CHAPTER VII.

LYNETTE'S DEFIANCE.

"Perhaps she means to enroll herself in the ranks of the 'New Woman' one hears so much of nowadays."

ZAM-BUK SAVED THIS BABY

"A horrid rash came out all over my baby's face and spread until it had totally covered his scalp. I was frantic and painful, and caused the little one hours of suffering. We tried soap and powder, but he got quite thin and worn, and was reduced to a very serious condition. I was advised to try Zam-Buk, and did so. It was wonderful how it seemed to cool and ease the child's burning, painful skin. Zam-Buk from the very commencement seemed to go right to the spot, and the pimples and sores and the irritation grew less and less. Within a few weeks my baby's skin was healed completely. He has now not a trace of rash, or eruption, or eczema, or burning sores. Not only so, but cured of the tormenting skin trouble, he has improved in general health."

She would not have to work alone—that was another consolation. She would be aided and abetted most amply by the jealous lover, Graham Prentiss.

But she wondered how he would succeed in his designs against Belcourt's political preferment in the face of his wonderful popularity.

At length the speech was ended, and thunderous applause announced the satisfaction it had given to the Democrats.

The Republicans and Populists were dumb, justly dreading this formidable opponent.

After the speech the crowd began to scatter toward the lunch-rooms, but the Belcourts waited for Stephen, who was detained by a knot of political friends.

Mrs. Lewis, who was ready for her dinner, made a sign to Vida, who rose reluctantly.

"Will you come with us now to your aunt?" she inquired of Lynette; but the latter shook her saucy brown head, and answered coolly:

"No, not now. I promised to wait here for Mr. Belcourt. He is my escort to-day, you know."

"Tell Mrs. Lewis that we will take care of her niece," added Mrs. Belcourt kindly.

So Vida and Prentiss were compelled to withdraw, leaving Lynette mistress of the situation, for to-day, at least.

And, alas! for their hopes, to-morrow also, for as they went away, they met Stephen Belcourt returning to her side, with all the eagerness of an impatient lover.

Mrs. Lewis was furious.

"Only wait till I get her home again!" she muttered.

But, unfortunately for the success of her schemes, her husband made his appearance an hour later, having just returned from his little business trip.

home, and she sha'n't go to Lewisburg!"

"And I say she shall, madam! Ain't Lynette my own niece, I wonder? I'm tired of you and Vida running over the child all the time. Oh, I've seen it all the time, madam! But you were balked this time. Haw! haw! Lynette has fairly earned her holiday, and shall enjoy it, I say. No use arguing at all. I gave her a five-dollar bill just now, and told her to go ahead and enjoy herself. How do you like that? Haw! haw! haw!"

His stern voice and ironical laughter assured her that he would brook no more defiance at present, so she subsided into sulky silence.

To Vida he said later on, with grim silence.

"So you and your precious cousin locked my girl in this morning so she couldn't run against you in the contest, eh? You got balked, didn't you? Yes, and always will in the battle with a Lewis. They're born fighters, don't you know, miss, and will win every time."

"I had nothing to do with it," she replied curtly; but his sarcastic "haw! haw!" assured her of his frank incredulity.

Lynette had won the day, and she went home that afternoon to the Belcourts' beautiful home in the gay old town, where she was the guest of honor, for had not Stephen Belcourt spoken a few magical words to their women folk, and didn't they adore him as the head of the house? His father had been dead five years, his oldest sister was widow, his youngest only lately married, and he was the only son. The roomy old home, indeed, Belcourt, sheltered them all, and he was their idol.

They were proud and ambitious the Belcourts, and perhaps they had looked bigger than Lynette, his young, their distinguished idol. What then? It was the proud boast of the family that its men and women always married for love. The motto of their house was "Tender and True."

So when Stephen came home that day from his meeting with Lynette in her uncle's orchard, he sought his stately old mother, with her sweet old face, framed in beautiful waves of silvery hair, and said, with a tender smile:

"Dear mother, you are going to have a rival in my heart, at last!"

She repressed a sigh, and smiled on him with motherly love, as she answered:

"You have fallen in love, my boy?"

His heart was indeed as young as a boy's, for he had never frittered it away in light loves and idol fixations.

"It is a new version of 'Maud Muller,' dear, with a different ending."

my dear sisters will show her all possible attention. My time, you know, will be so taken up with my canvassing that I shall rely on you to help me with my courtship."

"We will help you," she promised, for herself and daughters.

"Not that I shall not do my part—an irrefragable part," he laughed.

"But you can help me by showing the shy little maiden that we all have taken her into our hearts. Invite her home with you. Give me every chance you can to carry her heart by storm."

So the innocent plot was laid, and Lynette was borne off in triumph to Belcourt to become familiar with his young master's splendid home and his fond kinfolk—to hear his praises chanted hourly by their partial tongues, to learn his tastes and dislikes, to see him daily on his return from his business trips—in short, to know him better in a week than she could have done in a year's mere formal acquaintance.

The fair lasted four days, and as Uncle Jack had employed Sally Ann Simms to pack his niece's slender wardrobe and forward it to Lewisburg, Lynette accompanied the Belcourts each day, and though she saw Vida and Aunt Jill each time, sometimes accompanied by the master of Bonnie Braes, she heeded not their angry scowls any more than if they had not existed. Happy Lynette! She was spending the happiest week she had ever known in her short life.

Vida watched and waited impatiently for the opportunity she desired—to poison the Belcourts' minds against Lynette—but it was slow in coming.

The Belcourts did not avoid her—they were too well-bred for that—but they showed an indifference to her overtures that was entirely consistent with politeness, but maddening to her pride.

"It is her fault. She has prejudiced them against me, the hateful little mix! But let her beware!" she thought furtively.

It was on the last day of the fair that her chance came for her unexpectedly.

She had come upon Graham Prentiss, looking moodily through the main building alone, pretending to examine the specimens of art in drawing and painting contributed by the artists of the county.

She saw by the expression of his face that all the canvases might as well have blank for what notice he took of them. His dark eyes had a vacant look of pain, and his lips were curled in a strange sneer.

The building was almost deserted save for a few women, strolling about examining the fancy-work on their hands, or peering into the cases and drawers of the artist's booth, and a few men, who were looking at the specimens of art in drawing and painting contributed by the artists of the county.

Why? she asked quietly, though in her heart she envied his good path. Did she not owe him a grade for his utter indifference to her own charms?

"You ask me why?" he said curtly, with the sharpness of his pain. Don't you know that to-morrow will be Saturday—the day I am to come to Blooming Meadows for Lynette's answer? Yet there she sits on the staid with the first Belcourt, grins at each other like a pair of nudes—no eyes for anyone but each other. Why, I can't get my answer to-morrow—consequently mind you—twenty-four hours—start hours—yet I dare swear that she has not given me the slightest thought since we parted a week ago."

"You are probably right," she agreed coolly, but it was true. But I tell you, Vida, I'm going mad with this pain of love. I'm on fire within. My heart beats like a trip-hammer when I see her by his side smiling on him so sweetly, and I long to murder him that instant. Furies! there's the old woman now! I can't stay, or I should knock her down!"

He rushed abruptly away, and Vida turning with a start, confronted Belcourt's mother coming over to look at the pictures.

WHAT ABOUT THAT SPECIAL?

We read much in the Daily News about the Premier's tramp through the "neglected" district of Burin, but nothing at all about the luxury of a special train to Placentia last Saturday.

Why did not the Premier leave at the usual time and by the usual means?

Why could not he go out by Saturday morning's train and connect with the steamer in the usual way?

On these points the Daily News preserves its usual reticence, and has not even a word to say as to the cause which cut short Hon. C. H. Emerson's visit to the Old Country. Was Mr. Emerson specially called upon to return? If so, who cabled for him? If so, what was the reason of this recall? If so, why was it urgent? If so, why did Mr. Emerson respond to the recall?

Why was the Premier waiting for Mr. Emerson at the office of the latter on Saturday morning after the steamer came in port?

Did not a conference take place between the two of them?

Was that the reason that the Premier did not go out by Saturday morning's train?

Was that why the Premier took a special on Saturday?

Lastly, who pays for the special? Questions of a similar import we put yesterday; to-day we repeat them. Why are they not answered? Is there something to keep dark?

Yesterday afternoon as some Lunenburg bankmen were passing up Water Street, near W. J. Little Girl Kills

Another While Playing with Revolver. Lowell, Mass., Aug. 15.—Little Anna Quinn, 14 years of age, was instantly killed in an explosion of a revolver in the hands of her playmate, Thelma Berg, 12 years of age, after the weapon had failed to discharge when the girl had placed it at the heart of her chum and friend.

The two children found the revolver in a drawer. The Quinn girl playfully held it against Thelma's heart. The trigger was pulled but the weapon failed to explode. Then Thelma took the revolver and placed it close to the Quinn girl's head and fired. This time the weapon exploded and the Quinn girl dropped dead at the feet of her friend. The child was absolved of all blame by the police.

S. MILLEY

Aviator, Stoker and Duke.

On several occasions the Duke of Westminster, who recently broke his collar-bone while playing polo, has risked his life for sport. In the hunting field he has had many falls, while about a year ago he was thrown out of a racing motor boat into the Solent, and was only rescued in the nick of time. He has been practicing aviation for some time, while such is his fondness for motoring that his tyre bill averages $50 a week. As a soldier he saw active service in South Africa, and on one occasion, in order that he might gain practical experience of ship engines, crossed the Atlantic as a stoker on one of the liners. He is one of the richest men in England, being owner of the greater part of Mayfair and Belgravia; his estates bringing him in something like $5,000 a day.

Gloves are dyed in every conceivable shade to match the colored shoes and stockings, which in every case ought to harmonize with the toilette.

It is possible to buy remnants of fine carpets very cheap, and these, cut into rug lengths and with a fringe added, make excellent and handsome rugs.

A Trifling Incident.

An Irishman went into a barber shop, and the unsteady gait with which he approached the chair showed that he had been imbibing of the produce of the still. He wanted his hair cut, and while the barber was getting him ready went off into a sleep. His head kept bobbing from one side to the other, and at length the barber in making a snip cut off the lower part of his ear. The barber gasped, and a crowd of onlookers rushed in. Finally the demonstration became so great that it began to attract the attention of the man in the chair, and he closed one eye and said, "Wh-wh-ah-ah's the matter, w-ah-yez?"

"Good Lord!" said the barber, "I've cut off the whole lower part of your ear."

"Have ye? Ah, thin, go on with ye! business. It was too long anyhow!"

Found Drowned.

GEO. GORMAN'S BODY BROUGHT TO TOWN LAST NIGHT.

Yesterday the Telegram gave an account of the report given to the police of the disappearance of George Gorman, who with a man named Walsh went fishing on Tuesday at Western Barrens Pond, near Petty Harbor. Head Constable Sparrow and Constable Faraday, who took jiggers with them and went in the search with the man Walsh, Gorman's friend and companion, were not long finding the body. Gorman, it seems, left Walsh to bathe in another part of the pond Wednesday forenoon, and after Walsh had waited some time, he left the place and arrived in St. John's in the early afternoon. Gorman's failure to come home was reported yesterday, and Hd. Sparrow and Const. Faraday, taking Walsh with them, were not long searching the section indicated by Walsh before his clothing was found. They dragged the pond with their jiggers the body was taken from the bottom of the pond in very deep water and about 40 feet off shore. The remains were nude, and the belief is that poor Gorman while swimming was seized with one of the fainting fits to which he was subject and must have drowned quickly. The remains were brought to the city last night and placed in the morgue. The deceased was a shipwright by trade, was about 55 years old, and leaves a widow and six children to mourn him. Much sympathy is expressed for the family, in which the Telegram joins.

Harbor Grace Regatta.

Owing to the prevalence of a very high wind Wednesday, the Hr. Grace Regatta, which takes place annually at Lady Lake, had to be postponed. It was held however yesterday, when excellent weather prevailed, and was attended by a large gathering of people. It was held under the auspices of the Hr. Grace Volunteer Fire Brigade and seven races in all took place. These were Tradesmen, Amateurs, Societies, Juveniles, All-Corners, Laborers and Fishermen. The boats which competed were the Bessie, owned by the L.O.A. and coxswained by Robert French; Maggie, owned by the S.O.E. and steered by J. C. Ash; Winnie, owned by the C.B.B.S. and steered by E. Rodgers; Myrtle, steered by W. Carson; the Edith, by J. L. Oke, and the C. D. L. A., owned by that organization and steered by M. Stapleton. Up to the time our informant left the course, at 4.30 p.m., five races had been run off and there was great excitement amongst the contestants. The Bessie won the Tradesmen's, Laborers' and Society, and the Maggie the Amateur and Juvenile races. The many present were delighted with the manner in which the Regatta was conducted. Orderliness and sobriety prevailed and each event was contested in a sportsmanlike manner, the crews rowing well and proving themselves excellent oarsmen.

Eccentric Millionaire is Dead.

Los Angeles, Aug. 13.—Major William Arthur Phipps, multi-millionaire, who claimed to be a cousin of Henry Phipps, the steel magnate, and who for four years has lived the life of a hermit in apartments at the Van Nuys Hotel, is dead.

"Major" Phipps was the most eccentric millionaire in the Southwest, perhaps in America. His strange manner of life and the mystery and seclusion with which he surrounded himself made him conspicuous in the hotel, where he used every means to keep his presence a secret.

He began his career as a reporter for a newspaper in Calumet, Mich., and while in that city bought stock in a development company, which had mining interests in Arizona. This made him a millionaire, and when the merger in steel took place he bought all the stock he could get hold of in the small companies, which, it is said, brought his wealth up to $40,000,000.

After having spent some time in Florida, he came to this city, engaged seven rooms at the Van Nuys, and immediately began living the life of a hermit. He left the hotel only twice up to the day of his death.

In his apartments were thirty large sample trunks filled with clothes, but during the time he lived there he wore only jamas. Every day he bathed fifty times and he used seventy-five bath towels, fifty face towels and seventy napkins.

In the bathroom of the hotel there was a standing order for eighteen bottles of Bass's ale and three quarts of whiskey to be delivered to him daily, which he consumed.

On two occasions that he left his rooms it is not known where he went. He first sent his valet down stairs to see if "the coast was clear," and then made a hurried exit from the hotel into a taxicab.

McMurdo's Store News.

FRIDAY, Aug. 25, '11.

Any history of American literature will tell you that Sidney Lanier, the remarkable Southern poet, "the Keats of America," began his career by the publication of a poem on "Corn." But the sort of Corn we wish to speak of do not impel anybody to write poems, though they often impel them to find relief at the Drugstore. We generally hand out a package of Blue Jay Corn Plasters, which we always have on the counter. There is a Banjo Plaster of the same name which is equally good in its way. The unproved kind, 15 and 25c. a pkg.—adv't.

Fire at Bishop Falls.

(Message to Daily News.) BISHOP'S FALLS, Last Night.

A big fire started about one p.m. on the south side of Explotis River, two miles east of Great Battling Brook. There is also a fire on the north side near Diamond Crossing, the latter being under control. The mill has been closed down, and all the men from here and Grand Falls fought the fire. The wind is blowing a strong breeze from the south west causing the fire to work back from the mill, and burning some plywood stacked by the river's edge. A big quantity of railway ties on the Reid Nrd. Co.'s track close to the trestle, have been also destroyed, but the trestle has not been damaged. The fire on the south side of the river is still raging, and is beyond control, but the settlement is now out of danger. The cause of the south side fire is unknown. The north side fire is supposed to have been caused by the train going west this p.m. Up to the present, it is impossible to estimate the amount of damage done, or where the fire, which is now working east, will end.

The Kidneys Wear Out

But in advanced years you can keep these organs healthy by using Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills.

As old age comes on most people suffer more or less from derangements of the kidneys. With some there are years of pains and aches, with others Bright's disease sets in and the end comes quickly.

Fortunately many have learned about Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills, and are enabled by their use to keep the kidneys healthy and active.

Mr. Richard Preston, Osborne, Lambton County, Ont., says: "Seventeen years ago I began the use of Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills when my back was so bad that to stoop or rise was torture to me. The kidneys were in bad condition, but these pills entirely freed me of back pains. I have used them ever since, whenever the kidneys would get out of order, and now, at eighty years, am well and hearty, thanks to this grand medicine."

Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills, one pill a dose, 25 cents a box, at all dealers, or Edmanson, Bates & Co., Toronto.

Reciprocity and Fish.

(Montreal Star.)
A Maritime Province correspondent writes us as to the effect of these fishing licenses which the American fishermen are to get practically for nothing. After some encouraging words about our fight against the past, he says:
"And wishing information on that part of the bill dealing with the fisheries, wherein our Government expects to license American fishermen to the tune of one dollar per man each year, can you tell me what privilege is to be included in this license as given to American fishermen?
"This one item as pertaining to the fisheries part of the bill may mean, indeed, more than is shown on the face of the deal, and be the beginning of the end of our coastal fisheries. It cannot be that we on the coast must open up to our neighbors the valuable fisheries we now enjoy."
The answer to our correspondent's enquiry is very simple. The license which will be given the American fishermen for the nominal fee of a dollar a year, are the same licenses which are now granted them under the "modus vivendi" for $1.50 a ton. We may remark that this rate of $1.50 a ton, works out at about $125 a year per vessel for the ninety odd American vessels now using them. Under these licenses, the American fishermen can land at a Canadian port for the purpose of purchasing ice, bait and supplies, for shipping crews and the trans-shipment of the "catch." In short, they get for a dollar a year every right in our ports which Canadian fishermen have, with the single exception of selling their fish, free of duty.
Thus we not only give the Americans our fish market in exchange for theirs—a poor trade, as we shall show—but we bonus their fishermen to the tune of nearly $125-a piece in competition with our fishermen. And we do this when the Hague Tribunal has declared that we have the right to keep them out of our ports altogether.
But, talking of bonuses, what of the present Canadian bonus to our own fishermen? That is a very handsome item. It amounted in 1909 to $155,221 paid to some twenty-five thousand fishermen. Now the Americans want that bonus abolished. Senator Lodge proposed an amendment to the Reciprocity agreement in the American Senate prohibiting it. The Lodge Amendment was rejected because President Taft would not imperil the bargain by allowing any changes; but it was clear enough that American feeling is against our bonus system. Should Reciprocity come into force, it will not be long before Senator Lodge or some other Massachusetts Senator will make a great outcry over compelling American fishermen to compete in their own markets with "bonused Canadian fish;" and we will be confronted with the demand that we stop subsidizing our fishermen or take the consequences! Anyone imagining that this is an imaginary danger, will kindly take note of the fact that the bonus on steel rods appeared at the same time that Reciprocity in steel rods was proposed. Now as to the value of "free fish"—that is, free access for our fish into the American market. Of course, free fish is reciprocal. We give our markets for theirs. What a kind of trade is it? Let us see. In the year ending June, 1910, the Americans imported and paid duty on fish to the value of $9,008,350. But, of that amount, $3,229,222 came from us. The fish they took from us were largely fish they needed very badly; and it is an unjust inference to suppose that we paid that duty. In any case, that leaves only $5,679,128 worth of fish that they got from other countries. Again, it is not at all likely that all these fish could be purchased from Canada. Possibly they are not caught here. But let us take the figures as they are.

"Free fish" in the American market means for us a chance to displace fish to the value of $5,679,128.
For this, we pay—what? First, we give our market. That amounts to $16,000,000 a year. They get a fighting chance for sixteen millions in exchange for less than six millions. Is that a good trade—for us? Secondly, we "pay" the opening of our market to the twelve most-favored nations which export annually something like $30,000,000-worth of fish. Thirdly, we neutralize the value of our export-privilege of fish from the Maritime Provinces to Montreal and the West. Today that assistance, joined with the duty, nicely enables the Maritime Province fish to beat Gloucester fish in the Montreal market. Remove the duty, and Gloucester fish will win in spite of the express assistance. Moreover, when the Americans stop our fish bounty, they will probably forbid that Government express assistance at the same time.

Now what do you think of that bargain? It looks to us as if the cute New Englander had beaten our representatives all along the line. And, on top of all this, we get no amelioration of the hard conditions under which our fishermen enter American ports, save that of the duty. We will still be forbidden to clear direct for the fishing grounds, as our American rivals can. We must sail back to a Canadian port to "clear," and so will be beaten to the grounds by our competitors. Nor can a Canadian-built fishing vessel be sold to an American fisherman. They are careful to patronize only "home industry." We are selling ours out; and Uncle Sam will soon be coming over to buy the rest at the same price.

August Rod and Gun.
No better number for a delightful holiday month has been issued than Rod and Gun in Canada for August published by W. J. Taylor, Limited, Woodstock, Ont. In the opening story "From the Log of a Nautical Framp," the holiday spirit prevails and is prevalent through the two following papers—Luxurious Trout Fishing and Up the Maganetawan, a River of Dams. In addition there is an abundance of other material, articles and stories dealing with fishing, deer, moose and bear hunting while other phases of outdoor life receive recognition and treatment in a manner that must appeal to all sportsmen. This is particularly the case with the little paper on the subject of wounded game and a pioneer's stories while the conclusions of the Commission Inquiries into the fisheries of Alberta and Saskatchewan must interest anglers all over the Dominion. The paper on a New Use for the Red Fox may not only create a new interest in fox hunting but also lead to an extension of the fox farms which have proved such a success in Prince Edward Island and in Middlesex county, in Ontario. Altogether it is a number which no sportsman should miss.

Abolish Private Doctor

Teach Sanitation — British Scientist Writes Book on Advantages of State Supervision By Civil Employees.

Dr. Benjamin Moore of the Biochemic Department of the University of Liverpool has a plan to do away with all private physicians. He wants the Government to safeguard the health of everybody in Great Britain, the doctors being on the basis of civil service employees. He predicts a great saving of life and money, and a lessening of suffering and sorrow by his plan.

That this scientist is very much in earnest is evidenced by the fact that he has written a volume of some 204 pages on the subject. His book is called "The Dawn of the Health Age," and has proved of sufficient interest and importance to provoke discussion in the medical publications on both sides of the Atlantic.

Here are the advantages to the medical profession as pointed out by Dr. Moore:
"An assured income; a settled provision for the future as a retiring allowance; relief from clerical work, bill collecting, etc.; relief from the dilemma of a charge of neglect on the one hand or of 'making business' on the other; equal opportunities for the training; consequent on hospital work; compactness of work, leisure, and study time; abolition of professional jealousy; the breadth of training and opportunity from being moved about from place to place; the abolition of cheap practice and of hospital abuse.

"For the public, competent attendance under all circumstances, no scamped work, no worry about fees, leading to unnecessary and possibly dangerous delay in seeking aid, prevention of cheap practice and of hospital abuse, and consequent saving in money as well as distress mental and material."

Southside Fire.

Six distinct fires blazed up among the green woods on the South Side Hills last evening. The police had been out all the past two days and nights fighting fires on the South Side Hill; when these additional fires blazed up last evening another squad of policemen with volunteers was sent out, but though they work hard were unable to subdue the flames chiefly owing to the high wind that prevailed. It is feared that this fire will work down to Freshwater Bay and destroy the houses there.

BROUGHT IN A WHALE.

The whaler operating at Harbor Grace arrived there last Wednesday evening with a large whale. She left again early next morning to look for another.

GOOD AT BEAVERTON.

The Pema and LTX had secured 35 whales up to Wednesday last at Beaverton. The prospect for a good fall's work is pretty good. Most of the whales were taken since the 20th of July. There is a marked scarcity in the number of whales seen this summer.

The Evening Chit-Chat

By RUTH CAMERON

It reminded me, said the lady-who-always-knows-something, of something a maid I had when I was first married said to me. The lady-who-always-knows-something had been in to see her mother. She had been telling us how enthusiastic this woman's daughter was at her return, and how she could not seem to do enough for her mother. This was a new character for the daughter. She has the reputation of being a decidedly selfish girl who lets her mother wait on her by inches and rewards her with rudeness and impatience. We expressed our interest as to what the girl's spasm of exuberant appreciation reminded the lady-who-always-knows-something of, and the lady went on: "It was one time when I was housecleaning. I wanted to get everything clean together for once, and I'd been working hard enough to kill myself and I just gave out and had to go to bed. I had a jolly little Irish girl just over, for a maid, and when she brought me up my tea that night she said, 'Sure, darlint, I think ye'll have to be after doing your cleaning more like the robins feed their young.' "And how is that?" I said. "A little at a time and oftener," she explained. "A little at a time and oftener." How many things that would simplify besides housecleaning. How often we try to pay debts of kindness or gratitude in a lump—at Christmas time, perhaps—when the payment could so much better be made "as the robins feed their young."

Wide braids are expected to have a very prominent place this fall. The latest novelties include braids woven in a mixture of one of the fashionable vivid colors with black. Many are in sombre effect, combining two tones of one color, while others combine the color that are formed in the new fashionable rough suitings and tweeds.

WIDE BRAIDS ARE EXPECTED TO HAVE A VERY PROMINENT PLACE THIS FALL. THE LATEST NOVELTIES INCLUDE BRAIDS WOVEN IN A MIXTURE OF ONE OF THE FASHIONABLE VIVID COLORS WITH BLACK. MANY ARE IN SOMBRE EFFECT, COMBINING TWO TONES OF ONE COLOR, WHILE OTHERS COMBINE THE COLOR THAT ARE FORMED IN THE NEW FASHIONABLE ROUGH SUITINGS AND TWEEDS.

Grant us in this impatient life to still remember that there are many things which can best be done "as the robins feed their young, a little at a time and oftener."

Cecil Amendments Lost

VETO BILL GETS ON.

"Home Rule" is the fear of the Unionists—Churchill hints at the King Favoring it. London, Aug. 8.—Lord Cecil's motion that consideration of the Bill be postponed was rejected 348 to 209, and a motion to commence consideration of the Lords' amendment to the veto bill was agreed to. Sir Edward H. Carson, in the debate, devoted himself to the home rule phase of the situation, and promised the Government that their intention of passing a home rule bill by force would be resisted by force. "The home rule contest will be settled by Balfour and not by Westminster," he said. At one point Carson nearly caused an outbreak by referring to Mr. Asquith's communication to Mr. Balfour on the subject of the King's guarantee as "a blackmailing letter." The Speaker let it pass. Home Secretary Churchill followed, strongly deprecating the resort to disorder and riot advocated by Cecil and Carson saying: "There are 70,000 dockers on strike at this moment in London. Some of them are hungry. Should some of them who are suffering break out in riot, you would be the first to ask that soldiers be sent to the scene."

King and Home Rule. Mr. Churchill also stated that when the Ministers conferred with the King in November in regard to guarantee, he was made fully acquainted with all matters in dispute between the parties, "among which Home Rule was one of the most important." The impression which the speaker evidently sought to convey was that the King was in favor of Home Rule for Ireland.

Lords' Amendments. Proceeding to deal with the Lords' amendments to the veto bill, the Home Secretary announced the minor concessions which the Government was prepared to make. They had concluded that in order to lighten the burden of the Speaker in deciding the character of bills, to determine if they were purely financial measures or otherwise, he should consult the chairman of the Committee on Ways and Means and the chairman of the Committee on Public Accounts. It would also be adopted providing for the exclusion of provisional orders—bills from the term "public bills"; and a new clause providing that no extension of the duration of the life of a parliament beyond the prescribed five years could be made. In advising the rejection of the other amendments made by the House of Lords, and referring to the suggestion that the Protestant succession should be safeguarded by referendum, Mr. Churchill sarcastically remarked: "We do not stand in need of any Jacobean or Napoleonic device of this sort, or even of a Venetian plan of a tribunal of superior persons."

How to Keep Cool. Muscular exercise—as little as possible. Rest and sleep—as much as possible. Digestible foods—only a sufficient quantity. Indigestible foods—sufficient for bulk. Cold drinks—with care and moderation as to temperature and quantity. Hot sun—a minimum amount. Shade—a maximum amount. Air in motion—enough for comfort. Cold baths—not overdone. Clothing—light shades, and light weight. "Family Doctor."

Do You Feel This Way?

Do you feel all tired out? Do you sometimes think you just can't work away at your profession or trade any longer? Do you have a poor appetite, and lay awake at nights unable to sleep? Are your nerves all gone, and your stomach too? Has ambition to forge ahead left you? If so, you might as well put a stop to your misery. You can do it if you will. Dr. Fierce's Golden Medical Discovery will make you a different individual. It will set your lazy liver to work. It will set things right in your stomach, and your appetite will come back. It will purify your blood. If there is any tendency in your family towards consumption, it will keep that dread destroyer away. Even after a consumption has almost gained a foothold in the form of a lingering cough, bronchitis, or bleeding at the lungs, it will bring about a cure in 98 per cent of all cases. It is a remedy prepared by Dr. E. V. Fierce, of Buffalo, N. Y., whose advice is given free to all who wish to write him. His great success has come from his wide experience and varied practice. Don't be wheedled by a penny-grabbing dealer into taking inferior substitutes for Dr. Fierce's medicines, recommended to be "just as good." Dr. Fierce's medicines are of known composition. Their every ingredient printed on their wrappers. Made from 1903 without addition of any habit-forming drugs. World's Dispensary Medical Association, Buffalo, N. Y.

Fads and Fashions.

Hat crowns may be high or low; the majority of hats showing high crowns are narrow of brim, a feature which emphasizes the height. There is a great feeling for having all dress accessories to match, even the hand-bags following the fashion and the uppers of shoes as well as the stockings. For elegant day dresses white embroidered nets are fashionable, the skirts being very chic when finished with a band of black net, outlined in white. For children little coats of taffeta are in vogue. A pretty little model of dark navy blue silk has collar and cuffs of brighter blue, edged with silver buttons. Pale-colored parasols are much seen in lace or plaited mouseline de soie, edged with a wide silk border, or with one of flowered pompadour ribbon, or of black velvet. Very thick rouleaux of satin finish the waists of one-piece dresses and are twisted and arranged as ornaments at the top of the back panel, usually fastened at the side. Pierrot millinery shapes in velour, scratch beaver or French felt with high round-topped crowns and slightly rolled brims will be a popular feature of this fall's millinery. The loose panels which finish so many of the newest skirts are caught up at one side with a pretty ornament and the hem. At the top flat and
