DREYFUS DECLARED COMPLETELY INNOCENT

PARIS, July 12.—The supreme court today announced its decision annulling the condemnation of Dreyfus without a retrial.

The effect of the decision is a complete vindication of Dreyfus, entitling him to restoration to his rank in the army as though he had never been accused.

The decision of the court was a foregone conclusion, as exhaustive inquiries had completely demolished the fabric of the accusation against Dreyfus.

A MOSLEM UPRISING.

Sir Edward Grey's remarkable admission that there is in Egypt an anti-British movement, due to a revival of Moslem fanaticism, so strong that armed repressive measures may be necessary, has aroused keen interest and not a little alarm all over Europe.

Britain's foreign minister mentioned only Egypt as a danger spot. But Egypt is not dangerous, for Egypt has no fighting power. The general menace from the recent recrudescence of religious fanaticism in that country arises from the fact that the great Moslem seminary in Cairo, which is the centre of the religious unrest has in attendance 6,000 students from all over Asia, hundreds of whom are monthly returning to their scattered homes bearing the seeds of sedition and the gospel of Pan-Islamism, so that in Turkey, in India, in Arabia, in Afghanistan, there is, or soon will be a condition that will need but opportunity and a leader to develop into an active crusade against Christianity.

In a letter to the New York Sun, discussing Sir Edward Grey's speech and the conditions which gave rise to it, the author of the dictionary of Islam, a man singularly well-informed on Eastern affairs, says that while he does not share the British minister's fear that the Mohammedans of today may combine for the purpose of attacking the great European powers, he agrees that their present state of mind may be productive of danger to Europe, and especially to Britain, in other ways.

toration of lost territory, and Russia, with that duplicity which always marks its diplomacy, will stand forth as the champion of Oriental peoples. The rulers of Afghanistan have a grievance in the British occupation of Trans-Indus territory, a grievance so great that it is well known that the late Lord Lawrence, during the strenuous times of the mutiny, suggested that this territory should be restored to Amer Dost Mohammed. In addition to this it is a peculiar circumstance that the British government actually sold the Moslem province of Cashmere to a Hindu prince, thus handing over a beautiful region inhabited by faithful Mohammedans to the rule of an idolator, which is regarded by all Moslem scholars and divines as a sufficient reason for a jihad or religious war.

These statements seem at first sight so incredible that they do not obtain patient consideration. But if you read the history of the Afghan wars of 1838 and 1878, and also study Lord Curzon's books on Central Asia, you will find that there is every reason for alarm and caution, and you will no longer be surprised (as Mr. Bryan seems to have been during his recent visit to India) that the British government thinks it necessary to spend more money on an army than on primary schools!

UNFAIR TO THE SENATE.

The Sunday Observance bill, which was discussed and considered in the house of commons for months, was sent to the senate three days before the date set for the prorogation of parliament.

This is unfair alike to the senate and the country. If the reconsideration in the senate of acts passed by the lower house is of any value in our scheme of legislation, it should be conducted with care and deliberation; if it is only a form, it is a useless and expensive form and should be done away with.

This method of procedure is destructive of the principle underlying the bicameral system. If the senate is to be anything more than a mere rubber stamp for the final endorsement of legislation passed by the commons, arrangements should be made either for the earlier passage of all important bills or for the continued sitting of the upper chamber after the other is prorogued, or power should be given the senate to hold over until its next session all measures to which it cannot give the consideration they deserve.

CHAMBERLAIN ENDORSED.

A body of men more representative of the business interests of the British Empire than the Congress of the Chambers of Commerce of the Empire, now in session in London, was never gathered together. Any colonial parliament, even the Imperial parliament is a parochial council compared with this assembly. In it are the ablest and most progressive men from every country over which the British flag flies. And this body yesterday, enthusiastically and by a vote of three to one, endorsed the policy of inter-imperial preferential trade as advocated by Mr. Chamberlain.

bring nearer the day when his policy will triumph to the profit of the Empire, both materially and politically.

Increased economy and efficiency in the suburban and branch line service of the Intercolonial will probably be the result of an investigation ordered by the minister of railways into the value of the motor for short distance passenger traffic. The report of the investigator shows that a motor service will cost only about a quarter of the present steam service, and parliament will be asked next session to authorize its establishment.

It must be dangerous work hoeing in the czar's garden these days. Several dynamite bombs were found there this week, in readiness to blow the little father to bits. Even the farmer plagued by potato bugs is better off than the czar.

ANOTHER DISPUTE IN CARLETON COUNTY

Charles Rigby Shaw Not Guilty of Assault on Nell McKendrick

WOODSTOCK, N. B., July 11.—In the county court this morning the case in which Charles Rigby Shaw was charged with assaulting Nell McKendrick was heard. F. B. Carvell defended Shaw and Mr. Hartley was associated with W. M. Connell for the crown. From the evidence it appears that the trouble arose over a visit made by the bride to a farm in Pembroke, the ownership of which is in dispute between Shaw, who has possession, and McKendrick, who has the mortgage.

William Nason, a ticket-of-leave man, is in custody here for failing to report, and will be taken back to Dorchester by Chief Kelly. Evidence also points in his direction in the case of the recent theft of $60 from James Andrews, an Assyrian pedlar and junk dealer.

COREY-BURPEE. On Wednesday, July 11, Miss Bertha E. M. Corey, daughter of James E. Corey of Upper Gageton, was united in marriage to Thomas Burpee, merchant of the same place, and son of ex-Senator Burpee. Miss Alice Davis of Boston, Mass., was bridesmaid, and Sidney Burpee, his brother, supported the groom. Little Miss Torrrens of Medford, Mass., with Miss Corey, Helen Davis and Mildred Davis of St. John acted as flower girls.

The groom's present to the bride was a beautiful diamond sunburst; to the bridesmaids a diamond locket and neck chain each; to the groomsmen a pair of gold cuff links; to the flower girls gold brooches and pearl rings.

The announcement is made that on Wednesday, the 18th inst., Miss Ethel Collins, daughter of I. C. R. Policeman John Collins, will be united in marriage to Albert Edward Collins, of this city. The wedding will take place at eight o'clock in the morning at the residence of the bride's father, 104 Paradise row.

HORRIBLE OUTRAGES PERPETRATED BY TURKS

TIFLIS, Trans-Caucasia, July 12.—Alarming news has been received here of horrible ravages by Turkish troops across the border, in Turkish Armenia. Soldiers who are collecting taxes are said to have indulged in frightful outrages. The population of the city of Van is represented to have been nearly destroyed by the Turkish troops who pulled down houses, assaulted the women and acted generally like wild beasts.

BETROTHED IN BANKRUPTCY

(By B. B. LEWIS.)

After the death of her farmer husband the Widow Allen moved into the village of Ferguson. Her husband had left her a snug property and a goodly sum of life insurance, and at fifty years she became a money lender. She had no friends as a girl, she had few as a wife, and as a widow and a capitalist she did not speak in her favor. She drove hard bargains and had no pity. If her capital or interest was not forthcoming on the day and date she invoked the aid of the law, and accepted no excuses. She had always been a woman of stony disposition, sure to avenge what she deemed a slight, and when she came to know the general opinion of the villagers she ground her teeth together and made up her mind to get even.

The village of Ferguson boasted of only three general stores. That was more than was needed to supply the wants of the people. There would not have been a fourth had not one of the merchants had a business transaction with the Widow Allen and been obliged to go to law over it. She was beaten by the suit, and she got even she planned to start another store. Not being an educated woman and afraid to try the idea by herself, she lent a sum of money to young George French, who had for several years been clerk in the store of the merchant she wished particularly to ruin. He was bound hard and fast. The widow wanted revenge, but she didn't propose to lose any money over it. She was near fifty years old and the new merchant not yet twenty-six, but she let it be known that when marriage took place between them the firm name of "George French & Co." might be shortened to "George French."

There was a rush of customers to the new store. To keep expenses down and make an innovation young French employed a girl bookkeeper and another girl as clerk.

As the widow insisted on his boarding with her, so that they could talk business and be under her watch, she did not become jealous for a time. She came, however, when she announced that she must get rid of both girls and replace them with men.

He refused to heed her in this, pointing out the saving and other good reasons. One of the reasons that he did not give was that he had admitted the fatherless girl, Jennie Warder, as the bookkeeper, who was supporting a widowed mother by her efforts, and to whom he had been attracted from the first day. His admiration must have been patent to her in a hundred ways, and yet he had spoken no word. The new store was an experiment; if it was a success he might have himself. If a failure he would have no right to ask her to share his loss.

The widow Allen concealed her chagrin and did not press her point. The young merchant was hustling and making things gloomy for her victim. At the proper time he would offer an alternative.

Nine months of liberal advertising, low prices and attention to business on the part of the new storekeeper brought bankruptcy to two of the other merchants, but they brought no such profits to French as he had hoped for. He had bound himself to sell at certain prices and he dared not depart from them. He had had his share of the profit of a certain amount of the capital invested at the end of the first twelve months, and figure as he would, he could not see his way clear to do so. The widow was waiting for him to speak, and then she laughed and hinted at matrimony. When her hints were turned aside she said quietly:

"At the end of the year you must pay me as agreed, and the law will put me in possession and you will be out of employment."

"But you are not pressed for money. You can give me time," he protested.

"I have wanted like a slave to make the store a success. I put in a thousand dollars of my own money. You would not drive me into bankruptcy?"

"If we are not married on the day your notes are due I shall demand my money. If you go into bankruptcy I shall send you to the stocks and put some one else in your place."

Her declaration lost her her boarder, but when he walked out of the house he knew that he was ruined in business. He could not pay her the half of what he owed her, and a call at the lawyer's brought him no comfort. She had spoken of marriage, but he turned away in disgust at the thought. She had said she would ruin him, and she was a woman to keep her word.

There is always a way out for the merchant who finds bankruptcy staring him in the face, and few take it who cannot excuse themselves to their own consciences. The merchant went over the ground week after week, but he always came back to the one thing. If his store was burned out before the year was up, the insurance money would pay the Widow Allen and leave him something to start another firm with. She would not see a man recoil from this idea at first, but if the situation is pressing a large proportion grasp it in the end.

Young French looked around his store and saw the favorable situation of things. All he need do was to leave a lighted candle among the litter under the stairway when he went home at night. By midnight or an hour later, the whole building would be in flames, with no possibility of anything being saved. The Widow Allen alone might suspect him, but she would have no proofs.

The merchant debated the idea with himself for two weeks before he adopted it. In the store he gave no sign that he was troubled, but the bookkeeper was not deceived. She knew what the profits were and she knew who had a clutch on him. She even interpreted the glances he cast around the store, and when she saw him adding to the litter in the closet she could have told him his purpose.

One windy, rainy night when there was excuse for shutting up early, and when only thirty days remained between French and business ruin, he made a pretext for being the last one out and the candle was placed on a lighted. The wind rose and the rain fell more heavily, and he was rejoiced at the thought that none of the villagers would be on the street in such a storm. Between midnight and one o'clock the flames would start. When the alarm was given people could only turn out and look on with folded arms. French went to bed at the usual hour. He left nothing to chance. He lay there hour after hour thinking, scheming and planning. It was close upon midnight when his other self came to the rescue. The two personalities debated and argued and fought. The one self contended and the other protested.

After a quarter of an hour the merchant arose and hurriedly began to dress. He was pale-faced and trembling and frightened. He felt himself a criminal and branded before the world. Bankruptcy might come—he would be forced to most mean employment—the Widow Allen might triumph and he might lose the one he had learned to love, but he would save the store.

The wind was blowing a gale and the rain coming in sheets when he stepped from the door and ran through the mud and storm to the store. Not even a dog was in sight. As he ran he prayed that he might not be late.

With shaking hands he inserted the key in the door and pushed it open. There was no smell of smoke. Striking a match, he made his way to the closet. The candle had been blown out hours ago. It had not burned half an inch. With a new fear at his heart the man turned away and lighted a lamp and leaned on the counter to think. He heard the rustle of garments and light footsteps, and Miss Warden came out of the darkness and stood before him and said:

"Mr. French, I blew the candle out a long, long time ago."

"You found and blew it out!" he gasped.

"Yes, and I have been waiting for you to come."

"I was going to burn the store for the insurance," he said, after a long silence.

"Yes."

"To pay the notes due that woman in thirty days and save myself from bankruptcy."

"I know."

"But I couldn't do it. I thought I could. I meant to do it, but I came here to blow out the candle and save the store. I am a ruined man, but I am not a criminal except in intent."

"I knew you would come," said the girl with tears in her eyes. "It is hard to face ruin, but it is harder to face conscience. Yesterday a lawyer came to see me. He told me that you were one of the heirs to a large estate. He brought papers for me to sign, and within a month she will have twenty thousand dollars."

"Well," queried French, as he wiped his brow and looked around the store.

"I thought," she said, "that you would like to take in a partner."

"But where can I find one?"

"If you—would you like to take in a partner and pay up the notes and be clear of that woman, mother would give me the money, and—"

He saw her to her home through the storm and darkness, and he did not realize that the wind blew or the rain fell or that he had to pick his steps. He realized only that he held her hand and that he had been saved from his other self. His sign reads "George French," but there is a silent partner with him and behind him and daily adding to his happiness.

GOOD FIREWORKS FOR THE EXHIBITION

The exhibition management report that the people of St. John are showing more enthusiasm over the coming exhibition than has ever been known at any previous fair. This is due partly to the fact that bigger features have been secured for this show than for any previous one and partly because an efficient management have of late been hard at work stirring the people up to the necessity of making the affair a grand success. It has been decided that apart from labor day, which falls on Sept. 3rd, as a day for St. John people, and this date is to be known as St. John day at the exhibition, to put on the finest display of fireworks that has ever been seen in Canada. They will be shown every evening during the exhibition. Each evening's display will conclude with the most charming features ever witnessed in fireworks, known as the Siege of Gibraltar.

The management also announce that they have made arrangements with Hand & Co., a responsible firm of Toronto, to put on the finest display of fireworks that has ever been seen in Canada. They will be shown every evening during the exhibition. Each evening's display will conclude with the most charming features ever witnessed in fireworks, known as the Siege of Gibraltar.

THE OUTPUT OF THE YUKON

THE OUTPUT OF THE YUKON

DAWSON CITY, July 9.—All authorities agree that the Yukon output for the present year will beat all records for the camp and many of the operations that it will amount to $25,000,000 worth of output.

Latest advices from the outlying camps show that the season so far has been a most favorable one and the clean-ups are realizing far more than was expected. Another reason for the great increase in the output is the adoption of the cyanide process and a large company is now being formed to work the tailings, which the miners have been throwing away for years under the impression that they were worthless, but tests which have been made show these tailings contain $4 per ton in gold and upwards and can be worked with a good profit by the cyanide process by which means a very large amount of gravel can be handled daily at a small cost.

BLAMES CHAUFFEUR FOR FATAL CRASH

ST. LOUIS, Mo., July 8.—In the wild plunge of an automobile over a twenty foot embankment in St. Louis county near midnight, Alfred Burton, of this city, was killed, John Sweet perhaps the most popular of the city's hard-core, her little daughter and two sons were painfully bruised.

Howard Washington, the chauffeur, to whose carelessness in turning to the machine, which the wind had blown away, the accident was due, escaped uninjured, as had two young women whom Mrs. Burton had invited to drive with her.

When Mrs. Burton visited the scene of the accident today she threatened to shoot Washington, who is now in the county jail in Clayton. As she looked at the body of her husband, which remained beside the wrecked machine, she said: "I am going to shoot Washington. He is a bad man. Why couldn't he be dead instead of my husband?"

At the inquest Mrs. Burton told how the machine, while running fifty miles an hour, swerved suddenly as the chauffeur's hat was blown off, and of the plunge over the embankment. At intervals she gave way to her grief.

Mrs. Burton was carried from the scene after the accident and is not yet able to learn that her husband was killed until this morning.

Throughout the night and until ten o'clock this morning, when the coroner arrived, Mrs. Burton's pet collie dog stood guard over his master's body.

Mr. Sweet, who received several broken ribs and a broken leg in the accident, remained in a nearby barn until he could block this morning without medical or surgical authorities feared if he were sent to the St. Louis City Hospital the county would be required to pay for his treatment.

MELANSON-BORQUE

MONCTON, N. B., July 10.—This morning at eight o'clock St. Bernard's church was the scene of a happy event when Miss Evangeline Mary Bourque, of the teaching staff of St. Bernard's school, daughter of P. N. Bourque, of this city, was married to Henry M. Melanson, merchant, and son of Samuel Melanson registrar of deeds for Gloucester, and member of the firm of S. Melanson & Son, Bathurst. The bride entered the church leaning on the arm of her father, the church being beautifully decorated with cut flowers, ferns and potted plants. Miss Elodie Bourque, sister of the bride, was bridesmaid and J. F. Whalen supported the groom. The marriage ceremony was performed by Rev. Edward Sauvage, P. P., who celebrated nuptial mass.

The bride looked charming in white ecru with chiffon trimmings. She wore a bridal veil and carried a shower bouquet of bridal roses. The bride's maid's gown was of white organdie. She wore a picture hat and carried pink roses. They will reside in Bathurst.

CHURCH OF ENGLAND SYNOD AT FREDERICTON

FREDERICTON, N. B., July 10.—The thirty-second annual session of the Diocesan Synod opened at 10 o'clock this morning in the Church of England hall, Archbishop Neales, in the absence of the bishop, presided. There was a large attendance of both clergy and laity present.

The proceedings opened with prayer, at which Canon Neales, the secretary, called the roll and the minutes of the last meeting were approved.

Rev. Mr. Dibble moved that considering the hardships through which the parish of Marysvale has passed, that the arrears against that parish be cancelled, and wiped out.

Col. Montgomery Campbell moved as an amendment that all such questions be referred to committees on credentials.

The following were elected as the nominating committee. One clergyman and one layman from each deanery: Chatham—Rev. Archdeacon Forsythe, G. J. P. H. Neales; Fredericton—Rev. H. E. Dibble, W. H. Steeves; Kingston—Rev. C. P. Hanington, Col. H. M. Campbell; Shediac—Rev. A. W. Smithers, R. W. Hewson; St. John—Rev. Dr. Raymond, Herbert B. Schofield; St. John—Rev. A. W. Teed, T. C. L. Ketchum.

Rev. Archdeacon Forsythe to be chairman and convener.

ARCHDEACON NEALES AD-DRESSES SYNOD.

Archdeacon Neales briefly addressed the synod. He said that it is the first time in the history of the diocese that he has been asked to preside at the annual assembly. It became his duty as commissary to take the chair, and he would ask the kindly forbearance and support of all. In the usual course of events they would have had the alteration of a standing resolution provided that the reports may be distributed on the first day of the meeting of the synod, but he had been unable to attend the distribution one week before such meeting.

Canon Newman moved the resolution of which notice had been given at the meeting of the synod last year. The resolution provided that no canon shall be changed unless notice is given at previous meeting and one month's notice before the meeting is sent to the secretary. The alteration proposed was that the word or be inserted instead of and, so as to read at previous meeting or one month's notice. The speaker said that the alteration was most desirable, as now it took a whole year before the alteration could be made. Canon Newman's motion was carried unanimously.

Rev. Mr. McKelvie's resolution, providing that the record of baptism be made to include the names of sponsors as well as the godparents, was defeated.

Rev. Mr. Cowie brought up his resolution of which notice had been given in the morning, sub-section B of section 5 of the board of education report provides "That the diocesan scholars fees be paid in semi-annual payments of $50 or less to such students attending a divinity school in Canada, as his lordship the bishop and the board of diocesan education shall determine."

The board of education, Mr. Cowie said, requested that this section be changed so as to read in effect paid to divinity students attending such institution as approved by the bishop.

The alteration was asked so that divinity students attending a non-divinity institution may receive aid.

Judge Hanington, in a lengthy speech, strongly opposed the resolution, and took the ground that the diocesan funds should only be used in aid of church institutions such as Windsor and Robshaw.

A heated and spirited discussion followed in which Revs. Bacon, Kurling, Dicker, Canon Richardson and Messrs. Tilley, Knowlton and others took part. The resolution on being put, was carried by a vote of 34 to 17.

The report and will be taken up in the morning.

This evening a largely attended meeting was held at the church hall in the presence of the Rev. Mr. Cowie, Messrs. Kurling and Rev. A. W. Smithers. The addresses were of a high order and were most attentively listened to by all present.

Protection and Preference Are Gaining Ground—Free Trade Has Been Dead for Twenty Years, and Will Be Buried After the Next General Election, Says Lord Northcliffe.

MONTREAL, July 10.—Lord Northcliffe, better known to the Canadian public perhaps as Sir Alfred Harmsworth, publisher of the London Daily Mail and numerous other newspapers and magazines, was in Montreal today, on his way to visit the immense pulp properties which he has recently acquired in Newfoundland.

The editor of the Montreal "Daily Star" is reported to have said that the "Daily Mail" is a Chamberlain man down to the ground," said his Lordship, "because I think he is right, and I believe it is bound to come that the policy he champions will triumph. As you may have seen, his birthday, on Saturday last, was celebrated all over the world. I myself took part in a celebration in Boston.
