COLD-BLOODED MURDER.

Deceased was a Former Resident of Miramichi, N. B.

The murder of Wm. Sullivan, of Miramichi, N. B., referred to recently as having taken place at Shell Lake, Wis., is explained by the following condensed from the Washington County Register:

Red Bill Sullivan, who was popularly called "Red," was a well-to-do farmer in the adjoining districts, where he was a well-known character. It appears that on Saturday night, Nov. 4th, at about ten o'clock, Mr. Sullivan, as was his usual custom, went to the barn to take a look at his horses and see that they were comfortable for the night.

With the lantern swung on his left arm and the door latch in his right hand, the fatal shot was fired that carried from the ear of God's nobles "to that bourne, from which no traveller returns." Mr. Sullivan was immediately carried to the house and assistance summoned. Drs. Bock and Brick responded and pronounced the wounds fatal.

Three bullets penetrated the unfortunate man's body, one in the left thigh, and two in the left side about the eighth and ninth ribs, the last two wounds causing death by reason of internal bleeding four hours later.

Deceased was a noble, generous and kindhearted man, and the immense funeral cortege was a grand testimonial of the esteem and worth entertained for him by his neighbors.

Andrew Johnson, an eccentric man living a mile from the late Wm. Sullivan, was arrested Sunday afternoon for the murder of Mr. Sullivan Saturday night. The only motive discoverable for Johnson's crime was revenge for a chastising administered by Sullivan last spring for the burning of some hay alleged to have been fired by Johnson. Johnson has long been known as "Crazy Andrew," but no one considered him in any way dangerous.

Johnson's preliminary examination occurred Wednesday, and resulted in his detention under charge of murder in the first degree until the March term of court opens at Grandenburg. While the evidence is wholly circumstantial, it is so strong that the police are convinced that the right man has been found. That he had accessories before the murder is also reasonable to believe.

Freeman Durrell has also been placed under arrest as an accessory to the crime. Durrell can prove a strong alibi on that night, but his intense and outspoken animosity toward Sullivan is well known. It is generally understood that he was Johnson's adviser during the latter's suit against Sullivan. Durrell has frequently and fully expressed his opinion that Sullivan had only a short time to live, and that he would be filled with buckshot before the year was out. On this evidence Durrell languishes in jail at Grandenburg as an accessory.

Since the foregoing was written Johnson, the alleged murderer of Sullivan committed suicide in prison.

THE TESTS TO BE PUBLISHED
That the Jerseys proved themselves at Chicago the leading dairy breed of cattle the records go to show. In order that the dairymen of the country may be fully and authoritatively informed on the matter it is important that these records be put in an available form. At a meeting of the committee representing the American Jersey Cattle Club of the World's Columbian Exposition, held at Jackson Park, action was taken in this direction, and the following preamble was adopted:

The Colombian Dairy Tests have all been completed and have resulted in a sweeping victory for the Jersey cow in every way, and accomplished all that the committee was appointed for, and

Whereas, These tests have proved that the Jersey cow is in every respect the most profitable dairy cow that the world has ever produced, and

Whereas, To attain the results that should naturally flow from the great triumph accomplished by the Jerseys, and to reap the good results of the expenditure made, the results of these tests in their various bearings should be made known to the public—the dairymen and the farmers throughout the country—in the most effective and speedy manner possible, and that his time be devoted to this work for such length of time as may be necessary to accomplish the results sought.

WORLD'S FAIR ASSETS.
CHICAGO, Nov. 20.—The assets of the World's fair are dwindling to such an extent that alarms the managers. When the exposition closed on October 30 Treasurer Seebarger had, in round figures, $2,250,000 cash in bank. This has been slipping away in spite of the fact that the claim is the most economical management, at the rate of $10,000 a day. But in addition, the assets have been shrinking in the most unexpected manner. It transpires that a large amount of property that the exposition managers expected to be sold for the funds pay back to stockholders a small percentage of their contributions, does not belong to the fair at all, but is owned by contractors. The contractors are moving their property away. They are literally stripping the exposition grounds. How much will be left when they get through can only be surmised. In some cases they own the roofs of the buildings.

FATTENING CATTLE.
In fattening cattle, as with other stock, it is important to secure the greatest possible gain in the shortest time and at the least possible outlay. What results are on good pasturage they can be fattened very rapidly by giving a good feed of corn. In nearly all cases in feeding corn to fatten this way it is the best to commence with a light ration and gradually increase until they are in full feed.

Moderate weather in the fall is the best season to fatten all kinds of stock. One advantage at this time is that the stock is usually in good, thrifty condition and can be fattened very readily. The size of the ration that should be supplied can be best determined by the condition of the animals and the time at which they are to be marketed. With cattle under present conditions one item is very important, and that is to fatten well. The quality and condition are important factors in determining the price, and in nearly all cases it will pay to feed liberally until the cattle are well fattened before marketing.

CREAMERY BUTTER.

A Description of Modern Methods of Handling Milk.

How many readers have seen a creamery in action, and know exactly how butter is made by the method which has taken the place of that once in vogue in every farmer's dairy? At St. John, N. B., a good specimen of these "new fangled" ways of treating cream, and one who wishes to spend a forenoon in the pleasant survey of an interesting work will find himself repaid for seeking out this cool, clean building in a lovely town, says a writer in the Youth's Companion. First of all, unless the creamery is a co-operative one, the milk must be bought, and in any case the farmer for miles around must bring or send in their milk. Generally all the milk that a farm produces is sent. Sometimes the creamery uses over 4000 pounds a day, a "pound" of milk usually filling a "seamy" pint.

The milk is not paid for by measure, for that would be most unjust. The man who had Jersey cows would then receive no more than the owner of animals which are "large milkers," but whose milk is of poor quality. So the milk is tested by the use of an acid, and paid for according to its percentage of butter-making quality.

Early in the morning this new milk is made to flow very steadily into a receiver, and there it comes in contact with a cylindrical vessel which is whirling at the rate of 4,400 revolutions a minute. The motion has the effect of separating the cream from the milk; the milk is heavier, it falls to the outside of the vessel, where it is carried off through a pipe, and the cream, being lighter, seeks the centre, exactly as the foam of a whirlpool is always thrown to the middle of the circle.

The metal rim, rising between the two disks, serves to keep them permanently apart, and the cream, like the milk, is carried off by a pipe of its own. It flows into a large oblong tank in the next room, and there protected by a thin cloth from dust and dirt, it stands for forty-eight hours, since butter has a richer taste if the cream is allowed to "rip" a little.

The enormous churn which receives the cream when it is ready for the second process, is in a shape exactly like those used by many a farmer's wife, and turns bodily with every revolution; it is, however, moved by steam power, and not by "tallow grease," and the buttermilk is finally drained off through the floor into enormous vats.

And when the butter has "come," what delight to see it most! Great yellow masses, usually about sixty pounds in quantity, are spread in a broad circle upon a round table. Immediately over this table are two grooved, wooden rollers, and when the table is set in motion by machinery, it slowly turns about under the rollers, and the butter is gradually rolled. Thus the buttermilk is quickly and effectually pressed from the mass, and it lies spread out, ready for salting.

As the table turns a woman shakes over the butter fine salt from a sieve, an ounce to a pound of butter, and when a few more revolutions of the rollers have worked it in, the butter is made.

It is then rapidly packed into small tubs, covered with a cloth and a thick layer of salt, or is made into beautifully regular pats. These pats, each weighing one pound, are wrapped in paper, and are then placed in a very ingenious receptacle, formed of thin wood, made so as to bend in the proper places and form a little box.

When one views the cleanliness and precision which go with this work, done on so large a scale, he cannot help being convinced that the creamery has not destroyed the poetry which still clings about the life of the dairy.

FEEDING FOR BUTTER.
The following questions and answers on Feeding for Butter, which we take from the "Milkmaid" farm paper, are of interest to many of our readers. We are anxious to find out the best way of feeding for butter.

1. What corn is best for silo—field or sweet?
2. Is it best to put ears into the silo, or have them ground into meal?
3. What feed, and what rations are best when butter, not amount of milk, is the object?

4. With silo?
5. With hay?
6. With corn fodder, dry and cut?
7. What is the relative value of cotton seed and linseed meal, as regards butter product?

8. Farmers here feed for milk for Boston market. While I came from a part of the country where rich pastures, and hay grasses, lessened the need of gaining largely. I want to feed in the way which will give me the best results. My cows are mostly two and three years old last spring—pure and grade Jersey.

Our correspondent shows much intelligence in making up the above bundle of questions, for it not only includes some of the most important questions connected with successful feeding, but also covers nearly the whole code of good practice in its work. Editors are expected to condense their response into as small a compass as possible, but it can hardly be expected that others have found a whole volume none too large in which to cover the subject. We take the questions in the order given, and will answer them as far as is practicable, in accordance with the latest developments of this great, yet complicated subject of feeding stock.

TORTURED HIMSELF.
ELK RIVER, Minn., Nov. 20.—Fred White, living at Otego, Wright county, while insane, gouged out his eye two or three months ago and was committed to St. Peter's Asylum, from which he escaped some three weeks ago.

Yesterday morning he cut off his right foot above the ankle with an axe and then with his left hand cut off his right hand. He was not found until three o'clock in the afternoon and was still alive though very weak from loss of blood. He had partially bound the bleeding stumps with cords, saying that he did not like to see so much blood.

White is one of religious mania and his desire was to inflict torture upon himself as a punishment for his sins.

THE SOUTH AFRICAN WAR.
CAPE TOWN, Nov. 20.—Despatches from Fort Victoria say Lobengula sent a letter to Major Good Adams concerning the termination of the Matabele war. The king admits he is willing to discuss terms of surrender. His young Matabele warriors are still anxious to fight and he feels he may not be able to restrain them.

EXPORT DUTY ON LOGS.

Mr. Foster Issues a Statement in Regard Thereof.

OTTAWA, Ont., November 20.—Hon. Geo. E. Foster, minister of finance, has issued a statement on the lumber duty question, defining Canada's position in the matter and the probable action that will be taken in case the American duties on lumber are not lowered. The statement is as follows:

"The lumber question stands in this way. Some years ago the Dominion government imposed an export duty on logs. Much dissatisfaction with the form of the tax was expressed by prominent politicians interested in lumber production in the United States, and various plans were prepared by which pressure could be brought to bear on Canada to remove her export duties. Finally it came to be understood that the government of Canada would remove them in consideration of equivalent reductions to be made by the United States on lumber imported from Canada. When the present United States tariff came out it was found that a reduction had been made in the duties on pulp lumber only, but that spruce remained as before; and on some varieties the duty had been raised, and that the importation of pulp made from wood was practically free of duty. Since then the Douglas pine of western Canada has been ruled under the spruce duties. The hardship complained of by our people now is that while United States lumbermen come to Canada, buy up the reserves and export, few of the American lumbermen, their manufacturers of lumber and pulp, the Canadian produce of lumber and pulp is met in the United States with a very high duty, while this country loses the benefit of the manufacture of these commodities within its bounds. There is also the widespread feeling among those who have studied our timber resources that they are being rapidly depleted, and that our future supply is being jeopardized without any corresponding advantage to us. Under these circumstances the government has been strongly pressed to reimpose the export duty on logs. This it did not feel clear about doing last year. First from lack of definite information, and second, from a hope that the United States congress would place our lumber and pulp manufactures on a fair basis by taking off their heavy import duties. The government, however, is making a full investigation in regard to the whole matter, and if conditions remain as they are, when parliament meets it will become a subject for very grave consideration whether the interests of Canada and of her lumber and pulp producers generally, both present and prospective, will not require a strong remedy. The only remedy in our power seems to be the imposition of an equivalent export duty on logs exported to any country which imposes heavy duties on Canadian lumber and pulp; and if the investigation reveals the necessity thereof and no change is made in the United States duties, the government must take the matter up and deal with it in the light of existing facts and conditions."

AT PISTOL POINT.
PITTSBURGH, Mass., Nov. 18.—Four masked burglars entered rev. Wm. Grosvenor's house in Lennox about midnight and took $173 in money, jewelry, or five gold watches and other jewelry, valued at $300.

They made Mr. Grosvenor get up and come down into the study, and compelled him, with a pistol at his head, to open the safe in which was the communion service. It is of solid silver, and he absolutely refused to give it up, telling the burglars that if they took it they would have to climb over his head to get it.

Mr. Grosvenor is rector of Trinity church and lives with his mother and sister in the new rectory built last year. There is no house near him occupied, and the burglars had an open field for their operations.

They ransacked the house and took jewelry and watches from his mother and sisters, and in every case held cocked revolvers at their heads.

Mr. Grosvenor is a plucky man. He told the four masked men that they were towards to come into his house when the rest of the family were warned. He said if he had a revolver he would try it on them and shoot them all.

The women in the house did not give way to hysterics.

After the burglars had gotten away with Mr. Grosvenor's money, they went down to Frank Palmer's house in Stockbridge, opened up the barn, stole a horse and two seated carriage and drove away.

It is quite certain that they are the same men, as they were traced half way to Stockbridge. The discovery that the horse and carriage were missing was made this morning.

SAGACITY OF BLIND HORSES.
The way in which blind horses can go about without getting into more difficulties than they ordinarily do is very remarkable. They rarely, if ever, hit their heads against a fence or stone wall. They will stride off when they come near one. It appears, from careful observation, that it is neither shade nor shelter which warns them of danger. On an absolutely sunless and windless day their behavior is the same. Their olfactory nerves, doubtless, become very sensitive, for, when driving them, they will poke their heads downward in search of water fifty yards before they come to a stream crossing the roadway. It cannot be an abnormally developed sense of hearing which leads them to do this, for they will act alike enough when there is a stagnant pool. Men who have been blind for any great length of time develop somewhat similar instincts to blind horses.

CAN PLANTS SEE?
A correspondent asks whether plants can see or not, and suggests that as plants can feel their tendrils in the direction of something to cling to, that may indicate that plants can possibly see. It is certainly a fact that the proximity of something to cling to will make plants turn in that direction. There is evidently some attraction, but as for seeing as we generally understand by sight, this is, of course, entirely out of the question. A very pretty experiment may be made by placing stakes in among a mass of grass. The leaves will in many cases be found twisting around the stakes, occasionally clinging tightly to them, but, as generally seen, the grass will be the last thing we would think of as having a twining habit; and yet we see by this that when there is a chance to twine they will do so. It is not the chance to twine, but the fact that the chance is there, that is, that the nature of the soil is not so determined.

GENERALLY CONDEMNED.
With singular unanimity, the press of Fredericton condemns the economical fit which has seized the board of school trustees. It is not very often that the newspapers of this city agree on any one point; their entire disagreement on almost everything that comes up for discussion, is generally remarked. But there is no two opinions among the people regarding the unwarranted reduction in the teachers' salaries, and the newspapers are leading and reflecting public opinion. We believe the trustees will yet revoke their economy resolution. How would these gentlemen like to have their income reduced twenty-five per cent without any good and sufficient reason. This is the way they ought to look at it. To cut $200 of G. S. Inch's salary, when the amount he was receiving was none too large for the valuable work he is doing, was certainly an unwarrantable proceeding, and the same may be said of principal Foster and Mr. Palmer, although the reduction in these cases was not so great. Why could not the trustees have let the matter stand over for a few weeks, interviewed the city council, and see if some arrangement could not have been made to obviate their financial difficulties? The council assess every year for overexpenditure in other departments, why not with the schools, if a good case could be made out by the trustees.

A RATTLING VICTORY.
The news from Winnipeg, Wednesday night, had a most depressing effect on the conservatives. The bye election in that city to fill the vacancy in the house of commons, created by Hugh John Macdonald's resignation, was carried by hon. Joseph Martin, the liberal candidate, by a majority of over four hundred. The same seat was carried by the conservatives in 1882, in 1887, and in 1891 by a majority of 500. This had led the government to believe that Winnipeg was a safe Tory hold, and it was elected as the constituency in which the bye election campaign should be commenced. Winnipeg was sure to go conservative by a big majority, and the effect would be most salutary on the other elections to follow in Ottawa, Cardwell, and perhaps York. But the programme which the hon. Mr. Macdonald had changed in view of Wednesday's vote. True, the government must face the issue in Ottawa, for that seat is already vacant, but we shall not, at present, have anything more about opening Cardwell and York.

The Winnipeg victory is a most striking one, and will put new spirit into the liberals. It is the beginning of the end: "the handwriting on the wall," as Dr. Silas Alward, when he was writ, was accustomed to remark. If the government could not hold Winnipeg, where are they likely to be safe. It has been the Tory lock that every vest of Lake Superior was occupied by a government supporter. That statement will have to be revised. It is, indeed, a most hopeful sign, that the government feel western constituencies of Canada are at last awakening to the injustice of Tory rule, and are preparing to shake off its domination. The Herald believes that the voice of Winnipeg will be heard all over the country at the earliest opportunity, and that an honest electorate will declare for honest government; that the end of boodism, contract selling, and corruption in every form, as illustrated by Tory methods, are about to receive unmistakable condemnation from the people. Let every liberal take courage from the Winnipeg result. Our friends in that city went into the contest under discouraging circumstances; they had an adverse majority of 500 to break down; they had to withstand all the patronage and power of the government; they had a young, energetic and popular opponent in Mr. Campbell, the government nominee; they had the Tory revising barrister's electoral list, made up in the interest of the government, on which to run the election, but in spite of all these handicaps, they have won a rattling victory, one that will set the dry bones of Toryism rattling from one end of Canada to the other. Hon. Joseph Martin, who is the hero of the hour, is an able, zealous man, and will at once take a leading position in the house of commons.

THE MAYORALTY.
The question of who shall be mayor of Fredericton for 1894, is already exciting some interest, and already two candidates are announced for the position. Mayor Beckwith, having won a rattling victory two years, is not yet satisfied that he has discharged his duty to his fellow citizens, and is anxious for a third term. Some of his friends urge as a reason why he ought to be re-elected, that the governor-general is to visit Fredericton next summer, and that Mr. Beckwith would be the best man to receive and entertain his excellency. Apart from that, however, there seems to be no particular objection to his administration. It is true, some peculiar scenes have been witnessed in the council during the past year, but it would take a equal of police and a gatling gun to keep order in that body, as at present constituted. Since Mayor Beckwith came in, the business of the city has been economically and honestly conducted, large public works have been successfully carried through, and the civic finances are in satisfactory shape. He, of course, is not to receive the entire credit for this condition of things, but he helped to bring it about. While the Herald had no particular hand in electing him in the first instance, it recognizes the fact that Mayor Beckwith has given a large amount of his time to his duties, and we believe has honestly and fairly discharged the obligations placed upon him by the citizens. This much we are bound to say in all honesty and candour. One objection urged against the re-election of the present mayor is the third term business, but that does not seem to have operated successfully against candidates in the past. Mr. Gregory and Mr. Fenety each served more than two years, and the hon. T. Carleton Allen could have been mayor, yet had he desired the office. A third term mayor, all other things being agreeable, is not an objectionable person.

The only opposition to Mayor Beckwith, yet announced, comes from Daniel Jordan, who has been brought out by a few of the orangemen, and star council of templars. Mr. Jordan has not seen very long service in the ranks of either temperance or orangism, and neither organization is a unit in his support. The great objection to Mr. Jordan's candidature is from his very close relations with the municipality representative. One of his partners—John Black—is secretary-treasurer of York, and almost constantly there are disputes coming up between city and county, which the mayor and secretary-treasurer have a hand in settling. Would it be seemly for Mr. Jordan, of Black, Jordan & Bliss, to meet Mr. Black, of Black, Jordan & Bliss, to arrange a difficultly perhaps of great importance to the taxpayers of Fredericton and the county? Would not the combination be somewhat complicated? It seems, to THE HERALD, that the two positions should not be held by the same law firm. Perhaps Mr. Jordan has not thought of this, but he will find that it is being discussed on the streets, and wherever his candidature is spoken of. It is, indeed, a live issue in the election.

But THE HERALD does not intend, for the present, at least, to discuss the mayoralty question at length. The date of the contest is a long way off yet, and there may be other candidates in the field. No doubt there are very many gentlemen, prominent in the public eye, better fitted for the position of mayor, but they cannot be induced to enter a contest, which, if George E. Fenety is to be credited, means a large expenditure of money and a lot of trouble.

GOVERNOR BOYD went to Sackville last week, to deliver a lecture, and captured the town—university, ladies' college, and all.

ONLY A WOODPECKER.
An article which we publish to-day from the Montreal Witness, fairly presents an abuse that has grown up under conservative rule. Members of the house of commons sit and vote on the government side, with public offices practically in their pockets. Take Mr. Temple for instance; he is known to be a most persistent applicant for a senatorship, and some go so far as to say that he will receive the position, at the end of the present parliamentary term. With the promise of a life tenure in parliament, does anybody expect Mr. Temple to show independence. He dare not; he would be thrust aside by the government, and would never see the senate. He must nod assent, like a woodpecker, every time the government snaps the party whip, and no matter how unjust the measure proposed by his masters, Mr. Temple must vote yes, or relinquish all claims to the coveted senatorship.

TREAT BOTH ALIKE.
Some busy body is trying to make trouble for Col. Tucker, commanding officer of the 62nd batt. St. John, because he permitted the band of that corps to take part in the demonstration to Mr. Ellis. It is stated that General Herbert, acting no doubt under instructions from the government, has asked Col. Tucker for an explanation. While on that question, let the general also enquire why the band of the infantry school in Fredericton turned out a few weeks ago to accompany Hon. G. E. Foster and his friends to a political picnic at Belmont, in the county of Sunbury. THE HERALD is not finding fault with the infantry school band, but if Col. Tucker is to be punished in St. John, surely Mr. Foster ought to be censured for permitting a non-political organization to join in a party demonstration at Belmont. The government cannot make fish of Col. Tucker and his band, and fish of Mr. Foster.

QUITTE A DIFFERENCE.
People who alleged that the McKinlay bill has made but little difference in Canada's export trade with the United States, will change their minds when they take a look at the official figures contained in the following table, showing the decrease from 1890 to 1892 in the value of the various articles of farm produce sent to our neighbors:

At Ottawa, Wednesday, Hon. Thomas McGreevy, for many years a leading Quebec politician, and one of the chief financial props of the conservative party, was sentenced with Connolly, a fellow conspirator, to one year's imprisonment for his connection with the public scandals which astounded the country two years ago. A great many people think that some others, high in authority, ought to share McGreevy's cell in connection with the scandals, and that he has been made a scapegoat to cover the sins of others.

We have not seen Dr. Currie, or do not know of his feelings in the matter, but believe that he has taken the matter very quietly.—Reporter.

For a professing Christian, that is a pretty tough story. Will Mr. Pitts deny that he paid a lengthy visit to Dr. Currie, endeavoring to draw him out for publication?

The Sun says the C. P. R. vote in the Winnipeg election went solid for the liberals. Glad to hear it. It is about time the honours were divided. The conservatives would not have been in office for the past fifteen years but for the help of their heretofore powerful ally, the C. P. R.

MR. TEMPLE had better insist on receiving that senatorship at once. There is a cold wave coming that will nip the aspirations of Tory office seekers. It passed through Winnipeg Wednesday.

The writ for the provincial election in Prince Edward Island has been issued. Nomination, December 6th; election, 13th. A plebiscite on prohibition will be taken at this election.

HUGH JOHN MACDONALD, ex-M. P. for Winnipeg, with his late father's astuteness, saw signs of the approaching storm, and escaped the wreck.

LORD ELGIN, the new viceroy of India, is a son of Lord Elgin, who was governor general of Canada from 1847 to 1855.

For the first time in its history, Winnipeg is represented in the commons by a liberal. "While the lamp, etc."

EVERYBODY is glad to hear of the continued improvement in Sir John Allen's health.

WINNIPEG.
Magnificent Liberal Victory.
HON. J. MARTIN ELECTED.
Majority of 427 Over Mr. Campbell.

THE PRAIRIE CITY DEMANDS TARIFF REFORM.
WINNIPEG, Man., Nov. 22.—Winnipeg, Manitoba and the whole Northwest, rejoice tonight over the dawn of a brighter era in the country's history and development. The occasion of this rejoicing, is the election today of Hon. Joseph Martin, ex-attorney general of Manitoba, as liberal member of parliament for Winnipeg, by a majority of 427 over the conservative candidate, Colin Campbell.

The significance and completeness of this great victory for tariff reform cannot be exaggerated, and can only be understood by a careful study of the facts. This city since its erection into an electoral division in 1882, has always returned a conservative for the house of commons, and in the general election of 1891, Hugh John Macdonald was successful by a majority of 500 over Isaac Campbell, a most popular man.

In this contest the liberals had not such a personally popular standard bearer as in the former fight; they were without funds, had only three weeks' notice of the date of the election, and had the most wretchedly compiled voters' list that ever existed, there being over ten thousand names on it, the majority being those of dead men and absentees. The conservatives, on the other hand, had unlimited funds and used them unsparringly, bringing men from Ontario, British Columbia and California to vote for their candidate. They also had all the election machinery in their own hands and such thorough organization as money alone can effect.

Their candidate, too, was a popular and able man. Under all these circumstances the success of the liberals was wonderful, and the defeat of the conservatives was humiliating.

The chief issue of the campaign was the tariff, though local issues and the capabilities of the candidates also had some weight. Mr. Martin announced his views as in thorough accord with the declarations of the liberal convention on the tariff, and a staunch follower of Laurier.

Mr. Campbell was the avowed protectionist candidate, though making some claim to independence. Under such conditions the success of the liberals was wonderful, and the defeat of the conservatives was humiliating.

Quietness and determination characterized the campaign from start to finish, but when the ballots were counted, showing the total vote to be 2,199 for Martin and 1,772 for Campbell, leaving a majority of 427 for the liberals, the enthusiasm broke loose. Cheers rent the air, skyrockets were fired off, a torchlight procession was formed and congratulatory speeches delivered. There was no disturbance, but several arrests of persons were made. One deputy returning officer and a jury returned were arrested for opening a poll and recording a number of illegal votes before the proper hour.

Mr. Martin to-night received telegrams of congratulation from all parts of the north west and eastern provinces on the magnificent victory. It is estimated that the conservatives feared defeat, but such an avalanche as overtook them. Their only explanation is that hundreds of their supporters deposited their ballots against them. There is no doubt the depressing influence of the trip of Hon. Messrs. Foster and Angers had a good deal to do with it.

Crown Land Sales.
The sale of timber leases at the crown land office on the 15th, was fairly attended. One hundred and forty-five and one-half miles were put up for sale. There was competition on only nine and a half miles of the whole lot. The rest went at the upset price of $8 per mile. The berths on which there was competition were a two mile berth near Baraboo station, sold to Wm. H. Murray at $29 per mile. A 4 mile berth near the Upsalquitch sold to the applicant, J. P. Mowat, at $20 per mile, and a 3 mile berth on Baker Brook was applied for by A. B. Ballou, and sold to Wm. H. Murray at $29 per mile.

The applicants who purchased at the upset price were as follows: Knowlton & Co., 111 miles on Musquash river; K. Shives, 671 miles on Musquash river; Winslow Chase, 2 miles on Carleton settlement, Sunbury county; A. E. Alexander, 21 miles on Quatawin-Kedgewick, Upsalquitch and Restigouche; G. G. King, 3 miles on Meadow brook, Gaspereau river; Geo. Burnett, 2 miles on Jacques river; N. McNair, 41 miles on Jacques river; Geo. Burchill, 41 miles on Barnaby river; Geo. Moffatt, 3 miles on Upsalquitch; Geo. Garrette, 2 miles on Jacques river; Geo. Burchill, 2 miles on Enoch Baker lake, Madawaska county, and Geo. Rainboro, 4 miles on Bay Du Vin river. Over three hundred miles will be sold next Wednesday.

The prisoner was told to kneel, but she apparently did not hear, and the warders gently but firmly forced her down until her head rested on the block. The next instant there was a gleaming flash of steel, and the head of the woman dropped into the basket placed to receive it, the executioner exclaiming: "The sentence of the law has been executed. May God have mercy on the poor sinner."

Mr. Blair at once granted the application, and the matter will probably be heard at the next sitting of the supreme court.

FATALLY SHOT.

A tragedy that is exciting Queens County.

A shocking affair occurred at Hibernia Settlement, Queens county, Sunday, which involved the death of a young man named Rothburn, seventeen years of age. That morning two sons of Isaac Brown, of Hibernia Settlement, aged twelve and fourteen respectively, went out shooting, taking with them a gun. They were joined afterwards by young Rothburn, with whom, it seems, they had not been particularly friendly terms. They went into the woods together, however, and presently came to a spruce tree upon which Rothburn spied some fine game. Rothburn announced his intention of shooting the tree to get the game, and the oldest of the Brown boys said:

"If You Climb up After that Gun You Shoot You."

Rothburn said he would climb the tree in any way and proceeded to do so, and while he was climbing he felt the tree Brown carried on his breast, leveled the gun and fired. The shot took effect in the youth's abdomen, inflicting a mortal wound and bringing him to the ground. The Brown boys then went without offering to assist the unfortunate youth whose life had been so summarily sacrificed and they appeared to have given no information to anyone of what they had done. Rothburn's cries of agony drew to the spot Geo. Rothburn, a farmer who lives in the neighborhood, and he found the unfortunate youth covered with blood and in a dreadful condition. He immediately did what he could to alleviate his agony, and was assisted, and in a short time, by the aid of the neighbors, young Rothburn was taken to Geo. Rothburn's house.

Dr. Caswell, of Gagetown, who is distant some ten miles, was immediately sent for, but as soon as he arrived, which was during the evening, he said that the young man's wounds were fatal, and at 5:30 Monday morning young Rothburn died.

Having suffered great agony during the whole of the day and night.

This dreadful affair soon got noised through the settlement and people came from every direction to inquire into it and see the unfortunate young man. He had given to Geo. Rothburn, his rescuer, the full story of the shooting, but it does not appear that any magistrate was present to take his dying deposition.

The whole neighborhood is wild with excitement over so unexpected a crime. It is said that there has been blood existing for some time between the Brown boys and Rothburn, but it is quite probable that some words were exchanged between the deceased and the Browns prior to the time of the shooting. There are Various Theories Advanced as to the motive of the shooting. While some persons believe that young Brown, who is responsible for the death of young Rothburn, did not shoot at the latter with the intention of taking his life, others are strongly of the opinion that he did intend to do so, else why did he make use of the threat: "If you climb up after that gun I'll shoot you."

The weapon used was a small fowling piece, which was heavily loaded with partridge shot, the whole of which lodged in young Rothburn's body in the region of the stomach. Just what hour the fatal shot was fired no person seems to know, but it was about four o'clock on Sunday afternoon. Geo. Rothburn, who was first on the scene of the murder, says that the deceased was lying in a pool of blood and was able to tell the story of the shooting long which tallies pretty well with the facts of the case above stated.

An Inquest Held.—An inquest was held before coroner Albert Palmer with the following jury: Stephen E. Clarke, David McCormick, Wesley McConchie, Jeremiah David and David Nickerson. After hearing the testimony of several witnesses, the jury returned a verdict that Amber Rothburn came to his death by a shot discharged from a gun in the hands of Judson Brown.

There were only four boys in the party when the shooting took place—three brothers and the deceased, who was seventeen years of age. The survivors state that the shooting was accidental and was not premeditated or accompanied by threats. The deceased, in his ante-mortem statement, however, said threats were used and that the shooting was done with some deliberation. Information against the three Browns was laid before justice B. S. Palmer, who issued his warrant for their arrest and will begin their preliminary examination on Tuesday. The crown will be represented by Arthur W. Ebbett, clerk of the peace, and J. deVeber Neales will appear for the accused lands. The case has created a great deal of excitement and all sorts of stories are in circulation, most of which cannot be traced to any reliable quarter.

At the Play.

"Remarkably well done for amateurs," was the universal verdict of the hundreds of people who attended the entertainment at the city hall, Thursday evening. The play was a light comedy entitled "The Coming Woman or the Spirit of 1900," and it was put on in a manner that left no room for criticism. The plot, if it may be so called, represented a candidate for a seat in the legislature of a woman, and the social and political world turned upside down by the women's rights movement. He is met everywhere by women in semi-masculine apparel, running the city council, the courts and the legislature, while the men are at home attending to domestic duties. In his peregrinations he runs across the female assessor who wants to marry him, the candidate for a seat in the legislature, the judge in feminine costume, the female candidate for office, and the unfortunate paper families wrestling with a colicky baby.

The successful candidate for the seat in the legislature, who was elected by a majority of 871, one of the largest ever given in a popular election in New Brunswick. It will be remembered that Mr. Blair's friends to the number of about a hundred went down to Gagetown to the declaration in the steamer David Weston, the river being quite free from ice.

RECORDED.—Phillip Cox, one of the masters of the St. John grammar school, has resigned. It is understood, says the Globe, that Mr. Cox asked the board to clearly define his position and standing as one of the teachers in the school, and this not being done to his satisfaction, he withdrew from the service. Mr. Cox belongs to Manterville, and for many years has been a popular and successful teacher.

THE TRIUMPHANT CASE.—Geo. F. Gregory went before Judge Tuck, at St. John, Tuesday and asked him to reserve a case for an appeal to the supreme court in the matter of the prisoner Theriault, convicted of manslaughter at the recent Victoria assize, and sentenced to five years in the penitentiary. The judge refused the application, and therefore the counsel went to the attorney general for leave to move the court. Hon. Mr. Blair at once granted the application, and the matter will probably be heard at the next sitting of the supreme court.

RURAL TOPICS.

NEWS FROM THE STIRRING VILLAGES OF YORK.

Millville.
Nov. 23.—Four-fifths of our male population are in the woods—Joshua with a crew and James and Robert Hallett and Dunlap brothers with crews in for A. Gibson, Cox and Sharp for Fred Hays, on the Tobique; Hay brothers, on the Nackawick, with a crew, are stocking their mill for the summer operation.

The Hay brothers have purchased the Ryan mill at this place and expect to run it night and day during the season. A million and a half is the calculation.

Trade matters did not warrant the rebuilding of the mill. There is considerable sickness here and vicinity and Dr. McNally is doing a rushing business. Your correspondent congratulates the doctor on the successful result of two or three cases of surgery which required very careful handling.

A. F. Blair, one of the oldest and most respected residents, passed to his peace on Sunday morning after a tedious illness. The interment took place in the Millville cemetery on Tuesday afternoon, when a large number of his friends and neighbors gathered to pay their respects to his memory.

We are having our first snow fall to-day which, from present appearances, will not amount to very much.

Our farmers are looking forward to the action of the government at Ottawa making better trade terms with our American neighbors. They think that with a democratic government in the states, the present tariff relations could be materially changed.

Marysville.
Nov. 23.—The saw and lath mills closed down Monday night for the season. They have been sawing night and day for the last few weeks, to finish up the logs, having been delayed by low water during the early part of the season. The saw mill was a little over 20,000 feet, of the most of the Nashwaak, but the steam tubes Champion and G. D. Hunter arrived last night and took up the work for the winter. They will keep mill a few hours more they will return for the rest. The logs had to break ice all the way from the head of the Reach. In some places six inches thick. We wish, an Englishman who arrived here some two months ago, and was employed in the mill room in the cotton mill, died suddenly on Tuesday morning of inflammation of the lungs. He was a widow and two children in England and had intended returning home the first of next month. His remains were interred in the Marysville cemetery on Thursday afternoon.

What might have been a very serious accident, happened in the shingle mill on Saturday afternoon. The drum on the main shaft of the mill, says that the deceased was lying in a pool of blood and was able to tell the story of the shooting long which tallies pretty well with the facts of the case above stated.

An Inquest Held.—An inquest was held before coroner Albert Palmer with the following jury: Stephen E. Clarke, David McCormick, Wesley McConchie, Jeremiah David and David Nickerson. After hearing the testimony of several witnesses, the jury returned a verdict that Amber Rothburn came to his death by a shot discharged from a gun in the hands of Judson Brown.

There were only four boys in the party when the shooting took place—three brothers and the deceased, who was seventeen years of age.
