A Song of Motherhood.

As my own mother used to comfort me—
Kissing the tears away—
Holding me close—aye, all too close
For sob, I hold thee, little dear one, close to day!
Calming my older pain, by stilling thine—
As mothers only know—
My heart's best love in thine, as hers in mine—
Long ago, little dear one, long ago,
As thou in turn, a woman grown and Shall kiss, as I kiss now,
Finding the sunrise ever in thy child,
Even thou, little dear one, even thou!
—Martha Gilbert Dickinson, in the August Scribner's Fiction number.

Courage.

"Because I held it sinful to depend,
And will not let the bitterness of life
Blind me with burning tears, but look Beyond
Its tumult and its strife.
"Because I lift my head above the mist
To where the sun shines, and broad Treads below
By every ray and every rain-drop
Kissed
That God's love doth bestow.

"Think you I find no bitterness at all,
No burdens to be borne, like Pilgrim's pack;
Think you there are no ready tears to weep
Because I keep them back?
"Why should I hug life's joys with cold reserve,
To curse myself and those who love me
A thousand times more good than I deserve
God gives me every day.
"And in each one of these rebellious tears
Kept bravely back, He makes a rainbow shine,
Gladly I take His slightest gifts—no fears
Nor any doubts are mine.
"Dark skies must clear, and when the weather
Each golden day red-arms a weary Patient I listen, sure that sweet at last
Will sound His voice of cheer."
—Celia Thaxter.

THE AMBITION OF EVA.

(By Clarence Root.)

Eva Norrington inserted her latchkey into the door of a Bedford Square boarding house, and entered. It was a dismal, windy, rainy March evening, and ever since lunch she had been paddling about London, climbing the greasy stairs of newspaper offices and talking to people who did not seem especially pleased to see her. Her skirts were wet, and a wisp of damp hair was tumbling over her eyes. On the hall table, discarded by the flickering gas jet, were some letters. "A year ago to-day," said Eva to herself, as she closed the door against the wind. "Had he written, or he had he forgotten?"

He had not forgotten. Eva picked up the letter from the hall table, looked quickly around at the closed hall door, at the closed dining-room door and at the bath door that led to the kitchen stairs and kissed it. Then she went upstairs to her bed sitting-room with the letter in her hand and a great joy in her heart.

"Handful little room!" she murmured to herself, as she struck a match and lit the gas. "But it's the last time, thank God!"

The room was not really bad. A bed in the corner, a washstand, a wardrobe, here and there a picture on the walls and a table by the window, rather rickety, on which lay a heap of manuscripts—a half finished story.

"I will burn that before I go to bed tonight," said Eva, as she caught sight of it.

Then she took off her hat and cloak, drew the only chair under the gas jet and sat down, fingering the letter, she did not open it at once. Now that happiness stretched in front of her, it was pleasant to linger on the confines of misery, to look back on the life she was to leave.

"It is not every one," said Eva reflectively, "who can make experiments in life without expense."

Eva Norrington had been the pride of the provincial town which gave her birth. At the high school no girl could stand against her. Her form governess, who now and then asked her favorite pupils to tea, even said she might be a head mistress one day. To Eva this seemed absurd. But when, at the age of twenty, she was a guinea price for a story in a weekly that thrilled her, half with fear and half with pleasure. She rose and faced him.

"I shall be very sorry to leave you—very sorry."

"Then why?"

"Can't you see, Allan? I know I have it in me to do good work, and I must be where good work is wanted. Here I am hampered; in London—"

"You may fail," said Allan, with a note of hope in his voice.

"I shall succeed—I know I shall."

Eva hesitated. She was half-inclined to give in to that extent. Allan had mistaken her hesitation.

"No," he said. "There shall be no selfishness in my love for you. I will wait a year from tonight; and then, if London is no-go; you know, there will always be me. You can't expect me to wait a year, can you?"

Eva placed on her mittles, looked him in the face.

"I am bound to succeed," she said, and turned to go. The waltz had continued to succeed in her life. A weekly column of skirts and a ripple of tongues had taken its place.

"Eva—once the last, time, perhaps."

She turned again, laughing.

"Good-bye!" he said, "some one will come."

Such small success as may come to the inexperienced girl upon her first incursion into literature comes like this. She lives sparingly, worked hard and never made the mistake of refusing invitations on the ground of work. She stayed up a little later, or got up a little earlier instead of a weekly column.

"Health and Beauty," placed at her disposal by the youthful editor of a new woman's paper, who met her at the Winters' Club, had her weekly bill naturally carried by the editor.

Her stories found frequent acceptance and occasional welcome in the minor periodicals, and a happy meeting with an editor at dinner party paved the way to her first regular place in a daily read magazine. By the end of the year Eva Norrington had got so far toward the realization of her ambition that when her head began to throb, it was not with the memory of a rejected story.

At the meeting held in Faneuil Hall, May 16, for the purpose of inaugurating a movement to promote better relations between the United States and Canada and Newfoundland, Mr. Whitney was authorized to appoint a committee of 100 to take charge of the movement. By the terms of the resolution the committee was to be known as "the Chamber of Commerce committee of 100 for the promotion of reciprocal trade."

In making the appointments Mr. Whitney discerned that a committee of 100 was insufficient to completely cover the State, and at a meeting of the committee he was authorized to increase the number to 200. Additional members were appointed from time to time, until all the important cities and towns are given representation.

The Boston committee includes J. F. Maher, New England superintendent of the Dominion Atlantic railway, a native of Kentville.

The committee yesterday gave out for publication two papers. One an appeal to the States, irrespective of party, states that whereas reciprocal trade is found in practice that the political representatives of the State canvassed, who have already obtained the signatures of 15,000 Republican voters. The indications are that many times this number will be secured.

Paul Kruger Dead.

A despatch from Clarens, Switzerland, on Thursday last says:

Paul Kruger, former president of the Transvaal republic, died here at 3 o'clock this morning from pneumonia.

The ex-president's body was embalmed and will be placed in a vault pending funeral arrangements. Application will be made to the British government for authority to transport the remains to Transvaal. In the meantime they will be temporarily interred here. (The permission has since been granted.)

Reciprocity Movement Making Headway

Under the Leadership of Mr. Henry M. Whitney, the Campaign is Becoming One of the Most Important Ever Carried on in New England.

Boston, July 16.—The movement in behalf of Canadian reciprocity, so strongly urged before the Massachusetts Legislature, at its last session, by the merchants of Boston, has developed into one of the most widespread and spontaneous outbursts, under the leadership of Henry M. Whitney, president of the Boston Chamber of Commerce, ever seen in New England.

Business men of all shades of political belief are rapidly assembling under the standard raised by Mr. Whitney, and it is confidently asserted that within a very brief period the friends of the movement will have declared themselves so emphatically that their demands cannot longer be overlooked. The committee of 100 appointed by Whitney has issued an appeal to the citizens of Massachusetts, and a number of party, and in conjunction with it is circulating a petition for signature by the Republican voters, calling for immediate action in behalf of a reciprocal measure not confined to non-competitive products.

"I am pleased to see," said Mr. Whitney in discussing the matter with a reporter, "how responsive the people are to the movement. The great fact stands up and is counted on this question. They feel that Massachusetts has been misrepresented, or perhaps I should say misunderstood, on this subject. I am confident that the sentiment of the State is overwhelmingly in favor of reciprocity not confined to non-competitive products. I find the leading men of the State are perfectly sensible, and that they are anxious to get along the cause; and also are giving of their substance more so that I feel we shall not fail to have the support of war necessary to carry on the movement."

At the meeting held in Faneuil Hall, May 16, for the purpose of inaugurating a movement to promote better relations between the United States and Canada and Newfoundland, Mr. Whitney was authorized to appoint a committee of 100 to take charge of the movement. By the terms of the resolution the committee was to be known as "the Chamber of Commerce committee of 100 for the promotion of reciprocal trade."

In making the appointments Mr. Whitney discerned that a committee of 100 was insufficient to completely cover the State, and at a meeting of the committee he was authorized to increase the number to 200. Additional members were appointed from time to time, until all the important cities and towns are given representation.

Another Tragedy in New Brunswick.

Another grim tragedy has been added to the annals of the parish of Kent, in Carleton county.

It was only ten or a dozen miles from the spot where the murderer of George Gee will be hanged on Friday of this month, to Huber Glen, where on Sunday night an even more shocking crime was committed by a man named Thomas Cammack, or Cimnic, who formerly lived in St. John, and one of whose young sons is now visiting friends either in St. John or the neighboring parish of Lunenburg.

The name of the murdered man is William Doherty, the same as that of the youth who, two years ago on August 1st, was shot to death in Rockwood Park, St. John.

It appears that William Doherty was keeping company with Cammack's daughter, a girl of about 22 years, and her father objected. So great was his anxiety that he several times threatened to shoot Doherty, but his threats were not heeded.

On Sunday night last, about midnight, he armed himself with a revolver, went to the Doherty house, gained entrance by the collar, and going to William Doherty's room shot him as he lay in bed.

The report of the gun roused two of Doherty's brothers, and they appeared on the scene, but when Cammack turned the weapon on them they sought to escape. The murderer fired at both, wounding one in the chin and the other in the shoulder. The wounds, however, are not dangerous.

He also attempted to kill his wife (Doherty's sister) from whom he was separated, and wounded her in the back with the butt of his revolver. She got out of the house.

Two children, who were in the house, also escaped, but Cammack set fire to the house and burned it to the ground, the flames consuming the body of William Doherty.

Cammack then fled to the woods. The alarm was given and he was pursued, and was finally captured, after a desperate attempt at suicide. His self-inflicted wounds are so serious that he was reported last night to be in a dangerous condition.

Creas Colds in One Hour.

St. John Exhibition.

From numerous and conclusive indications, this year's St. John, N. B., Exhibition, 17th to 24th September, will be the best held yet.

The demand for floor space has been altogether unprecedented, and has taken up all save one or two emergency locations.

The Prize List is now being sent out. A number of new prizes and extra prizes have been added, making it very attractive to the agricultural community. Those desiring a copy should send in their names to Manager Hubbard, St. John, N. B.

Mr. Fred G. Spencer, whose name is associated in the public mind with the bringing to the province of Madam Nordica, Miss Jessie MacFarlane, and other musical talents, has just returned from a tour through the principal amusement centres in America, where he has selected for the Exhibition Association the very best amusement features available, at an expenditure greatly exceeding that of any previous year. His tour has been eminently successful. The aggregation secured will undoubtedly prove the most attractive ever seen in St. John. It includes the Adde's Lions, the most thrilling and successful show seen during recent years. Mr. Spencer's enviable reputation as an amusement provider is certain to be still further enhanced by this latest venture.

The famous English Master Gio Club, and the Vitagraph Moving Pictures have also been secured.

The fame of the Meister Singers is world-wide. They stand alone in their class, and were great favorites with the late Queen as they now are with our King.

The Vitagraph Co., being the largest manufacturer of films in the world, naturally carry, when touring, the full set, latest and best selection of pictures. All notable Russ-Japanese war episodes occurring between now and September will make their first appearance on the screen at the St. John Exhibition.

One of the chief features of the Fair will be the daily Horse Show, at which the leading breeders in all classes will be represented with their best. This will be run on the most up-to-date lines, with all the latest fashionable innovations. A good Horse Show has everywhere proven a very successful exhibition feature, and the St. John Exhibition guarantees a good Horse Show.

THE WAR NEWS.

St. Petersburg, July 16, 2:35 p. m.

Since the receipt from Tokio of an official denial of the report of a Japanese repulse at Port Arthur with the loss of about 30,000 men, skepticism as to the truth of the report remains. Viceroy Alexief's headquarters has perused all circles, but the members of the general staff decline to accept the denial unreservedly. While not insisting on the accuracy of the figures, they claim there is good reason to believe that a severe check was inflicted on the Japanese in front of Port Arthur and it is considered possible that General Stossel may have made a report on the subject to the emperor, who will not return here until tonight. Although still in ignorance as to what the official statement meant by "from Japanese sources," the officials here maintain that Alexief must have had good reason to seal the report. While it is conceivable that the Japanese themselves may have spread the report for the purpose of lulling the emperor's confidence in the ability of Kurapatkin to believe that they will not advance any further in Manchuria, the general staff are not disposed to regard them as guilty of such machinations.

St. Petersburg, July 16, 2:30 p. m.

The Japanese are continuing to advance on Ta Tehe Kiao, following a scientific plan of encircling their positions as they move forward. They appear to be taking extreme precautions in the case of Ta Tehe Kiao on account of their knowledge that General Kurapatkin is there personally. A despatch to a dispatch from Lieut.-Gen. Sakhalin, dated July 15, and given out this morning, the wings of General Oku's and Nodai's armies have joined at Ta Tehe Kiao, and are still progressing towards New Chwang, which had not been occupied July 15. A detachment of General Kuroki's village is reported to have reached the village of Hsinhsieh, 40 miles east of Liao Yang, on the Feng Wang Cheng high road.

St. Petersburg, July 16.—General

Kurapatkin in a long despatch to the emperor, dated July 15, speaks of an attempt by Lieut.-General Kotelieff to drive back the Japanese from passes in the neighborhood of Lianshan Tsing. Though a vigorous attack was made, and reserves were hurried up, the Russians eventually had to withdraw. General Keller reported the Russian losses to exceed 1,000. The men were employed that day on foot high fighting.

London, July 19.—In British official circles there are reports that overhauling of British ships in the Red Sea by the Russian commander-in-chief, Admiral Smolenski, and St. Petersburg are regarded as very grave international incidents.

The seizure of the Peninsular and Oriental steamer Malacca by the St. Petersburg and her arrival in the Straits Canal as a prize of war on her way to Lihau, on the Baltic, has come as a severe blow to the British in the East. The British law officers acknowledge the right of the Russians to seize and detain mails, provided that only official communications are taken, but the most serious view of the status of the two Russian ships on starting the Red Sea, and if any official action or protest is taken it will be chiefly in regard to the passage of these merchant vessels through the Dardanelles and the subsequent transformation into ships of war.

OBITUARY.

MRS. JOHN LEANDER MARSHALL. The death of Arabella, wife of J. L. Marshall, took place at her home at Carleton's Corner, on Wednesday, 13th inst.

Mrs. Marshall was a Miss Farnsworth of Aylesford, but resided during her youthful years in Bridgetown, her father at one time owning the farm now known as the Shipton farm.

Mrs. Simon O'Neal. The death of Mrs. Simon O'Neal, of consumption, occurred on June 19th, at her home, Arlington, aged 42 years.

Mrs. O'Neal was a native of New York City, and was married to Mr. Simon O'Neal, of New York City, on June 19th, 1861.

Another octogenarian in the person of James Edwin Walker, passed away on Monday morning, 26th inst.

Mr. Walker had been ailing for some time, and was finally overcome by a severe attack of pneumonia.

Mr. Walker continued, up to the time of his death, in full possession of his faculties, and was more vigorous than many a man ten years his junior.

Mr. Walker was born in the town of Bridgetown, and for sixty years followed the business of brickmaking.

Fattening Chickens for Market.

FEEDING IN CRATES—THE BEST RATI... Department of Agriculture, Commission of Poultry, Ottawa, July 14.

In order to have the chickens plump and well fitted for market when they are at the most profitable age, they should be placed in the fattening crates when they are three months old.

FATTENING RATI... A satisfactory fattening ration is one that is palatable and that will produce a white-skinned fowl.

(1) Ground oats (coarser hulls removed). (2) Sitings from rolled oats (no hulling stuff should be included).

(3) Two parts ground linseed, one part ground corn. (4) Equal parts ground oats, ground barley, and ground buckwheat.

(5) Two parts ground barley, two parts low grade flour, one part wheat bran. The ground meal should be mixed to a thin porridge with four skim milk.

THE FIRST WEEK. It is necessary to feed the chickens lightly the first week they are in the crates.

THE SECOND WEEK. The chickens should be given twice a day as much food as they will eat.

THE LAST TEN DAYS. At the commencement of this period one pound of tallow a day should be added to the mash for every 70 chickens.
