MYSTERY IN DEATH OF LANSDOWNE MAN

Douglas Rideout of Lansdowne Perishes in Flames—Sheriff Foster and E. W. Melville, County Warden, Summoned to Scene of Tragedy—Jury in Doubt.

Owing to certain circumstances connected with the death of Douglas Rideout, who was burned to death at Lansdowne Friday night, Sheriff Foster and an inquest held. According to the story told by one Stockford and his wife, who lived in the house with Rideout, Rideout had at various times acted in a crazy manner and on Friday Stockford decided to move out to a new place called Bannan. He had hauled away two loads of goods and had returned for the third time when Rideout came in the house with an axe saying: "I have got to put an end to this." He started to smash things up generally and Stockford took the axe away from him and threw it out the window.

Rideout then took a four gallon can of kerosene and spilled it on the floor and set fire to the house while Stockford was getting his team from the barn. He then set the barn alight after first turning his own horse loose. Rideout then threatened to shoot at hands and Stockford left. He met a Mrs. Hamilton who said to him: "The buildings are on fire." Stockford did not go back. It developed during the inquest that considerable wrangling had been going on for some time and that threats had been made by both parties.

Several witnesses were heard and the jury returned a verdict that Rideout came to his death by burning, but were unable to determine whether by accident or not. Sheriff Foster and Warden Melville removed the body from the ruins. The arms of the unfortunate man were found in a crip. It is not known whether further action will be taken or not. All sorts of rumors are afloat and the people in the district are much excited over the tragedy.

Following is a verbatim report of the inquest:

November 27th, 1920.
Albion R. Foster, coroner, after viewing the remains of Douglas Rideout ordered an inquest to be held and instructed George Foster to warn a jury. The following jurymen were sworn: Percy Donnelly, Burt Clark, Burrell Campbell, Gordon Abbott, Talmage Foster, Marshall Donnelly and Eliza Foster.

Leslie Stockford, sworn: "I reside in Parish of Peel. I know Douglas Rideout; Douglas Rideout and I have been living together. I was yesterday moving away my stuff from Rideout's house to Bannan. I went up stairs and Douglas Rideout came up with an axe and said he was going to put an end to this thing and to hell I go with it. I grabbed the axe and took it away from him and threw it away from him and he said he wouldn't harm me. He threw a stone through the window; went down stairs and got the axe and went to chopping out the windows; destroyed a barrel of flour and some meal and threw oil all over the floor and set fire to it. He went to the barn and took out horse and harness. The last I saw of him he was going from barn to house."

Cross-examined by jury: "What were you doing when Rideout came up stairs with the axe?" "Getting my own stuff out and there was no dispute about the ownership of the property. I was removing. The last I saw of Mr. Rideout he was going in the house about sun-down. Mr. Rideout and I had not row."

Martha Hamilton, sworn: "I reside in Parish of Peel and live handy to Douglas Rideout. I saw Stockford moving his stuff away and tearing boards off the little barn about 4.45 p. m. I saw Mr. Stockford and wife getting team on load to go away and fire broke out in barn. I whooped 'fire' three times. Mr. Stockford went in barn and led out his horse. I then started up and got about half way and met Stockford and wife coming away. I asked them how it happened. They said Rideout was crazy and had set buildings on fire. As Stockford was leaving Rideout came from barn to the house. I noticed fire first in barn. When Stockford was tearing boards from barn I heard some loud talk."

Frank Rideout, sworn: "I reside in Parish of Peel. I have known Douglas Rideout all my life. When I arrived at Rideout's I found both house and barn alight. I noticed window door was gone from house. Elmer Hamilton and I got there first. I never heard of Rideout and Stockford having any trouble yesterday. I believe Rideout to be of sane mind."

Eliza Sarfield: "I reside in Parish of Brighton. I know Douglas Rideout. I saw him yesterday. I met Leslie Stockford and wife when leaving Rideout's place and they told me Rideout was crazy, had burned his house and barn and was on his way to hell. Mrs. Stockford told me last summer when she moved away from Rideout's she was going to kerosene the buildings and burn them and put him in them."

Thomas Stockford, sworn: "I reside in Parish of Peel. My husband and I have lived eleven years with Douglas Rideout. Yesterday we were moving to Bannan. We had no trouble yesterday with Mr. Rideout. Yesterday while moving our stuff from Rideout's house he came up stairs with an axe. My husband took hold of axe. Rideout said the axe belonged to him. My husband let go and Rideout began to chop the windows out. Rideout threw a rock out the window; went down stairs chopped out all the windows, broke all his dishes, tore down stove and chopped it, knocked his flour and meal to pieces, cut open an oil can, threw it around over the floor (Continued on last page)

ANDOVER MAN SUED FOR BREACH OF PROMISE

Houlton Girl Alleges He Promised to Wed Her and Married Another

Houlton, Me., Nov. 29.—Many speculations are in the Supreme Court each day this week to hear the evidence in the trial of a suit brought by Miss Stella Beatrice Nightingale, of Port Fairfield, against Charles Leith, a Port Fairfield farmer, to recover $30,000 in a breach of promise case. Miss Nightingale in her testimony said she was 24 years of age when she met the defendant. She said that while in Andover, Victoria county, N. B., in August, 1918, Leith asked her to marry him and that they decided to be married in the fall.

She testified that jewelry was given her and that the two planned their home and arranged to set up house keeping as soon as the ceremony was performed. While using the telephone one day she heard her father a husband talking endearing to another girl. Miss Nightingale soon began to notice that Leith was paying attention to another, and finally he married the other young woman. Leith is a wealthy young potato producer.

CHARGE OF KILLING GIRL NOT DENIED

Miss Ida Pelletier and Claude Murphy Tell of Shooting of Miss Phoebe Bell at Grand Falls Last March

Andover, Dec. 2.—The Newman Clark trial still goes on and will continue until tomorrow. All the plea set up by the defense is that of insanity, as it is practically admitted that he killed Phoebe Bell. The Crown finished its case yesterday and the defense had examined half-a-dozen witnesses, and is likely to conclude today. Tomorrow will likely hear the address to jury and their verdict.

Andover, Nov. 30.—The trial of Newman Clark, of Four Falls, charged with the murder of Miss Phoebe Bell at Grand Falls on March 25, began at Andover on Tuesday in the Victoria county court, Judge H. A. Chandler presiding.

During the afternoon session Clark appeared to take no interest in the proceedings. He sat in his chair with his legs crossed and his head on his hand as though asleep.

The crown is represented by Attorney-General J. E. Byrne, K. C., and John Keefe, of Grand Falls, while the prisoner is represented by Hon. W. P. Jones, K. C., of Woodstock.

Miss Ida Pelletier, of Grand Falls, was the first witness called by the crown. She testified that she had a little party at her home on the evening of March 24, which consisted of Miss Bell and Clark, who came together, Leo Gagnon and herself. The evening was spent in singing and dancing, but Clark did not take part. Gagnon left at 9.30, but Clark remained until 10 o'clock, when Phoebe Bell remarked that it was bedtime. Clark asked Miss Bell if she was going to Mrs. Wood's house, where she had made her home. She replied that she was going to stay with the witness for the night.

BROAD-KINNEY

A very pretty wedding was solemnized at Holmestown, Nov. 15th, when Miss Emma Broad became the wife of Harvey Kinney. The ceremony was performed by Rev. G. A. Giberson in the presence of 150 guests. The house was tastefully decorated and the nuptial knot was tied under an arch of white and evergreen. The bride looked very charming in a white crepe de chine costume with bridal veil caught with white roses. The presents were costly and numerous. After the ceremony a beautiful supper was served and all joined in wishing them a happy and prosperous journey.

IN MEMORY OF N. B. NURSE WHO GAVE HER LIFE

Beautiful Monument Erected in Centreville Cemetery Where Anna Bell West Was Laid to Rest

A beautiful monument has been erected at the Centreville cemetery in memory of the late Anna Bell West, a Red Cross nurse, who died Oct. 22 with spinal meningitis at the Walter Reed Hospital, Washington, D.C. The monument was erected by Miss F. West, sister of the late Miss West who is also a nurse at the Beverly Hospital, Beverly, Mass.

At the top of the monument a beautifully designed scroll with the name "West," and at the foot is the following inscription: "Anna Bell West; Born June 18th, 1885; Died Oct. 22nd, 1919." The monument is the work of F. Kinsella & Son, of St. John.

The following abstract from the American Journal of Nursing, giving a record of the late Anna Bell West's nursing career: "On Oct. 21, at the Walter Reed Hospital, Washington, D. C., Anna Bell West, class of 1911, Massachusetts General Hospital, Boston. Miss West engaged in private nursing before entering the service as a Red Cross nurse with Base Hospital No. 44, Massachusetts Homeopathic Hospital Unit, Boston. She served at Fort Oglethorpe, Ga., and was sent to France in July, 1917. After the armistice she signed for six months' service with the army of occupation, stationed at Prum, Germany, with Evacuation Hospital, No. 27. In April she contracted cerebro-spinal meningitis and was sent home to Camp Stuart, at Newport News. Later she was transferred to Walter Reed Hospital. Her buoyant happy disposition never deserted her, and her brave and hopeful spirit was a marvel to all those who cared for her through this last illness. Burial was at her home in Centreville, New Brunswick, Canada."

LAKEVILLE

Miss Flora Clark, a missionary on furlough, gave a delightful talk on her work in India that was both instructive and inspiring. Many went away feeling that our lack of knowledge of the great need for more workers and more funds, and we are hoping that when the missionary societies of this village meet again quite a few more names will be added to our rolls.

Cassie Simonds, an invalid who made her home at Andrew Jameson's, passed away on Thursday.

Mrs. Charlotte Porter, quite poorly. Measles are around again and several in the surrounding neighborhoods have been quite sick with them.

The hunting parties are all getting back. One crowd brought five nice deer. Ed Moores got a big moose and Henry Wilson a fine buck, so the village is well stocked with meat for the present.

Henry Williams is partially disabled with an attack of lumbago. Herb Wilkes and Ross Campbell have gone to the woods.

Our school is getting along finely and all are hoping that the teacher can be induced to remain another term.

Several of the young folk from here attended the social at Avondale on Friday evening—a report a good time. Carvell's expect to run their saw mill this winter.

Mrs. G. G. London and Mrs. Smith were visiting at Harry Jones' on Saturday.

Dr. Wright is preparing to build in the early spring as Mr. Armstrong expects to move in the Dr. Bearsto house.

Merrill Tracey is able to be out again.

Jean, the little daughter of John Gillis, has an attack of tonsillitis.

Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Britton spent Sunday at John Gillis'.

Mr. Page is getting ready to build a potato house in the spring.

B. F. Smith has bought the stock and potato house belonging to Milton Gray.

Not much doing just now in the potato business, but all are hoping that things will brighten up after holidays.

CAN NOW WORK WITH THE BEST OF THEM

Farmer Says He Spent Hundreds in Vain Search for Health Before He Got Tanlac

After everything else had failed me and I had spent hundreds of dollars without any results, Tanlac relieved me of my suffering and has given me a new lease of life," said William Lively, a well-known farmer who has lived at North Beaver Bank, Halifax Co., N.S. practically all his life.

"Ever since I was a boy my stomach had troubled me and during recent years I suffered untold agony. My appetite was so poor I didn't relish a thing, and even what little I did eat fermented, causing sour gas which affected my breathing so at night that I often had to sit up in the bed to keep from smothering. I was badly constipated and suffered so from head aches and dizziness that at times I wasn't able to work. I had a tired, worn out feeling, and was laid up for days at a time not feeling well enough to get about the farm."

"I heard a great deal about Tanlac and decided to give it a trial, and I wasn't but a little while until I knew I had found a real medicine; for I was rapidly improving every day. I have taken five bottles now and am actually feeling better than I have at any time I can remember. My appetite is just fine and I never suffer from gas or indigestion anymore. I'm entirely free from constipation and am never troubled with headaches or dizziness. I have so much strength and energy I can now do a day's work with any man. I'll always stand by Tanlac, for I don't see how I could have possibly done without it."

late yield for the winter reported by the Dominion Bureau of Statistics. The harvest for the whole of the Dominion is represented, by 138,527,000 bushels from 784,544 acres as compared with 135,574,000 bushels from 813,767 acres in 1919. The average yield per acre for 1920 is 176½ bushels, compared with 153¾ bushels last year and 146 bushels, the decennial average for the period 1910-1919.

By provinces the yield per acre is well above the decennial average throughout the Maritime Provinces, Quebec and Ontario. In the Western Provinces Alberta is the only one above the decennial average. Manitoba had a particularly poor potato season, the average yield being only 91 bushels per acre against 126 last year. Saskatchewan's average for 1920 is 127½ bushels this year against 170 last year.

Alberta has a yield of 166 bushels this year as compared with last year's average of 179½ and a decennial average of 151½ bushels. British Columbia's yield this year averaged 184½ bushels per acre, as against 170 last year and 204½ for the ten year average. The total value to farmers of the potato crop of 1920 is estimated at $134,693,000 as compared with $118,894,200 in 1919, the price per bushel

Peps is the discovery! Peps are little tablets, containing certain medicinal ingredients, which, when placed upon the tongue, immediately turn into vapour, and are at once breathed down the air passages to the lungs. On their journey, they soothe the inflamed and irritated membranes of the bronchial tubes, the delicate walls of the air passages, and finally enter and carry relief and healing to the lungs. In a word, while no liquid or solid can get to the lungs and air passages, these Peps fumes get there direct, and at once commence their work of healing.

MIDDLE SIMONDS

Miss Alice Underhill gave a party at her home Monday evening in honor of ev. H. W. True and family who left the following day for Schenectady, N. Y., where Mr. True has accepted a call to the Advent church. After a social evening and a good luncheon, Christian made a very appropriate speech and presented them with a purse after which Mr. True made a few fitting remarks thanking the people for their kindness during their stay here, which has been almost three years. Mr. True has been an earnest worker and both he and Mrs. True will be greatly missed in the community where we need just such Christian workers. We trust the will be the means with God's help of doing a great work for the Master. All joined in singing "God be with you till we meet again." One and all agreed that it was an evening well spent.

The young people of this place spent a very pleasant evening at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Edward Brooks, it being the birthday of their son William.

The many friends of Miss Maud Raymond are glad to hear that she is somewhat improved in health.

Miss Grace Everett of Jacksonville is the guest of her cousin, Miss Gertrude Raymond.

Mrs. Tyson Nicholson and son Winston spent the week-end at Windsor with her daughter, Mrs. Arnold Orser.

The rolling fields, the crowning hills
That seem to touch the sky;
The river in its windings
Doth cut the vale in twain,
And the first bleached sod waits the touch of God
In the sunshine and the rain.

No palace grand or mansion
Doth lift its stately head,
But homes of simple beauty
Bejewel this vale instead.
Here comfort, peace and plenty
Reward the honest toil,
Of those who feed the nation—
The tillers of the soil.

Yes, saved from isolation
By sinuous rails of steel
And distance here is nothing—
The ubiquitous 'mobile'
Doth course the hills and valley
Held by a sturdy hand.
These farmers own the autos
And these farmers own the land.
A ring doth call the doctor
And a ring doth call the store,
A ring doth save a visit
To many a neighbor's door.
And when you pass this valley
And hear the wires sing,
'Tis Mrs. C. telling Mrs. G.,
Why, almost anything.

The factory wheels may slacken
And furnace cease to burn;
And idle men in bread-line
Each wait to take their turn.
These men who fain would labor
Fill the pain of hunger's sob.
Oh! what a striking contrast
With the farmer on his job.
Now some may praise the city,
With its business rush and roar,
And in its crowds and pleasures
See happiness in store.

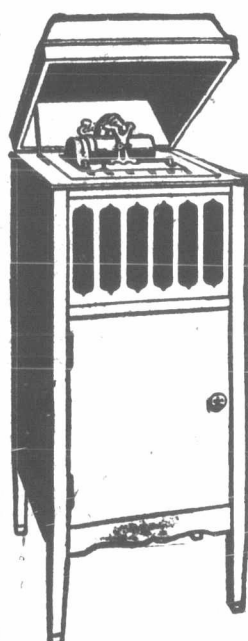

But when it comes to living
And dodging care and harm,
Give me a hundred acres
In a pleasant valley farm.
Oh! Christ who saw the sower
At his most worthy toil,
When golden grain fell from his hand
On various kinds of soil,
In courage, faith and patience
We'll sow the living word
Oh! make this vale to blossom
Like the garden of the Lord.

Ice Damages Flying Boat in River

Woodstock, Nov. 23.—The government flying boat, H. S. 20, which left Ottawa for Halifax for winter storage with Capt. Quigley in charge, Capt. Boyd observer, and Bert McClatchey engineer, and which arrived Sunday from Quebec, making a record trip, is still here. The boat left Quebec at two o'clock, landing here at four thirty. The boat was forced to land owing to darkness and intended leaving Monday morning, but was detained on account of ice in the river. An attempt was made to get away but was unsuccessful. The ice last night made a hole in the machine and it is now leaking, the water being kept clear by pumping. Today the boat was lifted out of the water and repairs are being made. If conditions are favorable an attempt will be made to complete the trip. A heavy storm came up, but the weather is milder and the ice may break up. If there is any chance at all the machine will make a start soon.

THE CARE OF YOUR CAR DURING WINTER

RE STOPPING CARS FOR THE WINTER MONTHS

It will soon be the season of the year when a number of owners desire to store or lay up their cars for the winter months, and there are a few points which should be checked or looked after to make sure that certain parts of the motor will come through the cold weather in good shape. In trying up these cars for the winter we would suggest that the following points be given attention:

CLEANING CAR

First of all give body and chassis of car a thorough washing and cleaning.

DRESSING TOP

It might be well in the case of grey fabrikoid tops to sponge off the dirt and grit from the top and give same a light coat of Johnston's prepared wax. This will keep the material in the top from becoming too dry. It might be well to leave the top up and put the side curtains in place so that the interior of the car will not be filled with dust which would settle in it after standing until Spring.

CHANGING OIL

Draw out the oil from crank (If the motor has been run all season without crank case being dropped it might be well to drop the crank case and wash it out) and refill with fresh oil.

DRAINING COOLING SYSTEM

After re-filling the crank case with fresh oil, start the motor and let it run slowly until it is thoroughly warmed up and then open the drain cocks and drain out the water from the cooling system. You will more than likely find one petcock for this purpose at the bottom of the radiator, one at the bottom of the water pump and possibly one on the cylinder block (some motors may not have a drain cock on the cylinder block as other petcocks are below the level of the water surrounding the cylinder). As soon as the petcocks have been opened and the water draining from them we suggest that you keep adding clean fresh water to the radiator until the water which is coming from the drain cocks runs clear and clean. Then allow the cooling system to drain out completely. Just before the block is entirely drained stop the motor running and you will find as the motor cools down it will dry up the moisture which is left in the water-jacketing. If any of the drain cocks are blocked or do not run, freely clear same by inserting a thin wire.

REMOVING SPARK PLUGS

After the water has been drained from the motor remove the spark plugs, clean same and before replacing the spark plugs pour into each cylinder through the spark plug hole one or two tablespoonfuls of lard oil, on account of the motor being warm this will spread around pretty well over the combustion chambers and pistons, but to make sure the sides of the pistons and cylinder walls are covered with it, we would suggest that you remove the cap on the end of the crank shaft and with the crank turn the motor over by hand a dozen or so turns to make sure that the lard oil is covering the cylinder walls etc. freely. The lard oil forms a coating over the metal and will prevent all working parts on the inside of the motor from rusting during the winter.

CARE OF BATTERY

This is important. Disconnect the positive and the negative cable wires from your battery and remove battery delivering same to your nearest Service Station to be stored until you need it. The additional security of leaving this with a service station far overweighs the moderate expense. If on the other hand you have not a battery service station in town or near you and it is necessary for you to store it yourself, make sure it is kept in a dry and moderately warm place where there is no danger of it freezing. It would be necessary to give the battery the same care and attention during the winter months when it is not being used that you gave it during the months which you were using it, in fact it would possibly be more important, by that we mean keeping the battery properly filled with distilled water (plates and separators covered with water) and the battery kept charged pretty well to capacity. In fact it would be well before storing the battery to have it charged thoroughly and then at regular intervals during the winter have it recharged so as to keep the plates in healthy condition.

It must be remembered, if you pay no attention to your battery, it will gradually become discharged, the water in the solution will evaporate, and the plates will harden, and when the Spring comes you will find it either maimed for life or dead past all hope. As the battery discharges more and more of the acid is drawn into the plates, consequently the proportion of water in the solution will increase. Water freezes at 32 degrees Fahrenheit and an entirely discharged battery left exposed to cold will freeze at a little below 32. A frozen battery can never be repaired. When testing with a hydrometer during the winter months remember each cell should register 1.275.

CARE OF TIRES

At a last precaution it would be well to block up the car by putting blocks under the axles front and rear, at each end rear the wheels so as to lift the weight of the car from the tires, then reduce the air pressure in the tires until there is only enough pressure left in them to keep the inner tube expanded, but not enough to really stretch the rubber.

CARE OF NICKLE PARTS

To protect the nickle parts around the top and any other part of the car assembly it might be well to smear same with vaseline.

OVERHAULING

In case of repair work or any overhauling work which might be necessary to have taken care of, it is sometimes a good idea to have this work, such as grinding valves, burning out carbon, taking up bearings, etc. in the motor, taken care of before storing the car for the winter and as you have protected the pistons and combustion chambers by having inserted the lard oil, the valves would also be in just as good shape in the Spring.

We would suggest that you have all parts of the chassis needing same, thoroughly greased and oiled all grease cups etc. turned down and filled before putting the car away.

PUTTING CAR BACK IN RUNNING CONDITION IN THE SPRING

In again replacing your car in running condition for Spring, make sure to check the following points: that you have closed the drain cocks in connection with the cooling system; that your motor is filled with water; that your battery is fully charged and correctly installed; that you have lots of oil in your motor and gas in the vacuum tank and carburetor. Next take your motor crank and turn motor over by hand making sure that the parts are all free and the pistons not sticking in any way. Pump up the tires and remove the car from the blocks. The car is now ready to run and the motor should start without any difficulty whatever. If cars are given attention during the winter months as outlined above, they will be in that much better running condition in the Spring and all danger of owners being put to unusual expense by replacing frozen batteries, frozen cylinder blocks, etc., would be overcome.

Mystery in Death

and set fire to it. My husband and I went to the barn and got horses out. While I was putting horses on I seen Rideout scratch a match on the bottom tobacco can and put it into hay mow from barn floor. He then went around to stable afterward I seen horse in field. We drove up to house and loaded our stuff on and teamed home fast. I was afraid he would follow and shoot us. I never told Mrs. Sarsfield that when I left I would burn the building.

(Finding of Coroners Jury).

That Douglas Rideout of the Parish of Peel on the Twenty-Sixth day of November went into his burning building and through cause unknown never returned; and after viewing remains and hearing evidence we are satisfied the remains are of Douglas Rideout and that death was caused by fire and from evidence we have heard no foul play.

INCREASED RATES FOR THE FARMERS' TELEPHONE CO., LTD.

Substantial Advance Granted by Board of Public Utilities, and Subscriber Must Pay For Outside Calls

The New Brunswick board of Commissioners of public Utilities have authorized a substantial increase in the rates of the Farmers' Telephone Company, Limited, which operates largely in Carleton county. The company is the second largest telephone concern in this province and made an application for an increase in rates soon after the New Brunswick Telephone Company, Limited, which carried on most of the telephone business in New Brunswick, had taken similar action and the commissioner's decision in the case is of particular interest because of some of the principles involved. For instance, by this latest decision the Farmers' Telephone Company is not permitted to continue allowing subscribers to carry on what is a virtually long distance business without charging tolls, it having been permissible for subscribers in Woodstock to call up subscribers in Hartland or Florenceville without any additional cost. The company are now told by the commission in effect that they must conduct their business upon recognized principles and raise their revenue in the usual manner.

Finding Out

By MELVILLE TRAFONT

"It's young Ned who is troubling my mind," spoke Abner Mills, with something of an anxious sigh.

"Oh, 'dear?'" rejoined Moses Parr, crony and familiar of half a century standing. "What's he up to, Abner?"

"He's in love," enlightened the other. "You know what marriage means—misery, if there's a mismatching."

"Why should there be that?" prodded Moses. "You and I have each a son and our lives have just about centered about them since we became lonely old widowers. Well, when my lad got moonstruck two years ago I just let him have his swing. But I watched and looked up the girl—oh, you bet I did! I hired an investigator and he made me a report. All through one month. There wasn't much that I didn't know about Mina Blake and her forerunners. Bless her dear heart! It was almost cruel to think of looking her up, as if she was some common criminal, but I wanted to be sure everything was all right."

"H'm! you give me an idea," muttered old Abner, "only I'll be my own detective. Here's the facts: Ned was away for two months with a chum who lives down country. While there it seems he met a Miss Eva Dodson vacationing with an old aunt. From what I gather the girl is poor, modest, respectable. Ned hasn't said a word about it, but I ran across a letter he had written and it revealed the whole layout. I see what's coming—engagement, marriage. I shan't try to hinder it, if they are likely to be happy, but I'm bound to be dead, certain about just that."

So, unconscious of the fact that the cherished secret of his soul had been discovered, Ned Mills went on loving Eva Dodson and writing to her. She was surely his ideal! She wore no engagement ring, for she had insisted that Ned inform his family of his decision and try the test of a two months' separation. But Ned had procrastinated the making of a confidant of his father, for he knew his ways, and that his approval of the prospective match might be a slow-moving operation.

"I am going to spend a few days on business in the city, Ned," spoke his father one day. "You look after things around the store till I come back, will you?"

"Sure enough and glad enough," acquiesced Ned in his usual hearty, accommodating way. Mr. Mills departed, proceeded, indeed, to the city, but began a mysterious series of actions which, had the same been followed by a stranger, would have puzzled and startled him. Always precise and careful as to his attire, Mr. Mills spent an hour in the shop of a second-hand clothing man. When he emerged there was little left of the prosperous, well-dressed merchant. A faultless suit had been exchanged for one coarse of fabric, shabby and threadbare.

It was to Ferndale that Mr. Mills proceeded, and that was the place he had learned Miss Dodson was living temporarily. When he located the home of her aunt, old Abner approached it in a labored, limping way that at once excited the sympathy of the loveliest young lady that he had ever met. She came to the kitchen door attired in a neat enveloping apron, beflowered to the elbows, as dainty and fresh looking as the pies and cookies she had just made.

The sad tale of the aged archer, posing as an indigent wanderer, won him a meal, then work, which he did manfully. All he was after was to have an opportunity to study a possible prospective daughter-in-law. Fortune favored him. He was given a room over the kitchen, he was engaged to do odd jobs about the place. He found Eva the idol of all the little ones in the neighborhood, and dutiful to her aged aunt, in fact a model girl in every way. He wrote in his memorandum book the sentiment one day: "Eva Dodson is poor and humble, but she is well worthy my son, and I shall tell Ned so!"

That memorandum book the old man lost one day, and it was returned to him by Eva. Then upon another day he was confronted by a stunner. He was just outside the kitchen when the aunt entered bearing a small metal box.

"Eva," she spoke, "how careless you are, leaving all this money and bonds on your bureau. Is it the $10,000 the lawyer brought you?"

"Yes, aunty," responded Eva, "I suppose I had better send them to the bank for safe keeping," and Abner Mills pricked up his ears mightily at this extraordinary revelation. The following morning he announced to his kind-hearted hostess that he must be on his way. Eva accompanied him to the gate.

"Good-by, Mr. Mills," she spoke, a gleam of mingled merriment and mischief in her eyes.

"Oh, how's that?" exclaimed the astonished Abner. "You knew all along?"

"No, Mr. Mills, not until the day you lost your memorandum book, and I ask forgiveness for my stray glance at it, and will you please tell Ned that his humble country girl has become a real heiress?"

"You have turned the tables on me pretty cleverly," admitted Abner Mills, "and if you are willing to take an old tramp for a father-in-law, I am most agreeable to the relationship."

TOO MUCH COLOR

"Your narrative is too highly colored," remarked the editor, returning the bulky manuscript.

"In what way?" inquired the disappointed author.

"Why," replied the editor, "in the very first chapter you make the old man turn purple with rage, the villain turn green with envy, the hero turn white with anger, the heroine turn red with confusion, and the coachman turn blue with the cold."—London Tit-Bits

Still Hopeful

"My boy," said Mr. Grabcom, "going to pay your poker debts, but this is positively the last time."

"Thank you, dad. Something tells me I won't have to trouble you that way any more."

"Good! Then you are going to quit gambling?"

"Well, not exactly, dad. I have a hunch that my luck is going to change."

Plainly a Personage

"I don't know who that solemn guy over there is, but I'll bet he's some body important," whispered Heloise of the rapid-fire restaurant.

"What makes you think so?" returned Claudine of the same establishment. "He never says anything about it, does he?"

"No; but, my gosh, he can actually look dignified while eating spaghetti!"

ONWARD AND UPWARDES

"What has become of the man who used to rock the boat?"

"He has progressed with the times. He is not satisfied now unless he is musing up the equilibrium of an aeroplane."

Eating or Sleeping

A man is often like a horse. We've heard some people say: But surely both are happy when it's time to hit the hay.

Considerateness Considered

"Have I not been a considerate wife?" she asked, reproachfully.

"Considerate!" he exclaimed bitterly. "In what way?"

"Has there ever been a night when you were out late that I haven't left the light burning for you?"

"And you call that being considerate? You have—but who pays the bills?"

"On what grounds?"

PRODIGES PROVE A PUZZLE

Psychological Experts Unable to Account for Their Amazing Progress in England.

Infant prodigies are being discovered in England almost daily. Some connect this with the psychology of war. One of the youthful marvels is Pamela Bianco, a thirteen-year-old girl artist, whose drawings were given the place of honor in an exhibition at one of the principal London galleries.

Critics dealt with them quite seriously and said that the work was no copy of Botticelli and some of the other old masters. Pamela is an Italian girl who was born in England and never had taken any drawing lessons.

Ronnie Routledge, four, little more than a baby, whose parents know nothing of music, has enjoyed six months of tuition on the violin. At the Grimsby College of Violinists recently he outscored 43 competitors, most of them in the twenties, and scored 115 points in a possible 120. Professor Dutton describes him as a miracle.

Little Robbie Day, aged seven, of Brighton, son of a motor mechanic, has wonderful powers of calculation, according to the Weekly Dispatch. Mischievous, he described a number of articles. These included a treasury note (giving its color, number and writing on the back), the color and texture of a piece of fabric he had never seen, the correct answer to a complicated sum in mental arithmetic and figures written down at random.

After five minutes' rest he complained of feeling icy cold. "I just saw little pictures and I just say them," is Robbie's explanation.

AMERICANS WILL BE THERE

Opportunities Offered in Abyssinia Are by No Means Likely to Be Long Overlooked.

After his visit to the United States one of the Abyssinian rulers admitted that he knew now why there were so many Americans in Abyssinia. As he had seen him at home, the American, so the stranger from Abyssinia seemed, is not given to slow and tedious reasoning. He wants to get about quickly, and Abyssinia, with nothing faster than a pack mule, offers no inducements of rapid transportation. "That, it seems," said the Abyssinian, "is why the American men out of our country. It is too bad. We need better like yours, we need streets like yours, and we need men like yours to direct the building of them."

Commercially and industrially, however, the truth probably is that Abyssinia has not been "discovered," and when that happens the American man will come and build his own rapid transportation.

The more statements of the capital, Addis Ababa, in a city of some 40,000 inhabitants and no railway connection with the outside world is a temptation—Christian Science Monitor.

Birds Have Right of Way

Fowl have the right of way in air, warns the director of military aeronautics. This is justice indeed, since birds flew first.

But this is not all. Recently many towns along the Atlantic coast have been visited with food bird showers. Visitors flying by a town would see a flock of wild fowl coming their way. They would set their machine guns and let the bullets fly.

Presently a prominent citizen walking toward town would be hit with a large, heavy bird. He complained to the town, and the town complained to the department of agriculture. Then the federal migratory bird law between the United States and Great Britain was referred to, and it was found that shooting birds from airplanes is unlawful.

The Wrong Man

When I was an eighteen-year-old girl I was hanging home in my mother's absence and received word from an old friend of the family, of whom I was very fond, that he was to be gone for a day or two. I was very glad when I heard that he was coming, and I was very glad when I heard that he was coming.

I rushed into the room which was half dark, some minutes later and found my arms around the gentleman who rose to greet me and kissed his bound only to hear a strange voice say, "I called to see if I could interest you in a wonderful set of books I am showing today."

I backed to the light and turned it on to view a perfect stranger—a book agent. But Mr. Blank's timely arrival just then saved a hint of my embarrassing situation. —Chicago Tribune.

Things Tense Electric Bell

Three separate and distinct sounds are given by an electric bell which operates on ordinary lighting current by means of a transformer. In the head the bell can be connected with push buttons installed at three different doors—front, kitchen and side, for example. When one button is pressed a clear ring results, when the second is operated a buzz is produced, and when the third button is pushed a combination hum and ring results. In the office or shop this bell will prove most useful, since it can be used to call these different persons without necessitating them to count the number of rings, as must often be done when the customary signaling is employed. This bell has no contact points to burn out and no battery to replace.

A TAG DAY ROMANCE

By JESSIE E. SHERWIN

Copyright, 1925, Western Newspaper Union

It was tag day in the city and a young girl whose attire while neat and well fitting showed signs of mending and wear, stood at the corner of two busy streets, a cardboard in one hand, a white carnation in the other. She was forlornly sad as to face and eyes, staring vaguely at a smiling, pleasant lady who was one of the taggers. The latter had noted her depressed manner and on some intuitive impulse of kind-heartedness had approached her with motherly interest and had said:

"You must wear the insignia of the day, dear. I know you are one of us in sentiment."

And then the true lady unobtrusively slipped flower and card into the girl's hands, mingled with the crowd seeking real subscribers.

The tears came into the eyes of Verda Lund. And her loneliness, a being act of consideration meant much, but it emphasized the dreariness and destitution that faced her. Out of work, a stranger in a strange city, she had been compelled that morning to give up the cheap little room she occupied. She was faint and weak.

"Help the good cause!" hailed a brisk, cheery voice and the abstracted Verda felt her eyes drawn from her clasp and a bank note substituted. Bewildered she looked up to note a smiling, genial young man. For a moment he seemed quite magnetized by her sorrowful, but soulful eyes. They transmitted to her a strange, impressive thrill.

"I won't forget that lovely face in a hurry," he spoke to a companion. "Oh, wait! wait!" cried Verda. "You have made a mistake," but the smiling crowd had swallowed up the two men.

Almost stupidly she stood gazing at the dollar note. There was written from a near restaurant a tantalizing whiff of food. She turned towards it almost fiercely. Then she ran away from the temptation. She pushed aside the hustling multitude, striving ahead to try and discover some tagger to whom she could deliver the dollar. She battled her way even more strenuously. Ahead she made out the young man who had given her the money. Finally she reached him. She put out a hand to halt him. He was still sweeping his lips with the sweet flower.

"Please!" panted Verda, extending the bank note. "I am not a tagger. I had no right to take it." There she wavered, there a sudden flash came across her vision. She swayed weakly. Bryan Latham caught her in his arms as consciousness

BE PROGRESSIVE—ADVERTISE

"Do not move, dear," spoke a gentle womanly voice many hours later and Verda stared vaguely about her. She lay upon a couch in the rest room of an office building. A screen was set across a corner of the apartment and the matron stood regarding her with a smile. "Will you not tell me something about yourself?" she asked. And Verda told her all of her poverty, of the flower and tag and of her temptation to assuage her hunger.

The matron wound a sympathizing arm about her. There were tears of tenderness and pity in her eyes. She went away and returned with a server containing a dainty, but strengthening repast, the first food of which Verda had partaken for a night and a day. "It was Mr. Latham who left you here," the woman told her, "a true kind-hearted gentleman, if there ever was one. He was very anxious and interested. He seemed to surmise that you were in trouble. He has telephoned twice about you and wishes you to remain here until business hours are over."

"I am Mr. Latham's sister," interrupted an intruding voice, and a well-dressed lady appeared just beyond the edge of the screen. "Is this the young lady my brother told me about? He telephoned me and if I can be of any service to you let me be your friend."

She was married and had a family of two little children, and when the matron had taken her aside and talked with her in low tones Mrs. Warner returned to the side of Verda.

"You poor friendless dove!" she murmured, kissing her. "We are going to mend some of the injustice of life that has fallen to your lot. My auto is below and when you are strong enough to accompany me we will soon have you under a roof where you must welcome a long, perfect rest." Verda Lund retired that night the guest of a true souled woman with plenty of spare for those she could help, and glad to bestow it. She did not mention her brother until several days later, and by that time her little ones had learned to idolize the stranger whose gratitude and joy made her love the whole world.

Very unobtrusively Bryan Latham came to the house at last. He did not obtrude himself upon Verda, but he could not conceal an interest her every time he met the glance of the pleading eyes that had thrilled him from the first. "It was just a month ago that you came into my life," he told Verda when they were alone together one evening. "See how I cherish the memory," he added, and he drew out a little blank book and within it lay the tag and the faded carnation.

And when their wedding came about, it was two of the little Warner children who scattered the same remnant of flower in the path of bride and groom.

DIFFERENT KINDS OF SPEED

Aviator and Motorist Didn't Have the Same Kind of Comparison as They Traveled.

The motorist was taking an aviator friend, recently returned from the army air service, out for a spin. Thinking of the 125-mile-an-hour speed to which the aviator was accustomed, the motorist felt that it was incumbent upon him to "let 'er out." His friend, he felt, would feel badly smiling along at the land rate folk are used to traveling. So he cut loose and the car was slipping along at something like 50 miles an hour.

Then the motorist felt a hand laid upon his arm. "Going pretty fast, aren't you?" remarked the aviator, a trifle uneasily. After the motorist had slowed down he asked: "Why, I thought the best speed I could make would seem slow to you. How is it that it appeared so fast?"

"You see, in the air, even at our greatest speed, we seem more or less stationary unless we look below us and see objects flitting past," explained the aviator. "You know speed can only be reckoned relatively—by things one is leaving behind. Now, the gulf you were moving a few minutes ago looked mighty fast, uncomfortably fast I might say, to me. I kept noticing things we were leaving behind."

"Well, I'll be darned," said the motorist. "I never thought of it in that way before."

And the hand of the speed clock jiggled back to the 25-mile mark.—Kansas City Star.

If It Only Were!

The late Ella Wheeler Wilcox, though the most popular poet of modern times, steadfastly refused to enter New York society. The most exclusive Fifth avenue portals were open to her, but Mrs. Wilcox passed them indifferently by.

A New York magazine editor, once sought her out with an invitation to a Fifth avenue dinner party.

"I'm sorry," she said, "but I can't go."

"Oh," said the editor, "you must accept this invitation!"

"Why must I?" said the poet.

"Our host," the editor answered, "is rich—rich—a multimillionaire. You must accept."

"Well, I would," said Mrs. Wilcox, with a smile, "if it were catching!"

He Was No Mollusc.

A neighbor's son was entertaining about twenty of his little boy and girl friends at his birthday party. The children were supposed to return to their respective homes at eight o'clock in the evening; however, they were having such a good time when the going home hour arrived, its passing still found them hard at it. The mother of the little host suggested to him the advisability of intimating to his little friends the lateness of the hour. This is how he did it:

"Say, it's nine o'clock; I'm getting sleepy, and you kids have got to go home!"

"What's that? Go home this early?" said one of his indignant little guests. "I thought this was to be an all-night affair!"

Some Did.

"So you've been in the army, eh?" asked the old gentleman kindly. "And tell me, did you do much shooting while you were over there?"

"I won $30 the first day I landed in France," answered the gambler, proudly.—Home Sector.

"My, You Are Looking So Much Better!"

"YES, I am feeling fine, too."

"And how is baby?"

"He is just dandy and as good as can be."

"And what have you been doing to look so well?"

"Oh, I got run-down nursing baby and began to get discouraged. I was feeling so miserable. I suppose it was my nervous condition that got baby restless, and then, of course, it worried me trying to look after him."

"I thought you looked so worn-out when I was in last time."

"Well, I was feeling so discouraged that I sent for mother to come and she was not here a day before she had me using Dr. Chase's Nerve Food."

"I should have told you about it, for we always use Dr. Chase's Nerve Food when any of us get nervous or run-down."

"For the first few days I could not see that it was doing much good, but soon I found myself sleeping better and feeling less worried and irritable during the day."

My appetite improved and as I gained strength baby seemed to sleep better and be less trouble. He is just fine now and as good-natured as any baby ever was."

"How do you take the Nerve Food?"

"One pill after each meal and at bed time. I will soon be able to discontinue using it, but want to be sure that my system is thoroughly built up before quitting."

"That is great. It gives me more confidence than ever in Dr. Chase's Nerve Food, and that is saying a good deal, for you know what it did for me when I had that nervous breakdown. Has your mother gone home?"

"Yes, and I tell you it was a lucky day for me when she came to the rescue with her help and good advice. Her experience with Dr. Chase's Nerve Food proved to be a blessing for me."

Edmundston, Nov. 25.—During the recent cold snap ice formed in the slack water above the Fraser Power dam in the Madawaska River but very little formed in the main St. John river. Rivermen state that the water in the St. John is exceptionally high for the time of year and the freezing over will be late this year on that account. The apparent dullness in business throughout the country at large due to declining prices of commodities has not affected business here. Many of the merchants have recently moved their places of business to larger and more up-to-date quarters. Messrs Stevens Bros., druggists, have moved from Victoria street where they were occupying the store formerly occupied by the Edmundston Pharmacy to new quarters in the Madawaska block which has just been completed. ## LOCAL AND PERSONAL ITEMS

Rev. W. J. Hurlow and family will leave soon for New Glasgow where he has accepted a call to the Baptist church in that town. He has just closed a most successful nine years' pastorate at Tracey Mills where by his genial personality he has made a host of followers and friends. On Tuesday he was tendered a reception at the home of Percy Simonds by the members of Tracey Mills church, while the following evening a similar function was staged by the Knoxford flock at the home of T. C. Cain. Concrete evidence of the good-will and esteem that the brother has gained was given in the presentation of purses at each reception aggregating four hundred dollars. Most pleasant evenings were enjoyed by the participants on each occasion. On Sunday evening, at the home church at Tracey Mills, a crowded house with a great many unable to get seats greeted the pastor when he preached his farewell sermon. The neighboring churches at Centreville and Royalton had been closed for that evening out of compliment to the retiring pastor and a goodly number attended from each congregation. Mr. Hurlow gave an inspiring address from Hebrews XIII. 3. Rev. Mr. Bell of the Centreville church sang an appropriate solo and Rev. Mr. Keirstead of the Royalton church spoke in a pleasant vein of the good brand of fellowship that had existed between the several churches and pastors. The best wishes of a host of warm friends will attend Mr. Hurlow and family in their new venture.

Some of the farmers are wearing a cynical, pessimistic smile nowadays on account of the decline of produce prices. Such claims as these are usually followed by storms to satisfy the most sanguine, when the old price barometer will go kiting until the poor consumer has good reason to do his share of groaning. Trade in all lines of agricultural products will doubtless be a little dull now until after the new year.

The long, long trail of pleasant weather is still a-winding, for which all are most grateful, while wood and coal are doing aeroplane stunts at $20 and $27 respectively. A good many are wishing that the pitch of the old craft would do a nose dive and break his neck.

Mr. Bridges and son Gerald of Gordonville were in town Saturday on business.

G. W. Jameson and wife of Vancouver who have spent a most pleasant summer and fall here with their son, Guy Jameson, left on Monday for their home in the west. Mrs. Guy Jameson entertained a number of friends in their home on Sunday.

Mrs. F. D. Tweedie of Woodstock spent the week-end here with Mrs. James O'Hara and had a very pleasant stay renewing their friendships.

Ward Webb has purchased the old Tannery property from G. F. Briggs and will remove it and reconstruct it into a barn.

Bertram Perry and family left last week for their home in Connell where they will spend the winter.

Burt White who has been at Grand Falls for some time was a visitor at his home here the first part of the week.

F. D. Tweedie of the Imperial Products Co., Woodstock, spent Wednesday here on business.

Mr. and Mrs. Albert Fields of Woodstock are spending a few days with Mr. and Mrs. Jas. O'Hara.

The Centreville Hotel is doing a very thriving business these days and the management is anticipating a very prosperous winter season. All who have been guests of the house are loud in their praises of the new proprietors.

Charge of Killing Girl
go to the Woods house. At 2.30 p.m. Claude Murphy and the witness went to the Woods house and found Miss Bell and Newman alone in the kitchen. Mrs. Wood and Clark's little boy were in the sitting room. Phoebe Bell, Claude Murphy and the witness went outside and played ball for about twenty minutes and coming in they went into the sitting room. Phoebe Bell asked Clark to come in with them. He came in and played a photograph. Phoebe Bell was sweeping the floor when Clark pushed her in fun. She became angered and he laughed, which caused her to say: "You may laugh now but you will never laugh at me again." Miss Bell went into the bedroom to get her coat and Clark followed her.

The witness who was in the sitting room, heard Clark ask Miss Bell to marry him and she refused. Then she heard three shots in rapid succession. The witness and Claude Murphy went to the door of the bedroom and saw Phoebe Bell fall back on the bed. Clark told them he would not harm them, saying: "You see what I have done; now watch me and see me go." He recharged his revolver and they ran out. Witness heard two shots fired. On coming back she saw Clark lying on the kitchen floor. Claude Murphy corroborated the evidence of Miss Pelletier.

Clark's little boy offered him some empty revolver shells soon after the tragedy. Murphy heard Clark say that he did not know why he did it and that he had been carrying the revolver three weeks.

Allan MacLauchlan, provincial constable, of Grand Falls, told of going to Wood's house after the shooting. Dr. B. A. Paddington, who performed the post mortem examination on the body of Miss Bell, said he found wounds made by four bullets. He also gave medical attention to Clark when he was in the hospital and noticed that he was of a very morose and melancholy disposition.

The prisoner was always able to answer questions intelligently. Mr. Jones asked the witness if mental weakness was hereditary and if a fall was liable to cause such a weakness. Witness said that such was the belief held by experts.

Dr. A. Chapman, who was called in to attend Clark after the shooting, said he heard Clark say, "Where is my darling?" and "why did I kill my sweetheart?" The trial will be continued tomorrow.

Clark, it is charged, shot and killed Miss Bell in the home of a relative after she had refused to become his third wife. He made an attempt on his own life. He was taken to the Grand Falls hospital and placed under guard, but was kidnapped. An attempt was made to get him over the border into the United States, but in his weakened state he was unable to stand the journey and was forced to rest at a farmhouse near the border.

Here he was recaptured and taken back to jail.
