A QUEEN UNCROWNED
— OR —
THE STORY IN THE LONE INN.

CHAPTER XIII.

"He pooh-poohed the notion; said the marriage was null and illegal and carried off his son by force. The girl of fifteen was as proud in her way as the stately old Englishman was in his. She let him go without a word, and never again breathed the subject to me; but oh, the delightful looks she used to favor me with—the little kite-heart!"

"Well?"

"Mr. Robert De Vere soon found he had reckoned without his host, when he thought he could get his son to give up his little bride. He became perfectly unmanageable, raved, foamed, shrieked like a wild beast, and called on Jacquetta night and day. In fact, there was no standing him at all, and nothing remained but to send for Jacquetta."

"And you let her go?"

"Of course. I know my own interests. So proud was she, that she would not have gone a step with him, only out of pity for Aubrey. But go she did at last."

"And that is how she came to live at Fontelle?"

"That is how. Her presence soothed him at once and, strange to say, she and Miss Augusta, then a haughty little lady of ten years, became fast friends. She had, as I told you, winning ways, and cast a spell over every one she met by a sort of wild fascination about her, and very soon she became the idol of the household, and almost as dear to the master of Fontelle as his own daughter."

"So much the better! They will feel the parting with her the more."

"Right! So they will. Mr. De Vere did not care to publish on the house-tops that he had a son a maniac; and as his paroxysms of madness were becoming daily more frequent and violent, one of the rooms in the old deserted north wing was fitted up with barred windows and bolted doors and he was confined there. Old Tribulation, a woman of iron heart and nerves, became his nurse, and everything that could make him comfortable was given him. Even his fondness for music was thought of, and his organ was placed in his room and remains there to this day; and before his fierce attacks, he still favors them with a little unearthly music with a little unearthly music—most frequently at the dead of night."

"And that accounts for the strange notes," said the captain, musingly.

"Yes. As it would have excited curiosity and inquiry to call Jacquetta Mrs. De Vere, the change to Miss was very easy and convenient; and, as few visitors called at Fontelle, repelled by the pride of the aristocratic De Veres, people believed readily enough she was his younger daughter for she looks several years younger than Augusta—small fair people always do look younger than they are. And so—and so—she has lived there ever since; and that's all."

"And enough, by Jupiter! And so I'm a grandpa—am I. Good gracious! I say, Grizzle, where's the child?"

She laughed and continued stirring the fire.

"How dumb you are! Think a moment."

"Eh? Why—what? It's not little Orrie—is it?"

She nodded.

"Oh, Jehoshaphat! here's a mare's nest! And little black eyes is a granddaughter of mine!"

"She has that honor."

"Whew! What will we hear next? And Jacquetta does not suspect?"

"I don't know. I half think she does, sometimes."

"She would claim her, if she did."

"No. She knows it would be no use. I could keep her in spite of her. She bears a shadowy resemblance to her mother, and has the same fiery temper, and the true De Vere face."

"And so she's a De Vere, too?"

"Yes—and the heiress of Fontelle!"

"Well, this is something new. Do you mean to make this known as well as the rest?"

"Most decidedly."

"But what is the end of all this? It may mortify them to know I am her father; but they will not cast her off on that account."

"Trust me for that. I will see Mr. De Vere; and when I tell him Jacquetta knew everything I have told you all along, and artfully concealed it, you will see what a change it will make. You don't know yet how haughty those De Veres can be. Let him once learn what her mother was, and that Jacquetta herself knew it all along, although she denied it, and he would order her out in five minutes. He might get over the disgraceful stock from which she sprang, but her own deceit, never."

"Bravo! And then Madam Jacquetta will have to march!"

"Precisely! Oh, I'll fix her! Then, as her father, you can claim her, you know."

"But what if she won't be claimed?"

"There's a small spice of the devil in that young lady, and it may tempt her to act ugly and cut up shins."

"What can she do? She can neither work nor starve. And her child will tie her hands. It needs only a word to convince her the child is hers. It will humiliate her to death, and Diabrow's love will go out under the blow, like a candle under an extinguisher."

"Good? And then?"

"You can treat her as you please."

"By jove! I'll treat her well, for she's a little bric," cried the captain, enthusiastically.

"You forget she conquered you."

"I'll forgive her that, once I get her. I've got money enough; and, by the Lord Harry, she and Miss Orrie shall live like a couple of ladies."

"You're a fool! She'll never own you."

"Wait till you see. I don't believe little Lelia can have changed so. But, look here, old lady; you told me De Vere had two sons—where's the other?"

"Oh, Heaven know! Dead, I expect! He was carried off by Indians, when a child, and never heard of more."

"Well, it's astonishing how things turn up. And so my precious son-in-law is locked up in the old north tower of Fontelle?"

"Yes, and Tribulation has her hands full to look after him. They can always tell when he is getting violent, by his playing, and then Jacquetta has to go to him. She is the only one he will mind at such times. She locks him up and leaves him by himself, until he sees fit to be reasonable again, then he is released. It mostly happens in the dead of night; and the little lady has an uneasy time of it getting out of bed to see after him. Tribulation always clears on such occasions."

"And when is this delightful story to electrify your friends at Fontelle?"

"To-morrow morning."

"Am I to go with you?"

"Most certainly—to claim your daughter."

"Ha! ha! Won't there be a scene? I shan't sleep a wink to-night for thinking."

"Well, go now! I am done with you."

"A curt dismissal! Look here, Grizzle, I should like to see Orrie before I leave."

"Bah! What do you want to see her for?"

"Well, knowing that she is my grandchild, it strikes me I should like to take a good look at her. Come, old friend, be good-natured, and lead the way."

"Stuff! The child's asleep."

"I won't awake her—I won't stay a moment."

"Nick Tempest, you're a fool!" said the woman, harshly, as she arose and took a candle. "Come, then, willful must have his way."

"En avant, marchers!" said the captain, jocosely. "I follow."

She led the way upstairs, and opened the door of a squalid little room, containing no furniture, but a straw pallet in a little truckle bed. The child lay stretched out—her black hair strewn about her; her hands clasped over her head; her small face, in its repose, bearing striking marks of her paternity.

Shading the light with his hand, Captain Nick bent over her, but he started back the next instant, for the great, black, goblin eyes were wide open, and piercing him like needles.

"You nasty old thing! What are you doing here? Get out!" said Orrie, sitting up in bed and brandishing the pillow, as the only defensive weapon at hand.

"Oh, you're awake—are you?" said Captain Nick. "Why, Orrie, don't you know me—Uncle Nick?"

"Uncle Nick!" said the child, contemptuously. "You ain't! I wouldn't have you for an uncle! Will you go away?"

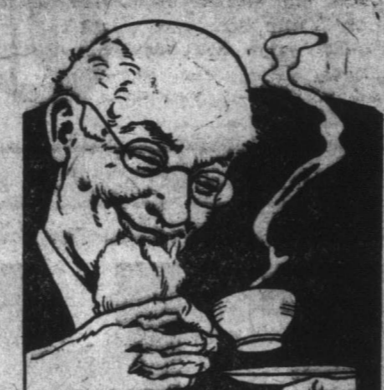

"She's her mother's daughter!" said Grizzle, with a grim smile.

"Clear out," repeated Orrie, clutching the pillow, "or I'll leave this at you!"

"You little angel," said the captain, apostrophizing her in a low tone.

"What a blessed little seraph she is, Grizzle!"

Expert Finds Earthquakes Follow Extreme Tides

TOKIO, Japan, Sept. 1 (A.P.)—Japanese seismologists are engaged in a discussion as to whether there is connection between earthquakes and high tides along the coast.

Naochik Maeda, chief of the Choshi meteorological observatory, has brought forth observations covering several years to prove that earthquakes can be foretold by excessive rises or falls of the tide. Early on the morning of Aug. 14 Tokio and the districts to the north were shaken by a fairly severe tremor. For several days previous tides along the Choshi coast, northeast of Tokio, where Mr. Maeda makes his observations, had been abnormally high and he had predicted a shock. That a shock came he claims is proof of his theory, that abnormal tides mean the approach of an earthquake.

Mr. Maeda quotes figures for the tides just before the disastrous earthquake of Sept. 1, 1923. At that time, he says, the tides were so high that the fishermen along the coast, who eke out a living by gathering seaweed in the shallows, complained that the water was so deep in their accustomed hunting grounds that their industry was sadly crippled. Then the big quake came. Mr. Maeda also recalls that excessively low tides preceded an earthquake which did considerable damage in Tokio and the surrounding country in April, 1922.

Dr. Meiko Imamura, head of the seismological department of the Imperial University of Tokio, admits that there may be some relation between tides and earthquakes, but declares that Mr. Maeda's theory is borne out in only about one case in five and is not acceptable.

Progress Levels Famous Buildings Near Charing Cross

LONDON, Sept. 12 (A.P.)—The changes of time and the steady blows of the pickaxe have sent another London landmark to destruction in a cloud of dust. This was the building at 34 Cockspur Street which for generations housed the establishment of a famous London clockmaker.

Attached to the front of this building was a great white-faced clock surmounted by a time-bell, and very old Londoners recall that riding to the War Office of a morning from his home in Piccadilly, the Duke of Wellington would draw rein to correct his tempest by the one which hung out high over the street. And now the old clock with its time-bell, which became a landmark to Londoners of a succeeding generation who, on foot or on buses, could view it from the far side of Trafalgar Square, has disappeared with the demolition of the building of which it was so long a part.

The passage of time has brought strange changes to this part of London, which became known as Charing Cross after King Edward I erected a Gothic cross there to mark the spot where his Queen's coffin rested in the thirteenth century, when the royal funeral procession halted on its way to Westminster Abbey.

Why Cockspur Street came to be so named no antiquary appears to be able to say for certain. Conjecture has it that it was because of a ranted connection with the mews adjoining the celebrated "Cock Tavern" where Samuel Pepys, who described it in his diary as "a great ordinary mightily cried up," dined Mrs. Turner, Betty and Tablot Pepys, Sir Dennis Gauden, and Gibson, and they were "merrily merry, the house being famous for the most singularly pease-porridge."

In later days Tobias Smollett was in the habit of frequenting "a small tavern in the corner of Cockspur Street" called the Golden Ball, "where we had a frugal supper and a little punch, as the finances of none of the company were in very good order."

violent gale in the night of Oct. 9, 1799. Her crew of over 400 perished. Her cargo consisted of several million dollars worth of gold bars and specie.

Fifty feet of sand covers the wreck and repeated efforts have resulted only in the recovery of about half a million dollars and the ship's bell, now at Lloyd's in London. At first divers were put to work, but later machinery was used to get at the wreck through the thick layer of sand by means of suction pumps.

Now a new apparatus, invented by a Dutch engineering firm is being tried. It does away with the suction process and substitutes hydraulic pressure. A tube is driven into the sand and steel grapples at the bottom seize any objects beneath it. The machine can work in any weather that is not too rough for the salvage vessel to be out.

During three days that the new apparatus worked recently no gold bars were raised, but indications are certain, according to the inventors, that the right spot has been struck and hopes are entertained that the rest of the Lutins' precious cargo, estimated at between $5,000,000 and $10,000,000, soon will be wrested from Davy Jones' locker.

Millions of Treasures May be Saved From Sea

Terschelling, Holland, Sept. 11 (A.P.)—A new process for salvaging the gold and silver of the Lutins, which has baffled a century's efforts, has just been put into operation here with every promise of success.

The Lutins was wrecked on a sand-bank near this island during a

Take special care of your boy baby

Boy babies are often more delicate than girls. If you have a little son you will, therefore, want to take extra care of him. Watch his diet; for most of the ailments of babyhood are traceable to incorrect feeding.

Viol will nourish his little body, build strong bones and white teeth, make healthy blood and firm flesh, and thus see him safely through the critical years of infancy.

Many a strong man to-day has to thank a childhood diet of Viol for the splendid constitution that has remained with him throughout his life.

Floods in Leningrad are Followed by Pestilence

Draft Protocol of Disarmament and Security—French Cardinals Address the Premier on Church Policy—Trouble in Irak Appears Serious.

TURKS CAUSING TROUBLE IN IRAK.

LONDON, Sept. 27. There has been a renewal of trouble along the frontier of Irak (Mesopotamia) within the last three days, according to an unofficial report printed by the Morning Post, the Turks having crossed the boundary and again been repulsed by British airmen. The situation is stated from the same source to be tenacious than the British Government is led to believe but direct news is lacking.

SPOTTED TYPHUS ADDS TO HORRORS.

LENINGRAD, Sept. 28. Spotted Typhus has broken out in this storm swept city, adding its horrors to the floods. Over one hundred cases of the disease are being registered daily and doctors and nurses are overwhelmed in the work of caring for the patients. One of the most gruesome aspects of the flood was the havoc wrought in cemeteries, where newly made graves were washed out by avalanches of water and bodies floated away in the streets. The dangers of pestilence are very great and the authorities are taking extraordinary measures to check its spread. Although the population is still suffering grievously from the effects of last Tuesday's storm the city is gradually returning to its former calm. Seventy-four out of 103 state factories have resumed operations.

FRENCH CARDINALS WRITE PREMIER.

PARIS, Sept. 27. The Cardinals of France, six in number, have addressed a collective letter to Premier Herriot, drawing his attention to the deep feeling which they say has been aroused by his policy towards the church as regards suppression of the French Embassy to the Vatican, the introduction of education without religious teaching in Alsace-Lorraine, and the strict application of existing laws to religious orders. The Government's measures as projected, says the letter, constitute a grave menace to internal peace, justice and liberty, to the interests of the country and respect for France in the eyes of foreigners. The letter refers to the reconciliation of the church and state which the war produced and declares that France alone suffered by not having a representative at that incomparable centre of observation the Vatican.

SHANGHAI DEFENDERS LAUNCH ATTACK.

SHANGHAI, Sept. 27. The Chekiang forces of General Lai Hung Hsiang launched an offensive this morning against the Kiang Su armies attempting to take Shanghai. The Chekiang attack was centered on a line between Hwangtu, fifteen miles west of Shanghai, and Kiating. First reports received by Chekiang headquarters from the new offensive asserted gains were being made. There was intimation here to-day that the offensive in which 10,000 Shanghai troops were involved, was the beginning of a general offensive which would involve 30,000 troops.

FRANCE EXPERIENCES BAD WEATHER.

PARIS, Sept. 28. The unprecedented bad weather from which France is suffering shows no sign of change for the better. Instead in some sections it is growing worse, causing damage in regions hitherto unaffected. A fresh violent storm burst over Toulon last night, flooding cellars and stores in the lower part of the city. Lightning struck and damaged the Arsenal, and nearby coast resorts were ravaged. In Eastern France and rivers Seine and Doubs and their tributaries are rising rapidly, even the far away Ruhr Valley in Western Germany is involved in the meteorological disaster, having lost half its wheat and potato crops.

THE CANADIAN PRESS STRIKE.

OTTAWA, Sept. 28. Judge Colla Snider, of Hamilton, will be appointed Chief of the Board of Conciliation to investigate the differences between the Canadian Press and its telegraphic operators. Norman Smith of Ottawa, will represent the Canadian Press and the operators will be represented by J. C. O'Donoghue of Toronto.

WILL BLACK RACE DOMINATE AFRICA.

JOHANNESBURG, S.A., Sept. 27. The next twenty-five years probably will decide the question once for all of whether or not the white race is to have any part in the ultimate development of South Africa or be crowded out by the Aborigines. This startling statement appears in the Government blue book analysis of the 1921 Census. Falling accessions to the ranks of the white race from abroad, the blue book states, the whites must forever abandon the prospect of maintaining a white civilization in South Africa, except as a diminishing minority, and it may then be forced to abandon its domination of abandon the country altogether.

FRANCE AS MEDIATOR.

GENEVA, Sept. 27. France came forward to-day in the role of mediator in an endeavor to save the draft protocol of arbitration and security, which seemed endangered because of the action of Mr. Adachi yesterday in announcing to the Commission of the League of Nations Assembly, which is examining the draft, that the Japanese delegation made reservations concerning the entire protocol. It is understood that at a meeting of the Japanese delegation several of the members expressed the opinion that Mr. Adachi had gone too far in taking this strong position, which all the delegates regarded as an insistence that disputes arising from the immigration question, which the world court would be certain to throw out as not being visible causes for international intervention by the League, must nevertheless be examined by the Council.

OBJECT OF GERMAN PROTEST.

PARIS, Sept. 26. The German protest, submitted yesterday against the 26 per cent import tax on goods from Germany, is interpreted in political circles here as a move to oblige France to abandon this tax before beginnings are made of negotiations of a Franco-German Commercial Treaty. A message from Berlin to-day declared that the delegation which will negotiate this treaty will leave the German capital on Monday. In French official circles, however, it is said that no date had been set for the opening of these negotiations as no official notice had been received that the German delegates are about to start for Paris.

CHILD FATALLY SCALDED.

ST. JOHN, N.B., Sept. 28. Leslie McCoubrey, two and a half years, died last night as a result of burns and shock received when he fell backwards into a tub of hot water at the home of his grandfather, at Renforth, six miles from here.

DAMAGE FROM HEAVY SEAS.

HALIFAX, N.S., Sept. 28. Ten hundred and thirteen dinner plates were smashed when the White Star liner Arabic was struck by one of the gigantic seas that swept the North Atlantic on the night of Aug. 26, according to information given out when the liner docked here yesterday en route from Southampton to New York. Lifeboats were destroyed, all portholes on the starboard side were smashed in, passengers were thrown violently to the floor, large quantities of fruit were smashed to pulp, and other damage sustained in the terrific storm.

FIRE.

He would not by a careless word do injury to man,
 Nor snatch from life one treasure more than the home truly can;
 And yet while passing through the woods one lovely summer day
 He lit his pipe and carelessly he threw
 The match away!

He knew the havoc fire can cause, he knew this friendly foe,
 He'd seen his home uncounted times its weight of loss and woe;
 Yet he, who would not by a word or fling to the woods a lighted match
 And calmly moved along.

There followed that one careless deed a forest's dismal fall;
 Brave homes which sheltered pioneers and held their little all
 Were swamped by the hungry flames— which only rain could stay—
 The ruin from one tiny match a man had tossed away.

One may recall the thoughtless word and right the careless deed,
 But fire is only slow to men when once its power is freed;
 And many a forest lies to-day in desolation grey,
 Because one careless hand had tossed a lighted match away.

WALT MASON.

OUT OF FORTUNE. I do not run for county clerk, or coroner, this year; I follow my accustomed work as village auctioneer; a public auctioneer I must shirk, because of craven fear. For many years I've walked the road that I tread, I spend my nights in my abode, and read what sages said, but long ago much time bestowed on painting landscapes red. The errors of my younger days are all forgotten now, and I pursue my quiet ways serenely with my frat, and men behold a halo's rays above my stainless brow. While I pursue my present plan I am a tranquil soul; I do not fear that any man will drag my record out, and hold it for the world to scan with ribald jeer and shout. But if unwisely I deeded that I would make the race, and with the earnest voters plead for some exalted place, my every punn, forgotten deed, my gambles would trace. And here, where I'm respected now, the evil news would float that once I swiped a farmer's cow and copped a widow's goat, I once pandered for my chow, and couldn't raise a goat. I shall not run for county clerk or register of deeds; I'll stick to my accustomed work, though all the village pleads; I'd not be banished from the kirk, and dumped among the weeds. To-day I gain the friendly smiles of damsels, one by one, I swing on gates and climb the

CHRISTOPHER COLUMBUS IN HIS JOURNAL BETRAYS AMAZING IGNORANCE OF WHAT HE DISCOVERED.

"Journal of First Voyage to America," by Christopher Columbus (Albert and Charles Boni).

By GEORGE CURRIE.

The ignorance of Christopher Columbus concerning the places he discovered is amazing. After reading the journal of his first voyage, translated by our old friend, M. le Professeur Anonyme, third cousin on his mother's side to the familiar Mrs. Anonymous author of certain more or less personal recollections of the illustrious dead, I am forced to marvel at the way of Providence, which moves so mysteriously its wonders to perform.

Aside from the fact that Columbus felt morally certain land lay on the other side of the Atlantic and that the discovery of the islands of the West Indies confirmed in his own mind the soundness of his theory, he does not appear to have known much about whether he was wending his watery way. Each day of that eventful voyage he was certain that seaweed floating on the surface of the water, the presence of strange birds and the appearance of crabs indicated that real land was just over the horizon. And each night he was forced to hope that the morrow would bring somewhat more tangible and visible evidences of terra firma than the preceding day had produced.

He kept up his hopes for so long a time that his men began to wonder if their admiral was not a little too optimistic, as explorers into the unknown are wont to be. To quiet his men's fear of the great distances they were traveling, he had false distances entered in the log.

On October 4, 1492, he noted: "Sailed day and night, sixty-three leagues, and reckoned to the crew forty-six." On the next day, "fifty-seven leagues, the wind abating in the night, reckoned to the crew forty-five."

Evidently Columbus knew with what manner of men he was dealing. I cite these little deceptions to support the contention of the translator that no mutiny occurred on that voyage, such has been reported in the folklore of the American childhood. Nowhere does Las Casas, the historian, report any such occurrence. And there is no reason why Columbus should have suppressed the information. Had the mutiny occurred and had he suppressed it, Ferdinand and Isabella must have thought all the more of him when he returned to lay a new world at their feet. Historians such as Robertson accept the mutiny yarn, and there you are. I am not a historian, so am compelled to take one or the other or leave both. They say the story of Washington and the cherry tree is fiction, that Pennington did not say as he looked at the adorning multitudines of Frenchmen on the quay, "Lafayette, we are here"; that a lot of other things are apocryphal. First thing we know, King Canute will never have commanded the waves to come no farther; Louis XIV will never have said, "The State, it is I"; the captain will not have shouted, "We are lost," as he staggered down the stairs.

Turk's Island too Long Denied Just Share in America's Discovery.

However, in this case we may be reasonably sure that its tradition does not stand up four square and on the level with the journal Christopher Columbus, tradition is in the wrong. One of the first things that strikes me below the belt in his account is the fact that San Salvoado was a jagged island which first met his gaze. From every description of what actually occurred, it would appear that Turk's Island has been done a grievous injustice, that for four hundred and thirty-two years the name San Salvoado has been masquerading under false colors and that the first point of insular America to greet a civilized European was in fact this lowly Turk's Island. And now Santo Domingo has nominated herself to be the site of the Columbus Memorial!

Battery Park, Manhattan, has for years presumed to swelter in the summer heat under the statue of the discoverer of the Americas. The public squares of half the cities of the United States and Mexico have bronze representations of Columbus. And poor old Turk's Island, with its lake in the middle, did not figure once in the unweaving speeches.

Concerning the exuberance of the Columbus optimism, one finds that daily he is in hopes of finding the "Great Can" supposedly the supreme ruler of Japan, which was then mixed up indiscriminately with Cathay or China. Always he is looking for a fabulous city. And with a wealth of Cuban vegetables, timbers, etc., all about him, he is anxious to find only gold. His hopes are constantly raised by the appearance of naked savages wearing gold ornaments. But after all, he was a loyal navigator and explorer. He wanted gold for the Spanish sovereigns, who, history tells us, were constantly and badly in need of it.

"It appears to me, that the people are ingenious, and would be good servants; and I am of opinion that they would very readily become Christians, as they appear to have no religion," he reports with the true zeal of the Christian missionary. Some of the modern higher critics might regard the statement as naive, but with that we are not concerned.

He frequently complains of the difficulties he met with in seeking intercourse with the natives by means of two familiar tongues. "The language of this people neither I nor any of my company understand, and we are perpetually making mistakes in our conversation with one another," he reports. "I place little confidence in the Indians I have on board, as they have several times attempted to escape."

Ungrateful Indians Suspect the Captain of Their Women.

One can understand that Columbus must have regarded the eagerness of his Indian prisoners to leave the ship as nothing short of low ingratitude. However, one who is not in the service of the Castilian monarchs can also appreciate with sympathy the natural desire of the savage to return to his tent and wife and kiddies.

There is much human hypocrisy throughout the journal, which makes it none the less interesting, however. If Columbus thought he was a servant of God's anointed and in the livery of God's people, he had ample precedent, something which has since been faithfully followed. It was only a few years ago that God's own people were fighting to make the world safe for democracy. The British and French were also fighting in the same cause, but they were obviously only second choices of a Divine Providence.

When Columbus writes, however, that "your Highnesses ought not to suffer any trade to be carried on, nor a foreign foot to be set upon these shores except by Catholic Christians, as the object and sum of the present undertaking has been the increase and the glory of the Christian religion," he is frankly playing the part of a courtier to their Most Catholic Majesties. Elsewhere, he insinuates with far less subtlety the report of his quest for gold, without which no monarch of the Spain of those days could hope to support himself in the style to which he was accustomed.

No history, man-written, would be complete without some description of the women met on such a voyage. Says the journal, of the native town, which a footnote states indicates Acul: "They were all as naked as they were born, both men and women, whereas in Juana, and the other islands the females wear a small covering of cotton at the waist, especially those above a dozen years, but neither old nor young practice it here. In other places we have found the inhabitants anxious to conceal their women from us, but here they display no such jealousy. The females at this place possess fine shapes, and were the first to give thanks to heaven upon our arrival (something which doubtless the very human Spaniards did their best to encourage), and bring offerings, especially bread of ajas and five or six sorts of fruits."

In the light of certain revelations concerning the voyages of Columbus, also translated from authentic documents, it is not hard to understand the desire of the natives "to conceal their women from us." The sailors were in the service of their Most Christian Majesties, but after all, they were hard-billed seafarers first and Christians last. However, Columbus' casual lapse from grace of his underlings.

Mermenals Three Were Manati; Columbus Disappointed, Like Others.

It is interesting to note that Columbus thought he had discovered mermanals in this new land of miraculous creatures. Says the journal:

"The Admiral relates, that when on his visit to the Rio del Oro yesterday, he saw three mermanals standing high out of the water, they had faces something similar to those of human beings, but were not so handsome as it was customary to represent them."

One can understand his disappointment at their lack of beauty when it is explained by the translator that the mermanals were probably manatees, or sea cows; next to the walrus and hippopotamus the most unlovely of all animals.

About the time that he saw his "mermanals" Columbus decided to put the case of Martin Alonzo, the skipper of the Pinta, before his monarchs. "After which," says he, "I shall no more suffer practices of worthless and malignant persons who behave with such disobedience and want of respect to one who has shown them so distinguished favors."

Alonzo, it should be borne in mind, was commander of the ship which had first seen land on the westward voyage. Doubtless this gave him a certain distinction among his men and also added his ego with some not unattractive pompousness and pride. With all due honor to Columbus, it is not impossible that he, too, was a little hasty. His complaint that the natives along certain of the coasts appeared suspicious of the intentions of his men towards their women, does not seem so righteous when it is taken into consideration that at the same time he had several squaws forcibly detained on board his ship. The American savages apparently did not realize or value the high honor of having their women seized by the great discoverer from Spain. If his complaints against Martin Alonzo are based upon no more sound reasons than his complaints against the jealousy of the male natives, something should be said for Alonzo. He was supposed to be an excellent navigator and commander of the fastest ship in the fleet.

However, he mentions an island inhabited only by women, thus proving that the story of the Amazons is universal. And the great wealth of our absorbing speculation, conjecture and misinformation which he picked up from the natives in no way mar the unquestionably important data contained therein which for some reason or another have never engaged the serious attention of history. I would list "Journal of First Voyage to America" among the five or six really important books which have been published this year. It has all the fascination of the stories of the South Sea Isles with none of the black and buncombe which too frequently have crept into such works. As a study of an earnest and somewhat naive mind of a man whose achievement changed the story of mankind and the outline of history, it is something every person should read and enjoy.—Sunday, Esq. Magazine.

Bear Races Motor Car

KETCHIKAN, Alaska, Sept. 14 (A.P.).—A taxi taking passengers to Peninsula Point, near here, recently, caught up with a bear running along the road. The driver speeded up, but the bear, refusing to be passed, accelerated his own gait. For a mile the car and the bear raced. Bruin led. Then, unable to take a curve at high speed, he catapulted down a bank to a bush and disappeared.

JAPAN STANDS FIIRM.

GENEVA, Sept. 28. While the conflict over the Japanese reservations to the protocol was still unsettled this p.m., a member of the Japan delegation made the following statement to the press: "We are determined in our opposition to the protocol as it now stands because it puts Japan in a most unfavorable position."

THE PRINCE ON HIS RANCH.

CALGARY, Sept. 28. The Prince of Wales is thoroughly enjoying his rest. He rode over ranch before breakfast on Saturday, stacked hay until noon, shot ducks and pheasants on the property owned by one of his neighbors, rode to McLean during the afternoon, then topped the day with another horse ride in the evening.

NOISY WELCOME TO TRIUMPHANT AIRMEN.

SEATTLE, Wn., Sept. 28. Huge welcome signs one hundred and fifty feet spelled in letters 20 feet high greeted the aviators as they arrived over Sand Point. As the planes flew over Seattle, whistles and auto horns sent up shrieking greetings. On the field hundreds of autos and cheers from thousands of spectators contributed to the noisy return.

BODIES OF TEN VICTIMS OF LANDSLIDE FOUND.

BERNE, Sept. 28. Eight victims of the landslide which on the night of September 24 obliterated a large part of the mountain village of Sonme were buried to-day. During the day two additional bodies were found but three women are still missing.

JAPANESE AMENDMENT THREATENS TO WRECK PEACE AGREEMENT.

GENEVA, Sept. 28. A grave crisis prevails to-night in the peace discussions through Japan's insistence upon an amendment to the proposed protocol of arbitration and security. So critical was the situation judged to be that France suggested that the Japanese amendment which concerns interpretations of the state right as related to arbitration, and which everybody understands as referring to immigration problem, should be considered solely by a sub-committee of the Council.

Seldom have you had such a cast of funmakers as appear in "Second Youth." Alfred Lunt made hundreds of thousands laugh in "Clarence." Jobyna Howland was a scream in "The Gold Diggers." Walter Catlett played all over the country in "Salvy." Herbert Corbell gave people convulsions in an 18-months run of "Canary Cottage." Lynn Fontanne is never to be forgotten as "Dulcy." Mimi Palmieri is a celebrated fashion beauty and appears in one gorgeous gown after another.

There are 198 laughs in "Second Youth." See this greatest of all comedies at the Majestic to-day; also keep in mind "Happiness" with Laurette Taylor in the lead.

Young Man Killed by East Bound Freight Train

The second railway fatality within a week occurred on Saturday night between Badger and Grand Falls when an elderly man named Samuel Crann was killed by an east bound freight train.

A message to the above effect was received yesterday by Mr. H. J. Russell, General Manager of the Railway from Supt. Cobb of the Western Division which reads as follows:—

"On the arrival at Grand Falls of the down special, J. O'Reilly, engine 183—James Peddie last night found a man underneath the wheels of the loaded box car No. 1462. The man was dead when discovered. The body was badly mangled from the waist down. The Magistrate has been notified. Think the man jumped on the train at the end of the platform. The man was later identified as Samuel Crann."

Upon receipt of the above message, Mr. Russell wired further particulars but nothing was received up to 1 p.m. The following further particulars of the tragedy are conveyed in a message from Magistrate Fitzgerald, Grand Falls to the Deputy Minister of Justice:—

"Fatal accident occurred at railway station, Grand Falls on arrival east bound special freight train in charge of Conductor Joseph O'Reilly at nine o'clock Saturday night. The victim is Samuel Crann, aged 17, of Grand Falls. He apparently attempted to board the train as it approached the station and fell between the cars. The body was found under the wheels of the box car in a badly mutilated condition. Both legs were severed. One was lying under the rear car fifty yards distant from the body. Doctors Scott and Moore were quickly on the scene and assisted in extraction of the body. They pronounced death instantaneous. The remains were collected and conveyed to Undertaker Brown's establishment and prepared for burial. Interment took place at 4 p.m. yesterday."

Huge New Airplane Handled With Ease on First Test Flight

BOROUGH, England, Sept. 5 (A.P.)—Great Britain's breadbasket of the air made its first flight recently from the airfield which was the hopping-off field of the American world flyers when they left England for America by way of Iceland and Greenland.

The monster machine is said to be the most powerful single-engine airplane in the world. From wing-tip to wing-tip it measures 88 feet, stands 12 feet from the ground and has a total weight of 24,000 pounds. The plane was built to take the new 1,000-horsepower Napier Cub engine, claimed to be the most powerful air motor in existence. It has 16 cylinders, yet weighs only 2,200 pounds. A railway locomotive, developing the same power, weighs over 147,000 pounds.

Foreign air attaches came to Borough to see the trial flight of the "Cubaroo" as the plane is called. For a brief space the engine was run, and then with a great roar the plane taxied across the airfield and was away into the air, with Flight Lieutenant Paul Bulman, one of the most daring pilots of the Royal Air Force, in command. When the flight was ended, Flight Lieutenant Bulman said the air-ship was handled as easily as a small plane. The response to the control was wonderful, and on landing there was no suggestion of the enormous size of the machine.

Some idea of the proportions of the plane is indicated by the fact that the single propeller is more than one and one-half times the size of a full-sized English billiard table. The tail alone is as large as an ordinary scouting plane. Two staircases from the central cabin lead to the separate parts of the machine. One goes to the pilot's cockpit, which has accommodations for two, and the other gives access to a compartment behind the wings which may be used as a machine gun tower.

The plane is without armament of any kind, but when being used for military purposes it will carry about 3 tons of bombs or torpedoes. The machine is ostensibly a three-seater, but there is accommodation in the cabin for a large crew, and the stairways make it possible for pilots and gunners alike to be relieved when the machine is in flight or even in action. When produced in quantities the "Cubaroo" will be used to equip some of the units which are to form part of Great Britain's big home defence scheme, to become operative next year.

Lord Harris, who is seventy-four years of age, played in a recent cricket match, in which he scored 15, including two 4's, and broke his bat.

The Earth Encircled in the Air

Yesterday witnessed the successful completion of an historic and record breaking event, when the intrepid American airmen who left Seattle in March last were welcomed home by the thousands assembled to greet them on Sandpoint Field.

It is a notable achievement for the frail aeroplane, which during the last decade has been brought to such a remarkable pitch of perfection by human ingenuity and intrepidity, but it is especially a triumph for the men comprising the party who won success by their splendid courage and endurance and by their refusal to recognize any odds as overwhelming. The girdling of the globe by means of heavier-than-air machines was completed without loss of life, and the only serious accident was that which made it impossible for Major Martin to continue the journey with his companions beyond the Alaskan Coast.

The Americans have every reason to feel proud of their gallant countrymen and of the record which is theirs, but it is more than a national victory, as it has only been made possible by the patience and courage that have been shown and by the sacrifices made in almost every country in the world. Lieut. Smith and his companions have won a name for themselves which will not soon be forgotten, and prosaic as the world is said to be becoming and disinclined as people are to express astonishment at the wonders of modern science, there yet remains a love of the romantic, and we are still thrilled by deeds of heroism and hardihood. Success is sweet and is a fitting reward to crown an undertaking of this kind, but those who have tried and won will be among the first to acknowledge their debt to the men whose failures have made their victory possible.

Rev. Canon Lockyer's Illness

From a visitor who has just returned from Trinity we learn that Rev. Canon Lockyer was suddenly taken with a seizure on Sunday week after he had attended evening service, and that there has been little change in his condition since then. It is trusted that the revered gentleman's illness may be of a temporary nature and that before long health and strength may be restored to him.

MIRIAM'S LINEN FOR DISTRESS.

The Belvedere Orphanage Collection

The collection taken up at the R.C. Churches yesterday in aid of Belvedere Orphanage, showed a considerable increase over last year. The total amount of $4,744.56 is made up as follows:—Cathedral, $3,334.68; St. Patrick's, $1,176.88; St. Joseph's, $1,715.90; Mount Cashel, $55.00. When several promised donations are paid in the amount will nearly reach the $5,000 mark. Last year the collection amounted to $4,525.24.

After last mass the collectors reported to the Orphanage where Mr. J. C. Pippy formally turned over the amount to the Mother Superior and in an excellent speech lauded the self-sacrificing work of the Nuns. Mr. M. Bambrick followed on behalf of St. Patrick's, and Mr. P. Smith for St. Joseph's, both gentlemen supporting Mr. Pippy's remarks. Mr. J. Lacey moved a vote of thanks to the Press for much material assistance during the week and for their willingness displayed always in this good cause. On behalf of the Sisters, Rev. Dr. Carter, the Chaplain, thanked all present for their untiring efforts, as well as the Press and the public, and voiced the gratitude of the Sisters for the handsome amount just turned in for the Orphanage. The Committee then visited the new extension and were loud in their praise of the vast amount of work that had been accomplished during the year.

Presentation to Mr. H. M. Stewart

On Saturday morning a pleasing ceremony took place in the Bank of Commerce, when the staff and the Bank's solicitor, Mr. Knight, assembled to say good-bye to Mr. H. M. Stewart, the former manager, who left by the Rosalind en route to Chatham, Ontario. Mr. Archibald, the accountant of the Branch, expressed his regret that that of the staff at the departure of Mr. Stewart and wished him every prosperity in his new home. As a mark of the esteem in which he was held, Miss Butler, one of the Bank's stenographers then requested him in a few happily chosen remarks to accept a very handsome club bag. A case of sterling fruit knives was also presented to be given to Mrs. Stewart as a small return of the many kindnesses the staff had received from her during her stay in St. John's. Mr. Stewart in replying showed that he was very much touched by their expressions of esteem and thanked them warmly on behalf of himself and Mrs. Stewart for their very handsome parting gifts.

Col. Dr. Smith Walker, P. M.

Of Grand Lodge, L.O.O.F., Maritime Provinces, Canada and Newfoundland, Addresses Oddfellows of St. John's.

At the meeting of Colonial Lodge, No. 135, L.O.O.F., held at Atlantic Lodge Rooms on Friday night, Sept. 28th, the brethren had the pleasure of receiving a visit from Colonel Dr. Smith Walker, P.G.M. of Grand Lodge, L.O.O.F. of the Maritime Provinces of Canada and Newfoundland. After the regular business of the Lodge was disposed of, Bro. Geo. T. Phillips, P. G., D.D.G.M., introduced Bro. Smith Walker, P.G.M., who then addressed the brethren, taking as his subject, "Why Are You Born?" or for what purpose are you here in this world. The subject was well chosen for the occasion and was delivered in a forcible manner. The Colonel proved himself a very fluent and witty speaker, and all present regretted that he was unable, owing to the late hour, to continue a little longer. Bro. A. House, N.G., thanked the P. G. M. on behalf of Colonial Lodge for his splendid address. Bro. A. Tilley, N.G., on behalf of Atlantic Lodge, No. 1, extended hearty greetings from his Lodge. The brethren then proceeded to Sterling Restaurant where an impromptu partridge supper was partaken of and the usual toasts honored. Impromptu speeches were then the order of the evening and the following made the time pass pleasantly with witty speeches and stories: Bro. Geo. T. Phillips, P.G.G., D.D.G.M., George Frimes, N.G., Joseph Moore, A. House, N.G. (Colonial Lodge), W. Blackmore, Charles Brown, A. King, Jas. Vardy, A. Tilley, N.G. (Atlantic Lodge), I. Sparkes, P.G., Jas. Carberry, P.G., G. Freeman, C. J. Dutoit, G. G. Phillips, P.G. Bro. Colonel Dr. Smith-Walker, P.G.M., warmly thanked the brethren for the splendid reception he had received and regretted that owing to the short time at his disposal he would be unable to attend a meeting of Atlantic Lodge. Noble Grands A. Tilley of Atlantic and A. House of Colonial Lodges wished the P.G.M. on behalf of their respective Lodges "a bon voyage." With the singing of Auld Lang Syne and the National Anthem thus closed a day pleasant and profitable to Oddfellowship.

PEPPYS BEHIND THE SCENES.

Sept. 27th.—Blabb gives me this morning his prescription of a new cure for a cold of the head, which I will try, yet have no faith in, since I think this malady must be allowed to run its course. And indeed, it is the vilest tasting stuff I ever knew in my life, more like a furniture polish than anything else, so I think I shall give it to the charwoman. Busy about my books at the office all the day, and hear no news, nor in any case, is there any to be heard, and is the quietest time I have ever seen it. At night, to the Club, where I play a little at billiards but make no improvement which worries me much, since it is a game I would play well.

Sept. 28th (Lord's Day).—To church my wife and I, she wearing her new clothes for the fall, and mighty pleased with herself, and indeed, they do well become her as they might, since they do cost me far more than I may afford to pay for. This evening Fovey and I by motor coach to Fernside, and will shoot over the heath, rene to-morrow. But Lord, I trust our luck will be good, since methinks I have promised partridge to more people than there are birds in the country.

Michaelmas Festival

The newly constituted Church of England Parish of St. Michael and All Angels, in the west end of the city, is holding its Patronal Festival, the church being dedicated and under the patronage of St. Michael and All Angels. Last evening the Rev. T. B. Elliott, Rector of St. Thomas' Church preached to a large congregation. To-day Michaelmas Day, the Holy Eucharist was sung at 11 a.m. and Evensong will be said this evening at 7.30, when the Rev. Canon Field is to preach. A Thankoffering is being raised by the congregation to be devoted towards the repairs and painting of the church and on Tuesday evening, 30th, instant, a Concert and Social is to be held in connection with the Festival in the Lecture Hall of the church.

Fire Prevention Week

Fire Prevention Week begins next Sunday when reference to this matter will be made in all the city churches. The programme will be somewhat similar to that of last year. Fire prevention will be the topic at the Rotary weekly luncheon. The speaker on the occasion will be Mr. C. McK. Harvey. The various moving picture houses will exhibit slides showing the destruction caused by fire and methods of prevention. The usual parade of apparatus will take place and the week will wind up with an inspection of premises.

Miss Margaret Hubbell an Empire Enthusiast

In Saturday's issue of the Telegram the announcement was made of the arrival of Miss Margaret Hubbell who is setting out on a lecture tour of the Empire. At Balaam Place yesterday our reporter had the privilege of hearing Miss Hubbell tell of a most arduous task which she has set for herself. Her objective is Empire Unity. This she believes can be best brought about by inter-Dominion publicity. Miss Hubbell, who was born in Wingham, claims descent from a prominent United Empire Loyalist family. Her mission, she says, is the outgrowth of her after-the-war experiences. Visiting the battlefields of Europe in 1920, and viewing the 30,000 graves of the Empire, she realized the price these heroes had paid for the cause of Empire. She caught the spirit of their appeal to "carry on." "To you we throw the torch." An irresistible impulse seized her and she decided to do something for the cause—in brief, to promote Imperial citizenship.

The Montreal Herald, speaking of Miss Hubbell, says: "She is a wonderful girl and one of the most enthusiastic and interesting persons to be found outside of 'Who's Who.'" She is, in the full sense of the term, a citizen of the British Empire, and she has charged herself with the difficult but worthy task of converting others to the same status. She is not one of the sheltered daughters of the rich with ample funds to satisfy her whims, but is just one who is making her way in the world and quietly heaving out a career of usefulness without any thought but that of being a factor in the great work of Empire Building." Miss Hubbell speaks with conviction of affairs in her native land. She knows the country well and last year travelled 2,000 miles in the Far North with two Indian guides in her own canoe. Before arriving here she spent six weeks at Wembley, studying Empire conditions. A keen observer, she has collected a lot of interesting data which she will illustrate by lantern slides during her lecture tour. Newfoundland, she says, needs publicity. Our exhibits were interesting, particularly the leather goods, made from seal skins, the cod liver oil and the eel grass. The latter has, she affirms, awakened a wonderful lot of interest in our resources. Newfoundland was the "cream" in the banquet of the Empire, she says. Miss Hubbell will proceed North during the present week to develop her publicity material, and on returning in about ten days' time, she will have an interesting story to tell.

HOW TO BEAUTIFY YOUR FACE, NECK AND ARMS.
 Soap and water washing is of little use in cleaning the delicate skin of the face, neck and arms. And skin-cleansing is the first step in the preservation or attainment of beauty. This is the approved method of skin-cleansing, and the first message will show how ineffectual ordinary washing is. Before retiring, massage the face, neck and arms gently but thoroughly with Pond's Cold Cream, using the tips of the fingers. Then wipe off the surplus cream with a soft towel, and notice how much dirt has been removed—not from the surface of the skin, but out of the pores.

Obituary

PAYSON J. KINSHELLA.
 About 10 o'clock Saturday night, Mr. Payson Kinsella, son of the late John W. Kinsella, was seized with a hemorrhage which resulted in death within a very short while. Rev. Fr. Murphy was called in attendance and administered the last rites of the Catholic Church. Deceased, who was engaged at St. Bon's College, took up reportorial work on leaving school. After a short period of newspaper work he secured a position with the Reid Nod. Co., after 7 or 8 years in the employ he went to Sydney where he secured an important position with the I.C.R. Two years later he returned to Newfoundland and took a position in the Parcel Department of the Post Office, which he held until his death. He leaves a mother, wife and one child and three sisters to mourn their loss.

Had a Narrow Escape

Michael, son of Customs Detective Tobin, who had a narrow escape from being killed on Friday afternoon when he fell from the top of a chimney, is much improved to-day. Tobin, who is a thinsmith at Callaghan's, was engaged in putting a galvanized top on a 14 foot high earthen pipe chimney at a residence near his home on Cabot Street, when without warning it broke off near the bottom. Tobin fell on the jagged edge of the pipe with the result that a deep wound was inflicted in his neck between the wind pipe and jugular vein. Dr. McDonald, who was called in attendance, was obliged to insert seven stitches to close the gash.

Young Girl Missing

A 14 year old girl named Locke, who left her home, Prince of Wales Street, at 9 o'clock on Friday night, is causing anxiety to her parents by her absence ever since. The girl, it is learned, took a situation as a domestic servant under the name of Grant, but she has since left her place for parts unknown. She is of slight build and is dressed in a blue serge suit with brown hat.

L.S.P.U. Tug-of-War Team Dined

The Longshoremen's Protective Union held a successful dinner party at Hughes Hotel, Donovans, on Saturday night, the occasion being the celebrating of the victorious tug-of-war team at the Highland Games. Besides the members of the winning and losing teams, amongst those in attendance as guests were:—Messrs. A. E. Hickman, M.H.A., W. J. Browne, M.H.A., N. J. Vinicombe, M.H.A., W. F. Linegar, M.H.A., Hon. M. P. Gibbs, Dr. Alex Campbell; Messrs. J. C. Hopburn, Ira S. Kennedy, D. McIntosh and H. But from St. Andrew's Society and Capt. Hector McNeil, O.B. E., representing the Nfld. Highlanders. Mr. James Cault, the President, presided. The gathering assembled around the festive board at 8.30 and partook of the excellent menu provided and both the committee and management and the caterers are to be congratulated upon the arrangements. Following the dinner the toast list of the evening was taken. The speeches were both humorous and witty, and being interspersed by songs, the evening was one of real enjoyment and passed altogether too quickly.

Nfld. Highlanders Attend Divine Service

The Newfoundland Highlanders under command of Lieut-Col. W. H. Herder, attended Divine Service at St. Andrew's Church, at 11 a.m. yesterday, the preacher being Rev. Mr. Power. The Brigade, headed by its buglers and drummers, proceeded to the Kirk via Harvey Road and Lonsdale Hill, and following the short service returned to the Armoury via Governor and Cochrane Streets, Military and Harvey Roads. The Bugle Band accompanied lively music along the line of route. The parade was a very good one, and the soldierly appearance of the lads was much admired by the hundreds of people who watched the parade pass by.

Famous Recipes for Home Cooking

A FRENCH DAINTY FROM ALBERTA.
 (A recipe taken from a privately published Canadian Cook Book.)
 (All measurements level.)
 Crust.
 3 cupfuls flour,
 ½ cupful Crisco,
 pinch of salt,
 sufficient water to moisten.
 Line shallow muffin tin with this crust, after rolling out, and put two tablespoonfuls of filling in each.
 Filling.
 2 eggs,
 2 tablespoonfuls melted Crisco,
 1 cupful brown sugar,
 1 cupful currants,
 1 teaspoonful vanilla.
 Beat eggs light, add the sugar, melted Crisco, currants, and vanilla together. Bake until set, about one-half hour.

A Correction

It is currently reported that Mr. Reg. Brown, of the East End Taxi Company, was the driver of the car which smashed off a telephone pole and was ditched on the Broad Cove Road on Friday night, and we have been requested to state that the rumour is incorrect as far as Mr. Brown is concerned.

WINTARIA ON WEST COAST.—H. M.S. Wintaria, with Sir William and Lady Allardice, arrived at Cartwright Sept. 26th. The ship sailed on Friday, Sept. 26, for Port Saunders.

S.S. Susu in Port

S.S. Susu, Capt. Jacob Keam, arrived from the Fogo mail service at 6 o'clock this morning, bringing a full cargo of fish and oil, besides the following passengers: J. Oake, C. Parsons, Geo. Winter, G. B. Winter, T. W. Abbott, J. Squires, K. Spurrell, Sgt. White, Mesdames Hunt, Burrey, Mullett, Miss Green and 9 in steerage. Capt. Keam reports the fishery at Joe Batt's Arm and Barr'd Island as very good and fishermen have done well with hook and line during the past few days. Codfish is reported very plentiful at the Fogo Islands at present and should the fine weather continue the fishery around these ports promised to be more than an average one. The Susu arrived at Fogo on Thursday night, and was detained there until Saturday morning on account of a heavy storm. She sails again to-morrow at 2 p.m.

FOOTBALL GAME TO-NIGHT.
A football game has been arranged to take place at St. George's Field, commencing at 8 o'clock, this evening, between the Saints and Cadets. Each team met twice this season and each time ended in a victory for the Cadets. Since then, however, the Saints won the Tie Cup, and in the game to-night will present the same line-up as appeared in the game against the Guards, and they have every hope of taking a fall out of the Cadets this time. The game promises to be very interesting.

BASEBALL.
New York Giants And Washington Will Battle In World's Series.
The series of baseball games in the National and American Leagues terminated on Saturday last, after the most successful and hard fought seasons of ball-dom ever staged in the States. The New York Giants, under John McGraw, won the pennant in the National League, it being their fourth successive win, while Washington headed the American League, noting out the New York Yankees, World's Champions, in the final stages of the race. Preparations are now being made for the World's Championship series of games, between the New York Giants and Washington.

HANDSOME PRIZES FOR ST. JOHN'S OARSMEN.
The prizes donated by Mr. H. D. Reid and won by T. Kearney's crew in the challenge race between St. John's and Outer Cove, at the St. Joseph's Regatta, are now on exhibition at the store of Mr. A. McNamara. They are magnificent gold watches and the best prizes ever awarded at a local regatta. The presentation to the fortunate oarsmen will likely take place this week.

Norwegian Deserters Arrive

Serjt. White arrived by the Suva this morning with four Norwegian sailors who had deserted their vessel at Port Union. They were arraigned before court at 11 o'clock charged with vagrancy and were sent to the penitentiary until arrangements can be made to place them on board another ship to forward them to their homes. Two other sailors deserted the ship in company with the above men, but they left Port Union and walked to Clarendville with the intention of boarding an east-bound train. Nothing has been heard of them since Wednesday last.

Those South Side Eyesores

Editor Evening Telegram.
Dear Sir.—Reading over your Editorial a few days ago I must congratulate you on your remarks referring to the old Long Bridge. It is disgrace to St. John's, being the principal bridge in Newfoundland. What about the $50,000 the last Government voted for a new bridge? We could have a promenade along the river front from the end of the bridge to the railway track instead of a dump for logs and old boats, and the children could have a nice place to play if the old dump was fenced along the side of the river. This note is only to thank you for your remarks referring to the old Long Bridge. Keep at it, Mr. Editor, you have the South Side people at your back. Once again I thank you and hope to hear a little more on the old bridge and South Side.

Yours very sincerely,
AN OLD SOUTH SIDER.

but in all broadly competitive markets price will always be a big factor in determining sales, so long as the purse of the buyer limits his purchasing power. And, from the other end, the price he gets determines the profit or loss of the manufacturer—whether or not he knows his costs. If profits or losses are to be controlled, the maker must know costs.
It is my conviction that for most business men the sure way to profits is to make or to resell a commodity of proper quality at as low a price as

Our Montreal Letter

(From Our Own Correspondent.)
THE HOME TRAINING SADLY NEGLECTED.

In this age of enlightenment, civilization and progress, the question of education is a vital issue. But there is one great factor, even the foundation stone, and that is sadly missing in hundreds of families to-day—the Home Training, or co-operation with the teacher. When the parents do not give their children the proper home training in the art of morals and manners, I fear for the safety of such children, even with the results of the best education received in schools. The Home Training is fast becoming a thing of the past, even in well educated families. The late hours at night roaming around the streets visiting the "movies," no attention is paid to their home exercises and lessons, their tardiness in arriving on time in the morning, and their frequent absence during the scholastic year, tell the same old story in the same old way. No Home Training, and the loss of parental control. The records of our Juvenile Court can reveal many instances where children have started on the downward path owing to the want of proper home training. Impudence and independence seem to be the chief things inculcated in them even at the early age of 7 and 8 years. And parents think this is "smartness." Parents who are neglecting to give their children a proper home training are simply making for themselves a whip of knotted cords that their children will scourge them with and make them shed tears of sorrow and shame and hurry them on to an early grave. The fall records of young boys of 17, 18 and 19 years of age bear silent and convincing testimony to over indulgent, negligent and careless parents. Let me quote a few authorities on Proper Home Training. "Our Sunday Visitor" says:—

Educators of the present day lament the evident lack of reverence on the part of those placed under their direction. Irreverence is a sign of wrong thinking, of unworthy standards, of improper training. The cure for this public, social cancer is an insistence upon correct principles by means of proper education.

The home is the fruitful nursery wherein reverence must be instilled in youthful minds.

"The worst thing that could happen for the present system of education would be for it to succeed," said Prof. Gus Dyer of Vanderbilt University, in an address on education delivered at Peabody College.

"Our whole system of modern education is artificial," he said. "It aims at training the intellect, and does not train the whole mind. We do not live, move and have our being in the intellect. Intellect is only a subordinate part of the mind, a tool to assist the will to obtain the heart's desire. Emotions, passions, morals, religion, love and hate—these make up the important part of the mind, the part that feels. Our education does not touch it. Our system is intensely narrow.

"The first system of education was God's system—education of the child by the parent. Next came the 'me and God' system and not it is just 'me.' The home is the greatest school, but our present system, instead of supplementing the home, attempts to replace it. We substitute the school teacher for the mother. The typical school teacher is a thoughtless young girl who is teaching only until she can get married or can get a better job. She is supposed to be able to train the child better than its parents, but few are the schools where this is really true.

"In the old-fashioned home the child was an asset. Now we make the child a liability! This compulsory school laws shoulder serious responsibilities on the parent. No longer is a family considered fortunate to have a large number of children. We have made the child a parasite instead of a help to his parents. In doing so we have deprived the child of his best training, work. We have taken him out of the real world of his play and put him into an artificial world. Anything that deprives a child of his opportunity to work is doing him an injustice.

"What are the results of this system? In the 'Athens of the South' we cannot get half the citizens to the polls to vote, and one of the crime centers of the country is this Athens."

"Charles Schwab employs 150,000 men. But Schwab says he has had only one college man that made good in an administrative position. The fruits of our system do not justify its cost.

"We must restore the home as the chief educational institution. We must permit the parent to direct the child's activities. I would like to see the time when we have schools for fathers and mothers. We must discover Nature's laws for the development of man, and co-operate with Nature."

er the knife in the hands of a fool the better. It is dangerous to furnish an idiot with a loaded gun. Let the guardians and the conservators of our Christian American civilization beware of the educated moral idiot and of any institution that fosters conditions to produce him—or her.

William Penn has the following words of wisdom:—Above all things endeavor to bring children up in the love of virtue, and that holy plain way of it which we have lived in, that the world in no part of it get into my family. I had rather they were homely than finely bred as to outward behavior; yet I love sweetness mixed with gravity, and cheerfulness tempered with sobriety.

Bishop Langley, Episcopal Bishop of Iowa says:—"The safety of the home, and indeed, the safety of civilization, is dependent on the spiritual education of the boys and girls of to-day. We must learn that a civilization conceived in spirituality will quicken the life of our world, and we are sadly lacking in imparting spiritual education to our children. We must teach them that our country and the world can never rise higher than the individual lives, and as we put spirituality into our lives, we can ennoble all life."

A despatch from Quebec says:—"The second oldest building on the American continent, the old Jesuit residence at Sillery, will shortly become the property of the Provincial Government, and be preserved, as a historic monument. According to an announcement made by Hon. Adolphe Turgeon, speaker of the legislative council, and president of the Historic Monuments Commission, two Quebecers, Alfred Dohell, K.C., and William Dohell, sons of the late Hon. R. Dohell, have donated the building to the Government. The house, built in 1639, is the oldest in Canada, and on the continent is second only to a house in St. Augustine, Florida.

In his book on historic monuments of the province Pierre George Roy recalls that it was from this old house that Jogues, Brebeuf and other Christian Fathers were sent out.

The house is still in good condition. It was here that Father Masse died in 1646, at the age of 72 years. He was buried in a church which formerly stood directly opposite the house, and in the ruins of which his remains were found.

America is not Loved

You may have seen cartoons depicting the attitude of the losers in a poker game towards one big winner, with all the chips piled in front of him. A visit to Europe brings home the unpleasant conviction that America is regarded as having emerged from the World War with all the chips. And the losers do not take great pains to conceal how they feel. Briefly most Europeans feel that America dodged her share of the responsibility imposed by civilization through her delay in entering the World War and also that, worse still, "she let us down" by repudiating the obligations and agreements entered into by the head of the nation, President Woodrow Wilson. There are, of course, many expressions of abject gratitude from those weaker peoples who received bountifully of American charity. But, somehow, charity rarely begets genuine gratitude. As for the other and stronger nations, they feel bitter over the whole course pursued by Washington since the world war ended. "What is an 'unofficial observer'?" one is repeatedly asked. The askers usually supply their own answer, along some such lines as these: "An 'unofficial observer' is something we do not understand. He is neither fowl nor flesh nor red herring. All he does is to assume the role of a superior kind of censor, a self-appointed umpire who accepts no responsibility for his actions." Our recent handling of Japanese exclusion is cited as an illuminating illustration of our arrogant attitude towards other nations. Superficially, Americans receive courtesy nearly everywhere. But when you get down to talking heart to heart, you find that the attitude usually is that of the losers towards the big winner in a card game.

Unpleasant, yes, but I am here attempting to record, not explain or defend.—B.C. Forbes in Forbes Magazine (N.Y.).

THE THOUGHTFUL THINKERS.

The worst thing about a convention is that when a thing becomes a convention, that fact immediately discounts its sincerity. When your departing guests say to you: "We had such a lovely time at your party," you do not feel that necessarily means anything. They would be as likely not to say it, if they have any manners at all, as they would to pick their teeth at the table or ask you how much the bridge prize cost.

You Think They Really Mean It. But when a few days after the party one of your guests meets you on the street and says: "That was such a nice party the other night, I don't know when I've had such a good time," you feel as if they really meant it and glow with pride and pleasure. And that's the kind of person I mean by a thoughtful thinker, a person who doesn't merely go through the polite forms of thanks, but who remembers afterward to add some graceful word of appreciation.

Perhaps you've worked very hard on some committee and are questioning if it's worthwhile, and deciding that you will never work so hard again, and then you meet the committee chairman some weeks afterward and she remembers to say: "My dear, I don't know what I would have done without your help on that bazaar. We simply couldn't have given it, that's all. You must have put a tremendous lot of time in it." And while you modestly decline any such importance, your heart swells with pride. And you decide that perhaps you will do it again sometime since you are evidently such an important person, and so well appreciated.

For Gifts Received. Thanks that we offer for gifts at the time when we receive them are, of course, so much a convention that it is very hard to put a note of sincerity into them. But if you really want to make a person feel that you have appreciated his gift, say or write something about it a few months afterward. "I have just been putting some nasturtiums into that bowl you sent me. I never had anything for flowers that I liked so well. It is such a graceful shape," or "I wish you could see the children playing with that construction set you sent them. It keeps them busy for hours at a time and you can guess what that means to me." Oh "I'm going to wear your silk stockings to-night. They have worn beautifully. You really couldn't have given me anything I'd like more." You know—the sort of thing you often think but just don't get to writing or saying. Well, go that one step further and write it or say it and you will be a thoughtful thinker.

How It Warms the Heart. It really isn't hard to be one. Just takes a little mental effort to remember a little sympathetic imagination to realize just what will cause that warm glow which gratitude brings.

Says Madame Claire in the delightful book of that name: "No one wants gratitude, no one except perhaps a bully—but when one does get it how it warms the heart."

And how much we like those who give us this delightful feeling.

Grain Dealers Hear Secretary Quinn Attack Minorities.

Cincinnati, Sept. 22. (A.P.)—Strongly organized minorities are practicing virtual blackmail on members of congress, Secretary Charles Quinn of the Grain Dealers National Association declared in his annual report to the convention to-day.

"It is said on good authority there are no fewer than 500 of these organized minorities," the speaker said, "with offices and lobbyists in Washington. This situation must be remedied if we are not to go the way of other countries that have changed parliamentary government to dictatorship."

Proponents of the McNary-Haugen bill were classed by the speaker as one of these minorities. "The weapon they used to compel congressmen to support the measure was the threat of defeat at the polls next election. It was blackmail. There was no attempt to convince the lawmakers the proposed act was sound. Indeed, proponents frankly admitted the bill's economic weaknesses."

"The farm bloc," Mr. Quinn asserted, "raised the cry of orderly marketing, which appealed to the masses unfamiliar with the slow and natural evolution of grain distribution in this country. With this demand for so-called orderly marketing through co-operation, there grew like mushrooms various schemes to pool grain and hold it for higher prices."

"And then there were added to the farm bloc minority in congress representatives from some of the wheat pools. They had been holding grain at a loss to their members, and to recoup these losses they promoted the economically unsound export corporation bill. For a time it appeared that they would force congress to embark on this socialistic scheme. It was a most striking example of the work of organized minorities."

Such methods, the speaker added, were contrary to sound principles of government. They are as unfair, he said, as demands for investigations which merely create press sensations and cause the public to suspect various industries.

"There were 24 investigations going on in the United States senate in 1922," Mr. Quinn declared, but not more than six resulted in reports that reached the public. Great mischief was done to business, nevertheless. Suspicion was created and the seeds of envy, malice and mistrust were sown. These are the things that are undermining democracy. The work of energetic minorities is gradually subverting the American form of government into a government of classes."

Testing a Million Thermometers a Year

In days before the War, when our Government was giving the small grant of £7,000 a year to the National Physical Laboratory, the American Government was giving four hundred thousand dollars (£80,000) a year to her chemists, and the German a still larger sum. One consequence was that our national scientists had to take in paying work in order to make ends meet.

The War forced us to recognize the enormous importance of pure science in every-day life, and we no longer starve our National Laboratory as formerly. Yet the Laboratory itself is still largely self-supporting. It earns money in all sorts of ways.

Suppose, for instance, that you or I invent a new sort of road-making material. We may think it very good, but how are we going to test it? The country surveyor is not going to let us dig up one of his high roads and lay a length of our invention to see how it will wear.

But for a consideration in cash the Physical Laboratory will carry out a test for us, and run wheels with varying loads over a track laid with this invention, for any desired period. Then it will give us certificates as to the value of the invention.

The Laboratory will test gauges of all kinds and has the most delicate machinery for this purpose measuring down to the hundred-thousandth of an inch. It tests thermometers. Something like a million clinical thermometers—the sort used by doctors—are tested yearly, the charge being threepence apiece. So you may take it that, if you buy a new clinical thermometer, it has been in a Government guarantee of accuracy.

A Tonic for Flappers and Jazz

SEE THE WONDERFUL FILM AT THE NICKEL TO-NIGHT.

In this age of flappers and jazz and the upsetting of all traditions the sight of an old-fashioned girl—one of a hundred years ago with her winsome, modest charm and her feminine ruffles and frills—will be a refreshing sight. Marion Davies as Patricia O'Day will bring to the screen just such a girl in her Cosmopolitan picture "Little Old New York," which opens at the Nickel theatre to-day.

In this delightful screen story Miss Davies has another big role which is a worthy follow-up for Princess Mary Tudor which brought the young actress world-wide fame in "When Knighthood Was in Flower." The role of Patricia is even more difficult than that of Princess Mary and requires even more finesse and delicacy in the handling. She has to assume a boyish swagger yet at the same time experience all the feelings of a young girl falling in love—and having to keep the fact completely hidden.

She thoroughly enjoyed playing the part for she comes of Irish ancestry herself and she makes the character of plucky little "Pat" shine with wit and sparkling humor. It was this Irish sense of humor which enabled Miss Davies quickly to grasp the amusing angles of the peculiar situation in which Patricia finds herself when she comes to the America of a hundred years ago. The big climax of "Little Old New York" comes when the darling Pat is rescued from a mob of a thousand men who wanted her whipped for a prank she had played on them.

"Little Old New York" was adapted to the screen by Luther Reed. Sidney Olcott directed and Joseph Urban designed the settings. In the great cast are such popular actors of stage and screen as Harrison Ford, Courtenay Foote, Mahlon Hamilton, Sam Hardy, Louis Wolheim, J. M. Kerrigan, Spencer Charters, Norval Keedwell, Gypsy O'Brien, Mary Kennedy, Chas. Judels, Elizabeth Murray and many others.

Two Killed by Toadstools

POISON AFFECTS THREE CONNECTICUT FAMILIES.

Gulfport, Conn., September 19.—The ravaging poison lurking in toadstools claimed one victim here last night, and is threatening to exact a toll of six others, following a party which members of two families attended at the Carrada home here on Sunday evening.

Last night, Rose Carrada, 16-year-old school girl, succumbed to the venomous plant. Other members of her family and their guests at the tragic banquet, totalling six in all, are confined to their beds in serious condition, while physicians are fighting a hard battle against the toxin unawarably absorbed by their systems.

The Carrada family took a trip into the nearby woods Sunday morning and picked several baskets of what they thought were mushrooms. The Deamicos, neighbors, were invited over to supper and a number of the toadstools were eaten.

Bridgeport, Conn., Sept. 19.—Nazarine Santelli, 18, died last night, and his mother, Maria Stantelli, 55, his brother, Mario, 25, and two other members of the family are seriously ill at the Bridgeport Hospital as a result of eating toadstools, which they believed to be mushrooms.

The Test of Time

Time is the great leveller. Time and time alone can truthfully tell the story of service. Any product that stands the exacting test of time must possess merit. Pearlina, the great washing powder has been in use for over forty years, and during all that period its quality has never been excelled. To-day, this reliable old product stands unequalled in the field of its usefulness, and women who were unborn when Pearlina first made its bow to the public, are finding in it that same excellent satisfaction which their Mothers and Grandmothers discovered in the days of long ago. Modern women have changed from the women of forty years ago, but in some things they agree, and every modern housewife agrees that Pearlina is the finest washing powder. Washing clothes or other articles with Pearlina is the easiest way to do the job. Your grocer has Pearlina and sells the big packages for ten cents. Your house should not be without Pearlina.

Britain's Best Fed Miners

To obtain an accurate report on behalf of the Medical Research Council, upon the nutrition of the men and their families, three women scientists have carried out an investigation among housewives in the mining districts of the north of England.

The idea was to test scientifically whether, during a period of trade depression, there was sufficiently good fare on the table, and five typical colliery districts were selected.

These included mining districts round Durham, Claycross, an urban district in Derbyshire, Bolsover, a model mining village with some old houses, Newhoughton, a rural village, and several families in Chesterfield.

In Northumberland eight families at Hartley and Newbiggin-by-the-Sea, two families near Hexham were selected, and a number of families in Lancashire and Stirlingshire were also requested to co-operate.

The housewives kept a record book, made an allowance for the food in hand at the beginning, and that unconsumed at the end, the quantity of waste, and notes were made of the meals taken at home by each member of the family.

Having obtained these facts, the investigators had to work out food values in "calories."

It has been found that the average man requires 3,000 calories (net) for a working day, and when completed the statistics showed that the actual calories derived from the family table ranged from a minimum of 2,330 in Lancashire to a maximum of 2,830 in Durham.

Heights and weights of the children in these areas respectively showed that in Derbyshire the heights were above those for miners' sons and the weights slightly below, except at the ages 2-11. The girls were also slightly below the average in weight, except at the ages 17, 8 and 9.

In Durham the miners' sons were slightly below the average school

Wedding Bells
HERON—GREEN.
A pretty wedding was solemnized in St. Andrew's Presbyterian Church, Moose Jaw, Sask., on Wednesday, Sept. 17th, when Ida Pearl Heron, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. W. P. Heron, Stadacona Street, East, was united in the holy bonds of matrimony with Charles Green, youngest son of Mrs. and the late Wm. Green, formerly of this city. The ceremony was performed by the Rev. J. A. MacKeigan. Mr. W. A. Neal played the Wedding March. The bride was given in marriage by her brother-in-law, Mr. James Neal. The bride was attended by her sister, Miss Verna Heron. Mr. Harry Hall, brother-in-law of the groom, acted as best man. The bride wore a becoming gown of grey and coral tulle with hat to correspond and carried Ophelia roses. The bridesmaid was attractive in a dress of peach-colored voile and carried carnations. Following the ceremony the bridal party went to the home of the bride's sister, Mrs. James Neal, 1145 Second Avenue, North East, where a buffet luncheon was served to relatives and immediate friends of the contracting parties. The groom's gift to the bride was a handsome travelling bag, to the bridesmaid, a bracelet, and to the groomsmen, a gold tie pin. The bride was the recipient of many handsome and costly gifts, showing the esteem in which the young couple are held. During the day many congratulatory messages were received by cablegram and wire. The happy couple left on the evening train for Winnipeg and other eastern points for a short holiday. On their return they will reside at 24 Cecelia Court, Moose Jaw.

Octogenarian
Newfoundlander
Dies in Malden

In the New England Printer for September, record is made of the death of an old Newfoundlander at his home in Malden, Mass., at the ripe age of 84. Robert Burien was born in Carbonear in Dec., 1842, and was the only surviving son of Henry and Martha Burien, formerly of Poole, England.

Mr. Burien, Sr., brought his family to East Boston in 1858, where he engaged in ship-building. Robert was apprenticed to the book-binding business at the age of 16 and in 1867 established himself in that line, in which he continued until the time of his death.

He was a thirty-second degree Mason, and was for forty-five years a member of the Ancient & Honorable Artillery Company of Boston, and for five years a member of the Boston Light Infantry Veteran Association.

At the time of his death he was President of the Bookbinders' Guild of Boston, having held that office for many years.

Mr. Burien leaves a widow (nee Miss Florence E. Witham of Boston) one son, Alfred H., one daughter, Mrs. Alfred C. Smith, and three grandchildren.—Nfld. Weekly.

An Explanation of What Chiropractic Is

FOR THOSE WHO DO NOT UNDERSTAND ITS TRUE MEANING.

By WM. H. MACPHERSON.

A fall occurs in many ways. The fall is a small thing, it happens to thousands. A tumble down a stairway is a small thing, it happens to thousands. A slip on the icy roadway in winter is a small thing, it happens to thousands. A strain or wrench occurs in various ways. The strain or wrench is a small thing, it happens to thousands.

The fall or tumble, the slip, the strain or wrench produces a sub-luxation. The sub-luxation is a small thing. The sub-luxation produces a pressure on a nerve, the pressure cuts off the flow of mental impulses (life force). That is a small thing. That decreased flowing of the life force produces a diseased body and brain. That is a big thing to that man.

WHAT WELL MEN MEAN.

Multiply that sick man by hundreds and you control the physical and mental welfare of a city. Multiply that man by thousands and you shape the physical and mental destiny of a country. Multiply that one vertebral (spinal) column by all of these in the world, and you can see the master key to the sane or insane thoughts and healthy or sick actions of the world.

Every man, woman and child living has a backbone. Every backbone has subluxations. Every subluxation is producing a disease, so the fall or tumble, the slip, the strain or wrench, the subluxation, pressure flow of mental impulses and disease is big enough to control thoughts and actions of a world.

Now comes a man—and any one man is a small thing. This man gives an adjustment, and the adjustment is a small thing. The adjustment replaces the subluxation, and that is a small way. The adjusted subluxation replaces pressure upon nerves, and that is a small thing. The released pressure restores health to a man, and that is a big thing to that man.

Multiply that well man by hundreds and you step up the physical and mental welfare of a city. Multiply that well man by thousands and you increase the efficiency of a country, and you have produced a healthy and better race for posterity. Multiply one Chiropractor by a sufficient number to adjust all the subluxations and you have made sane all the insane; made well all the sick.

CRYING FOR ADJUSTMENTS.

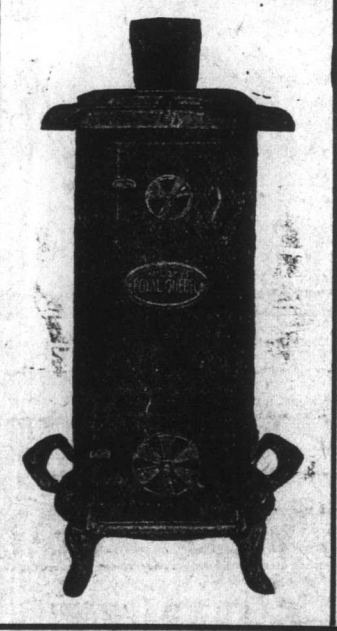

Every disease is crying out for an adjustment. Every adjustment demands the Chiropractor. It makes no difference whether that subluxation occurs in, and the adjustment be given to a male or female, young or old, white or black, on the mountain top or in the valley, in the desert or on a ship, at the North Pole or the Equator.

The Chiropractic message is for the body what the God given message is for the soul. A gospel for the multitudes, for all people, for all colors, for all countries, for all conditions. It brings life easier, it makes life easier. It adds years to life and life to years.

Chiropractic needs followers who have the vision to see the rebuilding and reconstruction of the human race, the right of the sick to get well unrestricted and with the exercise of his own rights. The right of Chiropractic to be handed down throughout the generations in its purity for posterity, that the adjustment of a subluxated vertebra, multiplied means a far more efficient race.

Pearls Suddenly Vanish
Necklace Valued at £68,000 Stolen From American in Paris.

Paris, Sept. 21.—Pearls valued at £68,000 vanished in mysterious fashion from an apartment in a fashionable quarter of Paris while the owner was having a bath a few yards away from the place where they were concealed. The owner is Mrs. Edith Smith, described as beautiful, tall, slight, wealthy, and seven and twenty, who arrived in Paris from New York six weeks ago. Mrs. Smith has a collection of magnificent jewels, including several pearl necklaces. On going out to dine with some American friends, Mrs. Smith wore the pick of her collection. Her necklace was composed of three ropes of handsome pearls. She returned home late in the evening and before going to bed laid the precious necklace under her pillow. Mrs. Smith awoke about 9 o'clock and went to her bathroom, which is situated in the corridor of the flat, some six or seven yards from the door of her bedroom. After taking breakfast and finishing her dressing, she went to her pillow to take the necklace and place it in a box which she keeps in a cupboard. It had vanished. Mrs. Smith called a maid and searched the bed in the hope that the necklace had slipped down, but in vain. It was thought the necklace was stolen between the time Mrs. Smith left her room for the bathroom and the time she returned to it after breakfast. But Mrs. Smith tells the police that the doors of both her bedroom and bathroom were left ajar. She heard no noise, no steps, and she believes that if anyone had entered by the corridor between the two doors she could not have failed to notice the fact.

Richest Man in Canada
IS "TIMBER CHIEF" AT 88.

"If there is one outstanding example of the man who has made a conspicuous success of business without paying much heed to changes brought about by the advancement of industry it is John R. Booth owner of the greatest empire of timber that has ever been held by one man. To-day, at 88, Booth is the richest man in Canada and still the undisputed boss of his vast holdings. The Booth mills have been operated mainly on the basic principles which John R. has adopted as a result of his independent experience of more than sixty years as a lumberman and pulp and paper manufacturer.

There is no mistaking the domination of Booth in the industries bearing his name. He has not only been the planner but the executor of the Booth policies and he takes pride in the knowledge that the tremendous accomplishments of his mills are the result almost solely of his individual genius for organization and getting things done according to his own particular ideas.

"When I want a thing done, I want it done just as I say it should be done; and if my men can't do it that way there are others who can," said Booth in describing one of the principles on which he has acted for years.

This tendency—to insist on bearing sole responsibility for the company's activity and to refuse to distribute his authority among subordinates—has been regarded by some as a failing. However, it is a pardonable fault, if fault it is. For more than half a century Booth was forced to rely entirely on his own determination, courage, mammoth industry as a monument to and business sagacity, and as a result his success.—Charles Lugin Shaw in that policy he managed to amass Forbes Magazine, (N.Y.) not only the greatest individual fortune in Canada, but to establish a

A Monster Intestine
In a singular case of congenital malformation revealed in a French hospital by the death of a boy of 15, two loops of the colon, or large intestine, were found to fill the cavity of the abdomen and thorax almost completely. The larger loop was 20 inches long, 10 inches broad and 22 inches in circumference, and contained about 80 pounds of fecal matter with much gas. The heart, lungs and liver were compressed into a narrow space of about 3 inches in the upper part of the thorax, only the spleen having a position nearly normal.

Arctic Spring Ideal for Flight Across Pole, Bartlett Finds

Explorer Makes Deep Study During 47 Days in Ice—Will Make Air Cruise Next Year if Money is Available.

The Arctic regions hold no invisible perils for aircraft explorations but present ideal flying conditions, especially during the months of May and June, according to Capt. Robert A. Bartlett, famous explorer, who has just returned to Washington, after having been marooned in the ice of the north of Alaska for 47 days on board the coast guard cutter Bear.

Capt. Bartlett was commissioned by the National Geographic Society to gather data in the far North in preparation for future aerial explorations of the Arctic regions. To-day he laid before the Society in black and white proof of his conclusions from observations of winds and temperatures that no better flying conditions could be found in the United States than in the area from which he has just returned.

The captain, who was the companion of Admiral Peary on his successful Polar trip, also announced he would continue to carry out plans for a drift across the Pole from Alaska to Spitzbergen. Arrangements for this greatest of Polar expeditions were nearing completion about a year ago and he was scheduled to sail from Seattle in July of this year. He was forced to abandon his project when the Navy decided to send the Shenandoah over a similar route and he was called to his commission as a lieutenant commander in the Navy to assist in preparing for the flight.

Money Needed For Trip.

When the trip of the Shenandoah was cancelled for this year, Capt. Bartlett again gave consideration to his Arctic drift and has worked it up to a point where he is confident he and his little party of about ten men will be able to leave Seattle next June. Money is the only objective between him and the trip, but he is confident the necessary amount—$150,000—will be at hand in a short time.

Capt. Bartlett joined the Bear at her port, San Francisco, May 1. Crusing up the coast, the Bear called at Lady Smith, British Columbia, and took on supplies at Seattle. The next port of call was Unalaska, where more coal was taken on board and then began the northern cruise to Nome, Alaska. About 50 or 60 miles south of Nome the Bear was caught in the ice and a southwest wind kept the ice closed. Through the Bering Strait to the Arctic the ice carried the little ship and then in a northerly direction and east. The ship managed to manoeuvre out of the ice at Kotzebue Sound, to the north of Alaska, and fight her way back south. This trip, surrounded by ice, consumed 47 days, and, aside from losing two propeller blades, the Bear didn't suffer a scratch according to Capt. Bartlett.

Experience A Plein.

During the 47 days the Bear was in the ice Capt. Bartlett was on a picnic—so ideal were the conditions for making observations. Every minute of the time he was at work, he said. With a dredge he gathered up the fish and flower life on the ocean floor; with a tide pole, furnished him by the Coast and Geodetic Survey, he studied the currents and the tide; with an anemometer, loaned by the Navy Department, he learned the velocity of the winds, and with thermometers and barometers he recorded the meteorological conditions. His conclusions from these observations are that the temperature of the water and air are about freezing, with little variation; the velocity of the wind never went beyond 12 miles; there were no sudden storms and very little precipitation.

Capt. Bartlett also brought back with him several species of fish unknown to him, and specimens of plant life at the bottom of the ocean. This acquisition is regarded as being of great importance to the fish industry, for it will determine what the fish of the Arctic ate, whether they are food for human consumption or food for other fish. The tropics have been explored thoroughly in this respect, but little is known of the fish life in the North.

Although 50 years ago, the Bear to-day is a better ship than 30 years ago, Capt. Bartlett said. "They talk about taking her out of the service—why, she's good for 10 more years. Capt. Cochran has taken good care of her; he likes her and he is of the old school and knows how to handle such ships." Ever since 1883 the Bear has made an annual cruise far beyond the white man's frontiers to deliver mail, supplies and to administer America's laws.

Swedes Have Cut Timber for 1,000 Years

STOCKHOLM, Sept. 10 (A.P.)—Sweden's work of forest conservation has managed to keep the lead in the neck-to-neck race with the rapidly increasing output of industrial products, according to a governmental report in which the statement is made that Sweden has "an inexhaustible gold mine in her forests."

This assurance is regarded as of great importance to the nation, since about 60 per cent. of its exports consist of lumber, wood pulp, paper and other forest products. In 1923 these exports alone amounted to a value of about $188,000,000, and in the 12 months ended last June, upwards of $19,000,000 of Swedish wood pulp was shipped to paper mills in the United States.

The forests in Sweden, which have been drawn upon for commercial purposes for at least 1,000 years, now cover about 52 per cent. of the total principally of spruce and pine.

Heavy-Handed Diners Wreck Table Ware at Wembley

LONDON, Sept. 13 (A.P.)—The average daily crowd of 70,000 people eating in the numerous restaurants at the Wembley Exhibition are responsible for the smashing of 30,000 pieces of crockery every six days. In an average week the breakages are 761 dozen cups, 345 dozen saucers, 473 dozen plates and 774 dozen miscellaneous pieces, according to the firm which has the contract for feeding the visitors.

These figures do not include glasses broken in the drinking saloons, and it is stated that it is no uncommon thing in a busy week for one bar to smash 1,500 glasses. As there are some 54 bars in the exhibition, it is apparent that the number of glasses smashed since the exhibition opened in April must be about 700,000.

Zita and All Her Children

GUESTS ABOARD GERMAN CRUISER.

Bilbao, Spain, Sept. 10.—The German cruiser Hannover came into the port of Bilbao recently and the commander, Baron von Freyberg, invited Zita, former Empress of Austria, to visit the vessel and bring her children. She did, and came with all eight of them, including Archduke Carl, the eldest boy. She is living at Lequeitio, not far from here.

The children scampered all over the vessel and had a thoroughly good time. Otto spent hours in the engine room.
A Hungarian monk of the Benedicline order is here supervising Otto's education. The boy is being instructed along modern lines, without political prejudices.

The only revenue the former empress enjoys to-day is derived from her Hungarian estate at Raasdorf. She would like to employ a German tutor for Otto, but cannot afford the expense involved.

Relationships Complicated

BY FATHER AND SON WEDDINGS. MUNICH.—(A. P.)—The recent weddings of Karl Braun, 25 years old, and his father have started an endless chain of relationships which has gone beyond the reach of genealogists and culminated in Braun becoming his father's father-in-law.

Young Braun married a widow of 45 with grown-up children. Shortly after his father, 50 years of age, married the 25-year-old daughter of his son's wife. Genealogists assure that as a result of the two weddings young Braun became his father's father-in-law and that his wife's daughter became her mother's mother-in-law and the step-mother of her own step-father.
