ONE'S loyalty to the town one lives in, is always to be commended and is invariably admired. Local pride is a great business builder and attracts worthy citizens to the place. Knocking a town and its enterprising leaders is a sure way to give the place a black eye. Every resident should be a practical booster for the town which gives him a residence.

We should say good things of municipal effort. Commend the tidy streets, the attractive homes, the enterprising business men. We should support our public institutions and especially the efforts to provide a liberal education for every child within our corporation limits, and as good an education for the poor man's family as can afford. Be a booster, not a knocker.

DANGER PERIOD OF WOMANS' LIFE FROM 45 to 50

Interesting Experience of Two Women—Their Statements Worth Reading.

White Oak, Ont.—"At Change of Life when doctors could do no more and I was given up by my friends, Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound came to the front and did wonders for me. I had been having female troubles for years, my head troubled me severely at times, I had bearing down pains and backache and I was very anaemic from excessive flowing. I recommend your Compound highly and do all I can to advertise it as a genuine woman's medicine."—Mrs. SYLVESTER MANNING, White Oak, Ontario.

The Case of Mrs. Kirilin.

Circleville, Ohio.—"I can truthfully say that I never had anything do me so much good during Change of Life as Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. Before I had taken one half a bottle of it I began to feel better, and I have continued taking it. My health is better than it has been for several years. If all women would take it they would escape untold pain and misery at this time of life."—Mrs. ALICE KIRILIN, 358 W. Mill St., Circleville, Ohio.

The Change of Life is one of the most critical periods of a woman's existence. At such times women may rely upon Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

Learn To Laugh.

Learn to laugh. A good laugh is better than medicine. Learn how to tell a story. A well told story is a welcome sunbeam in a sick room. The world is too busy to care for your ills and sorrows. Learn to keep your own troubles to yourself. Learn to stop croaking. If you cannot see any good in the world, keep the bad to yourself. Learn to hide your pains and cares under pleasant smiles. No one cares whether you have the earache, headache or rheumatism. Don't cry. Tears do well enough in novels but are out of place in real life. Learn to meet your friends with a smile. A good humored man or woman is always welcome, but the dyspeptic is not wanted anywhere and is a nuisance as well. Above all, give pleasure. Lose no chance of giving pleasure. You will pass through the world but once. Any good thing, therefore, that you can show to any human being, you had better do now; do not defer or neglect it, for you will not pass this way again.

It is probable that no institution in the Dominion of Canada comes into touch with so large a number of persons who have made imprudent investments as does the Annuities Branch of the Post Office Department. It is understood that hardly a day passes that several communications are not received in which the writers bewail the loss of money invested in some scheme that promised them phenomenal dividends or returns. One of the saddest of these cases is that of a lady who about three years ago enquired as to the cost of an Annuity of $600. The information was promptly given to her, but the opportunity to purchase was not embraced. She believed she could invest her money to better advantage, and that by the time she attained her 55th birthday she would not only have enough to pay for the Annuity outright, but a little fortune besides. This week another letter has been received from the same lady, who, by the way, is now over fifty years of age, which furnishes the sequel to the story. She says:—"I have spent my savings on worthless stocks, believing, firmly believing, that I would soon be rich. I would not listen to advice, convinced that I knew best. I wonder at my foolishness now, to waste my all in schemes I knew nothing about. For some time I had a large salary and gave to certain companies every month. Now that they have turned out worthless, I see how crazy and wrong I was. I am sorry, if ever anyone was sorry, for what I have done, but nothing will bring what I have wasted." Her case is pathetic one, and her experience has been costly, but it is the common experience of many who have tried Get-Rich-Quick schemes. The Annuities System does not promise to give something for nothing, and no benefits can be received which are not paid for; the Government of Canada behind it, greater than can be obtained from the investment of the same amounts in any other manner. "World's Work" says: "It is the Savings Bank, the Insurance Company and the Government Bond rolled into one in a shape adapted to the smallest of depositors." Your Postmaster will furnish you literature descriptive of this marvelous system of investment, or you may obtain the information desired by writing to the Superintendent of Annuities, Ottawa, to whom your letter will go free of postage.

THE ROCK PTARMIGAN. A Bird of Storms and Ice, Raw Mists and Bleak Winds. In order to make the acquaintance of the ptarmigan it is necessary either to journey into the snows and ice of the far north or to climb up to the very highest glacier valleys among the frozen peaks of the Rockies or Cascades, where circumpolar conditions are reproduced. While this curious bird is essentially a subarctic type, it is occasionally found among the isolated fields of eternal snow as far south as Colorado and northern New Mexico. The rock ptarmigan is a bird of storms and ice and raw mists and bleak winds, in the summer gray as the rocks among which he lives, in winter white as the whirling snows in the midst of which he survives after every other feathered living thing, save only the fearless eagle, has fled to the lower valleys. His brother, the willow ptarmigan, lives lower down by 500 or 1,000 feet, among the dwarfed shrubs which mark the upper edges of tree life, and, while similar in size and structure, is of a less somber plumage and more friendly disposition than the ghostly gray specter of the upper world, the rock ptarmigan. The males of the willow ptarmigan especially are beautiful birds, brownish gray upon the backs and wings, with rich reddish brown throats almost chestnut in color and dazzling white breasts.—Country Life in America.

OBITUARY.

[From the Granum, Alta., Post.] MRS. G. H. McLACHLAN.—In the passing of Mrs. G. H. McLachlan, whose sudden death stirred the heart of the community, we have suffered a distinct loss. It is personality, when all is said and done, that enriches any place. So long as we live, we live by intercourse, and if in any place there are those whose very presence makes us feel better, our dwelling there is intensified in value. Often we do not fully appreciate what this means to us until one or the other of these valued souls is removed. It is then that we are made keenly sensible of the fact that we cannot greet them as of yore, cannot be brightened or warmed by their earth-fire of thought and sympathy, their lives have kindled. To say that this is the feeling aroused by the untimely death of the deceased lady, is only to pay her the highest kind of tribute. It may with all sincerity be said of our late friend that, though passed from mortal view, she shall "live again in lives made better by her presence." Mrs. McLachlan was born forty-eight years ago in the village of Warkworth, Ont., where her early life was spent. At eight years of age she united with the Methodist church on profession of faith, and has given ardent and cheerful service to the cause of Christ since that time. Her gift of song which endeared her to many in this and other places was enriched by cultivation and for some time she was soloist in one of the larger choirs of the east. Mrs. McLachlan was married Aug. 4th, 1891, and lived with her husband most of their wedded life in the east, sometimes accompanying him on evangelistic missions, in which work he was still engaged when he came west nine years ago. After Mr. McLachlan was compelled through nervous strain to give up his work as an evangelist, they homesteaded near Granum and the deceased lady has since, through church and social activities, been brought much into contact with the lives of the people here. Her bright manner and sweet courageous spirit will remain with us. Her illness was brief and her passing which occurred on April 10th was unexpected, but the end was one of calmness and peace.

It HAS MANY OFFICERS.—Before the German soldier starts on a long march he rubs his feet with tallow, for his first care is to keep his feet in good condition. If he knew that Dr. Thomas' Electric Oil, for when the Oil is in the pain is out. It is brought relief to thousands who without it would be indeed friendless.

BRETON PEASANTS.

They Always Treat a Stranger With Generous Hospitality. In Brittany all peasants carry their own knives, and, as for forks, they have no use for them. George Wharton Edwards tells in "Brittany and the Bretons" of a visit to an inn where he met with the proverbial Breton hospitality. An old withered Breton woman sat at the fireside busily knitting at a jersey of blue wool, and three men sat at a table playing some sort of game with dominoes. The men gave no apparent heed to our entrance, but I knew we were being discussed in their patois. Thus it is throughout this strange land of Brittany. One may travel from end to end away from the large cities and everywhere meet with the same hospitality. The peasant will willingly share with you what he has in the cupboard and will not ask for pay. I left an offering of silver upon the window sill among the balls of woolen yarn. I noticed that the act was not lost upon the old Bretonne, who when she caught my eye gave me a charming courtesy and a smiling "Merci, m'sieur."

Violins Old and New. There is a general impression that very old violins and violoncellos are much superior in tone to similar instruments of modern construction. The point was debated by a number of Paris musicians, who decided in favor of the modern instrument. Six ancient violoncellos were chosen, including a Stradivarius, a Theobler, a Cappa, a Pressenda and a Guarnerius, together with six modern instruments. These were played alternately by Senor Casais, who was hidden from sight, the instruments being indicated to the jury by a number and marks awarded according to beauty of tone. The modern instruments aggregated 1,484 marks and the ancient instruments only 883, although the six ancient cellos represented a value of $2,000 and the modern ones $100.—London Express.

A Chinese Columbus. According to a Chinese chronicler, Hui Sen, who lived in the sixth century of the Christian era, North America was known to the Chinese under the name of Fusang or Fusu. It was said to be a continent lying 6,500 miles to the east of Asia. The chronicler states that in the year 453 five Buddhist priests sailed from China for Fusu, landing in Mexico, where they taught their religion to the natives, built temples and set up enormous statues of their gods all over the country. Traces of a Mongolian civilization have been found in Mexico. There exists in particular a statue of a god resembling not the Aztec god, but one of the grotesque deities of the Chinese.—Harper's.

"Whatever his failings may be," he said, "he thinks of more little ways of being helpful than any other person I know. One day I was with him at a ferryhouse where a crowd was waiting for the boat. Suddenly he left me and walked toward a woman who was struggling with a three-year-old and a number of parcels. Our friend raised his hat, spoke to the woman, and then I saw him grapple her parcels. Soon he returned to my side, and I asked him, 'What was it?' 'Oh, nothing,' he said carelessly. 'She had too many parcels. I put a rubber band around them and bunched them into one.' I was disgusted with myself that I had not thought of that simple little expedient for helping the woman, and ever since that time I have had much respect for our friend, although I can't indorse all of his ways."—New York Press.

BLOOD MONEY IN PERSIA.

Curious Laws in That Country Governing the Crime of Murder. A Persian murderer may pay blood money in lieu of his own life. The manner in which this is calculated is one of the most complicated things about Persian law. A woman is worth only half a man, and so a man cannot be executed for the murder of a mere woman. A husband whose wife has been killed by his steward was obliged first to pay half the steward's blood price to the man's relations, and thus the steward, having been reduced to the value of half a man, equal to one whole woman, was legally executed. From this principle it follows that a man who has killed two women can be condemned to death, as equality is not infringed. If the murder of a woman be committed by several men the friends, upon whose initiative alone any proceedings can take place, can demand the death of but one of the murderers and always by paying the difference in the price of blood. On the same ground if two women murder a man the death of both can be demanded. Evidently one could make a considerable fortune in Persia by getting one's men folk murdered by a woman apiece. Much the same plan is carried out in the case of minor injuries, with this curious addition—that the part of the body paid for is considered to be the property of the one who pays the blood money.—London Times.

SAVED BY A SONG.

When Santley and His Party Faced Death in Mexico. Few people are aware that on one occasion a timely song saved Sir Charles Santley's life. The famous baritone was one of a party traveling under military escort through a bandit infested region in Mexico when the guards suddenly bolted, leaving the travelers to the mercy of a band of booty hunters. These desperadoes, finding the spoil less valuable than they expected, decided to slay their captives and fare forth on another foray. An inspiration came to Santley. Surrounded by friends and foes, he commenced an aria and sang in his own inimitable way. As the notes rippled forth on the clear mountain air the bandits' faces lighted up with pleasure, and at the finish the leader expressed his delight and asked the senior to sing again. Santley saw his chance and seized it. He inquired if he might sing for the liberty of the little party, and a reluctant consent was given. For several hours during that never to be forgotten night he enthralled his captors with a generous program of exquisite melodies. The next day the bandits tendered payment by taking the whole party down the mountain side and setting them free. Notwithstanding later triumphs Sir Charles Santley never surpassed that one.—London Graphic.

Mrs. Geo. Kaupp
States That Parisian Sage is Best Hair Tonic.

"I had a bad case of dandruff. My scalp was full of dandruff and it came out thick and scaly. My hair came out badly; often I nearly cried on account of losing my pretty head of hair. I heard of PARISIAN SAGE and only had to use two bottles before the hair stopped coming out, the scalp became clean, and all the dandruff disappeared. The hair became silky and one big reason that I liked PARISIAN SAGE was that it kept the hair smooth, silky, and clean with no traces of stickiness. I believe this tonic to be the best on the market as there has been no return of dandruff, or hair falling out whatever. I am glad to publicly endorse the use of PARISIAN SAGE. I have often endorsed its use and am glad to do it."—33 E. Bond St., Corry, Pa.

PARISIAN SAGE, the delightful hair dressing and beautifier sold by T. B. Taylor & Son, and druggists everywhere. Guaranteed for falling hair, dandruff and scalp itch. Large bottle 50 cents.

DIPHTHERIA.
Early Diagnosis and Quick Use of Antitoxin Imperative.

Diphtheria, which was formerly one of the most fatal of the diseases of children, has been robbed by antitoxin of much of its death dealing power. Nevertheless it is still a scourge of childhood.

It is an infectious and contagious disease that occurs for the most part in children, although adults also may suffer. It is due to the presence of a bacillus that lodges and develops on the mucous membrane of the respiratory passages, where it causes inflammation and the growth of fibrous, feltlike sheet which covers the surface. This sheet is the so-called false membrane, the visible evidence of the disease, in itself not dangerous except when it forms in the larynx. In that case it threatens death from choking. The real disease is the constitutional affection—fever, delirium and depression, due to poisoning by the bacillary excretions, the toxin absorbed into the blood from the mucous membranes where the bacilli have lodged.

Diphtheria is one of the most contagious of diseases, although, as in the case with other similar affections, not all who are exposed suffer. It prevails chiefly where filth exists and where the air is charged with emanations from decaying matter, with sewer gas, illuminating gas or exhalations from many persons crowded together in unventilated rooms.

Authorities formerly held that the germs could linger for a long time in carpets, upholstered toys, especially woolly lambs and Teddy bears, books, and so forth, but that is now doubted by many sanitarians, who contend that disinfection of the room in which a child has been sick with diphtheria or disinfection of his playthings is unnecessary. Still, so long as a doubt exists it is obviously safer to disinfect. It is quite certain, however, that cats and dogs and probably birds, such as parrots, may catch diphtheria from a sick child and so assist in the spread of the disease.

The one sovereign remedy for diphtheria is antitoxin, but it must be given early to be certainly curative. For this reason an early diagnosis is imperative. The physician should be called at once to any child who has a sore throat if his throat is seen to be red or covered with whitish dots or streaks or patches of membrane.

Early treatment not only removes the danger of suffocation from the growth of membrane in the larynx, but also makes much less probable the occurrence of the paralysis that is often such a distressing sequel of neglected or tardily treated diphtheria.

Bone and Strength.

The wonderful power of bone structure has been tested scientifically to show how a bone bears strain. A very small bone will hold thirty-three pounds in suspension without breaking, while a piece of the best oak of the same thickness will hold only twenty-two pounds. The bone is therefore half as strong again as the solid oak, thus showing that nature is economical in the weight given to bones, making them hollow and at the same time making them stronger than if they were solid and much heavier. This principle has been recognized in mechanics, engineers using hollow steel tubes instead of solid to meet great strain.

Good Reason.

"Judge," said the caller, "I wish you'd tell me what I have to do to get my name changed."
"What is your present name?"
"Bennet Lemuel Zebulon Bubb."
"You wish to have 'Bubb' changed to something else?"
"No, I want a new one entirely, something like William Thompson or George Jones—something short and easy, you know."
"Your objection to your name, then, is that it is too long, I presume. Why can't you just use your initials?"
"That only makes it worse, judge. Whenever I give my name as B. L. Z. Bubb somebody snickers."

Salt Sold by Postmasters.

At Beviex (Old Bex), among the Alps, the railroad passes the rock salt mines from which the Swiss Government procures most of the salt whose sale is a Government monopoly and often sold only by the local postmaster, who deals not only in stamps, but in salt. At this point a toothed rail is brought into play, and the gradient rapidly increases, as the cars pass through woods of walnuts and chestnuts, here an important item of the diet and income of their owners.—National Magazine.

SHOOTING PAINS IN SIDE, ARMS, BACK

Prove the Presence of Rheumatic Virus, Which Is Cured Quickest by Nerviline—Rub It In.

Pains in the muscles, in the sides, the back, the neck, or the chest—they always carry with them great discomfort. If the inflammation is severe the pain will be intense. If allowed to continue they are dangerous. Nothing so quickly cures local inflammation and drives away pain as Nerviline. Nerviline does this because it penetrates so deeply. Nerviline is not only powerful, but soothing. By relieving congestion it cures pain. It does this always. It cannot fail because it is a true antidote for pain. You can scarcely find anybody that will not tell you wonderful things about the pain-curing power of Nerviline. Remember, that there is not an ache or pain that Nerviline will not cure immediately. Nerviline is an anchor of health in every household.

Refuse anything that may be offered you instead of Nerviline, which is guaranteed for rheumatism, neuralgia, sciatica, lumbago, and all muscular aches and pains.

Large bottles, 50c; trial size, 25c. at all dealers, or The Catarrhose Company, Kingston, Ont.

Lambton Farms Wanted.
About Farm Labor Also.

A third list of farms for sale in Lambton County will be published by the Lambton Publicity and County Improvement Association on July 1. Farms that appeared on the previous list will appear on this list if request be sent the secretary before that date and price of farm stated. These lists will have wide circulation at the Canadian National Exposition, Toronto, and other places of concourse.

Those who have farms for sale will confer a favor by sending a full description, the price, the post office address of owner to the undersigned, in order that the parties inquiring may be brought into personal touch with those who have land to sell.

There will be no charge or commission of any kind, and the parties furnishing descriptions are not bound in any way. Give details as to the situation, acreage, roads, improvements, soil, distance from churches, schools, towns, railways, telephone service, etc., etc., that would be of interest to prospective purchasers at a distance. When sale of farm takes place, please notify the secretary so that it may be struck off the list. Parties offering large farms, suitable for fruit growing, would do well to offer them in lots of 15 to 50 acres; if for small fruits in even smaller lots. The Lambton Publicity and County Improvement Association exists for the purpose of advertising the agricultural advantages of and assisting to improve agricultural conditions in Lambton county, and for no other purposes. It consists largely of the members of the county council, and the expense of advertising is paid by the county.

The information is wanted for the purpose of placing a list of farms in the hands of those who wish to buy, and who have written in answer to general advertisements and descriptions of Lambton which have been published in the various newspapers of Canada, the United States and Britain.

The Association also wishes to find the demand for farm laborers in the county, with a view to supplying it. If interested answer these at once:—
Do you want farm laborers? How many? What yearly wages? Married or single men? If married have you a house available in which he might live? Any suitable employment in your vicinity for grown-up sons or daughters he may have? When would you like term of work to begin?
Add any other information or remarks.

A strawberry social under the auspices of Christ church, Sutorville, will be held at the home of Mr. Richard Williamson, on Monday evening, June 24th. Particulars later.

Workmen are busy pushing along the new residences of Samuel Johnston and Angus Fisher and Mr. Marwick has about completed the brick work on Eli Taylor's house.

There are now twenty-nine phones from twelve sideroad to the town line, and the service is rapidly expanding. Keep your ear to the phone, Mr. Editor, and you will get all the news, and more.

Rev. S. P. Irwin has organized a Women's Guild in connection with Christ church and the first regular meeting was held Tuesday at the home of Mrs. J. W. Lucas, who entertained the members in her usual hospitable manner.

Richard Williamson, local agent for the Dominion Sugar Co., has secured an abundance of labor for to handle the three hundred acres of beets sown in this vicinity. They are a fine, industrious lot of men and will take good care of the most promising crop of beets ever seen in this, the best beet section in all Canada.

There will be drill at Public School grounds on Friday and Tuesday evenings next. Uniforms will be issued. A full attendance requested.

The erection of an eight thousand dollar armory and drill hall at Watford will commence in July just as soon as the annual training camps are over and it is up to the citizens of Watford and surrounding country to show their appreciation of the liberality of the Government by turning out two good strong companies for the annual training camp.

Watford is to be congratulated on having the services of Sgt. Instructor Owens, late of the Scot's Guards. He is undoubtedly one of the finest drill masters of the British Army and it is a treat to see and hear him drill the boys. Citizens are invited to be present at the drills.

The Squinting Rajah

A Tale of the Far East
By CLARISSA MACKIE
Copyright by American Press Association, 1911.

"This is a story that Ananias Silne told me," warned Captain Barnabas Fish as he skillfully mended a net on the silver sands of Quince harbor; "therefore, ma'am, I'm not responsible for its veracity."

"Never mind," I assured him eagerly. "Of course I know they can't be true. Nevertheless they are interesting if one can separate the truth from the fiction."

"Miss Telham," said the captain, turning his twinkling eye upon me, "fiction ain't no word to use in connection with my old messmate Ananias Silne. He's just a plain and simple liar, but every once in awhile, like most liars, he swings the pendulum so far to leeward that back she comes and runs afoul of the truth. At such times Ananias gets into heaps of trouble."

"Now, the story I have in mind is about the time Ananias got into trouble with the rajah of Raddabar, out in India. You wouldn't think the mate of a peaceful trading ship like the old Indus was would be mixing in such high society as Indian princes, but when Ananias got started on an adventure there was no knowing where he'd stop—not at princes anyway. Likely it would have to be kings or queens or big bugs of some extra high standing."

"Well, we had left Calcutta and was running along down the coast with the Jajpur hills in the background when Ananias came aft and told me that the water butts had sprung a leak and that we would have to put ashore and get another supply of water."

"I won't go into the details of how this happened, ma'am, for it was all most unseamanlike, and it had never happened to me before. Our ship's carpenter repaired the damages, and all we had to do was to tie up at the right place and try and find some pure water, and in India, ma'am, that's no easy matter."

"At last we came to a fair sized village where the natives didn't seem any more than naturally curious at sight of us, and Ananias went ashore with some men to have a powwow with the headman."

"How could you talk to that headman, Ananias? I asked him. 'I didn't know you could speak Hindustani.'"

"I don't wear all my accomplishments on my sleeves, skipper," he says excitedly.

"Suppose you talk a little Hindustani to me," I halted him.

"Then Ananias rattled off a lot of queer gibberish that sounded as if he had swallowed all his teeth and was laughing about it. 'You see?' he ended up just like a Chinese laundryman."

"I understand," I says to him grimly. "I understand from what you say, Ananias Silne, that you're throwing me a game of bluff about talking to the headman. He looks too intelligent to converse in any langwidge like that. Whatever he told you about the water you go and do it. I can stand anything except water from the Ganges. If you're going through the jungle you better take guns."

"Ananias didn't say a word, but he and the men he picked out hustled around and got the water casks and provisions and some guns and ammunition, and away they went in the bullock cart, with the headman of the village lashing a long whip and yelling at the bullocks in a langwidge that didn't sound like the one Ananias made up."

"It was the next morning before Ananias and his party came back, and they were hurrying some, ma'am, I can tell you. Ananias was in the lead, running for his life, and behind him came his four seamen, and back of them were three of the tallest, longest legged Hindus I ever set eyes upon, and I've seen a sight of 'em in my day."

"I had a boat at the jetty to meet 'em, but I declare if the three Hindus didn't get there at the same time, and all tumbled in with our men, and so they were all brought aboard and came before me."

"What's all this? I demanded of Ananias."

"I'll explain, skipper, if you'll send my men below for a bite to eat and a little rest," he says slyly. And so I sent the four seamen below, and that left Ananias standing there, looking scared and mad at the same time, while the three Hindus stood just behind him, staring slyly at me."

"Explain, then," I snapped out.

"Ananias took a chew of tobacco and folded his arms. 'It happened this way, skipper,' he began. And then he launched out in a wonderful tale of how they had reached the shore of the lake where the rajah's palace was situated when the rajah was taking his pleasure in a boat on the lake."

"It seems he didn't understand the dialect that Ananias used. Of course Ananias told me he had a personal interview with the big man, and he ordered Ananias to be brought before him the next morning for examination. So that night the men from the Indus camped on the shore of the lake, and the rajah's servants made a prisoner of Ananias Silne and carried him across the lake to a dungeon in the palace, where they kept him until the next morning."

"Then he says he was brought before the rajah with other prisoners, and examined, and he said it would have made your blood run cold to see the offhand way in which that despot—'desperate despot' was what Ananias called him—would just listen to what the prisoners had to say and then nod carelessly to one or another of the jailers and they would be carried off to be put to death or torture or released."

"Ananias said that the rajah was the most awful looking critter he ever set eyes upon—a giant in size with woolly hair and squint eyes, and it was the squint eyes that caused all the trouble. It seems the rajah was so cross-eyed that the jailers would get all mixed up on the sentences and half the prisoners got the wrong sentences. It was all right for some, but bad for others. So Ananias says when it came his turn to plead he got up and told the rajah all about the Indus, and how her water casks had sprung a leak, and that we wanted fresh water from the everlasting waterfalls, and that we was citizens of the U. S. A. The rajah just smiled and said it was all right and he could have all the water he wanted as long as the waterfalls lasted, and then he nodded one way and his eyes got so horribly squinty and crossed just then that the executioner made a grab for Ananias saying the rajah had looked at him and the rajah was to busy to interfere, so they hauled Ananias off to put him to death."

"He says he got away and swum ashore and roused our four men, and they all cut and run for the Indus after three of the rajah's men chasing after them, and here was Ananias and here was the three men, starting borrow struck just as if they had understood every word of what my first mate had said, and they didn't believe a word of it."

"Then one of the three Hindus spoke up politely, and what he said would have flabbergasted you, ma'am, for he spoke in English. Says he: 'Sahib captain, this man speaks lies whenever his mouth opens and he has called our prince by evil names and with a false tongue. We have been ordered to bring him back to the palace that our prince may examine him.'"

"Of course I wasn't surprised to hear that Ananias had been drawing the long bow as I could see that he was pretty much chapfallen to think he'd been wasting all that breath before these Hindus who could speak his langwidge better than he could. I just called the second mate to command the Indus, and, taking a fresh supply of men, I started with the whole lot for the rajah's palace."

"At last we arrived at the palace, and Ananias was right about that part of it. He always did mix a little truth in with his falsifying. It was on an island in the middle of a lake, and I could see waterfalls here and there among the hills."

"We all got into a big barge and were rowed across the lake to the palace and hustled into the audience room where the rajah appeared in all his glory."

"When he smiled at Ananias that cheerful prevaricator just hauled in his tops'ls and looked down at the floor and I don't wonder, for that rajah turned out to be one of the handsomest men I ever saw in all my days, and his eyes were as straight as yours, ma'am. That part about his being squint eyed was all a yarn of my first mate's."

"It seems that the rajah of Raddabar had been educated in England, and he talked with me quite a spell in a free and easy manner. He told me that his men had found Ananias and his four mates stealing fruit from the palace gardens, and for that reason he had arrested him. He escaped all right, and the rajah's servants had given chase and caught him on board the Indus."

"The rajah of Raddabar was a gentleman after all, and he laughed and made a joke of Ananias and his story of the 'squint eyed rajah.' He pretended he wanted to buy Ananias for his chief story teller, kind of a court fool, he explained, with a twinkle in those straight, handsome eyes of his, and poor Ananias hung his head and looked mighty scared, for the rajah pretended to offer me all kinds of rich jewels in exchange for the critter, and I pretended to bargain for him and then put the matter off until the next time Ananias told a big yarn."

"So I insisted on Ananias paying for the fruit he had stolen, and he apologized to the rajah as decently as his kind can apologize to somebody who has done them a good turn, and then as the rajah had made us welcome to all the water we wanted, we all fell to and filled up our casks and away we went back to the Indus with some presents that 'desperate despot' had showered on us."

"Of course I sent a special messenger back to the rajah with some presents from the Indus stores, and then we histed sail and away we went homeward bound."

"And what did Ananias have to say when it was all over?" I asked with interest.

"Why, Ananias recovered his nerve after we got out of sight of the Jaypur hills, and he came to me and told me another yarn about his having sunstroke when he got to the lake and he didn't rightly remember what happened after that."

"I looked him in the eye and says I, 'Ananias Silne, you may not rightly remember what happened, but there's plenty that does, and I want to remind you that there berth is still waiting for the court fool!'"

No Man is Stronger Than His Stomach

A strong man is strong all over. No man can be strong who is suffering from weak stomach with its consequent indigestion, or from some other disease of the stomach and its associated organs, which impairs digestion and nutrition. For when the stomach is weak or diseased there is a loss of the nutrition contained in food, which is the source of all physical strength. When a man "doesn't feel just right," when he doesn't sleep well, has an uncomfortable feeling in the stomach after eating, is languid, nervous, irritable and despondent, he is losing the nutrition needed to make strength.

Such a man should use Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery. It cures diseases of the stomach and other organs of digestion and nutrition. It enriches the blood, invigorates the liver, strengthens the kidneys, nourishes the nerves, and so GIVES HEALTH AND STRENGTH TO THE WHOLE BODY.

BOSTON HARBOR FROZE.

But That Didn't Keep the Britannia From Sailing on Time.

Boston harbor froze over in January of 1844, and the advertised sailing of the Britannia, then in dock, seemed surely to be impossible. But the merchants of Boston would not have it so. They met and voted to cut a way, at their own expense, through the ice, that the steamer might sail practically on time.

The contract for cutting the necessary channels was given to merchants engaged, like Frederick Tudor, in the export of ice, but not ice cut from the harbor. Their task was to cut within the space of three days a channel about ten miles long. For tools they had the best machinery used in cutting fresh water ice, and horsepower was employed. The ice was from six to twelve inches in thickness.

As the Advertiser of Feb. 2, 1844, described the scene: "A great many persons have been attracted to our wharves to witness the operations and the curious spectacle of the whole harbor frozen over, and the ice has been covered by skaters, sleds and even sleighs. Tents and booths were erected upon the ice, and some parts of the harbor bore the appearance of a Russian holiday scene."

On Feb. 3 the work was done, and the Britannia, steaming slowly through the lane of open water, lined on either side by thousands of cheering spectators, made her way to the sea.

THE HOUSE OF COMMONS.

It Has Frequently Expelled Members Legally Qualified to Sit.

The assumption made in more than one daily journal that the house of commons cannot expel a member who is "legally" qualified to sit is not warranted by precedent, the only authority to which the commons bow, says an English writer.

In the eighteenth century the south sea bubble caused many expulsions, although the members' defense had not been heard in the law courts. One of the victims was Chancellor of the Exchequer Aislabie, credited with having bagged £250,000 from the public. In addition to expulsion, he was sent to the Tower and ordered to refund his booty. An Irish peer was expelled for directing a lottery, while for organizing a "charitable association" of shady habits Sir Robert Sutton and two others were shut out in 1730. Steele of the Tatler was prohibited the house for "maliciously insinuating that the Protestant succession in the house of Hanover is in danger under her majesty's administration."

But perhaps the oddest reason for closing the doors of the house of commons upon a man is to be found in the case of Mr. Asgill, whose sin was that of writing a treatise "On the Possibility of Avoiding Death."—Philadelphia Ledger.

An Odd Incident of War.

In the Philippines portion of his book "The Memories of Two Wars" General Funston tells of a unique instance at the siege of Malabon: "Company L was firing a few volleys, and one of the men, having just discharged his piece, felt a second blow against his shoulder, it being almost as hard as the kick of the gun. Upon trying to reload it was found that the breech of the piece could not be opened, and it was laid aside to be examined by daylight, which was done in the presence of a number of us officers. Upon forcing the breech open it was found that the base of the copper shell of the cartridge that had been fired just before the weapon had been disabled had been shot away, while mixed all up in the breech mechanism we found the remains of the steel jacket and the lead filling of a Mauser bullet. There was a very pronounced dent on the muzzle of the piece. What had happened was that while the man had the gun extended in the firing position a bullet had gone down the muzzle. This weapon is now in the Army Ordnance museum in Washington."

The Wettins of England.

If the king of England were to renounce the throne and resolve to become an ordinary citizen he would be called George Wettin. How does the name Wettin come to be the king's surname? This is the answer:

Queen Victoria married Albert, duke of Saxe-Coburg-Gotha, of the senior branch of the house of Saxony. The family name by which this house, dating from the middle of the tenth century, came to be known afterwards was Wettin, and this was and is the surname of both branches—the Ernestine and Albertine—of the house of Saxony. The name comes from the castle of Wettin, near Magdeburg, which claimed Wittkind as the founder of the race.—London Answers.

Preaching and Practice.

The college instructor should take pains to practice what he preaches. One member of a class in English composition brought his theme to the professor after recitation hour in order that the professor might read a marginal correction which he had written

An Eye to Business.

"I want to marry you," said the rising young author bluntly.

"Why?" coyly asked the great heiress, preparing to listen to his impassioned confession.

"Well," he replied, "it would be a great advertisement for me."

Gave Him Something.

"Accused of begging!" exclaimed a magistrate. "Why, you are the very man who was begging at my door yesterday!"

"Yes," assented the vagrant, with a sneer, "and you didn't give me anything."

"Well, I'll give you something now. Fourteen days!"

Working Hours.

(From the Washington Star.)

"No man ought to be asked to work more than eight hours a day," said the reformer.

"Look here," replied Farmer Cornstossel, "of course, you're entitled to your opinion, but you mustn't come around us farmers in the busy season with a proposition to make every day a half holiday."

Have you tried Holloway's Corn Cure? It is no equal for removing those troublesome excrescences as many have testified who have tried it.

In describing a recent bowling match in Skagway the Alaskan says one of the players "had a hard load to carry." The majority of papers mention such things in police court reports and not in connection with bowling, where bowling is on regulation alleys instead of before bars.

French postoffice clerks accused of loafing while at work were found to be keeping snails in their desks and training them to race against each other. It was all right to keep the snails, but was it not a mistake to teach them to race? Some of the clerks must have acquired a habit of emulation and a spirit of competition that will entirely unfit them for their life-work.

MILD IN THEIR ACTION.—Parmelee's Vegetable Pills are very mild in their action. They do not cause griping in the stomach or cause disturbances there as so many pills do. Therefore, the most delicate can take them without fear of unpleasant results. They can, too, be administered to children without incurring the penalties which follow the use of pills not so carefully prepared.

A woman and her house were burned up recently in Springfield, Mass., through ignorance of the two common facts that gasoline left open will quickly fill a closed room with a highly explosive gas and that rubbing silk may cause a spark. The woman left a silk waist soaking in gasoline in a bowl in a bathroom to clean it. After a time she went back to the room and began rubbing the silk between her hands, causing a spark, which ignited the vapor gas and blew up the place.—Insurance Bulletin.

A school concert, of all things! Four little girls were dressed to represent the word "star," and each had one letter of that word pinned on to her snowy-white dress. Each letter began the verse of a touching little song. "Now, my dears," said the mistress, "form yourself in position, and wait until the curtain goes up." The little girls did as they were told, and while the piano played the accompaniment the curtain went up. Instead of applause to greet the little girls howls from the audience met them. "Rats!" was the word they spelt, not "star."—Cassels Weekly.

DARK ROOM TESTING

Every child on reaching the age of seven years should have the eyes examined. Many children have defective vision, and it often happens that one eye only is affected. This throws all the work on the better eye while the other through disuse frequently loses its function entirely. With proper lense correction this trouble will be wholly overcome. If accompanied by parents we will be glad to examine children's eyes free of charge.

Jamieson—Grant.

One of the weddings that Amherstburg has been anticipating for some time was consummated Monday, May 27th. The principals were George A. Jamieson and Miss Madge Grant, two of Amherstburg's popular and well-known citizens. The ceremony was performed at the home of the bride's parents, Mr. and Mrs. John Grant, Rev. Thos. Nattress officiating. The bride was charmingly attired in a dress of cream voils over yellow taffeta clinging silk, trimmed with pink duchess satin, the bodice draped with Maline lace outlined with bands of crystal trimming. She carried a bouquet of pink and white roses, and her going away gown was of blue broadcloth trimmed with black and white satin, relieved with touches of Carickmacross lace, surmounted by a broad plumed panama hat. The house decorations consisted of white tulips, carnations, palms and ferns. Miss Cora Grant played Lohengrin's bridal chorus. Miss Elizabeth Grant acted as bridesmaid, and B. P. Overholt as groomsmen. The guests consisted chiefly of immediate relatives. Following the ceremony a wedding lunch was served, after which the happy couple left on their bridal tour up the lakes to Port Arthur and Winnipeg, preparatory to settling down in their new home in Edmonton, Alta. Amherstburg deplores the loss of this, deservedly popular young couple. The bride has hosts of friends in the town and vicinity. She has been an active member of the Christian Endeavor, the Ready Workers, and the St. Andrews choir for several years, and a general favorite among the younger set. The groom, our sometime merchant, our all the time good fellow, had long since copped the title of king of our local fun makers. Whether as champion bowler, leader of Casey's band, or the blackest minstrel of them all, it is to him was a tonic, to think of him, it is to laugh. Both bride and groom have been the recipients of many presentations, showers and tokens of esteem from admiring friends, not the least of which was a send off at the car, which will not be forgotten for many years.

INDIGESTION RIGHTLY CURED

By Toning Up the Stomach to do the Work Nature Intends It Should.

Indigestion should not be neglected for a moment, for by depriving the body of its proper nourishment through the food, the trouble grows steadily worse. Neither should stimulating medicines, which ruin the already weak stomach by making it work beyond its strength, be used; nor pre-digested foods, which do not excite a flow of the digestive fluids, and by disuse cause the stomach to grow weaker. Nowhere is the tonic treatment by Dr. Williams' Pink Pills more clearly useful. The principle of this treatment is to enable the stomach to do its own work by building up the blood and giving tone to the nerves. When these are once restored to their normal health indigestion disappears and the cure is permanent. Here is an experience with this treatment. Mr. John Brenestal, Calgary, Alta., says: "For years I was an almost constant sufferer from indigestion, and naturally because there was much nutritious food which I could not eat owing to the pain and discomfort which followed, I was becoming much run down. I tried many medicines but none of them helped me until I began the use of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills. After taking a few boxes I was much better and in the course of a couple of months was quite well, and could eat any food set before me."

If you are a sufferer from indigestion, or any trouble due to bad blood or weak nerves, you can begin to cure yourself to-day by taking Dr. Williams' Pink Pills. Sold by all medicine dealers or by mail at 50 cents a box or six boxes for $2.50 from The Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

Miss Lena Johnston, Plympton town-line, attended the Baptist Church Association meeting in Denfield this week.
