The Crimson Slipper.

BY DORA LANGLOIS.

Author of "A Bolt From the Blue," "The Red-Headed Woman," "The Kiss of Judas," "The Victoria's Daughter," "Victoria's Dream," etc.

(Continued.) "That is much easier said than proved," I retorted, "I have met this great man, Mrs. Montgomery, and I assure you that, absolutely innocent as you know me to be, I could not clear myself, and if I failed you may judge what your chances are." "But I bid for the desk myself," she insisted. "Doesn't that prove that I thought the papers were in it, and so could not possibly have them in my possession?" "The cypher was in the desk," I answered, "therefore your bidding for the desk does not prove that you have not got the other papers, and was hiding for the desk that got me into trouble."

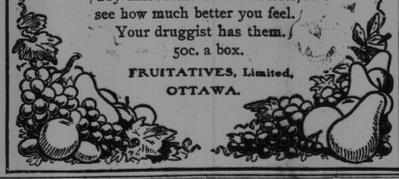

"I don't care," she cried, wildly, "I have not got the papers. You won't get blood out of a stone, Mr. Duncan. I am an innocent woman, and you are trying to terrify me." "It's nonsense to talk about innocence," I retorted. "You may be innocent of Danvers's murder, though there is a strong prima-facie case against you—but you are clearly guilty in the other matter, and nothing but direct assistance of some sort from you towards the recovery of those papers will help you to escape from what is otherwise inevitable." "I can't help!" she moaned. "Either he had the papers on him when he died and the murderer took them, or he had hidden them away, or already parted with them. I have never touched them, never seen them. I don't know where they are. Mr. Duncan, you have some interest with these people, why should they ruin me for nothing? Even about the papers I am not so very culpable. I was told they were about an invention, an invention already refused by the British Government, and Mr. Danvers promised me money to get him a few introductions. I wanted the money badly, because Mr. Montgomery is so mean and tyrannical. I didn't suspect Mr. Danvers till just before his death, and then he wouldn't write and explain, or come to see me, and so I had to go to him. But I never saw him that night. I heard a shot and ran away, and that is all there is against me." "Of course I did not believe this trumped-up tale about an invention, but her genuine terror and anxiety led me to think that she was speaking the truth when she declared that the papers were not in her hands. "I have no influence with these people at all," I retorted. "I am a suspect like yourself, and I tell you frankly that even if I had interest with them I have no sympathy for you. The most I can say is that I'm very sorry for you if you are so unfortunate as not to be able to help in any way."

Head-ache

Most headaches are caused by the liver. This vital organ becomes torpid. No bile is excreted, bringing Constipation. This affects both stomach and kidneys. And they in turn, bring the headaches from which so many people suffer.

Fruit-a-tives or Fruit Liver Tablets make dull, aching heads as clear as a bell. They act as a tonic on the liver—increase the flow of bile—cure Constipation—prevent Indigestion and Dyspepsia—and keep the kidneys strong and well.

THE MOVING PICTURES. Never before in the history of moving pictures has a national event been so thoroughly portrayed as the recent Inauguration ceremonies at Washington. The American Vitagraph Company secured a most magnificent series of views and it is owing to the enterprise and ability of this company that people all over the United States will be able to view President Roosevelt receiving into his hands for four years more the helm of the Ship of State. It is a tribute to modern progressiveness and science when one considers that people in the smaller towns of the United States will, during the next few weeks, be permitted to witness the inspiring scenes that recently took place in Washington. Every American citizen, whether by birth or adoption, wants to see the splendid Inauguration events and this desire can be gratified by attending the Vitagraph concert at the Opera House next week.

SACKVILLE.

Sackville, April 14.—Many friends will regret to hear of the death of Israel Atkinson, which took place Wednesday night, at his home on Main street. While not recently in robust health, his friends did not anticipate his sudden demise, though during the past day or two his physicians felt that he was dangerously ill. Deceased was twice married, his first wife being Miss Isabel Richardson, and his second wife, who survives him, a Miss Skene. The children, who survive, are four daughters, Mrs. F. J. Hostler, and Miss Elizabeth, Mrs. Rufus Peterson, Volvurn, Mass., and Mrs. Hammond, who also lives in the United States. He leaves two sisters, Mrs. Crowson of Sackville, and Mrs. Bell of Amherst; and three brothers, Arthur, Bamford, and Alfred, all of Sackville. Deceased was sixty-five years old. The funeral took place this afternoon, and was largely attended. The services at the house and grave were conducted by Rev. Geo. Steel, assisted by Rev. N. Nobles, and Dr. Bordon, and the choir of both churches furnished the music. The pall-bearers were Alford Gray, John Hickey, Theo. Anderson, and Harvey Plimney. Interment took place in the rural cemetery.

The Sackville Bakery and restaurant, has been purchased by Mr. Duffly of Petitcodiac. The restaurant is one of the largest in the province, and is largely patronized. Chas. Pickard proposes to extend and improve his quarry business, and run a branch railway connecting his quarry with the U. N. & P. E. I. railway on the I. C. R. Frank Black is at present in Montreal duplicating the goods which were lost in the Parisian. Mrs. Sweetzer arrived last night on the C. P. R., and is a guest of her son, Prof. Sweetzer. The marriage of Benj. Smith and Miss Mary J. Bickerton, was solemnized at the home of the bride's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Bickerton, by Rev. E. L. Stoves. Thos. J. Hostler, Chas. E. Carter, Sias W. Copp, F. A. Dixon, Fred Ryan and Chas. Pickard, are among the names mentioned as prospective candidates for councilors in the forth-coming town election.

WILL NOT OPPOSE HIM.
A great deal of interest is manifested in the question whether the minister of the interior will be elected or not, in view of the agitation over the autonomy bill. The fact that at all events, does not indicate any opposition. A Whig paper says:—The expectation in political circles here is that Mr. Frank will be returned by acclamation. The feeling is that in view of the fact that in view of the fact that the minister of the interior would be elected, Mr. Oliver's opposition would be of no avail.

HAPPY TORONTO.
The following statement from a Toronto paper tells what that city gets from the street railway company as a share of its earnings:—
The gross receipts of the Toronto Railway Company in March amounted to $207,618, compared with $125,192 in March of 1901, an increase of $82,426. The city's percentage of the revenue increased from $10,015 to $20,761, or more than 100 per cent. Following is the statement received by City Treasurer Coody:

Year	Receipts	Percentage
1905	$207,618.20	$20,761.82
1904	184,444.13	18,444.41
1903	191,379.65	15,791.64
1902	141,765.00	11,341.20
1901	125,192.68	10,015.41

A despatch from Mexico City says:—Considerable progress has been made toward the establishment of a steamship line between Mexico, Gulf ports and Canada, and it is probable that steamers of the new line will begin their trips next month. The question has arisen as to whether steamers shall call at Cuban ports, as first intended and afterward changed. The government objects to making stops at Cuban ports, but it is hoped to secure its consent to this.

WESTERN GROWTH.
The following items tell something of the story of western development. An Ottawa despatch says:—The immigration to Western Canada from the United States this year is probably about 60,000, that is to say, an increase of 50 per cent. over last year. This is the estimate of Mr. J. White, the inspector of United States consular agencies, who has just returned from a trip through the west.

MUNICIPAL AFFAIRS.
The Ontario Association of Municipalities has asked the provincial government to make the following among other changes in the municipal act:—
That small municipalities be given power to regulate the salaries of police magistrates; that two resident ratepayers be added as police commissioners in all places where such commissioners exist.
That municipalities be given power to establish a street car service even where there are existing companies, provided that in doing so no violation of any existing agreement is thereby committed.
That municipalities be given power to construct conduits or street poles for electric or telegraph and telephone wires, and that corporations be allowed to straddle wires within the municipality be compelled to use such conduits or poles and pay for such use.
That all municipalities be given power to appropriate gas and water plants on equitable terms.

WHAT GLASGOW OWNS.
The New York evening Sun gives the following interesting statement of municipal ownership in Glasgow:—The city of Glasgow, Scotland, owns a public library of 100,000-000 volumes, and is erecting a number of district libraries; conducts seven model lodging-houses—one for women—which shelter 2400 persons every night, and pay five per cent. profit; owns twenty-seven blocks of buildings, containing 200 shops and 1862 buildings, which shelter 9000 people; public banks, including Kewbank for Jews, and also wash-houses, in which hot water is furnished at a trifling price for family use; gas, water and electric light and power works, in which 8000 men are employed; the street railway system, which employs 3500 men and carries over 170,000,000 passengers annually. Furthermore, it owns nine public markets, including one for old clothes; a telephone system that pays fifteen per cent on the invested public capital; a labor bureau, and a home for inebriates.

A HOT TIME IN MONCTON.
Mayor Ryan and Editor Hawke Have a Passage-at-Arms.

The bad feeling between Mayor Ryan and John T. Hawke, editor of the Transcript, at Moncton, had its climax at yesterday afternoon's meeting of the city council when the Mayor started to forcibly eject Mr. Hawke from the inside railing of the council chamber. The incident created a great sensation and last night was the talk of the town. Mr. Hawke refused to go outside the railing when ordered by the mayor. Mayor Ryan said that he was going out and ordered the clerk to call a police officer. Several aldermen were on their feet and poured oil on the troubled waters but the temper was not to be stayed so easily. The aldermen called to the clerk not to summon a policeman while the mayor on the other hand asked that the official do his bidding, saying that he had charge.

After a few exciting moments of this nature, an angry clerk halted as to just whom to obey, the mayor said, "Well, if I can't get a policeman I'll do it myself." He immediately proceeded to put his words into execution. He rose from his place, walked to where Mr. Hawke was sitting at a table and pushed him over on the floor. Then there was an uproar. The aldermen intervened and stayed the mayor's hand. Editor Hawke was helped up and a few seconds later the council broke up in disorder. Mr. Hawke says he will issue a writ of injunction in the supreme court. The damages claimed are not known.

A GUARANTEE TO MOTHERS.
There is only one medicine intended for use among infants and young children that gives mothers a guarantee that it is free from opiates and poisonous soothing stuffs. That medicine is Baby's Own Tablets. Milton L. Hawley, M. D., public analyst of the Province of Quebec, and demonstrator in chemistry for McGill University says:—I have analyzed Baby's Own Tablets which I personally purchased in stores in Montreal, and said analysis has failed to detect the presence of any opiates or narcotic in them. These tablets cure all minor ailments of little ones, such as teething, troubles, diarrhoea, colic and worms. They make little ones sleep naturally because they remove the cause of sleeplessness. They are a boon to all mothers and no home where there are young children should be without a box of Baby's Own Tablets, held by all medicine dealers, or by mail at 25 cents a box from the Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville Ont.

SEAMEN'S MISSION.
A Summary of the Work For the Past Year.
The past year has been one of great success for the Seamen's Mission. Six thousand letters were written by seamen and posted at the expense of the Mission. Manager Gorbell is naturally much pleased at the success of the past year.
A good sum was realized from the concert held in St. David's church school-room last evening, and the money will be devoted to the building fund.
Following is a summary of the past year's work:—
Total attendance of seamen, 29,000; average daily attendance, 80; visits to ships, 1,250; packages of reading matter distributed, 6,000; religious services, held, 127; amusements meetings held, 12; socials and concerts held 125; pledges taken by seamen, 250; visits to hospital, 200; shipwrecked and destitute seamen aided 200; comfort bags given to seamen, 400; money left in safe keeping, $500; money sent by seamen to friends, $300; letters written, 6,000; ferry tickets given to seamen, 10,000; funerals of seamen, 6; graves decorated, 6; seamen's lot in Fernhill visited, 25; visits to sick aboard ship, 25.

THE TEACHERS MEET.
The St. John City and County Teachers' Association, met last night in Forester's Hall. Dr. H. S. Bridges, superintendent of city schools, read a scholarly paper on "Is There a Golden Mean in Educational Methods, and Curricula?" The doctor gave the modern ideas of education, due weight, but claimed that they must not be carried too far to the exclusion of studies, which are the pupil's best equipment.
A discussion followed, participated in by J. Frank Owens, Miss G. Murphy, Inspector Carter, W. H. Parise and W. J. S. Myles.
The following delegates were appointed to attend the meeting of the Teaching Association in Fredericton, Easter Monday: T. E. Powers and J. Frank Owens, the secretary, W. M. McLean, and the president, W. J. S. Myles, are also delegates ex-officio.

A REMARKABLE PRAYER.
The chaplain of the Illinois home of representatives is concerned about the safety of President Roosevelt among the wild beasts of the far west. In his opening prayer in the chamber on Wednesday, according to a despatch, he drew a picture of the dangers into which the president was going and prayed for his safety. His prayer was in part:—
"We invoke Thy choicest blessings upon our country at large. Bless the Chief Executive of this great nation personally and officially, and as he is soon to reach the happy hunting grounds" on which he has fixed his far-away gaze and where the wild beasts abound, whether these monsters of the mountains flee from him in fear or fly at him in fury may he find himself protected by the shield of the Almighty, so that upon his return to his home in peace and safety, like Thy servant David of old, he can testify to the people that the Lord delivered him out of the paw of the lion and out of the paw of the bear, and let all the people praise Thee. Amen and amen."

Baseball Tit Bits. "Havana," says an American, "is baseball crazy, and the game I saw there on Sunday drew 15,000 persons at least. The Cubans are improving in their standard of play."

A Lucky Winning. Washington, April 11.—"Jockey" Johnson, an hour before the running of the steeplechase for maidens yesterday was rubbing his eyes with a wealth in one hand. He had paid $200 for jumper Gansvoort, a rogitie son of Clifford, and had left not what would amount to a considerable sum for a poor man. He started Gansvoort in the race and when "Solo" Lichtenstein posted 20 to 1 against the erratic son of the mighty Clifford Johnson bet his all $50, on Gansvoort's chances.

MORTON FAMILY. The Former Was Half-Brother to William The Conqueror. Story of a Family That Has Many Representatives in Canada and the States.

The founder of the Morton family was Count Robert de Mortaigne. He was half brother to William the Conqueror, by whose side he fought at the battle of Hastings.

On the famous Bayeux tapestry, Robert is represented as one of the council of William, and his name is painted on the chancel ceiling of the old church of Dives, in Normandy, as one of the invading army.

He became possessed of manors in nearly every county of England, and about 800 in all, and was made Earl of Cornwall. One estate was held by the yearly service of a clove gillyflower, another by the gift of a rose, presented every midsummer eve.

A Morton at many times in English history has been the power behind the throne; particularly may this be said of John Morton, who was Lord Chancellor of England in 1420. John Morton, Archbishop of Canterbury, was executor of the will of Edward IV. At the magnificent ceremony when Prince Henry was knighted and created Duke of York, Archbishop Morton sat beside the King at the high table.

Albert Morton was Secretary of State to James I., and Thomas Morton entertained Charles I., and his suite at Durham in such princely style that one day's entertainment cost £1,500. Richard Morton was physician-in-ordinary to James II. In the literary world, the family name has been bright and shining lights. Charles Morton, a great scholar, had the honor of being the second librarian of the British Museum. When it was established, in 1756, he was appointed keeper of the manuscripts, also secretary to the trustees. A few years afterwards he became librarian, an office which he held until his death.

The "History of Richard III." ascribed to Sir Thomas More, was probably originally written in Latin by Archbishop Morton, who is mentioned by More in "Utopia." In latter times, less classic literature has come from the pens of Mortons. That popular farce, "Box and Cox," was written by the dramatist John Morton, son of Thomas Morton, also a famous farce writer, who had the rare honor of being elected honorary member of the Garrick Club.

The American line of Mortons begins with George Morton, who is described as a merchant of York, England. He was at Leyden, Holland, with John Robinson's Company, and it was there that he married Dolana Carpenter, of Bath, England. This was on June 25, 1612. Eleven years later, with his wife and five children, he came to America in the "Anne." The year previous Thomas Morton had come over in the "Charity," with thirty servants and provisions of all sorts fit to stock a plantation. So delighted was he with the new country that he wrote to his friends, "If this land were rich, then is the whole world poor. There is abundance, fish in multitude; on the shore, the fowling of turtle doves, which sit pecking the ripe, pleasant grapes. The land to me seems paradisaical. We had our first holiday which are the common inheritance of 'Mortie England' and set up the first May-pole in the new world—pine trees eight feet high. The song which Morton was the author of, 'The Festivities,' and a lyric form of which he was also the author, were the first poetical productions of the first American colony.

To a Morton, or the wife of a Morton, must be credited the first American patent, "The Power of Sympathy," by Sarah, wife of Perez Morton, of Plymouth. It was published in 1789. Robert Treat Paine called her "the American Sappho," and to be mentioned in her verses—she wrote an epic, "Beacon Hill, and Other Poems"—was to be immortalized.

Almost all the records of the Plymouth colony, and set up the first May-pole were the work, or are in the handwriting, of Nathaniel Morton, who was secretary of the colony. One of his records is now in the possession of the Massachusetts Historical Society. It is a carefully-written document.

At the first celebration of the landing of the pilgrims December 22, 1789, the third of the twelve toasts given at the banquet was "To the memory of the first man and the first historian, Mr. Secretary Morton."

Another early ancestor in this line was the Puritan divine, Charles Morton, who came over in 1636. It is said that the office of vice-president of Harvard was created for him. In the high-down description of the time, he was the State of James I., and Thomas Morton entertained Charles I., and his suite at Durham in such princely style that one day's entertainment cost £1,500. Richard Morton was physician-in-ordinary to James II. In the literary world, the family name has been bright and shining lights. HORSE NOTES

Fell Dead in the Lead. Memphis, April 11.—An accident at Montgomery Park at the head of the stretch where Miss Inez, pacemaker, fell and died yesterday, cleared the track for the fast coming favorite, Lady Savoy, in the running of the Tennessee Oaks, and the brown filly of William Gerst won the race with ease.

Miss Inez had been leading the field from the start and the terrific pace she maintained caused the bursting of a blood vessel and she dropped dead. Jockey H. Phillips, her rider, was not hurt.

A Lucky Winning. Washington, April 11.—"Jockey" Johnson, an hour before the running of the steeplechase for maidens yesterday was rubbing his eyes with a wealth in one hand. He had paid $200 for jumper Gansvoort, a rogitie son of Clifford, and had left not what would amount to a considerable sum for a poor man. He started Gansvoort in the race and when "Solo" Lichtenstein posted 20 to 1 against the erratic son of the mighty Clifford Johnson bet his all $50, on Gansvoort's chances.

Gansvoort won in a gallop and Johnson was first in line behind the big book after the race and he pulled down his $4,000. Johnson is a comparatively poor man and a $1,000 winning is a veritable windfall to him. When striding from the track he was smiling and the pleasant looks another trainer of the same ilk naively inquired, "Well, how does it feel?"

Johnson explained he experienced fifty different emotions when the long-suffered cashier commenced to hand out the twenty $20 bills. "I just stopped once to see that the eighth bill was a bit of color and pinch myself and learn beyond a doubt of my being really alive," declared Johnson. When he got the last $20 bill he said, "I don't know how I feel, but I don't think I will have changed places with August Belmont himself. As the purse was $400, he is $1,400 ahead on the venture."

THE MORTON FAMILY.

The Former Was Half-Brother to William The Conqueror.

Story of a Family That Has Many Representatives in Canada and the States.

The founder of the Morton family was Count Robert de Mortaigne. He was half brother to William the Conqueror, by whose side he fought at the battle of Hastings.

On the famous Bayeux tapestry, Robert is represented as one of the knights of William, and his name is painted on the chancel ceiling of the old church of Dives, in Normandy, as one of the invading army.

He became possessed of manors in nearly every county of England, about 800 in all, and was made Earl of Cornwall. One estate was held by the yearly service of a clove of silphofore, another by the gift of a rose, presented every midsummer.

A Morton at many times in English history has been the power behind the throne, particularly may this be said of John Morton, who was Lord Chancellor of England in 1420. John Morton, Archbishop of Canterbury, was executor of the will of Edward IV. At the magnificent coronation when Prince Henry was knighted and created Duke of York, Archbishop Morton sat alone with the King at the high table.

Albert Morton was Secretary of State to James I. and Thomas Morton entertained Charles I. and his suite at Durham, in such princely style that one day's entertainment cost £1,500. Richard Morton was physician-in-ordinary to James II. In the literary world, the family have been bright and shining lights. Charles Morton, a great scholar, had the honor of being the second librarian of the British Museum. When it was established, in 1756, he was appointed keeper of the manuscripts, and also secretary to the trustees. A few years afterwards he became librarian, an office which he held until his death.

The "History of Richard III." ascribed to Sir Thomas More, was probably originally written in Latin by Archbishop Morton, who is mentioned by More in "Utopia." In later times, less classic literature has come from the pens of Mortons. That popular farce, "Box and Cox," was written by the dramatist, John Morton, son of Thomas Morton, also a famous farce writer, who had the rarely-recorded honor of being elected honorary member of the Garrick Club.

The American line of Mortons begins with George Morton, who is described as a merchant of York, England. He was at Leiden, Holland, with John Robinson's Company, and it was there that he married Juliana Carpenter, of Bath, England. This was on June 23, 1612. Eleven years later, with his wife and five children, he came to America in the "Anne." The year previous Thomas Morton had come over in the "Charity," with thirty servants and provisions of all sorts to stock a plantation in the new country that he wrote to his friends, "If this land be not rich, then is it the best in the world. There are fowl in abundance, fish in multitude, on the green boughs, millions of wild doves, which sit pecking in the trees, and the usual flag, the full, ripe, pleasant grapes. The land to me seems paradise."

He kept all his holdings which are the common inheritance of "Merle England," and set up the first Maypole in the new world—a pine tree eighty feet high, the top of which Morton composed for those Mayday festivities, and a lyric form of which he was better suited to the first poetical efforts in this country.

First to Morton, or the wife of a Morton, must be credited the first American novel. This was "The Power of Sympathy," by Sarah W. Fuller, published in 1789. The American Sappho, and to be mentioned in the history of literature, was the poetess, Treat Paine called her "the American Sappho," and she wrote an epic, "Beacon Hill, and Other Poems"—was to be immortalized.

At the first celebration of the landing of the pilgrims, December 22, 1769, the third of the twelve toasts given at the banquet was "To the memory of that pious man and faithful historian, Mr. Secretary Morton."

Another early ancestor in this country was the Puritan divine, Charles Morton, who came over in 1636. It is said that the office of vice-president of Harvard was created for him. In the high-down description of the time, he was "the soul of philosophy, the repository of all the arts and sciences, and of the graces, too."

Under a charter creating a nobility Joseph Morton, who settled in South Carolina in 1682, was made a land-grave, and given about 50,000 acres of land in that State, and there is a tradition that William Morton, the settler, or his sons, owned large tracts of land upon which portions of Washington, D. C., are now built.

The first absolutely free public school in America was established by John Morton. This was at Plymouth in 1671. He "erected and kept the school for the education of children and youth."

In Colonial wars and in the Revolution, the Mortons proved themselves mighty men of valor, nearly every line can trace back to a warrior ancestor, and "sons" and "daughters" thus establish eligibility to membership in patriotic societies.

The aristocratic orthography "de Mortaigne" has undergone various transitions before reaching Morton. There was Mortain, Mortain, Mortin, Moretown, Morton, Mortons, Mortons, and finally Morton.

The Morton arms are quarterly ermine and ermine; in the dexter chief and sinister base, each, a white bear, armed, argent, attired, or, crest a goal's head, argent, attired, or.

A SNEAK THIEF.

Smooth Gentleman From Boston in the Hands of the Police.

A sneak thief was discovered last night on board schooner "Agnes May", lying at Lawton's wharf. Investigation was laid by Felix McNulty, one of the vessel's crew.

The thief gave his name as Lennan, but the name recorded on the police book is James Callum. When brought into court this morning the prisoner pleaded not guilty and was remanded. He will probably be placed on board the "Oriana" or one of the Atlantic liners as fireman.

The money was taken in the case, and the evidence showed that Callum boarded the schooner "Agnes May" yesterday morning, and entered the cabin where Felix McNulty found him handling some clothing. He informed the mate, Frank Brown, who upon examining his clothing, found that about thirty cents had been taken from the pockets of his trousers.

When asked what he was doing on board the schooner, Callum said he had a pair of boots for sale.

The schooner, who is a native of Boston, informed the court that he was a seaman by occupation, and had discharge papers which he produced. He worked his way to St. John on steamer "Agnes" and having no money, wanted to dispose of the boots. He decided taking the money and said he was only pushing by the thing to get out of the cabin. He is a mother and two sisters depending on him for support.

At Club's corner today, auctioneer J. P. Poirer, offered the Allan property, at auction, which was drawn at $100.

Polis Will Remain Open Until Six O'clock This Year.

Tuesday next is election day and it is certainly amusing how the aldermen, who are opposed, are bustling around. The glad hand is in evidence, and the best of wishes are exchanged.

Occasionally a man is conscientious enough to say "I can't vote for you." This emphatic statement is certainly more appreciated by a candidate than "well I'll see."

The aldermen elected by acclamation are happy. Their troubles are over until after the election.

This year the polls open at 8 o'clock and close at 6 o'clock. Previously they opened at the same hour and closed at 4 o'clock.

IMMIGRANTS PASS THROUGH.

This morning at 9:30 o'clock a special train with 350 immigrants from the Virginian passed through the city. One of the passengers spoke very highly of the boat and the accommodations provided.

The passengers were all English and were bound for the north west. The second train with 505 passengers will arrive this afternoon at 4 o'clock, and the third with 490 will reach here at 6 o'clock tonight.

The new engine, 215, brought in this morning. Driver P. Bellevue was at the throttle and Conductor Clarke in charge.

Hints to Pipe-Smokers.

Always fill a pipe with a little damp in the centre of the bowl and light this. Get a good light, but have it all concentrated in the middle. Try this with Rainbow Cut Plug Smoking Tobacco, and you will find it works well.
