Later the gentleman himself also went away.

CANADIAN WINS FIGHT.

Crowd of 9,000 Saw One of Shortest Battles on Record.

Oceanview, Ringside, July 5.—Bill Squires, the mystery from Australia, lasted only a portion of a round before Tommy Burns yesterday afternoon. A succession of right-hand blows to the jaw and the fight was over. The fact that Squires was an unknown quantity had lent interest to the fight, and an immense crowd assembled just outside San Francisco, to witness the contest.

July 9,000 people were in the arena and paid all the way from $2 to $20 to see a few seconds fighting. What fighting there was was decidedly one-sided, as Squires never landed a blow. Within ten seconds after the song had rung for the men to begin, stocky little Burns had swung his right to the Australian's jaw and he went down.

It looked then as if the fight was over, but in four seconds Squires staggered to his feet and rushed violently at Burns. They came to a clinch and Squires put his huge fists up to fight. Then he broke in the centre of the ring and Burns immediately popped over another right and Squires went down again. He got up in a second and then Burns swung a succession of rights, each one staggering the Australian, until he dropped his arms. Then Burns swung his right again with tremendous force and it was all over. The result while a surprise to many, keeps Jim Jeffries still in retirement. He had announced that if Squires won he would meet him in the ring.

Beyond demonstrating that he can hit hard and with lightning speed, Burns had no opportunity to demonstrate his class. The end was too sudden.

WHITE GIRL A SLAVE.

Has Been Detained and Forced to Work Since Childhood.

Richmond, Va., July 5.—It is almost beyond belief that in the enlightened commonwealth of Virginia a young Anglo-Saxon woman was once out of a county only an hour's ride from the City of Richmond with a startling story of abject slavery and peonage since her childhood.

The girl, who is generally known as the "white slave," answers to the name of Eleanor. Her case soon will be brought to a climax when Attorney Hawley institutes a suit in her behalf against J. J. Cawley, a dairyman, of Chesterfield County, in whose home the girl has spent the better portion of a laborious existence.

The plaintiff to the suit is now 21 years old. Her bill will show that she was sold to Cawley when a child, for whom she was forced to work without compensation until the intervention of friends secured her release. The young woman is prepossessing in appearance and timid to a degree. She has large brown eyes, and an abundance of dark hair.

Watched the Railway.

Ottawa, July 5.—The railway commission put into execution on Dominion Day a plan of inspection for which it had been quietly preparing for some time.

The complaints of overcrowding on passenger trains on holidays have been numerous of late, and the commission, without giving notice to the railways, stationed men at the principal centres to note condition. In Toronto, for example, the inspection began on Friday, and was continued through Saturday and Sunday to Monday.

At present the returns are being collated, and they are to be compared with the traffic figures submitted by the railways.

The results will not be made public for several days.

Farmer Commits Suicide.

Underwood, July 6.—George Patterson, an old and highly-respected farmer of Bruce Township, committed suicide by taking a dose of carbolic acid. He leaves a widow and family. The cause is supposed to have been ill-health.

JACK ALOFT

The sailor, mast-high and swinging at ease with the roll of the ship, is a sight less common in these days of steam propulsion than it used to be. Mr. Bullen, in his "Log of a S. S. Wait," gives a description of his sensations when the masthead was a point of dread to him. The author was then a cabin-boy on a ship bound for Bombay, when one rough day he heard his name called, and running aft, was met by the second mate.

He put a coil of rope in my hands and told me to reeve the signal-halyards in the mizzen truck. We carried extra long royal poles or bare extensions of masts above the highest point of rigging. Ours were sixteen feet long, and the top was not much bigger than a man's wrist. They were crowned with flat pieces of wood the size of a cheese plate, on one side of which was the sheave for signal-halyards.

I started aloft boldly enough, but when I reached the base of the pole and saw to what height its bariness towered above, I faltered. My heart failed at the staggering ship lurching and the sea roared one hundred and twenty feet below me. My head swam, and all strength left me. I sat some time with my legs clutched about the pole, just clutching, without power to move. A voice from the deck called up:

Hurry up, there, with the halyards!

Although I felt that I was going to certain death, yet my fear of the mate was so potent I made another attempt. Pulling myself up, I shut my eyes and said a prayer. Trembling but fighting against the numbing weakness, I actually struggled to the top. Even now, when I think of it, a cold sweat starts out all over me. Opening my eyes, I thrust at the opening of the sheave with the end of the line. It was knotted, and would not go through.

I had tried and failed, and with a last flash of energy, I grasped the pole with both arms and slid down to the eyes of royal rigging. There I clung a few moments, violently ill; then, feeling the bitterness of death past, I descended, walked up to the mate, and said:

"I've tried, and I can't do it, sir; not if you kill me!"

The mate stared at me a moment, then turned away and gave the order to someone else.

The incident may seem trivial, but though I have faced death many times, I never felt such terror.

The I.C.R. officials had a train in readiness for the mails and passengers.

Among those on board the Empress were the Premiers of New Zealand and British Columbia.

When the steamer Montcalm was running in she steamed too close to shore and ran with pretty good force on bottom, just beyond the breakwater. Yesterday she was still hard and fast.

Discusses All-Red.

London, July 5.—(C. A. P.)—The News publishes an interview with a leading shipowner of whom it asked if the war in labor claims difficulty might not lead to the adoption of the all-red route for carrying Australian mail.

The shipowner answered in the negative. A steamship, he says, cannot live by mails alone, except at almost a prohibitive cost to the authorities, and he emphasized the trans-shipping difficulty in connection with goods and passenger traffic on account of the coaling question on the Pacific route.

Garibaldi's Anniversary.

New York, July 5.—The 100th anniversary of the birth of the Italian national leader, Garibaldi, was celebrated in New York yesterday by a parade and dedication of the Garibaldi Pantheon at Clifton, Staten Island, where the Italian liberator lived for three years, from 1850 to 1854.

Premier's Murderer Sentenced.

Sofia, Bulgaria, July 5.—A court-martial yesterday morning sentenced Petroff, the murderer of Premier Petroff, to death.

His two accomplices were condemned respectively to life imprisonment and 15 years' penal servitude.

Canadians Win at Bisleigh.

Bisleigh, July 5.—(C. A. P.)—The Canadian team beat the Royal Marines, 15 to 4, side, by 1,434 to 1,394. Lieut. McVittie and Sergt. Snowball made 95 each.

The Canadians also won a friendly match with the Uganda team.

H. F. BARTELS SKIPPED.

Man Held For Extradition Escapes From Sheriff's Custody.

Toronto, July 5.—Herman Bartels, a millionaire brewer of Auburn, N.Y., who has been in custody in Canada for several weeks fighting extradition proceedings, escaped from the custody of Sheriff Smith of Welland at Osgoode Hall yesterday. Bartels was appearing before Justice Riddell in argument concerning extradition.

Shortly after court resumed in the afternoon, Sheriff Smith took Bartels into the corridor and downstairs to one of the lavatories in the west side of the building. Smith stepped inside for a moment, and when he came out Bartels had disappeared. Smith gave the alarm and at once the sedate halls of the old building were alive with hurrying feet.

The city police were notified, but no sign of him was recorded late last night.

Bartels is 60 years of age, and was being extradited on a perjury charge in connection with his trial for setting fire to his brewery.

He was arrested by Chief of Provincial Police Maitland Niagara Falls, Ont., in the first week of May of this year.

He was taken before the county judge at Welland and the release to the American authorities signed, when his counsel, Hartley Dewar, K.C., moved for habeas corpus proceedings.

The hearing of the argument of the case at Osgoode Hall was completed yesterday in Bartels' absence and judgment was reserved.

Bartels was convicted at Auburn of attempted arson. He had purchased a brewery for $1,500 and then insured it for $75,000. He had it all in readiness to fire when his plans were discovered.

Upon his conviction his counsel moved for a three days' stay of proceedings before Bartels was sentenced. This was granted and he was allowed out on $15,000 bail. He came to Canada and the bail bond was compromised for $5,000.

It being impossible to extradite him for attempted arson an indictment for perjury was secured by the prosecuting attorney and it was upon this that the proceedings were based.

ANGLO-GERMAN PROPOSITION.

Discussed At Hague Conference—Want to Hasten Work.

The Hague, July 5.—The sub-committee of the peace conference on the proposed prize court, M. Bourgeois (France) presiding, met yesterday and discussed the Anglo-German propositions regarding the establishment of an international supreme prize court. Baron Marshall von Baurstein (Germany) made a speech explaining the German project, and Sir Edward Grey (Great Britain) and several other delegates made brief statements on the subject.

General Horace Porter said the Americans wished to present their statements in writing.

Four out of the eight questions forming the set on the subject were approved.

M. Bourgeois said that the presidents of committees had agreed, with the view of hastening the work, that no new questions shall be introduced after the present week and that further modifications can only be proposed as amendments.

Miss Eckstein Received.

The Hague, July 5.—President Nidloff of the peace conference yesterday received Miss Anna Eckstein of Boston, Mass., who presented a petition, signed by over two million Americans, in favor of a general arbitration treaty.

MONTCALM ON THE ROCKS.

Government Steamer In Trouble—I. C. R. Disappointed.

North Sydney, N.S., July 5.—A blackeye was given this port Wednesday night when the Empress of Ireland sent a wireless message to the Montcalm that the Empress would not come in with mails and passengers on account of fog, but would sail on to Montreal.

The I.C.R. officials had a train in readiness for the mails and passengers.

Among those on board the Empress were the Premiers of New Zealand and British Columbia.

When the steamer Montcalm was running in she steamed too close to shore and ran with pretty good force on bottom, just beyond the breakwater. Yesterday she was still hard and fast.

Cough Caution

Never, positively never poison your lungs. If you cough—even from a simple cold—you should always heal, soothe, and ease the irritated bronchial tubes. Don't blindly suppress it with a stupefying opiate. It's strange how some things finally come about. For twenty years Dr. Shoop's Cough Cure has constantly warned people not to take cough mixtures or prescriptions containing Opium, Chloroform, or similar poisons. And now—little though Congress says "Put it on the label, if poisons are in your Cough Mixture." Good! Very good! Hereafter for the very reason mentioned, and others, should insist on having Dr. Shoop's Cough Cure. No poison marks on Dr. Shoop's label—and none in the medicine, else it must by law be on the label. And it's not only safe, but it is said to be by those that know it best, a truly remarkable cough remedy. Take no chance then, particularly with your children. Insist on having Dr. Shoop's Cough Cure. Compare carefully the Dr. Shoop package with others and note the difference. No poison marks there! You can always be on the safe side by demanding

THE WATER COMMISSIONERS.

It is only showing the absence of any reason for the proposed compulsory lawn meter by-law to attempt to represent the American Waterworks Association at Toronto as recommending meters for the lawn service. Nothing of the kind was supported or advocated there, but even if it had been and if meters were preferable for the lawn service there would be no justification for the action of the Commissioners. The Commissioners are not enacting that all future services installed for lawns should discharge the water through a meter, but they are ordering that those citizens who have heretofore installed lawn services according to the Commissioners' requirements and through plumbers licensed by the Commissioners to do the work, shall now at their own expense change that very service and so lay their pipes as to bring all the lawn water through the meter. When, in order to justify this, resort is made to misrepresentation and to the imputing of sinister motives to those who defend the public against injustice, the ratepayer cannot be blamed if he draws conclusions not complimentary to the Commissioners. The discussion in Toronto was as to the comparative advantages of fixture service and meter service. Some cities charge a certain price for each fixture. A bath fixture is one price, a laundry tub another, a kitchen sink another, a washbasin another, and so on. Other cities require this whole house service to be run through a meter. Chatham has had a sort of "go as you please" system. The Planet has always favored delivering such water supply through a meter because it is used in private for only personal benefit. There is no means of detecting waste, and none of the water is used for public advantage. The former Commissioners were gradually adopting this meter service in preference to the fixture service. The Toronto discussion rather preferred the meter service to the fixture service. But that had nothing to do with the question of a meter for the water used upon lawns and boulevards and streets. The American Association at Toronto has no words of recommendation for this. Some American cities give such water free in order to the more encourage the beautifying of the boulevards and the watering of the streets.

Chatham has taken the moderate course of charging for a lawn service according to the size of the lawn, and the owner paid the bill whether he watered the lawn or boulevard or street or not. Then the hours of use were limited so as to prevent waste and to preserve water for fire protection. Under these circumstances the city received sufficient to cover at least the cost of the water and the citizen was induced to beautify the city and water the streets; and the improvements in our lawns became a matter of general remark. No one was ever forced to put in a meter for lawn service or levied upon for each gallon of water he put upon the boulevard or street. This course made a smooth way for the present Commissioners to travel in, and it was not until they deviated that investigations were started and criticisms made.

The present Commissioners say now that you who put down your lawn service pipes with the approval of the Commissioners' licensees and according to the Commissioners' requirements, must go and dig up your lawns and change this whole service and pass your lawn water through a meter before it reaches its destination; and you must do this at your own expense! Windsor has never seen fit to do so, and London with its scanty supply of water has never put such a burden upon its water takers. The proposed action of the Chatham Commissioners would introduce a bad policy for our city, and it is unreasonable and would be most oppressive upon the many citizens who under former Commissioners put in a service plant which is now the best and which it would be expensive to change. Moreover, there has been no demand for the new system from the citizens, who own the water and whose servants the Commissioners are. Let the Commissioners repeal this compulsory by-law and prevent the waste of water by the enforcement of the by-laws which they have for years worked under. Because there have been a few cases of breach of those by-laws and waste of the citizens' water is no reason for the Commissioners now compelling a waste of the citizens' money.

A CANADIAN CLUB.

In commenting upon the formation of a Canadian Club in Woodstock, the Sentinel Review said recently: "Woodstock has now a Canadian Club, and judging from the interest manifested at its birth and the very capable body of officers to whom its affairs have been entrusted for the present, it should have a useful and influential career. It starts off with a membership of over fifty, all secured in one evening, and not a very favorable evening at that. This, no doubt, will be largely increased until the Club becomes fairly representative of the city. It should not be necessary to repeat that the purpose of the Club is not to take the place of or to conflict with any existing organization. Its main purpose, according to the constitution, is 'to foster patriotism by encouraging the study of the institutions, history, arts, literature and resources of Canada, and by endeavoring to unite Canadians in such work for the welfare and progress of the Dominion as may be desirable and expedient.'"

"The Club, of course, is non-political and undenominational. The time for the receiving of charter members has been extended to July 1st. After that membership may be secured in the manner provided for by the constitution."

A Canadian Club would fill a large and important place in the life of Chatham, as has often been pointed out by The Planet. It would cultivate a higher public opinion; it would serve to create greater interest in matters appertaining to the public welfare. It would be an agency through which the younger element would have an opportunity to become familiar with the questions of the day and to equip them for taking part in discussions on questions of a national nature. We want a more enlightened public on matters concerning town or city, or the province, or country at large. Amidst the pleasurable pursuits of the age and the incessant business worries the public mind is not as fully absorbed with public questions as it should be. Every man owes it as a duty to his citizenship to render some service to his country, but a well informed mind is essential to efficiency in the performance of that duty.

In a Canadian Club matters of national nature would be discussed, and the Club would thus serve as an educational agency through which we would be properly equipped to perform the functions devolving upon us as citizens of this great country.

A Canadian Club would also be the instigator of a higher spirit of patriotism. It would inspire in us a personal feeling in the welfare of our country and thus enable us to attain the ideal of citizenship to which we should all aspire.

DOES YOUR HEART FLUTTER?

You know heart fluttering means you're not as well as you should be. It's an evidence of impaired nerve and muscular power. To obtain sure Try Ferrozone; it has a special action on the heart, as seen in the case of Thos. Grover, of Cole Harbor, N. S., who says, "If I exerted myself it would bring palpitation. To carry any heavy weight, or go quickly up stairs completely knocked me out. When bad attacks came on I lived in fear of sudden death. Ferrozone gave my heart the very assistance it needed, and now I am quite well." For heart or nerve it's hard to excel Ferrozone; 50c. per box at all dealers.

FROM PLANET FILES OF HALF A CENTURY AGO

From The Planet files from Nov. 14, 1866, to Nov. 21, 1867.

The President of the United States has issued his proclamation recommending Thursday, Nov. 28th, as a day of thanksgiving and prayer.

Quebec is pretty well prepared for a siege just now. Eighty heavy guns have lately been mounted, and there are seven years provisions for 5,000 men within the fortress at the present time.

A valuable cow belonging to Mr. M. Faber was killed Saturday last, supposed to be from poison administered by some evil disposed person.

The Royal Canadian Bank has recently opened a branch in Galt.

A covered skating rink is to be gladden the youth of Goderich during the coming winter months.

Great improvements have been made in Dresden this season, no less than 73 new buildings being erected. This speaks volumes for the prosperity of the place and for the energy and enterprise of its residents. If it continues to improve at such rapid rate its erection into an incorporated village is not far distant.

The freedom of the city of Edinburgh was conferred on Mr. Disraeli on Wednesday, the 30th ult.

An old soldier, a valet of Lord Charles Kerr, who has just left his Lordship's service, has been given a million dollars.

We notice by an exchange that the executive of Serbia and of several other places have set apart a day as a public holiday and as a day of thanksgiving for the blessings of a bountiful harvest and for the peace and security we have enjoyed during the past year. Nothing can be more appropriate than this, and we would urge upon our town authorities to do likewise, in which they will express the wishes and feelings of the people.

At a meeting of the friends of emancipation recently held in Manchester, documents were at hand setting forth that there were 70,000 slaves in the Portuguese colony of Cuba, and 2,500,000 in Brazil. According to Mr. Walter, who had travelled up the Zambesi with Dr. Livingston, the Sultan of Zanzibar was a dealer in slaves to a frightful extent, 20,000 being imported into his dominions every year. The same authority stated that nine-tenths of the population had disappeared, and that the slave trade on the east coast of Africa was as dreadful at the present time as it had ever been.

PRIVATE PROPERTY AT SEA.

More Opposition to American Proposal At Hague Conference.

The Hague, July 4.—The opposition to the American proposition before the peace conference on the inviolability of private property at sea is increasing. It now seems that Russia and France are not even in favor of the Italian amendment suggesting that belligerents be allowed to capture private property at sea, but that such property be returned after the war, and that the owners be paid an indemnity for the damage sustained.

Japan is preparing a proposition regarding the use of wireless telegraphy, based on her experience during the Russo-Japanese war, while other powers are desirous of proposing that submarine cables be classed as neutral property.

The Japanese have not presented any proposition regarding the bombardment of towns, but have asked the Americans, who, in their proposition, desire to prohibit the bombardment of towns for not paying ransoms, to propose the abolition of the payment of ransoms in order to escape bombardments.

Miss Anna Eskstein has requested an audience of President Neldoff in order to present a petition signed by over two million Americans, in favor of a general arbitration treaty. M. Neldoff will receive Miss Eskstein this morning.

The sub-committee of the peace conference on the amelioration of rules of land war met yesterday. M. Bustamante (Cuba) presented a proposition regarding the amelioration of the treatment of prisoners and the organization of a bureau aiming to keep a complete record sheet for each prisoner.

Holland presented two propositions, one to prohibit the use of force to induce the population of a town to give an enemy the information about the armed forces of the country, and the other prohibiting the infliction of capital punishment without the sentence of a regular court-martial having been ratified by the commander-in-chief.

Germany made the following propositions: First—Volunteer forces must be provided with uniforms visible at a distance except in the case of a rising of the population. In such cases the people must carry arms openly.

Second—Nobody shall be forced to fight against his own country.

Third—The inviolability of private property on land shall be extended to contractual obligations of a financial nature. Spain proposed that all prisoners, except officers, may be employed on military works.

Germany presented to the sub-committee on the proposed prize court a proposition, in six articles, establishing that arms and war materials be considered as contraband of war, including shotguns.

We learn that a fire took place near the farm of Mr. Thomas Shaw, Dover side of the river, on Saturday last, whereby over one hundred cords of wood and a large portion of the fencing was totally destroyed. The fire was on the bank of the river ready for exportation. The cause of the fire is, as usual, a mystery, but the suspicions are incandescence.

We learn that a melancholy and fatal accident occurred on Thursday last in the woods in the Township of Hawkeby. It appears that the deceased, whose name is McKay, had been coon hunting and proceeded to chop down the tree in which the coon had taken refuge, but in so doing the tree fell upon another tree near by, breaking off a limb, which struck the unfortunate man on the breast, resulting in his death shortly afterwards. The deceased was about thirty years of age and resided on Rond Eau street.

On Friday night the saw mill of Mr. David Sicklesteel, about three miles from town, was burned to the ground, involving a large loss of property.

The body of a woman was washed ashore at Point Aux Pelee on Tuesday morning, 5th inst.

A few days ago there died in the County of Infrimay, in Wexford, an old woman named Neville, who had led a remarkable life. For the past thirty years or upwards she maintained herself by her gun in shooting wild fowl and by fishing.

A man of seventy, having a quarrel with his son, forty-eight years of age, in one of the streets of Antwerp, the father drew a knife and stabbed the son in the face and in the abdomen so violently that the intestines protruded.

Five little boys, in Portland, Me., the oldest not five years old, according to the press of that city, were seen drunk in the streets the other day and had to be carried to the police station.

John Stuart, Mill and Alfred Tenyson are visiting America.

On Saturday last Mr. Brodan, station master at Glencoe, met with a serious accident. While he was assisting the brakeman to put a large trunk on the eastern train the western train came past and collided with the trunk, hurling them to the ground with great violence. Mr. Brodan sustained a severe fracture of the leg and was badly bruised about the head. The others met with no serious injuries.

WEE FOLK ETIQUETTE.

Learned by Absorption, Not by Rule or Rote.

There was company, and in what turned out to be an evil moment some one gave little Lucille a rose.

"Say 'Thank you,'" urged her mother.

For some reason Lucille declined to deliver the small coin of courtesy. Her mother insisted. The child still refused. The company became uncomfortable and pleaded for Lucille that she was too young to understand.

"But I must make her understand," said the adamant mother.

The talking went on all, according to the housekeeper, Lucille grew desperate in her defiance and was carried from the room.

"You have such charmingly polite children," said a young mother to an older one. "Tell me, do they all have to learn it by such painful methods?"

"No, indeed. I think painful methods are a great mistake. Fine manners must be learned by absorption. The child must be surrounded by good copies, and he will get politeness without ever being reminded of it. That is the only kind that really soaks in."

"And did you ever tell your children about these things?"

"Not of the little things that belong to the common routine of life. For instance, we never told one of the five to say 'Thank you.' Instead we said 'Thank you' to them for every little service, and while they were yet babies, unable to speak plainly, they said 'Thank you' on all proper occasions. 'If you please' and 'I beg your pardon' were taught in the same way."

"That ladies must be served first was taught by their father's deference to me, and that ladies must be appreciative, that point so often neglected, I hope they learned from the gratitude I showed for his knightly little services to me. We never told the boys to get a chair for me, but you know that they always do it."

"They learned to acknowledge introductions and greetings properly by a game they used to play when they were very young. The two oldest played they were Mr. and Mrs. Merry, and the others were their children."

"They would come to visit me, and I would receive them with all ceremony and introduce the entire family to my husband. As a result they never hung back and refused to shake hands with a visitor. When I introduced them they felt that they had a responsible part to take and behaved with a commendable absence of self-consciousness."

NERVOUS INDIGESTION

A Severe Case Cured by Dr. Williams' Pink Pills.

"I suffered so much from nervous dyspepsia that I feared I would become insane," says Mrs. Alfred Austin, of Varney, Ont. "For months," says Mrs. Austin, "I was prostrated with this trouble. I got so bad I could not eat a mouthful of food without it nearly choking me. I was affected with such terrible feelings of dizziness and nausea that I had to leave the table sometimes with just two or three mouthfuls of food for a meal. My nerves were all unstrung and I grew so weak that I could not even sweep the floor. In fact my nervous system was so affected to such an extent that I feared to be left alone. I could not sleep at nights, and used to lie awake until I feared my reason would leave me. I was taking medicine constantly, but it did not do me a bit of good. I had used Dr. Williams' Pink Pills on a former occasion, with good results, and at last I determined to try them again. I can say nothing better than that these pills have been a blessing to me, as they have made me a well woman. Every trace of the indigestion is gone, and my nerves are as strong and sound as they were in girlhood. Now I can eat anything that is on the table, and I get sound refreshing sleep at nights. All this I owe to the faithful use of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills, which I shall never cease to praise."

Dr. Williams' Pink Pills fill the veins with new rich red blood. That is why they cure all troubles due to bad blood or weak shattered nerves, such as anaemia, with its grinding, wearing backaches, headaches and sideaches, rheumatism and neuralgia, heart palpitation, indigestion, St. Vitus' dance, partial paralysis, kidney troubles, and those special ailments that render the lives of so many women and growing girls a burden. But you must get the genuine pills with the full name, "Dr. Williams' Pink Pills for Pale People," on the wrapper around each box. Sold by all medicine dealers or by mail at 50 cents a box or six boxes for $2.50 from The Dr. Williams Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

THE JAPANESE.

He Is Child, Fanatic and Emotional Savage All In One.

He is a bundle of contradictions, and, measured by American standards, he is a bedlamite, straight from topsy turvy land. He may be a Chesterfield and a cheerful liar one minute and a red Indian the next—a scoundrel and a welsher today and a Napoleon tomorrow.

We westerners have been taught to regard the Little Jap as an amusing and precocious child given to obstructing sidewalk traffic with his polite conceits in bowing, to suspending from the branches of the cherry tree his dainty poems addressed to his friends and to dawdling for hours over the ceremonial tea, and when we see him under the tent flap, bowing and laughing and playing checkers, he seems a velvet pawed kitten in khaki. And yet you and I have seen him in battle a ramping, raging tiger, greedy of Slav bayonets and afterward dragging himself to the field hospital, hide to rags, unwhimpering, a mere bull hide wrapped around a will.

We never know a character until we have seen it put to the test under stress—least of all the combination of sphinx and Janus known as the Japanese. So studied, the embattled brown boy strikes me as a strange composition of Little Lord Fauntleroy, Peter the Hermit and Sitting Bull—child, fanatic and emotionless savage, all in one.—Appleton's Magazine.

WHY CHEST COLDS ARE DANGEROUS.

They lead to pleurisy and pneumonia. Follow the Advice of W. R. Powles, of Powles' Corners, Ont., says: "I used to be subject to attacks and although I used most everything, nothing relieved quickly till I discovered Nerviline. I have used it for pleurisy and sore chest, and found it just the proper thing. For Lungmache or Neuralgia it's quick as lightning. I cheerfully recommend Nerviline. The strongest, cleanest, most pain-destroying liniment on earth is Powles' Nerviline. 25c. bottles sold everywhere."

Can't Get Strike-Breakers.

Halifax, July 4.—The striking freight handlers of the I. C. R. find their ranks still unbroken. The railway brought in more than 30 men yesterday from points along the line, but when they found what the situation was none would go to work. Efforts are being made to get clerks to temporarily undertake the work of the strikers.

TRUE HAPPINESS.

True happiness, so I've been told, is not alone in yellow gold. And I believe it too. Don't you? But it is nice to have enough. So you at least can run a bluff. That your importance may appear quite clear.

A million dollars is a lot of trouble, for as like as not Possession of it means The magazines Will keep your daily life And thus cause trouble with your wife Imbittering with this same roll Your soul.

It's better to have stowed away Some fifty thousand, we will say, Or even fifty-two Would do. Then you can keep the wolf at bay And possibly at Christmas may Buy rinkets that you do not need And feed.

But, after all, Marie, you'll find True happiness is of the mind And not in wealth at all. Though small, if you can keep your conscience clear And your digestive running gear Throughout the year in trim, You're Sunny Jim.

The Nonpartisan Emperor. Emperor William's speech to the boys who gathered around the palace on election night telling them they were large fine huskies and several other things that it is presumably desirable to be, greatly shocked some people who pretended to believe in the pleasant fiction that the emperor had no feelings in the matter.

That is where the president has the advantage over the emperor. The head of the United States is also the head of one great political party, and it is constitutional as well as good form for him to believe that the country will take the elevator and go up the spout in about thirteen seconds if the opposing party wins.

The president can have himself photographed in half a dozen different attitudes while casting his vote, while the kaiser isn't allowed to soil his hands marking the blanket ballot no matter how deeply he may feel in the matter.

Two of a Kind. "See any resemblance between the baby and his father?" "Oh, yes; a striking one." "Where do you notice it?" "Well, they both have two eyes and a mouth."

Quite a Dub. He strove to be an artist. But couldn't, strange to tell. For he could only draw his breath. And that would hardly sell.

Confirmed It.

"Is he as strong a Democrat as he used to be?" "Stronger than ever." "Political prospects?" "No; he married into a Republican family."

Made All the Difference. "Do the experts think the prisoner is insane?" "Not now. They did at first, but they discovered just in time to save their reputations that he didn't have any money."

A Most Valuable Agent.

The glycerine employed in Dr. Pierce's medicines greatly enhances the medicinal properties which it extracts from native medicinal roots and holds in solution much better than alcohol would. It also possesses medicinal properties of its own, being a valuable demulcent, nutritive, antiseptic and anodyne.

It adds greatly to the efficacy of the Black Cherry bark, Bloodroot, Golden Seal root, Stone root and Queen's root, contained in "Golden Medical Discovery" in subduing chronic, or lingering coughs, bronchitis, throat and lung affections, for all of which these agents are recommended by standard medical authorities.

In all cases where there is a wasting away of flesh, loss of appetite, with weak stomach, as in the early stages of consumption, there can be no doubt that glycerine acts as a valuable nutritive and aids the Golden Seal root, Stone root, Queen's root and Black Cherry bark in promoting digestion and building up the weak and emaciated.

From H. C. Taylor, asking the Council to make out cheque for printing by-laws and auditors' reports in favor of the Leamington News.

Ideal and Real.

By Martha McCulloch-Williams.

Copyright, 1907, by M. M. Cunningham.

"I'll tell you it's the only way! Unless you agree to run away with Jessy you'll never get her," Grandmother Lewis said energetically as she smoothed her silk apron. Millard, who was this and every way of the correct form, groaned. "Run away! What from? And why?" he demanded. "Do you—does anybody—object to me? I'm sure Major Lewis does not, and as for Jessy herself—"

"Jessy is a dear, sweetly pretty, adorable young fool," he began. "Of course a man of my type can't venture long in a dead-alive country town. I decided to marry you as soon as Millard told me how matters stood—that your money was your own. It's well to have these little things understood in the beginning. I am willing, quite willing, to trust you in the matter of settlements until after you are my wife. Being a minor, you could not make valid ones, as I take it. Your father, who is also your trustee, would not join in them. Let's see. You are ready tomorrow early, say 11 o'clock. Millard and I will call for you; then away to the parson. He has some absurd plan of waiting for Miss Rivers. I tell you, as of course I can't tell him, when you are Mrs. De Bonne."

"But I shall never be Mrs. De Bonne. I hate you—like poison. And I won't run away—not with anybody—I wouldn't even with Dick Millard if he asked me—and I love—the ground he walks on." Jessy burst out, twisting herself from the actor's hold and darting toward the long French window.

Millard, just outside it, caught her to his breast and hid her face there, while he soothed her tempestuous sobs. Presently grandmother came to lay gentle hands on her head and said: "Never mind, pet. We've sent the creature away. You shall never see him. If he dares to speak to you—well, your father and Dick will settle with him! Run away! You run away with him! Why, my precious would never, never cheat her granny so—not for anybody in the world."

"Not for anybody in the world. But you'll let me marry Dick—to save him—right away?" Jessy sobbed. "And you'll give me the biggest wedding ever in the county—and ask all the far-away kinsfolk to come and stay all night—and I won't have any wedding trip—and wear my mother's wedding frock. I want to be all like my own people—sweet and clean and homely."

"Bohemian! Don't you yearn for it?" Millard asked mischievously.

Jessy shook her head vigorously. "Maybe you do," she said. "But you had just as well not. You are to live and die at my apron string, and I shall never, never, never go to any such wicked place."

The title of "Admiral" was not used in England in the earlier days. In fact, the better opinion is that it was not so used before the beginning of the fourteenth century. He was called captain, master, or admiral (captain of the sea), "keeper of the seacoasts," "captain of the king's mariners." The title "admiral" or "amiral," probably derived from the Arabic amir or emir (prefect), was used in foreign countries much earlier than in England and came from France. Pryne ("Admiralverona," page 106) states that there were admirals and admiral courts in England as early as the time of Henry I., derived from our ancient Saxon kings—Alfred, Edgar, Ethelred and others who had the dominion of the British ocean. None of these kings probably was more potent than King Edgar, who, possessing an absolute dominion of the neighboring sea, sailed round about it every year and secured it with a constant guard. These ships, being very stout ones, were in number 1,200. Some writers even affirm that there were 4,300 sailing ships.—London Nautical Magazine.

What is a Fireproof Building? In defining what a fireproof building is one should remember that a building that is of noncombustible materials is not necessarily fireproof; that a building that is of fireproof materials, but not of fireproof construction, is not necessarily fireproof; that a building that is not of fireproof construction and design, except in part, is not fireproof; and that a building that is strictly and thoroughly fireproof, but filled with combustible contents, may have a destructive fire in it, but the building itself will not be wrecked or destroyed. Correct design means the proper application of incombustible, nonflammable materials and the arrangement of the parts of the building into such units that only a small proportion of the contents can be destroyed by fire.—Metropolitan Magazine.

What Makes the Sky Blue. It is the atmosphere that makes the sky look blue and the moon yellow. If we could ascend to an elevation of fifty miles above the earth's surface, we should see that the moon is a brilliant white, while the sky would be black, with the stars shining as brightly in the daytime as at night. Furthermore, as a most picturesque feature of the spectacle, we should take notice that some of the stars are red, others blue, yet others violet, and still others green in color. Of course all of the stars (if we bar the planets of our own system) are burning suns, and the hues they wear depend upon their temperature.—Reader Magazine.

"The wretch! How dared he tell?" Jessy cried, flushing furiously. Millard smiled indifferently.

"I see you have a heap to learn," he said. "Temperament, the artistic soul, resolves its possessor from petty restrictions. I shouldn't wonder if De Bonne actually proposed to you. It would be a sacrifice of his ideals, of course, but you'd bring him money enough to make him independent of those beastly managers and critics, and that's something even to a great man."

"Oh, Mr. De Bonne, are you really a great man?" Jessy asked eagerly as the actor passed just then lounged his way into the chair beside her. He fixed her with a steady glare and said in his deepest voice:

"Had you any doubt of it when you sent me?"

"Hush!" Jessy said imperatively, her whole face burning. De Bonne chuckled inaudibly, but leaned a little toward her, saying in a husky voice: "You need not blush, pretty one. I have a real divorce, and my intentions are strictly honorable."

"I think grandmother wants me," Jessy said, with what dignity she could master, trying to rise, but De Bonne held her down. "I think you know what I came for," he began. "Of course a man of my type can't venture long in a dead-alive country town. I decided to marry you as soon as Millard told me how matters stood—that your money was your own. It's well to have these little things understood in the beginning. I am willing, quite willing, to trust you in the matter of settlements until after you are my wife. DID FLIM FLAM GAME

St. Catharines, July 6.—A slippery customer visited the city Thursday and endeavored to work a bogus cheque game upon several merchants. The first place he visited was Charles Togan's furniture store, where he tendered a cheque for $458 in payment for $132 worth of furniture purchased. He did not get away with the game, however, as Mr. Logan was suspicious and refused to accept the cheque. The stores of Andrew Foster, John W. Timmons and Reath & Furringer were also visited with the same or similar motives, but in no case did the game come out as anticipated.

At the postoffice he approached the stamp wicket and asked the young lady if she could give him a $20 bill or $20 in bills. She replied that she had a $10 bill and two $5 bills, and he then emptied his pocket, saying that would do. Fifteen dollars was found all right and taken by the young lady, but upon counting over the balance, $5 was found to be only $4.75. In the meantime he had asked her to put it in an envelope and seal it.

The young lady then turned to wait upon other customers, and later returned to him and told him of the shortage, to which he replied: "Oh, she must have given me the wrong change." He then handed her the envelope, promising to go and get the correct change, and she, supposing it to be the original $20 put it in the cash drawer. Suspicion that all was not right occurred to her next morning, and upon opening the envelope it was found to contain a blank paper. The man departed on a trolley car for the Falls.

MISSING TELLER ARRESTED.

Had Satchel in His Possession Containing $64,000.

New York, July 6.—Chester B. Runyan, the missing teller of the Windsor Trust Company, who disappeared with about $96,000 of the company's funds, several days ago, was arrested in this city yesterday.

Runyan carried a satchel containing $64,000 when arrested. A Mrs. Collier, in whose home he was captured and to whom he said he had given $15,000, was also detained by the police.

That Runyan was not the immaculate young man his employers thought he was, up to the day he went off with his dress suit case stuffed with the trust company's money, is now an established fact. For weeks before his disappearance he had been speculating in stocks under the name of Martin Chase. Speculative accounts that he carried with three stock brokerage houses have been unearthed.

FUGITIVE MURDERED.

Famous Western Outlaw Shot on International Boundary Line.

Vancouver, B. C., July 6.—Jake Terry, notorious outlaw and fugitive from justice, was shot and killed yesterday at Sumas, on the international boundary line, thirty miles from here, by Gus Lindsay. The latter was incensed because Terry had visited his former wife, who is now married to Lindsay.

Lindsay had threatened on several occasions that he would shoot Terry, and yesterday morning saw the latter coming away from his wife's bedroom door. Terry died immediately. Citizens are ready to furnish $50,000 bail for Lindsay, who is popular in the boundary town. Terry had been ordered out of town last year, and was despoised by the citizens.

He was living in Vancouver until Thursday, when he left for Sumas. He was for two years engaged as C. P. R. detective, engaged in hunting down Bill Miner and his gang of train robbers, of which he professed to be a former member.

A FEATHER IN HIS CAP

Rev. Mr Rutledge considers It An Honor to Live in Chatham

A Parting Word From A Man Who Has Helped The City

To the Editor of The Planet:

Dear Sir,—As a word appreciative of the good city of Chatham and the good people in it, may be of a little general interest, perhaps, I might be permitted, through the columns of your valuable journal, publicly to express that well deserved word.

First, I should like to say how greatly I have been touched by the thoughtful kindness of the people of the Park street church. My ministry amongst them has been a growing joy, and though the exigency of our work has called for my removal before the expiration of my pastoral term, instead of criticising my action or that of the church, they have throughout overwhelmed me with evidences of their confidence and affection, and so have strengthened the ties which will, I feel sure, bind me to them always.

The ministers and people of the other churches have also been most generous and cordial, which is the more appreciated as I have had so few opportunities to prove them. But I think it is all characteristic of the large and cosmopolitan spirit of the place and which, I believe, is prophetic of the ampler proportions Chatham is destined in the near future to attain.

It was the boast of Saint Paul that he had been a citizen of no mean city. I also shall long wear it as a feather in my cap that I have been a citizen of this beautiful and prosperous Maple City.

With all good wishes,
W. L. RUTLEDGE.

ACETYLENE GAS PROHIBITED.

Railway Commission Issues Orders Which Will Lessen Accidents.

Ottawa, July 6.—The Railway Commission has issued an order prohibiting the use of acetylene gas for lighting railway cars. In view of the impracticability of installing electricity at once, the commissioners allow the use of Pintch gas, or commercial acetylene, which comes through asbestos and is, therefore, safe.

It has been found that acetylene gas has been the cause of fires and explosions on trains.

The commission is also considering the prohibition of the use of lignite coal on locomotives. Lignite has been the cause of prairie and other fires.

The Adaptability of Jimmy.

By Troy Allison.

Copyright, 1907, by C. H. Sutcliffe.

"I've waited for him long enough. I found a gray hair today," Elizabeth's voice was a comical reproduction of grief.

Jim Hartley interrupted the fascinating occupation of punching with his scarf pin a lace pattern around a leaf on the large rubber plant and looked at her reproachfully.

"You know you always have me to fall back on," he suggested placidly. "Of course I might not come up to your exact ideas of what a Prince Charming ought to be, but could you identify me a little, eh, Elizabeth?"

"My dear boy, you don't seem to realize your own nose in the least! Now, could you imagine the prince with such a feature? As merely a nose, Jimmy, I'll grant it's the noblest Roman of them all, but it would look as much out of place on my prince as—as a Falstaffian front would on Romeo."

He eyed with honest admiration the death's head and crossbones he had punched in the center of the leaf.

"Your dainty and aesthetic prince would be grieved to hear your slight coarseness of expression, Elizabeth, my child. You are not supposed to refer to anatomical subjects."

She sniffed her disdain and, turning her back to him, put her little worn slippers against the steam radiator.

"You are so terribly prim, too, and so absolutely expected! I have known you so long that I know you through and through. There is never any room for speculation. Maybe one could forget about your nose if you would ever do anything—unexpected!"

He did—immediately, and she arranged her rumpled hair, her eyes blazing at him angrily.

"James Hartley—I never would have believed it of you! And to think I've known you six years."

A little startled at his own recklessness, he picked up a paper knife from her writing desk and commenced operations on the abused rubber plant with assumed nonchalance.

"You wanted me to do something unexpected," he suggested mildly.

"Any man might have done that," with withering sarcasm.

"Elizabeth Lent, I am more than shocked at such an admission, for I've wanted to try it for six years and have been too cowardly!"

She grew more confusedly angry.

"Make a joke of it if you like," she said. "It probably serves me right for thinking there was one man that could be trusted."

He turned abruptly and took his hat from the top of the piano.

"You needn't say any more," his face was pale with anger. "You've had me at your beck and call for all these years, and you never would take me seriously. As for jokes, my love for you has been a huge joke to you always. I'm tired of it—and if I'm never to be taken seriously we'll part an end to it all. I apologize most humbly for my recent rudeness," and he went out, closing the flat door with an unmistakable evidence of temper before she could realize that there had actually been a quarrel.

She stood up mechanically and commenced rearranging the furniture of the little parlor. She broke off the demolished leaves of the rubber plant and started to the dining room to put them in the wastebasket.

Her roommate sat at the dining table working on a sketch.

"Jimmy gone this early?" she asked in surprise.

"Not coming any more," answered Miss Lent, with studied indifference.

Frances Carson ran the background of the sketch into the Grecian face she had finished and let it drop on the table a hopeless blur.

"What have you done to Jimmy?" she demanded accusingly. "He's the best fellow I ever saw."

"Is he indeed?" Miss Lent dropped the leaves into the basket with a gesture of superior scorn. "Glad you think so."

The other woman commenced washing her paint brushes and threw the spoiled sketch in the basket on top of the leaves.

"You have treated him shamefully all these years," she said, looking squarely into the other's wrathful eyes.

"You have been dreaming of heroes and ideals and in the meanwhile have been taking all and giving nothing to the best type of man that exists. I only hope that you haven't treated him so badly it's beyond making up."

Miss Lent started toward the bedroom door defiantly.

"He'll get over it and come back in a few days," she said, with calm assurance.

But Jimmy did nothing of the sort. Weeks passed, and Miss Carson found that she need cook only one chop for dinner, for the other was never touched. Elizabeth grew thinner and paler, and the doctor finally looked worried when he asked about her cough.

Frances Carson had never been a believer in the doctrine that it was good policy to let things drift. She believed in the judicious application of a helping hand. She watched her friend's listless face one night after dinner as she sat in the Morris chair, her book lying forgotten on her lap.

"Elizabeth, I can't bear to see you looking so wretched," she said, rising energetically. "I'm going out and get something else for your cough. And you simply must make up your mind to go to Florida for the rest of the winter, as the doctor advises."

She put on her coat and hat and went, not to the druggist's, but to the nearest telephone booth.

"Is that you, Jimmy?" she called when she had got her number.

"I may be a traitress, a villainess and everything else that indicates the double dyed feminine conspirator, but I couldn't resist the temptation of calling you up and telling you that you are an idiot."

"Don't get huffy! I've just cause for complaint. Did you know that Elizabeth has been too ill to go to her office for over a month?"

"I thought you didn't. The doctor told me privately that he didn't believe she would stand the winter unless she could be induced to go south. No—hush—don't say a word to me. I'm not going back to the flat for two hours, and she is really too ill to be left alone. If anything happens to her while I'm away, it will be your fault. I left the key under the hall mat near our door. Before I ring off, I'll tell you I found your picture under her pillow when I was fixing her bed this morning. I left the bed unfix'd, and she doesn't dream I saw it. So you see why you are an idiot. Goodbye!"

When Elizabeth heard the key in the door half an hour later, she spoke without turning her head.

"You've tried nearly every brand of patent medicine on the market, Frances. I only hope this one will not be bitter to take."

"So do I!" Jimmy put a chair in front of her and sat down as calmly as if he had only been out of the room fifteen minutes.

She started to rise from her chair, but fell back from weakness.

"You've come back," she said faintly. "I've come back to make you take the doctor's prescription," he said boldly, thinking of the picture under the pillow. "You need managing, Elizabeth, and I'm going to see what I can do in that line. You are going to start to Florida tomorrow afternoon, and I'm going with you to keep off the alligators and things."

"But you can't!" she gasped, her face flushing, her eyes fixed upon his in a dazed fascination.

"I can do all manner of unexpected things," he said, taking both her hands; "for instance, I'm going to marry you at 2 o'clock tomorrow afternoon."

He looked at her triumphantly, felt the nervous grip of her fingers, but never relaxed his gaze.

The color wavered over her face and finally covered the wanness that had startled him when he first saw her.

"Jimmy, I wouldn't be the least bit angry now!" she commenced in a whisper, and Jimmy's intelligence was entirely comprehensive.

Impaled on a Buffalo.

Many years ago a son of an Iroquois halfbreed went out one day with other Indians to run buffaloes along the Red river, but he never returned. They found his horse and his gun and knife, but could not find the man. About a year later, as the Indians were hunting in another part of the country, a buffalo cow was seen which had something peculiar on her head. They chased and killed her and found that her singular head ornament was the pelvis of a man, one of her horns having pierced the thin part of the bone, which was wedged on so tightly that they could scarcely get it off. Much of the hair on the head, neck and shoulders of the cow was worn off short, and on the side on which the bone was the hair looked new, as if it had been worn off the skin and was beginning to grow out again. It is supposed that this bone was part of the missing halfbreed, who had been hooked by the cow and carried about on her head until his body fell to pieces.

When the Astrologers Were Wrong.

Not all of the ancients were superstitious. "Where wilt thou spend Christmas?" asked Henry VII. of Evans, a noted astrologer. "May it please your majesty, I am unable to tell." "Then I am wiser than thou," said the king. "For I know it will be in prison." Another astrologer told John Gallezo, duke of Milan, that he would die early. "And how long do you expect to live?" asked the duke in return. "My lord, my star promises me long life." "Never trust your star, man. You are to be hanged before night," cried the duke. And, sure enough, he was and that by being thrown out of a window at the end of a rope.

A Helper.

The fashionable girl had accepted him, and the young man was wondering how far his $30 a week would go.

You must remember that life's not all golf and tennis, murmured she. Why, of course it isn't, she responded brightly. There's beating, and coaching, and bridge, and ever so many things.

We all have our troubles.

As a Single Women, England's Queen Enjoys Many Rights

It is interesting to know that in certain circumstances Queen Alexandra is assumed to be a single woman. This is in case of legal proceedings. As everybody knows, the law takes a very different view of married women and a femme sole, which means either spinster or widow in the old Norman-French law jargon. As a single woman, Queen Alexandra can purchase and convey land, hold leases, and do many other useful things without His Majesty's concurrence. To aid her in her legal work Her Majesty has the power of appointing her own attorney-general and solicitor-general, though this privilege has not been exercised during the present reign.

The Queen can be tried only by the House of Peers, as was Queen Caroline, of unhappy memory. But, unless expressly exempted by law, Her Majesty is as much a subject of the King as any other lady in his wide dominions. The reason of the immemorial law which made the Queen Consort of the reigning monarch a femme sole in legal matters, is supposed to be the necessity that the sovereign, being immersed in affairs of state, should not be worried by domestic matters.

A FAVORED QUEEN.

Queen Alexandra is more favored than any other consort who ever shared the British throne. She is the only lady member of the most exalted order of English chivalry—a degree of Lady of the Garter—being especially created for her. A new verse has been added to the national anthem in her honor. She can ride by the side of her royal husband in the great coach of state, which no queen consort of England has ever done before.

In fact, in honor of his beautiful Queen, Edward VII. has torn precedents to tatters. Indeed, the King was never a respecter of precedent, as he showed when he lighted a cigar in the sacred hall of the Middle Temple, where he attended the wedding of one of the Rothschilds—the first time a Jewish ceremony had been so honored.

It is high treason to plot against the Queen's life while His Majesty is alive, though it would cease to be so after the demise of the King. Should Queen Alexandra survive his present Majesty, an annuity of $350,000 will be hers, on which she can keep the state, and dignity proper to a queen-dowager.

In the very unlikely event of Her Majesty wishing to marry again, she would be perfectly at liberty to do so, provided that the bridegroom did not mind having all his property forfeited to the Crown. A special license from the reigning king is necessary to the re-marriage of a queen-dowager.

and when he resigned from a certain celebrated club which had presumed to blackball the late Cecil Rhodes.

Her Majesty has, of course, her own household, quite separate from that of the King. It comprises a Lord Chamberlain, Lord Colville of Culross; Vice-Chamberlain, Earl of Gosford; treasurer, Earl de Grey; and private secretary, Hon. Sidney Greville, among the gentlemen. The ladies of the household include a Mistress of the Robes, the Duchess of Buccleuch; five Ladies of the Bedchamber, four Bedchamber women, and four Maids of Honor.

Though the ancient privilege of "queen-gold" is never claimed now, Queen Alexandra has some quaint perquisites. For instance, if a whale is caught off the British coasts, the tail part of him belongs to the Queen, the King taking the head. The Archbishop of York is her chaplain in perpetuity. It is interesting to know that though the Queen is a subject of her husband, none of His Majesty's courts may fine her.

In common with the King, the Queen enjoys the privilege of riding in a numberless motor-car. Not long ago an officious country policeman stopped the royal motor because it bore no number-plate. On learning whom he had held up, he was ready to faint with confusion, but the Queen reassured him and drove off smiling.

JERSEY FOR SMALL BOY.

How to Knit One Such as Little Crown Prince Olaf Wears.

The jersey as a garb for the small boy has found great favor with mothers in England since the visit of little Prince Olaf of Norway last year, as the bonny, smiling, wee crown prince was nearly always attired in a simple white knitted jersey. It is also becoming popular in America.

The garment has much to commend it for small boys' wear, as it is warm, comfortable and allows of perfect freedom of movement, while last, but not least, in its list of qualifications it is one of the easiest possible things to wash and so keep the small man tidy, for whether the son of a prince or peasant he has a happy knack and love of getting grubby.

The jersey in the sketch is the same as that worn by the small crown prince of Norway and is a perfectly simple affair to make.

The materials required are ten ounces of four ply fingering wool and four long steel knitting needles, medium size.

Use double wool to cast 168 stitches on 3 needles, 56 on each. With single wool work 24 rounds in a rib of knit 2, purl 1; then knit 86 plain rounds.

When working the first plain round decrease 10 stitches by taking 2 together 10 times at equal distances apart.

For the Armholes.—Divide the stitches equally.

For the Back.—First row, slip 1, knit 78; second row, slip 1, knit 1, purl 75, knit 2. Repeat these 2 rows 27 times. Cast off 23 stitches for shoulder, knit 83, cast off 23 stitches for second shoulder. The front must be worked in the same way.

The neck is knitted in rounds on 4 needles. When arranging the stitches

SMALL BOY'S JERSEY.

Increase 10 stitches at each side. This brings the number to 86. Do not allow the new stitches to separate the shoulder, but knit 1 and purl 1 in the same stitch 10 times. First round—Knit 1, purl 1, repeat from * 42 times. Repeat this round 35 times. Cast off and fold over. Sew the shoulder seams neatly on the wrong side.

The Sleeves.—Pick up 62 stitches around the armhole and arrange them on 3 needles; knit 29 plain rounds. Third round—Take 2 together, knit 5, take 2 together under the arm; 12 plain rounds, repeat third round; 22 plain rounds, repeat third round; 20 plain rounds, repeat third round; 10 plain rounds, repeat third round; 10 plain rounds, then knit 20 rounds in rib to match the neck and cast off fairly loosely.

Work the other sleeve in the same way.

Made Over by Cleaning.

A last year's taffeta suit was most successfully cleaned by a clever woman. It appeared to be a perfect mass of little fine wrinkles, was absolutely unworn, but had lost every bit of its crispness. She laid it over an ironing board and with a soft brush went over every bit of it with alcohol and water. It was quite damp with alcohol, and she hung it out of doors to evaporate, and when it was brought in it was as crisp as new and as unwrinkled as the day it came home from the dressmaker.

A silk petticoat, by the way, can be nicely cleaned by scrubbing it with a large piece of old velvet, after first brushing it very thoroughly with a stiff brush to get off any dirt. The nap of the velvet has a peculiar virtue in removing the dust that collects in the convolutions of the ruffles and platings as endless brushing cannot do.

The Family Makes the Home.

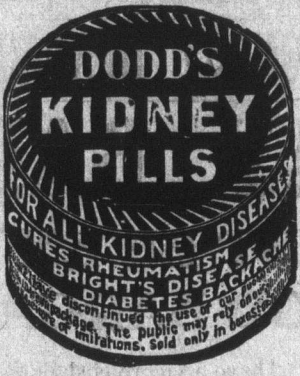

The home is not four walls and a stable and laundry within them. The home feeling does not depend upon such isolation. A family may live in a flat and have its washing done out and its meals in a restaurant, and yet its home sentiment may remain intact. It is the family which makes the home.

The home does not, except in the deep ethical sense, make the family. And so long as men love their wives and wives their husbands, and so long as they both love their children and try to bring them up with ideals of truth and duty, so long will the home survive and flourish, whether the washing and ironing and cooking go on inside or outside of the rooms where the family sit and sleep.

Budapest, Hungary, July 5.—After a final protest against the provision in the Government's railroad bill, requiring the exclusive use of the Hungarian language in the railroad service of Hungary, forty Croatian deputies yesterday left the Lower House of Parliament in a body and refused to further participate in its work.

The Croats claim that the language provision is a violation of the Hungarian-Croatian compromise, and they obstructed the measure for weeks, until finally the Hungarian Government promulgated the bill by decree, causing a further embitterment of the relations between Croatia and Hungary.

For people who are run-down and nervous, who suffer from indigestion or dyspepsia, headache, biliousness, or torpid liver, coated tongue with bitter taste in the morning and poor appetite, it becomes necessary to turn to some tonic or strengthener which will assist Nature and help them to get on their feet and put the body into its proper condition. It is becoming more and more apparent that Nature's most valuable health-giving agents are to be found in forest plants and roots.

Nearly forty years ago, Dr. R. V. Pierce, now consulting physician to the Invalids' Hotel and Surgical Institute at Buffalo, N. Y., discovered that by scientifically extracting and combining certain medicinal principles from native roots, taken from our American forests, he could produce a medicine which was marvellously efficient in curing cases of blood disorder and liver and stomach troubles as well as many other chronic or lingering ailments. This concentrated extract of Nature's vitality he named "Golden Medical Discovery." It purifies the blood by putting the stomach and liver into healthy condition, thereby helping the digestion and assimilation of food which feeds the blood. Thereby it cures weak stomach, indigestion, torpid liver or biliousness, and kindred derangements.

Posse of Citizens Find Albert Greenhill in the Woods.

English Emigrant Accused of Horrible Crime Is Arrested—Victim Lies At Point of Death—People Greatly Excited—Aged Father Tells Story—Crashed Girl's Skull With Piece of Rock.

Richmond, Que., July 5.—Alfred Greenhill, the young English emigrant, who is accused of assaulting and trying to kill little Lillian Lynn, was captured yesterday afternoon by the posse of 100, which has been scouring the woods for him ever since the crime.

He has been locked in the county jail awaiting developments, as his victim is at the point of death.

The crime is one of the most brutal that has ever been recorded in this section of the country, and the people for miles around are greatly excited over the occurrence.

The home of the Lynns is situated about two miles below Richmond on the Melbourne side. The father of the victim, a man between 60 and 70 years of age, told the story, with tears streaming down his cheeks. "This morning," said he, "when I was giving instructions to Albert Greenhill to carry some boards to a certain portion of the building, Lily came up to me and asked permission to go up to the fields to gather strawberries, and mentioned at the same time that her two younger brothers would follow just as soon as they had their breakfast."

"Albert overheard this conversation, but I paid no further attention to his movements or actions, as he had worked for me for ever a year, and did not anticipate anything else but what he would carry out my orders."

"The assault was committed a short distance from the house. When I called Lily I saw Greenhill run away. I found my Lily lying on the ground, and she was covered with blood, and her clothes were almost torn from her body."

"I carried her into the house. She was unconscious, and has remained so ever since. I found this stone (introducing a piece of rock which must weigh at least from 15 to 20 pounds), lying with that her skull was fractured."

Immediately the news spread in Richmond a large number of men dropped their business and hurried to follow on the trail of the inhuman brute.

HANDSOME WOMAN POISONED.

Police Start Investigation and Look For Supposed Husband.

Montreal, July 5.—A handsome woman, about 30 years of age, died in the Notre Dame Hospital Wednesday as a result of having swallowed poison under mysterious circumstances.

The coroner and the police were at work on the case yesterday. The deceased, who was of Polish extraction, when she went to the hospital, was accompanied by a man, who told the hospital authorities that his name was Charles Howard.

His wife he declared, had been ill and suffering much pain. She went to a bureau to get a glass of brandy, and by mistake took bichloride of mercury. Howard stated that they boarded on East Dorchester street, but when the ambulance men went to get the bottle they were informed that no such person had ever lived there.

STREET RIOTS IN NEW YORK.

Ice Wagon Drivers Have Conflict With Strike Breakers.

New York, July 5.—Street battles between the striking ice wagon drivers and strike breakers, which the police quelled after several days, participated had sustained minor injuries, followed another attempt of the American Ice Co. to break the strike in Brooklyn yesterday.

The appearance of several of the old drivers, who had returned to work, enraged the strikers who held out. Each delivery wagon was guarded by a policeman on its rounds, but the presence of the officer failed to check the strikers in the efforts to stop the delivery of ice.

Twenty strike breakers in Manhattan, employed by the American Ice Co., refused to work yesterday, declaring that they feared they would be injured by fireworks hurled at them by strike sympathizers.

Haywood Witness Killed.

Denver, Col., July 5.—Frank Schmeizer of Silverton, Col., who, on Tuesday, was elected a member of the executive board of the Western Federation of Miners, jumped from a moving train Wednesday night and was killed.

Schmeizer was on his way to Silverton for a short visit prior to going to Boise to testify in the Haywood trial.

U. S. Gunboat For Lakes.

Washington, July 5.—The State Department has received the assurance of the British Government that there will be no objection to the request of this Government in sending the gunboat Don Juan de Austria to the Great Lakes, where she will be used for cruising purposes by the naval militia. She will carry no arms.

Shot Wife and Daughter.

Wilkesbarre, Pa., July 5.—Andrew Olewim of Larksville, Pa., near here, shot and probably fatally wounded his wife and daughter yesterday, and then fled to the mountains.

Acquitted On Serious Charge.

Ottawa, July 5.—James Haddleton, who was tried for manslaughter at Hull, for leaving an excavation on the C. P. R. work unprotected, so that a child lost its life by falling in and drowning, was acquitted yesterday.

SIGNS OF RAIN.

Animals and Plants Indicate the Approach of Storms.

It is well known that animals and fowls give notice of the approach of rainy weather by their peculiar actions. Dogs and cats are less energetic and show an unusual disposition to sleep.

Sheep crowd together in a sheltered place. Horses neigh, cattle low, peacocks scream, guinea fowls squall, and cocks crow more noisily than usual. All this is due to the decreased supply of oxygen in the air and to the depressing effect of damp air on their nerves. It gives them some difficulty in breathing and makes them listless and uneasy.

Another sign of rain is seen when a cat rubs her ears and sometimes every part of her coat that she can reach. This is due in part to the dampness of the air, which penetrates the hair and makes the skin itch, but it is chiefly due perhaps to the air being heavily charged with electricity. The hair of the cat becomes heavily charged, too, and she rubs it to make it lie smooth and to brush away the peculiar sensation that electricity causes.

Perhaps you have noticed that the leaves of the dandelion and the clover fold up and go to sleep, so to speak, when rain is near. As these plants never open their leaves without the stimulating influence of sunshine, the cloudy sky puts them to sleep. Another reason for the change is the expansion of the air vessels of the plants due to the damp air, which causes the leaves to contract and close, just as paper curls when one side of it is moistened.

Boys and girls should make a study of these things. Not only would they find the study full of interest, but it would cultivate their powers of observation and give them a better knowledge of nature.—Chicago News.

THE TRANS-CANADA LIMITED.

The C. P. R. New Fast Trans-Continental Service.

The new fast service to be inaugurated by the Canadian Pacific Railway, Tuesday, July 5, will carry passengers across the continent in a little over three days and a half, the quickest time made by any railway in America. The new trains will consist of two or more sleeping cars and a diner—of latest pattern—with baggage car, and will rank amongst the most luxurious in the world. No day coaches will be attached, and the trains will be exclusively confined to holders of first-class tickets who desire sleeping car accommodation. These "Trans-Canada Limited" trains will leave Montreal every Tuesday, Thursday and Saturday at 12:30 noon during the months of July and August. Connecting trains leave Toronto for North Bay at 1:45 p. m. on the same day. Close is made at Moose Jaw with the new fast trains for Spokane and other western American points.

Kisses of History.

The efficacy of a fair woman's kiss was incontestably proved when, in 1794, the famous Gordon Highlanders were raised by the lovely Duchess of Gordon, who was directly instrumental in gaining a thousand recruits by the donation of a guinea and a kiss apiece. In a sense, many of these kisses may be said to have been fatal, for in an encounter with the French shortly afterward more than 250 were either killed or wounded. Alain Chatter, the French poet, is the hero of a romantic legend. One day he sat down in a public place, and being weary and exhausted by the heat of the day, fell into a slumber. As he slept, Margaret of Scotland, the wife of the Dauphin, afterward known in history as Louis XI., chanced to pass with her attendants. She glanced at the unconscious man and recognized in him the poet whose verses she so loved. Then, motioning to her maids to be still, she gently stepped forward, and, stooping, imprinted a kiss on the sleeping poet's lips. At times, however, a kiss has been the prelude to a tragic sequel, as that bestowed in 1718 by Prince Ferdinand of Bavaria upon Princess Thyra, the near relative of a ruler of a neighboring state, where he was on a visit. This affectionate greeting, a heedless whim of the moment, was given under the very eyes of the princess's betrothed, who, naturally taking umbrage, soundly raged the thoughtless prince. Words came to blows, which resulted in a duel being arranged, and diplomatic relations between the two states were broken off. In the war that followed, although hostilities lasted but six weeks, over a thousand lives were sacrificed.

Wanted the Earth.

She had been on the ocean three days and suffered the throes of seasickness all that time.

When all hope of relief had fled, one of those well meaning nuisances came to her asked her:

"Is there anything I can do for you? What do you want?"

"You can do, nothing for me. I want the earth."

And she sincerely did.

BECOMING BRITISH SUBJECTS.

Many Immigrants Are Taking the Oath of Allegiance.

The complete returns of naturalizations in Canada for 1906 have been tabulated by the Secretary of State's Department, and show that a very large proportion of Canada's new citizens from foreign countries are taking the oath of allegiance. During the year the naturalizations totalled 10,942, as compared with 6,532 for the previous year, an increase of 5,410.

The naturalization requires three years' residence in the Dominion before papers of citizenship can be taken. Taking into consideration the fact that only the heads of families and young men over 21 years of age and of foreign birth will need to take the oath of allegiance, the total of 10,942 for last year probably represents a foreign immigration of thirty to forty thousand. And since three years' residence is required it will be seen that almost the whole foreign immigration of 1905 has now become naturalized by law.

The total naturalizations of immigrants from the United States were 3,888, which, compared with the immigration figures of 1905-06 show that nearly all the American male settlers west are taking the oath of allegiance to the British Crown. Other nationalities show the following totals: Austrians 630; Belgians 78; Chinese 229; Danes 66; French 116; Galicians 582; Germans 219; Hungarians 148; Icelanders 139; Italians 430; Japanese 146; Norwegians 151; Prussians 58; Roumanians 407; Russians 1,027 and Swedes 314.

HARDSHIP FOR SCIENCE.

Rough Adventure of a British Surveying Party.

Letters received in this country, says The London Globe, from Major P. H. Fawcett, chief of the British survey party which is engaged on behalf of the Bolivian Government in mapping the northern frontier of Bolivia, as defined in the treaty with Brazil of November, 1903, give a graphic description of the difficulties and hardships encountered by the explorers—for such they virtually were—during the ascent of the Upper Aquiro or Acre River, which, above Bahia, forms the dividing line between the two republics. The frontier reaches Bahia by the streamlet of the same name, and this also, after much trouble, has been mapped, astronomical observations being taken to fix the position of its source, a spot which impressed the tormented explorers as the haunt of every insect in the country. Tiny bees literally swarmed on them, while at other times they have been afflicted with myriads of wasps, most of them about half the size of the specimens found in this country, but some of them larger, and all of them vicious. Some of the rivers rise and fall in a week, and some in a single day, according to the rainfalls.

PATRIOTISM IN THE HOME.

American Husband and Canadian Wife Could Not Agree.

A matter of patriotism to their respective motherlands stood between William J. and Anna W. Roepke, according to the story told on the stand in Judge Donovan's court at Detroit recently. "My wife is a Canadian and I am an American," said the husband. "She said she didn't like this country, wouldn't live here, and under no circumstances would have children on American soil. She declared she was too good a Canadian for that. I replied that I was too good an American to have children born under the British flag. We quarrelled and on March 1, 1904, she went to Winnipeg, Man., where I later followed and found her. I offered to give her a good home in this country, but she wouldn't come, so I left her there. The husband was given a decree on the spot for three years' desertion. They were married in Cleveland in 1902.

Seasonable Novelties.

The Bandeau Not Used Extensively. Side Plaited Skirts Revived.

The hair, dressed very full at the sides, holds the fashionable hat at the right angle, not the bandeau. In some of the smart models there is not so much as a reminiscence of that over-exploited band. This is one of the most radical changes.

The new oxford tie, made in black calfskin, has a medium pointed toe and mer costumes, as are also those in colored linens and batistes, with white embroidered borders.

Linens pincushions for summer use will be greater favorites this year than they were last, for they are made in such practical but artistic designs that they will be equally serviceable on an elaborately appointed dressing table and on a plain bureau. Another advantage these cushions have over the ordinary silk and satin varieties is that they may be washed when soiled and after a rubbing will look just as fresh as when new.

The charming gown in the picture is of natural colored and green checked pongee fashioned in the princess jumper style. The skirt is trimmed with bias folds of the material piped with green. The waist is trimmed with apple-green.
