A MODEL FARMER. Bill Nye and His Farm Stock. Latitude 44.50, N. Longitude 63.32 W., Spring of 1894.

Once more I have returned to my little old red Venetian farm and am sitting on the top shelf of same. The place still stands at an angle of 49 degrees and is well laid out. I took a precaution three years ago to lay all my gas pipes, drains, subways, etc., before spreading on the farm proper.

Farming in this State is not properly begun. We have many beautiful sites for farms, good foundations upon which to build farms, but we begin to plant and sow without having first put in our wires and conduits. Then the showers wash our conduits into the river far below, leaving the farm perfectly destitute of all.

Racing on Skis. Ski are Norwegian snowshoes—strips of plank, tapered upward at the toes, eight or nine feet long, four and a half inches wide, and in the thickest part an inch thick.

On a flat surface the skilobers, as they are called, shove along, accomplishing a distance of several feet at each step. Down hill they simply fly, keeping their feet as near together as possible, and bending their knees. The up-hill work is the hardest. The skilobers have a strong tendency to slide backward. The men turn their toes out, and stamp the snow to get a bite.

Well, this man's name was Flowtow. I rose with the lark, and so did Flowtow. I entered the back like a mad dog, as it were, singing a ballad that one could hear all over the place. One could hear me also spatter the water and sing like a wren. I had just got entirely soaped. My unshaved forehead was a soft lather and my eyes held over a dime's worth of spunge.

Flowtow had attached his hose outside and watered the panies and left me high and dry while I was taking my soap.

Well, he is the man who suggested sheep to beautify my blue grass heath. These sheep were turned loose and bade to run away and scamper over the grass and bring me the next Spring each a nice little, limber tail lamb with a vox populi bleat.

So far none of them has. Some neighbor told us that each green sheep would have two nice lambs per annum, but they have never done so. They even ate all the green peas that were to have been cooked with their lambs and then scampered away.

A Yassar girl who had been brought up on a farm and who got left here at Arden Station while sketching a colored child, which was born at Arden in Spring and is regarded as a great curiosity there, staid at our chateau several days till her trunk came back, and I spoke to her about this matter, for she has a college education, while I have not.

Was she gazing or chaffing me in my old age. Great Hickory Elm, if I had thought she spoke lightly I would cheerfully have charged her transient ruse while she was here! These sheep have a "presence" about them which has driven away a new saddle horse of mine, and we have to tie the horse radiash side. They eat the grass and then get partially up the trees and eat the foliage off.

A sheep cannot even succeed itself in the same room. Mr. Morris lost 25 by a dog in a time. That shows that even the most vile and worthless dog may be of use if he will get up and stir himself.

I sold my sheep yesterday to Bill Baldwin, the butcher. I got $12.00 out of them, and he had to drive them away.

I thought when I got them that they would come up to the library door standing knee-deep in the blue grass and show off to those who came to the villa to see us, but they only came up to the house on cold days when they were molting, and they would shiver and look cold, and their little chins would quiver, and they had never been taught to use their handkerchiefs, and I am glad they're gone, for I soon almost hated them, and they are as much of a poetic fraud as a fool-pigeon is.

Sometimes I think the best works of nature I know of are purely artificial. But farm life probably gives me this idea. We had on the place here a very good many years a kind-hearted cow named Leydie. She was here before I bought the farm and was beloved by all. She was the kind of cow represented in our school books as "being in the lot."

It is so with Leydie. She has never stepped aside from the narrow pathway, and yet I doubt her worth as an article of food. Still he took her home with him, aiming to feed her up a little and then take her life.

Every day when he came with his milk cans one of us would ask, "Is this some of your Leydie?" "No," he would say in a low voice, "this is some of Eli, that strutting old stag of Mr. Leche's. You remember her him, don't you. Every one knew Eli most as well as what they did Leydie."

Time passed; months grew to years. "This is some of Eli, that strutting old stag of Mr. Leche's. You remember her him, don't you. Every one knew Eli most as well as what they did Leydie."

"No," he said, "you are wrong. You know a good deal, but now and then you do not know as much as you think you do."

"I have always told you the truth about Leydie. Every time you have asked me about her I have told you the truth."

"When I bought Leydie of you, I saw that she would close out my business for me in about four days if I killed her with that long-winded sort of hostile countenance of her's. People would white cap me. Therefore I sent her over on Roan Grange to graze, for I heard that over there was a little patch of real weeds that had never been touched. So I sent her over there."

"A year ago I went there to see how Leydie had done. On Roan mountain she had had all that portion of the State to feed on, but I was too late. Before I got near enough to her to kill her she died! She breathed her last only an hour before. Her body was still warm, but you never have tasted of Leydie. Leydie died a natural death."

"I supposed that she had the whole of Roan mountain to herself, but since then I have learned that there was a woodpecker living on the other side of the hill, and you can't graze this country too close. It won't stand it."

North Carolina is a beautiful State, especially in the western portion, where it is so much like Taria (pronounced Tairan) that this is the reason why they are in the soup, but as a grazing child, which was born at Arden in Spring and is regarded as a great curiosity there, staid at our chateau several days till her trunk came back, and I spoke to her about this matter, for she has a college education, while I have not.

There must also have been an actual intention from the first to become a citizen of the new country. To become a citizen merely for the purpose of obtaining a divorce or a temporary home in the new country will be in all cases ruled against most severely by all courts except those of Grand Jurors, N. B.

Naturalization should, so far as possible, be attended to in cool weather and so far as possible at a reasonable distance from where people may be who have never been exposed. People who come to America under a contract or a cloud cannot by any means become naturalized as soon as those who are not so clouded. They may hold office, but they cannot be naturalized.

One singular thing regarding the naturalization of minor children is that the naturalization of the father suspends the minor child, while that of the mother does not. What month's genius evolved this principle of law I do not know. Did you ever see a foreign father by any act whatever indicate that he was in any way responsible for or related to any of his brood unless it be to help in paying and chuck a few times before eating the soul of honor.

"These things are all right," said he, "in a general way, but they do not add to the father's general get-a-shere when he is one of the ablest divines in the world, but with the Upper Congo diocese a stouter man would be more popular."

It is so with Leydie. She has never stepped aside from the narrow pathway, and yet I doubt her worth as an article of food. Still he took her home with him, aiming to feed her up a little and then take her life.

Every day when he came with his milk cans one of us would ask, "Is this some of your Leydie?" "No," he would say in a low voice, "this is some of Eli, that strutting old stag of Mr. Leche's. You remember her him, don't you. Every one knew Eli most as well as what they did Leydie."

STRIKES.

No great inventions, which as a whole are a boon to mankind, but bring in their train drawbacks due to the changed conditions such invention has brought about. This is especially true in the matter of railway and telegraphic communication. During the last half-century these agencies, steam and electricity, have entirely revolutionized the manner of doing the business of the world. The astute business man of fifty years ago, if he were dropped down among us to-day would be ignorant of our business methods and the way messages are sent and goods transported. He would be perfectly astonished at the rapidity with which these things are accomplished at the present day, while the telephone would be something almost beyond comprehension.

While all this has been going on great changes have taken place along other lines. The operation of these great inventions has called for the employment of great numbers of workmen who become skilled in the particular line of work. The working man, too, has been changing. Instead of getting along as their fathers did, every fellow for himself, they have formed themselves into societies and under the direction of leaders are able to act as one man throughout a state, a continent, or in fact the world. The influence that the workmen of to-day can bring to bear is immense. In fact they are to their advancement, more than kept pace with the great changes of the age. When these various labor organizations, from whatever reason, usually because of refusal to raise wages or of a cut in wages, refuse to further carrying on the great works in which they are engaged, it is called a strike. The result of one of these strikes is very serious both to the country and to the strikers themselves. In the former case communication is impeded causing the loss of thousands of dollars to the public and to those companies who are engaged in conveying. The strikers remain out of employment so long that they are brought to the brink of starvation. We have spoken many times in this reference to the railway business because the result of a strike of railway men is more severely felt than almost any other class, but such labor organizations exist among almost all classes of skilled workmen in England, the United States and Canada, as well as other countries.

There is a great deal to be said on both sides of the great questions involved between the employer and employee of which we will make reference at some future time. There is no doubt but in due time all these troubles will be satisfactorily settled by the aid of legislation. The age that is bringing forth these great inventions cannot fail in providing means by which they will be carried on without undue friction.

Coal Mine Property Sold.
The Brock House coal mine at Cape Breton, owned by Robert Belloni, Louis J. Belloni and Henry O'Haver-meyer of New York, was sold by the sheriff on the 16th inst. at the instance of the Bank of Nova Scotia, which holds the first mortgage bonds of $100,000.

It was bought in by the bondholders for $85,000. Robert Belloni offered $85,000.

This is the end of a 34 years history of a losing ownership of this mine by the New York men. Robert Belloni sold a correspondent to-night that he and his partner had lost half a million dollars on their Cape Breton coal properties. For four years previous to the old reciprocity treaty they made money on their mine; but the 30 years since have been a constant loss.

An Unwound Toe.
SYRACUSE, N. Y., July 10.—Alexander T. Ward is locked in a court house cell in this city. He was arrested on complaint of Burton E. Watson, secretary of the Merchants and Travellers insurance company. Ward made a claim for $100 against the company here, claiming that he had cut off a toe, while preparing to go fishing in the province of Quebec. Mr. Watson made an investigation and it is claimed had found that five or six other accident insurance companies have paid Ward similar sums for the loss of the same toe. He is therefore charged with swindling. He was released here from Canada on the promise of an agency.

COREY CAUGHT AGAIN.

Still Engaged in the "Green Goods" Business.

George G. Corey, who about ten years ago got into trouble for "having the queer," is again locked up on a similar charge.

He was arrested on Saturday afternoon at his home on Celebration street by Captain Hastings on a charge of bargaining with and selling Harry J. Allbright between $800 and $900 in valuable money. Allbright is a Queens county man whom Corey convinced by his fluent conversation that there was a mine of wealth to be made by handling the "goods" he supplied with him. Allbright was as speculative as most Queens county men, so he met Corey on Tuesday last and they had a quiet and very important talk over plans and operations. For the sum of $100 in good, hardy cash, honest cash Corey supplied Allbright with between $800 and $900 of his green goods, telling him to shove it for all it was worth. He told him he expected to hear from him in a short time how he was making out with the money. He also told him he expected him to come down, after he had passed it, with not less than $500. After that Corey said he could do business with him at the regular rates, $10 to $15, and have a good profit for his work. He said he was giving the reduction in order to start him. Afterwards he expected full rates. Corey then cautioned him, saying that he tried to arrange with someone else to give him the money, so if anything went wrong he (Corey) would not be in it. Continuing, Corey said: "Now, for God's sake don't expose me. Keep this to yourself." Wishing him every success Corey laid him good-bye and expressed the hope that he might see him again soon, never dreaming that he might see him in a way that was anything but pleasant.

Allbright became scared after Corey had left him with the green goods by his hands. He had an idea of the consequence of dealing or trafficking in bogus money, and, as he realized his dangerous position, he also saw that he had been taken in to the extent of $100. It was then that his conscience troubled him, and he made known some information to the police that led to Corey's arrest, and when taken before the chief he told the whole story. This was about midnight on Friday, and arrangements were at once made for Corey's capture, the Chief Captain Jenkins and Hastings and Sgt. Kilpatrick working on the case. The trains were watched and every precaution was taken to prevent Corey from leaving the city. He was not aware of his danger, however, and was not contemplating flight. Capt. Hastings found him at his home on Celebration street this afternoon and he took him into custody. His home was searched and a large amount of bogus money was found, also a number of letters that will, it is said, throw light on the case when it comes to trial.

Before passing company after their first interview, Corey drew out the following declaration, which Allbright signed:

"Having hereby agreed to engage in the counter business with George G. Corey, I do solemnly promise to be just and true while I have health and breath, so help me God."

And also this:

"Having agreed with G. G. Corey to buy a large amount of bank notes at large discount, I promise to make the matter known to anyone while I have health, strength and breath."

These are the agreements which Allbright says Corey drew out. He signed them and Corey witnessed his signature. The agreements evidently made an impression on his mind, for he repeated them from memory exactly as he said they were written.

Corey about ten years ago kept a rubber stamp store on Sydney street opposite the graveyard.

Dying Past at Hong Kong.

SHANGHAI, June 16.—The plague can hardly be said to show any sign of abating in Hong Kong, and the deaths up to the present, have averaged over 130 a day. One day they rose to 182, while the mortality continues to be fully ninety-eight per cent. of those attacked.

Up to date number of deaths reported is 1,860, but these only represent about a third of the actual figure. There have only been nine European so far among the mortality returns. The exodus from the colony has assumed alarming dimensions, over 100,000 of the wealthiest Chinese residents having fled from the plague-stricken island to the mainland. The efforts of the sanitary officers to disinfect and cleanse the infected quarters have crossed the fiercest opposition to be fully ninety-eight per cent. of those attacked.

The Canadian rifle team which is to compete in the meeting of the national rifle association, in the rifle camp at Bisley, has arrived in camp. Twenty of the Canadians have entered for the Queen's cup and for the other Martin-Henry cup.

The hottest place on earth is the vicinity of Massawah. When the north-west wind blows from the desert the Canadians have been known to go to 180. The men of the Italian garrisons here can sleep only by the assistance of natives employed to go to and fro all night and sprinkle the bodies of the sentries with water.

So far, Shanghai has not been visited by the scourge, and the Portuguese colony almost without sign of Hong Kong, has enjoyed an almost marvellous immunity, not a single case of the plague having occurred here.

Bad Drowning Accident in the Kennecobocais.
The news that Lucy Beer, daughter of Mr. Wm. H. Beer, had been drowned in the Kennecobocais, was heard Thursday with deep regret. The accident was a very sad one.

Miss Beer had gone with a party of friends to spend the day at the Willows. In the party were Mr. G. A. Schofield, his daughter Gertrude, Misses Clark and Mabel Schofield, daughters of Mr. J. K. Schofield, Miss May Beer, sister of the young lady who lost her life, and Messrs. H. B. Robinson, Walter C. Clarke and Charles Schofield. Shortly after dinner some of the ladies went in bathing, among them the Misses Beer, Gertrude, Mabel and Clara Schofield. Miss Lucy Beer was in advance of the others, but had not gone more than twenty feet from the shore when she cried out that she was sinking. An instant later Miss Mabel Schofield and Miss May Beer were seen to be in deep water. The cries of alarm brought Mr. G. A. Schofield, Mr. Walter Clarke and Mr. Charles Schofield to the rescue. In his efforts to save the girls Mr. Schofield himself had a narrow escape. Two of them seized him and it was with difficulty he was rescued. Miss Mabel and both were unconscious. Miss Lucy Beer did not rise to the surface and fully twenty minutes had elapsed before her body was recovered. Meanwhile Miss May Beer was rescued by Masters Schofield and Porter. It was fully twenty minutes before Miss Schofield showed signs of returning vigor. Her escape was a close one. The young lady who lost her life was seventeen years of age, and was a general favorite with all her companions, and feelings of sympathy with the afflicted family are generally felt.

It is supposed she fell to her death from her husband, who was insanely jealous of her, and had threatened to kill some of her male friends.

A few days ago she went to Cottonwood to visit her mother. Logan followed, and that night attacked and severely wounded Dan Lovelock, a stage driver. Lovelock was unable to return, so Mrs. Logan brought the stage back.

On Wednesday she returned to Cottonwood to bring Lovelock home, and drove with the wounded man and a driver beside her. Fred Sullivan, a stranger, was on a rear seat. About dusk Logan rode up on horseback. Mrs. Logan heard a shot and, turning, saw Sullivan fall dead. He had been shot in the back by Logan. Then the murderer shot Lovelock, who was too weak to defend himself, and fell dead in the woman's lap. Logan then mounted the stage box, and taking the reins from his wife, drove to a well five miles distant, into which he said he intended to throw the bodies of the murdered men, after which he would kill his wife.

The woman resorted to strategy, and persuaded her husband to make the horses before throwing the bodies into the well.

General News.

Ernest Winson is to get a new hearing and may yet escape imprisonment in Sing Sing.

Sixteen thousand troops, under the command of the Duke of Connaught, were reviewed by the Queen at Aldershot Camp on the 12th inst.

The colored women are keeping pace with their white competitors in the race for the advancement of the sex. There are 1,759 colored girls studying the several professions in the United States.

Experts Estimate the Cost of Strike by Capital and Labor.
Now that the great strike is virtually over, the estimates are being made, and the following columns of figures which report the losses suffered within the first two weeks of July by the capital and labor of this country.

The columns are not yet complete, and it is too early to draw the grand balance, but enough statistics are in to show that the loss has equalled the destruction twice over of the entire province of the Pullman Palace Car Company. That company is capitalized for $30,000,000 and its total assets are $33,000,000.

The president of one of the greatest railroad systems in the United States told a reporter this morning that the total loss to corporations and employees could not be brought within the $100,000,000 mark.

How much more it will prove to be, he said, "depends upon the number of manufacturers indirectly dependent upon the railroads that have been obliged to close down. Of course, figures can be hardly approximated. The earnings of the railroad companies of the western roads fell off in two weeks an average of, at least, 25 per cent. The pay-rolls that were stopped will represent a loss to employees, let us say, at least six times as much as that suffered by the companies."

"Hundreds of factories were obliged to close from lack of coal or coke, and the wages lost in these were five times the amount lost by the manufacturers. The beef companies lost hundreds of thousands, and California and other fruit crops were either temporary or permanent losses."

CLUBS AND FIRTS IN THE AIR.

Attempt of the Old Town Police to Interfere with the Sale of Liquor Leads to a Lively Fight.

OLD TOWN, Me. July 9.—This city has been in a state of insurrection about all the time since the March election, and the attempt immediately following to clean out the saloons and prevent the sale of a drop of liquor during the year.

After years of open bars this change was not heartily welcomed, and the officers have trodden thorny pathways every day since.

This morning City Marshal Gould attempted to raid the saloon of G. W. Nichols and place him under arrest, but Nichols refused to be arrested until he was satisfied the marshal had a warrant and so told him.

Gould called upon C. W. Hayes and Betters to assist him; then came the riotous battle, clubs and fists filling the air.

The officers were trying to pull Nichols toward the police station, but as he is a powerful man and did not care to go they had to relinquish their grip after they had taken a pint bottle of liquor from his pocket.

Later Nichols' house was visited by a posse and searched and a miscellaneous array of jugs, bottles, etc., seized and confiscated. Then the miscellaneous saloon man was arrested and recognized for his appearance in court to-morrow.

The battle caused great excitement. Eight or ten special policemen were immediately sworn in and placed on duty in the saloon district, with orders to arrest every man handling liquor, even if it were only a bottle in his pocket.

The dealers are obdurate, and declare they will fight all the year rather than submit to the dictation of the officers and their freely-used clubs.

Christian Endeavorers.
CLEVELAND, O., July 12.—Cleveland was gayly dressed in yellow and white, and red, white and blue this morning when the delegates to the big Christian Endeavor convention began arriving in force. To-night it is estimated that from 10,000 to 15,000 have arrived. A source of genuine regret is the absence of the venerable president and founder of the society, Rev. F. E. Clarke, of Boston. Pres. Clarke left his summer home in Maine last week with the intention of joining the delegation from Boston and coming to the convention, but he was taken ill of nervous prostration and his physicians forbade his undertaking the journey. Mr. Clarke sent a message of regret and sympathy.

The convention opened this evening with gatherings in 14 churches and the Y. M. C. A. Auditorium.

The secretary in his report says: Thirty evangelical denominations are represented in our marching columns. In the United States the denominational representation is as follows: The Presbyterians still lead, with 6,652 companies; the Congregationalists have 5,488, the Baptists, 3,550; the Disciples of Christ and Christians, 2,895; Methodist Episcopal, 1,287; Methodist Protestants, 933; Lutherans, 851; Cumberland Presbyterians, 744; and so on through a long list. In Canada the Presbyterians lead with 842; the Methodists are next, with 312; the Baptists 159; the Congregationalists 128. In England the Baptists are in the van, with 391 companies; the Congregationalists have 353; the various Methodist bodies 221; the Presbyterians 85.
