OTTAWA AUXILIARY BIBLE SOCIETY.

NOTICES.

It is particularly requested that all Branch Societies and Depositories will effect an insurance on their stock of books. In most cases it may be included as a special item in the policy which the Depository takes out on his stock-in-trade, but when that cannot be done, special insurance should be effected.

Bibles and Testaments, in different languages, may be had at the very lowest prices at the Depository, Mr. James Hope's, corner of Sparks and Elgin streets, Ottawa.

Committees are requested to have their subscription lists completed and collected, and reports of their business for the year drawn up prior to the Secretary's visit. In this way trouble and delay in preparing the Auxiliary's Report would be prevented.

Committees of branch societies contributing $50 and upwards to the Auxiliary, are requested to nominate one of their number for membership in the Auxiliary's Committee, and to notify the Recording-Secretary in Ottawa of such nomination on or before the second Tuesday of February in each year.

Committees, and especially their Secretaries, will, it is hoped, see that Reports and Leaflets are widely circulated without delay. It is desirable that among non-subscribers who will read them, as well as subscribers, the reports be distributed.

FORM OF BEQUEST TO THE AUXILIARY.

I give and bequeath to the Ottawa Auxiliary Bible Society, the sum of to be paid within twelve months after my decease, and the receipt of the Treasurer of said Society, for the time being, shall be sufficient discharge for the payment of the same.

RULES AND REGULATIONS

1. This Society shall be denominated the "OTTAWA AUXILIARY BIBLE SOCIETY," the object of which shall be to co-operate with the British and Foreign Bible Society in promoting the distribution of the Holy Scriptures both at home and abroad.

2. Conformably to the principles of the parent institution, the Bibles and Testaments circulated by the Society shall be without note or comment.

3. All persons subscribing One Dollar and upwards, per annum, shall be members of the Society; or twenty dollars at one time, shall be members for life.

The business of the Society shall be conducted by a President, Vice-Presidents, Treasurer, two Secretaries, and a Committee of not less than twenty members, with power to add to their number. Five members of the Committee shall form a quorum.

5. All resident Protestant ministers shall be considered ex-officio members of the Committee.

6. No lay member of the Society shall be eligible as a member of the Committee, unless he be a life member, or pay an annual subscription of not less than Two Dollars.

7. The Committee shall have the power of nominating such persons as shall have rendered essential services to the Society, as Honorary Governors for life.

8. The Committee shall meet once every month, or oftener if necessary, on some day to be fixed by themselves.

9. The whole of the subscriptions and donations received by this Society, and not required for its own operations, shall from time to time be remitted to the Parent Society.

10. For the purpose of giving full effect to the benevolent designs of the British and Foreign Bible Society, in their grant of the Scriptures for distribution among the poor, the Committee shall make it their business to inquire what families or individuals are in want of Bibles or Testaments, and it shall be the duty of the Committee to furnish them therewith at prime cost, reduced price, or gratis, according to their circumstances.

11. A general meeting of the subscribers shall be held annually, in the City of Ottawa, when the Committee's proceedings and the Treasurer's accounts for the previous year shall be reported, and a new Committee be appointed.

12. No alterations shall be made in these laws, except at a general meeting of the Society, called by special notice, to be advertised in two of the city newspapers one month previously.

N.B.—The Committee shall meet regularly on the second Tuesday of every month in the Committee Room at the Depository, at 4 p.m., and oftener if business require it.

THE TWENTY-NINTH ANNUAL REPORT

—OF THE—

Ottawa Auxiliary Bible Society

SUBMITTED 11TH MARCH, 1884.

The British and Foreign Bible Society has existed eighty years. When its issues for the twelve months now closing shall have been announced, it will be found that its aggregate circulation, from 1804 to 1884, has been well nigh one hundred million volumes of God's Word, in whole or in part.

The satisfaction which that fact, or which the much smaller achievements of an Auxiliary like our own, should yield to the friends of truth it has been often attempted to weaken or destroy by the consideration that a very considerable number of the books thus dispersed have been thrown aside unread and neglected, or torn to fragments and scattered to the winds of heaven, or cast into the fire and burned.

Fully conceding all that may be said as to the sadness of the embittered hostility or apathy evinced by many towards Heaven's message of mercy to mankind, yet we can by no means grant that anything that the enemies of the truth may say or do should be allowed to hinder or even discourage us in the prosecution of our work: on the contrary it should have the effect of deepening our compassion for them in their blindness, and stimulating our zeal on their behalf.

The apparent waste, that occurs in the scattering of the seed of the Kingdom, might have been anticipated. It is analogous to what we see in the natural world. How small a percentage of nature's autumnal or vernal sowing from the trees of the forest, or the herbs and plants in the fields and by the highways, ever comes to maturity! And when a sower goes forth to sow, he never calculates on every germ in the living seed strewn by him yielding him a return for his industry. In the use of this very analogy, the great Master sought to prepare all

OTAWA

His workmen for seeming failures : some of their seed, he told them, would fall on the highway, and among rocks and briers, and only a part on productive soil. Besides, was not this His own experience ? Was not the truth given forth by Him in Jerusalem and Judæa, in Galilee and Peræa, trampled on and set at nought by multitudes ? It is no wonder that His truth is similarly treated still. And as He Himself—the Word incarnate—was maltreated and crucified, it is no marvel that the written word, which reveals Him, is despised and rejected, cast out or burned.

Reassuring though such considerations should be to us, even when thus cursorily stated, yet we should not require them as incentives to perseverance in commanded duty in the face of formidable difficulties or fierce opposition. It should be enough for us to know the Lord's will, and then doing it we should leave all the consequences and results of our obedience in the hands of Him, who can make the very wrath of man to praise Him. His command is that we should "declare His glory among the heathen, His wonders among all people." It is not that we should bring the heathen to glorify Him, but that we should make Him known to them. His requirement is not that we should convince or convert the world, but that we should "preach the Gospel to every creature"—that we should put God's words before them "whether they will hear or whether they will forbear." Whatever come of it, true and faithful service will be honoring to Him and accepted by Him ; and, sooner or later, the work of His servants' hands He will surely establish.

Of the various ways of giving effect to the Divine injunction to spread the truth universally, there is none simpler, or more available, than co-operation with the Societies that are aiming at giving the written revelation of God's mind and will to all lands and in all languages. Among these institutions, the British and Foreign Bible Society, with which it is our privilege to be associated, continues to occupy the foremost place. What we have done, as one of its Auxiliaries, during the past year, has been necessarily very limited, and, such as it has been, it must be now described.

As usual, we have had to lament the removal of some of our best friends. A few have gone to other fields of usefulness, where their help to sister Auxiliaries will be appreciated. A few have been summoned up higher : their co-operation in our common cause will be greatly missed. Of two of these special mention should be made. The Rev.

W. W. W.

Canon Johnston, of Hull, as President of a Branch, and as a frequent participant in our Anniversary services, identified himself fully with our Society, and lent it, in his own large-hearted and catholic-spirited way, highly valued assistance. The Rev. R. Shields, of Ramsay, little heard of and little known by the noisy world, was, in his rural retreat, a thoughtful and earnest student of truth, a firm and steadfast upholder of what he regarded as right, and emphatically a warm and liberal supporter of the Bible Society. His lively interest in it he evinced by his attendance at its annual meetings in Almonte, by his gifts and occasional addresses on those occasions, and by the token of his regard, which he has left behind him, and which will be afterwards specified.

Your Committee met twelve times. Their duties have been largely of a routine character ; so that they have but little new or striking to report.

THE TRAVELLING AGENCY

was attended to, as previously, by the Recording Secretary. He has once more gone the round of our affiliated societies. Eighty-eight appointments have been fulfilled by him : twenty-nine of them on Lord's Days. For one service—that at Hopetown—he had to avail himself of the aid of the Rev. Mr. Curry, who kindly consented to act as his substitute. In the whole series, there was but one entire failure. It occurred at Russell : but was afterwards made up for, on a second appointment at that place, by the largest and best Bible meeting ever held there. On too many occasions the attendance was small, partly owing to the prevailing storms, during a portion of the season, and partly owing to the little interest and enthusiasm yet awakened in certain quarters on behalf of the Society. The proportion, however, of large and successful gatherings is on the increase. Wherever they occur, our work seems gone into with greater heartiness, and to yield more satisfaction to those who engage in it.

Several new districts in the counties of Ottawa, Pontiac, and Renfrew have been visited not without encouragement ; and the prospect of a still further extension of our field, in recently opened up sections of the last named county is hopeful. In this last remark, reference is made to Rockingham and Combermere, and also to the villages springing up on the line of the Canadian Pacific Railway to the west of Mattawa. It would be unreasonable and vain to expect large pecuniary returns from such new settlements. But, notwithstanding that, Bible organizations should be planted in them and fostered, that these may grow with their growth, and exert from the first that healthful and uniting influence, so much needed in every community.

THE BRANCH SOCIETIES.

are now 68 in number. Three have been added to the number during the past year: namely, those at Admaston, Thorne and Leslie, and Mattawa. The first named had been a section of the Douglas Society for many years. It has latterly done its work so well, that it has earned a right to a more independent position. Thorne and Leslie had never been visited in the interest of the Bible Society till last September. Three considerable meetings were then held in these townships. It was unanimously agreed to organize one society between them. The population is scattered and not very large; but obviously industrious and prosperous. It was thought desirable to have a depository in each township, and in this way extend the Branch's usefulness. Much should not be expected from it for some time: but it will grow and be gradually more productive. The Mattawa district is also new to our work: and, in the mean time, the good people there are so engrossed with the building of churches and parsonages, that they have yielded us no pecuniary assistance this year, and cannot be expected to do very much in response to outside claims for some time to come: but the pressure that is upon them presently will, by and by, cease, and then more liberal things may be looked for at their hands. In a centre so important as theirs, their institutions would not be complete without a Bible Society.

There are also three associations. They are at Alice, Rockland, and Cantley. The second of these is in connection with the Clarence Society and promises to be very helpful to it. The last named has been instituted on the express understanding that its connection with Chelsea will terminate at the end of this year, and that it will be then constituted as a branch. A similar course may possibly be taken by the association at Alice.

The returns from the Branches are not quite as satisfactory as last year. Forty-eight of them had their business for the year completed before their annual meetings, an indication of progress not to be despised, for the greatest shortcomings are generally found, as they have been this season, in those who fail to attend to their collecting at the proper time. one of them, namely Bearbrook, has disappointed us entirely. Thirty-four have increased their donations in the aggregate to the amount of $259.69; but unhappily thirty-three have diminished theirs by $294.71, so that there is a net decrease of $35.02. It is true that that amount is more than made up by the legacy received from one who was a member of a Branch-Society; but that by no means atones for the remissness and dilatoriness of some of our friends, and for the disappointment arising from the fact that the increased zeal and liberality of one-half of our helpers are more than counterbalanced by the diminished contributions of the other half. It is but fair to add that the collectors were greatly impeded in their work by the state of the weather and roads during a considerable part of the winter, and that, for the same reason, a few committees had not a little difficulty in finding collectors at all. At the same time, these and other difficulties would have been largely prevented had the advice, which has been often given, been acted on, namely, to complete the business of each Branch before its anniversary, and to do the collecting at latest by the end of December.

As regards the depositories of Branches. Their sales have been 1,871 volumes, and to the value of $813.37. Twenty-eight increased, in the aggregate, by 503 volumes. That advantage, however, has been more than lost by a decrease on the part of thirty-one others, to the number of 546 volumes. The net decrease was thus 43 volumes, a small number, which may be, in part, satisfactorily accounted for by the success of our colporteur during the recent summer.

On the whole your Committee regard, with a good deal of satisfaction and gratitude, the present state of these Branch-Societies, and the important aid they give in the carrying on of the Auxiliary's work. They regret that they are not all alike efficient. But the great progress, that has been made by many of them in the past, encourages the Committee to entertain a confident hope of steady advance, in the weakest of them, for the future. Most of them need fostering care: but it is hoped that that care will be steadily extended to them by those brethren and friends, who have it most in their power to render this ministry.

COLPORTAGE

has been maintained as formerly. One Colporteur was employed, during summer and autumn, in the Townships of Gloucester, Osgoode, North Gower, and Nepean. His success was marked, and fully justified

Their gratuitous distribution amounted to 118 volumes, and to the value of $22.17.

The last named on this list has not yet reported the number of visits made by him : to complete the statement his blanks had to be filled up : but the figures inserted certainly do not give an exaggerated view of what in that respect he accomplished. This record as a whole compares favorably with that of last year. Some of its items are in advance. That remark applies particularly to the proceeds of sales, which are $164 more than could be reported a year ago. These results are the more notable because of the unusual difficulties encountered this winter from frequent and severe storms. These were indeed formidable, and often caused serious inconvenience and much delay. To give an idea of the classes of people visited and the circumstances under which they were found a few extracts may be quoted.

One writes :—“ On the afternoon of the 27th December I was on my way to the Joseph Depôt. Perplexed as to which of three roads I should take, I had to inquire at the only house in sight. Contrary to my expectation, I found it occupied by an English family. I went in and spent an hour with them conversing, reading the Scriptures, and praying. They had Bibles, but had not been in a place of worship for many years. They told me of relatives of their own, whose house I would pass on the following day. I promised to call. It was only after much inquiry by the way that I found it, next morning, in a most desolate spot. There was no sign of a track to it from the main road : so I had to leave my horse, and plunge through snow, up to my waist for two or three hundred yards, carrying my pack. The good woman of the house was all alone, her husband being away in a shanty. When I told her my mission, she wept, though trying hard to restrain herself. Ten years ago she had come hither from Montreal, where she had been a domestic in Principal Dawson's family. Since then, she had never had any public religious privileges." Again, the same labourer writes—"In M's shanty, I noticed a French-Canadian, who seemed deeply interested in the tracts I gave him. After reading each of them, he got those of the men about him, and read theirs also. I gave him some more and a Gospel, all of which he appeared very thankful for, and continued reading till late that Saturday night. In the same shanty, an Englishman lay on his bunk reading a large type Testament till long after midnight, when I, who was opposite him, fell asleep. When I awoke, to my surprise he was still reading by the bright light of the camp fire." Once more he states :—"Last winter I visited a shanty in which the only Protestant was the cook. I disposed, however, of a good many Bibles and Testaments. This season I came across the same cook in another shanty. He asked if I remembered the books referred to. I answered I did. 'Well,' said he, 'a week or two after you left the priest came round, and the result of his visit was that they were all, with scarcely an exception, cast into the fire.'"

The laborer among the French-speaking people found them generally willing and even desirous to receive the Scriptures. There were some exceptions : and a few inclined to persecute, if it had been in their power. The two great hindrances were ignorance and the scarcity of money. Not a tenth of the people can read intelligently, and therefore need no books. In winter, owing to the want of employment, their circumstances are more straitened than in summer. He adds "I could have given gratuitously, I suppose, two hundred copies ; but I did not think it prudent to do so for the reason that, when the priests or nuns find a copy in a house, their almost invariable practice is to order it to be burned, which is readily done, when it has not been paid for. There were two Testaments burned when I was in Aylmer, in compliance with such an order : the one had been paid for : the other had not. It is hoped, however, that some truth has been lodged in minds that will not be forgotten, nor destroyed."

One of the Reports, which has been very late in reaching us, it seems well to give almost entirely. It cannot now be inserted here, but will be found in the Appendix.

The number of workmen in the shanties visited was very large : as many as 75 persons were found in one of them. Two Colporteurs brought back from lumbering districts donations to the amount of $229.

The Committee's attention has been directed to the need for Colportage in the regions in the Ottawa valley which are being opened up by the Canadian Pacific Railway. Inquiry is being instituted with reference to them. The prospect is that a large field of usefulness will be found there accessible.

THE ISSUES FROM OUR DEPOSITORY

have been as follows :—

In English.....	3,752	2,422	48	6,222
“ French.....	111	249	59	419
“ German.....	45	24	..	69

Making altogether.....	3928	2719	108	6755

These issues are less than those of last year, but are 1,833 copies in advance of those of the year before that, and are considerably in excess of our average circulation. The entire issues of the Auxiliary from the commencement now number 112,137 volumes.

AS TO FINANCES,

the Treasurer's account will be found below in full. A brief abstract of it may be here inserted. The receipts for the year, including last year's balance, have amounted to $9,149.99. Of that sum there have been received from sales $2,987.32 ; from free contributions from all sources $3,769.43 ; and from City Collections $671.60. On the other hand, there have been expended for stock $3,166.04 ; as a free Contribution to the Parent Society $2000 ; for Colportage $750.16 ; for salaries, rent, duty, freight, insurance, printing, travelling and other expenses $1,790.30 ; and the balance remaining in the Treasurer's hands is $1,488.49. There is included in the receipts the usual gift from the Parent Society in aid of colportage here, for which our thanks are due and are hereby given. There is also included an increased donation from our sister Auxiliary at Perth, for which our grateful acknowledgments are hereby tendered. A further expression of our gratitude to our esteemed friends at Perth we may have an opportunity of affording when they need assistance in the matter of colportage in their own vicinity. Should such aid be required, in accordance with the intimation given us, it will be very willingly yielded. There are two other sums among the donations received by us that should be specially noticed. The one is a legacy of fifty dollars from the late Rev. R. Shields of Ramsay, which is very acceptable as a fitting closing to a long series of liberal gifts, and to works of faith and labours of love rendered for the Truth's sake. The other is a contribution of twenty-four dollars from a Sunday School at Dunkeld in the County of Bruce through the hands of its devoted Superintendent, Mr. Fleming May,—a former resident of Ottawa. It is pleasant to find that he still remembers his friends here, and is still actively and successfully engaged in diffusing a knowledge of God's Word, and in interesting others in its mission among men.

Your Committee have had the satisfaction of voting as large a donation to the Parent Society as last year. . . At the time they did so it was somewhat doubtful whether their circumstances at the conclusion of the year's transactions would justify the amount. It has happily turned out, although their expectations from several quarters have been disappointed, that an amply sufficient balance remains in the treasury.

In view of the manner in which our funds, notwithstanding all drawbacks, are from year to year provided, we are surely bound "to thank God, and take courage."

IN CONCLUSION.

Whilst there is much to be thankful for in the brief record now read, still the results reported will be regarded by many as meagre, and disappointing because incommensurate with their desires and expectations. And to some, it will be matter of special deep regret to learn, from the report, that the circulation of the Bible has been recently interfered with in this free land, and in our own vicinity, that blind bigotry and fierce party-spirit, worthy of the darkest age, still linger among us, preventing people from using their birthright of liberty, and consigning the sacred volume to the flames. But none of these things should move us. Such disappointments and checks in our work do not imply failure. On the contrary they may lay the foundation for extended successes and triumphs. For, just as the stream that has been dammed up diffuses itself more widely, and acquires greater force, so all attempts to stem the tide of truth will promote in the end, as they have often done before, the very cause they were intended to thwart or defeat.

We must remember that we have "to wait" as well as "labor." We are prone to take too narrow a view of things, looking only at the present. But we serve a Master, whose plans stretch into eternity, and who directs and controls all to the best account. His servants ought not to judge Him "by feeble sense;" but patiently await the development of His Holy Will. Had the Israelites looked on their privations and trials in the wilderness as their permanent lot, instead of waiting to see what was in store for them in Canaan, they would have greatly erred. Even so, the tribes of the spiritual Israel being in a sense still in the wilderness, should calculate on encountering enemies, obstacles, and difficulties of various kinds, and knowing that the end is not yet, should expect that the promised land will be reached by-and-by, when all will be plain. Then, if not sooner, it will be made clear that not one of all the good things spoken by Him, had failed of accomplishment. It will be manifested that, in very deed, "His word had not returned to Him void, but had accomplished that which He pleased, and prospered in the thing whereto he sent it." It will be then seen and owned—"that they, who had gone forth weeping bearing precious seed, had doubtless come again with rejoicing bringing their sheaves with them."

ABSTRACT OF THE SEVENTY-NINTH REPORT OF THE BRITISH AND FOREIGN BIBLE SOCIETY, 1882-3.

The Master work ? ”

We but bring materials and service to Him : He directs, controls, and uses these as He judges best. To Him be all the glory?

The results, gauged by statistics, are, in every way, in advance of those of last year. The Bibles, Testaments and Portions issued have been 2,964,636, being an increase in twelve months of 26,091 copies. The entire issues of the society now number 96,917,629 volumes. The income from all sources was above a million and fifty thousand dollars, being above 50 thousand dollars more than in 1881-2. The expenditure has been eighty-five thousand dollars in excess of the previous year's.

As to the work done, look first to

FRANCE.

Here 36 Colporteurs have been at work. Their united sales numbered 82,485 copies. When to these are added the issues at the various depôts, and through other societies, and the free grants, the whole number was 132,972 volumes.

Among the Christian workers found in increasing number in France, an honorable place belongs to colporteurs. How far they are removed from ordinary book-hawkers a single incident may show. “ At the village of ————,” says Nouis, who labors north of the Pyrenees, “ I took up my lodgings at an inn, the master and mistress of which, though Roman Catholics, were well disposed. They introduced me to some of their relatives and recommended my books. After a long conversation I asked if they would let me pray with them. All who were in the room assented ; but to describe their astonishment would be impossible. They had never heard anything but Paternosters and Ave Marias. The result was that next evening thirty persons came to the inn, including the families of the mayor, the schoolmaster, and several of the municipal council. I talked with them very simply, trying to show them that Jesus Christ was the Way, the Truth, and the Life. They all listened intently, and several copies of the Scriptures were that night sold.” In all probability the germ of a church is to be found in such an incident as this.

“ Sales,” says another, “ could not be made without a great deal of reading and explaining.” How should they, when to a large proportion of people the Bible is almost as much unknown as to the ordinary Chinaman.

Lozère is one of our great Protestant centres, but alas! most of the pastors are rationalists, and give no help in our work. The great industry of the country is the rearing of silkworms, and everyone is engaged in it during the season. "Reaching the top of a lofty hill," writes Larguier, "I found a man sitting to rest, and took my seat beside him." "It is hard work to climb up here," said he. "Is it seed (of silkworm) you are carrying in your bag?" "It is seed," I answered, "of excellent quality, and very cheap. It requires only to be put in a place well prepared, and taken care of during its growth, and then it will give marvellous results." "If it is cheap, I can take a little." "I can give you two sous' worth, if you do not want more." I opened my bag, and he looked confused when he saw nothing but books. I read the parable of the sower; he listened attentively. I gave some explanation, and he bought a Testament, thanking me very much.

Some consider colportage unnecessary, when anyone who cares for the Scriptures can purchase them through ordinary channels of trade. To this there are three answers: (1) that in France it is very difficult to get a Bible through "the trade," comparatively few booksellers keeping it, or, if they do, giving it no publicity; (2) that it is not people who already care for the Scriptures that have chiefly to be considered, but those who will not care unless they be sought out and the book be pressed upon their notice by earnest and skilful colporteurs; and (3) that evil literature has its propaganda which must be met with corresponding vigor. "Formerly," says M. Monod, "when travelling was tedious and postage dear, the farmers and peasants used to hear little of what was published in the great centres. But now, the moment a scandalous book is printed in Paris, it is circulated in cheap and attractive form through all the villages. What, then, are we to do? If we want to put the good side by side with the evil, we must go where the evil goes, and circulate the Scriptures in the remotest hamlets—where no agency but Bible colportage can find access or do efficient work."

The Society of Free Thinkers convened the leaders of religious parties, Roman Catholics and Protestants, to a great public discussion of their respective views. The Romanists declined to come, but the Protestants accepted the challenge, and Messrs. de Pressensé and Holland eloquently pleaded the Lord's cause. A friend asked me the day before to send him 200 of our four sous Testaments, which were distributed on that occasion to people who would never have paid for a Testament.

Brittany, within sight of English soil, is the refuge of the grossest Roman superstition. Colporteur Lequeré describes a procession on the eve of the "grand pardon de St. Jean du doigt." An old man who was blind was to be cured that day. Two priests leading the procession carried St. John's figure, two others the body, the two last his head, all of silver. The figure is dipped in a fountain behind which a mass of wood is concealed and if the wood burns, they think St. John has lit it. But that day the rain was so heavy that the wood would not burn. However, a house was burnt by accident, and they attributed it to the miraculous power of their priest that only one house had been burnt.

At St. Bazeille, where Lance had sown in pain and trouble eight years ago without visible results, we now hear that forty heads of families have signed a petition to be instructed with their children by a Protestant pastor. Conferences have been attended by five hundred persons. Our colporteur Trives has made good sales, and the Gospel is preached there every fortnight by M. Larrat from Tonneins, in a building capable of holding four hundred persons. May we not fairly rank this among the fruits of colportage?

Another writes :—" I happened, at Béziers, to enter a house of the worst description, and had hardly said what my object was, when I perceived by the universal laugh of several women where I was. I was retiring, when a girl who could hardly speak French came and made me understand that she would like to have a Dutch Bible. I promised to bring one. When I came back the Dutch girl was called, and I shall not forget her trembling countenance, and the flood of tears with which she received the book. She kissed the volume. ' I will read it ! my poor mother ! I am very miserable ! ' I tried to speak to her, but she could not understand me, and she went up to her room to read her Bible. I went away with a heart full of compassion, and praying God that His Word might prove quick and powerful, and sharper than any two-edged sword."

The dépôt at Marseilles has been the means of good. An Italian priest, calling repeatedly to talk about the Bible, was led to Christ, and is now studying in the Waldensian College at Florence. The Superior of the Trappists entered the depot, after closely examining the books from the outside. He asked many questions and bought a copy of De Sacy's Bible, begging the attendant to " pray for him ; for though supposed to know the Bible, he really knew hardly anything about it."

A better view of the courageous work done by the colporteurs could hardly be given than is supplied by the diary of Bremond. Accompanied by his comrade, Billange, he arrived at the city of Arles.

" Our first visit was to the pastor, but he gave us such a description of the city and the disposition of the people, that we should have left at once had we not been accustomed to face such difficulties. The Lord was with us. Before beginning our siege we prayed much, asking the divine Captain, Jesus, to pass first in the streets, to open the hearts of the people, and promising to follow Him. The first day we sold ten copies, and it was a great encouragement. We knocked at every door, and when we could not see the master of the house we left our cards and prospectuses in the hands of the servants.

" On the market day, instead of standing on the ' place ' where people are so busy, we went each on one of the roads that lead to the city, and to all that came that way we offered the Scriptures, and at evening had sold between thirty and forty copies."

Jacquet, who travels in the Vosges, met with the following experience: He had been working hard the whole day in a village, without selling a copy. He entered nearly all the houses, read the most striking passages out of his Bible, and entreated the people to procure the Word of God, all without effect. His bag was as heavy at night as it had been in the morning. Very sad, he determined to leave the place and spend the night some miles off, half way to the village he had to visit next day; and this he did.

Early the next morning he set off, but there was so thick a fog that he lost his way, and wandered to and fro, unable to see whither he was going, until he came to a house. He entered, and the person inside exclaimed: "Why, is it not you who were here yesterday?" "But where am I?" "At B——." It was the village where he had been the day before. But during the night the Lord had changed the minds of the people and prepared them to receive the good news; the doors, shut yesterday, were opened, and let us hope their hearts also, since, in a few hours, Jacquet emptied his bag and had to leave because he had no more books.

Another colporteur had an interesting conversation with a priest, who insisted that penance was taught in the Bible. The colporteur asked if he thought the thief on the cross did penance in the church sense of the word. He made no reply, but said: "Do you dislike me because I am a priest?" "No," rejoined the other, "and as a proof that I do not, let us pray together." He turned white at this proposal, "but," adds Guilmin, "we prayed, both of us, and after buying three copies of the Testament, he promised to let me know when he was settled, that I might visit him."

At the Belleville Mission, the sales have been 42 Bibles, 2,969 Testaments, and 97 Portions. Miss De Broen writes, "In our visits to the poor we find many instances of the Word of God being bought, read, and thought over, and becoming the consolation of these people in life and death. One of my friends never goes to visit the people without making them learn a verse by heart; men do this as well as women. We have sold many Testaments in the cafés, markets, railway stations, and to workmen in different parts of Paris, especially the Italians."

In one Department a whole commune is turning from Roman Catholicism to Protestantism. The fact is recorded in the political papers thus:—The Municipal Council of Châtel-Guyon, being assembled on November 5, 1882, fourteen members under the presidency of the Mayor, passed a resolution as follows: Considering that the commune of Châtel-Guyon has religious and Christian sentiments, and feels the necessity of worship, considering that worship is impossible under the ministry of a priest, who inspires confidence in none of his parishioners, considering that the inhabitants are resolved to abandon the Roman Catholic religion and to embrace the Protestant faith,—for these reasons the Municipal Council unanimously resolve that a Protestant church shall be erected at Châtel-Guyon on the place called Le Calvaire. The maire is requested to have plans and estimates prepared, which shall be presented to the Council, which shall execute them. A commission of four members is named to appropriate a building for religious service as a provisional church. The same commission is also requested to find a Protestant pastor and to install him. We have heard since then that a pastor has begun to visit and to evangelize these proselytes, but only fancy such a resolution being passed by some thousands of our French communes, and what the result would be for France, and perhaps for the world?

BELGIUM.

The Protestants of Belgium are numerically and in social position a feeble folk. They are not more than one in three hundred, the last census estimating them at 15,000 out of an entire population of 5,500,000. Their gains are almost exclusively from the working classes, and though they have friends in the Chamber of Representatives, and are viewed with favor by the Government, they have no political influence, and the churches find themselves unable as yet to support their own ministers. Meanwhile the hold of the Church of Rome over the nation is being loosened. Your Agent says that "the prejudice against the Bible as a Protestant book is dying out, but in its room there has arisen hostility to religion in all its forms. With the spread of education, knowledge is increasing; but it is the kind of knowledge that disclaims all belief in a revelation, all need of a Saviour, all hope of a life to come." At this day the number who can neither read nor write is very considerable. According to official returns, out of 8,917 recruits who joined the army last year, 2,437 could not write. And of the 6,480 examined in writing, a large number displayed deplorable ignorance. The answer to the only question of a religious nature showed their religious education, in schools which were under the superintendence of the priests, to have been sadly deficient. The question was: "Did Moses live before or after Jesus-Christ?" Only 2,433 out of 6,480 could give a correct answer. One day in the railway, your Brussels colporteur was engaged in offering his books, when a man wanted to know whether he might put to him one question—"Can you mention a single instance of a person who, through purchasing a Bible, has become a Protestant?" This was the experimental reply:—I told him that I had only to mention my own case, and I went on telling him what had been done in Belgium—where after the Revolution there were scarcely any Protestants. I referred to the numerous native Protestant Churches now, all the fruits of the distribution of the Scriptures. 'Often', I continued, 'I meet persons who ask me if I remember selling them a Bible or a Gospel which had been the means of their conversion. The other day my colleague at Louvain told me that two Protestants had inquired after me as having first become acquainted with the Bible through buying it from me at Charle-

roi. Then there is the congregation at Morville, where there was not a single Protestant, and which owes its origin to my colportage there. My neighbor expressed great surprise at what I told him ; he had thought a great deal of money was being spent with little or no result, and that it would be much better to give lectures. Lectures, I told him, were an excellent means of evangelization, but the lever was the Word of God. If we read it with prayer for the help of the Holy Spirit, we become enlightened, and spread the good savour of Christ around us. We had now arrived at the terminus : he thanked me, shook hands with me, and we parted.

The industrial and mining districts are most favorable to our work. Not only is the population larger, but money is more abundant. The people are more intelligent and independent of the priests and their surroundings. From thence copies of the Scriptures are conveyed to distant villages by workmen whose families live there. Many facts show that beyond our fields of evangelization, the Bible is known in a number of families, and is secretly accomplishing its work.

HOLLAND.

Here the entire issues were 35,220. Six Colporteurs were engaged.

The tenacity of purpose which distinguishes the people of the Netherlands has been shown in their opposition to the secular education policy of their Government. That "well remembered day in August, 1878, when the Bible was expelled from the schools and all Christian teaching abolished," has been made a blessing ; the zeal of the churches has been aroused, and the day has since been observed for making a national collection for the schools in which the Bible is retained.

"The first amounted to £3,500, the second to £7,000, the third to £8,000, while that of this year was £9,000. This is but a small part of the sacrifices made to support about 400 schools with nearly 80,000 pupils. I believe the Christian people in this country spend for their schools with the Bible, £150,000 per annum. How much prayer, love, self-denial, especially on the part of the poor people, does this amount represent ? Our Society has a noble work to fulfil. A great many of these schools we provide with Scriptures at a reduced price. Many ministers and teachers have said, 'what should we do without the aid of your Society ?'"

It is a common impression in Holland that the Society acts on ordinary mercantile principles ; and Mr. Grelinger tells of the amazement of a lady of good position who had purchased some Bibles at the depôt, on being informed that she had received a present of some shillings from the contributions of English Christians. He has sought to remove misapprehension by lectures on the foreign work of the Society, and has so far succeeded that he reports contributions amounting to £115 3s. 5d, or more than double what he received in the previous year. “Thirteen years ago I offered a woman a Bible, which she refused with contempt. This woman, now an ornament of Christian life in the village, said to me the other day : ‘When you could not sell that Bible to me thirteen years ago you had to encounter my enmity ; you told me I must be converted in order to be saved ; you read to me the 66th Psalm ; when you left I could not forget that Psalm. Many years I lived under the painful conviction of my sins, and that Psalm was always coming to my conscience. But the Lord has been gracious. I now can sing His praise, for the redemption He has wrought in me. My heart is full of His loving kindness. How happy I am to meet you again and tell you that you have been the instrument of rescuing both my body and spirit. In another village I called at every house and offered my Scriptures ; in one cottage I met with a woman who was the mother of a large family. She said : ‘You are the gentleman who, ten years ago, induced me to buy a New Testament. I did so, not knowing why, as I am a Roman Catholic. But I know that I have become a different being since reading that precious book. My New Testament is worn out by constant use ; how I have longed to meet you again ! My husband and myself lived without religion, but from the time you sold us the Testament and spoke those kind words to us, we found peace with God through our Lord Jesus Christ.’ She bought a large Bible and pressed the book to her heart. Christians in the village give her a high character.”

GERMANY.

Here 53 colporteurs have been at work, not without results.

A letter was recently received at your Berlin depôt, containing the writer's name and address, and couched in the following terms :—“Excuse my taking the liberty to send you these lines. About three years ago a colporteur came round with Bibles. I refused to buy, saying the print was too small. Later on he came again with books of larger type ; and when I again tried to put him off, he spoke to me so earnestly that I bought a Bible. Amongst other things he said there was still room in our Father's house above, and that God's invitation was for me also. That I have been led to a knowledge of the truth is due, under God, to the colporteur. I do not know whether he is alive or what is his name ; but this I do know, that I owe him a debt of gratitude, and that it would give him joy to see some fruit of his labors. Will you convey to him my heartfelt thanks ? May God repay him the good he has done to me and doubtless to many others also.”

It is a gratification to the Committee to find that Mr. Watt shows that he has in no degree lost sight of the high aim of the Society. He writes :—“The British and Foreign Bible Society takes rank among the greatest of missionary enterprises. Take away the spiritual aspects of its work, and you deprive it of its only reason for existence. Its colporteurs, burning with zeal for the cause of Christ, are evangelists in fact, who embrace every opportunity to sow the seed of Divine truth. Their auditors are frequently the forlorn and the outcast, who flee contact with the city missionary, and will not approach the pastor or give him a hearing."

During the year Jewish refugees from Russia have been provided for; also the sufferers by the terrible Rhine floods; and the German army. The circulation among the soldiers was 18,643 volumes. The entire issues of the agency were 324,614. Much of this field is very hard to cultivate. This is felt to be particularly true in a city like Berlin. But no field is too hard for the great husbandman. The current year will be marked by an event of interest spreading far beyond Germany, but which, in the Fatherland itself, is anticipated with the strongest enthusiasm. On November 10 will be observed the 400th anniversary of the birth of Martin Luther. Preparations on a large scale are being made to celebrate the occasion with becoming magnificence and solemnity, and pious, zealous men are inspired with the hope that the national festival will bring a national blessing, in giving prominence to those evangelical truths of which Luther was the champion. The long expected revision of Luther's Bible will, it is believed, be ready for publication by that day, and if so it will be one of the most interesting and becoming incidents of the occasion, quite in harmony with the life work of the great Reformer. Your Committee join heartily in the hope that a great blessing may arise out of the celebration.

SWITZERLAND.

The issues here have been 45,295 copies. But it must be remembered that our Society is one among many workers. Each Protestant Canton has its own Bible Society, and in the large towns minor associations exist. The object of your Committee is to co-operate with their Swiss friends, and aid less favoured and less enlightened parts of the country.

An example of this co-operation is seen in the Canton Ticino, which includes the intensely bigoted Italian district lying between the St. Gotthard and Lugano. Here the Bible work of the Basle evangelist, who was murdered three years ago, has been taken up by the Society, and an Italian colporteur, Caprara by name, is engaged for the difficult duty. With a view to giving Caprara, who is on six months' trial, instruction and encouragement, the experienced Lucerne depositary, Mr. Uhlmann, was recently sent to visit him. Alluding to the remark of a Christian lady in Ticino, who said that, if only one copy a month were sold, it would be satisfactory, Mr. Uhlmann writes:—"I cannot agree with this, no matter how many good Christian people may affirm it. Even if an angel from heaven were to come and say so, I should reply that he did not understand colportage." Caprara's experiences have, so far, not been encouraging. 'This week,' he writes, 'I penetrated to the inner Blenio Valley, taking place after place, and house by house. The opposition was such that I had to retreat to save my life.' In one place Caprara was struck by a heavy stone thrown at him. With more experience he may succeed better. 'I first of all,' says Mr. Uhlmann, 'let Caprara offer the books that I might see his manner of work. Then I showed him my method. The difference was trifling. Caprara's fault lies in standing some paces distant from those to whom he offers his books, and allowing himself to be put off by trifling excuses. I showed him that we must fearlessly approach the people, and in poor houses lay the books on the table. While one copy is being looked at, another ought to be held in readiness to place in the hand, important passages ought to be read aloud, and everything done to awaken curiosity and interest. In half an hour I sold two copies in a very poor village. Caprara, I believe, only lacks experience, and this cannot be gained in a day.'

It must not be supposed that the Protestant cantons of Switzerland, the scene of the labors of Calvin, Zwingle, Farel, and Œcolampadius, are an easier field than other countries for colportage work. 'Scoffers are mostly met with,' writes Nyffeler, 'among the artisan class, but they are sometimes induced to buy a Bible. If it were not that encouragements are met with, as well as contempt, courage would fail. I find that the best way to meet mockers is to be in a joyful spirit, firmly defending the cause of my Lord and Master.'

AUSTRIA.

The chief impression left by a perusal of recent correspondence of your senior agent,—Mr. Edward Millard, is with what an intense aversion, the Church of Rome regards the circulation of the Word of God. The difficulties of the past year have not originated with the people; their attitude, in so far as they are not influenced by the priests, is either favorable or indifferent. Nor are the difficulties to be laid at the door of the Government. The Government of Austria has no easy part to play; it has to control various nationalities more or less antagonistic to one another; it finds the aid of the Church of Rome too valuable to be cast aside, and little surprise can be felt if, from fear of offending such a powerful ally, it should allow local governors to indulge a repressive policy which it might otherwise repudiate. It is the priests who inflame the people and incite the authorities. It is they who tell their neighbors that "the reading, nay the handling, of such books, brings them into danger of hell," and "they cannot absolve them so long as they are owners of the anti-christian thing;" it is they whose emissaries dog the steps of the colporteur, inducing purchasers to give up books they have bought, that they may be destroyed. More than once during the year, when the licenses of colporteurs have been taken away, and their lives put in jeopardy, have your Committee considered the propriety of memorializing the Austrian Government on the subject. That they have not done so arises from no lack of sympathy with their harassed and courageous friends, but because they did not wish to speak without effect, and because they believed the Government to be at heart well disposed towards the work. It is possible in a case of this kind to move prematurely and unwisely; and, while ready to take all needful steps to vindicate the position they have long occupied in Austria, the Committee remember that oftentimes their strength is to sit still. They have been the less disposed to take action because the circulation of Scriptures in the Austrian Agency shows no decrease. On the contrary, an increase of nearly 10,000 copies during the year, proves how vain is the hope of the priests to eradicate a work that has taken firm root in the land.

The total issues have been 121,933 copies. Last year there was an increase of 8,023 copies. There has therefore been continued progress. One colporteur writes:—At———I walked into the large inn to get dinner, and, as I usually do, laid a New Testament on the table before me. Presently I said to the landlady: 'To-day you are going to buy a New Testament, are you not?' All I got was the gruff answer, 'I should not be a Christian if I bought that cursed book.' 'Pray examine the book before you curse it. It is the book of God, and here is the endorsement of the text by your own Bishops.' It was of no use. 'You ought to be ashamed to drive such a scandalous trade. Your books deserve to be burnt in a heap. You are upsetting the whole country.'

"At this her husband came in, and cried out: 'Be off, leave the house immediately, I will not have such good-for-nothing fellows, we know you well, We have heard of you and your abominable books before, and that is the reason why we would not take you in the other night, although there was plenty of room,'

"Of course I had to go. Here the priests will not tolerate the circulation of the Scriptures; they daily warn the people that whoever buys a book from me, or even takes one as a gift, is guilty of a great sin, 'Do not listen to the man,' they say, 'his words may be fine, but they are not his own; it is the very devil that sets him up and prompts him.'"

Journeys in a country infested by brigands are not very comfortable, and are not in any way improved when the traveller is compelled to spend the night out in the open air. Yet such has been one colporteur's experience. The circulation amounts to 1,432 copies, but he has had encouragement beyond what the figures afford. It was cheering when a young man came to seek him out in his home at Seraievo, to tell him of the great benefit he had derived from a Bible he had sold to him several months before, in a city many miles distant. "At F———," says a colporteur, "I was able to sell at least one copy in almost every house. I then proceeded to the next village. There I found two sturdy fellows from F———waiting for me. The books were false, and they must have their money back. A crowd gathered in front of the public-house, eagerly listening to the conversation. Out came a welcome ally to the colporteur in the person of the landlord. Three years ago he was a soldier in Bosnia. There he had bought a Bible, and he said he could testify that it was an excellent book. His wife came forward, confirming her husband's statement. The colporteur taking advantage of the pause created by this incident, opened the book and read

ITALY.

The circulation here has been 58,000 volumes ; and 38 colporteurs have been employed. The religious state of Italy is by no means one at which Christians can rejoice. The country seems to be drifting further and further from God and truth. A quarter of a century of freedom has given a certain amount of worldly prosperity, but it has not produced in religious matters anything like the happy change which came over so many countries in Europe at the time of the Reformation. On the contrary, the great evils of superstition and infidelity, under which the Italians have suffered so much in past days, seem to gain in power. It is well known that the Government appoint as professors in the Universities the most noted infidels, and often for no better reason than because they are infidels, so that the great majority of the professors in seventeen Universities are rationalists and materialists of the worst type ; and much of the current literature is also infidel. Popery has been, during the last forty years, taking fearful strides on the road of error and idolatry. When the real history of Pius IX. comes to be written, it will be seen that the most important features of his long reign are, not the loss of the Temporal Power, nor the rupture between the papal see and most of the civilized powers of Europe and America, but the enormous development which that Pope gave to false doctrines, and the idolatrous practices of the Church of Rome. The new heresies of the Immaculate Conception and of the personal infallibility of the Pope have been added to the many already existing. New saints in great numbers have been proposed to the adoration of the faithful, some of them, like Pietro d'Arbues the inquisitor, and Labre the filthy beggar, being the very personation of the worst features of Romanism. The Jesuits are once more triumphant. The trade in relics dug out of the Catacombs has received such an impulse as to become scarcely less scandalous than the trade in indulgences which roused the righteous anger of Luther. Apparitions, miraculous fountains, pilgrimages, and countless new forms of idolatry have found countenance in the Vatican. In these things at least Romanism will long remain a vigorous tree, continually putting forth new branches, and bearing the bitterest fruits to mankind.

Still the evangelicals work on in faith and hope in spite of numerous discouragements ; but as yet the results of their efforts have not been very great. Many hopes have remained unfulfilled. The masses are not turning to the Gospel, and Italian Protestants form only an imperceptible minority in the nation. Yet we will not despise the day of small things ; we rejoice that the Gospel banner is now unfurled in 178 towns and villages, and that the workers of all kinds, pastors, evangelists, teachers, colporteurs, &c., amount to 423 persons, including about forty foreign pastors. Let these persevere in witnessing for Christ, in sowing the seed in faith and hope, and God will let the world see wonderful results. I do not see any signs of discouragement in our ranks, and wherever I go the little scattered churches are growing in number and in activity, especially in the north. The most noteworthy incident of the year has been the supplying the Scriptures to the inundated districts in the valley of the Adige. Not a few gladly received the books offered them, and many of the sufferers expressed a desire to hear preachers of the Gospel. It is hoped this trying visitation will be blessed to many. A great obstacle to the progress of the work in this country, and specially in Southern Italy, is the inability of many to read.

SPAIN.

The sales here have numbered more than 30,000 volumes : and the entire issues upwards of 46,000. There were 23 colporteurs at work.

During the year 5,000 Testaments and 90,000 Gospels have been printed at Madrid. The account given by Mr. Corfield, of Narciso, the colporteur at Reus, is very interesting. He narrated to me that twelve or thirteen years ago, after the revolution of 1868, two or three persons visited his town selling Scriptures and giving away tracts ; he bought a Bible without knowing its character, as he had never heard the word " Bible." They gave him two or three Gospels, which were put aside unread. The general opinion entertained at that time of revolutionary disorder was, that the books were intended to upset Popery, and hence his curiosity, along with others, to procure a copy. On the day of the opening of the Evangelical chapel he went to hear what was going on ; he heard a discourse from the Bible which wonderfully struck him. He was one of the first to accost the preacher to ask if the book he preached from was the same as he had bought years before, and got a reply that it was exactly like his own. At the next public service he was at the chapel, his heart melting at the glad news of salvation. A third service was enough to induce him to cast in his lot with the preacher ; and he has remained there ever since, and become a pillar in the church. During the first days of his awakening he prayed and longed that his wife (then suffering from an affliction of eighteen years' duration) might be brought to attend the public preaching. That seemed impossible, and he begged that the pastor would visit her. This he willingly did, she shortly afterwards entering into the joy and liberty possessed by her husband. The wife could not read, but so joyous were the words she heard read, that her husband gave her one of the Gospels that had been given to him years before. That copy never left her poor wasted hands till she died two years later. She died with all her faculties ; and the copy of the Gospel, released from her grasp after death, is a bare shred by so much handling. Tears fell from the poor fellow's eyes and from my own, as he told me of his former affliction.

RUSSIA.

This empire is vast. The population of its European part is 83,000,000, with a density of forty inhabitants to the square mile ; while in Asiatic Russia there are 14,500,000 so widely spread that not more than two persons go to a square mile. When this is compared with the state of things in a country like France, where there are 183 persons to the square mile, it is easy to see the difficulties of providing for the wants of the Russian people. It is not as though the population were gathered to a few centres as in England. The country contains only twenty-three towns with more than 50,000 inhabitants, the vast majority being evenly spread through villages where they quietly grow their wheat, flax and other crops. Thus as your Agent observes :—They are much less favourably situated than the people of Western Europe for obtaining the Scriptures, being spread over vast tracts of steppe or forest land, and in the outlying regions there is little communication between village and village. In the winter season, when the woods are bound up with frost, and the starved wolves prowl about the villages, the sledge, no doubt, facilitates communication, but the severity of the weather retards it. The extensive employment of colporteurs is a desideratum in such circumstances, and blessed results have attended it, but the sparseness of the population is a great drawback. The Russian peasant, when uncontaminated by the corrupt and evil doctrines which come from the great towns, is reverent in his demeanour towards that which is good. He takes the Word of God, and when he can read it he reads it reverently. Many who cannot read for themselves buy, that their children may read it to them. Then the scantiness of the literature accessible to the Russian peasant, when able to read, is in our favour. The Word of God comes to him well nigh as his only accessible book. How important it is that at the present time—when the untutored mind of the people is being opened by education—we should implant the Word of God, and let it be well rooted in their hearts !

The circulation of the Scriptures has been in upwards of fifty different languages and to the number of more than 310,000 volumes. Thirty colporteurs have been engaged. A hopeful beginning has been made in Siberia, although amid many difficulties. The state of society in Siberia seems to be very sad. Murder and robbery are very common, while drunkenness and immorality prevail everywhere. Tinkalinsk was the farthest that our colporteurs penetrated into Siberia, or about 137 versts from the large town of Omsk. Here the winter had set in with such severity that your Agent was afraid that they would find it difficult to return. They were therefore directed by telegraph to return, which they did, by way of Islim, Tiumen, and Ekaterineburg. In Tiumen, on the way back, Weismann endeavoured to make himself useful by visiting and reading to the sick in the hospital. In a village not far from Kamoishloff, Razuvajeff went into the place where the starosta, or mayor of the village was. He examined his books and bought a New Testament. There were ten men in the place, for all of whom the starosta bought New Testaments, thanking the colporteur, moreover, for the opportunity thus afforded them for obtaining the Word of God at such a low price. Some bought who could not read, but they had relatives or children who could read to them. In Krestovsk, the peasants were very suspicious because the books were so cheap, and took them to the pristaff or magistrate, asking him to examine them. The pristaff told them the books were quite correct, and that they ought to be very thankful to get them at such a low price. In Tiumen our colporteur came across a house where he found a number of young women together, and began to suspect it was a place of no good repute; still he offered them the Scriptures, and one young woman bought a New Testament, and said: 'Would that I had had this book before, and I should not have come to the place where I am.' The mistress of the house mocked, and threw water at the colporteur. In Jalutorovsk our colporteur met a blind man, who asked him what books he had. Colporteur Razuvajeff told him. He then took the Moscow New Testament into his hand, and felt it all over. 'Ah,' said he, 'this must be a complete New Testament, it is so big,' and bought a copy. He said to the youth who was with him, 'Will you read a portion every day, and I will give you two roubles a month more than before?' The youth joyfully accepted the terms. The man had been blind nine years, and used to go to Church, but as he did not understand Slavonic, was none the wiser for the services. Our colporteur met a gang of exiles, and offered them the Scriptures. They laughed and said, 'What does God care for us? we are only treated like dogs.' Our colporteur strove to show them that God was merciful and gracious, slow to anger, and forgave iniquity and transgression and sin. The officer told the children who were with them, who had money, to buy; and thus our colporteur sold five copies, and gave four copies gratis to these poor prisoners.

In Southern Russia, the most remarkable worker in this Agency is F. Müller at Rostoff, who has sold no fewer than 5,281 copies in the year! He and his brother Ludwig, together with Karl Meissner, are Germans, and have charge of a vast district.

It is 500 miles long and 300 miles broad, stretching from the Azoff to the Caspian, and from the Kirghiz steppes to the Caucasian provinces. It is an immense tract of steppe with countless villages and settlements scattered over it, and peopled by a strange medley of Cossacks, Russians, Tartars, Kalmucks, and Kirghese. This is a district which may require further development and a larger staff of workers.

In the Caucasus the Russian authorities show that they appreciate Bible work. One writes:—General Staroselsky also was very kind to me, granted me a private interview, and inquired minutely about our work. He said that every jail director would be glad to have our books for the prisoners even without a written permission. He wished to know in what languages we desired to distribute books. I replied, in Russian, Georgian, and Armenian; but as there are very many Tartar and Persian prisoners, we would wish, if allowed, to offer books to them also. General Staroselsky then used these remarkable words: 'We know perfectly well that if the Mohammedans become Christians they will be good subjects, and in this, our aim and the aim of the Bible Society is the same.' But it is not possible for the Russian Government to allow any person to distribute Christian books to the Mohammedans within the jails, the Mussulmans would misinterpret the action, and ascribe to the Russian Government an intention to compel them to embrace Christianity. Outside the jails,' he added, 'you may do as you choose.' Of course we received the written permission required.

TURKEY.

The issues here have been above 66,000 and in 37 different languages. More than 25 colporteurs were at work. They have been exposed to persecution in many forms, but have persevered notwithstanding and not without tokens of Divine favour.

GREECE, CYPRUS, CRETE.

The circulation in all these places was 7,759 copies. In the first named, the New Testament in Ancient Greek has been, with authority, introduced into the common schools. In some of the villages in Cyprus a keen desire to possess the Scriptures has been evinced. In Crete an example has been given of what may be achieved by courage. The colporteur previously engaged was thrown into so much alarm by the outrages and murders which took place, that he scarcely ventured beyond the walls of Candia and Rettimo. But a young Athenian student named Jordanes offered his services to your Agent for his summer vacation, and in less than four months sold nearly a thousand copies. This success may have also been in part due to the fact that his books were brought from Greece rather than from Turkey. More recently your Agent has sent to Canea a young Greek, who had received some training in England, and who bore a good reputation among the Protestant Greeks of Constantinople. He has made a successful beginning, and reports that he is everywhere received with kindness.

EGYPT.

The burning of Alexandria cost the Society a loss of £900 sterling, the claim for which has been relinquished. A new agency, including Syria and Palestine and the parts adjacent to the Suez Canal and Red Sea, has been formed in Egypt, to which Mr. Weakley, a former Missionary in Turkey has been appointed. To the West of Egypt a North African agency has been established with ALGIERS for its centre, under circumstances seemingly hopeful. It is in contemplation to extend its operations to Morocco,—a country considerably larger than France, and with a population of over 7,000,000.

SOUTH AFRICA.

During the year the completed Sesuto Bible, printed in paragraph form, and with maps, has been sent out to South Africa, together with a pocket edition of the Sesuto New Testament. When the Rev. A. Mabile wrote last June, enclosing £100, proceeds of sales of the former editions, he spoke of the clamorous demand that had arisen for the books then on their way.

Hence, when the Bibles arrived, the excitement was great, and it was arranged to hold a solemn thanksgiving service at the different head stations in the country, and as nearly as possible on the same day, so as to lay before the people their first complete Bible, and to explain to them God's merciful dealings with them in granting us, their teachers, the means of procuring this Book in their own tongue. It being found difficult to fix on one and the same day for all the mission centres separate services were held, the principal one being at Morija, where the French missionaries began their work as far back as 1833. In a most interesting letter, the Rev. H. Moore Dyke describes what took place. Last Lord's Day, September 3, the evangelists, and very many of the people under their care, assembled here. As is usual at such gatherings, the service was held in the open air, under the shade of wide-spreading willow trees. I believe there must have been some 1,200 present in the congregation, but it was difficult to estimate the exact number, as very many seeking shelter from the rays of the sun were concealed among the trees. In front of the table, covered with Bibles, were arranged the seats of the thirteen Evangelists, and a solemn but happy spirit seemed to rest upon the whole assembly. Several addresses were delivered by the three European missionaries present, and the Basutos were reminded of the many and great tokens of love their tribe had received at the hands of God during forty-nine years, since His servants had first entered the land. What a contrast! Then ignorance and darkness reigned. Cannibals' haunts still existed, and the blood of their victims was still fresh on the rocks around their caverns. Fear and unrest dwelt in every breast. Now, although political disturbances agitate a few quarters owing to the foolish ambition of some of the chiefs, there are schools and churches rising up before them on every hand. Each of the Evangelists then drew near to the table, and received a Bible from the hands of Mr. Mabile, every volume having the best and strongest binding, which he was to carry to his station, and it was to be used there only when conducting the worship of God. One of these men then addressed the assembly, expressing his deep gratitude to the Lord for this great proof of His love, and also to those who had been the instruments in the Lord's hands in procuring for the Basutos this wondrous Book. He seemed most fully to understand the weight of responsibility resting upon himself and his brethren as the teachers of the great truths revealed by the Word of God, and their need of heavenly grace in proclaiming salvation to sinners. One of the elders, with tears streaming from his eyes, then came forward and told of the heartfelt praise he felt, and the need there was for every believer in the Word to hasten to the dark places of the land, to carry there this gift of mercy—this lamp of light and life. He pressed much upon his hearers the need of giving some tangible proof of their gratitude and love, and proposed that, in remembrance of this day, a new out-station should be founded in one of the more distant parts of the district, and that such station should be called by the name of this Book. He then said that he desired to be permitted to lay the first little stone of a new house of prayer on that out-station; and, calling his old wife from the congregation to come and stand by his side, she also being bathed in tears, he placed a pound on the table, entreating God to accept and bless it. The congregation were naturally unprepared for this proposition to prove their gratitude; but it is hoped that soon the plan of Simone will be realized, and a new church will rise up to spread the light of the Gospel in some dark heathen quarter. During my residence in this land, of more than forty years, I have witnessed many important and solemn meetings, but this is one which greatly rejoiced my heart—a day I had longed to see. Praised be the Lord! Three hours were thus happily spent, and, after a short interval of rest, we entered the church for the purpose of commemorating the dying love of our blessed Saviour. The building (holding about 1,000) being far too small to hold all the people, only the communicants could obtain admission, and about 550 approached the Lord's table. The blessing of the God of Peace, the love of Jesus, and the power of the Holy Spirit were truly there; and thus concluded the public worship of a day which will long be remembered by those present.

MADAGASCAR.

Immediately on the arrival in this country of the Malagasy Ambassadors, your Committee waited upon them with an address of welcome. The first ambassador, Ravoninahitriniarivo replied:—'If Madagascar is now a kingdom, we feel that it is due to its being based upon the Word of God. That Word we recognize as the true basis of all government, and we are desirous of seeing its influence spread through the whole island. When the first Bible was printed it was like the first spark; when the idols were burned the flame spread rapidly, now the Scriptures reach to the Sakalava, the Betsilio, and the most distant tribes, tending to improve and raise the condition of those in all parts of the island.' 'This Bible' (placing his hand upon the whole Bible referred to in the address), 'though old, is a monument and reminder of God's mercy to Madagascar. If this had not been kept through those dark years, perhaps all that has been done would not have been accomplished. And we remember, although this Book has been so wonderfully preserved, that but for the labours and sacrifices of your Society we should not have arrived at that point of Christian civilization in which we now rejoice. Therefore for all the efforts made by your Society, I beg to thank you in the name of my people and government. In that Book is the soul of our progress and the explanation of our being an organized people; and as I look on your faces I see friends through whose efforts has been brought us the knowledge of the forgiveness of sins, that knowledge through which we hope to meet in eternity.' To meet the increasing demand for the Scriptures, a new edition of 15,000 copies of the Malagasy Bible is being printed in this country, to be sold at a shilling, together with a still larger edition of the New Testament, to be sold at sixpence. The Madagascar Bible Committee report one way in which the Bible Society renders us most important aid in our work in this island: we allude to the supply of single Gospels or other portions of Scripture for free distribution. During the past year many thousands of children have, through the action of the Government, been brought into our schools. It is our custom when scholars have learnt to read to present them with the Gospel of Luke as an encouragement to further progress, and with the hope that they will soon desire to purchase either a sixpenny New Testament or a shilling Bible. Efforts are constantly being made to introduce the adults in attendance at our churches to learn to read; when they accomplish this, they also obtain a portion of the Scriptures as a free gift. In this way more than 16,000 of these books have been distributed during the year. These gifts we have been enabled to make through the liberality of the Bible Society, and a most important work we feel it to be; and though it is impossible to tabulate results, we are convinced that there must be a great blessing on this part of our work.

INDIA.

The Society's operations here have been extended. The various Auxiliaries have received more than ordinary assistance. The cry is heard from every part of this great empire, "the harvest is plenteous, but the laborers are few." The issues of the Punjab Auxiliary have been 25,157 copies, those of the Bombay Auxiliary have been above 15,000, and those of the Madras Auxiliary have been more than 102,800. The colporteurs have numbered 116, and their sales 92,700 volumes. Colportage is undertaken to carry the Bible to those whom ordinary mission agencies fail to reach.

A few weeks ago a schoolmaster was baptised in Calcutta, whose religious history shows the necessity of sowing beside all waters. As a boy he was dissatisfied with idolatry, and longed for a purer faith. This dissatisfaction increased as years went on, and became so strong that he put off marriage in order to seek the way of peace. In a distant part of the country he heard Christian preachers, and obtained from them portions of Holy Scripture. These he studied in private, until he became convinced of the truth of the Divine message. Under the influence of this conviction he came to Calcutta, sought out Christian teachers, and in spite of the entreaties and opposition of his relatives, joined himself by baptism to the people of God.

Those colporteurs who have made special tours into distant parts of the country have discovered that the Word of God is being studied diligently, although no human teacher is at hand to speak of Christ.

The journals of missionary Bible tours, which are appended to the Calcutta Report, are full of interest, and one or two extracts may be given. Thus, the Rev. W. A. Hobbs spent a month in the districts of Khoolneah and Jessore, and he writes: 'This morning I was at Taltolla Bazaar amongst about 200 people. After preaching to them from the text—'Ho, all ye that thirst, come to the waters and drink!' I tried to sell my books, and might have sold a dozen or twenty but for a zemindar who was present, who sternly forbade the people to purchase, and in passionate language informed them that my sole object in wandering about the country was to make people Christians, which everybody knew meant the breaking of caste, and sinking down to the lowest level of social degradation. He concluded by ordering the people to disperse, which they did almost to a man. Being foiled in my efforts at this spot, I went to the other end of the bazaar, where, by singing a Bengali hymn to the tune of 'God Save the Queen,' I soon succeeded in getting a second congregation. They listened as the first audience had done, but when I wanted to sell them Gospels, they were afraid to buy, as the zemindar was still walking about the bazaar. Two men eventually had the courage to buy, but having bought, immediately started for home lest the zemindar should forcibly take the books from them. In the afternoon we reached the large market of Básoundiá, where I found myself in the midst of nearly 2,000 people. Here I had a glorious hour or two of enjoyment. I commenced by singing the Bengali hymn, 'Jesus is the great wealth, seek this wealth, O my mind.' I then preached to them for about twenty minutes, my subject being, The Great Reconciler! It seemed as if I should not sell a single book amongst this host of people; they would not purchase, and I would not give gratuitously. Whilst we were thus parleying, one of the audience asked me to sing again. 'Yes,' said I, 'I will sing again, but not until you have bought twelve books, and if you don't buy them quickly I shall return to the boat.' The twelve were soon sold; I sang them a Bengali hymn to the tune of 'Hold the Fort;' and then hands with pice in them were thrust forward in such numbers that in a few minutes my stock in hand was soon exhausted. Requesting them to remain where they were, I went to the boat for a new supply. These too were quickly purchased, so that I had to return to the boat for a third supply. Indeed, if I had sold to all who wanted them, irrespective of their being able to read or not, I might have disposed of two or three hundred copies. When darkness came on, and the people went to their homes, I found, upon counting the pice, that eighty-four persons had become possessed of the sacred Word.

Another writes:—On the 29th we visited four villages, and after a long, hot, hard journey across country arrived at Callian Droog. In one of the villages, whilst we were seated in the temple preaching, a young Brahmin came up with a great deal of swagger, chanting one of his sacred songs, and, taking a copy of the Psalms from a man who had purchased the book, said, 'there is nothing in this book that we can understand.' I replied, 'read and see.' He opened it at random and read Psalm xcvi. 'Jehovah is King.' I asked him what he thought was the meaning of the passage, when he and those around him were obliged to admit that they did understand it. The tone of the young man was soon changed, and he remarked to his friends, 'these books teach a new religion; if you want to understand what that religion is and to follow it, by all means take them.' On August 5 we were at Tallamurla, a large village I well remember going to ten years ago, on which occasion I could not induce a single person to take a book. It was then one of the most sad and melancholy places we have ever seen. Scarcely a person spoke above a whisper, and it was a rare thing to see a smile upon any face. A curse was said to have been pronounced upon the village by a great Hindu saint who had been insulted there. Though they believe the curse has not been removed, indeed that it cannot be removed, and that 'if a stranger ventures to remain for a day in the town something evil will happen to him,' yet they themselves are more regardless of the supposed curse than they once were, and are in consequence more cheerful. We spent two hours in the village and sold about sixty books. One man said to us, 'if we desire to become Christians, will you promise to come to our village often and teach us, as you do the people in Bookapatnam?'

"On Sunday morning the 6th we arrived in Bookapatnam and remained there till the following Friday morning. These five days were as full of work, as full of joy and triumph in Christ as we have ever had. The limits of my journal will not admit of more than an indication of what we saw and heard. As soon as our arrival was known the members of this interesting community came to our tent for service. They were four of the five persons whom we baptised last year, one being away from home, and eight others who join in Christian worship. It was a pure unmixed joy to us to read the Scriptures and pray with them and to preach to them. The word of God is to these simple, honest believers, as the very bread of life. At the close of the service four adults came forward and asked to be baptized. In the evening, about five o'clock, we again met and talked together for some time, of the preciousness of God's Word and of Christian experience. The value of these Bible tours cannot be overrated.

CHINA.

The work here has been largely extended. The Society has employed one agent, eight missionaries, six European colporteurs and 53 native colporteurs. The issues have been 188,000 volumes. And still greater efforts are to be made during the coming year. Mr. Protheroe mentions an interesting case of a Taoist priest who had books which he was anxious the Christian colporteur should buy from him. 'He came to see me while at Fanking. He was told there was a foreigner who was interested in men and exhorted others to be good, so he came and was introduced to me. After the preliminaries of Chinese etiquette, we soon began a conversation ; he showed me a few books and asked me to buy some ; this led to a conversation on how far the books he sold would help me to do good. After a long talk, he said, ' I can offer you no help, you can only endeavour to be good, you can indeed do nothing but trust yourself.' He added, ' For forty years I have been seeking truth, I have been striving to be holy, but I have not yet found out the true God, nor have I succeeded in being good.' I then showed him my books, told him of the true God, and showed the difference between the books we both sold. I spoke to him of Christ as a complete and present Saviour. After some further conversation, he bought several books, saying he would read them carefully. I soon left the place, but the books which the man bought he took home.

TIENTSIN.—Here Mr. Olsson, one of the European colporteurs, has been at work ; the Rev. Mr. Candlin, who kindly superintends him, says : ' His sales are excellent and exceed our expectation. It is impossible to speak too highly of his diligence and devotion.' In the streets of Tientsin he makes good sales, while on his journeys he says that, if there are in a crowd one or two persons not well disposed, they are soon put down by the more numerous friendly people. ' Thank God, I have had the majority of the people in every place to take my part.' At one village an inhabitant insisted on accompanying him and helping him in his work ; and as this kind volunteer appeared to know everybody and to possess great influence, Olsson found that on his recommendation many of the people bought, not a single copy, but several portions each. The innkeepers also proved valuable allies. Mr. Olsson says he has been greatly cheered in his journeys to find natives spontaneously bearing testimony to the excellence of the teaching given in the Scriptures, and to see the way in which one man will urge another to purchase with the unanswerable argument, ' I have the book myself, and so I know what it contains.' He proves from his experience that the colporteur may prepare the way for the regular missionary.

A beginning has been made in COREA. A native, after reading the Gospel, said :—' This is a religion much superior to our Buddhism, why did we not know of it years ago ?'

Mr. Paton's journey to FORMOSA was both thorough and successful. In two months he passed with his native assistants from Tamsui in the extreme north to Taiwanfu in the south-west, and sold 19,400 books ! He says :—I had my time fully taken up with the Mandarin speaking merchants who traverse the island. In many cases I was able to converse with them of their homes on the mainland ; and some felt equally strangers and foreigners here with myself, and were able to appreciate what I said to them of the loving Saviour who gave me this message to them in their own language.

In JAPAN 12 colporteurs were engaged. The issues were above 8,000 copies. A difficulty is experienced in securing the services of suitable men, but, notwithstanding all obstacles, the progress in the work is marked.

AUSTRALIA AND NEW ZEALAND.

This great field needs re-adjustment corresponding with the growing requirements of three millions of people. Some thirty Auxiliaries are scattered over it. No statistics have been given showing their aggregate achievements, but they are all actively engaged in the good work.

In many of the SOUTH SEA ISLANDS, as formerly, "the Word of the Lord has free course and is glorified." In SOUTH AMERICA a considerable circulation of the sacred Book is effected. In the ARGENTINE REPUBLIC the issues were 16,556; in BRAZIL, 17,912. From the WEST INDIES 19 different Auxiliary Society's reports come, showing more or less activity and liberality. In BRITISH NORTH AMERICA there are 17 Auxiliaries.

In ENGLAND AND WALES the issues numbered 549,717. Of kindred Societies it must suffice to say that the AMERICAN BIBLE SOCIETY reports issues 1,676,232 for the past year, and an income of nearly $600,000; and that the NATIONAL BIBLE SOCIETY OF SCOTLAND'S issues were well-nigh half a million volumes, and its income about $155,000. The circulation of the HIBERNIAN SOCIETY was 57,513 copies: its income was about $22,000.

It is the common aim of all these Societies to make known God's oracles. To a share in this work all are again invited. The great Missionary Societies report growth and successes; and it is for all Christians to rejoice with them. But not only to rejoice. Every advance they make, every new mission they plant, must mean fresh demands upon that Society whose happy province it is to accompany and keep step with them, and to furnish the chief weapon of their warfare. It means that the best Christian scholarship must be engaged to produce new versions of the Bible and to improve existing versions; and that greater efforts every year must be made to sow through all lands the imperishable seed of the Kingdom.

THE TWENTY-NINTH ANNUAL MEETING OF THE OTTAWA AUXILIARY BIBLE SOCIETY was held in Knox Church, City Hall Square, on Tuesday, the 11th March, 1884, at 7:30 p.m.

GEO. HAY, Esq., President, occupied the chair.

The opening devotional service was conducted by the Rev. F. W. FARRIES and the Rev. WM. SCOTT.

The chairman having called for an abstract of the report, it was read by the Recording Secretary.

After the singing of an anthem, it was moved by the Rev. B. Longley of the Dominion Methodist Church :

"That this meeting gratefully acknowledges the Divine goodness in the prosperity which has attended this Auxiliary Bible Society ; adopts the Report, a part of which has been read ; orders it to be printed under the direction of the Committee ; and appoints the following office-bearers and members of Committee for the ensuing year." (For list of officers and Committee see pages, 6 and 7.)

Mr. Longley, in moving this resolution, referred in appreciative terms to the Report which had just been read, and to the valuable services rendered year by year by the local Committee.

Referring then to the success which had attended the labours of the Auxiliary, and of its consequent debt of gratitude to God, he said : If for a moment we look behind all this success, we cannot but perceive and admire the philanthropic spirit by which the Society is animated. Did we not, when the yellow fever was raging in the South, admire the Christ-like purpose of the physicians and nurses, who, leaving their cool and healthful homes in the North, hastened to help and save their stricken brethren ? Then how much more must we admire the spirit and purpose of this great Society, seeking as it is, to carry forth to all the nations in their pain and perishing, the knowledge of that tree whose leaves "are for the healing of the nations." All the world applauded Grace Darling when at the risk of her own life, she rescued nine seamen who were clinging to the spars of their wrecked vessel, but this Society is doing a grander work than that. From the great lighthouse of the love of God that overlooks all the stormy, beating sea of human life, it is carrying out to shipwrecked souls this life-line of the Gospel, "Whosoever calleth upon the name of the Lord shall be saved." And all along the shores of time, and up above on the shores of the better life, are gathered uncounted thousands whom this Society has saved from among the breakers of unbelief and brought up out of the "great deep" of sin.

But what we see is only the smallest part of what has actually been done. Much of the labor of this Society is represented yet by buried seed. Under the dark soil of every land the living Word has been sown in larger measure, it may be, than we dare dream. Here and there a springing germ appears, but not until we have seen "first the blade, then the ear, after that the full corn in the ear" shall we be able to estimate aright the work which has been done. Meanwhile we thank God for what we already see, and in faith and hope go forward in our toil.

The Rev. J. S. Trotter of the Reformed Episcopal Church seconded the motion and said, that although this was his first meeting with the Society in Ottawa, he was not a stranger to the great institution, the interests of which they were met to promote. For many years he had been more or less mixed up with its operations in various parts of the world. In England, in Belgium, on the island of Teneriffe, in Western Africa, in the "remote Bermudas" and in New Brunswick he had taken part in the work of its Auxiliaries. He was gratified by the report which had been read. He suggested the importance of forming a Ladies' Branch Society in this city. He thought that the British and Foreign Bible Society had special claims on all Christian people. It brought Christian workers together once a year irrespective of sectarian distinctions. It was based on substantial facts and sound catholic principles, which in these times are indispensable to satisfy the intelligence, move the sympathies and promote liberality. The history of the Bible Society speaks for itself. Its income is a marvellous fact. From the first report published in 1805, we find its expenditure was under £692 sterling, last year it amounted to nearly £208,000 sterling. The circulation of its books is a prodigious fact; having been nearly 100,000,000 volumes in 255 languages. Another interesting feature of the work of the Society, is the aid it affords to Home and Foreign Missionary operations. As an old missionary, Mr. Trotter said he could support this statement from large experience. The grand, indestructible principle by which the British and Foreign Bible Society worked is faith. We require more intelligent and stronger faith in the God of the Bible, in the contents of the Bible, in the adaptation of the religion of the Bible to the people of the whole world.

The motion, having been put to the meeting, was carried unanimously. A hymn was then sung. Thereafter it was moved by the Rev. Dr. McVicar, Principal of the Presbyterian College, Montreal:—

"That, in view of explicit Divine commands to spread the Gospel, and of the great and palpable benefits which it has yielded to our forefathers, ourselves and other nations to whom it has been given, we, who are here present, recognize it as our bounden duty to promote in every way in our power, the universal circulation of God's Word as the great instrument of human progress and happiness."

Dr. McVicar said:—In terms of this resolution we are met to promote the universal circulation and acceptance of the Word of God: a grand and glorious work whose influence and power for good can hardly be over-estimated. It is well at the outset to take note very briefly of what has been accomplished in this respect and of the forces arrayed in favor of our enterprise. Since 1804 the Bible has been translated into 226 languages ; and during the last 70 years, it has had an aggregate circulation by various societies of at least 150,000,000. The British and Foreign Bible Society alone expended in this way last year $1,000,000, and the American Society $600,000 : and it is estimated that in Britain and the United States during the nine years ending in 1879, there was laid out on Foreign Missions alone the sum of sixty-seven million dollars, and a very much larger sum upon Home Mission and Church work and various forms of Christian beneficence which were all the legitimate outcome of the Word of God. In the year 1600, or eleven years before the issue of King James' version of the Bible, there were only five millions of English-speaking people in the world to whom it could be offered ; while, to-day, there are at least 96 millions who speak our language, and who may if they wish, read our revised English New Testament. Then think of the millions upon millions speaking other languages to whom the word is made accessible. Ours is undoubtedly the age of missions and of Bible distribution, when many run to and fro and knowledge is increased. We have facilities in this respect which were never before enjoyed, and the very enemies of the truth promote its distribution. It will be found upon a critical and comprehensive survey of the history of Christianity that it has made more progress and achieved more brilliant and telling victories during the last 80 years than during the preceding eighteen centuries. These are significant facts, and they show that the Bible is not losing its hold upon the hearts and intellects of men but the very reverse. True, there are here and there lofty uppish bystanders who believe in themselves and scarcely think it worth while believing in God, who affect to despise the Book and place it down upon a level with the writings of Socrates and Plato and Confucius and the Vedas and Shasters of India, persons who with weary repetitions talk of the approaching collapse of morals and the utter failure of Christianity, but this is only to perpetrate an ignorant travesty on the plainest facts of universal history.

It is vain to talk of the Bible being now upheld by weak ignorant fanatical pietists, or by cunning hypocrites who are agnostics at heart, but too dishonest and mean to say what they think. The strongest, purest, profoundest minds in the world are arrayed on the side of God's word. There never was such a vast army as now of clear-headed, learned, critical men of judicial skill who are thoroughly persuaded that in holding fast and holding forth the word of Life they are not following cunningly devised fables. They know, because they have critically tested it, that the book has come down to them accredited beyond all works of antiquity,—has come down to them as delivered by God to holy men of old who spoke as they were moved by the Holy Ghost, attested by internal, external and collateral evidences which are ever increasing in force and conclusiveness, and which to sensible persons have all along possessed overwhelming power.

Equally vain it is to raise the vulgar cry that science is hostile to the Bible and destined to consume it. This may serve to frighten a few of the unread and the unthinking to whom science is merely a mysterious and appalling name. But the truth is that the inquiring critical spirit which science manifests is that which the Bible itself inculcates and fosters. It is this very book which invites and provokes discussion, and fearlessly says to men, "prove all things : hold fast that which is good." We have, therefore, no wicked and unnatural quarrel with any of the sciences. We bid them all God speed. We devoutly rejoice in all the wisely-directed efforts and brilliant successes of learned physicists. Let them by all means push forward the lines of knowledge and discovery in every direction far beyond their present limits. Let them find out and formulate new laws of the material universe, and let them assail and destroy every form of ancient, mediæval, and modern superstition that falls within their realm.

But after science has nobly done her work, and after she has occupied a much larger place than now in the thought and confidence of the world, let no one be so simple as to suppose that the Bible is superseded. No ! Its domain lies above and beyond the field of the physical sciences. It speaks on themes upon which these sciences are and must ever be silent. What has any science except theology to say about a Saviour and repentance, and pardon and eternal life. What can chemistry or mathematics tell you about the removal of sin and guilt? What can geology or anatomy or astronomy tell you about faith and love and gratitude and moral courage and purity and all that goes to make up a true and exalted man? Absolutely nothing.

But these are great and pressing facts in human experience, and, so long as they are such, the Bible will be indispensable to the human race. Meanwhile the great lesson which scientists and theologians are learning is, that each should keep to his own province and frankly recognize and respect the truth and the glory of what belongs to his neighbour's province. It is surely illogical and foolish to allege that because the Bible is true, science must be false, and, vice versa, because science has grand and eminently practical truth to offer, the Bible must be false. Nay, verily, but let us rather joyfully and reverently accept truth from whatever quarter it hails, feeling sure that ultimately we receive it all from God, the great fountain of truth and love.

And let us beware, brethren, whether judging of the progress of science or of the Bible, of falling into the error of mere pessimists who are perpetually looking along the line of their noses into the dirt of this world, but never up to God and to heaven, and who are continually sighing and moaning over the degeneracy of our age and the unutterable badness of the world. Away with these gloomy notions. The world with all its faults is vastly better than ever it was before, and this is undoubtedly due in a very large degree to the wide circulation and acceptance of the Bible, accompanied by the power of the Holy Ghost.

I venture to urge you to scatter it to the utmost extent :—

1.—Because of what it has already accomplished for the human race. It has done good and no evil. No man has been made a worse husband or father or son, a worse doctor or lawyer or banker, a worse merchant or member of Parliament by doing what is enjoined in the Bible. The great currents of human thought and activity have not been corrupted but purified by this truth. I am not in your presence and, during the few moments at my disposal, going to attempt a history of its glowing achievements, but this I will say, that all the nations that are not possessed of this book, move on a far lower plane intellectually, morally and spiritually, than those that have it. I say more, that paganism is a failure, an utter failure, whether propped up by the philosophy of ancient or modern times. It is not progressive, inventive, elevated, pure. Pagan lands are not the lands of steam ships and railways and steam looms and spinning jennies and telegraphs and telephones and electric light. Pagan lands are not the homes of domestic purity and universal freedom: where property is safe and human life and rights—and specially the rights of strangers—are sacred. No! This state of things you will find only in Bible lands. Cold, secular science and philosophy, whether all moulded by evolution or otherwise, are powerless to save men from the ravages of sin and vice. Hence pagan lands are, and ever have been, the abodes of festering vice and horrid cruelties. We may take them at the zenith of their so-called glory and yet this is true of them. In Imperial Rome both before and after the advent of Jesus Christ, fathers and mothers esteemed it virtuous to put their infant offspring to death, to expose them to the teeth of dogs, or to give them as a prey to murderous jugglers who often used their brains to practice incantations, or saved them alive for the basest purposes of slavery and immorality. Quintilian says, "To kill a man is held to be a crime, but to kill one's own children is sometimes considered to be a beautiful action among the Romans." And we all know how serfdom and slavery, private wars and duels, polygamy and horrid public games and spectacles debauched the people; and how, then as now in all heathen lands, woman was trampled under foot amid unutterable degradation and misery. Against all these and a thousand kindred evils, the Word of God and the teachings of Jesus Christ definitely pronounce. But it does vastly more. It is not like so much of the philosophy of our day, a system of mere negations. It furnishes positive truth. It offers a remedy for the sins and woes of men. It says, "Love thy neighbour as thyself," and this single precept, heartily accepted and obeyed, would annihilate serfdom and slavery over the whole world; and, as matter of fact, has not this spirit of love, which is the spirit of Christ, laid hold, more or less, upon the human heart wherever the Word of God has been received; and are not the nations to-day learning—too slowly we grant—to settle their international difficulties without appealing as readily as heretofore, to the stern and awful arbitrament of war?

Then think of the humane institutions which we owe to the Bible. Those who wantonly blaspheme against Christ and His Word, are debtors to Him in this respect, a thousand times more than they can ever acknowledge. Look at our homes for orphans, for the aged and infirm who were wont, under the rule of pagan philosophy, to be visited with cruelty and death. Look at our Hospitals for the sick, for the incurable, for all sorts of sufferers; our asylums for the insane and the inebriate, as well as our schools for the deaf, the dumb and the blind. These are undeniably the offspring of the Bible. In fact the history of human progress and of civilization in its highest forms, is simply the history of the triumphs of Christianity. No one can deny that Bible lands are to-day elevated, noble, scientific, progressive, free; and that lands which have not the Bible, are sunken, vicious, degraded, full of tyranny and cruelty of every form. Hence they are not the true friends of our land and of our race, they are not the advanced thinkers of the age or the promoters even of common morality, but the reverse who oppose and malign this book. A book with such a history deserves to be given to all men. Wherever it has gone it has re-adjusted human thought and reconstructed human society after a divine model. The records of the past are eloquent in its behalf, and it is full of potency for coming ages. Agnostics and others need not console themselves with the silly thought that intelligent believers in this Word and students of history are in any way trembling for its future. Nor will the apostasy of a few here and there, who usually become noisy in their new circumstances, impede the onward march of the truth and the Kingdom of Jesus Christ. The Word itself foretells the appearance from time to time of its opposers; and these verify its truth by the bitterness of their hatred and opposition. And after all that is said of their recent attempts in this respect, they are heartless and feeble, void of conviction and force, when compared with the efforts of their predecessors. Yet under the sterner treatment of giant unbelievers in the past, the truth has held steadily on its way and continued to bless and elevate mankind, and its foes may make up their minds that it is sure to advance during the twentieth century with redoubled energy and glory. On the score of patriotism, for the sake of humanity, and in recognition of the mighty things it has already accomplished, we are bound to give this Word to all men. But we are bound to do so:—

2.—Because it is the highest and best instrument of intellectual culture. In saying this we do not depreciate human appliances. We grant that it is a grand thing to have fellowship through their books with the sages, the poets, philosophers and scientists of ancient and modern times. We grant that the results of man's thinking are often good, but God's thoughts are infinitely better and they are recorded in this book, and fitted beyond all others to strengthen and expand the human intellect. The Bible undeniably contains the foundations of all History, ethnology and archæology and these are subjects which form a large factor in any healthy system of education.

It meets an imperative demand of the human mind by revealing a great and all-sufficient First Cause of all things.

I hold that the recent theories of science in this connection are both unsupported by fact and thoroughly unsatisfactory to the human intellect. To be told, as we are, that molecules, and law and force exist and that these account for all things, cannot set our inquiring spirits at rest.

We ask whence these molecules and this force and law? How did these originate? And science has no answer to give.

We ask how did these dead atoms become transferred into living things? What is life and whence is it? How do you bridge over the broad chasm between dead atoms and living creatures? Science cannot tell. "After centuries of research the term life wanders through science without a definition." How do you bridge over the great gulfs between plants and animals, between the species, and between the highest animals and lowest grades of men? Where is the missing link which connects man with his supposed brute ancestors? And again science has no answer. This is wholly unsatisfactory. This boasted theory of evolution furnishes science no starting point from which to begin her investigations. While offered as an explanation of the physical universe, in fact, of life and history and all things it glaringly assumes the existence of matter, the very thing the origin of which it pretends to account for, and then fails to make the transitions which we have just indicated. Even granting it the creation of matter without a Creator it cannot with this enormous concession in its favour make out a rational concatenation of existing creatures as they appear to every one's observation. To be trained in theories of this sort is surely neither science nor intellectual culture. But instead of this let us set out in our science and in our mental training from the starting point furnished by the Bible, that God is self-existent, almighty, "infinite, eternal, and unchangeable in his being, wisdom, power, holiness, justice, goodness and truth," and that out of the infinite resources of his own nature—not out of nothing—but out of his own infinite resources, "in the beginning"—away back we know not how far in the past eternity—"He created the heavens and the earth,"—and in due time, when his home was prepared for him, created man not in the image of an ape but in His own image endowed with intellectual, moral, and spiritual powers which are not bestowed upon the lower creatures. This sublime Biblical solution of one of the great problems of our age accords with the highest reason and the verified results of science; for reason demands a cause, and science demands a cause possessed of supreme intelligence where evolution furnishes none.

Now what we allege is that for purposes of true education, of real intellectual culture we must not outrage this law of our being; and the grand peculiarity of the Bible is that it continually leads our thoughts up from the elementary, the finite, the phenomenal to the infinite,—and this is a necessity of complete thought and of full intellectual development. You cannot build up a strong physical frame without causing it to undergo vigorous exercise; and so you cannot develop robust, manly intellects fit to work out the true destiny of our great Dominion without teaching them to wrestle with the profound problems of this Book, with out bringing them during the process of education face to face with God as the creator and supreme ruler of all things. I do not care to conceal my emphatic opinion that atheism, under whatever scientific or unscientific name it may be concealed, is a destructive evil in any educational system. And I make very little account of the idle cry that the Word of God should be excluded from our homes and our Schools because it breeds sectarian strifes and bitterness. History is taught in our Schools and our homes, and I ask any candid thinker to say if there is not vastly more in the history of England, say in the history of Henry VIII., or Charles I., or Charles II., to stir up such strifes than in all the writings of the Old and New Testaments. Then why put the truth of God under the ban and not history? And has it really come to this that any one in a Christian land has the hardihood to tell us that the study of the life and teachings of Jesus Christ is not good for us? Will any one tell me that we have in this Book the thoughts of God who has given us our feeble powers of thinking and that what he has given for the health and growth of our spirits is really unwholesome? Nay verily—Christ's philosophy of education is that which shall prevail, that "man cannot live by bread alone, but by every word that proceedeth out of the mouth of God." I urge, therefore, the circulation of the Word for this reason: and 3.—Because it is the very best instrument of moral culture. To establish this we do not require to disparage ethical systems produced by heathen philosophers and others as containing no truth. Some of them contained a great deal of truth. But looking over them from the day of Aristotle and Plato to the time of the latest pagan writer this may be safely said of them all that they lacked the great fundamental principle which is the backbone of Christian ethics, viz., an infallible standard by which to judge of right and wrong. This was their great defect. Men have looked in vain for the standard of right in self-interest, in utility, in feelings of benevolence, in pleasurable emotions, or in the dicta of unenlightened conscience—these are all shifting and uncertain. But the Bible reveals an infallible standard. The ultimate rule of right is God's nature. God is always right. But how can we know Him? His nature is revealed in his works and in his word, and hence we are bound to observe the laws of the physical world as well as the ten commandments; but in that Decalogue we have a far more perfect representation of the Divine mind, so that the Bible should be given to all men as conferring upon them immeasurable benefits did it contain nothing more than the ten commandments, the Lord's prayer and the parable of the prodigal son. But it contains infinitely more than these; and that we may appreciate its supreme value for moral purposes, notice for a moment its marvellous structure. There has been a gradual development in the revelation of the Divine mind. During two thousand years extending over the antediluvian period we have no record of a formal code of ethics, but only brief and broken notes of great transactions in which God appeared while men were left free to infer, from these, principles and rules of action.

By-and-by we reach the Mosaic era, and here we have that wondrous decalogue which gathers up into itself all previous legislation, these ten commandments which embrace such a generalization of human duty as the unaided mind of man could never have produced. And this abstract code continued through many centuries to be enforced and illustrated by the voice of inspired prophets and living teachers and in the wonder-laden history of the chosen people. Then after a period of silence of four hundred years, from Malachi to John the Baptist, during which there was no open vision and no prophet speaking to Israel, God's Son appeared in human flesh and spake as never man spoke. His theme was God's law in all its length and breadth of spiritual significance, together with his own glorious, redemptive mission. He magnified the law and made it honorable. By His fervid words and spotless life He illustrated the meaning and force of that law. A new and mighty force is thrown into human history. The standard of right has become a living reality. This Teacher sent from God no longer throws men back upon cold, abstract principles, but says to them touching all matters of morality, "Follow Me." And who will presume to say that, following Christ the Incarnate Word, he will go astray? I do not say shamming or 'playing the hypocrite after Christ, but, honestly following His life and His lessons, who has ever been led out of the path of truth and right?

What a superlative system of ethics for our schools and our homes! By general principles and specific precepts, by a comprehensive summary in the ten commandments, by the lessons of inspired prophets, by the whole history of the chosen people, and by the works and words of Jesus Christ and his inspired apostles, the whole duty of man is enforced. How wrong, how criminal, therefore, on the score of morality is it to withhold this Book from the people. I tell you what you know, that to purify and elevate our commercial, political and ecclesiastical activity, what we need is the simple, old-fashioned morality of this book; by which truth means truth and lies are lies, and abominable, by whomsoever spoken. But I urge the circulation of the Book upon a higher ground than any of these.

4.—Because it reveals salvation to men. We miss the very pith and marrow of the book, we falsify its contents and its mission, unless we take this into account. From first to last it speaks of salvation to men. It tells us that this world is not the be-all and the end-all of our existence: that we have souls to be saved or lost. It testifies that there is forgiveness, and we know that we need pardon, for we have sinned. It testifies that there is spiritual and eternal life in Christ, and we know that we need it, for we are dead in trespasses and sins. It testifies that there is spiritual purification through the blood of the Redeemer, and we know that we need it, because we are defiled; our very righteousnesses are filthy rags, and the more rags we have the worse we are off. It testifies that there are spiritual power and liberty through the indwelling of the Holy Ghost, and we know that we need these to resist evil forces from within and from without. It testifies that there is a Father's house, an eternal resting place for our souls beyond the grave; and who does not feel amid the storms and sorrows of this life, that we need such a home. Talk of national progress, wealth and stability: here is the secret of it all—firm adherence to the morality, the truth, the integrity, the uncorrupted righteousness taught in this book. What has made the throne of our sovereign, Queen Victoria, who is the purest and the best monarch that wears a crown and wields a sceptre upon earth, strong and immovable? Simply that it rests upon the truth of God. As we would be, therefore, loyal to our sovereign, loyal to humanity, to all the nations of the world; as we value their souls destined to immortal existence, as we would be loyal to our great Redeemer, let us give His truth to all the world. Amen.

The motion, having been seconded by the Rev. J. Wood, of the Congregational Church, without an address, was put to the meeting and adopted.

A collection was then taken up, and, at the same time, an anthem sung by the choir.

It was next moved by the Rev. W. D. Armstrong, seconded by G. May, Esq., and cordially carried;—"That the thanks of this meeting are due and are hereby given to the various Branches of this Auxiliary with their Committees and collectors, to the speakers of this evening, to the choir, and to the trustees of this church, for their kind assistance, and for the measure in which they have severally contributed to the success of this anniversary service."

The Doxology was then sung, and the meeting closed by Dr. McVicar pronouncing the benediction.

N.B.—To make the more room for the preceding parts of this Appendix, and for what follows, the Recording Secretary's account of his visits to Branches is omitted. Besides, it is really unnecessary to give it, because the Auxiliary's report contains everything of importance that he had to state.

REPORT OF REV. S. HUNTINGTON, Missionary in the Nipissing District, as to his work in the winter of 1883-4.

Owing to severe affliction in my family, I have not been able to devote as much time to the circulation of the Scriptures as I desired. I have, nevertheless, been permitted to plant the "good seed" in some soil which I trust, when warmed by the rays of the Sun of righteousness, will produce an encouraging spiritual harvest.

The field which I occupy embraces three classes of population: the lumbermen working in the forests and on the drive, the navvies engaged in the construction of the Canadian Pacific Railway, and the permanent settlers who are preparing homes in the wilderness. They comprise people of many nationalities and religious persuasions. While prosecuting my work among shantymen, I have encountered a difficulty which has greatly retarded my success. The Roman Catholic priests, becoming alarmed by the evangelistic efforts of Protestant missionaries, and by the free circulation of the Word of God among their people, have evidently operated through the confessional to induce their adherents to withdraw the countenance and support which they have hitherto accorded to the colporteur. While civil to him personally, they decline his advances on the subject of religion with a persistency previously unknown in this country. I thank God, however, that, notwithstanding this, I have been enabled to deliver numerous addresses to the shantymen, in both the French and English languages, on Christ's great love to sinners, and to place a few copies of the sacred Word in the hands of Romanists.

The following incidents will show the nature of much of the work we do among the French Roman Catholics. At one of the depôts, I had an interesting conversation with an intelligent Frenchman from Quebec, who freely expressed his want of confidence in the teaching and government of the Church of Rome. His words were, "too much ceremony and too little piety." I tried to teach him that true religion is not so much a ceremony as a life—a divine life in the soul arising from personal union with Christ by faith, which is ever attended by a consciousness of God's favour and delight in keeping His commandments. I supplied him with a New Testament in the French language which he appeared to value very highly. I conversed with another Frenchman from France, who possessed a good education in his own language, as well as extensive information concerning the general policy of Rome. He had not been to confession for eighteen years, because he regarded the Romish church as a huge system of political and ecclesiastical tyranny. He remarked that although he and his family no longer attended mass, they were not infidels nor heathens. They read the Word of God and prayed daily for Divine guidance and support. He knew nothing of Protestantism, having never been in-

N. B.—To harmonize the Treasurer's detailed statement of receipts on pages 22 and 23 with the above record it is proper to mention that a few errors, which did not exist in the Treasurer's manuscript, have got into his statement in its printed form. The New Edinburgh Free Contribution was not $57.30, but $51.30. The collections at Templeton were $7.12, and are included in the total amount given by the Treasurer, but they have strangely dropped out of the statement of details. The total amounts at the close of the statement page 23 are quite correct, but the sums given in the last line of page 22 are not so. It should also be added that an additional remittance of $8.45 was received from Pakenham since the Treasurer closed his account for the year, and is included in the above tabular statement.
