Salvage Notes.

The Xmas season has been so full of festivities, and the holidays are such a joyous break, that even our occasional notes disappeared to the background of memory. But here we are back to work again, and so begging the pardon of our readers for our lapse we again pass on to our Salvage people abroad the doings in the old home vicinity.

The local branch of the L.O.A. holding its annual parade on St. Stephen's Day, proved the first of the parades in our neighbourhood. The brethren held a most successful time. On Tuesday, St. Stephen's Day, the S.I.P. branch at Salvage Bay held their annual turnout. Your correspondent although present at both repeats, took a deeper interest in the latter, being a Brother of the Order.

On Wednesday, Holy Innocents Day, the Loyal Orangemen at Salvage Bay and Happy Adventure paraded. At each of these parades the brethren attended service in the Church of England and listened to splendid sermons delivered by the Rector of the parish, Rev. E. H. Humphries.

On Thursday night, Dec. 28th, the C.E.W.A. held their annual sale of work at Squid Tickle, a concert by several of the adults of both sexes being appended. The affair was very successful and a large sum was realized to go towards a new church which the enterprising people of this locality intend starting work on the coming spring. We wish them all success in their glorious work.

On Monday, Jan. 2nd, the Loyal Orangemen of Squid Tickle paraded and the Rector was again the preacher.

The old-time role of mummering seems to have received a new impetus this year, many of the residents remarking that they have seen more this season than any season for the past twenty years. There is nothing so jolifying as some of the old-time customs, and for fun and a real good time surely everyone of experience must admit that "Jannying" stands on a pedestal of its own. Then here's to the merry mummers, and woe betide our race when we become too serious or too much centred on rank materialism to loosen up in the good old style at Xmas tide.

Messrs. Stanley Burden, Fred Decker and Stewart Oldford, of Squid Tickle, spent a couple of days last week visiting friends and relatives at Salvage.

We hear that Mr. Jas. Moss of Round Head, was to go to the General Hospital for a facial operation. We feel sorry for Mr. Moss, but trust that he will have a speedy recovery.—COR.

An Expression of Gratitude.

To the People of Caplin Cove: The people of Greenspond, and especially the families of those who lost relatives and friends in the unfortunate schooner Passport, wish to express their sincerest thanks for the kind and sympathetic manner, the untiring efforts you put forth in recovering the bodies, and the reverential care you took in preparing the bodies for burial.

While the dreadful tragedy will never be forgotten, your kind and affectionate care of the dead has had the effect of soothing in some degree this awful visitation of Providence. We also wish to thank Magistrate Vatcher for his kindness in supplying everything necessary for a decent burial of the dead. We also tender our thanks to the Government for arranging for the bodies to be sent home, so that they may be laid to rest among relatives and friends.

The Greenspond members of the crew of the "Passport" were: Skipper Lewis Bragg, who leaves a wife and two children; William Peckford, who leaves a wife and one child; Pierce Burry, who leaves a wife and one child, and Joseph Stratton, single.

The unfortunate accident has cast such a deep gloom over this community that it will take years to remove.—Com.

He expects the cable to be finished in two years. The Italian government will allow a subvention of $3,000,000 annually. The cable will touch Spain, Brazil, Uruguay, Argentina and the Canary and Cape Verde Islands. The Italian government's control over it is limited to the extent of preventing its falling at any time into foreign hands.

WINTER NIGHT.

When winds are shrieking and clouds are leaking a cheap-john brand of snow, and things are freezing, it's doubly pleasing a cheery home to know. The storm grows louder, and like white powder the snow sifts through the cracks; the drifts are piling, but I am smiling, and life is slick as wax. Here in my shanty, with wife and auntie, and grandsons nine or eight. I read my paper while storm-bells caper and howl their hymn of hate. For I kept busy till I was dizzy before the cold blasts came; with vim and ardor I stocked the larder and spoiled Old Winter's game. The round plunks earning, no fair job spinning, I banked some iron men; now I should worry when wild winds scurry outside my comfy den. A squash named Hubbard is in the cupboard, I've loaves of kickless bread; up in the garret there is a carrot, and cordwood in the shed. And all is paid for; the goal I played for my aunts' dearest. I've won, and winter's squealings don't hurt my feelings, since I have saved my mon. Let winter thunder! I got from under before the tempest came, alert and heedful I saved the needful, and hope you did the same.

Cinematograph Fire Causes Panic.

A terrible disaster occurred at the Opera House Bovertown, Pennsylvania, on Jan. 13, 1908 during a cinematograph display. The performance had been arranged as a New Year party of the St. John's Lutheran Sunday school, and the hall was crowded with members of the church and their friends from round the countryside. All went well till the cinematograph display and then suddenly the gas used to operate the machine by which the pictures were moved, exploded with a loud noise. Immediately the children became panic-stricken and their terror was increased by the shrieks of some hysterical women, who rose as though mad, and raced for the narrow exits. A lamp got knocked over on the stage and the oil running along, ignited the scenery; this turned the confusion into pandemonium. It started everyone in a frenzy of fear, fighting for life; and in a moment the heap of victims was as high as the doors--men beating down women and children in their efforts to escape. Terrible scenes ensued while the flames gained on the miserable victims, and the whole building was burnt out. At least 167 bodies were recovered from the ruins.

Cool Check.

Hearing a suspicious noise in the middle of the night, Mr. Bumble stole downstairs and found a burglar busily collecting spoons and things in the dining-room.

"Look here!" he roared, "darely! What are you doing in my house?"

"Your house?" retorted the midnight visitor, coolly. "Is it your house? I thought you only rented it."

"So I do!" exclaimed the other, taken by surprise. "But--"

"Well, don't be so high and mighty talking about your house," snapped the burglar, as he opened the front door and stepped out into the darkness. "Good-night!"

Lights Out!

"You'll get run in," said the pedestrian to the cyclist, "if you ride without a light."

"You'll get run into," responded the rider as he knocked the other down.

"You'll get run in, too!" said the policeman, as he stepped forward and seized the cyclist.

Just then another cyclist came along without a light, so the policeman was run into, too, and had to run in two.

Misruled Country.

Haul in the log and look at mileage and you will be amazed to find that this country is a misruled one. How? What? Five thousand dollars salaries coming out of the sweat and blood of men, women, children, and taxation of percentages on the dollar on imports. Yes, and then the men in the Government don't know what's ailing this country.

Member Samson, who was a fighter for the District, is quietly cuddled away in a sweet slumber. Perhaps that is what the honorable Sir was pulling the strings for and yet giving out his valuations as an honest seeker for the people's rights and could not be had. Have they stopped the mouth of gold? Are the sweets from the house too strong with fame to stem against? Therefore it seems to have to get the crumbs from the man's table and cuddle out the truth with our wings and say, "Thy will be done, not ours."—Twilligate Star.

Something New in Church Social.

Between three and four hundred persons gathered in the basement of George St. Church on Wednesday evening in response to a curious stirring invitation for a New Church Social. There were many surprises from those entering the room. Messrs. J. P. Peary and W. J. with other willing helpers, had reformed the place with a novel and attractive scheme which called forth commendation. It was realized that a few items, intended to assist in liberating the spirit by a general mix-up, were to be scrapped from the programme, as the room was filled with the carefully planned free space. Although it was not possible for everybody to shake hands with everybody else, the next thing was done, and everybody's hands with all persons within reach.

Much of the success of the evening was due to the policy of making audience entertain itself. A sheet of well-known choruses, old and new, some new and old, was handed to each person. Beginning with the "Ode to Newfoundland," and working through "Auld Lang Syne," and then singing some of the favorites, the gathering sang itself into complete happiness.

By way of educational interest Mr. R. F. Horwood gave a blackboard demonstration of church finances, later Mr. Horwood, with Messrs. Wyatt and W. Thompson, rendered highly amusing and also enlightening impromptu dialogue representing some of the average man's reactions to the church.

Mr. C. C. Pratt, Superintendent of the Sunday School, in the course of a brief and bright statement of work of his department, got in a successful recruiting work for staff.

A recitation by Mr. Pleman was heartily enjoyed.

The Ladies' Guild was in charge of the refreshments, and all that was said on this point is that it nobly maintained George St. Church high reputation in this respect.

What was pronounced a very pleasant function was fittingly closed by family prayer conducted by Rev. Fenwick and the Minister of George St. Church, Rev. R. F. Fairbairn.

Unemployed Committee Submit Plans.

The committee on unemployment met last night in the Board of Trade rooms when the matter of finding relief for the present conditions in the city was discussed. Mr. H. E. Coe presided and there was a full attendance of members. Various plans for relief were submitted but no decision on them was arrived at. It is understood that the committee will view both the City Council and the Government on the plans of employment outlined at the meeting.

TO-DAY'S MESSAGES. Struggle for Life in Germany.

LIQUOR SCHOONER RELEASED.
NEW YORK, Jan. 13.—The British schooner J. B. Young, seized by customs officials on November 2, when she put into the port under distress signals, after her skipper had abandoned her, taking part of her liquor cargo with him has been ordered released by Secretary of the Treasury Mellon. She will sail to-day for Nassau with a new skipper. Investigation, it was stated, disclosed that the firm of Folquet Bros., of St. Pierre and Miquelon, to which the vessel was chartered, had knowledge of their skipper's plans to smuggle part of the cargo into United States.

PROTEST FROM COMMONWEALTHS
WASHINGTON, Jan. 13.—In connection with the Pacific fortifications problem, which is delaying completion of the draft of the five-power naval treaty by the Armament Conference, there is reason to believe that Australia and New Zealand are protesting against arrangements, which would prevent them fortifying their coasts against possible attacks in future from Japan.

VICTORY FOR GRIFFITH.
DUBLIN, Jan. 12.—The election of a standing committee of the Sinn Fein organization resulted in a victory for Arthur Griffith, and of a party of fifteen members elected, only three are opposed to the Treaty. Mr. Griffith has made additional cabinet appointments. Earnest Blythe is Minister of Trade and Commerce, Joseph McGrath supplants Countess Markiewicz as Minister of Labor, and Michael Hayes is the new Minister of Education.

MARKET BOARD ASKED FOR.
WINNIPEG, MAN., Jan. 12.—A convention of the United Farmers of Manitoba, to-day, declared unanimously for the re-establishment of the old wheat board under its former management, and with powers over the marketing of wheat and other grains.

WINNIPEG, MAN., Jan. 12.—A convention of the United Farmers of Manitoba, to-day, declared unanimously for the re-establishment of the old wheat board under its former management, and with powers over the marketing of wheat and other grains.

BRAND'S RESIGNATION.
PARIS, Jan. 12.—Aristide Briand to-day resigned the Premiership of France, and Raymond Poincare, former President, will probably succeed him. Briand's resignation came with dramatic suddenness in the Chamber of Deputies, for Premier, returning this morning from Cannes, had brought opposing members of the Cabinet into accord with his policies, and by a powerful speech in the Chamber had apparently won over a majority of Deputies to his side. His blunt eloquence evoked a tremendous ovation, and when he abruptly declared his intention of withdrawal from the Government, members of the Chamber seemed overwhelmed. Although his retirement was unexpected it was apparent from the beginning that Briand felt keen resentment against the many obstacles placed in his way in the important negotiations, in which he was engaged. He had the appearance of a man aged and physically fatigued, throughout his speech. Notwithstanding he rose to high flights of eloquence to-day, and it was with well suppressed emotion he declared, "a statesman has no right to go to his post of battle if he has not the certainty that he shall not receive bullets from his own side. He can face the bullets of the enemy, but he must not receive any from his own country." In an interview to-night Briand expressed regret that parliament and country had not appreciated the value of the achievements at Cannes. Under present conditions he declared, "I row in the Republic's galley, one can govern only with a solid majority. It is not enough to have ones speeches applauded."

CAUSED GREAT SURPRISE.
LONDON, Jan. 13.—Premier Briand's unexpected resignation, without waiting for a vote in the Chamber of Deputies, has occasioned great surprise in London, and the indefinite adjournment of the Supreme Council, it is feared, means a break up of the Cannes meeting.

PRISONERS RELEASED.
LONDON, Jan. 13.—Irish political prisoners in London jails, Brighton, Postonville and Wormwood Scrubs were released this morning, under amnesty proclamation.

The visitor to Germany who will avoid the ease and comfort of hotels and stay as a guest in a German home is the only person who can pierce to the real struggle of life in Germany to-day, writes Gladys Harrison, B.A., in a London paper.

A party of English men and women recently accepted an invitation to visit Germany and to see the efforts of German working men to educate themselves afresh. In the streets we say shops well stocked with luxuries not unlike our own in London. The people looked neither depressed nor half-starved, yet occasionally we came on sights which revealed in a flash how this was the veneer of respectability.

Two men walking unnoticed through a main street of a large city were dressed in clothes that once had been smart, but were now patched all over with pieces from brightly-colored table-cloths and bed-quilts. It looked like a joke until we realized that it was a tragedy.

In the homes of the German working men who entertained us we got more light on the struggle behind the patchwork suits. I myself lived in the house of a working electrician. His wife and he entertained me royally, for them. Coffee substitute without milk and brown bread with butter substitute formed their regular breakfast. I was favored, for most of my friends stayed in homes where butter substitute was unknown, and a brew of coffee substitute without milk or sugar and dry brown bread formed the meal of decent working class families. Dinner, they told me, was usually the same, though most of them were treated to meat once or twice a week.

Education of the Workers.
With such evidences of the economic situation before us we spent a great deal of time discussing German prices and German wages, but these were not the main topics of conversation, which often lasted until the small hours of the morning. The German people are finding it exceedingly difficult to feed their stomachs, but they are trying hard to fill their minds. The working men and woman with whom we stayed were eager to discuss everything we could tell them of the education of the workers in England. They told us how men and women are flocking to the voluntary educational centres which have sprung up since the war. The subjects they choose suggest that they are only too anxious to forget the horrors of the past and of the present.

Drama and choral singing and folk dancing was amongst the favorite subjects, and they are enthusiastic about literature. Several of the working men and the teachers whom I met had a disconcerting knowledge of writers like Thomas Hardy and Bernard Shaw. The head of one of these Volkshochschulen, as they are called, told me that on the whole, philosophy and social science were the most popular subjects. The German people are anxious to understand what has happened to them and what is going to happen to them. They are so keen upon education in its broadest sense that many of the men and women who are paying the fees for such subjects as the above come from homes where their breakfast is of dry bread, and their household furniture made of orange boxes.

Public Baths of 100 A.D.

An important archaeological discovery has been made in Rome, according to a correspondent. In the course of building operations on the slope of the Quirinal, between the Via Rasella and Quattro Fontane and the Piazza Barberini, there have been discovered the remains of public baths, dating from the Second Century. These baths are those represented in a Fifteenth Century plan in the library at Chatsworth, where it was consulted by Senator Lanciani, the eminent Roman topographer. About one-half of the buildings shown in this plan have been excavated, and it is hoped that two large halls will soon be brought to light. A note on the plan gives us the late history of this ancient building: "These baths," it says, "are in the vineyard of Cardinal Grimani, on Monte Cavallo" (the mediaeval name of the Quirinal). Cardinal Grimani, a member of the well known Venetian family, was a noted collector of books and statuary in the time of Alexander VI., the terrible "orgia" Pope. His "vineyard" was not far from his palace in the Via Rasella. On the site of the palace now stands the house of Senator Tittoni, the President of the Senate. Indeed, Piazza Barberini was previously called Piazza Grimani. The Cardinal's library of 8,000 volumes, which he bequeathed to the Convent of St. Antonio di Castello at Venice, was burned; his collection of marble statues, which he "found in the vineyard," and "which, in 1505, he showed to the Venetian Ambassadors in Rome," is now in the Marciana in his native city, after having adorned the Palazzo di Venezia here.

King Peter of Serbia.

THE GRAND OLD MAN OF EUROPE.

BELGRADE (Associated Press)—Interesting details have come to light respecting the late King Peter, Serbia's venerable ruler and the "grand old man" of Europe, who passed away in this city a short time ago. During his last illness the King asked frequently for his son Alexander, who found it impossible to be with him because of his own serious illness in Paris. He was much attached to the Prince Regent and referred to him as "my little Aleck." He had the fullest confidence in him and during the last years of his life left the affairs of state entirely in his hands. He had been especially anxious that his son

The Daughter of the King

Six children have been born to King George and Queen Mary, five of whom are living. The sixth child, Prince John, died on January 18, 1919, at the age of 11 years.
Of the five living children, four are boys—rather young men now, for time flies and the youngest, Prince George, is a naval cadet, who on the 20th of this month was 19 years of age. The four brothers have one sister, Princess Mary or to use all her name, Victoria Alexandra Alice Mary. Every name suggests an ancestor. Queen Victoria was the Princess' great-grandmother; the Queen Mother, Alexandra, widow of King Edward, is her grandmother; the late Princess Alice, daughter of Queen Victoria, was her great aunt; and Queen Mary is Princess Mary's mother, the consort of King George.
Princess Mary was born on April 5, 1897; she is, therefore, in her twentieth year. All the King's children are popular in Great Britain. They are not only respected because of their position, but they are beloved by the people with whom they almost daily come into contact. Of course, the Prince of Wales occupies the most prominent place in the public eye, but his sister, Princess Mary, is a close second. It is not too much to say that she is beloved by every class of the population. She is a charming young woman, possessing a high sense of the duties that attach to the station into which she was placed by birth. She is not only known as a bright young Princess, but as a young woman who did her "bit" for her country through the trying and critical years of the Great War, when she shared in the labors of the great army of British nurses in caring for sick and wounded British soldiers and sailors. Since the return of peace she has been fulfilling many public engagements, particularly in connection with the social welfare of her sex and of children. Wherever she goes she endears herself to all, and enhances her popularity.

A Land of Contrasts.

To some travellers Arabia seems a tapestry land of curious contrasts. The average Arab nearly always does the opposite of what the average man of this land does.
For instance, our men take their hats off when they enter a house. The Arab takes off his shoes and leaves his head covered.
The Arab mounts his horse from the right side. We mount our horses from the left.
We milk our cows on the right side. The Arab woman milks her cows on the left.
The Arab keeps his head well covered even in summer, while his feet are naked even in winter.
We measure most of our liquids and weigh most of our solids. The Arabs weigh their liquids and measure their solids.
We read and write from left to right. The Arabs write and read from right to left.
The Arab rarely if ever uses a household utensil made of metal. If he uses a knife, fork or spoon, the Arab makes sure it is wood.
While we have tables and chairs and couches to lift us from the floor, the Arab squats upon the floor, sleeps on the floor, and even in the streets crouches on his heels in the dust.
While we train our boys to rise when a woman enters a room, and still have hopes that our men will rise to give women seats in our cars, the Arab's way is far different. He never thinks of rising when a woman enters. He will not even eat with a woman. His wife must serve him first and wait until he has had all he wishes before she may eat what she has cooked.
And when an Arab goes on a journey he rides on a donkey, while his wife—veiled and heavily clad even on the hottest day—walks. She must not even walk beside him. She must plod along behind her lord and master.

Corrected the Curate.

The new curate in a harbour district was predicting better times.
"And tell your husband," he was saying to one voluble woman, "that he must be thankful he has been able to keep head above water so long."
"That's just where you're wrong, sir," was the reply; "my good man has had his head above water too long already, worse luck."
The curate looked surprised until the woman explained: "You see, sir, he's a diver in the dockyard."

The French Bluebeard

THEY HAVE BEEN MASTER SPY. PARIS, Associated Press.—The idea of Henri D. Landru, may have been a spy, who employed as his assistants the 10 women he is convicted of murdering, has been advanced by a Javal, a member of the Paris Tribunal. This suggestion is advanced in an effort to account for the fact that these "murders" were committed in the same way, and that Landru's trial, because of this evidence has caused a feeling of uncertainty by most men in regard to this mysterious case. Numerous attempts have been made to solve the mystery on some basis than murder. Developing theory, Madame Javal says: "Ten persons, 10 fiancées and the one of them, have disappeared. No one knows what has become of them, and he says nothing. By his side he puts his head at stake. This only mean that the truth, were it to be, would be as fatal for him. But the affair takes on another complexion if we imagine, for the sake of argument, that his victims were his employees in crime, and that crime was the murder of a German spy?"

Tea Drinking.

Some wag has facetiously remarked that if one should cut an Englishman's arm it would bleed tea. This may be a far-fetched statement but it is none the less true that in England, Ireland and Scotland tea drinking is universal, and has become a sort of national institution. To the average Britisher, the belief of tea drinking ever deteriorating, so that it should become a beverage for ladies only, is unthinkable. It is not surprising that a Briton who drinks nearly seven pounds of tea per annum knows the value of good, bad and indifferent tea upon the system. The same is true of the Australian, for the sturdy Anzac consumes eight pounds of tea a year, and of the Canadian who drinks five pounds a year. The American drinks but one pound per capita.

Dr. William Brady, writing to the Brooklyn, N.Y., Daily Eagle, says: "It is taken as a beverage, with or without sugar and milk, it will practically never do any harm person any harm. As a beverage with meals or before or after the food, tea will aid digestion and is a beneficial habit."

As noted an authority as Dr. M.

Allen Starr of Columbia University, in the May issue of the Tea and Coffee Trade Journal, has given a very illuminating testimonial to tea, endorsing Hoch and Kraepelin's statement that tea increases the muscular and mental power and endurance and that the effects is not merely temporary but last for several hours. Moreover he says that "American aviators in France during the World War took to tea before making hard fights, therein following the example of British aviators."

Donald B. McMillan, the noted Arctic explorer, who with Peary, made that famous dash to the North Pole and who is now making a trip to Baffin land, where he will try to gain passage through the Furry and Hecla Straights, a route which has not been open for 100 years, said before his departure:—

"Our very best work in the Northern regions is done with plenty of good, hot tea and not with cocoa, coffee or any other drink. It has been the same from the early days of Arctic history, as shown by numerous references all through my library. For cold work and hard work and physical endurance with the dog team, there is no drink so valuable as tea, and the men demand it and must have it. It somehow has the faculty of getting under the skin and driving out that chill, death-like, lethargic frozen feeling that is indescribable."

Dyed Her Skirt to Make Child a Dress

Each package of "Diamond Dyes" contains directions so simple any woman can dye or tint her old, worn, faded things new. Even if she has never dyed before, she can put a new, rich color into shabby skirts, dresses, waists, coats, stockings, sweaters, coverings, draperies, hangings, everything. Buy Diamond Dyes—no other kind—then perfect home dyeing is guaranteed. Just tell your druggist whether the material you wish to dye is wool or silk, or whether it is linen, cotton, or mixed goods. Diamond Dyes never streak, spot, fade, or run.

Tales Told by a Dean.

(Pearson's Weekly.) Canon Wilberforce once gave a most stirring address at Leamington, setting forth the evils of strong drink. The Vicar of Leamington at that time was so moved by it that he rose and said: "I will sign the pledge, and twenty-five others will do the same." At once about fifty rose up to follow his example, included amongst them being the lady patroness of the living.

She marched up on the platform, signed the total abstinence form, and went back to her seat looking quite proud of what she had done; but it no doubt came as a surprise to her to hear an old woman out of the slums exclaim aloud to her neighbour: "Well, I didn't know before as 'ow she drank!"

The One Thing He Wasn't!
The above is one of many good stories told by Dr. Leigh—late Dean of Hereford, and the vicar referred to above—in his newly-published book "Other Days."

Another concerns James Weston, the famous American walker, who was also an enthusiastic temperance advocate.

Weston was a typical Yankee, with a keen sense of humor. At one temperance meeting that he was holding a man came up to him.

"How are you, Mr. Weston?" he asked.

"Quite well, thank you, sir," Weston replied.

"Do you know who I am?" said the man. "I am a converted wife-beater, a converted drunkard, a converted dog stealer, and a converted pugilist. What do you think of that?"

"Well," answered Weston, "I guess there is one thing you're not, and that is a converted liar."

On the occasion when Dr. Leigh travelled to Savannah, U.S.A., in order to perform the marriage ceremony of his nephew, Rowland Leigh, to Miss Mabel Gordon of that city, he overheard shortly after his arrival an amusing conversation between two negro servants of the Gordons.

Said one: "Miss Mabel g'wine for to marry an English nobelman."

"No, she ain't replied the old cook. "She's g'wine to marry a Chinese washman. His name is Ah Li (R. Leigh)."

The Lady and the Acrobat.
On a voyage back to England, Dr. Leigh made the acquaintance of a certain prominent Roman Catholic divine, who related to him the following true story:

A maid was making his confession, and when he had concluded the priest asked him what was his profession.

He said he was an acrobat.

He was asked what that was, and he proceeded to give a demonstration outside.

A stout old woman was waiting to make her confession, and when she had finished she said: "I do hope your reverence will not impose the same penance on me as you have on that poor man!"

Mark Twain as Business Man.

$16,900 Royalties Last Year.

The Collier Company of New York have just purchased the famous business of Harper and Brothers, who were the publishers of Mark Twain's works. They have sold six million volumes of the famous humorist's writings.

This move brings together under the Collier name the subscription book business of these two pioneer companies, which, starting from nothing many years ago, to-day represent the investment of millions of dollars, the making annually of millions of good books, and the employment of thousands of men and women throughout the country.

In his lifetime Mark Twain was accounted a poor business man. This charge is not borne out by the business arrangement made before his death, under which his works are published for the benefit of his estate. Last year there was paid by the Harpers to the Twain estate in royalties a sum which is equal to the interest at 6 per cent. on one million four hundred thousand dollars—$16,900 at the normal rate of exchange.

"I'll Underwrite."
It is said that the famous humorist, admitting his own shortcomings as a business man, was still shrewd enough to take advantage of the offer of his friend, the late H. H. Rogers, then Vice-President of the Standard Oil Company, who said to him, on learning that his financial affairs were pretty badly tangled:—

"Mark, you write and I'll underwrite."

This they did, and the combination was very successful, as the royalties to the Twain estate show.

An Emigrant Boy.
The House of Collier was founded in 1875. The late Peter Fenelon Collier, who created the business, was a poor emigrant boy from Carlow, Ireland. He made the purpose of bringing classic literature into the average home his life-work, building an organization which now maintains seventy-five branches and sub-branches in all parts of the United States.

In addition to the 12,000,000 volumes which have been printed, the Collier plant has issued 10,000,000 volumes of Dickens and Dumas, and 40,000,000 volumes of standard history.

In all, the House of Collier has manufactured 106,000,000 volumes—enough to supply every man, woman, and child in the continental United States with a book.

Waterless Tea.

An old lady was sitting in a railway coach in England reading her newspaper.

Suddenly she put the paper down, took her spectacles from her nose, and looked around.

"Drought, drought, drought!" she cried, speaking to the young girl traveling with her. "There's nothing in the paper except the drought!"

"But, mother," answered her young companion, "we have had an abnormally dry period."

"Yes; but why worry about it?" replied the old lady. "As long as I could get a cup of tea I should never worry if we never got any water at all."—Pittsburg Chronicle Telegraph.
