ALL FOUR GUILTY OF CONSPIRACY

JUDGE'S VERDICT IN LONDON CASE

Defence Unexpectedly Closes its Case with Renewed Objections as to Court's Jurisdiction-Judge Disbelieves Crown Witness, Fu Finds Offence Proven.

VANCE. SMITH, PRESTON GIVE PRITCHETT THE LIE

To the astonishment and dismay of the defence in the London election bribery conspiracy case His Honor Judge Winchester late yesterday afternoon found all four of the defendants guilty. The decision was given soon after the defence suddenly terminated its case. His honor granted an application for appeal to the higher courts, and sentence was not passed, the defendants, Reid, O'Gorman, Wiley and Mulloy, being allowed their freedom on $5000 bail each. His honor spoke for twenty minutes.

Just after he had read the indictment, he intimated that, as Mr. John-sten had argued well in the matter of the court's jurisdiction, he would allow the case to go to the court of The faces of the four accused men

The defendants looked askance at each other. O'Gorman seemed cool. Reid smiled. Wiley turned pale, and Mulloy appeared as if he did not understand what it all meant. The de-fendants had expected to go free, tho there had been a feeling that O'Gor-mar might be fined. They left for Lendon on the 7.30 p.m. train, declining to discuss the matter.

Defence Ended Abruptly. Ir the morning James Vance and Alex. Smith had given evidence, and in the afternoon W. T. R. Preston's affidavit, made in Australia, was read. A witness from Goderich was called, but did not respond. Then the surprises began.

"That is the defence," said Mr. Johnston amid a silence, for every one had expected that the defendants would be called to the stand.

"Any reply?" queried the judge of Lynch-Staunton, the crown counsel. "No reply," said Mr. Staunton. "Argument?" asked the judge. Mr. Johnston then renewed his objections that the case was not within jurisdiction of His Honor and that the crown had not proven conwith any conspiracy which may have Toronto. Mr. Johnston asked His Honor to totally disbelieve the evidence of Pritchett and Farr, who should be arrested for per-

His Honor then summed up the case. As to the charges against Reid, Mullov and Wiley, of a conspiracy in To-ronto, no evidence had been brought out, The evidence against O'Gorman must necessarily come from men who had no moral sense of their duty. Against O'Gorman the crown had only the evidence of Pritchett to rely upon, and he had been contradicted in several points by men whom the judge had no reason to doubt. Honor believed that Vance was telling the truth in reference to Pritchett's arrival at Bancroft. He also believed

Connecting O'Gorman

The Beginning--- and the End

Quite as sudden and startling as was the inception of the now famous London election trial came the verdict yesterday of "guilty." All over Canada the trial had aroused attention. In Ontario, from one end of which to the other, the "Liberal machine" of inglorious memory is alleged to have at one time or another operated, the evidence was of exceptional interest. The result cannot but exert a salutary influence in the cause of honest elections the country over.

The prosecution was inaugurated in September of last year, when John O'Gorman, commission merchant of Toronto, was arrested on a charge of bribery in the federal by-election in London held in June, 1905, when Hon. C. S. Hyman was elected over William Gray (Con.). This arrest was made as the result of information furnished the crown by Jerry Collins, who had acted as D.R.O. in this election. He had been promised a reward for certain illegal acts in connection with the election, he said, and when he had gone after it, had been politely told to go to. This was his revenge.

Collins' original charge was that he had been given $1000 to bribe voters, and that O'Gorman had instructed him in the art of ballot manipulation.

After O'Gorman had appeared in the Toronto Police Court, warrants were issued as a result of evidence given, for George Reid, who is one of London's most prominent citizens; Daniel Wiley, a customs officer; William J. Mulloy, hotelkeeper; George Ardy, butcher; William Serviss, carpenter, and Ed I. Sifton, manufacturer. Sifton got away to Buffalo, but returned during the trial just concluded for use as a crown witness. The charges against Ardy and Serviss were not pressed.

After a preliminary hearing before Magistrate Denison, the defendants were bound over for trial at the assize court. Postponements were secured up to the fall assizes. During the interval, strong efforts were made to have the prosecution called off, but the attorneygeneral's department was insistent that the men should be given a fair

For reasons best known to themselves, the defence then decided to exercise their prerogative and go before the county judge, but no sooner was this allowed than objections were raised to the jurisdiction held by Judge Winchester in the matter. This will be one of the grounds on which appeal will be made to the higher courts.

Such was the greeting from the Scots of Quebec sent by Past President Riddel to the Scotchmen of Toronto, who celebrated the festival of their patron saint—St. Andrew—with all the ceremonial and ardor of which the Sons of Auld Reekie are capable, in whatever part of this sphere they may find themselves, at the Queen's Hotel last night, on the occasion of the an-nual banquet of the St. Andrew's Society. The usual loyal and patriotic toasts were honored with great enthusiasm. The 48th band was in attendance and rendered an excellent program. A pro-cession was formed, headed by pipers, and the whole company marched to the was served with "royal Scotch hon ors."

The toast of the evening, "The Day

Why Delehanty Failed at Racing.

During the last meeting that Ed. Delehanty attended at the Crescent City track, New Orleans, he ran up against that one-time New York catcher, the immaculate Aleck Smith, nicknamed on account of his swell front on all occasions Broadway Aleck.

That particular race meeting was a disastrous one for the talent, and Del got it where the village lassie hangs her beads. Aleck was also in bad and when he met Delehanty seased him:

If they have had prosperity or "good luck" they praise God; if they have had adversity they grumble, repine and are anything but thankful. endom been poisoned by the "doctrines of devils" (I Tim. iv. i) that it is almost impossible for the majority to think of God as the Scriptures represent Him—as God of justice, love and mercy. Indeed, so firmly entrenched is the error with many that if any attempt is made to explain the Scriptures in harmony with divine justice and love they forthwith conclude that such an attempt is the work of the adversary, of Satan. Alas, how thoroly Satan has blinded their eyes and hindered them from seeing the glorious character of God! Well did the apostle say, "The God of this world hath blinded the minds of them that believe not, lest the glorious light of God's goodness as it shines in the face of Jesus Christ should shine into their hearts." (II Cor. iv., '4.) They have so long put darkness for light and light for darkness, that the very terms justice and love are confused in their minds and misunderstood. They will even tell us that it would be just for God to torment all of His creatures to all eternity—and more, that this would be a manifestation of divine love! Alas! that such confusion should in any sense of the word be dignified with the name of reason.

There is a solution to the whole matter, and but one solution. It is Gid-given, and is presented to him that "hath an ear to hear what the Spirit saith unto the churches"—and what ultimately shall be known to every creature. But the hearing ears are scarce at the present time there is a special blessing to those who have them—"Blessed are your eyes, for they hear," said the Master, and we are glad that the promise is that by and by "all the blind eyes shall be opened and all the deaf ears shall be un-hear," said the Master, and we are glad that the promise is that by and by "all the blind eyes shall be opened and all the deaf ears shall be unstopped." (Isa. xxxv. 5.) The right understanding of the divine Word shows the heavenly Father to be the very personification of love, as well as of justice and wisdom and power. His justice and wisdom and power. His love and our necessity are at the bottom of the Scriptural declaration that God is very merciful and of tender compassion—the very reverse of all that the theology of the "dark ages" has misrepresented Him to be.

But while we note this outward recognition of the Creator with pleasure, the fact is borne in upon us that with many the thanksgiving is merely perfunctory—that the occasion has lost its old-time significance. The fact is that we are living in a less reverential period, assisted and to some extent caused by our freer thinking and reasoning.

Our forefathers, with too large a reverence for earthly kings, imagined that these rulers could do no wrong, because they governed by divine appointment. The law in his opinion was now fairly well settled; the limiting of appeals and the doing away with some of the appellate courts would be merely a means of giving power to other courts to be more despotic and arbitrary. The system of drafting the statutes, he thought, should be amended. Grievances should be redressed as they arose; mere changes were not necessarily reform.

M. Houston of Chatham said sentences should be uniform for the same class of offences, and should not depend on the caprice of the court. The law reform committee were authorized to wait on the cabinet or committee of the house with the view of suggesting any matters connected with law reform, that were of interest to the profession, and the administration of justice in the province. The division court was on the whole useful and popular, and an enormous number of cases were tried in it. But the clerks and bailiffs were ill-paid, and many division court offices were badly managed. The officers should be fewer in number, and in order to secure capable men, their fees should be increased. In many courts bailiffs could not be got at all; the remuneration was too small. The solution lay in the reduction of the courts in number, while the clerks should be paid by the government a salary over and above their fees; or, better still, the fees should be abolished.

at the Grand hext week. Under the title of "The Cat and the Fiddle" the authors have strung together a strong story of an imaginary land, "The Island of the Eye," ruled over by "Great Gobs," the villain of the play. Great Gobs has imprisoned in a gigantic jar the good genii, The Cat and the Fiddle. In order to retain his power he is obliged to sacrifice to "The Eye" every hundred years a maiden with a strawberry mark on her left shoulder. He selects as his victim "Polly," and his attempts to carry her to the Island of Eye, and to make the sacrifice, and the frustrating of his efforts, forms the plot of the play. The scenic setting is unquestionably the most gorgeous and elaborate ever accorded a production of this character. The adventures set forth take place in a bewildering maze of scenic splendor and the three acts of the play are composed of 21 separate and distinct changes.

The sensational melodrama "Convict 999," a play which is said to head the list of this season in the startling nature of its story and the rapidity of its action, is the offering at the Majestic next week. Very little is left to the imagination of the audience. "Convict 999" is said to be a well-written and a very interesting play. It is also an exciting play and a strenu-

Yet, but the actress was charming, young, unaffected and an artist, and she didn't write the play. That was done by two professional playwrights, who rather aimed at good effect and to bring out the charming personality of a really beautiful and interesting girl than to create a classical play.

The only pity is that an actress with the makings of greatness in her should not consider herself competent to play a greater part than that of Eleanor Alderson. It is a charming conception, a rational self-contained girl, rather a new woman, somewhat lacking in depth of feeling, but truly honorable and self-sacrificing. The improbabilities of the play are obvious enough, but do not appear to the hearer unless he stops to reflect critically. Frankly, one prefers to be amused rather than to be harrowed by too overstrained and tragic a situation. So when the suspense is quickly relieved, one is not disappointed, tho one knows it is bad art.

Miss Barrymore's gowns are simply beautiful. Their simplicity and softness, their delicate and subdued shadings, grey, white lace and green, with only the throat bare, suited the siendlers, over a lace bodice. The white lace was similar in style, with

OUR present selling prices are attracting wide attention. Bear in mind you pay no middleman's profits. Our purchases are made almost direct from the mines, and there is only one handling of them after they leave the syndicate offices and find their way into our premises. It must then be obvious to all that our position is infinitely stronger than the dealer who has not this advantage, and whose purchases have passed two, three, four, and sometimes five different channels.

A 15 Per Cent.

a lot of lawless characters. Yuba Bill, who drives the stage, has been "shot up," and the identity of the two men who did it has been a mystery. It is discovered that a shell bracelet, which Red Pete had given his wife, and which she in turn has given to her daughter, belonged to one of the passengers on the stage. News carried sengers on the stage. News arrived that a man named Baldwin, who, it is learned, has insulted Salomy Jane, has been shot by an unknown man. With primitive hate the girl had asked Rufe Waters, one of her admirers, to kill him, and he has refused. Salomy Jane is left alone. To her comes the indi-vidual who is known thruout the play as The Man. He confesses that it is he who has killed Baldwin, and Salomy helps him to escape.

The second act shows Red Pete's shack in the forest, and here the vigi-lantes come with both Pete and The Man. Both are to be hanged, and as The Man has no friends, it is suggested that Salomy Jane wish him good-by. She does this, and the curtain by. She does this, and the curtain falls upon a most pathetic and dramatic incident.

The third act shows Salomy Jane's home the same night. Here it is discovered that The Man has escaped, and once more the posse sets out to hunt him down. Salomy waits alone in the moonlight for The Man. He comes. Voices are heard, and Salomy gives The Man her father's hat and coat and places him on a bench, where he pretends he is asleep. Jack Mar-bury, gambler, discovers The Man, but helps the lover to escape again.

The fourth act is the corral scene.

Salomy appears on a winding path-way just at dawn and it is known she has been searching all night for her lover. He has met a mortal enemy of her father's in the woods and has shot him down. Then learning that Salomy's father is suspected, he decides to return and give himself up. He meets Salomy. While they are discovering the salomy while they are discovering the salomy. cussing the point they are interrupted by Rufe Waters, but they overpower him, and learning that the father, be lieving that Salomy killed his enemy, has fled across the county line, go to

Those who have seen the play assert that nothing so true, so simple, so forceful, so tense, so pathetic, so humorous at times, and so satisfying, has ever been placed upon a stage.

Next week the Royal Alexandra Players will present another comedy made famous by well-known actors. "The Henrietta" is the work of Bronson Howard, and the play was made a great success by Robson and Crane. Miss Evelyn, who has been enjoying a week's rest, will enact the role of a jolly New York widow; Herbert Yost will have Mr. Stuart Robson's part as Bertie "The Lamb" and Mr. Robert McWade will play the part in which William Crane was so successful The story of "The Henrietta" is as amusing as it is interesting. The complications arise out of the name "Henrietta" and it is this which creates so much confusion amongst the characters introduced in the play. It so happens that there is a mine called "Henrietta," a race horse called "Henrietta" and a premier dansquee who is at engaging bits of imaginative fiction that have yet been given to the stage. It is based upon incidents in Bret Harte's story of the same name and has been handled in a most acceptable manner by Paul Armstrong.

The first act displays the wonderful Redwood forest, which has been selected as the meeting place by the Viguilantes who have decided to round up the old man returns from his first The special attraction will be Julian Eltinge in his new turn. He makes of civilized powers is but to repeat what of civilized powers is but to repeat what is obvious to all who are in touch with the history of recent events in the far east. On Sept. 27 and Oct. 1 three imperial decrees were published in The Peking Gazette, which, in keeping with numerous edicts of the past two years, unark important steps in China's development.

The first of these is in the name of the dowager empress, and it states that a contitutional government and parliamentary representation are desired ends, and that the calling of an imperial assembly is a first step in that direction. A further step of education and preparation is the establishment of local councils in places to be selected by the vice-roys and governors, and in these a system of "local self-government will be tentatively tried." The ministry of the interior is charged to formulate a scheme for "local self-government for the empire," and the ministry of education is commanded to draw up a plan for "universal education through the empire, and of the books to be studied in the schools thereof."

These ministries are to "make frequent inspections to find out "hether our at their warerooms, 276 Davenpor commands have been carried out or not. The first of these is in the name of

The second decree is in the name of the emperor himself, and it impresses upon officials and commoners his belief that the country is just Intended for a constitutional form of government. The ministries and government offices in Pekin, and the viceroys and governors are commanded to lose no time in carefully selecting men of ability to explain the doctrines that the emperor desires to grant a constitution to the country, with the sovereign at the head, and an earnest effort must be made to study the systems of government of the various countries of the west." Those who have shown ability to understand and explain these systems are to be recommended to the throne for promotion, whilst those who are lax in their duties are to be censured.

The third decree is also in the name of the emperor. It is my great knowledge of electricity and its effect on the human system, gained through years of experience and study; also my success in restoring to health thousands of men and women in all parts of the world, that makes me so confident I can do the same for you. Let me give you back your strength. Let me make you what you were intended to be-strong, happy, confident, brave-a satisfaction to yourself and the admiration of your friends.

ICIALIST SAYS CHISIS

40,000 Unemployed in Berlin-Warm Addresses at Opening of Reichstag.

BERLIN, Nov. 29.—The 1908 budge was discussed in the Reichstag today. Herr Bebel, the socialist leader, called attention to the condition of the country and declared this indicated that a crisis was at hand. He dicated that a crisis was at hand. He said the unemployed in Berlin already numbered between 30,000 and 40,000. Owing to the industrial combines and the price agreements the day of low prices in Germany was passed and the high duties put in force in the month of March 1906, also were making themselves felt.

Consequently, Herr Bebel declared, Germany was paying the highest prices in the world. Holding up a loaf of bread, the socialist leader said:

'They still say this is a big loaf, but a loaf that weighed 41-2 pounds eighteen months ago, now weighs scarcely three pounds and the price has risen fully fifty per cent.

Referring to the recent trial of Maximilian Harden, who was sued by Count Kuno Von Moltke, a former military-governor of Berlin, for defamation of character, the socialist leader asserted that the vices revealed in the course of the hearing of this case were so prevalent that if the police brought all the guilty parties to trial a scandal eclipsing the randma and the Dreyfus revelations would break out. The guilty persons, the speaker averred, are to be found in ma and the Dreyfus revelations would break out. The guilty persons, the speaker averred, are to be found in the highest social circles and they include princes of ruling houses.

The police know the names of the victims, but they are afraid to act lest the victims blurt out the names of the high personages who are guilty. A number of tragedies already have resulted from this state of affairs, said Herr Bebel, and some officers have committed suicide in order to escape blackmailers. Von Buelow Aroused

The sitting was notable for the energetic speech of Prince Von Buelow, the German imperial chancellor in defense of the army, the emperor and

In replying to Dr. Spahn, the leader of the centre party, who asserted that conditions prevailing in the army re-called those of ancient heathen Rome, called those of ancient heathen Rome, the chancellor rose full of fire and declared that no one imagined that the whole army was affected by a few instances of unworthiness, the rooting out of which, the chancellor assured the house, would be sharply attended to by the emperor than whom no one strove more for a high tone of morality in both the army and the

It was the crown prince, he said, who had called his father's attention to articles in the Zukunft, disclosing corruption with the result that immediate action was taken in the mat-ter. He pointed out that neither the Prince Von Buelow then referred to the so-called court camarilla which is widely alleged to have been influenc-

the emperor's decisions. No one, said, had ever accused the emperor of being without his own will and the camarilla could only exist where the narch was willing. Such a polsonous growth as a camarilla, he de-clared, was utterly un-German and re-ports regarding its existence could be taken as being without foundation. In concluding his address, the chancellor denied the assertion that he had dis-solved the last reichstag in order to protect himself against personal at-tacks relative to his supposed partici-Spurred on by Obstruction.

The reason for such action, he said, was the instruction offered by the centre party, which desired to pit its strength against the nation's will. Any chancellor who had submitted to such a course would have forfeited the confidence of the nation. The chancellor promised to take part in the budget debate to-morrow.

Freiherr Von Stengel, secretary of the imperial treasury, stated that direct taxation could not be raised in consequence of the increases in the estimates and the government must rely upon the indirect method, but as

The representatives of virtually every group, with the exception of the socialists, gave assurances that they were prepared to vote for the augmen tation of the appropriation for the army and navy if it was proved in committee that this was necessary for the defence of the country.

The the developments of the week have not been unfavorable, trading in Cobalt stocks has, for the greater part, been spiritiess. In the absence of semand prices weakened till it would seem they could not go lower. To maintain a bullish attitude in the face of steadily declining quotations, certainly requires courage, but there is substantial ground for courage now in the fact that while stocks are selling at ridiculous prices, conditions (apart from the smelter situation, which temporarily is a deterring factor) thruout the camp are sound and prospects never brighter from the standpoint of real mining.

In a monetary way it is admitted on all sides that before long normal conditions will again prevail. The critical stage has been passed, and that of convalescence reached. The many opportunities for safe and highly profitable investment must soon bring back into circulation the money now being hoarded. Every day that passes brings us nearer to good times. This, then, is a time to look forward, not backward.

Speaking generally, the bear market has now lasted more than a year; the longest period with one exception of that of the panic years of 1883-4), of which records are obtainable. On no occasion could an operator for the deciline have maintained his position for so long a time without disaster resulting. These facts with reference to the New York security list apply with equal force to mining markets. It is out of range with the greatest profit is coincident with that of traders for the rise. WHEN BUYING FURS

The instructions an experienced shopper will give you when purchasing furs would be to buy the best you can afford from a furrier whom you can trust.

This matter of buying furs is like buying diamonds. Good furs have a standard value the same as diamonds. Cheap diamonds are dear at any price. What you must avoid is being "flim-flammed" into paying a high price for a poor article.

Our guarantee goes with everything we sell. We accept no second place when it comes to being classed as expert judges of good fur. Our big business has been built up on the confidence the public has extended to us, and in our "delivering the goods."
