CHAPTER XXXVII.

Esther woke from a troubled sleep that night, to find June standing beside her. Pale moonlight shone into the room from half-drawn blinds, filling it with an eerie light, as Esther started up trembling and frightened.

"What is it? Is anything the matter?" Oh, I thought you were a ghost!" She clutched at June with both hands. "Oh, is anything the matter?" she asked again.

June laughed nervously; she found matches and lit a candle, then she came back to Esther and thrust something into her hands.

"You'll never forgive me," she said. "But I've had it in my coat pocket for two days. . . . She pushed her dark hair back from her forehead tragically. "Lydia gave it to me for you the day I went out in my best hat to meet George, and I was such a selfish, conceited pig that he put everything else out of my head, and I forgot all about it!—Just now, when I was lying awake thinking. . . . and then. . . . Oh, Esther, it's from Micky!"

Esther looked down at the crumpled envelope—

"From—Micky? . . . she said. She was only half awake; she made a very queer picture there with her long hair tumbling about her shoulders, and her eyes a little flushed and startled.

June turned to the door.

"I'll go away—you don't want me. . . . I'll go—," but Esther caught her hand.

"No—no. . . . Wait! please wait!" "Very well—but I'm half frozen. . . . June looked plaintively at Esther, but Esther had forgotten her, and she dragged the quilt from the bed, and wrapped it round her small figure till she looked like a mummy.

There was a long silence, then Esther raised her eyes to June's anxious face.

"Her own was quite colourless, and her grey eyes looked dazed.

"Will you—will you—read it?" she said faintly. "Please—I want you to. . . . somehow I feel as if I'm dreaming."

But June at any rate was wide awake. It only took her two minutes to read Micky's passionate appeal; the next she was laughing and crying together, and hugging Esther boisterously.

"Oh, isn't he the most wonderful man? Don't you love him? Don't you just adore him? Oh, if you're going to break his heart after all this, I'll suffer for you!"

"Why, my George?" in it with Micky, poor darling!" she shook Esther in her excitement.

"What are you made of, that you can't see what a king he is? I don't believe there's any blood in your veins at all," she declared indignantly. "You haven't got a heart. . . . Oh, Esther darling! I didn't mean it—I'm oh, I'm such an idiot!"

And the two girls clasped each other and cried together.

"And now if this ridiculous midnight scene is ended," June said presently, sniffing her tears away. "Let's talk sense. I'll go and see Micky in the morning, and explain everything. He knows what I am—he won't be at all surprised—oh, I'm so glad—so more than glad. . . . Oh, Esther, why do you hide your face?"

June was silent for a minute, then she said gently—

"But Micky will forget all that—Micky never remembered a mean thing against anybody in his life." She forced Esther to look at her. "Tell me one thing, and then I'll go and leave you in peace," she coaxed. "Do you—do you. . . . you know?"

But in this instance, at least, a verbal answer was not necessary. June kissed her rapturously.

"Oh, you darling!" she said. She blew out the candle, and sped down to her own room again like a ghost in the moonlight.

"Was there anything else you was wanting, sir?" Driver inquired stolidly. He stood on the platform looking in at the first-class compartment where Micky sat alone in duress, waiting for the train to start.

He frowned, and pulled his soft hat further down over his eyes as he answered—

"No, nothing. . . . I'll see you at Dover."

There were many people on the platform; in the next carriage a pretty girl was seeing a man off—looking up at him as he stood on the footboard with eyes that told their story eloquently.

Micky looked at her enviously. He would have given his right hand if there had been some one there to see him off with just that expression in her eyes—the right some one, of course. He turned away from the window with an uncomfortable lump in his throat.

He had nothing in the world but his confounded money, and a lot of good that was to him! It could not buy happiness.

The guard came down the platform—

"Take your seats—take your seats."

A girl and a man pushed past him. The girl was staring eagerly in at all the windows as she passed. When she saw Micky she gave a little cry of relief.

"Here he is—Micky! Micky!"

Micky started to his feet.

"June!" he said. For a moment he thought something must have happened—something was wrong—Esther's name was trembling on his lips, but June rushed on impetuously before he had time to speak it.

"We thought we'd come and see you off—George told me you were going, and I guessed you'd be on this train. . . . I'm so glad we found you—it's rotten seeing oneself off, isn't it?"

Rochester came up laughing and red in the face; he took off his hat and mopped his hot forehead.

"I can't keep pace with her, she's like a whirlwind," he said whimsically. "She raced me off here before I could say a word."

"It's kind of you to come," Micky said.

He was pleased to see them; he felt decidedly less ill-tempered than he had done a moment ago. He looked down at June's radiant face, and a little doubt went through his heart.

He was in that dangerous state through which so many men have to pass when the woman they love will have none of them. If Marie Deland had happened to turn up then, he would have asked for forgiveness and have married her offhand and regretted it the next day; and now, as he looked at June, he wondered if he had been a fool not to properly appreciate her. He felt a vague twinge of jealousy, realizing that the days were gone for ever when he had been the most wonderful man in all the world to her.

He had never loved her save in a brotherly way, and he did not love her now, but at heart men are all dogs in the manger, and it was some such feeling that filled Micky's heart as he leaned out of the window and looked at this girl.

CHAPTER II. THE HERO.

Nora changed, and ran down to her supper. She had it in the kitchen; it was warm and bright there, and she wanted to talk to Martha. She had not only sold the steers, but had done other business in connection with butter and poultry; and she and Martha went in to Committee of Ways and Means; but Martha could only give the subject a divided attention, for her mind was taken up with the gay and grand doings at the Hall.

"They're saying that there old Sir Joseph is terrible rich, and that he's made another slight of money of late out of some mine or other—a gold mine, I reckon."

"How lucky for him!" said Nora. "But about the fowls, do you think you could manage as many, Martha?"

"Yes, I'm thinking as I could, Miss," said Martha; "especially if I could have more meat for 'em." The word "meat" in Devonshire covers every description of food. "Fowls eat a terrible deal of meat, especially when they're fattening." That Hall's regular blaze of light to-night, and Ned says that one of the grooms told him that there was four cocks at work, and two of 'em men. I don't hold with man in the kitchen, Miss Nora; leastways, interfering with the vittles. It's been women's work ever since Eve; for 'ow could Adam have attended to his garden if he'd had to do the cooking? It stands to reason."

"I wish you could forget the Hall for a minute, Martha, and attend to me," said Nora, laughing. "Next spring I'll get a setting of some of those new Minorca hens, and we must find some money to buy one of those movable runs."

"You've got high notions in your head, Miss Nora," said Martha admiringly. "If only you'd got the money in your purse; but it do fret me to see you worry'n about such things—you'm a Ryall, and one of the best born in the land. You ought to be sitting in the drawing-room and riding in your carriage."

"Both at once!" said Nora banteringly. "But, you see, I haven't a carriage, Martha; and I wonder what would happen to us all if I took to lolling in the drawing-room? Where's Ned; I wonder? I must take a look round."

She drew an old cloak about her, threw on her bonnet, and went out. The sky had cleared, and an almost full moon was shining brightly.

PAINS SO BAD STAYED IN BED

Young Mrs. Beechcroft Had Miserable Time Until She Took Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

Hamilton, Ont.—"I have suffered for three years from a female trouble and consequent weakness, pain and irregularity which kept me in bed four or five days each month. I nearly went crazy with pains in my back, and for about a week at a time I could not do my work. I saw Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound advertised in the Hamilton Spectator and I took it. Now I have no pain and am quite regular unless I over-work or stay in my feet from early morning until late at night. I keep house and do all my own work without any trouble. I have recommended the Compound to several friends."—Mrs. EMILY BEECHCROFT, 283 Victoria Ave. N., Hamilton, Ontario.

For forty years women have been telling how Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound has restored their health when suffering with female ills. This accounts for the enormous demand for it from coast to coast. If you are troubled with any ailment peculiar to women why don't you try Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound? It is made from native roots and herbs and contains no narcotics or harmful drugs. For special advice women are asked to write the Lydia E. Pinkham Medicine Co., Lynn, Mass. The result of forty years experience is at your service.

CHAPTER II. THE HERO.

Nora changed, and ran down to her supper. She had it in the kitchen; it was warm and bright there, and she wanted to talk to Martha. She had not only sold the steers, but had done other business in connection with butter and poultry; and she and Martha went in to Committee of Ways and Means; but Martha could only give the subject a divided attention, for her mind was taken up with the gay and grand doings at the Hall.

"They're saying that there old Sir Joseph is terrible rich, and that he's made another slight of money of late out of some mine or other—a gold mine, I reckon."

"How lucky for him!" said Nora. "But about the fowls, do you think you could manage as many, Martha?"

"Yes, I'm thinking as I could, Miss," said Martha; "especially if I could have more meat for 'em." The word "meat" in Devonshire covers every description of food. "Fowls eat a terrible deal of meat, especially when they're fattening." That Hall's regular blaze of light to-night, and Ned says that one of the grooms told him that there was four cocks at work, and two of 'em men. I don't hold with man in the kitchen, Miss Nora; leastways, interfering with the vittles. It's been women's work ever since Eve; for 'ow could Adam have attended to his garden if he'd had to do the cooking? It stands to reason."

"I wish you could forget the Hall for a minute, Martha, and attend to me," said Nora, laughing. "Next spring I'll get a setting of some of those new Minorca hens, and we must find some money to buy one of those movable runs."

"You've got high notions in your head, Miss Nora," said Martha admiringly. "If only you'd got the money in your purse; but it do fret me to see you worry'n about such things—you'm a Ryall, and one of the best born in the land. You ought to be sitting in the drawing-room and riding in your carriage."

"Both at once!" said Nora banteringly. "But, you see, I haven't a carriage, Martha; and I wonder what would happen to us all if I took to lolling in the drawing-room? Where's Ned; I wonder? I must take a look round."

She drew an old cloak about her, threw on her bonnet, and went out. The sky had cleared, and an almost full moon was shining brightly.

PAINS SO BAD STAYED IN BED

Young Mrs. Beechcroft Had Miserable Time Until She Took Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

Hamilton, Ont.—"I have suffered for three years from a female trouble and consequent weakness, pain and irregularity which kept me in bed four or five days each month. I nearly went crazy with pains in my back, and for about a week at a time I could not do my work. I saw Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound advertised in the Hamilton Spectator and I took it. Now I have no pain and am quite regular unless I over-work or stay in my feet from early morning until late at night. I keep house and do all my own work without any trouble. I have recommended the Compound to several friends."—Mrs. EMILY BEECHCROFT, 283 Victoria Ave. N., Hamilton, Ontario.

For forty years women have been telling how Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound has restored their health when suffering with female ills. This accounts for the enormous demand for it from coast to coast. If you are troubled with any ailment peculiar to women why don't you try Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound? It is made from native roots and herbs and contains no narcotics or harmful drugs. For special advice women are asked to write the Lydia E. Pinkham Medicine Co., Lynn, Mass. The result of forty years experience is at your service.

The Bell Island Ore Tax Agreement.

A Bad Bargain For Newfoundland.

Editor Evening Telegram.
Dear Sir.—The Bell Island Ore Contract gives rise to so many objections of a serious nature, that my letters regarding it have been unduly long and perhaps prosy, but in spite of their length it seems to me necessary to return to the further consideration of certain points which I have mentioned. I crave an indulgence for so imposing upon your valuable space.
The feature of the Contract most alarming to me is that which concerns the exportation of ore. Prior to the war the companies shipped to Germany occasionally only, and the greater part of their exports went to Nova Scotia. The contract appears to have been entered into by the Government with the thought, that this would continue to be the policy of the company, and that the question of export to foreign countries was not of particular importance. But the companies may have thought otherwise, and the Contract may have been framed with a very definite intention on their part to make foreign export the important feature of their Bell Island business. By the deprivation of Alsace-Lorraine, and the probable loss of Upper Silesia, Germany will become almost absolutely dependent upon foreign countries for her iron ore, and no country it seems to me can so readily supply what she will want as this Colony can, for exports from Bell Island to German ports can be very easily made. It seems to me therefore, that there is danger that exports of ore elsewhere than to Nova Scotia will become the main feature of Bell Island development.

FREE EXPORT TO EUROPE.

If you read the contract with care, you will find that while the companies must pay 25c. per ton on all ore exported to Nova Scotia, and if less than one million tons be exported to Nova Scotia, then 25c. per ton on ore exported to any other part of Canada until a maximum of one million tons for the year to all Canada has been reached, it is not provided that the companies shall be liable to pay export duty upon a total of one million tons for any one year unless the exports to Canada shall equal that amount. That is to say, if the companies so export they shall pay, but they are not bound to export. On the other hand, ore exported elsewhere than to Canada is to be free from duty for a number of years, and altogether, if by the end of five years, the companies have made certain expenditures. That is to say, without exporting a ton to Nova Scotia, or paying a single cent of export duty, the companies can conduct a great export business to Germany or other foreign country without paying any export duty for several years, and without payment at any time if the company shall have made certain expenditures in "improvements, extension and developments." If my fears as to the course which the business of exporting is likely to take place during the immediate future should prove true, this Colony will derive no benefit by way of royalty or export duty on Bell Island ore for several years to come, and perhaps for the whole twenty year period of the Contract, and thereby the Colony which now stands abjectly in need of all the revenues it can get, will have deprived itself of one of the sources from which a revenue could be most easily obtained. The partial stagnation of trade in Canada, the depression in the Iron and Steel business in Nova Scotia, the unlikelihood that the United States of America will afford any market for Sydney products, and a variety of other obvious circumstances, seem to indicate that the Iron & Steel business at Sydney will not develop very much during the next few years, and the companies may probably be bound, if being to their interest, to do a minimum of work in Sydney, and a maximum of export business to Germany.

CONTRACT SHOULD BE REJECTED.
Doesn't it strike you, Mr. Editor, that I have indicated what will very probably occur, and if it does occur, the Colony will find itself in a very unpleasant condition with reference to Bell Island ore and revenues therefrom; and, therefore, this pending Contract ought to be rejected. The whole unwisdom of the commercial position may not have been apparent to the Government, at the time this contract was made, but I have tried to make it apparent to the Legislature and to public opinion, and I fervently hope that now that the eyes of the Legislature and public have been opened, enough independence and public spirit may be demonstrated to prevent this wretched contract from becoming law.
There are other points of the contract, which are of minor importance to this ore business, upon which I wish to speak, but perhaps it will be less confusing to the public if I deal with one subject at a time, and make my letters short rather than inclusive, so I shall ask permission to return at another time to another question arising out of the contract.
Yours truly,
ALFRED B. MORINE.

Delegates and Employers Discuss Labor Situation.

A delegation from the L.S.P.U. held a conference with the members of the Employers' Association in the Board of Trade Rooms yesterday afternoon, when the present labor situation was discussed. President Flavin and four delegates from the Union were present and there was a large attendance of employers. The Union's representatives placed their position before the employers and objected to the present rate of wages being reduced. The employers presented figures showing that the cost of living had declined considerably, which justified the reduction in wages of which the Union had been given notice. The delegates were present for over an hour, and after they withdrew the employers considered a reply which will be forwarded to the Union today.

Llewellyn Club

HOLDS MEMORABLE MEETING.
The Llewellyn Club held its closing session last night in Canon Wood Hall. There was a large attendance of members and amongst the guests were Sir M. P. Cashin, Sir P. T. McGrath, Messrs. J. R. Bennett, John Anderson, and A. H. Salter. Rev. Dr. Jones presided. At 8.15 His Excellency the Governor, the speaker of the evening, accompanied by Hon. R. Watson, arrived. Dr. Jones, its founder, gave a very hearty welcome to the situation of the Colony, and "the Colony," were the subjects of two addresses delivered by His Excellency. Both addresses were instructive and were listened to with great interest by those present. A vote of thanks, proposed by Mr. A. B. Morine, K.C., in a very able speech, and seconded by Mr. L. Colley, was carried with much enthusiasm. Rev. Dr. Jones also delivered a short address, in which he outlined the work of the Club since he founded it some six years ago. During the evening songs were rendered by Rev. C. A. Moulton, Messrs. J. R. Steele and C. Hammond. At the conclusion of the programme Mr. C. E. Hunt moved that the Club place on record its deep appreciation of the work of Rev. Dr. Jones, its founder, the resolution being carried by a standing vote. The singing of the National Anthem and the giving of hearty cheers for His Excellency and Rev. Dr. Jones brought a memorable evening to a close.

C. L. B. Cadets.

The usual Thursday night parade of the C.L.B. Cadets was well attended. The following officers were present: Lt.-Col. R. E. Goodridge; Capt. F. Miles; Rev. E. H. Fletcher; H. Outerbridge; J. Snow; H. Henry; Lieut. F. B. Rendell; L. C. Hayward; A. G. M. King; A. B. Perlin; and W. Mott. Company drill was taken by the various Company Commanders, whilst the special N.C.O. class was conducted by Capt. Snow in the gym. During the evening the Chaplain, Rev. J. Brinton, visited the Armory and swore in a number of new recruits. The following are extracts from orders for the week ending May 12th: Orderly Officer for Week—Lt. H. Hayward. Next for Duty—Lt. L. Give Road Work for Relief.

Almost every year there is a certain amount of relief given out in this country, and in many cases little or no provision made for any returns therefor. This we consider a pernicious practice. Last, however, we might be misunderstood we wish to make it clear that under circumstances of distress and hardship the State should render assistance. But we contend that any man in his health and strength who obtains relief and assistance should give some returns for what he receives; and we believe in most cases he is willing to do so, for it enables him to retain his independence and manhood. We hold that the time for making these returns should be such as would not interfere with his usual avocations. There is not a hamlet in the country but what requires improvements to its roads and pathways. People have to wade ankle deep through mire for the want of a drain or the opening of a culvert, and there are numerous ways in which the public utilities could be improved in return for aid. Assistance rendered by the State—Western Star.

The Lobster Industry.

The Market Requires Small Tins.
Of late years most of the lobster pack of this country has been done in the one pound tin can. Last year frequent enquiries were received from foreign markets for the half pound package. We have been told that the Nova Scotia pack last year was practically all of the small size package and met with a ready market at a good figure. As our people are now preparing for this season's voyage, the following letter received from Stewart Munin & Co., of Montreal, who handle considerable quantities of all fishery products for that market, may be of interest to those who intend operating lobster packing factories this year. Messrs. Munin & Co. writes as follows:
Editor Western Star, Dear Sir,—We have constant demand for lobster tins in small sizes and we think you would be doing your readers a service if you would call their attention to the possibility of building up a permanent trade in these goods. In some parts of Canada one pound tins are practically unobtainable and in all sections the half pound tin is especially wanted.
We had a quantity of lobsters last season from Newfoundland and the quality of the whole was very good and pleased our customers, but because business was greatly restricted, because we could not supply the sizes which were called for—Western Star.

Mr. Vinnicombe—To ask the Minister of Marine and Fisheries in his capacity as Chairman of the Railway Commission if, with reference to his answer on Monday to questions concerning his free travel over the Railroad, the eighteen visits to Port Union made by him were made on business of the Union Trading Company, and if on the latter why he should claim to be able to travel free when other members of the community have to pay their fares; also to lay on the table a statement showing all parties in the enjoyment of free passes at the present time and the reasons justifying the issue of such free passes.

Mr. MacDonnell—To ask the Prime Minister if his attention has been called to an editorial in the Western Star of April 27th headed "Give Us Democracy" and calling for an improvement in the coast transport along that coast the present summer, in which it is said that "the condition of the steamers plying on the West Coast route the past year are shocking that only those who have witnessed the conditions can have any conception of their frightfulness"; that "we therefore urge, in the name of common decency, some effort be made for the improvement of this service"; that "we spend money freely in an effort to induce tourists to come into the country and then provide them with filthy transportation and subject them to the most revolting indecencies"; that "then there are something better than to be subject to cattle conditions for days at a time"; if the fact that the principal owner of this paper is Honorable Dr. Campbell, Minister of Agriculture and Mines will have any effect in and if causing the Government to take any steps to ensure a better service hereafter than that which now exists?

Sir M. P. Cashin—To ask Hon. the Minister of Marine and Fisheries if the firm of S. Harris Ltd., Grand Bank, recently instructed its officials to disregard the regulations regarding the standardization of fish and to export fish hereafter tailed; if the reason assigned for this order was that the Minister in his capacity of President of the F.P.U. had shipped fish from Port Union himself tailed; if this statement is correct and if so what is the explanation for this procedure?

Sir M. P. Cashin—To ask Hon. the Minister of Marine and Fisheries if in conformity with his pledge at the last session of the House that Captain Fern, Captain Eastin and Mr. Collins (Marconi Superintendent) would be appointed a commission in connection with aids to navigation, especially along the Southern Shore and vicinity of Cape Race, if these gentlemen were so appointed; if so did they proceed with their investigation and make any report thereon, and if they did lay on the table of the House a copy of the said report together with a statement of what action, if any, the Government proposes to take to give effect to their recommendations?

Sir M. P. Cashin—To ask Hon. the Prime Minister to lay on the Table of the House a copy of all reports received from relieving officers in the various districts throughout the country from the first day of January to date; a report, if any, from the Commissioner of Public Charities on the same subject, and to say what, if any action the Government is taking or proposes to take for the relief of the people to prevent some of them from dying of starvation which seems now almost inevitable?

Sir M. P. Cashin—To ask Hon. the Prime Minister to lay on the Table of the House a copy of the report made by Dr. Chisholm on his recent visit to Placentia Bay to investigate reports as to destitution in that area, and to state what action the Government has taken or proposes to take in regard thereto?

Sir M. P. Cashin—To ask Hon. the Prime Minister with reference to his statement yesterday in reply to a previous question that all the loan of one million and a half dollars obtained from the Bank of Montreal has been expended, how much money is owed at present on account of the railway undertakings to which this sum was applied, and if in addition to this amount now due the Government plans undertaking any commitments which will further increase this liability?

Mr. Bennett—To ask Hon. the Minister of Marine and Fisheries, in his capacity of Chairman of the Railway Commission, if it is correct that the Commission ever the Reid Nid. Company at the present time the sum of one million dollars or thereabouts, and if not how much, and to give a statement of the main items making up the total whatever it is; also if the Commission owes business people in the city and elsewhere for supplies and otherwise, a sum of three hundred and fifty thousand dollars, or thereabouts; and if not how much, and give a list of the principal sums making up this amount and what they represent; also to state what steps the Commission or the Government is taking to liquidate these obligations?

Sir J. C. O'Connell—To ask Hon. the Minister of Public Works to lay on the Table of the House the following information:
(1) If A. H. Satter of the Royal Stores, is employed by the Department.
(2) What Salary is he paid.
(3) What are his duties.
(4) What are his hours of employment?

Monkeys Created Hubbub on Board Ship

New York, April 26.—Like some old incredible sea tale, but verified for, was the story told on the arrival to-day of the Lamport and Holt steamer Vauban, from South America. Escaped monkeys and a playful python which chased a cat overboard had itself disappeared over the side figure in the yarn related by the cook and the crew.

The Vauban brought back several tourists, who have been sighted in South America. Many of them had decided that they Brazilian monkeys would be fine pets to take back to Main Street, and in consequence a few of the travellers left Rio without at least one, and some had three.

The first two days of the voyage were uneventful, but on the night of the third, when the passengers were on deck enjoying the moon, some one unloosed the monkeys and an instant bedlam reigned. Cats sped up the rigging, followed by the monkeys, and the crew was hustled on deck to recover the animals. After much persuasion they were captured. The monkeys had lost all marks of ownership, such as knitted sweaters, ribbons and the like. Capt. Chadgan vowed he had three monkeys over when he landed the distribution.

The fourth day out a thirteen foot python, the property of Albert E. Dawson, official photographer of the tourists, who purchased it in Rio de Janeiro, slid a Houdini from his box. A passenger stepped on what he thought was a rubber hose, then let out a yell which was heard by even the steersman below. "Oh, Bartlett, a streamer of duty declared he would swear he saw the python chase a cat overboard. Then, said the steersman, the python, refusing to give up the pursuit, followed the cat into the sea.

The reluctance of some of our restaurant proprietors to cut down their prices brings to mind the story of a certain English professor. He had erected a grey, well-worn pile on a mountain peak, and as he was approaching it with a friend he said: "I don't know what to call my place. What name would you advise?" His friend stood still and surveyed the structure. "It looks like one of those Scotch castles in the Highlands," he remarked. "Why not call it Dunrobin?" "Dunrobin? Dunrobin? Yes, that's a good name," said the professor; "only, you see, I have no intention of retiring yet."

Ambassador to Britain.

A change of administration at Washington has brought about a change in the United States embassy in London. The Hon. John W. Davis, for several years United States Ambassador in London, has retired, and has been succeeded by Col. George Harvey, a journalist and financier.

Col. Harvey was born in Peacham, a small town in Vermont, and received his education at the academy of his native place. From the academy he passed into the newspaper work, which he followed for a number of years and then became a magazine publisher in New York.

Col. Harvey is a honorary LL.D. of the University of Nevada, University of Vermont, Middlebury College, and Erskine College and has lectured on journalism at Yale University.

A Reasonable Ambition.

(From the Kansas City Star.)

When Governor Stephens of California was mayor of Los Angeles there was one man who, even more than others, harassed the life out of him in regard to getting some kind of a job. Finally Stephens got the fellow placed doing some outdoor work in the public service department. The man was highly appreciative, and always tipped his hat to the mayor thereafter.

"It wasn't more than two months until the fellow again showed up at the mayor's office. This time he said he wanted to be promoted.

"Promoted!" said Stephens. "Why, man, you want to get ahead too rapidly. Think what a short time you've been at your present job. Such vaulting ambition as yours will make you unhappy and discontented as you go through life. What sort of job have you got your eye on, anyhow?"

"Well," said the caller seriously,

Germany Must Disarm.

Allies Determined to Compel Compliance--Irish Leaders Hold Conference--Polish Miners Join Insurgents.

GERMANY MUST DISARM.

LONDON, May 5. The necessity of making Germany disarm was placed first in importance by Lloyd George in announcing, in the House of Commons to-day, the result of the deliberation of the Supreme Council Germany's default in this respect was placed first, he said, because while there was any possibility of the re-acceptance of great armaments, there was no guarantee of the freedom and peace of Europe. Although any sudden organization of forces powerful enough to attack France or Belgium was improbable, he said, yet while there existed regular military organizations in Germany, which collectively might become the nucleus of a formidable army, it was impossible for France to settle down. As regards reparations, the Premier said, the Allies were forced to act because Germany showed she had no intention of performing her obligations.

COAL STRIKERS ASK ARBITRATION.

LONDON, May 5. Striking coal miners, it is reported, have intimated to the Government their willingness to accept arbitration on the wages question by Sir Arthur Duckham, with a view to immediate settlement of the strike. Sir Arthur was a member of the Sankey Coal Commission and submitted a minority report favorable to the miners' claims.

A HORRIBLE CRIME.

DUBLIN, May 5. The killing of a sergeant and seven constables who were ambushed on Wednesday near Rathmore, County Kerry, it was officially stated to-day, was caused by a Sinn Fein ruse. The Sinn Feiners killed a man named Sullivan, eighty years of age, placed the body in the road and telephoned the police, who sent to get the body. The body of Sullivan bore a label designating him as a spy and informer, which the authorities declare was untrue. Sullivan received a small War Office pension for the loss of his son in the war.

CRAIG AND DE VALERA MEET.

BELFAST, May 5. Sir James Craig, Premier designate for Ulster, and Prof. Eamonn De Valera, the Sinn Fein leader, had a conference on Irish Affairs in Dublin to-day, it was announced officially this afternoon. The discussion between Sir James and De Valera, it was said, was quite apart from the position in Ulster, which remains unchanged.

MEETING IMPORTANT.

DUBLIN, May 5. The meeting of Sir James Craig and Prof. Eamonn De Valera to-day is regarded here as of great importance, in view of De Valera's proclamation to the Irish people early this week, in which he referred to provision for such evolution in the administration of home affairs, as to make for satisfaction and contentment. Sir James, a few days ago, expressed a wish to meet the Republican leader.

POLISH MINERS INSURGENT.

WARSAW, May 5. Polish labor is playing an important part in the insurrectionary movement in Upper Silesia. Despatches indicate approximately one hundred thousand miners have joined in a strike, which began last Saturday, as a protest against the rumored recommendation of the Allied Commission, giving Poland but two of the industrial districts. The miners and mine workers, through the Federation representing three hundred thousand workers, have telegraphed a protest to Lloyd George.

UNEMPLOYED THROUGH STRIKES.

LONDON, May 5. Nearly two million people are out of work, according to unemployment statistics issued by the Labor Department of the Board of Trade this week.

Last Performance of "Wishing Cap."

The Casino Theatre was very largely attended last night when the second and last performance of "The Wishing Cap" was staged by the pupils of Bishop Spencer College, under the direction of Mr. H. W. Stirling. The performance, if possible, was better than that of the previous night and the audience was charmed from beginning to end with the daintiness of the production and the excellence of the acting. Miss Audrey Chafe portrayed the difficult role of Eliza in her usual attractive manner and received rounds of well-merited applause. Miss Maude Hutchings, as the Gypsy Queen, played her part faultlessly and Misses Dorothy Snow, as Dame Durden, and Sybil Chalker, as Jane, the Scullery Maid, were very good indeed. All the minor parts were once more played to perfection while the dances and choruses were exceedingly well done. Mr. Stirling and those who assisted him have good reason to be proud of the success which crowned their efforts.

Card Party To-Night.

A Bridge, under the auspices of the St. Andrew's Ladies' Auxiliary, is being held this afternoon in the Society's Club Rooms, whilst to-night an auction forty-five tournament is being held, to be followed by a dance. The proceeds are to be given to some deserving charity. It had been intended to give the proceeds to the Beaumont-Hamel Fund, but in view of certain circumstances the amount will be diverted to some other charity and a contribution from the general funds of the Society will go to the above mentioned fund.

Spencer Dance To-Night

The dance which the Field-Spencer Association is holding in the British Hall, now Bishop Spencer College, tonight promises to be a great success. The tickets are going rapidly and the Hall will probably be filled to overflowing with dancers. The Band of the C.L.B. Cadets will be in attendance and will render the latest dance music in their usual excellent manner. Dancing will begin at 9 p.m. and will probably continue until early to-morrow morning with an interval during which supper will be served by the ladies of the Field-Spencer Association. This dance used to be an annual affair but it was found impossible to hold one last year and the organizers are therefore working hard to make to-night's assembly a memorable one.

EXPECTANT.
There's a stack of glad to-morrows round the corner over there
And Miss Spring is getting ready, tying blossoms in her hair;
Though I've had my share of trouble, and full reason to complain,
There's a lot of joy before me when the warm days come again.

Oh, I'll soon be free to wander where-soever I may please,
And listen to the singing of the birds in all the trees;
There are days that I'll go fishing with a faithful friend or two,
Or play the idle rover in the way I used to do.

There's a lot of fun before me, and I'm standing at my door,
Counting eagerly the pleasures which the Springtime has in store;
Though some days were long and dreary, I am living now to see
The woods in all their splendor and the blue skies over me.

There are times I've been discouraged, times I've thought life's charm had fled,
There were even times I've whispered "Gad, I might as well be dead!"
But the sun is getting higher, and the buds break on the bough,
And with Springtime's getting nearer, there's a lot to live for now.

Wrangling Over Holy Ground.

It were better not to have anything whatever to do with the purchase of the sacred field of Beaumont-Hamel, made holy by the blood of Newfoundland's many sons shed there on that fatal day of July 1st, 1916, if there is to be any wrangling or dissension over the various methods adopted for the raising of funds with which to acquire that portion of France which is to be set aside and consecrated for all time as the resting place of Terra Nova's glorious dead. Any difference of opinion or diversity of operation on the part of the Committee appointed to accumulate the sum of the purchase money, will but have a tendency to cause the masses to look askance at the project, and refuse either support or sympathy. And it would be deplorable indeed if a discordant note were struck now that the consummation is almost effected. So far everything has worked harmoniously, and we understand that three-quarters of the amount needed is in sight, leaving but some twenty-five hundred or three thousand dollars, at the most, to be collected.

The Telegram has no desire whatever to make the sacred soil of Beaumont-Hamel, a subject of newspaper discussion. There are too many sad memories attached to that stricken field to permit it to become a source of controversy. To do so would be to depreciate the heroism of those who died, and not alone that, but it would reopen the wounds of those who suffered loss, and cause their hearts to bleed afresh with the pangs of grief. "The place whereon thou standest is holy" should be the text applied to the Cemetery of Beaumont-Hamel, and nothing of an argumentative nature should ever taint its purchase. The methods adopted to raise the necessary sum were carried out in all sincerity. The promoters of the various functions acted in a perfectly honorable and creditable manner, animated only by one motive, that of quickly making the burial ground of Newfoundland's best, a portion of the Colony. Perhaps the original idea was a mistaken one, and that it would have been much better if the Government had bought the ground for Newfoundland out of general revenue, leaving it to popular subscription to erect a fitting monument, and to look after the upkeep and beautifying of the cemetery in perpetuum. If Beaumont-Hamel is to become the shrine which its associations make it, then there must be no misunderstanding as to the manner of its purchase or to the means adopted. Far better that we had never touched it than to make of it a bone of contention between factions of committees, some of whom cling to one idea and some to another. Meanwhile the relatives of those who died are again in the throes of mental agony, revived by the notoriety now being given the field hallowed by the blood of those who died that we might live. Surely with all the tact and wisdom at our disposal it is possible for us to straighten out certain difficulties that of themselves are not insurmountable, and agree on one point at least—that there must be no taint of dishonor hanging over the purchase of the field of Beaumont-Hamel as Newfoundland's shrine in France.

C.L.B. Memorial Concert

On Whit Monday, May 16th, the C.L.B. Band is repeating its Easter Monday Concert in the Methodist College Hall in aid of the C.L.B.C. Memorial. All the artists who performed at the previous concert have promised their support and the affair is bound to be a huge success. The Band has been practising hard of late and has brought its selections as near perfection as it is possible to make them. It is expected that the Concert will attract a very large audience.

Wrestling Exhibition.

The first of the weekly series of wrestling and boxing contests which the C.L.B.C. Athletic Association is conducting, begins to-night when competitors for the Stafford Championship Wrestling Tournament will take part in some trial matches. The big wrestling contest set down for the 16th inst. will, unfortunately, have to be postponed owing to the Memorial Concert on the same night. It will take place, however, at an early date.

"Prince of Pilsen" Dance

Last night a dance was given to all those who took part or helped in the production of the "Prince of Pilsen," at the C.C.C. Hall. The C.C.C. Band was in attendance and played some excellent dance music. The catering was in the hands of ex-Serjt. J. Robinson. Dancing was continued until an early hour this morning, all present having had a most enjoyable evening.

FRIDAY, May 6.

Gault's Digestive Syrup has been found useful in nearly every different form of indigestion and dyspepsia, but it is particularly valuable in cases where constipation is associated with digestive difficulty. Constipation is sometimes a cause, and always an aggravation of dyspepsia, and its relief or removal is in very many cases followed by decided improvement in the working of the digestive functions. If you are a sufferer in the above way, you will do well to try a bottle of Gault's Digestive Syrup. Price 50 cents a bottle.

TO-DAY'S MESSAGES.

LET IRISHMEN SETTLE IT. LONDON, May 6.

Hope that yesterday's meeting in Dublin between Sir James Craig, Premier Designate for Ulster, and Emmott De Valera, Irish Republican Leader, may be a sign of the dawn of peace in Ireland, pervades newspaper comment here to-day. Some Journals however, are inclined to temper hope with caution, recalling failures of previous efforts towards peace. The Daily Express counsels non interference by Englishmen in negotiations, concluding by saying, "We have muddled the Irish question long enough. Let us give the Irishmen a chance to settle it."

WAS NEWFOUNDLAND ASKED? LONDON, May 6.

Lord Lee of Fareham, First Lord of the Admiralty, replying to a question of Viscount Haldane regarding the organization of the General Naval Staff, said a beginning had been made in that direction, and Dominions had been invited to send officers to the Naval Staff College to participate in the work of the Admiralty.

POLES ACTIVE. BERLIN, May 6.

Poles are advancing over the Kofantya line, and yesterday occupied Radibor, Cosel and Rosenberg, receiving substantial reinforcements. From the Polish boundary many towns are surrounded, food is getting short and mines are jeopardized, owing to the fact that pumps no longer are manned.

BRITAIN WILL NOT RECOGNIZE MEXICO. LONDON, May 6.

Recognition of Mexico on the ground that Mexico would never become stable until it received recognition, was advocated in the House of Commons yesterday by Major Christopher Lowther. Cecil Harmsworth, Under Secretary, said he ardently desired it might become possible, but regretted that reports of lack of stability received from Mexico rendered recognition impossible.

STEWARDS LOCKED OUT. LONDON, May 6.

Lockout of thirty thousand seagoing stewards and cooks began to-day, this step being taken by shipping companies because of men's refusal to accept a wage cut of about 17 per cent.

GERMAN MINISTRY RESIGNED. PARIS, May 6.

Consideration of Allied reparations terms presented to the German War Burden's Commission here last night, and believed to have been received in Berlin to-day, may await the formation of a ministry to succeed that of Konstantine Fehrenbach, which resigned Wednesday night. It was thought here that the reparations demands have failed to satisfy a majority of the Paris newspapers. "If we don't put our hands on Germany's collar," declares the Figaro, "we will not put our hand into his pocket. The London Conference let slip an opportunity for action."

Will Not Yield. The publishers affected by the printers' strike held a meeting last evening and decided definitely that they would not concede terms demanded by the Typographical Union. The publishers of the papers now affected have decided to co-operate and issue their papers until there is a change in the present conditions.

TO-DAY'S MESSAGES.

SINN FEINERS KILLED.
 DUBLIN, May 5.
 Patrick Maloney, alleged to have been a prominent official in the Republican Army, and Sean Duffy, leader of Sinn Feiner in Dublin, are officially reported killed in a fray with the police in Tipperary.

FRENCH PAPERS PESSIMISTIC.
 PARIS, May 5.
 Discontent with the reparations declaration of the London Conference, which newspapers have been cautiously expressing, is finally summarized by the Temps and Journal des Debats in editorials taking a dark outlook of Europe's immediate future.

A BAD POLICY.
 LONDON, May 5.
 Answering Premier Lloyd George's reply to nine Anglican Bishops and heads of the principal Nonconformist Churches in Britain, the Bishop of Chelmsford and other Anglican Bishops, and other church leaders declare they are impressed by "what seems to us an impeccable evidence that the policy of the Government in Ireland has succeeded only in inflaming the wound that it was meant to heal. The allegations against Crown Forces is apt to leave a painful impression at home and abroad."

A HOPEFUL SIGN.
 DUBLIN, May 5.
 The Conference to-day between Sir James Craig and Eamonn De Valera is regarded as a most hopeful sign for peace. This it is said, will not necessarily involve on De Valera's part any change in attitude, for Sinn Feiners had always expressed a willingness to meet any Irishman. In political quarters here, it is declared the move of Sir James Craig required courage, in view of the possible difficulties in Northern elections, from extreme Protestants as well as Reformers. Political leaders assert the main difficulty between Sir James and De Valera was that Sir James favored starting with Home Rule and advancing toward common action, while De Valera desired to start with unity, but was willing to accord the North of Ireland all necessary devolution.

QUITE LIKELY.
 BELFAST, May 5.
 The Unionist "Northern Whig" says while considerable importance attaches to the meeting of Sir James Craig and Eamonn De Valera, "there is a danger that some over-enthusiast may exaggerate it."

STOUND SENTIMENT.
 DUBLIN, May 5.
 The Freeman's Journal, in editorial comment on the Craig-De-Valera meeting, say, "We trust that leaders will not easily lose touch with one another, or that two men will readily despair of success."

VILLAGE HAS BIG FIRE.
 ST. BONIFACE, QUE., May 5.
 The picturesque little village of St. Boniface was almost wiped out to-day by a one hundred thousand dollar fire, which originated in a church and destroyed the hotel, bakery, store and four houses.

GERMANS AS POLICE.
 BERLIN, May 5.
 An Appell despatch from a German source says the Interallied Commission has decided to incorporate three thousand Germans in Flanders police.

CAME TO TERMS.
 CHICAGO, May 5.
 The strike of the Job Printers ended here to-day, when employers agreed to a forty four hour week, and the men accepted four dollars and thirty five cents a week reduction.

GERMANY MUST RESPECT TREATY.
 LONDON, May 5.
 Lloyd George argued that plan of the Supreme Council was fair and workable and the Allies had taken into account all Germany's difficulties, economical and political, and her capacity to pay also. It was useless being impatient with the attitude of France, because France was the victim of the war and entitled to reparations. There was no interest for France, which was not also the interest of the whole world to secure peace and settlement, he said, and for that reason the Treaty must be respected and accepted as the real basis of any German offer.

BRAND SATISFIED.
 PARIS, May 5.
 Premier Briand, on his journey from London to Paris, gave the impression of a man at peace. He returns prepared to defend the agreement as a just settlement, and one that can be defended, viewed from the point of French interests, and yet adjusted to the resources of Germany. Briand hopes Germany will accept the terms. "I have no desire to see France spend one hundred million francs monthly on the occupation of Ruhr, but nothing can prevent that except a German yes, with no ifs, thats, buts or whereases," he said. The Premier is convinced that in taking a percentage of value of exports the true solution has been found. He is not a bit concerned, he said, but a measure of the paying power of the barometer of trade. He explained that no tax was placed on exports as such, but the German Government would be required to take the total value of exports and pay an equivalent of twenty-six per cent. into the Reparations Fund. The Premier hoped sincerely that the invitation sent to United States to send a representative to Supreme Council would be accepted.

WILL NOT SURRENDER.
 BELFAST, May 5.
 Sir James Craig, on his return here from Dublin, said whether or not his visit to Eamonn De Valera would have good results, it could never be said that Ulster and its leader were not prepared to urge a cessation of "the present wicked campaign." At the same time Ulster would not surrender any rights or privileges under the new act. The only safe course he declared was for Ulster to sweep six counties at the polls, and it was up to opponents of the Ulsterites to use the same methods.

A RACE FOR LIFE.
 FALMOUTH, May 5.
 The Harrison Liner Ingoma, on fire, struggled into Falmouth to-day, after a race of one hundred miles to save the lives of 88 passengers and crew. The Ingoma was bound for West Indies from London. The fire was discovered while the passengers were asleep, and the captain kept them in ignorance, with boats prepared for launching.

CANADIAN PRESS MEETING.
 TORONTO, May 5.
 A representative gathering of Canadian newspaper men assembled here to-day to attend the annual meeting of Canadian Press Ltd. Perhaps the most important matter before the meeting was consideration of proposals for a new cost distribution among members of the News Gathering Association. It was decided not to take a decisive step in the matter, pending the Dominion census. The management presented a report on the present cable service, showing the very limited funds now available were insufficient to cover more than meagre service of news from London, and asking that this assessment be increased to permit more scope in a direct cable service. This recommendation was adopted by the shareholders. In his opening address, President E. Norman Smith referred to the close relations existing between the Associated Press and Canadian Press, and said for many years Canadian publishers had abiding faith in the all-round merits of the Associated Press. Last year's officers were re-elected and J. F. B. Livesey was re-appointed General Manager.

Belvidere Cemetery Committee.
 The annual meeting of the Belvidere Cemetery Committee was held in St. Patrick's Hall last evening, Hon. J. D. Ryan presiding. After some routine business, the Labor Management's report and the Treasurer's statement were read and adopted. The outlined work for the coming season was then considered, and arrangements made to begin same as soon as weather conditions permit. It is also the intention of the Committee to call on His Grace the Archbishop in relation to the consecration of the new ground recently taken over. The officers for the ensuing year were also re-elected, viz.:—

Chairman—Hon. J. D. Ryan.
 Vice-Chairman—M. Bambrick.
 Sec.-Treas.—W. S. Dunphy.
 Labor Management—M. W. Myrick.
 Chairman; M. J. O'Mara, Secretary.

May Marriages.

Don't get married in May. If you do you will violate all the canons of the ancient sages from Ovid downwards. Said he:—
 "Let maid or widow that would turn to wife,
 Avoid this season dangerous to life."
 If you regard old saws, mind thus they say,
 "Tis bad to marry in the month of May."
 Another has laid down this immortal maxim: "Marry in May, you'll rue the day. To marry in May is to wed poverty." Bold indeed are those who dare to ignore these precepts. This is perhaps hard upon the "merry month of flowers and of merriment," but what can you do when faced by absolute facts? The wise Scotsmen will never forget the fact that his ill-fated Queen Mary married Bothwell in May, 1567. It was in May, too, that Don Carlos led the Princess Amelia d'Orleans to the altar, while the bride's grandfather, the Duc d'Orleans, married Princess Helene on May 30, 1837. Then there is the famous case of Queen Marie Antoinette, who became a wife in this unlucky month, and who, with her husband, fell victim to doctor guillotine. Fortunately, it rises above months, and that it cannot be an ill-omened season of which it is written:—
 "Take May in time; when May is gone, the pleasant time is past."

Diary of Capt. Sam. R. Winsor

On West Coast Fish Inspection Service.

July 20.—Left St. John's for Placentia. Arrived 4 p.m. on board "Glencoe." Left Placentia 9 p.m. Wednesday, proceeded up coast.

22.—Arrived St. Lawrence this morning and visited several fishing stages and found that these fishermen were carrying out the Rules and Regulations. Their stages were nicely cleaned and their fish were well cared for. In the afternoon of this day I arrived at Fortune. I took passage by mail boat and visited Mr. Lake's stores and he showed us the fish he had collected in, and I found that the fish was well dried and well cared for. His stores were very dry and well lined and found that he has some of the best stores on the West Coast to keep fish in. I then went through his stages where his men were at work washing fish and found that these men were taking every precaution to get their fish clean. This same afternoon I arrived at Grand Bank and found that Patton & Forsey had been loading their vessel Nordica, of which one E. Power, was Inspector. I proceeded up the wharf with McGrath, and to our surprise found that a cart-load of fish was dumped on the wharf and was being weighed to go on board. We immediately stopped this fish as it was of a very poor quality for No. 1 or No. 2 fish. It was soft and very salty and some broken and unburnt. We then proceeded to the beach and found the cullers, but Power was absent. I asked where he was. They did not know. In a few minutes he appeared on the scene. We explained the trouble and he could not account for it, unless the women fish-makers put the fish in the car under mistake when he was absent. I then instructed him to keep on the wharf and allow nothing to go on board only good No. 1 and No. 2 fish. This ended the day.

23.—This day begins fine and clear. Commenced taking fish on board 11 a.m. I put Power on the wharf and I went to the beach where the culler was culling fish and explained to them the quality of fish that was needed. I found that they were doing fairly well. In the afternoon we visited Grand Beach at the fishermen's request to show them the quality of fish that was needed, and found that they had some good fish, but they also had some very poor stuff. We also visited their stages and found them clean and they were delighted we had come and were in full accord with the Regulations of culling. We then came back to Grand Bank and then we found fish not up to the standard, and informed Power if this thing happened, I would have to get another man, and after this the fish that had gone on board was good and dry. All for the day. After tea I took a walk around town, and McGrath went down to the wharf and apparently got talking to some bunch of men, one Simon Tibbo insulted him, using very strong language. When he came up from the wharf he told me of the row he had, and finally next morning he got out and left for English Hr. If he had stayed there would have been some trouble. This is the last I have seen of him. 500 quintals on board for this day.

24.—This day begins dull and cloudy. Tibbo & Son's banker arrived with 1,200 qts. Forsey & Patton's Banker 2,000. Harris' Banker 1,600 qts. No fish handled to-day. Visited stores and stages and instructed fishermen how to wash and make their fish and keep their stages clean.

25.—(Sunday)
 26.—Day begins dull and cloudy. No fish handling. Visited some fishermen and explained matters of importance re fish cleaning and making. Day ends. Dull.

27.—This day begins dull and cloudy with heavy rain. Nothing doing.

28.—This day begins fine and clear. Women spreading fish. Commenced taking on board at noon. In the forenoon I visited the Banking crews and explained to them the way that they should split and handle their fish so as to give their fish a better place in the markets. In other years they have been shipping some very poor fish. At noon we began shipping on board "Nordica." Fish had to be picked quite a lot to get the sunburn and West India out of it. I remained on the beach all day and Power on the wharf, and I can say we had good fish after it was cullled.

29.—Fine and clear. Commenced shipping at 11 a.m. I kept on the beach all day watching cullers, and wharf on the wharf to be sure that nothing would pass.

30.—Fine and clear. Shipping fish. Doing the usual performance.

31.—Fine and clear. "General Gough" and "James Parker" commenced to load. Hicock looking after "James Parker" and myself the "Gen. Gough." Very hard to please the Banking crews, owing to their fish being shipped with the exporters. At 4 p.m. I had taken a run up to look at Hicock, and found that one George Tibbo, of Tibbo & Sons, refused to allow any inspection on any of his fish going aboard "Jas. Parker." The reason given me was that we were too strict on the cull, and he insisted and said he would not allow it to be done and put on board some 20 qts. without inspection—rough, salty fish. I left him and seen Power for a few moments, and when I thought that he was a bit cooled down, I went to see him again, and asked him what he intended to do, and he told me to go and he would look after his fish without any inspection, and that the Government, or Coaker or Inspectors could go to hell. I then left and wired headquarters.

August 2.—Very dull and cloudy, with continued rain. No fish handled to-day. Banking crews threatened strike. This was caused by some of the Exporters trying to stuff down their throats that it was the Government's fault and Coaker's and allowing them to use harsh words on some parties.

3.—This day begins with rain and fog. Visited a few fishermen and chatted of fish, etc.

4.—Day begins dull in the a.m. but clearing to fine at 10 a.m. Took on board about 130 for the day.

5.—This day begins fine and clear. Commenced handling fish. Very much interruption from one Samuel Harris, with a lot of abuse and strong language, and wanted to know if I would throw out my own fish and treat it as I was treating his, and said he would not allow it. I treated him with silent contempt, and the more he said the more fish I threw out. The worst I find in him is this—he will only say cutting things when he got a big crowd of men around. He not only insulted me, but Mr. Coaker, using filthy language. The only words I said to him was that I did not take any notice of old folks. Put on board "J. W. Parker" this day some few quintals. "Gen. Gough" left. Finished loading Nordica this day, and at 3:30 p.m.—a long and troublesome day.

6.—This day begins foggy but clearing in the afternoon. Commenced putting fish on board at 1 p.m. and finished at 3:30 p.m. Taking fish from store and from a schooner and also from beach after work. I signed certificate with bill of lading, and administered affidavit to Wm. Forsey. This same day I had a visit from Mr. Smith. Smith told me that I had a very hard name on this coast, and I said: "Harder the name, brighter the crown." This finishes for the day.

7.—Day begins fine and clear. Shipping fish all day. Several shore-men bringing in fish, of which some of this is inferior quality.

8.—(Sunday)
 9.—Day begins fine and clear and very hot. Shipping fish all day, 550 for the day's work.

10.—Butt took passage for Marytown this day by the "Glencoe" at 1 a.m. in the morning of the 10th. Patton & Forsey's vessel "Nordica" sailed for Portugal. Also took affidavit of cargo. "General Maude" 4,000 on board. Harris had to spread all fish in store.

11.—Day begins dull and clear. Nothing to report.

12.—Day begins dull and cloudy. Harris launched "General Ironside," 175 tons gross, painted white and red bottom.

13.—Left Grand Bank. Took motor to Garnish. Paid $15.00 for passage. Arrived at Garnish 2 p.m. Visited stores and stages and explained to the fishermen the necessity of keeping their fish clean, and taking the black off the fins. Saw a lot of sunburnt fish here. Took motor car for Burin. Paid $30.00 for passage. Arrived 7:30 p.m.

14.—This day begins foggy. Visited Hollett's store at 7 a.m. Saw some old fish caught October. Ordered it to be spread first day before going into cask.

15.—(Sunday)
 16.—Day begins dull. Visiting few places and instructing fishermen in the Rules and Regulations.

17.—Day begins with heavy rain all day. Nothing doing.

18.—Visited Bull's Cove and other settlements explaining matters.

19.—Day begins dull and cloudy. Visited Burin Bay.

20.—Day begins fine and clear. Took on board "Gordon Hollett" about 40 qts. good clean fish with white napes. Vessel well lined, tongered and lined. Visited Marytown and explained matters. Saw Downey and others.

21.—Day begins fine and clear. Shipping fish on board the schr. "G. W. Hollett." This is the best fish that I have ever seen. It is picturesque and looks delightful. All black off fins. Well salted. Hollett also has good fish on his room with white fins and the fish that Hollett got into his stage in salt bulk is certainly good and clean and white—in perfect condition.

22.—Took passage for Grand Bank by "Portia." Visited St. Lawrence on the way. Remained there about 2 hours and visited several stages where the men were washing fish, and this fish is certainly good looking. All in St. Lawrence has the black taken off the fins, and are still doing it. I saw quite a lot of this fish and it was good to see it. Arrived Grand Bank at 8 p.m.

23.—Finished loading "Gen. Gough" this afternoon. Her cargo consists of:
 1256 Large No. 1.
 532 Medium No. 1.
 340 Small No. 1.
 1546 Large No. 2.
 234 Medium No. 2.
 656 Small No. 2.
 827 Old.

24.—"Roberta Ray" arrived here. Day begins dull and cloudy with a strong N.E. wind.

25.—Day begins fine and clear. Fish-makers spreading fish in the afternoon. Commencing loading fish on board "Roberta Ray" and Buffett's vessel. Received message from Downey (coll.) that he was returning to town.

26.—This day begins fine and clear. Working fish on board "Roberta Ray" and "Florence E." and finished "James W. Parker." Day ends fine. Finished putting fish on board at 7:30 p.m. Exporters feeling sore over Regulations, using some hard language.

28.—Saturday. This day begins dull and cloudy. No fish handling. Leaving for St. John's by "Glencoe" with Coady for Marytown. Butt home looking after Buffett's.

WALL PAPER SALE STILL ON.

Marshall Brothers.

Household Notes.

For stubborn spots on painted woodwork, use a very fine abrasive cleaner, but be sure of its superior quality.

To remove old paper from the walls of a room, brush with hot water and a whitewash brush. It will come off easily.

Mend a cracked Congoleum rug with a piece of adhesive tape on the underside of the crack. The crack will not show.

When drying a sweater, swing it from the clothesline in a hammock made of mosquito netting, and it will dry beautifully.

Rugs won't slip if strips of rubber are sewn along the under side of each end. Old overshoes are excellent to cut up for this.

An Amazing Family.

The man who signs his name "Smith" may well be proud of his patronymic, for it marks him as a member of the greatest family on earth, a family large enough to reach every man, woman, and child in Derbyshire, or to re-people sixteen of the smaller counties of Scotland. Wherever you travel in England 1 person in every 72 you meet on an average, calls himself Smith; in Scotland, 1 in every 70; and in Ireland, 1 of every 140. The male Smiths alone in the United Kingdom are as many as all the people in Cumberland, and the females outnumber the population of Berkshire.

Every day 47 "little strangers" are added to the Smith nurseries, every day 25 Smiths stand at the altar of bridegroom or brides, and 23 are laid to rest with their forefathers. The married Smiths alone number nearly 200,000. 9,000 Smiths have worn mourning for departed wives, and the Smith widows, many of them young and attractive, number 24,000; while of the Misses Smith, between the ages of 18 and 30, there are roughly 50,000 to pick and choose from.

HOW ABOUT YOU?

Did you ever wonder about some people—that the Lord didn't just get out of patience with them and take away their blessings because they didn't appreciate them? I have known mothers of several children who were constantly saying in regard to some women less than they: "What a wonderful time she has!" Just think of being able to sleep moribundly the way she does! Or "Beatrice certainly is a lucky woman. What is to be to take that long business trip with her husband?" You would they have exchanged a single one of their hood for all the freedom and luxury they envied?

No One Would Guess It.
What a perfectly absurd question you say. I know it, and yet it says, "I didn't know that mother felt that way basically, he certainly could not guess it from her looks, or her nervous tones."
"Tut, tut, isn't it?"
"And the other day I heard a man who had one year after another of mounting business success, one triumph after another, complaining about some minor set-back. Five years ago, half the success he has today, half the comfort of life, would have seemed wonderful to him. Today he is aggrieved because everything doesn't go his way. One almost wonders that the god of business fortune does not say to him as the fairy did of old, "Go back and find yourself in the little mud hut."

Why This Struck Me Forebly.
One more example, and one which struck me more forebly, than any of the rest—you will see why in a minute. I had been thinking about those other examples for some time, and meaning to call them to your attention, when this last one was brought to mind.
For the last year one very dear to me has been seriously ill. The existence of this illness has cast its inevitable shadow over my life. On an anniversary of a day when this dear one had been with us and in good health the year before, I said, "To think how happy we were then, only we didn't know it."
"How Much I Had Only I Didn't Know It!"
"Yes," said the Authorman, "but don't forget that you have much still left. Suppose that should be taken away from you. Can't you imagine yourself saying, "How much I had a year ago, only I didn't know it?"

"I can well imagine it."
And so I, who all the time I had been wondering why these other people dared provoke the powers—that be by their concentration on the blessing they have not, had been one of them!

The Siamese Twins.

On May 6, 1869, Chung and Eng, the renowned Siamese twins, were exhibited in Newcastle, and the Nelson Street Music Hall was visited by immense crowds to behold the wonderful curiosities. They were accompanied by two ladies of great repute—Miss Anna Swan, the Nova Scotian giantess, and Zoubida Lett, a Circassian lady of great personal attractions—and the respective levies held by the extraordinary combination of privileges were watched with enraptured interest by persons of all ages and sexes. The twins were, of course, the recipients of most attention, and were constantly engaged in conversation with gentlemen curious to know their history, and to test their knowledge and acquirements. The twins were then 33 years of age, and these extraordinary beings had spent every instant of their time in each other's company, and spent it, too, in the most affectionate companionship, notwithstanding the many trials necessarily engendered by their infirmity, the possession of separate faculties, and the fact of each of them having a wife and children living pretty much under the same roof. Both of them possessed remarkably sunny dispositions, and the onlookers without exception agreed that they were extremely attractive persons. They promiscuously laughed and chatted with visitors. Persons who travelled from great distances confessed that they were amply repaid for their trouble and expense in finding the twins so intelligent and attractive. They formed a striking contrast to the giantess, who stood seven feet eleven inches in height, and weighed thirty-one stone. Notwithstanding the bulk of the latter, she was remarkably well proportioned, and possessed

The Monasteries of Tibet

Every Tibetan family is compelled to devote its firstborn male child to a monastic life. Soon after his birth the child is taken by a Buddhist monastery, to be brought up and trained up in priestly mysteries.
At about the age of eight he joins one of the caravans which travel to Lhasa. There he is attached to one of the local monasteries where he remains as a novice until he is fifteen, learning to read the sacred books and to perform the religious rites of his faith. The first-born sons being thus "sent into the Church," as we should say in this country, the second sons become the heads of the families and marry.

Unlike some other semi-civilized races, the young Tibetans have the right of choosing their own wives. A Tibetan girl, too, cannot be married off by her parents without her own consent. The curious custom in regard to the eldest sons results, of course, in nearly every Tibetan family acquiring the odour of sanctity by numbering a monk among its members.

House of Assembly.

THURSDAY, May 5th. The House met at 3.15 p.m. After the presenting of petitions and notices of motion and questions had been given, the questions on the Order Paper were dealt with. The Prime Minister told the House what had been done in the matter of alleviating conditions in Placentia and St. Mary's. The Minister of Marine and Fisheries told Capt. Lewis that the Trade Commissioners would be brought home at the expense of his department and that no more would be employed during the present year. The Prime Minister said that owing to difficulties of printing, supply would be delayed until Monday. The House went into Committee of the Whole on the Bill for the Repeal of the Codfish Exportation Act. Mr. Samson took the Chair of Committee. The Minister of Marine and Fisheries told Capt. Lewis that the export duty on fish would be reduced. Capt. Lewis spoke briefly on the Bill before the House. He dwelt on the autocracy of Mr. Coaker and said if a Bill were passed in 1921 or 1922 giving more power to him, it would be time to abolish the House. Referring to the Consorzio he said that it was only kept up because of Hawes and the Fish Regulations. As a consequence of the Italian market falling as the Spanish market was flooded with fish and the price dropped in proportion. He said that to-day orders were being received from Italy at 65s. In that case, it should have fetched 70s. or 75s. last November. In that month 150,000 qtrs. of fish could have been disposed of at 70s. per qtl. He anticipated a boom in the granting of supplies when the Bill had finally passed and he did not think that after his past experience, the Minister would try to bring in a new Bill. He cited instances of well known West Coast merchants who had been practically ruined by the Regulations. One had been forced to sell at Oporto, for $1 per quintal, fish which had cost him $14. He spoke about the steam trawlers which were being sent out by the French and Icelanders to the Banks and suggested that restrictions be put on these going to Sydney and getting their coal there. This had to be done if Newfoundland were to remain a fishing country and in his opinion, it could be nothing else. It looked to him as if Newfoundland would fall in 1921.

Sir John Crosbie continued his speech of Tuesday and spoke at great length. He touched upon all the most important aspects of the Fish Regulations and his address was a most striking one. He began by asking Hon. Mr. Coaker if the regulations had been taken off by the Prime Minister against his express wishes. Minister of Marine and Fisheries—"You are right, in a way."

At this juncture Sir John was interrupted by a man in the gallery. He said that the man who had interrupted him on the previous day was named Avery and he works in the Department of Public Works. He stated that these men were paid by the Government to sit in the gallery and he would, if forced to, tell the House what happened at a certain meeting held recently in the Star Office. He read the letter of Mr. Penney of Ramez published in the Telegram of May 5th as an instance of the manner in which our merchants had suffered through the Fish Regulations. On the previous day he had not been disposed to blame the Government for the destitution rampant in the district of Placentia and St. Mary's, but from information which he had received later he had altered his opinion. The Marystown Trading Company owed some of these starving people $50,000 for fish and one man with $1300 to his credit on their books had been refused a barrel of flour unless he paid cash. Some fish held up by the Regulations at Oporto had to be thrown overboard it was so bad. He spoke about the unfortunate position of coopers unable to sell their casks at any price. He stated also that able-bodied relief was being distributed in Spaniard's Bay and Port de Grave. He had received a letter from Mr. Moses Young, a former M.H.A., who had begged him to let him store his fish with him (Sir John) until the fall.

Mr. Gosse—"But these people wouldn't sell their fish when they had the chance." Sir John Crosbie—"If they got the price you did they would have sold it." Mr. Gosse—"I would have bought it." Sir John Crosbie—"Did you ask Mr. Young to sell you his fish?" Mr. Gosse—"He didn't ask me to buy it." Sir John Crosbie—"Oh, it was a case of your not asking him to sell and he not asking you to buy."

Mr. Gosse—"Why didn't you buy fish in Spaniard's Bay?" Sir John Crosbie—"Why did you not do so?" There are not twenty families in Spaniard's Bay now who do not get poor relief.

Mr. Gosse—"That is because they only got $8 per quintal for their fish." Sir John Crosbie—"No, it was because they didn't have the pull with Coaker that you had." Sir John then dwelt on white naped fish and said the black nape was a sort of trade mark by which buyers knew our fish and they had no use at all for the white naped variety. All over the island able-bodied relief was being distributed as a result of the fish regulations. He believed Hon. Mr. Coaker had had good intentions when he introduced them but he should have removed them in October last. The reason for their failure was that nothing could alter the law of Supply and Demand. He admired the Hon. Minister for admitting his failure. Speaking of Mr. Hawes he said it was an unfortunate day for the country when the Minister of Marine and Fisheries took up with him. Sir John was a firm believer in outright sales of cargoes.

Minister of Marine and Fisheries—"So you're a Coaker man now." Sir John Crosbie—"I never can be one any more. I taught you to be against shipping on consignment." Minister of Marine and Fisheries—"I never forgot your lesson." Sir John Crosbie—"Yet you let Hawes fool you. You would never have let him do it if you had learned the lesson I taught you well."

Minister of Marine and Fisheries—"So you're a Coaker man now." Sir John Crosbie—"I never can be one any more. I taught you to be against shipping on consignment." Minister of Marine and Fisheries—"I never forgot your lesson." Sir John Crosbie—"Yet you let Hawes fool you. You would never have let him do it if you had learned the lesson I taught you well."

WAKE UP Newfoundlanders!

Every Newfoundlander should be interested in Newfoundland industries. All genuine Newfoundlanders are! They buy local-made products.

$60,000 in hard, cold cash paid every week in wages when our factories are working full time --keep the factories busy--buy their goods.

The man who manufactures local products, helps in supporting your schools, your churches, your homes. The foreign manufacturer has no interest in the welfare of your community.

Goods made and sold in Newfoundland By Newfoundlanders Means prosperity for Newfoundland

Sir John then showed up the duplicity of this Mr. Hawes. The trouble over the Fish Regulations was caused, he said, by the Advisory Board. If they had not been so selfish and had been fair to the public as they should have been the disaster now facing us would not have been so great. The fact that there were no regulations in Spain turned that country into a dumping ground. Some of the gentlemen on the Advisory Board were Hawes' best friends. If Hon. Mr. Coaker could devise some scheme to enforce outright sales he would do all he could to assist, but he would not devise any plan for them. After a few more remarks pertinent to the Bill, Sir John concluded his speech.

The Minister of Marine and Fisheries said that Sir John would propose resolutions re the introduction of outright sales he would support them. Sir John Crosbie—"That's the usual story. Give me the brains and I'll work it out." He refused to accede to Mr. Coaker's request. He then spoke of the infamous Hawes agreement and told how he had refused to sign it. Hawes, he said, was contriving to get control of all our markets and he was a menace to the country's fish trade.

Mr. MacDonnell spoke briefly on the Bill. He was glad the Amendment to the Address in Reply had not passed as this discussion had been a most enlightening one. He complimented Mr. Coaker on withdrawing the Regulations. If, however, he were a member of the Government, and, believed, like the Premier, that the policy was right, he would not vote against the Regulations. It had been stated that the regulations were artificial props. If this were so why was it intended to put others into force. Business men objected to Government interference.

The Minister of Marine and Fisheries explained the matter of outright sales. Mr. MacDonnell thanked him for his information and passed a few more remarks on the matter, concluding by saying that he expected to see the same energy used in putting Hawes out as there was in putting him in.

Capt. Lewis said that Hawes controlled the cold storage plants in all our markets and advised that care be taken not to antagonize him.

Hon. Mr. Coaker again gave a short explanation of the circumstances. The Debate was then adjourned until the following day.

On the motion to adjourn the House, Sir Michael Cashin made reference to the amount of $150,000 still owed the Government by the Anglo-American Telegraph Co. Sir Michael spoke at length on the matter and severely castigated the Minister of Posts and the Government as a whole for their failure to collect this amount. The Minister of Posts attempted to put up some excuse but Sir Michael soon tore it to shreds and told the Government they were all irresponsible.
