A Practical Artist.

BY MRS. PAXTON DUARD.

Louise Denio entered the pretty parlor where her mother sat. Her cheeks were rosy its usual brightness. Mrs. Denio's eyes, dwelling fondly on her daughter, could but notice her despondency, and a shadow rested on her own placid face.

"Yes, in a way," replied Louise, slowly removing her wraps. Then, after a pause, "Miss Lewis has the school." to give up my art, but to make it practical "Oh, my poor child!" A moment later the second lady appeared on the same errand. Louise assumed as professional an air as possible and conducted the woman with the bundle into the consulting room. The second woman was very business-like, and left shortly after making an engagement for the next day. When Louise re-entered the back room and

She soon found that most people who had o taste for planning new out of old, also "But that will not earn bread," said Mrs. lacked the patience to do it. And her idea of merely planning garments would not work. "No but it will help me to do so. Never Having started, she could not turn back, and fear, little mother. I feel in my bones that in less than two weeks found herself overwhelmed by old clothes. Something must be done, so she sat down one evening and wrote for her mother to come and take charge of the household affairs. Then another letter was despatched to a Miss Eaton, a woman who had often done plain sewing for them in the old home, asking her to come for a few weeks and sew by the day. Miss Eaton responded in person, and with her swift needle, relieved Louise to a great extent, of that part of the work. For some time our heroine was disappointed; not in financial returns, but in her class of customers-mostly very commonplace people, with very little appreciation of the artistic qualities of her work. But better times came to her. It would be tedious to tell all the details here. These better times did not come without the most earnest effort make the most of every opportunity. With one exception. The forlorn widower with old home, and had money enough to pay her four small children, proposed a partnership, presumably affectionate, but, it is to be sus pected with an eye to the economical value of such a woman in his house. It is needless to say the honor was refused. Louise felt deeply humiliated for a time. She had not realized that she belonged to "that class of people." But her common sense told her that she must expect to pass for what she seemed to be. Her ingenuity in putting ideas into people's heads became a standing joke in the little family. A conversation about her pictures led to her first painting scholar, and the class slowly but surely increased. Through this medium she was able to sell some work. And when her name and work became known somewhat, she had no difficulty in getting orders for holiday gifts, small pictures and china painting. Later, she sent some dainty water-colors to the New York exhibitions; they were hung on the line and one of them sold.

And the "old clothes" business? That too, prospered. After a few months she secured a class of customers who wanted her taste and brains, not her hands. And she frequently furnished designs for a whole wardrobe of new gowns. After her time became taken up with her legitimate art work, the refurbishing of old clothes ceased entirely This happy result came about slowly-lit-ment and infinite painstaking. She never hesitated at a disagreeable piece of work, or refused a chance to get ahead because it was not quite in "her line." In two years she and her mother could laugh at poverty. In five she was no longer Louise Denio, but Louise Morris. But her marriage did not interfere with her work. Her husband was not rich in aught but manliness, tendernes and good looks, and Louise found both plea sure and profit in continuing her work and helping to make a competence for both.

Nor was her social career a failure. Her success as an artist and her own worth led to many congenial and valuable acquain-tances, and when wealth came—to her husJas. J Ritchie, Q.C., BARRISTER.

Who can describe the sufferings of the victim of chronic indigestion?

Words are powerless. One thought fills the mind of the sufferer day and night—How shall I be cured? Unable to sleep, no pleasure in eating, the almost constant torture of pains in the stomach, life a burden.

To such a sufferer Hawker's nerve and stomach tonic comes as a priceless blessing. To such a surferer Hawer's nerve and stomach tonic comes as a priceless blessing. The Crop Outlook.

From advices received from nearly every part of the county we are safe in saying that the hay crop is fully up to the average of previous years, and though there may be a slight shrinkage on old uplands, the deficiency is more than made up by the additional acreage under cultivation and the splendid yield on most of the marshes. The exceptionally fine weather for harvesting the erop has been fully taken advantage of by our farmers, and thus far the entire product has has been fully taken advantage of by our tity of cheese. farmers, and thus far the entire product has been placed in the barns in an excellent conheen placed in the barns in an excellent condition. Many of the marshes are now presenting a busy scene, and should there be no serious break occur in the delightful weather prevailing at present for the next fortnight, the crop will be about all in. We regret to learn that such, however, is not the condition of affairs in the eastern portion of the province, notably in the island of Cape Breton, as we learn that the yield is so small ast give the farmers serious alarm as to the outlook for the coming winter. Fortunately for the province at large there have been large quantities of hay carried over from last season, which will greatly tend to keep the price at the usual figures of from $$ to $10 per ton.

Up to the present time all other crops in the county promise a bountiful harvest. Oats never looked finer, and barley, rye and wheat are more than up to the average; and if there is any falling off in the cereals it will be in corn, which, owing to the dry weather, has been affected to a slight degree.

Root crops of every variety are looking well not to see the serving and the serving an imturnips, peas, beans, etc., promise more than an average yield at the present time. The only drawback to the former crop has been the pestiferous potato-bug, and where there has been any labor performed toward their extermination the ravages have been slight. The all-important crop, and the one upon which our farmers lay entirely too much weight, that of the apple, is at present very promising, and the yield throughout the valley is doubtless an excellent one. Nonpareils are exceptionally fine and abundant, and the other leading varieties, such as Gravensteins, Kings, Golden Russets and Pippins are looking finely and will reach the output of a year ago if they do not exceed it. Pears are also abundant, while plums and other the enterprising company. also abundant, while plums and other small fruits yet ungathered give promise of —Any of our militia officers who are anxious for fame, with the additional inducement of a good fat salary, can get just what they want by applying to the leaders of the Cuban rebellion. For the last half year or so a portion of the people of that island have been engaged in an attempt to throw off the yoke of Spain. These rebels, or whatever they may be called, appear to be deficient in men sufficiently skilled in military matters to serve as officers, so they are now seeking for such in the United States and elsewhere. They offer any one who is fit for a general a salary of $5000 a year, with a prospect of becoming president or something of the kind after the trouble is over. To minor officers they promise proportionately liberal terms, they promise proportionately liberal terms,

There are some few trifling drawbacks connected with the affair which perhaps ought to be mentioned. The yellow fever is prevalent in the disturbed district, and this is quite likely to prove fatal in the case of one going from the north, within a couple of weeks after landing on the island. Even if he escapes the fever he is very apt to be caught by the Spanish troops, and in such an event he would be unceremoniously shot without judge or jury. Spain has 40,000 of the best troops there, commanded by her most famous general: the entire coast is guarded by war ships, and the Spanish government is determined to crush out the

No doubt we have many men among us who are amply qualified to fill those positions, whether military or political, but we would scarcely like to undertake the respon sibility of advising them to attempt the experiment. As for ourselves our ambition does not run in that direction. A five thousand dollar salary, and the honor of being president of the new Cuban republic should it become one, have no attractions for us. We prefer a quiet home life.

-THE suspension of one of the French banks of Montreal last week caused intense excitement in financial circles of the upper provinces. The institution in difficu aque du People, was supposed to be one of the staunchest in the dominion, have ing assets of over nine million dollars. The rouble was caused by excessive loans to one or two manufacturing concerns in which some of the officials of the bank were interested. Rumors concerning the bank's solvency got abroad, which quickly caused a run upon it, and although the other banks of the city promptly came to its assistance with a loan of a million and a quarter of dollars, even this large amount did not prove sufficient to bide it over the panic. A committee is now investigating its condition, and there is every probability that it will resume busi ness in a short time. In any event the holder of any of these bills which may be in circulation need feel no uneasiness, as owing to the government's guarantee the bills are all right, and, if we mistake not, bear interest until redeemed at the bank, the loss, if any, falling upon the stockholders.

-THE question of woman suffrage is being so pushed to the front in the State of New York, and there seems so great a probability that it will soon be submitted to the people of the State as an amendment to the constitution that the newspapers there are calling upon the women who do not wish the ballot to speak out at once, and make their wishes known. They argue that if those who wish the franchise speak, while those who do not keep silent, it is only reasonable to expect that the men will grant it, thinking that a majority of the women are in favor of it.

This is an idea worth considering, and it might be well for those ladies in our midst who are opposed to having this responsibility thrust upon them to make known their wishes. A petition to the legislature, signed by the ladies of this county who are opposed to female suffrage, would doubtless receive a sufficient number of signatures to surprise some of the leaders of the movement in favor of it.

There was quite a large athering at Bear River on Friday last to take part in the observance of the feast of St. Ann. Services were conducted by Rev. Father Walsh in the chapel, and were largely attended by the Micmacs of the Reservation and others who annually assemble at that busy town on the occasion. In the afternoon a canoe race, oreating considerable interest, took place on the river. The day was brought to a close in a quiet and peaceful manner by all repairing to their homes at an early hour.

of Boston have been holding an indignation meeting against the Christian missions of the neighborhood. They protest that their children are rapidly being won to Christianity, and that, while the mission workers have been unable to reach the older people—of this they boast—yet by means of their schools, gymnasiums, reading rooms, boys' clubs, etc., they are able to win many of the little ones to the Gospel of the Nazarene. The number of these converts, they declare in dismay, is rapidly with interests. The Golden Rule, Boston.

Death of Andrew M. Unlacke.

The news of the death of Andrew M. Uniacke, which took place at Dover, England, Friday morning, was received here with general regret. The deceased was one of our most famous general; the entire coast is surance Co., etc. His residence in this city, corner Sackville and Argyle streets, 30 years ago, was one of our greatest social resorts. All the great parties of the army and navy, etc., were held there. Decesed was 85 years old.—Hz. Chronicle.

Quick Pleasure Trip.

On Monday last Dr. Freeman, of this town, taking advantage of an excursion trip, drove to Annapolis and took the train for Digby, where he had a short time to look around that picturesque town, and then boarded the D. A. R's new and beautiful sleamer Prince Rupert, bound for St. John, where she arrived in about two and a-half hours. In less than half an hour she again put to sea on her return to Digby, where she arrived in quick time. The Dr. then took the train for Annapolis, and upon arrival there started for Bridgetown by the team he drove down and arrived home at about 9 p. m. The Dr. can have it to say that he is the first of our townsmen to take the run to St. John and back on the same day. Truly this is an age of progress. On Monday last Dr. Freeman, of this town

The Masonic Excursion.

Under the most favorable circumstances the excursion given by Rothsay Lodge started away from the pier this morning at eight o'clock on board the schr. Temple Bar in two of tug Clipper. The excursionists numbered between seventy-five and a hundred, and included brethren of the fraternity and lady friends from Middleton, Lawrencetown and Paradise. Capt. Longmire had the Temple Bar gaily decorated with bunting, and over the deck was suspended an awning sufficiently large to protect all from the sun's rays. The 69th Batt. band furnish the music for the trip. The party are due to return here The 19th Batt, band turned the music for the trip. The party are due to return here at 8 o'clock this evening, and the delightful scenery of the Annapolis river towards close of sunset, together with the other pleasures of the day, will be heartily appreciated by Sudden Death at springheid.

Mr. James Jefferson, a resident of Lake Pleasant, Springfield, died very suddenly at his residence last Saturday evening, the result, it is supposed, of internal hemorrhage. For some months past he has been in a slow decline, though nothing of a serious nature was apprehended. He partook of his tea as usual on the evening of his death, but some two hours later was seized with an ill turn from which he never rallied. Mr. Jefferson was between sixty and sixty-five years of age, was highly respected and his untimely death is mourned by a widow and grown-up family of four sons and three daughters, besides a large circle of relatives and friends.

Rifie Association Meeting.

The Annapolis Co. Rifie Association held their annual meeting at Lawrencetown, on Monday evening, the 29th inst. The following officers were elected for the ensuing year: President, Lieut. Col. Spurr; Secretary, Capt. L. W. Elliott; Council, Adjt. Charlton, Capt. LeCain, Lieut. Pitch, Capt. G. Morse, Lieut. F. Morse, Lieut. M. Parker. The annual firing will be held on the Paradise Range on the 9th and 10th of August. The cup presented by J. B. Mills, M. P., will be offered as first prize in the 1st competition.

—There was a lively runaway in town on Tuesday evening, says the Shelburne Budget. While Mr. Hastings Freeman was driving down the Kirk hill a ring in the britchen broke and the horse becoming frightened dashed down the street at a furious pace. Mr. Freeman thinking the harbor did not look inviting, jumped clear of the carriage as it ran on the sidewalk, just before Water street was reached, and landed on the fence. The horse turned into Water street and Mrs. Vail who was riding her bicycle narrowly escaped being run over. The runaway animal was captured by some colored lade after it turned into the back streets, but not before the carriage was considerably damaged.

This school, started a few years ago by some of our leading educationists to fill real want, caused by the introduction of more of the sciences in our common school course, has just completed a very successful season.

more of the sciences in our common school course, has just completed a very successful season.

It has become inter-provincial, the different lecturers being selected from the three Maritime Provinces, and the students coming from these same provinces, although the larger number are Nova Scotians.

Besides the usual sciences there have been added subjects which are quite as important, music, civics and kindergarten work. The session just closed was held in the County Academy, Amherst, a building magnificent in proportions and elaborate in furnishing, the pride of Cumberland county.

The season of the year prevents many teachers from attending, lack of funds hinders others, while indifference and a preconceived idea that anything out of the usual routine is a "fad" deters a greater number. In order to adapt the school to all, it was decided to locate it permanently at Parrsboro, as it was the most central for the provinces and is beautiful for situation, and from a scientific point of view unmatched in its richness of mineral specimens and geological formations.

It is proposed to form a joint stock company with a capital of $4000, erect a building or buildings, suitable for lodgings and class rooms, board the teachers at a reasonable price, and rent the rooms during the remainder of the year.

Should this project prove successful, a large number of teachers will attend, for the heat of the Upper Provinces will give a number not otherwise reached, and the novelty and charm of a community of this kind is certain to attract even those of limited means.

THE CARDER-THOMAS AND SAFFORD-SABEAN

NUFITAIS IN DORCHESTER.

The Stoughton Street Baptist Church, Dorchester, was the scene of a largely attended double wedding last evening, the contracting parties being Mr. Mort A. Carder and Miss Minnie G. Thomas, and Mr. George H. Safford and Miss Emma J. Sabean. The ceremonies were performed by Rev. J. H. Putnam, formerly pastor of the Elm Hill Baptist Church.

The brides were gowned in white silk with long trains, and each wore the conventional tulle veil. Both carried Bride roses. The bridesmaids wore pretty gowns of cream white silk and carried bouquets of sweet peas. The best man and bridesmaid for the Carder-Thomas wedding were, respectively, J. S. Carder, brother of the groom, and Miss Retta C. Thomas, sister of the bride. For the Safford-Sabean nuptials Samuel Cohen was best man and Miss Margaret Balcom bridesmaid.

After the church ceremonies a largely attended reception was held at the residence of Mr. Brazier, 2 Phillips place. Mr. and Mrs. Carder subsequently left on a trip to the White Mountains and will be at home after Sept. 1 at 103 Brook avenue. Mr. and Mrs. Safford will tour about New York and will be at home at 2 Phillips place after Sept. 1.—Boston Herald, 25th.

Fielding vs. Thomas. PRIVY COUNCIL—JUDGMENT RESERVED.

London, June 27.—In the case of Fielding vs. Thomas, which is an appeal to the judicial committee of the privy council, Mr. Cohen, Q.C., for Mr. Longley, of Nova Scotia, attorney for appellants, contended that the colonial legislature was empowered by imperial statute to make laws respecting its own powers and constitution, and that the provisions of the Nova Scotia statute, under which the assembly acted in this matter, were not ultra vires of the legislature. The house, he declared, had the right to pass laws enabling it to commit and punish for contempt and to provide for the indemnity of its members against civil actions and other proceedings for acts done in the house. The provincial legislature had all the privileges, immunities and powers of the British house of commons and the Dominion parliament.

Mr. Blake, for the respondent, argued that the mayor had not committed any breach of privilege in regard to the petition. He had not been guilty of contempt in declining to present himself for a formal reprimand. The house did not have the power to order his arrest or committed the sage. It was arrest or committed the sage. PRIVY COUNCIL-JUDGMENT RESERVED.

present nimset for a formal reprimand. The house did not have the power to order his arrest or committal in such a case. It was equally incapable of enacting a provision to indemnify its members if they punished any-body illegally. Judgment was deferred. Terrible Drowning Accident.

NEPHEW OF MRS. J. B. GILES AND THREE OTHERS FIND WATERY GRAVES. OTHERS FIND WATERY GRAVES.

Ottawa, July 26.—A lamentable downing accident is reported from Aylmer, Que., about nine miles from here. The victims are Walter, Alexander and Edward Brophy, and Percy Winfield. The Brophy boys are sons of G. P. Brophy, vice president of the Ottawa electric railway, and were from 23 to 13 years of age. Winfield was a son of Rev. W. T. Winfield, chaplain to the governor general. The boys were sailing on the nor general. The boys were sailing on the lake, when a squall arose and capsized their boat. One of the party, young Miall, son of the commissioner of inland revenue, was saved.

[The young lad, Winfield, above referred to, was an only son, and will be fondly remembered by many of our citizens, as last summer he and his mother spent several weeks' vacation at the home of her sister, Mrs. Giles, wife of Rev. J. B. Giles, pastor of Providence Methodist church. The Monton extends its sincerest sympathy to the bereaved parents.]—ED.

He was holding several tacks in his mouth while putting down a carpet, and was seized with a sudden fit of coughing. Not all the skill of surgery could remove the tack that lodged in the windpipe.

There are many interstices in the pattern germs of years to lie dormant in, lacking only the warm and moist touch of the human lips to become menaces to health. These are the coins which women put between their lips when they take their street car fare out of the purse. Aside from the danger of this process, the uncleanliness of thus holding a oin that may have passed through the hands and the lips also of street Arabs and beggars and filthy persons of all kinds should reason enough to avoid it. Tacks, needles, pins, buttons, may all be swallowed in a sudden fit of coughing, sneezing or laughter, and become in an instant the source of greatest danger. There is no small habit that may entail such sudden and distressing consequences, and school girls frequently acquire it without realizing its danger.

Better too Much Society than None.

Perhaps the most difficult side of one's nature to provide for adequately is the social side. It is easy enough to make a hermit of one's self and go nowhere; and it is easy enough to let one's self be sucked into the vortex of endless social recreation until one' sensations become akin to those of a highly varnished humming top. I am not quite sure which is the worse; but I am inclined to believe that the hermit, especially if self-righteous, is more detestable in that he is altruistic. He may be a more superior person than the gad-fly of society, but ethics for the benefit of self. Every man and woman who seeks to play an intelligent part in the world ought to manage to dine out and attend other social functions every now and then, even if it be necessary to bid for invi-

Farming Too Much Land.

and longer lived trees.- J. D. Marrow, in American Cultivreor.

I want to assert that many farmers are ultivating more land than they can cultivate well, says a writer in an exchange. The man who only farms the land he cultivate will make more clear money than the man who skims over a large number o acres only half tilled. I heard a merchant say the other day that farmers had no settled policy in regard to their business. All farmers with whom I am acquainted have a settled policy, and practise some rotation o crops, but the settled policy of some is not the best policy, and their rotation of crops may not be the most advantageous. All of them make plans, but many of their plans are not good and result in disaster; their estimates are fac out of the way.

One of the poorest farmers I ever kne planned his work as carefully as could be, apparently, but his plans were bad, because his judgment was weak and his reasoning powers deficient. A farmer can can plan his business just as well when he is ploughing, or at other work, as he can to sit down and study and plan. Farmers are of two classes, those who work too much and those who work too little. The second class is by far Prof. Wilder of Cornell University gives | the most numerous; this is the class that should be preached to and spurred up to more vigorous exertion.

The men who succeed in farming, as in all it will be found useful to preserve or remempursuits, are the men who study and work water in them; remove cinders, ctc., with the hardest. Speculation is not farming. The speculator may make a fortune to-day and lose it the next. The farmer who want water; never put a hard instrument into the to get rich by farming must expect to work hard for a number of years. Brains are a good thing to have and are not to be des pised, but the successful farmer finds it cessary to use all the brains and about all the bodily strength he has in order to suc worked too hard he said in his last sickness 'Some people blamed me for working too hard, but I took pleasure in it." No person should work so hard during the day that he can't sleep well at night and feel rested in

What many farmers most need is not less land and more hard work, but more enthusiasm in their business and more thorough cultivation of the acres which they attempt to cultivate, and see if you don't grow as many bushels on five acres as you formerly did on eight to ten acres.

Ventilating Cow Stables.

No more important question can engage the attention of the builder of a cow stabl than that of ventilation. What is needed is just sufficient air for health and comfortthat is, enough for health and not enough to carry away too much warm air. The closeness with which the cows may be put longer sanctions self-cultivation purely into a stable very much depends upon the rapidity with which the air is changed. While it is a safe rule to give each cow on cubic foot of air space to each pound of live weight, no one would claim this to be sufficient were the stable airtight or anywhere near it. A 1,000 pound cow in a 1,000 cubic feet of air space would breathe that much air in ten hours, and after four hours the air would become so vitiated as to be too deadly to breathe. On the other hand, cows may be safely housed in much less air space if proper facilities be provided for changing the air windows or registers under the sills, no matter how careful the attendant may be, there is constant danger of some cow taking cold. On a warm, murky evening, with the ventilator as to suit the conditions, but during the night the wind changes, or a blizzard sets in, and in the morning some cow will be found to have stood in a draft is much better and safer and if properly arranged is much more effectual. The usu trouble with such ventilation is that the chutes are not large enough. When no more than a foot or fifteen inches square inside, the ascending currents are two weak to ordinary method of slatting the cupola above the roof produces no upward current. As nuch air comes in on the windward side as can possibly get out on the opposite side, assist the upward flow. This is the reason why so much moisture is often found in body of the barn where cows are stabled below. The breath of the animals in such cases greatly injures the hay or other forage
