It would appear, then, that the company proposes to apply to parliament next session for power to increase its capital stock. Of course, if the bargain is re-opened at one point, it is re-opened for discussion altogether. The fact that the stock list was so small, and would be controlled by Canadians, was put forward as one of the reasons why the bargain should be accepted by parliament. If the amount of capital is to be quadrupled, and if, as would necessarily follow, the control of the road and its land grants should go into European hands the condition of affairs would be changed altogether. And the country will be entitled to compensation for the great increase in the amount of capital upon which ten per cent. Will have to be earned before the government can reduce freight rates.

The above is from the Globe of yesterday and throws further light on the announcement in The World.

We may take it for granted that this decision to increase the capital was only reached after consultation with the government. And we may further expect the government to do their best to secure the government of the fully considered. alued at Two Millions-The Wonders Accomplished Within Fifteen Months— Bow River vs. Montana—Cattle to Be Shipped from the Rockies to Winnipeg Within Four Davs. From the Winnipeg Sun, Nov. 25.

Mr. J. E. Chipman of the Halifax cattle ranching company, is in the city. In conversation with a Sun reporter, he said: When the suitability of the Bow river listrict for cattle ranching was established, few of us in Halifax concluded that it would never doeto let the Ontario and you Northwest people have everything your wn way, so we determined to take a hand in and share in the benefits. We organized a company, and I started out to see the country and select a stock range. I was THE FAMOUS COCHRANE PARTY.

THE FAMOUS COCHRANE PARTY.

You know all about that. Well, we got out on the Bow River early in July, 1881, and stayed there six or seven weeks. I selected 100,000 acres on the Kootanie river, near Fort McLeod. It is just at the foot of the mountains. The Kootanie valley is famous as one of the richest stockgrazing districts yet found north of the Union Pacific. I got back to Halifax, and afterwards completed arrangements with the Government for the lease of the land. We were one of the eight companies, you will remember, who got in under the first reguations. After completing all the preliminary arrangements I again left last April to purchase a supply of stock and take them through to the range. I visited

THE GRAZING CENTRES OF NEBRASKA, Wyoming, Utah, Idaho and Montana. I purchased a herd of 1,100 headsof cattle and 120 horses in Idaho and drove them through myself to the Bow liver, a distance of 500 miles, reaching the range on the 8th of September, and making the journey in exactly two months. The herd went through in splendid condition."

"The large majority were graded shorthorns, and let me tell you that they were

"The large majority were graded shorthorns, and let me tell you that they were much finer cattle than could be obtained in the east. We bought native horses to be crossed by Norman Percheron stallions purcrossed by Norman Percheron stallions purchased in Chicago. These produce the best class of horses known for general all work. When four years old they are worth from two hundred to three hundred dollars cash, and the demand is unlimited. The cost of raising these animals ranges from $5 to $10 per head per annum according to the number raised on a range. The larger the number raised the smaller the cost."

rane, a man of unsurpassed experience in Canadian stock raising, thinks that the Herefords and Polled Angus will be equal, if not superior, to the shorthorns. The largest proportion of his imported bulls is of these breeds. He also has a number of shorthorns. I have alse some Hereford bulls, as an experiment, and shall be well pleased if they equal or excel the shorthorns. The great aim is the production of beef, and griss fed cattle of the famous Cornwallis re-elected for another term. grissied cattle of the lamous Cornwallis valley, or of any that I ever saw in any part of Ontario, and were superior to many stall-fed Christmas cattle I have seen from those places. The ages of a herd of cattle range from one to three years. The increase in the production of cattle in the states I have named has been enormous during the past few years. They may almost be said to supply the continent. But in Montana, at any rate, ranching appears to have reached its climax, as far as the raising of reactive its concerned. But it has a great future as a sheep raising state. All the ranchers down there are well-to-do, most of them are wealthy and many are 'cattle of raising cattle down there is $4 a head per annum. They sell at an average of $25. I know of one rancher who paid $25 a head for 4000. There is a strong upward tendency. The ranchers say that the price will be $30 next season. The price has doubled within the last three years."

"There are various reasons. One is that the demand has increased wonderfully. The demand from the English market drains demand from the English market drains the maritime provinces, Ontario, Quebec and the eastern states. Those markets again have to be supplied from the west. The population is increasing rapidly, and people are eating more beef. And notwith-standing the enormous production, the general demand is far greater than the supply."

"I wanted to purchase a superior herd, and therefore went to the best stock raising states in the union. I met several Canadia ranchers there, among them, Stimpson, managing director of Sir Hugh Allan's company, Captain Stewart of the Stewart ranche company, Ottawa and young Jones, son of D. F. But when we again returned to our own ranches, with the grass in many places up to the horses' girths, and nowhere below their knees, we were convinced that one of our acres was fully equal to ten of theirs. And any disinterested Americans, after seeing the both countries, would frankly admit that."

"If you have accomplished this within fifteen months, what will the next three years show?"
"Nobody can even gness. Look at the progress of Winnipeg within the last three years. Just think what the last infleen months has accomplished in cattle-ranching. There is not one-twentieth of the ranches yet stocked. Ten thousand head will be raised this year from the cattle now there. The men who brought in 40,000 head this year will bring in at least 30,000 head next year. Then the new ranches have to be stocked with imported cattle. I think I am under the mark when I say that there will be 100,000 head there next year. That means at least 250,000 head at the end of three years."

three years."

THE DEMAND UNLIMITED.

"Won't the thing be overdone?"

"As far as I can see the demand is and will continue to be unlimited. There are now ten buyers to one seller. Thirty thousand Indians have to be fed, and in future they will be supplied with beef of our own raising. There is as unprecedented immigration, and every immigrant is a purchaser of both cattle and horses. Then we have the whole Northwest to supply." west to supply."

FRIDAY MORNING, DECEMBER 1. 1882.

In the United States the courts have of late been frequently called upon to decide cases involving the rights of railway companies and of the general public respective ly; and the decisions given have been gen erally in favor of the public and against the railways. What the railway companies have done in almost every case is to take a stand upon the letter of the charter, and to claim every pound of flesh nominated in the bond. On the side of the public, however, the contention has been advanced that the bond itself is null and void, and not worth the paper it is written upon, so far as it pretends to do away with certain ancient, indefensible and perpetual rights of the people at common law. A case that supreme court of the United States, and the Chicago Tribune says that it is the case on which by general consent it is understood the railroads rest their last hope for a judicial reversal of the doctrine that state legislatures may fix maximum rates for the transportation of freight and passengers.

The facts are few and brief: A man named Lewis took a seat in the cars on the Chicago, Burlington and Quincy Road, and tendered the conductor 18 cents, that being Very lately large sums of money have the fare established by the law of Illinois been sent out of the country for the purfor the distance traveled. To save money for old age or for our families in case of death, is what all strive for, but outside of Endocoment Insurance: there is no certainty. Debts, endorsements, bad partmerships or failures, our misfortunes or follies, all are so many traps lying in our way through life. Happy the inan that can not be well to make one small one that may prove the BEST you ever made, and the one that shall as any time guarantee your family a support, or provide for your own old age. The thought that mistortune hay come upon us, fand who is safe, positively safe, reducing wife and children to want, is to painful. But add old age to this and it is unbearable. The wise man provides in time. You may say, you have a Farm; is it certain you will always have one? You are a Merchant: is it certain you will never fail? You are a Mechanic: is it certain that the cunning of your inands will always provide for you? You are a professional man: is it certain that you are above misfortunes? Do you know your brain will never soften? Does not the old man commit financial follies that as middle age he would have deemed impossible? Now, grant that at 60 or 0 years of age, you will surely have a competence; that in a wonderful manner you will have secaped the thousand and one misfortunes in your way. If you had insured, it would have but added to your wealth; if financially uniortunes, in your way. If you had insured, it would have but added to your wealth; if financially uniortunes, in your way. How a smart Georgian made $3000 out of $2 is told by the Conyers Weekly:

"There lives a man in this town who claims to be the boss swapper. Ten years ago he bought a pocket-knife for which he paid $2. He swapped this for a pistol; he swapped the pistol for a pistol; he swapped the pistol for a shotgun, the gun for a cow, the cow for a horse, and sold the horse for $500. He invested the $500 for the first fiveyears and drew out $2000. He has had the $2000 out at interest for five years at ten per cent, and he now has the result of his knife trade—$3000."

William F. Cody, better known as "Buffalo Bill," believes that General Custer killed himself when he saw that death was inevitable, in preference to being killed by inevitable, in preference to being killed by the Indians. He gives the fellowing reason for this belief: "The Indians will not mutilate a body which they find dead, and General Custer's was the only one that was not scalped and otherwise cut to pieces or burned. My impression is that he, after seeing all his comrades shot down and that he himself must also go, turned and took his own life rather than be killed by the savages. I was in General Crook's command that soon after arrived upon the scene, and although Custer went into the fight with seven companies and had 300 men killed I am satisfied he never would have given the Indians battle had he not thought reinforcements were near at hand Some time after the engagement an Indian warrior told me that Custer was an I.dian warrior told me that Custer was the las man to fall, and killed himself. Had Custer been given entire command of the troops be would have whipped the Indians instead of being crushed by them They did not recognize Custer after he was shot as he had a few moments previous out off his long air."

liam Morgan of Rochester, which led to the anti-masonic political agitation more than fifty years ago, has attracted renewed at tention Nothing new is supplied by this revelation, except Mr. Weed's statement that a man named John Whitney confessed to him that he, in company with "How ard of Buffalo, Chubbuck of Lewiston, and Gaisede of Canada," had taken Morgan out in a boat on the Niagara river, bound him with a rope, to which sinkers were attached and thrown him overboard. This confession, which Mr. Weed says was "confidential," is alleged to have been made in 1831, in the presence of two witnesses. It seems remarkable that, in the midst of the intense animosity and excitement attending the art missonic political crusade, such a stoy should have been kept secret. As all the parties named in connection with it are now dead, there is no means of testing whether it is a hallucination of Mr. Weed's, a hoax practised upon him, or a true story. Grand Opera House

Chas. L. Davis and company were greeted by a fairly large audience at the Grand last night when they began an engagement of three nights in the comedy of Alvin Joslin. The play is one representing the vicissitudes attending the sojourn of an old New England farmer in New York. The character of the play is one very similar to that of Joshua Whitcomb, which has been made so popular among theatre goers by that splendid comedian, Mr. Den. Thomson. In the impersonation of the old yankee farmer, Uncle Alvin Joslin, last night, Mr. Davis had the first merit of a very fine "make up." He possesses physical aptitude for the character which must be real, and succeeded in producing a great deal of meriment among the audience. To say however that he rivals his great forerunner in this impersonation, would be conceding considerably too much practise. But he errs on virtue's side, His effort rather falls short of, than overdoes, the past. And to this must be added a lack of "evenness" in the pourtrayal of the character, or, to express it better, an occasional subversion of the character altogether, in order to provoke the laughter or plaudits of the audience. No conscientious comedian should permit himself to fall into this often too alluring snare. The playwright, no doubt, is often at fault but this should be convent. goers by that splendid comedian, Mr. Den. alluring snare. The playwright, no doubt, is often at fault, but this should be corrected. The support, taken as a whole, was all that was necessary, and the large crowd present last night must have gone away after spending a most enjoyable evening. The same bill will be presented to-night.

The North Wentworth election case was argued yesterday morning before the queen's beach division. Mr. Hodgins, Q C, in sub nitting his case, held that the sovereign power might compel any officer of the crown attached to its judicial department to perform any duties it might impose upon him. In support he cited that in his own case he had been appointed a common law judge and was in the present instance obliged to sit as a chancery judge.
