LIFE AT THE FIVE POINTS NEW YORK.
TO THE EDITOR OF HASZARD'S GAZETTE.

Sir,—The following article appeared, not long since in the columns of the New York Tribune, and is a truthful, thrilling picture of the privations and sufferings of a poor girl, who earned a living by crying "hot corn" through the streets of New York. Mr. Pease, of the Five Points House of Industry, has since announced that from Aug. 1st, to Sept. 9th, the sum of $1,000, in unsolicited donations, had been received by him, for that philanthropic institution—most of which may be set down to the credit of the article in question. As one among the many striking instances of our most daily occurrences, illustrating the power and influence of the public press, when its columns are devoted to the advocacy of benevolence, and the advocacy of the moral and social condition of the masses of the people, and as a fresh incentive to exertion in every philanthropic enterprise, I send the article to you, for insertion in your widely-circulated and useful Journal. "In the morning you may see, and in the evening without rest your hand, for thou knowest not which shall prosper, this or that."

Yours, &c.
C.

HOT CORN; OR, LIFE IN THE CITY.
THE FIRST INTERVIEW WITH LITTLE KATY.

"Hot Corn! Here's your nice Hot Corn, smoking hot, 'smoking hot, just from the pot!"

Hour after hour, late evening, as we sat over the desk, this cry came up in a soft, plaintive voice under our window, which told us of one of the ways of the poor to eke out the means of subsistence in this overburdened, ill-fed and worse-lodged home of misery—of so many without means, who are constantly crowding into the dirtiest portions of this notorious city, where they are exposed to the daily chances of death from some sudden outbreaking epidemic like that now desolating the same kind of streets in New-Orleans and swallowing up its thousands of victims from the same class of poverty-stricken, uncomfortably-provided-for human beings, who know not how, or have not the power to flee to the healthy hills and green fields of the country. Here they live—barely live—in holes almost as hot as the hot corn, the cry of which rung in our ears from dark until midnight.

"Hot corn hot corn! here's your nice hot corn," rose up in a faint child-like voice, which seemed to have been aroused by the sound of our step as we were about entering the Park, while the City Hall clock told the hour when ghosts go forth upon their midnight rambles. We started, as though a spirit had given us a rap, for the sound seemed to come out of one of the iron posts which stand as sentinels over the main entrance, forbidding all vehicles to enter, unless the driver takes the trouble to pull up and tumble out of the way one of the foremost posts, which is not always done, because one of them often, if not always in out of its place, giving free ingress to the court yard, or lively stable grounds of the City Hall, which, in consideration of the growth of a few colored miserable dusty brown trees and doubtful grass patches, we call "the Park."

Looking over the post we discovered the owner of the hot corn cry, in the person of an emaciated little girl about twelve years old, whose dirty frock was nearly the color of the rusty iron, and whose face, hands and feet, naturally white and delicate, were grimed with dirt until nearly of the same color. There were two white streaks running down from the soft blue eyes, that told of the hot scalding tears that were coursing their way over that naturally beautiful face.

"Some corn, Sir," lisped the little sufferer, as she saw we had stopped to look at her, hardly daring to speak to one who did not address her in rough tones of command, such as "give me some corn, you little wretch, what!" or a name still more opprobrious both to herself and mother. Seeing we had no look of contempt for her, she said piteously, "please buy some corn, Sir."

"No, my dear, we do not wish any; it is not very healthy in such warm weather as this, and especially so late at night."

"Oh dear, then, what shall I do?"

"Why, go home. It is past midnight, and such little girls as you ought not to be in the streets of this bad City at this time of night."

"I can't go home—and I am so tired and sleepy. Oh dear!"

"Cannot go home. Why not?"

"Oh, Sir, my mother will whip me if I go home without selling all my corn. Oh, Sir, do buy one ear, and then I shall have only two left, and I am sure she might let little Sis and me eat them, for I have not had anything to eat since morning, only one apple the man gave me, and one part of one he threw away. I could have stole a turnip at the grocery when I want to get—to get something in the pitcher for mother, but I dare not. I did use to steal, but Mr. Pease says it is naughty to steal, and I don't want to be a bad girl, like Lexy Smith, and she is only two years older than me, if she does dress fine; 'cause Mr. Pease says she will be just like old drunken Kate, one of these days. Oh, dear, now there goes a man and I did not cry hot corn, what shall I do?"

"Do! There, that is what you shall do," as we dashed the corn in the gutter. "Go home I tell you mother you have sold it all, and here is the money."

"What that be a lie, Sir! Mr. Pease says we must not tell lies."

"No, my dear, that went be a lie, because I have bought it and thrown it away, instead of eating it."

"But, Sir, may I eat it then if you don't want it?"

"No, it is not good for you; good bread is better, and here is a sixpence to buy a loaf, and here is another to buy some nice cakes for you and Sis. Now that is your money; don't give it to your mother, and don't stay out so late again. Go home earlier, and tell your mother you cannot keep awake, and if she is a good mother she won't whip you."

"Oh, Sir, she is a good mother sometimes. But I am sure the grocery man at the corner is not a good man or he would not sell my mother corn, when he knows—for Mr. Pease told him so—that we poor children were starving. Oh, I wish all the men were good men like him, and my mother would not drink that nasty liquor and beat and starve us, 'cause there would be nobody to sell her any—and then we should have plenty to eat."

Away she ran down the street toward that reeking center of filth, poverty and misery, the noted Five Points of New York.

We had picked up Broadway, looking in here and there upon the palatial splendors of metropolitan "saloons"—we think that is the word for fashionable upper class grogshops—we almost involuntarily cried "hot corn" as we saw the hot spirit of that grain, under the various brands of "pure gin"—"old rum"—"pale guinea"—"pure port"—"Holland"—"for 'Larger-Boon'"—poured down the hot throats of men—and ah, of women, too, whose daughters may some day sit at midnight upon the cold curbstone crying "hot corn," to gain a penny for the purchase of a drink of the fiery dragon they are now inviting to a home in their bosoms, whose cry in after years will be "Give, 'give, give," and still as unsatisfied as the horse-leech and leech-mother.

Again as we passed on that street, still busy and thronged at midnight, as a country village at midday intermission of church service, ever and anon from some side-street, came up the cry of "hot corn—hot corn?" and ever as we heard it, and ever as we shall through all years to come, we thought of that little girl and her drunken mother, and the "bad man" at the corner grocery, and that her's was the best, the strongest Main Law argument which had ever fallen upon our listening ear.

Again, as we turned the corner of Spring st., the glare and splendor of a thousand gas lights, and the glittering cut-glass of that for the first time lighted-up bar room of the Prescott House, so lauded by the Press for its magnificence, dashed our eyes and almost blinded our senses to a degree of imagination that first class Hotels must have.

Five Point denizen-making appetences as this glittering room, shamelessly inviting open to the street; that when watch-word cry, like the pibroch's starting peal, came up from the near vicinity, waiting like a lost spirit on the midnight air—"Hot corn, hot corn, here's your nice hot corn!"—smoking hot—hot—hot corn!"

"Yes, yes! I hear you cry—it is a watch-word glorious watch word, that bids us to die, or die until the smoking hot, fiery furnace like gates of hell, like that one now yawning before us, shall cease to be licensed by a Christian people, to send delicate little girls at midnight through the streets, crying "Hot corn," to support a drunken mother, whose first glass was taken in a "fashionable saloon," or first-class liquor selling hotel."

"Hot corn," then, be the watch-word of all who would rather see the grain sold to the drunkard's wife and children than into the insatiable hot man of the whisky still.

Let your resolutions grow hot and strong every time you see the shining glow of that you will devote, if nothing more—

"Three grains of corn, mother,
Only three grains of corn."

toward the salvation of the thousand equally pitiable objects as the little girl, whose waiting cry has been the inciting cause of this present dish of "Hot Corn—smoking hot!"

THE HOME OF LITTLE KATY.
About a week ago we published a little story under this title, detailing some of the sufferings which crime and misery bring upon the poor of this City, and hinted at the cause. That story is not yet finished. The next night after the interview with the little girl, we used just girl, the same plaintive cry of "Hot corn, hot corn, here's your nice hot corn," came up through our open window, on the midnight air, while the rain came dripping down from the overcharged clouds in just sufficient quantity to wet the thin single garment of the owner of the sweet young voice, without giving her an acceptable excuse for leaving her post before her hard task was completed. At length the voice grew faint, and then ceased—and then we knew that exhausted nature slept—that a tender house plant was exposed to the chilling influence of a night rain—that an innocent little girl had the curb-stone for a bed and an iron post for a pillow—that by and by she would awaken, not irrigated with refreshing slumber, but poisoned with the sleep-imbued miasma of the fifth reeking gutter at her feet, which may be breathed with impunity awake, but like the malaria of our Southern coast, is death to the sleeper. Not soothed by a dreamy consciousness of hearing a mother's voice, turning the soft lullaby of "Hush my child, lie still and slumber;"

but starting like a sentinel upon a savage frontier post, with alarm at having slept; shivering with night air and fear, and finally compelled to go home trembling like a culprit, to "hear the hard words of a mother—yes a mother—but Oh! what a mother—cursing her for not performing an impossibility, because exhausted nature slept—because her child had not made a profit which would have enabled her more freely to indulge in the soil and body-destroying vice of drunkenness, to which she had fallen from an estate when "my carriage" was one of the "household words" which used to greet the young ears of that poor little death-stricken neglected street sufferer.

It was past midnight when she awoke, and found herself with a desperate effort just able to reach the bottom of the rickety stairs which led to her home. We shall not go up now. In a little while, reader, you shall see where live the City poor.

Tired—worn with the daily toil—for such is the work of an editor who ciphers for the appetite of his morning readers—we were not content the next night to note the absence of that cry from its accustomed spot; but the next, and next, and still on we listened in vain—that voice, was not there. True the same hot-corn cry, came floating upon the evening breeze across the park, or swarmed its way from some crannies of the street down the street, up and around the corner; or out of some dark alley with a broken English accent, that sounded almost as much like "larger beer" as it did like the commodity the immigrant, struggling to eke out his precarious existence, wished to sell.

All over this great poverty-burdened, and wretched extravagant City, at this season, that cry goes up, nightly, proclaimed one of the habits of this late upper eating people.

Yes, we indeed that cry—"Hot corn," was no longer like the music of a striped instrument to a weary man, for the strident string was broken, and, to us, the harmony spoiled.

What was that voice to us? It was but one of the ten thousand, just as miserable, which may be daily heard where human misery has its abode. That voice, as some others have, did not haunt us, but its absence, in spite of all reasoning made us feel uneasy. We do not believe in spirit manifestations half as strongly as some of the sin-compothe of this world would have their long-suffering listeners think, yet we do believe there is a spirit in man, not yet made manifest, which makes us have a feeling of certainty that we should see and hear something of the lost voice, for that spirit led us on; or perhaps it was the spirit of curiosity; no matter, it led, and we followed in the route we had seen that little one go before.

It was our only cue—we knew no name—had no number, nor knew any one that knew her whom we were going to find. Yes, we knew that good Missionary, and she had told us of the good words which he had spoken, but would he know her from the hundred just like her? Perhaps, it will cost nothing to inquire.

We went down Centre st. with a light heart; we turned into Cross st. with a step buoyed by hope; we stood at the corner of Little Water-st. and looked round inquiringly of the spirit, and mentally said, "which way now?" The answer was a far-off scream of despair. We stood still with an open ear, for the sound of prayer, followed by a sweet hymn of praise to God, went up from the site of the Old Brewery, in which we joined, thankful that that was no longer the abode of all the worst crimes ever concentrated under one roof. Hark, a step approaches. Our unseen guide whispered, "ask him." It was a curious question to ask a stranger, in such a strange place, particularly like him, beggared with over-much care, toil or mental labor. Prematurely old, his days shortened by over work in young years, as his furrowed face and almost phrenetic eye hurriedly indicates, as we see the flash of the lamp upon his dark visage, as he approaches with that peculiar American step which impels the body forward at railroad speed. Shall we get out of his way before he sees over us? What if he is a crazy man? No; the spirit was right—no false raps here! It is that good missionary. That man who has done more to reform that den of crime, the Five Points of New York, than all the Municipal Authorities of this Police-haunting, and Prison-punishing City, which we stand at the corner of, crime, or the unfortunate driven to it, by the way they are treated, instead of being reformed, or strengthened in their resolution to reform, by hard work rather than Prison bars. "Sir," said Mr. Pease, "what brings you here at this time of night, for I know there is an object: can I assist you?"

"Perhaps, I don't know—a foolish whim—a little child—one of the miserable, with a drunk-mother."

"Come with me, then. There are many such. I am just going to visit one, who will die before morning—a sweet little girl, born in better days, and dying now—but you shall see, and then we will talk about the one you would seek to save."

We were soon threading a narrow alley, where pestilence walketh in darkness, and crime, wretched poverty and filthy misery, go hand in hand to destruction.

"Be glad to see you," the fruits of our City exclaim. Here is the profit of money spent for license to kill the body and damn the soul." Proven by the awful curses and loud blows of a drunken husband upon a wife, once an ornament of society, and exemplary member of a Christian Church, that came up out of one of the low cellars, which human beings call by the name of home.

The fetid odour of this filthy lane had been made more fetid by the late and almost scalding hot rains, until it seemed to us that such an air was only fit for a charnel house. With the thermometer at 85, at midnight, how could men live in such a place, below the surface of the earth. Has run rendered them proof against the effect of carbonic acid gas?

We groped our way along to the foot of an outside staircase, where our conductor paused for a moment, calling our attention to the spot. "Here," said Mr. Pease, "the little sufferer we are going to see, fainted a few nights ago, and lay all night exposed to the rain, where she was found and beaten in the morning by her miserable mother, because she had not sold all her corn."

"Great and unknown Cause, hast thou brought us to her door?" Our friend stared, but did not comprehend the expression. "Be careful," said he, "the stairs are very old, and slippery."

"Best her!" said we, without regarding what he was saying.

"Yes, best her, while she was in a fever of delirium, from some she has never rallied. She has never spoken rationally, since she was taken. Her constant prayer seems to be to see some particular person before she dies."

"Oh, if I could see him once more—there—there—that is how, now, did not open that way to me—did not get out and best her."

"Such is her conversation, and that indeed her mother to send for me, but I was not the man. 'Will he come?' she says, every time I visit her; for, thinking to soothe and comfort her, I promised to bring him."

We had reached the top of the stairs and stood a moment at the open door, where sin and misery dwell, where sickness had come, and where death would soon enter.

"A faint voice came up from a low bed in one corner, seen by the very dim light of a miserable lamp.

That voice. We could not be mistaken. We could not enter

VARIETIES.

MEDITATION AMONG THE TOMBS.

ON THE DUKES OF HARBOROUGH. Here lies John, Duke of Harborough, Who ran the French through and through...

FROM BROOK CHURCHYARD, ENGLAND.

God be praised! Here is Mr. Dudley, senior, And John, his wife, also, Who, while living, was his superior; But see what death can do...

In St. Michael's Churchyard, Aberystwyth, in another, to the memory of David Davies, blacksmith:—

My sledge and Hammer lay reclined, My Bellows, too have, lost their wind, My fire's extinct, my force decayed, And in the dust my Vise is laid; My Coal is spent, my Iron gone, My Nails are driven—my work is done.

In St. Germain's, in the Isle of Nan, the following very singular epitaph is yet to be seen, in Latin, over the tomb of Dr. Samuel Rutter, formerly prebendary of Litchfield, and afterwards Bishop of Sodor and Man:—

In this house, Which I have borrowed from My brethren the worms, I, SAMUEL, by Divine permission, Bishop of this Island, Stop, reader; behold and smile at THE PALACE OF A BISHOP! who died May 30, in the year 1855.

An Hibernian epitaph reads as follows—it is taken from the old churchyard at Belterbet, Ireland:—

Here lies John Higley, whose father and mother were drowned in their passage to America. Had they both lived, they would have been buried here!

The following admonitory voice from a tomb in Thetford churchyard, Norfolk, will at least be pursued with interest by the advocates of the Temperance cause:—

My grandfather lies buried here, My cousin Jane, and two uncles dear; My father perished with an inflammation in his eyes, My sister dropt down dead in the Minories; But the reason why I'm here interred, according to my thinking, Is owing to my good living and hard drinking! Therefore, good people, if you wish to live long, Don't drink too much wine, brandy, gin, or anything strong.

A young lady has written it down in her album that kissing is a capital offence.

The man who made a shoe for the foot of a mountain, is now engaged on a hat for the head of a discourse—after which he will manufacture a plume for Gen. Intelligence.

Dentist (looking wise and speaking with careful accent.) "Well, navigator of the seas, which is the tooth you wish extracted? Is it a molar or an incisor?" Jcak (throwing overboard his quid and speaking tartly.) "It is in the second tier, starboard side, near the hatches. Bear a hand, you land lubber, and heave away, for it is nipping my jaw like a sea turtle!"

John Bunyan, while in Bedford jail, was called upon by a Quaker desirous of making a convert of him. "Friend John, I have come to thee with a message from 'the Lord, and after having searched for thee in all the prisons in England! I am glad have found thee out at last." "If the Lord had sent you," returned Bunyan, "you need not have taken so much pains to find me out, for the Lord knows I have been here twelve years."

VALUE OF NEWSPAPERS.—Dr. Johnson, when in the fullness of years and knowledge said:—I never took up a newspaper without finding something I would have deemed it a loss not to have seen; never without deriving from it instruction or amusement.

Revenge is a common passion; it is the sin of the uneducated. The savage deems it noble; but Christ's religion, which is the sublime civilization, emphatically condemns it. Why? Because religion ever seeks to ennoble man, and nothing so debases him as revenge.

A disappointed author, indulging in a vein of abuse against a successful rival exclaimed, "he is without exception, the most superficial, self sufficient, ignorant, shallow creature that ever made any pretension to literature." "Gently, my dear sir," interrupted a gentleman, "you quite forget yourself."

The Cherokee marriage ceremony is very expressive—man and woman joining hands over running water, indicating that their lives are to flow in one stream.

At a recent lecture, Dr. Boynton related that wishing to explain to a little girl the manner in which the lobster casts its shell, when it has outgrown it, he said, "What do you do when you have outgrown your clothes? You throw them aside, don't you?" "Oh, no!" replied the little one, "we let out the laces!"—The Doctor confessed she had the advantage of him there.

CURIOUS ADVERTISEMENT.—The following advertisement is copied from a recent number of the Connecticut Courant published at Hartford, in America:—

"I wish, my wife, has grown quite rude, She has left me in a lonesome mood; She has left my board, She has taken my bed, She has gone away my meat and bread, She has left me in spite of friends and church, She has carried with her all my things, Now ye who read this paper, Since she cut this reckless caper, I will not pay one single fraction For any debt of her contraction."

BELLS! BELLS! BELLS!

THE Subscriber manufactures and keeps constantly on hand, all sizes of Church, Chapel, School, Hospital, Ferry, Locomotive, School House and Plantation Bells, with the best description of Hangings. These Bells are made from the best steel, and the small size undergo the same process of manufacturing as Church Bells. An experience of thirty years, with a great many recent improvements, and an entirely new method of casting, enables us to obtain the most melodious tone, combining also, in extraordinary vibration. Nearly 9,000 Bells have been cast and sold from this Foundry, which is the best evidence of our superiority. We have fifteen Gold and Silver medals at our office, which were awarded for the "best Bells for accuracy and purity of tone." We pay particular attention to the getting up Fests or Chimes, and can refer to those furnished by us. Our establishment is contiguous to the Erie and Champlain Canals, and Railroads running in every direction, which brings us within four hours of New York. Cash paid for old Copper. Old Clocks, Lovers, Compasses, Trains, Theodolites, &c., for sale, of superior workmanship. All communications, either by mail or otherwise will have immediate attention. Health for a Shilling!

EXTRAORDINARY CURE OF LOSS OF HEALTH, DISORDERED STOMACH, INDIGESTION AND DETERIORATION OF BLOOD TO THE HEAD. Copy of a Letter from Mr. John Lloyd, of Erie, Pa., near Harlock, Merionethshire. To Professor HOLLOWAY. Sir,—I avail myself of the first opportunity of informing you, that for a very long period, I was afflicted with a dangerous sickness and frequent swimnings in the head, attended by loss of appetite, disordered stomach, and generally impaired health. Every means had failed to give me any permanent relief, and at length it became so alarming, that I was really afraid of going about without an attendant. In this melancholy state I visited a medical gentleman, Mr. Hughes, Chemist, Harlock, for the purpose of consulting him as to what I had better do; he kindly recommended your Pills, I tried them without delay, and after taking them for a short time I am happy to bear testimony to your wonderful efficacy. I am now restored to perfect health, and enabled to resume my usual duties. You are at liberty to publish this letter in any way you may think proper. I am, Sir, your obedient Servant' (Signed) JOHN LLOYD. June 6th, 1888.

MIRACULOUS CURE OF DROPSY.

Extract of a Letter from Edward Rowley, Esq., of India Walk, Tobago, dated April 8th, 1888. To Professor HOLLOWAY. DEAR SIR—I deem it a duty I owe to you and the public at large to inform you of a most miraculous recovery from that dreadful disease, Dropsy, and which, under God, was effected by your invaluable Pills. I was tapped five times within eight months, and skillfully treated by two medical practitioners, but no medicine or combination of medicines yet known, can so surely control and cure the numerous varieties of pulmonary disease which have hitherto swept from our midst thousands and thousands every year. Indeed, there is now abundant reason to believe a Remedy has at length been found which can be relied on, to cure the most dangerous affections of the lungs. Our space here will not permit us to publish any appreciation of the cure effected by its use, but we would present the following—and refer further copiously to my American Almanac, which the agent below named, will always be pleased to furnish free, wherein are full particulars, and indisputable proof of these statements. Office of Transportation, Laurens R. B., S. C., Aug. 4, 1888. Dear Sir,—My little son four years old has just recovered from a severe attack of malignant Scarlet Fever, his throat was rotten, and every person that visited him, pronounced him a dead child. Having used your CHERRY PECTORAL in California, in the winter of 1886, for a severe attack of Bronchitis, with entire success, I was induced to try it on my little boy. I gave him a tea-spoonful every three hours, commencing in the morning, and by ten o'clock at night, I found a decided change for the better, and after three days he was able to eat or drink without pain. It is in the above named disease will save many a child from a premature grave, and relieve the anxiety of many a fond parent.—For all affections of the Throat and Lungs, I believe it the best medicine extant. A feeling of the deepest gratitude, prompts me in addressing you these lines, but for your important discovery, my little boy would now have been in another world. I am yours, with great respect, I. D. POWELL, Sup. Trans., L. R. R. Rock Hill, (Sumner Co.) N. J., July 21, 1888. Dr. J. C. AYER.—Since your medicine has become known here, it has a greater demand than any other cough remedy we have ever sold. It is spoken of in terms of universal praise by those who have used it, and I know of no case where this best they can say of it, is not too much for the good it has done. I take pleasure in selling it, because I know that I am giving my customer the worth of his money, and I feel gratified in seeing the benefit it confers. Please send me a further supply, and believe Yours, with respect, JOHN C. WHITLOCK. Almost any number of certificates can be sent you, if you wish it. Windsor, C. W., June 26, 1888. J. C. AYER, Sir: This will certify that I have used your CHERRY PECTORAL for upwards of one year; and it is my sincere belief that I should have been in my grave ere this time if I had not. It has cured me of a dangerous affection of the lungs, and I do not entertain any conviction when I tell you it is a priceless remedy. Yours very respectfully, D. A. McCULLIN, Attorney at Law. Willabarra, Pa., September 29, 1888. Dr. J. C. For the rapid Cure of COUGHS, COLDS, HOARSENESS, BRONCHITIS, WHOOPING-COUGH, CROUP, ASTHMA, AND CONSUMPTION. Among the numerous Discoveries Science has made in this generation to facilitate the business of life—increasing the enjoyment, and even prolonging the term of human existence, none can be named of more real value to mankind, than this contribution of Chemistry to the Healing Art. A vast trial of its virtues throughout this broad country, has proven beyond a doubt, that no medicine or combination of medicines yet known, can so surely control and cure the numerous varieties of pulmonary disease which have hitherto swept from our midst thousands and thousands every year. Indeed, there is now abundant reason to believe a Remedy has at length been found which can be relied on, to cure the most dangerous affections of the lungs. Our space here will not permit us to publish any appreciation of the cure effected by its use, but we would present the following—and refer further copiously to my American Almanac, which the agent below named, will always be pleased to furnish free, wherein are full particulars, and indisputable proof of these
