LADY IRIS' MISTAKE; Hero of 'Surata'

CHAPTER X.

"They seem to be harsh words. I said them first in the heat of anger; I repeat them now with the utmost calmness. It is an insult for you to ask me to marry you."

"Because I am humbly born?" he interrogated.

"Yes," she replied; "and it is like sacrilege in my eyes for you to offer to take my name."

"The name you hold in honor," he said, with a bitter laugh. "Ah, Lady Iris, if honor makes you so proud, give me dishonor with true humility. If you will speak but one kind word, even in farewell, I shall forget everything that you have said."

"I do not wish you to forget it, Mr. Bardon," she answered. "I wish you to remember what I have said."

"I will do so—I shall have your wish. I will remember it every day of my life. I will even go further—I will remind you of it, Lady Iris, when you will least care to remember it. I will bring it back to your memory ward for word."

He drew nearer to her.

"Your pride has triumphed, Lady Iris. You have rejected me with scorn. If you had treated me kindly, I might have been happy again in time; now I shall never be happy. But I shall have my revenge. You will think it unmanly of me to speak of revenge to a woman; but you have not been a gentle, pitiful woman to me. You have treated me with harshness and contempt; and I swear that when the time comes I will use my power without mercy."

"I am not afraid of your threats," she said, calmly.

He stretched out his hand, and gathered some of the almond-blossoms that had touched her face.

"I will keep this," he remarked. "It will die; but even the withered leaves will be to me a memento. They will serve to remind me of the most cruel and scornful words ever uttered by a woman. I will keep my grief locked up in my heart, Lady Iris; it shall not be paraded for you to laugh at."

"I have no wish to laugh at it," she replied.

"I—I thought I was stronger," he said, hoarsely—his rage was fast overpowering him. "My self-control is vanishing; I do not wish you, Lady Iris, to see my humiliation and despair. Will you leave me here?"

"Yes," she replied slowly, "I will go."

"Go back to your friends, your lovers, and your triumphs. Laugh at the low-born man whose presumption you have punished, whose love was an insult to you. Go quickly, if you would go safely. Your presence maddens me!"

From that moment John Bardon was a changed man; his love had turned into hate. He had but one desire now, and it was for vengeance. He must humble her pride and make her suffer, even as she had made him suffer. He would live for that object alone.

CHAPTER XII.

When John Bardon walked back to the Chandos mansion, he carried a spray of almond-blossoms in his hand. His sister Marie saw him as he entered the side door, and went to meet him. "After one glance at his face, she knew all. She took his hand in hers."

"Where have you been, John? Lady Selwyn wanted to play a game at cribbage with you."

She stopped abruptly, for he raised his hand with a passionate gesture.

"Hush, Marie—hush! Do not talk to me now of trifles! I am like a man standing in the Valley of the Shadow of Death!"

"Has Lady Iris rejected you?" she whispered.

"Yes," he said hoarsely.

She put her arms round his neck and kissed him.

"My dear John, you will be ill. Let me go to your room with you and talk to you; you will break down, I am sure. What is this?" she added, touching the almond-blossoms.

"A silent witness," he replied. "No, do not come with me, Marie. I am a desperate man—I am better alone."

"If I could but comfort you—if I could but help you, John!" she cried.

He turned his haggard face to hers. "You can help me," he said. "Help me to get away from here without seeing any of them. Will you, Marie?"

"I will do anything you wish," she replied.

"Tell the earl to-morrow that my father sent for me on urgent business, and that I left early in the morning, before any one was up."

"Will you go before any one rises, John?"

"Yes; I could not meet the gaze of one of them. Good-by, Marie."

"She clung to him with weeping eyes."

"John, let me comfort you, let me help you!"

"No; I must bear my own pain. It may be a long time before I see you again. This place is accursed to me!"

He kissed her and left her; and the last she saw of her brother for a long time was as he went slowly up the great staircase with the almond-blossoms in his hand.

The next morning she delivered her message to Lord Caledon, who received it with due courtesy, saying little, for he knew well what had happened.

"A beautiful woman is something of a scourge after all," he said to himself. "How many good and brave men have suffered for love of my daughter's fair face!"

When Marie Bardon went home, she found that her brother had left Hyne Court, and that her mother was more bitter than ever against "fine-ladies."

Two years had passed since the heir of Hyne Court left Chandos with hatred and anger in his heart. He had sworn vengeance against Lady Iris; but it seemed long in coming.

These two years had added to the beauty of the girl's face and figure, but her pride was as great as ever. She was the acknowledged queen of opera; and, when she went to the opera or to balls, people flocked to catch a glimpse of her lovely face. If she was absent from any great aristocratic gathering there was a general sense of disappointment. No name in London was better known than that of Lady Iris Fayne. Fashionable milliners and dressmakers named various articles of attire after her. The "Fayne hat" and the "Fayne costume" were exceedingly popular. Gardeners gave the name of "Fayne" to many choice plants. The "Fayne Walk" was a great success. It was a widdy height for any woman to reach, but Lady Iris bore her triumph well. The homage paid to her she considered more than half due to her name; for the Fynes of Chandos were, in her eyes, little less than royal. Nothing elated her; praise from royal lips, the homage of some of the noblest in the land, and the sovereignty of fashion; were regarded by her as only her due, she being Lady Iris Fayne of Chandos.

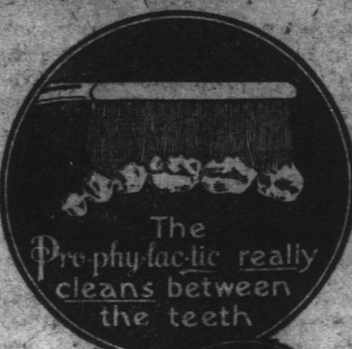

Many brilliant offers of marriage had been made to her during the past two years; but she refused them all. She had not married because she had not loved; and she had never forgotten the glimpse she had had of the fairland of passion on the night when Lady Selwyn sung of the "wind from over the mountain."

Whatever that dream should be realized, she would marry—not until then.

Sir Fulke had returned to Clyffe Hall, decidedly improved by his rejection, the better for the pain he had suffered, and wiser for his humiliation. He did not often go to Chandos, although he still retained a great affection for Lady Iris. Of late his eyes had been opened to the noble character of Marie Bardon, who had long loved him with the deepest but, as she thought, most hopeless love. He had been struck with her tact and good sense; and more than once he had said to Lady Clyffe, "That is the kind of wife to help a man on in the world," and his mother had agreed with him.

Two years had brought about another great change. John Bardon was married. He had married the Lady Avice Deane, the only daughter and heiress of Walter, Lord Deane of Stonebury—a marriage which filled the hearts of his parents with joy. John Bardon had met the Deanes abroad, and, when he wrote from Vienna, where the old earl had a diplomatic mission, to say that he was engaged to marry Lady Avice, the family rejoicing was great. The news spread over the county like wildfire, and every one agreed that it was an excellent match. He had a large income of his own, was the son of a millionaire, and possessed one of the finest estates in the country.

Wonder Well.

REMARKABLE CURE OF MAN'S INFIRMITY.

Wonderful scenes were witnessed on Sunday last at a "wonder well" at Vange, Essex. Several cyclists had stopped beside the well, and were testing the water when a car drove up and an agitated woman alighted and appealed for help to remove her husband from the car. When the man appeared it was obvious to all that he was in great pain. He was helped to the well and given glasses of the water. He became very excited and called for more, saying—"The pain is going; give me more!" As he drank his face became transformed and he straightened himself out with relief. "The pain is all gone now," "you've no idea what it feels like," he exclaimed to the lookers-on.

A press representative called at the man's residence in the evening, and learned that he was Mr. W. A. Steward, M.B.E., an engineer by profession. He told the correspondent how he had suffered excruciating internal pains for three months, without a moment's relief.

Convicts Earn Their Keep.

USEFUL TRADES TAUGHT IN PRISONS.

The usual sentence upon offenders against the law is either "hard labour" or "penal servitude." To-day the labour is not so hard as that by which a free man earns his living, while as for penal servitude seven years is about the average working day.

Thirty years ago the work done in British prisons was chiefly oakum picking, scrubbing and cleaning, or a task on that abominable invention, the treadmill. To-day all is changed, and in every large prison you find workshops as well-equipped and complete as any in the country.

Choosing His Job.

A real attempt is made to teach each convicted person a trade of some sort, so that he or she can find an honest livelihood when the punishment is over.

British prisons are divided into "local" and "convict," the former for short sentences, the latter for longer terms of imprisonment, and although the local prisons have their shops, the terms served are usually too short to enable a prisoner to be taught a trade.

In the case of penal servitude, however, the minimum term is three years, with a remission of 9 months for good conduct. This gives the authorities a better opportunity, and in a large convict prison, such as Dartmoor or Parkhurst, the "shops," as they are called, are well worth a visit.

Dartmoor has a farm of 2,000 acres. It has also a very big quarry, and its "shops" comprise tailoring, tinware, forge, carpentry, boot-making, basket-making, Post Office bag-making, and string-making sections. There are also smaller shops for printing and bookbinding.

When a man arrives at Dartmoor he is examined by the doctor and questioned as to his trade. Within certain limits, and at the discretion of the Governor, he is allowed to choose his occupation.

We will presume that he wishes to work in the tin-shop. He is attached to the "party" that works in this shop, and after morning chapel he is marched to the building assigned for the purpose.

One or two wardens are on sentry duty in the shop, but these are merely guards. The officer who takes charge of the actual work is a warden-instructor, who receives special pay for his duties.

Help Towards Betterment.

At Dartmoor they make tinware for all the prisons, and the shop is a busy one.

In another shop immense quantities of string are turned out for Post Office use.

There is a wheelwright's shop, where all the carts used in the prison are made and mended, while in the forge near by convict smiths are working at glowing forges and making wheel tyres, horse-shoes, as well as other metal articles.

There are two carpenters' shops—one for "old lags" and the other for J.A.'s, or younger prisoners, who are treated on the Borstal system. Some of the latter become amazingly expert.

The tailor's shop is a big one and is curiously quiet. Yet there is a constant low hum caused by the men talking in the curious convict language, without so much as moving their lips. Convict tailors are usually men unfit for outdoor work, but some are extraordinary clever with their needles. Wardens' uniforms are made here, as well as convict clothes.

Not only are prisoners taught in the "shops," but those who are ambitious to learn are allowed to take correspondence courses in their free time. They may learn drawing, trigonometry, shorthand, and languages, and if a man is ambitious every help is given him by the prison authorities.

Stone-Age Village Found on Isle Royale.

William P. Ferguson, noted archaeologist, at the head of the Ferguson Archaeological Expedition, working on Isle Royale in Lake Superior, has made one of the greatest finds in the history of Northwestern research. He has discovered the remains of a large stone-age village covering many acres on both sides of the Sibley River, near Graham Falls. It is believed by Mr. Ferguson that excavations will show light on unknown parts of American history. Builders of the village beyond a doubt were the ancient copper miners whose work is found on Isle Royale. The antiquity of the find is further corroborated by trees, many hundreds of years old, growing in the ruins of the village.

Fads and Fashions.

Some of the loveliest new bags are those of chiffon velvet, stuffed with steel beads to match their frames of cut steel.

An attractive knicker dress in brown and tan had the knickers of brown checked velvet and the dress of brown velvet.

HELPING OUT.

Old Dad Spindle's years are eighty, and he toiled toward his shack, with a bundle large and weighty nearly ruining his back. I could see his vigor dwindle as he labored up the road, so I said, "Oh, Gaffer Spindle, let me back your heavy load." So I heaved it to my shoulder and it weighed a half ton, and I felt a cycle older when the grievous task was done. But it gives me satisfaction if at evening he can say, "I have pulled a lofty action in the progress of the day." When the shopworn sun is sinking and the hues of day me fade, by my bayonet I am thinking of the Lenchhead I have played. I am prone to costly blunders, dizzy breaks I daily pull, till my Aunt Sophronia wonders why my wit must gather wool. And I groan, myself reviling, for the way I've muffed the hell, but enjoy some harmless smiling when Dad Spindle I recall. I have helped one fellow critter, and that memory is great, forcing recollections bitter to vanquish and move their freight. So one kindly deed will lighten all the record of the day, and I have my private heaven while such recollections stay.

Greeks Will Attend Mudania Conference.

Insignificant Little Village Focuses Attention of World --- Dail Eireann Passes Oath of Allegiance --- Amnesty Proclamation to Offenders --- New Zealand Ready For Action, if Necessary.

CONFERENCE ADJOURNS TILL TO-DAY.

CONSTANTINOPLE, Oct. 3. The preliminary conference for the settlement of peace in the Near East was begun at Mudania to-day with the Allied Generals and Ismet Pasha for the Turks present. The meeting adjourned till Wednesday to permit the attendance of Greek representatives.

MUDANIA.

MUDANIA, Oct. 3. Never was there a stranger setting for a conference of world powers than this little village on the southern shore of the Sea of Marmora. The presence of the great warships of Great Britain, France and Italy, seemed incongruous in the tiny cove, belted with rocks and mud, which is Mudania's Harbour, for their only neighbours were a few tiny fishing-boats and nondescript barges. A few hundred yards from the point selected for the anchorage of the Iron Duke, lay gaunt skeletons, half submerged, of two Turkish transports sunk by British submarines during the Great War. Nothing about Mudania is impressive save for the bulk of the snow-topped Mount Olympus rising majestically in the distance. The town is squalid and depressing.

OATH CLAUSE PASSED.

DUBLIN, Oct. 3. Parliament to-day passed by a large majority the clause in the new Irish Constitution containing the Oath of Allegiance.

In moving the article of the Treaty containing the form of oath, Kevin O'Higgins, Minister of Home Affairs, said it was not a particularly pleasant task to recommend that particular article to the Irish Assembly. But as they believed that tampering with this and certain other articles would mean the throwing away of the harvest of the present struggle, they were not prepared to allow that harvest to rot in the fields. Mr. O'Higgins said he could not admit the suggestions appearing in the press which stated that the oath was optional. No British or Irish signatory would admit that the oath, which gave so much trouble and tension in the last stage of the negotiations, was not to be taken by all the members of Parliament precedent to taking their seats. In Dail, he asserted, Gavan O'Duffy, former Foreign Minister, moved an amendment modifying the oath in such a manner as its sponsor claimed would not drive anti-Treaty partisans and laborites into direct action against the Treaty. An amendment from the Labor group sought to add a new paragraph in which the swearer would undertake to act in matters concerning the Free State only on advice of the Executive. Both amendments were defeated. Mr. O'Higgins, supporting the Government's position, pointed out that the Republicans who sat at Westminster took the full oath of allegiance as did Republicans who sat in the Parliament of South Africa and every other country. Clause 17 which contained the oath was then voted and agreed upon without division.

The oath reads:—"I do solemnly swear faith and allegiance to the Constitution of the Irish Free State as by law established, and that I will be faithful to his Majesty King George V, his heirs and successors by law in virtue of the common citizenship of Ireland and Great Britain and her membership in the group of nations forming the British Commonwealth of Nations."

OFFERS AMNESTY TO REBELS. DUBLIN, Oct. 3. The British Government has issued a proclamation offering full amnesty to all offenders who surrender their arms by October 15.

AMERICA AWAKENING.

NEW YORK, Oct. 3. An overwhelming sentiment favoring America's abandonment of her policy of isolation from European affairs and the substitution of a policy which might even involve partial cancellation of the allied war debt, today swept through the convention of the American Bankers' Association. The subject was broached by Thos. W. Lamont, an associate of J. P. Morgan, whose plea in behalf of America turned the convention into an uproar as ten thousand delegates, representing twenty-three thousand banks in the United States, voiced approval. Financial leaders who asserted that until recently, the question of debt cancellation had brought only protests from small and large bankers throughout the country expressed great surprise at the changed attitude evident to-day. A year ago they pointed out a similar proposal was emphatically turned down by the Association.

ASHORE AND AFOAT.

PETERHEAD, Oct. 3. The United States steamer Quaker City, with a cargo of pig iron, which ran ashore near Cruden, Aberdeenshire, on Sunday, was refloated to-day. This ship was bound from Leith to Boston.

ANOTHER DISAGREEMENT.

ST. JOHN, Oct. 3. The fifth trial of John Paris, a Mulatto, of Truro, N.S., charged with the murder of seven year old Sadie McAuley, at St. John, on Aug. 2, 1921, came to an end tonight in a disagreement of the jury. Previous trials resulted in three disagreements and one conviction. Following the conviction, Paris was granted a new trial on certain technical grounds.

LOYAL NEW ZEALAND.

LONDON, Oct. 3. Premier W. F. Massey, of New Zealand, says a Reuter despatch from Wellington, in addressing a country electorate said: "It is very disappointing to us all to realize that while we are still troubled with the aftermath of the Great War we may be called upon again to do our duty by our country and Empire, and if the clash comes I know I am right in saying the people of New Zealand will stand up to it and do their duty and take the consequences, whatever they may be."

IRISH OFFICER KILLED.

DUBLIN, Oct. 3. Capt. Walsh was killed and several soldiers wounded to-day when Irish guerrillas made a fierce attack on the National forces at Cahir.

WANT BIG WAGES.

WINNIPEG, Oct. 3. The refusal of unemployed to accept farm work, unless at exorbitant wages, threatens gravely the harvest situation throughout North Western Manitoba. Hon. Neil Cameron, Minister of Agriculture, declared to-day.

Ermine fur is used in an openwork effect on the shoulders, sleeves and girdle of a black velvet afternoon gown.

C. L. B. Cadets.

Headquarters was as usual busy last night in all departments. Colonel Goodridge, O.C., in command; Major Fatt, M.C., Adjutant; Captains Outbridge, Joseph Snow, F. Miles, F. Burden; Lieuts. A. E. Perlin, P. B. Rendell, W. R. Motty, Harold Hayward, and R. G. Ash being on parade. Colonel Goodridge held his monthly inspection of A. and F. Companies, and drilled the battalion on the main floor. The Brigade was favored last night by a visit from Mr. Robert Furlong, Scoutmaster and General Secretary of the Boy Scouts of Newfoundland, who was introduced to the officers and shown through all the various departments of C.L.B. work. All ranks were glad to see him as the C.L.B. is always ready to encourage all movements along the line of making the boy life happier and turning them out as finished products better fitted for their responsibilities as citizens.

The Colonel has circulated all outpost Companies asking for monthly returns and statistics. Postal detachment has already responded and is the first to report, whilst next mail will likely bring along the others. As the summer season is now over, all white cap covers are discontinued from all head dress from date.

Colonel Goodridge, Major Williams and Captain Miles visited the hospital on Sunday to see Lieut. Malcolm Green of Grand Falls who has been operated on during the past week for appendicitis. Lieut. Green is quite cheerful and bright and making good progress.

Capt. Norman Henry, late Lieutenant of the Irish Rifles, and formerly Adjutant at C.L.B. Headquarters is back from the frozen north by the S.S. Bayeskimo. He looks the picture of health and is charmed with the life and has gained about thirty pounds weight. During last winter he visited Cartwright, Northwest River, Fort Chimo, etc., and had his own dog team and driver. He left by Tuesday's express for the Montreal office of the Hudson Bay Company on business and will return soon to St. John's in order to go back to Rigolette, etc., for the winter, when he hopes to visit all old comrades at the Armoury.

Next Tuesday there will be an examination of recruits. A large number of lads are now joining the colours and Captain Outbridge is kept quite busy in this department. Great preparations are made by the W.O. and N.C.O.'s mess for their social dance in the gymnasium at Headquarters to-night, Wednesday. The Battalion Band promises something choice in the musical program as the lads and lassies will have a "night off."

As the Cathedral bazaar takes place next week in the Armoury there will be no drill next Tuesday. Battalion will parade on Thursday next week as usual.

On to-morrow Surgeon Captain Burden, Chief Medical Officer, is holding his ambulance class in the school-room and will likely give the lecture on bandages. The lectures are very interesting and so much so that Lieut. Col. Goodridge has become one of the pupils and we all hope he will pass his exams later.

On Sunday, at 2.30 p.m. the Battalion will parade for Church Service at the Cathedral and the Companies of Girl Guides at Spencer College have been invited. Routine orders for week ending October 12th, show Lieut. P. B. Rendell as Orderly Officer with A. Company duty Company, and Rev. J. Brinton as duty Chaplain. Corporal M. Feaver has been transferred from C. Company to the Bugle Band, Lance Corporal J. Gould also gets a transfer to A. Company, whilst Pte. H. Yonson has been permitted to resign and is posted to A. Company.

Captain A. S. Lewis, paymaster, has been appointed Editor in Chief of the Brigade Journal with Lieut. A. B. Perlin as Cartoonist. They will publish their paper in November, and it will contain articles from various officers on old time records, camps and happy hours with the C.L.B. colours besides containing statistical information and the history of the Battalion and its outpost companies.

The Newfoundland Poultry Association has hired the Armoury for the last week in November to hold their big Annual Poultry Show and Spencer Club have been granted the privilege of the use of the rooms to offer teas during the afternoon and evenings of the show.

PLEADS FOR GOOD WILL AMONG MEN.

LONDON.—"Good will among men is the one thing that can save civilization," declares the Industrial League and Council in a plea it has just issued for harmonious relations between employers and employed. It is signed by many people of prominence representing various shades of political opinion, including: Premier Lloyd George, Lord Robert Cecil, Lord Burnham, Lady Astor and several representatives of Labor. "The real ruler of the world to-day is commerce," says the League. Only the worker can build up what the soldier has destroyed. "There never was a time in the whole history of the world when the industrialist had so much to offer to the world at large had so great a need of his services. "Europe has received a staggering blow. Millions of its best citizens have been lost. The foundations of its commercial life have been shaken as though by an earthquake. "We in Great Britain have the factories, the works, the skilled men, the able direction. One of the most vital things lacking is real motive-power. "If we are to obtain it every class, employer and employed alike, must admit the theory of personal responsibility and must endeavor to fulfill its obligations. "Men in every political path look forward to the time when there shall be a real settlement in Europe, but not until we achieve unity at home can we hope to achieve unity abroad. Not until all classes of the community recognize, not only their rights but their obligations, shall we achieve unity at home."

The Importance of the Transformer

The real reason for the universal use of alternating current is that it can be more economically transmitted over great distances. To do this the current is raised to a very high voltage by means of a great transformer like the one pictured. Although this device is very large it must be constructed with great precision.

Westinghouse has just completed the construction of the largest single order for such transformers ever placed.

The Real Enemies of Newfoundland.

Who are Newfoundland's enemies? asks the Advocate in a leaded display type. Our contemporary should know without asking, for the real enemies of this unhappy country can be found within the precincts of the office of that newspaper. Newfoundland has had no greater enemy than the man whom the Advocate is so fond of boosting. Ever since the advent of that individual and his party of obligated followers to political power, they have constituted the greatest danger, became the gravest menace, and established the direst peril. Newfoundland is threatened to-day by these men, not because of anything they might do of their own volition and initiative, but because they are practically sworn to follow their leader, and no matter by what devious paths he may lead them, they have no alternative but to follow the course set. It is all very fine to make a speciality of gulling the fishermen. A pastmaster in that gentle art, the Advocate never fails to get in his insidious work. But the fisherman is beginning to get wise and sets no premium on Advocate scare and sensational write-ups. Taught in the bitter school of experience the producer—the toiler if you will—has had all the tuition that he desires of the Coakerian pedagogues. He has begun to think for himself, and the more he thinks the more his faith in "wordy" promises grows less. The iniquitous Fish Regulations proved solidly to the fishermen that they were not the secure mooring they were alleged to be. Other things too have assisted in removing the hoodwink from the eyes of the "underdog," a hoodwink placed over them for the purpose of structuring their vision to the goings on. But they have torn off the bandage and have seen for themselves in all its hideousness the spectre of depression stalking throughout the land; depression produced by the very regulations that were told them were to be their salvation. When the Regulations became law, why were they not kept so? If they were all that was claimed, surely the hostility of the Opposition and the Opposition press did not, could not, render them of no effect. No, the whole truth is that the arch enemies of Newfoundland were at their base work when these same Regulations were made operative, and having accomplished their designs, even with much more success than they dreamed, they are now busily engaged in concealing their own action under a plenitude of printers ink and by transparent charges through which a blind man could see. These men and their accessories are the real enemies of Newfoundland.

Trapper Shot From Behind.

ROBERT S. JAMES MURDERED BY ESQUIMAUX.

Following on the investigations of Sergt. Joy of the R.N.W.M.P., three Esquimaux have been arrested for the murder of Robert S. James, Newfoundland trapper, whose death in Baffin Land, over two years ago, was shrouded in mystery. The body of the murdered trapper was found at Pond's Inlet in an excellent state of preservation. There were two bullet wounds in the back. The Esquimaux, who were James' companions, have confessed to the murder. They will be held at Pond's Inlet all winter and will be tried by a special court from Ottawa in the Spring. James' death was first reported by Capt. Munn of a trading vessel, who said that James had decided to travel by dog team to Fort Churchill. He proceeded 180 miles south, but had to return and it was his return trip that he was murdered. Mrs. R.S. James, the mother of the murdered trapper, is living in St. John's.

"Wet Gold" at the Nickel To-Night.

SCENES NEVER BEFORE SEEN BY HUMAN EYE.

The management of the Nickel offers to the amusement loving public to-night a picture of unusual sensational interest. The title is "Wet Gold." It has been considered by the "wise men" of motion pictures as the most daring of all screen achievements. It takes the spectator to the uttermost depths of the ocean. The trail skims down the Atlantic seaboard, passes at the Havana Race Track, dips to a lost isle in the tropics and then plunges to the very floor of the ocean, where men in grotesque diving suits come to death-grips for the treasure. "Wet Gold" sizzles with thrills and teems with scenes never before seen by the human eye. During the making of this picture a faulty manipulation of the air valves in a submarine used in the production, almost cost the lives of several of the actor-divers. The submarine rose to the surface, then listed almost 40 degrees. With rare presence of mind, the men inside opened the hatch and crawled into the water. To their intense relief, the submarine finally righted itself. This is some picture although we say it ourselves.

We learn from the G.W.V.A. that they are now in receipt of a reply to their cablegram to the High Commissioners Office, London, soliciting their influence in arranging to have the forms covering the payment of Prize Money expedited. It is intimated that those forms will be forwarded by the S.S. Schem leaving October 12th. This should allow of their distribution on or about October 20th. First Nfld. War Memorial in France.

NOW ERECTED AT GUEDECOURT.

Padre Nangle has cabled Lt.-Col. W. F. Rendell that the first Caribou Memorial has been erected at Guedecourt and that they are now working on the second, which will be erected at Cambrai. The Department of Militia are shipping a quantity of native shrubs, trees and evergreens to England. The first shipment goes forward to France by S.S. Silvia, via Montreal. These will be placed in the Besumont Hamlet Park as a Battle Exploits Memorial. The Caribou Memorial already erected at Guedecourt has a very imposing prominence, and will mark an epoch in the annals of the 1st Royal Newfoundland Regiment. Other Memorials of similar designs will be erected at Cambrai, Besumont Hamlet, Monsy Le Preux, and it is hoped at Kieberg in Belgium. Beside the Caribou Memorials, Bronze Tablets and Flags will be placed on the walls of the Cathedrals at Arras, Amiens, and Ypres.

BODY OF SERGT. JAMES L. BUCK DUE BY SILVIA TOMORROW.

The body of the late Sergt. James L. Buck, who was killed with the American Forces in France arrives by S. S. Silvia tomorrow. Arrangements have been made for the funeral to take place from Harvey's Pier at 11.30 a.m., enroute to the Railway Station where his body will be forwarded to his late home at Conception Hr., by the 1 o'clock express. Undertaker A. Carnell has charge of the funeral arrangements and will have the casket uncased on arrival. It is expected that the American Consul and Vice-Consul will attend the funeral, and all ex-service men whose time will permit, are asked to be present at the funeral. It is indeed fitting that a countryman of ours who gave his life in the Great Cause should not be forgotten in his home coming. It is therefore hoped that the ex-service men at least will attend this funeral. Citizens who would like to attend are also asked to be present.

Commandant Hurd, S.A.

INTERESTING LECTURE

There was a large attendance at the S. A. Citadel, New Gower St., last evening to listen to the lecture given by Commandant Hurd on the Underworld of the Salvation Army.

He spoke very strongly on the drink question, stating that a great number of the down and out who come to the army's institutions can attribute their downfall to the drink habit.

He spoke of the army's prison gate work and described the system the army used of meeting prisoners on being released from jail, and caring for them till they can get employment.

Large numbers, he stated, are in the army helped back to respectability who would otherwise in all probability yield to temptation again and become confirmed criminals.

Girls detention homes are institutions to which girls convicted for the first time are often sentenced by the magistrates instead of sending them to jail, here while they are deprived of full liberty they have not the stigma of jail birds, but are dealt with by women of wide experience in such work and large numbers of them are helped to such an extent that they are never found to give any trouble afterwards.

The Commandant also spoke to some length on the army's maternity hospitals and left no doubt in the minds of his hearers as to the good that was being done in this direction.

He referred to the hospital being built here and stated that a rumor was being circulated through the town to the effect that this home would tend to encourage immorality. He wished to disabuse the mind of everyone present of any such idea.

The building, he stated, would be what its name implied a maternity hospital, and women of all classes and creeds would be treated there in a properly scientific manner. Those able to pay the best price would have the most elaborate surroundings, but all would receive the very best treatment possible.

Oppressive Heat in The Atlantic.

WEATHER FREAKS OF VOYAGE FROM NEW YORK.

Abnormal weather conditions in the North Atlantic were reported on the arrival of the White Star liner Homeric at Southampton, yesterday afternoon. From New York, oppressive heat was experienced for two-thirds of the voyage, the temperature of the ocean being as high as 78 degrees Fahrenheit, until after the ship was more than 1,500 miles east of New York and 72 within one day's steaming of the British Isles.

It is quite possible that these Marine Caloric conditions have been responsible for the various schools of sperm whales and other huge fish of unknown species which have made a habit of our waters this season.

Montreal is suffering from the drug evil, the bulk of illicit drug cargoes peddled there being received from Germany, where absolutely no check is maintained on exports of this kind.

Germany is reaping a huge fortune from the traffic, which has increased by leaps and bounds since the war, in describing conditions in Montreal, D. A. Lafortune, K.C., M.P., Crown Prosecutor, said last week: "Can you imagine drug parties," where as many as fourteen persons are heaped over one another in a state of semi or total unconsciousness? Tragic Failure in the Egypt.

OWNERS, OFFICERS AND CREW BLAMED—CAPTAIN SUSPENDED—NEGLECT OF DUTY.

The judgement of the Board of Trade Court of Inquiry into the loss of the Peninsular and Oriental liner Egypt, which, after a collision with the French cargo boat Seine off Ushant on May 20th, sank with the loss of 81 lives, was delivered Monday, Sept. 4.

The loss of the Egypt, the court found, was due to a collision with the Seine whereby No. 3 hold and the forward boiler room were thrown open to the sea, which caused a rapid rush of water into the Egypt, making her list heavily to port and eventually sink.

The court found that the loss of life was mainly due to the

- (1) Default on the part of the master and chief officer in failing to take proper measures to save life;
- (2) Default on their part in failing to exercise their authority to ensure good order and discipline at the time of the casualty;
- (3) Default on their part in failing to make the crew, situated in collision and boat drill; and
- (4) Failure on the part of the owners, through their officials and servants, to take proper and effective measures to ensure compliance with their regulations, and to exact good discipline in the ship.

The court suspended the certificate of the master, Andrew Collyer, for a period of six months, and severely censured the chief officer, Charles Water-Cartwright.

BOAT DRILL FAILURE.

The judgement of the court was read by Mr. Butler C. Aspinall, K.C., the president. After quoting the rules and regulations on the P. and O. Company in regard to fire and boat station drill, Mr. Aspinall, stated that the court was of opinion that in many important respects these particular regulations and directions were not given effect to, and that the shore officials, the commander, and chief officer were responsible for this neglect of duty. As to the endeavours of the officers and crew to launch the boats, "the evidence as to what happened," Mr. Aspinall said, "is confused, uncertain, and in some respects conflicting."

The court fully recognised that every allowance should be made for the difficulties the commander, officers, and crew had to deal with. The ship was listing and continuing to list heavily to port; it was difficult to get a foothold on the deck; some of the non-European crew were seized with panic; the time was short; no man knew when the stricken ship would founder.

But after giving full weight to these mitigating circumstances the court was driven to the conclusion that had the boats been properly handled great loss of life might have been averted.

The system failed; the commander, officers and crew failed. It was noticeable that in no case did the allotted officer and his crew go to their appropriate boat.

While owing to the list many boats on the starboard side were put out of action, this should have left more effective aid for handling the boats on the port side.

SLACKNESS.

A great company like the P. and O. Company, with its many years of experience in passenger traffic, would do well to take lesson from this unhappy disaster and set for themselves the highest standard of care and efficiency in the future.

Not only was it the duty of the commander to perfect, so far as possible, the system of boat drill, but there was even a higher duty imposed upon the shore officials of the company to inform themselves that the commander was carrying out their instructions.

In the case of the Egypt there seemed to have been a slackness and lack of discipline, which when the hour of trial came prevented proper use being made of the boats.

The total number of persons employed on board was 284, the officers and European crew numbering 84. The number of passengers was 44. There were 18 lifeboats capable of accommodating 860 persons.

On leaving Tilbury on May 15, said

Mr. Aspinall, every member of the crew did not know his boat station. The system for informing the crew of their boat station was not proper and efficient. No steps had been taken to inform the passengers what to do.

THE SEINE.

The Egypt, said Mr. Aspinall, was at all times navigated with proper and seamanlike care, having regard to the conditions prevailing, but after the collision prompt and proper measures were not taken by the commander and officers to maintain discipline and for the safety of the ship and passengers. No direct assistance was rendered to the Egypt by the Seine or any other vessel. The Seine, although damaged by the collision, was in no danger of sinking. In the absence of any evidence from the master of the Seine the court was unable to explain why the Seine did not earlier render assistance on her own initiative. No other vessels appeared to be near enough to render assistance. The Egypt remained afloat about 20 minutes after the collision.

No boats were promptly swung out, filled, lowered, or otherwise put into the water, nor were they got away under proper superintendence. The boats which were got away were properly manned and did not carry their proper complement of passengers and crew.

The court made the following recommendations: That the same protection as to the safety of life which is afforded to emigrant ships by means of Board of Trade supervision and inspection should be extended to all foreign-going passenger ships.

That the supply of a numbered badge to each member of the boat's crews before sailing should be made compulsory for all foreign-going passenger ships.—Daily Mail.

Hopping Germs.

Mrs. Kharver was an extremely careful mother, and had repeatedly cautioned her 7-year-old daughter against handling any object that might contain germs. One day the little girl came to her saying: "Mother, I shall never play with my puppy any more, because he has germs on him." "Oh, no!" replied the mother. "There are no germs on your puppy." "Yes, there are," insisted the child. "I saw one hop."—Philadelphia Ledger.

WHAT NO ONE CAN KNOW.

No human being can possibly know another's strength. How often we forget that fact! How often we say,—"or at least, think—that if people about us would make the effort we make they could do a great deal more than they do."

Who knows but what they are making a far greater effort than we have ever made to accomplish what little they may be accomplishing.

There used to live in our neighborhood a woman who wanted a great deal of sleep. It was a neighborhood joke that it you called Ann up she was sure to be taking a nap, or just about to take one. And yet she went to bed early. Her more energetic neighbors said it was all nonsense, that it was nothing but a notion, that she was lazy, that if she wouldn't give in to her feelings she could work as hard as anyone.

She Tried To Be Like Them. Ann herself finally became very sensitive on the subject and tried to mold herself on her energetic healthy neighbors, but in vain. "I get so tired that I could cry when I don't get a lot of sleep," she told me.

A few days ago I heard that Ann was dead.

She had had to have an operation. Not such a severe operation. Ninety per cent. of those who undergo it live. But Ann couldn't seem to rally. "She had no reserve strength," said the doctor. "She must have always lived from hand to mouth, just enough for the day and no more. Some people are like that."

And Worse Still. And just to think that we had sometimes suspected her of laziness. And worse still, let her know it. You cannot judge others by yourself, you cannot judge yourself by others.

Each man or woman knows his strength. After All We Don't Have To. Of course there are plenty of lazy people in the world, plenty of people who give in weakly to their feelings instead of rising above them, but it is not possible for anyone with merely mortal means of judging to say who they are. Nor, when you come to think of it, is it necessary.

What is it Stevenson says: "One man I have to make good, myself. My duty to my neighbor is much more nearly expressed by saying I have to make him happy, if I can." (I quote from memory and under correction, but I know I have the spirit of the thing.)

One person you have to keep up to the mark in the matter of avoiding laziness,—yourself. Your duty to your neighbor is to let him use his own judgment and his own conscience.

October Rod and Gun.

There are several different features in the November issue of Rod and Gun in Canada, which combine to make it a particularly attractive number. The well known writer, Harry M. Moore, is at his best in "Sar Ann," an interest-gripping tale, and there are other stories that are of a high quality. The article, "Logs," descriptive of the logging and lumbering industry and of scenes and incidents in the lives of the bravely men who labor in it, is one of outstanding quality. The department, "Along the Trap Line," resumes in this issue, with Mr. M. U. Bates as editor, and this should be a guarantee that the department will enjoy all its old success, and will be of the same high standard that it has been in the past. The other departments are of their usual excellence. "Guns and Ammunition" includes splendid articles by E. T. Martin and E. T. D. Francis, as well as detailed accounts of the D.R.A. and the O.R.A. matches, and the other regular features of the magazine are of similar quality.

Rod and Gun in Canada is published monthly at Woodstock, Ontario, by W. J. Taylor, Limited.

Paris in Danger From Souvenir Shells.

In the first 15 days of September more than 800 hand grenades and large-calibre shells, of which 50 per cent. were loaded, were picked up in the streets of Paris by the police. 40 of these dangerous souvenirs were found in one day in various parts of the city. In the same period only 10 grenades and one shell were voluntarily turned over to the police by their owners. The police, while admitting their helplessness in the situation, are unable to understand it. Several deaths have resulted in the past month from the throwing of these war munitions into the streets, and the police have issued repeated appeals to the owners to bring them to the police stations, promising that no trouble should result from the acknowledgment of their ownership, which is illegal.

Household Hints.

To clean gold lace, make a paste with 1oz. stale breadcrumbs, 1/2oz. magnesia, 1/2oz. cream of tartar, and spirit of wine, and apply with a small brush. When dry shake off crumbs, and rub with a chamois feather.

To economise in coal, put a quantity of chalk at the back of your grate. Once hot it gives out a splendid heat, and is almost inexhaustible.

You can get rid of black beetles by "starving them out." Abolish crumbs, uncovered tins, pails or refuse, paper bags of foodstuffs, greasy sinks, and wet cloths, and dithe beetles will soon leave a place which does not provide them with a living.

When raking out ashes from the fire grate in the morning, fix a sheet of newspaper before the opening. This causes a draught which carries the dust up the chimney, and prevents its going on to the furniture.

Add a teaspoonful of salt to boiled starch to give a gloss to the linen, and make ironing easier.

You can freshen a stale loaf by putting it in a steamer over a pan of boiling water for five minutes.

Do not remove a gas mantle when it breaks at the "shoulder," but place the new one over it. This will lengthen on the life of the second mantle, and is said to save gas.

A teaspoonful of borax melted in a bowl of hot water cleans turned oak. Wash thoroughly, dry, and rub with linseed oil.

Vinegar added to the rinsing water on washing-day prevents the hands from roughening.

Old hair brushes which have become soft can be made hard and firm by dipping in a strong solution of alum. When washing saten, rinse in water to which a little water has been added, and this will give a satiny gloss to the material.

A stewed onion eaten the last thing at night promotes sleep. So also do

THE FRIENDLY WAY.
Let me walk the friendly way
And hear what kindly people say:
Let me not miss the gentler things,
The song the morning robin sings,
My neighbor's smile, the maple tree
Which casts its shelter over me,
While I go seeking lustrous fame
And gaudy pleasures hard to claim.

Let me rejoice unto the end
In him who cares to be my friend;
Let me not draw distinction's line
Between those trusted hearts of mine.
And mark by caste or creed or clan
The fondest worth of any man.
To those who love me I would cling
Despite the favor of a king.

The friendly way finds good in all.
The rich, the poor, the great, the small.
The toiler is as fine and true,
As good to know and cherish, too.
As is the man who walks in pride
With fame and glory at his side.
I would not spurn his friendly hand
With rulers of the world to stand.

Makes a Family Supply of Cough Remedy
Really better than ready-made cough syrups, and even ahead of ready and quickly prepared.
If you combined the curative properties of every known ready-made cough remedy, you probably could not get as much real curative power as there is in this simple home-made cough syrup, which is easily prepared in a few minutes.
Get from any druggist 2 1/2 ounces of Pinex, pour it into a 16-oz. bottle and fill the bottle with syrup, using either plain granulated sugar syrup, clarified molasses, honey, or corn syrup, as desired. The result is 16 ounces of really better cough syrup than you could buy ready-made and saves equally $2. Tastes pleasant and never spoils.
This Pinex and Syrup preparation gets right at the cause of cough and gives almost immediate relief. The Pinex, stops the nasty throat tickle and loosens the sore, irritated membranes so gently and easily that it is really astonishing.
Day's use will usually overcome the ordinary cough and for bronchitis, croup, hoarseness and bronchial asthma, there is nothing better.
Pinex is a most valuable concentrated component of our Pinex-Kay plus extract, and has been used for generations to break up severe coughs.
To avoid the expense of asking your druggist for "2 1/2 ounces of Pinex" with full directions, and don't accept anything else. Guarantee to give absolute satisfaction or money promptly refunded. The Pinex Co., Toronto, Ont.

One of the best known guides in Nova Scotia gives this testimonial of MINARD'S LINIMENT:
Have used Minard's Liniment in my home, hunting and lumber camps for years, and consider it the best white liniment on the market. I find that it gives quick relief to minor ailments, such as sprains, bruises and all kinds of wounds. Also it is a great remedy for coughs, colds, etc., which one is liable to catch when for driving and cruising during the winter and spring months. I would not be without MINARD'S LINIMENT and cannot recommend it too highly.

EAST LEAGUE MATCH.
K.A.C. vs. K.A.C. Result—C. E. L. 1 Goal. Played on Melville Grounds, Aug. 10, 1922.

This match, the first of the second round of championship fixtures, was played under most favorable conditions last evening, the weather being that could be desired, and an answer to gathering being present. The game was considered important, especially by the C.E.L. who were determined to take no risks, and to put the field the strongest eleven at their command as will be seen here: C.E.L.—Pearce, Pilot and Hayward; Eden, Ayre, and Cook; E. Reid, Reid, Osmond, W. Reid and R. Reid.

K.A.C.—Soper, Boone and Strang; Pitts, P. Knowling, and G. Knowling; Feaver, W. Knowling, Comerford, Moore and Williams. The K's were not at their full strength, playing a junior as centre forward (Comerford) and Jas. Matson was absent from the back. The Institute won the toss, and trying downhill the first half, we expected a raid on the K's goal, but we had the best of the opening exchanges and for the first 10 minutes they held their own against the "top". Then 3 corners fell to the K's, which were badly handled, missing one or two nice chances by bad setting. Play was very even for a while, until E. Reid shot a beauty to the K's goal, but he could not recover himself. Water had found the net. One for the C.E.L. This roused the K's who rushed for the other end, securing a corner, which was placed behind. At half time the teams crossed. Score, C.E.L. 1; K.A.C. 0.

Resuming play the K's pressed hard, and were certainly playing the best game, taxing all the power of the Institute defence, and having "hard lines" more than once. The C.E.L. backs were not, at this point, very steady, and with a heavier and speedier centre-forward the K's would, with the chances they had, have scored on two or three occasions. The ball was carried from end to end, till, after some fast play, W. Reid, got another chance and shot past Soper. Two for C.E.L. The K's again hustled, and Feaver just missed two chances. Then, from a bit of combined play, Tommy Williams succeeded in finding the net. One for Knowling's. Amidst loud applause from the spectators. This made it more interesting and a "draw" was now looked for by a good many, but the idea was "nipped in the bud" a few minutes after, when Pearce, with a lucky shot, well on the left wing, beat Soper for the third time, the score at the finish being—C.E.L. 3; K.A.C. 1.

Referee—F. Maynard.
Linesmen—F. Donnelly (C.C.G.); J. Ayre (K.A.C.)

NOTES ON THE GAME.
The game was a surprise to the majority present, who expected a walk-over for the Institute. The winners, although doing their best to augment their goal record, are apparently going back on their opening appearances. They secured the points, however, and are now pretty safe to win the championship this season.

It is only just to say that Osmond was partially disabled, and had to keep goal in the second half, Godden going in front, and Pearce in the half back line.

We have not seen the K's to better advantage this season. They have the material for a good team, and if they could only pull together and practice together, would prove hard to beat. Willie Comerford played a splendid game, and is only lacking in weight and stride. Feaver and Williams were in good form. Phil Knowling was very effective, and we were better impressed with White, who played a rattling game. W. Strang was at his best, and his partner, Boone, although making one or two bad mistakes, is improving. Soper, in goal was good, only making the one mistake, (when Pearce scored) in not catching the ball, instead of trying to "kick it out." Matches should now start at 6:15 sharp, as the evenings are getting shorter.

The First English Bible.

On October 4, 1585, the printing of the first English Bible was finished. The book was translated by Miles Coverdale, a friend of the famous reformer, Tyndale, but although the sole executor, he was not the proprietor of this arduous labour. The idea was first originated by a Dutchman named Jacob Van Meteren, who employed Coverdale to do the translation, which must have occupied a considerable time. No entirely perfect copy of this book is now in existence, and only three or four have this title pages. The imprint states that it was translated from the Latin and Dutch, "printed in the year of our Lord 1534, and finished on the fourth day of October." The first edition, although it did not actually receive the Royal sanction, was so far from being suppressed, that King Henry VIII. ordered a copy of an English Bible to be placed in the chair of every church, "for every man that will to look and read therein." It was probably due to the resistance of the clergy that although the art of printing was introduced into England in 1474, no English version of the Bible was issued until sixty-one years later. The tercentenary of the production of the complete English Bible was celebrated on October 4, 1835, sermons being preached all over the country, while medals were struck in honour of Coverdale. Although the memory of the great translator will always be revered on account of this great work, he was not a character of strong historical interest. He was content to remain in the background in the hour of trouble, preferring to leave to men of a rougher calibre the honour of a martyr's crown.

Chew a few pleasant, harmless tablets of "Pepsin Dispepsia" and your distressed stomach will feel fine at once. Correct your digestion and ease your stomach for a few cents. Don't let your stomach keep you miserable! Druggists recommend it.

Marvels of Memory.

LEARNING A NEWSPAPER PAGE BY HEART.

X Hunted working man, Alford Leonard Parker, who died recently, had a wonderful mental capacity. He could recite the whole of "Macbeth," "Hamlet," or "Othello" from memory. He was latter perfect in all the characters, and never made a mistake. He was a lover of Burns, Hood, Charles Mackay, and Mrs. Hemans. At short notice he could give a two hours' recital of any one of them.

Mozart's Feast.

Mozart, even as a boy of fourteen, had a marvellous memory. He at that age was in the Sistine Chapel in Rome, listening to the choir chanting the famous "Miserere" by Allegri, the copying of which was forbidden by the church under the penalty of excommunication.

Mozart with trained ear listened to the jealously-guarded piece repeated twice. In his room the tone pictures transmitted to his brain were recalled accurately and transcribed upon paper, and the next day he sang the "Miserere" at a concert, to his own accompaniment on a harpsichord.

All Rome, including the Pope, was astonished. The Pope sent for him, and instead of excommunicating him, heaped honours upon him, so extraordinary was the feat regarded.

Beast of Macaulay.

Milton could repeat Homer in Greek almost without book, and Thomas Babington Macaulay, when a boy, memorized Scott's "Lay of the Last Minstrel" during an afternoon call with his father, and on his return home repeated canto after canto of it to his mother until her patience and strength were exhausted.

At one period of his life Macaulay declared that if by some miracle of vandalism all the extant copies of the "Pilgrim's Progress" and "Paradise Lost" were destroyed, he would undertake to reproduce them both from memory.

Richard Porson, the wonderful classical scholar, had a prodigious memory. He went to Eton at an early age, but he had little or nothing to learn there, for he already could repeat word for word the whole of Horace, Virgil, the Iliad, as well as very considerable portions of the Odyssey, Cicero, Livy, and many other classics.

Repeated Book Backwards.

Gladstone had a wonderful knack of lengthy and exact quotations, and could quote whole pages of Homer, but it is not so generally known that his great rival Disraeli, the Earl of Beaconsfield, was also the possessor of a wonderful memory.

At a dinner party someone was praising Gladstone's memory, when Disraeli remarked that the feat was a mere trick, and in order to prove his point asked for a loan of any book.

The Earl of Derby's translation of Homer was handed to him. He retired with it for an hour, and then, returning, repeated from memory the first book—backwards!

Lord Randolph Churchill had a good memory. It was said that after a single perusal Lord Randolph could recite a whole page of advertisements in the "Times."

Tin Smelters.

As, relatively, only a handful of tin is produced in the United States, the tin smelters in this country have had to rely on the importations of foreign ores and concentrates. The main source drawn from has been the tin mines of Bolivia. A heavy export tax designed to confine the smelting of tin ores to the Straits Settlements prevents the export of concentrates from that country elsewhere. At times it has been difficult for American smelters, to prepare an adequate supply of tin concentrates, according to Engineering and Mining Journal-Press. Five tin smelters are in operation in the United States.

MENARD'S LINIMENT USED BY VETERINARIANS.

Say Radio Will Be Heard in Alaska.

FRANCE RAISES AERIAL CAPABLE OF HANDLING MAMMOTH BUSINESS.

Another step in the plan to "moor the new world alongside the old" has been taken at Paris by the opening of the great French wireless station at Sainte Assise. This is described as the biggest wireless station in the world, and it has a capacity, its builders say, of 1,000,000 words a day. Messages have been sent at the rate of 80 words a minute with perfect clearness, and when the equipment is completed it will be possible to send five or six messages simultaneously, with a total output of 600 words a minute.

Sainte-Assise, which will carry the bulk of wireless communication between France and America, is worked from the centre of Paris by means of a long-distance control system. The central office near the Paris Stock Exchange, by means of six receiving centres in the suburbs, picks up messages destined for transmission from Sainte-Assise and automatically passes them on across the Atlantic.

This station is 35 times as powerful as the Eiffel Tower station. In addition to messages sent to New York, direct communication has already been established with Argentina and China, and when the post is completely equipped it will be clearly heard in the remotest recesses of Alaska and the southern extremities of South America. The French constructors of the plant say the system used is several years in advance of that of the United States or of Germany. The wires are supported on seven pylons, each 320 feet high.

Men who Doctor Nature

It may not be generally known that there are hospitals where flowers, vegetables and wheat are cured of their ailments and restored to health.

"Dropsy," or a superabundance of moisture, is probably the worst disease that attacks wheat, and corn suffering in this way is placed into chambers through which currents of hot air are passed, and it finally comes out dry and ready for the mill.

Then there is a parasite which has the power of cutting through the outer covering of the wheat and attacking the grain. It is a very minute creature and difficult to find. The "wheat doctor" looks for it with a magnifying glass, and when he spots it he picks it up with a pair of tweezers made of a split human hair. The parasite may ruin a whole field of wheat in a few months if left undisturbed.

Corn in Hospital.

The "wheat doctor" is particularly busy in Canada, and about two million bushels of diseased wheat pass through the hospitals in Ontario alone in the course of a year.

The "potato doctor" is another very important person, and during recent years he has done much to "oust" the diseases to which this vegetable is subject. He has discovered methods to destroy the ordinary potato parasite as well as the well known Colorado beetle, though this insect still baffles him to a great extent.

The potato-beetle has devastated thousands of square miles of American farms during recent years, and it has also visited this country. Fortunately the Government "doctors" prevented it from doing very much mischief on the potato fields of Britain.

The "soil-doctor" is a scientist who has spent years of his life studying the soil and all that appertains to it, and his study has resulted in some remarkable discoveries. A little white back a microbe which has the extraordinary power of changing common or garden straw into first-class manure was discovered.

This microbe, which is in reality a minute animal, will attack straw and finally break it up into chemicals which are valuable in assisting the growth of crops.
