It is known, however, that during the continuance of the war the question of granting Lord Kitchener £100,000 was seriously discussed by the authorities; but the smaller amount was decided upon on the ground of Lord Kitchener's lesser rank, coupled with the fact that he received $30,000 at the close of the Soudan campaign and is still a comparatively young unmarried man and at the height of his military career, while Lord Roberts is old, has a family and is not likely to have a further chance to distinguish himself.

The trains districts was marked by remarkable scenes of fraternization. The trains conveying the Boers started late and the night being extremely cold, the sentries along the railroad track lighted huge bonfires, round which groups of Boers and Britons gathered, forming a highly picturesque scene. The late opponents joined in such songs as "Hard Times Come Again No More," and "Old folks at home," the British soldiers and the Burghers outyjeing one another in their demonstrations, of joy. In brief, the scenes at the departure of the three while engaged in a fight on the West Brookfield Ware line of the Ware. Brookfield and Spencer street railway, were struck by an electric car. BACCALAUREATE SERMON. On Sunday morning the Wolfville Baptist church was filled to overflowing with a large representation of the youth, beauty and intellect of the provinces. The side galleries were filled by students of the college and academy, while the morth gallery fairly bloomed with the grace and sweetness of the fair young ladies from the seminary. Long before the time for service the heuse was packed, and as the college bell ceased ringing the long procession of seniors in cap and gown, headed by the president, Dr. Trotter, the speaker of the morning, Rev. Wm. Newcombe of Thomas ton, Me., and Rev. H. R. Hatch moved ed them, in the front. The class numbers 24, three of whom are young Pleasant Valley, P. B. I.; Ira M. Baird, Tremont; Gordon E. After some general re-This year a feast of good things is marks, calling attention to the distincexpected, and visitors are arriving in tion between an event such as the large numbers, taxing the town to its present and its setting, and referring to the usual fruitlessness of counsel, he announced as his theme, Some Ele-ments of a True Christian Education. The importance of self-discovery through education was the first point urged. This is the true end of study and the purpose of bringing the student into contact with different phases of truth that his own constituent ele-ments may be awakened and trained. Education should be really education. If not lost sight of in theory, failure to compass this end in practice is continually apparent. Many are handi-capped through life because of traditional rules and precedent. It was also urged that a man should be him-self and act himself. That every man has something of his own was affirmed, suggested by countless analogies of nature. The fact of correspondence between the sign and reality in the religious life was asserted and quite fully illustrated. Nature's signs reveal accurately the indwelling life. But men may assume, unconsciously, conventional forms of experience which John Foster asserted in his celebrated essay, was in his day a cause of the aversions of men of taste to the Christian religion. The form is assumed to compensate for the inward reality. The last point urged was that a man should learn to forget himself.

This was considered for a little as selfss, in which condition man's best powers are thwarted and repressed. The reverend gentleman next gave his conception of self-for-getfulness and made it equivalent to self-effacement. This was regarded as the final and supreme educa powers of the soul. The significance of function was traced through all lower life to man. Earlier forms were nutritive and reproductive. Gradually a muscular system is developed and instinct becomes apparent. Later intel-ligence dawns and culminates in man Now the sequence of function and principle of continuity demand that man must grow in unselfishness. Spiritral ends are now demanded or man must degenerate. The general conclusion reached from the whole was that both learning and life have ends beyond themselves. The end of learning is the development of personal char-acter. The end of life is service, the contribution. Each is able to make toward the general good.

ADDRESS BY REV. H. F. WARING.

F. Waring, Acadia, '90 Brussels street church, St. John. Dr. Kierstead offered prayer. The president of the society, C. K. Moore, took charge of the meeting and introduced the speaker.

His address was an eloquently powerful exposition of "the Religion of a Christian-its nature and effectswhat it is and what it does." College hall was crowded with an audience that followed every word of the address with intense interest.

In introduction he asked: What is religion? How glibly we talk, said ne, about many things we do not understand! How commonly we terms it would puzzle us to explain! How much easier to describe than to define! How much easier, for instance, to watch and write about the working of electricity than to tell just what electricity is. How much easier as in our text, to describe the effects of religion, than to define its nature. What is it? It is life, or better, it is a kind of life, for though we is a kind of life, for though we God, the arterial flow of the very should be able to get to the heart of heart-life of God and the veinal flow the mystery of life, and find that to be purified with the very breath of God in the contract of the contract there all life is the same, yet in view of its different manifestations, we may legitimately speak of its different preclate this wonderful truth. As the may legitimately speak of its different kinds. The true nature of religion as a kind of life, like the true nature of the living seed is shown as it grows. Failing to see this some have argued "the fact that as the condition of religion at the beginning of its history was everywhere more or less irrational and pathological, that it is therefore a morbid disease." To them, theology, as the science of religion, is a part of pathology, the science of morbid conditions. Instead, it is a part of biology, the science of life, disease to be outgrown. So far at least man seems to have been "incurably religious," and we are to look for its true nature not simply to its beginnings, but its highest growth. What is the true nature of religion? It is not worship of God, nor enough to include it, though it may include all of them. The only one word that includes it is the word life. This, however, is too large, for there is life in plants, and animals, and we do not speak of them as religions. The distinguishing principle of the religious life must therefore be found in that which distinguishes man from these. It must be found in those endownents which we commonly speak dowments man is the religious animal. As such he is capable of sin, which s the failure to subordinate that which is in our lower nature to that which is higher, according as a man is able to distinguish between them and has the power of will for this subordination. The study of the history of re ligion shows that where man thought his union with God was much the same as his physical blood-bond with the other animals, his moral sense was

has union and communion with God, and the more of this life he has, the and the more of this life he has, the closer the union and the sweeter the communion with God. The very essence of religion is "practising the presence of God." In Jesus the essential germ of all religions found "its bright consummate flower" and ripest fruit as he practised the presence of "The Father." The gospel of John, xvii., 20-23, gives as the words of Christ in prayer: "I pray that they Christ in prayer: "I pray that they may all be one; even as thou. Father art in me, and I in thee, that they also may be in us; that the world may know that thou didst send me, and lovedst them even as thou lovedst me.' Herein lies his characteristic greatless, that he led men to God, that thereafter they might live their own life with him." Life in God is the Christian religion, and life wth Christ in God is the mystery of Christian re-Though a mystery it is a reality.

life is hidden. Nature awakes from her winter's sleep to clothe helself in a garb of wondrous hues. The loving of raindrops from the clouds, and sweetest words of dewdrops on the earth have wooed the buds to open up their hearts in floral messages of love, the flowers fill the eye with their beauty, make the air heavy with the fragrance of their sweetest incense and we ask our friend the botanis what is the explanation of this wondrous change, and he answers—Life We ask him what is life and he is dumb or his jargon is unintelligible to us, but the zephyrs stealing over the fresh green grass and /kissing the flowers on the way, whisper with the many tiny tongues of nature, "it is hidden, it is hidden." We go to the wild woods and we are thrilled by the ong that Dr. Rand has with such poetic and patriotic insight worded thus: Oh, dear Canada, Canada, Can-ada, and we ask who is the songster? Our friend the naturalist, who knows the sights, sounds and ways of the woods, takes us to a distant tree and shows us a little sparrow. We ask it is possible for that little white throat to pour forth such a sea of melody upon some of the waves of which our souls were floating with delight. When much applause and laughter.

"The Class Prophecy," by Miss Bertie Bowlby of Port Medway, was a glimpse into the future of the class of the second of the s sings: It is hid in God, strength. The good manners of the culhid in God, hid in God! Hidden, yes, but real. Though the religion of a Christian, like all other kinds of life, is mysterious, and cannot be defined. it is real, and the reality of this life hidden with Christ in God is the very warp of the whole system of Christion truth. This is the truth that is back of the great doctrines of the faith. Regeneration is the coming of new life from God. Conversion is the corresponding flow to God, and togeth-er they mean that the great at-one-ment has been made. Inspiration and revelation are due to the man-ward flow from God. This is the thought in the Pauline references to union with > union of the vine and its branches. As there is a commingling of the juices of these, so there is a commingling of the life currents of God and man. Wonderful, is it not? The current of inspiring grace coming to man and the return current of worship going to blood circulated in the living body before Harvey discovered its circulation, so a man may have the Christian life. even though he does not think of these religious currents, but simply of Christ as a Savior, outside of him, but as Harvey's discovery of such an advance in the science of heart and healing, would not a better recog-Christ-life within us make for spiritual healing and health. It would help us not simply to have that life, but to have it abundantly. It would fill us with a dignity and holy pride that would keep us from sin and would enable us to seek those things that are above. Intensely demonstrative as we are, we believe in blue blood of the right kind. To learn that we are desendants of truly great ancestors whose blood is in our own veins would fill us with pride. How much more reason have we for joy and pride in the great truth that in a way unknown before, the currents of the life of God are in our souls; that we are not simply the offspring of the animal man, and joint heirs with Jesus Christ; that in distinction from the life of the other animals we have Life; that we are not dogs, but Gods.

Other religions. We read not simply by virtue of his religious life, man that the Son of Man came not to be that the Son of Man came not to be ministered unto, but to minister and to give his life a ransom for many but that "He said unto all, if any man would come after me let him himself and take up his cross daily and follow me, for whosoever would save his life shall lose it; but whosoever shall lose his life for my sake the same shall find it." The Christian life is not simply for the imitation of Christ. It is for the reproduction of his work. We follow his example in proportion as we have his life within us. How did that life manifest itself when Jesus was on earth. The gospel of Mark tells us that Jesus was a carpenter as well as a teacher. In going about doing good he manifested to the body as well as to the soul. Though in his teachings we may not find any definite social programme, yet with the personal purity and altruistic power o the human life of God, the divine life of man, he entered into the different departments of life and (the present of this same life is greatly needed) if we are to settle the disputes and solve garb of wondrous hues. > So great are these problems that many a conscientious man situated so that they are pressing upon his spirits, can say with Hamlet:

The time is out of joint, O cursed spite, That ever I was born to set it right.

Those who have gone beneath the service of the problems assent to the truth of the saying of Dr. Josiah Strong: All quick and easy processes for regenerating society without regen erating the individuals that compos It are delusions. They are feeling that beneath the spirit of competition in business underlying the unjust distinctions in society, beneath much of the pretended differences in doctrine, the fundamental cause of all these difficulties, is selfishness. It manifests itself in the poor as well as in the rich, in the cultured as well as in the ignorant. The greatest question before us then is how is this selfishness of the animal man to be overcome. Culture is good, but mere worldly culture is not tured consist in little sacrifices. Be-cause of these sacrifices culture is good, but because they are little it is insufficient. Legislation is also goo but mere legislation is not enough. I aws cannot enforce themselves. Good laws must have healthy public opinion back of them or they are miserable farces. Laws that would do with the free play of selfishness Laws that would do away need back of them strong unselfish ness, public opinion, and in proportion as they had that the need for then would be lessened.

In the early part of the sixteenth century, Sir Thomas Moore published what soon became a famous political romance. In it he described an island on which was a race that had such perfect organization that it was free from all the troubles that affect the societies of actual life. The name of the island is suggestive, Utopia, which means nowhere. Nowhere in active life has human legislation, organiza tion or cultivation produced a society free from enormous evil. They can not eradicate the selfishness that is the underlying cause. Though to some extent man may restrain and refine, they cannot overcome it. With man this is impossible, but as with God all things are possible, it is possible for man in proportion as through saving faith he receives of the divine life. In a Christlike participation in this life an incarnation of God, which means the culture of the cross rather than of worldly wisdom, and accord-ing to the laws of the spirit rather than of the flesh-in this, then, lies the hope of the world. In proportion as men by loving union with God be come citizens in heaven, do they be come true citizens of earth. In the words of others, "The soul of all improvement is the improvement of the soul;" "Social stability requires character and character requires religion;" the only revival of religion that will abate the social troubles of our time must be of a genuinely social religion. No man liveth to himself, and no man dieth to himself. Bear ye one another's burdens and so fulfil the law of Christ. "Love your enemies and The remedy for social discontent and dynamite bombs is Christianity as taught in the New Testament. Talk about the questions of the day! Like the legendary when encased in gold, the inordinate desire to be surrounded with that which gold can get, robs many a Christian of the sweetest music of

I believe that Christians as followers of Him who was meek and lowly in heart—as those who walk humbly with God—by precept and still more by example, should teach the age the needed lesson on the simplification of life. While with the advance in civilization here has been increased facility for the satisfying of human wants, the number and intensity of these wants have been still more increased. While man needs but little here below, his wants are innumerable and the effort to gratify them is the explanation of the rush and rivalry, the stress and strain of modern life, in the midst of which we cry:

"What shelter to grow ripe is ours, What leisure to grow wise?

We need to learn and live and teach: "How wise selection simplifying, life Supplanting what is evil by the good, And better things to best."

What would the religion of Jesus do with us? It would subordinate the physical and even the intellectual life to the life that is hid with Christ in God. It would give us a simplicity that would not be nerveless and lifeless, but one in which the currents of the divinely human life would pulsate with mighty power. In God—God in us, we would be in the world but not of graduating class in the seminary, old it; free for its salvation because free from its sin. We would not be satisded with waiting to walk upon the golden streets in the sweet by and by, but would be willing to work with ron shovels in the "nasty now." would not be with profiting in a worldly way through representing the ques-tionable or erroneous opinions of the WOLFVILLE, June 2.—Horton Colmany, but would be even glad to suffer in a Christ-like way for represent-ing the at first unwelcome but higher truths of God. We would be able to leave father, mother, wife—yea, even life itself for Christ's sake and the gospels'. Centred in God, we would be mentals of a liberal education. As the life of Jesus was a life of self-sacrificing simplicity and of en-thusiastic altruism, he who would be a follower of the "Strong Son of God" should be ready to endure hardness as a good soldier in the good fight of as a good soldier in the good fight of "Manuel Training," F. who are so much conformed to this selfish world that selfishness has still great and, it may be, increasing power in our hearts and lives, there comes through the ocean of God's love this loving message from the other shore: "Make Jesus King." To the great masses of mankind fighting against the elements, against themselves, against their God, there comes that living message charged with the electricity of God's love, "Make Jesus "Make Jesus King." Dear men and women; these words are spoken: "That ye may believe that Jesus is the Christ, the Son of God and that believing ye may have life in His name."

WOLFVILLE, N. S., June 1 .- Asembly hall of the college was filled on Saturday evening by an appreciative audience to listen to the combined talent of the institution. An orchestra composed of college students has been in practice during the year under the leadership of O. B. Keddy of the senior class. He is assisted by W. R. Haley of St. John, Avery DeWitt and A. Horwood, Truro, violinists; Frank Starr, clarionet; Avard Cohoon, trombone, and S. Denton and R. B. Dexter, cornets. They performed admirably and every selection was heartily encored. Miss Clara Drew, vocal teacher in the seminary, sang two beautiful solos, "Sunset" and "Abide With Me," which were enthusiasticalencored. Miss Lida Munro of Bridgetown, a graduate of vocal music two years ago, sang the "Creole Lover's Song," and was twice recalled. Miss Manatt, teacher of violin, gave two exquisite selections. Miss Drew and Miss Manatt have resigned their positions in Acadia Seminary, which they have filled so successfully. Miss Brown, elocution teacher, has also resigned.

THE DEATH ROLL.

Patrick Gleeson Passed Away Tuesday Morning.

of This Worthy Citizen.

reals with a thin love.

The death of Patrick Gleeson re moves a man who for over half a century was engaged in active life in this city, in close touch with the people and respected by them all. Mr. Gleeson came to this province from County Kerry when a boy, and had attained the age of 70 years. Until within the last year he was about town engaged in his usual avocations, apparently good for many years of life. A severe attack of grippe, and later an accidental fall, hastened his end.

The following biographical sketch of the late Mr. Gleeson is from the Freeman of March 17th, 1900:-"Mr. Gleeson was born in the parish of Aglish, between Killarney and Tralee, county of Kerry, and came to St. John with his parents in 1846. Educated in the private schools of that time, he started to make his way in life as a clerk for Edwin Ketchum, on the North wharf. In 1872 he became a member of the firm of Estabrooks & Gleeson, on the South wharf, and this firm continued in business until the fire of 1877, after which it was dissolved.

"In 1879, Mr. Gleson entered upon an important and responsible work in which he has since been engaged, in connection with other duties, the collections and supervision of other teriporal matters pertaining to His Lord ship Bishop Sweeney and the cathe dral. The collections of rents, the renting of pews and the general collections have all been entrusted to him under the Bishop's direction, and it is needless to say the work has been done faithfully and well.

"In 1880 Mr. Gleeson became collector of rentals, etc., of the city corporation. which position he still holds. His face is familiar to everybody, and while he is one of the best known men in St. John today, he is equally one of those most held in general regard. In the nature of his civic duties he is necessarily brought into contact with all classes of citizens, and very largely with those differing from him in religious belief, but he has invariably orne himself so as to win friends and antagonize none in whatever work he has been engaged. "Mr. Gleeson was an active member of Emerald No. 4, engine company in the old volunteer fire department, holding membership from 1854 until 1864, when the company was disbanded. From 1858 until the close he was sec retary of the company, and a handsome easy chair presented to him on his retirement shows the esteem in which he was held

THE TERMS OF PEACE

The terms of peace do not concede quite so much to the Boers as the synopsis first printed seemed to imply. The full text shows that the prisoners who are to be returned to their homes must first accept the status of British subjects, which will probably require them to take the oath of allegiance. The use of the Dutch language is not established in the courts. It may be allowed "for the better and more effective administration of justice." While Boers may possess rifles for sporting purposes, they must first procure a license in the usual British way. The question "of granting the franchise to natives, which is a sore taken up and will be left for settlement until self-government is established. The agreement that no taxes pare this with losses of 15,000 or more shall be levied to pay for the war ab-on each side at Gettysburg, or Chickamauga, or with the greater plies only to taxes on land, and does not exempt income or personal property. There is a fulier statement as to the appropriation of the $15,000,000 to re-stock the Boer farms. It does not appear to be very clear, but it seems to mean that the British govseems to mean that the British gov- killed outright; that the French had they appear to be less so than those 6,000 killed on the field, yet we do not offered by Britain to the Boers in say that these losses "stagger human ity." The total of 22,000, reported to ter ago the Burghers were offered a war, is made up of those who were full amnesty for all acts of war, the restoration of the prisoners, the establishment of representative government as soon as possible dual language, the restoration of farms and the payment in addition of $5,000,000 to meet the debt of the Boer government to the Boer people. Permission to use sporting arms was offered and the Kaffirs were to have no vote.

It will be seen that the Boers six teen months ago refused everything that they have accepted now, and that some concessions were then of fered that are now withheld.

AN OBJECT LESSON:

The advantage of a good harbo equipment is shown in the announce ment of future shipments of horses from this port for the imperial army. The Canadian Pacific Company has at this port the most convenient facilities for shipping cattle and horses that are to be found on the continent. When the imperial officers first came to Canada they decided on Portland as the place of shipment, concluding that no other port was prepared to handle the gods. That was not true at the time, but it was nearer true than it is now. Trial shipments were made here and Colonel Dent, after looking over the ground, became satisfied that there was no other Atlantic port so good as St. John for the shipment of horses from Canada. We have now not the winter business only, but the summer shipments also, and we have them because there is no place else so well prepared for the

The seat made vacant by death since the election is also considered uncer-tain, though the late government member carried it by a considerable majority. Dufferin, Aberdeen, Lansdowne and Lorne are so common as place names in Canada that they are commonplace. Seaview correctly represents the place which the name designates, but when we think of the number of Lakesides, Lakeviews, Riversides, Baysides, Bayviews and When a subscriber Bay Shores it seems wanting in distinctiveness. If it were absolutely necessary to find two new names these might be defended or at least explained away. But it is hard to see why people who found their home posessed of the unique, distinctive and aboriginal name of Pisarinco should allow it to be replaced by these commonplace and stereotyped modern productions. Many a community would deem it great good fortune to have by honest and ancient right so fine a name as that which has been banished from the postal guide. THE BOER WAR AND OTHER

It is about time to file a protes against the extreme language used in speaking of the war in South Africa as one of the most expensive and bloody, as well as one of the longest wars in history. While the loss of life in this war is not to be lightly spoken of, it is slight compared with the losses in some great wars of mo-dern times. The greatest loss of the British in killed and wounded in one action was not much over 1,000. Comernment will honor receipts given 5,000 killed and 14,000 wounded at for property requisitioned by com-5,000 men. Historians tell us that inne attack on Kars the Russians left killed and also those who died of wounds or disease. If there had been no fighting, many deaths from sickness would have occurred among the 350,000 men who were in South Africa at one time or another in the last three years. The ordinary death rate should be deducted from this list. Bu if we compare it as the record stands with the 600,000 lives computed to be lost in the United States civil war, or > our sense of proportion.

> The statement goes the round of the press that this has been the longest war of the last hundred years. Even so reliable a journal as the Toront Mail repeats this story, forgetting that the United States civil war was longer, and that the century includes the French wars. The United States is even now carrying on a war in the Philippines which began before Kruger issued his ultimatum, and bids fair to go on for years. The South African war ended as a war when Pretoria surrendered. Subsequent hostilities may be compared with the long chase of the United States after the Apaches, or the irregular opera-tions of British forces in India against with the loss in any other of the great wars of the century, we shall regain unorganized natives. There remains the statement that the cost of the war has been something ous. The sum usually men tioned is $1,000,000,000. This is consider ably more than any figures given b the chancellor of the exchequer, bu accepting it as correct, the price doe not necessarily "stagger humanity. The public expenditure by the Nort alone in the United States civil wan was more than five times the larges estimated cost of the war in Africa Early in the last century, when the population of Great Britain was about one-third what it is now, and when the income of the nation was not one sixth of the present income, more money was appropriated in a year of continental wars than the Boer war has cost in any twelve months. Year after year additions were made to the debt equal to half or two-thirds the total cost of the Beer war during the total revenue of last year under a scale of taxation much lower than prevailed in the time of the war with The war in Africa has not touched the national credit, nor imposed any serious financial strain upo the nation. Probably the larger part of the cost has been met out of current revenue, and only a smaller par by additions to the debt.

We do not desire to underrate th evils of this war, or of any war. The war in Africa is notable for many things. It proved that Great Britai can spare an army of 250,000 men for service in a distant land. It has cre ated confidence in the national transinfluence of the member who died in colonies sent troops to fight together ire is one nation, and that her peop nean to stand together in all times need. This truth may not stagg anity, but it promotes

THE HAPPY CONQUERED.

While the United States press gen-British government in the terms of fered to the Boers, some journals, like the Boston Globe, find great pleasure in representing the agreement as a triumph for the Burghers. One reading the Globe and accepting its view would suppose that the British had sued for peace and accepted terms from the Boers which gave the latter all they fought for. There is one advantage in these slanders. They show that even an enemy admits the lenithat even an enemy admits the leaders. If a writer starts out with the assumption that Great Britain be ing the Boers, confiscating their prerty, and enslaving the survivors. will reach the conclusion that the plan failed. But if we begin by accepting the statement made by the English statesmen at the beginning that they were fighting in Africa to defend the British colonies, and maintain the rights of British n the Transvaal, we see that Britain has gained what she sought. She has and Natal of the presence of two hos tile states. It is true that Britain ha got one thing that she did not claim before the war. She has acquired possession of the hostile quantry and made it British. That is a consequent of the Boer invasion, and was not an original demand. On the other hand the Boers have got nothing that they fought for. They fought to drive the English into the sea and the English are still on dry land. They claim that they fought to preserve their own complete independ nce of British influence. They have nstead become subjects of Great Belt ain. They have lost the independe that they had and with it their oppor

But they have gained a thing the did not want, and which will do then good. They have gained an opportun clear of a despotism. They have escaped from a narrow and corrupt tyrant, and may now discover the benefits of free education, civilized methods of hite and real courts of justice. They have secured without seeking it the abeliion of slavery in their land. In this way the Boers have gained a victory, not over Britain but over the tyranny under which they were born,

WASHINGTON, June 5 .- The president today sent to the house the report of Col. Crowder, who made the investigation of the charges of Gov. Heard of Louisiana, that neutrality laws were being violated at Chalmette, La. Secretary Hay in a letter to the governor of Louisiana, dated June 3, sums up the main facts as found by Col. Crowder and also gives the rules of international usages respecting the sale of goods to parties at war. Mr

Hay concludes as follows: "The right of our citizens to sell horses and mules and to ship them from New Orleans to any other port is as undoubted as their right to ship flour and meat, whether for the use of civilians or soldiers of the country of either belligerent. There is no shadow of excuse for the claim that there has been any violation of the duties and obligations of neutrality on the part of this country.

-Col. Crowder's report is an elaborate presentation of the conditions ex-isting at Chalmette, He sums up his findings of fact under six heads, which are substantially as follows:

KING'S CORONATION.

Central Feature of St. John's Celebration

Will be Laying of Corner Stone o the Monument at Memorial Park, North End.

There was a meeting at the City Hall Wednesday afternoon of the general committee chosen to take the necessary steps to properly celebrate the coronation of King Edward VII. It was decided without any dissenting voices that the military parade should take place in the morning. Ine several local corps will take part in the laying of the corner stone of the monument which is to be erected in memory of the St. John men who lost their lives in South Africa at Memoria park, Douglas avenue. Further than that the committee did not see their way clear to go. Many suggestions were made, and finally a sub-committee was named to consist of the heads of the military and the various organizations which propose to participate in the demonstration or people designated by them to represent the various organizations to discuss the further details. This committee will ther details. This committee will re-port to the general body as soon as possible. There were present at the meeting Mayor White, who presided, Revs. Dr. Wilson, W. H. Sampson, C. Col. Markham suggested that morning be devoted to the military end of the celebration. The several corps would parade and march to th new park to assist in the laying of the corner stone of the soldiers monument. Lt. Col. Jones, who was pre sent, could tell what would occur. Ar order would probably be received for the firing of a royal salute, which could be done at the Memorial park. That would leave the afternoon for the parades of the Polymorphians and other societies. Sports could also be set apart for the military parade and the laying of the corner stone.

This was seconded by Ald. Hamm Rev. Mr. Sampson asked when it was intended to start the military parade, and Col. Markham replied that it might begin at 10 o'clock. W. P. Dole asked if the polymor phians would not prefer to have the

Col. Jones remarked that it would not do for the two parades to clash. The military required their bands for their parade. If a salute were fired it must be done at 12 o'clock noon. As the polymorphians needed the bands, the matter should be looked into very carefully. He suggested two small polymorphians to inquire fully into the best time for the various events.

Dr. Gilchrist thought the laying of the corner stone should take place about 11 o'clock in the morning. If there is any person more unhappy than the dyspeptic it would be hard to find him. Dyspeptie people are generally tortured by a constant desire for things they know they must not eat. Dyspepsia is a very common disease; most people, particularly those who do not take enough exercise, are inclined to it more or less frequently. The dyspeptic generally has recourse to various medicines which only offer temporary relief from the distress, but do not effect a cure. What the dyspeptic needs is

Dr. Williams' Pink Pills

FOR PALE PEOPLE.

These pills are not a purgative but are tonic and strengthening. They act upon the stomach, nerves and blood, and are particularly good for dyspepsia and all stomach troubles. They give relief, but they do more than that. They remove the cause of the trouble and by strengthening the organs they effect a permanent cure.

Mr. William Birt, Pisquid, P.E.I., is one who suffered for years, and relates his experience for the benefit of similar sufferers. Mr. Birt says:—"For many years I was a victim of indigestion, accompanied by nervousness, palpitation of the heart and other distressing symptoms. My appetite was irregular, and what I ate felt like a weight in my stomach; this was accompanied by a feeling of stupor or sleepiness, and yet I rarely, enjoyed a night's sound sleep. When I would retire a creeping sensation would come over me, with pains and fluttering around the heart, and then when I arose in the morning, I would feel as tired and fatigued as I did before I went to bed. It is needless to say that I was continually taking medicine, and tried, I think, almost everything recommended as a cure for the trouble. Occasionally I got temporary relief, but the trouble always came back, usually in a still more aggravated form. One day a neighbor, who had used Dr. Williams' Pink Pills with much benefit, advised me to try them, and I decided to do so. To my gratification, I had only been using the pills a few weeks when I felt decidedly better, and things began to look brighter. I continued taking the pills for several months, with the result that my health was as good and my digestion better than it had ever been. One of the most flattering results of the treatment was my increase in weight from 125 pounds to 155 pounds. It is more than a year now stace I discontinued the use of the pills and in that time I have not had the slightest return of the trouble. We always keep the pills in the house now, and my family have used them for other ailments with the same gratifying results."

Dr. Williams's Pink Pills make new, rich blood with every dose, and in this way they cure all diseases having their origin in poor or watery blood, such as dyspepsia, kidney and liver troubles, stomach ailments, rheumatism, sciatica, partial paralysis, St. Vitus dance and anæmia. They restore the glow of health to pale and sallow cheeks and give renewed health to women whose lives are made miserable by the ailments that afflict their sex.

Refuse all so-called tonic pills that do not have the full name "Dr. Williams' Pink Pills for Pale People" on every box. If you do not find them at your dealers they will be sent post paid at 50 cents a box or six boxes for $2.50 by addressing the Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

A NORTHUMBERLAND MAN.

Samuel Russell, the member elect for East Hastings in the new Ontario legislature, is a New Brunswicker, a native of Northumberland county, and a graduate of the University of New Brunswick. For some years. Mr. Russell was a tutor in the samily of the late Alonso Wright, M. P., for Ottawa county, and finally drifted into journalism at Deseronto, Ont. He was a member of the last Ontario legislature and was re-elected last week by a substantial majority. Mr. Russell who occupies a prominent position in his party is a liberal, and a credit to his native province and his alma mater, with which he keeps up his connection and interest by maintaining membership in the alumni society.

The bridal wreath is usually formed of myrtle branches in Germany; it its made of orange blossoms in France, as well as in our own country; in Italy and the French cantons of Switzerland it is of white roses; in Spain, the flowers of which it is composed are red roses and pinks; in the islands of Greece, vine leaves serve the purpose, and in Bohemia rosemany is employed; in German Switzerland, a crown of artificial flowers takes the place of the wreath.

Brings Biliousness, Indigestion and Most Painful Bodily Derangements - The Wenderful Curative Influence of

Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills.

Not only is the liver the largest and one of the most important organs in the human body, but when deranged it becomes the source of endless suffering. When the liver is clogged by the inactivity of the kidneys and bowels, it becomes torpid and fails to filter the bile from the blood, thus producing biliousness and a general impairment of the

There is little use of treating the liver separately, as it can never be set right until the kidneys and bowels are made active in removing the waste matter from the body. It is for this very reason that Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills have always proved so wonderfully successful in curing the most chronic cases of hier complaint, billousness and complicated aliments of the kidney, liver and bowels.

Revised Presbyterian Confession of Faith Discussed—Rev. D. J. Fraser of St. Stephen's Church Preaches the Changed Creed, Its Causes and Probable Results.

In St. Stephen's church last Sunday Rev. D. J. Fraser, from the stundpoint of a minister of the Canadian Presbyterian church, preached upon the recent revision of the Westminster ession, adopted in the United States General Assembly. His serme was a scholarly discussion of the changes made, the demands that had up to them and their results. His text was: John 3: 16: "God so loved the world that He gave His only begotten Son, that whosoever believeth in Him should not perish but have eternal life.

the Presbyterian Church of the United States north means in substance that the glorious gospel of this text is givin favor of revision, I outlined to you were laid down for the guidance of the committee of revision; and the outcome of its work is precisely in accord with those instructions, and has been adopted with practical unanimity by the asembly. The Presbyterian Church North has a membership of more than a million souls. It annually contributes through its own denominational channels about eighteen millions of dollars. It is fairly representative—to say the least—of the intelligence and cience of the American nation. And in view of the fact that it has now taken one of the most important steps in its history, I may be allowed to reasked by many of our citizens what its most enterprising newspapers have not made the matter quite plain to popular mind.

Let me then at the outset make a matter-of-fact statement of what the assembly has really done. By far the most important and most difficult part of the committee's work was the preparation of what is called a statement of the reformed faith." The statement is brief, containing only sixteen articles; and is expressed in untechnical language. It is not to be a substitute for the Confession of Faith or to be a test of prthodoxy for min-üsters, elders or deacons; it has not been adopted as a part of the law of the church; it is simply published with the approval of the assembly, for the instruction of the people and for a better understanding of our doctrinal beliefs. It is a simple, direct statement of Presbyterian doctrine for the benefit of the laity; and every article in it can be preached from the pulpit. In view of the questions concerning inspirations that have inevitably arisen in conection with modern biblical criticism, it is interesting to read in the article on Revelation these same and tolerant words: "We gratefully receive the Holy Scriptures, given by inspiration, to be the faithful record of God's gracious revelations and the sure witness to Christ, as the Word of God, the only infallible rule of faith and life." No statement could be more admirable than that, and it will be as acceptable to liberals as to conservatives. It does not bind the Presbyterion church to any dogma of inspir-ation. It offers no opposition to the modern critical study of the Bible. It is absolutely true to the words of Christ: "These are they which testify of me." and to the language of St. Paul: "Every scripture, inspired of God, is also profitable." This is no new attitude on the part of the Presence attitude byterian church, for the teaching of the old confession on the doctrine of inspiration was wonderfully wise and comprehensive and spiritual.

The statement of the eternal purpose of God is also admirable, setting forth the sublime truth, as it does not in academic fashion, but in relation to Caristian life: "We believe that the eternal, wise, holy and loving purpose of God embraces all events, so that while the freedom of man is not taken away nor is God the author of sin, yet in His providence He makes all things work together in the fulfilment of His sovereign designs and the manifestation of His glory; wherefore, humbly acknowledging the mystery of this truth we trust in His protecting care truth, we trust in His protecting care and set our hearts to do His will." That is a word of genuine comfort to the Christian soul in the midst of

These statements, however, have not been made a binding law—they have not been erected into dogmas—they are simply a vital expression of the church's belief and published for the instruction of the people. Now when we come to the actual work of revision of the Westminster Confession, we find that the assembly has adopted the nine overtures of the committee. The first of these is a broad declaratory statement, in which we find these significant words: "The has adopted the nine overtures of the decommittee. The first of these is a need has not been felt among us to the broad declaratory statement, in which we find these significant words: "The ordination vows of ministers, ruling elders and deacons, requires the reception and adoption of the Confession of faith by means of those heresy trials and that the faith of the church has all the Presbyterian doctrine open to actually changed during the last half and Schmidt, from Grand Canary Islands.

Faith, only so containing the syste of doctrine in the Holy Scriptures. This means that the Bible is the su preme standard of the church and that the ordination vow to be loyal to the Confession of faith does not mean the acceptance of every word or phrase in it. The confession is accepted merely as an orderly exposition of the teach-ings of the Bible. The Canadian church has no such declaratory state-ment, but for years it has allowed full liberty to its ministers to interpret the confession in the light of its historic setting, and there has been no disposi The recent revision of the Confession tion on our part to bind the conscience of Faith by the General Assembly of of any office-bearer in the church by the literal words of the Westminster divines. Such year ago, when the assembly decided a declaratory statement, however, in our own church would doubtless serve a splendid purpose in removing the conscientious scruples and preventing the heart-aches of many intellectually honest candidates for ordination. Nearly every young man who seeks admission to our ministry feels that th wording of the vows is too binding, and sensitive consciences are often torn with fear that they have sacrificed their honesty. It is a great misfortune that the finest type of young man can only enter our ministry at the risk of injury to his moral charac-The second overture refers to

The statement in the Westminster Confession decision precisely means, and even our was: "By the decree of God for the manifestation of His glory, some men and angels are predestinated unto everlasting life, and others forcordained to everlasting death." Long ago this teaching was repudiated by pur pulpits, but it was not eliminated from our confession; and we have found it difficult to square our creed with the world of candid thought. The new statement is: "The doctrine of God's eternal decree is held in harmony with the doctrine of His love to all mankind, His gift of His Son to be the propitiation for the sins of the whole world, and His readiness to bestow his saving grace on all who seek it God sires not the death of any but has provided in Christ a salvation sufficient for all, adapted to all and freely offered in the gospel to all; men are fully responsible for their treatment of God's gracious offer; His decree hinders no man from accepting that offer; and no man is condemned except on the ground of his sin." There the repudiation of that salvation which is popularly associated with the doctrine of election—and the unmistakable rejection of the old dogma of a love of God and missions, in which we begotten Son-an infinite sacrifice—that Burns' rough satire on such a doctrine as held in his day and the popular charge against the teaching of the conlession are not just to Presbyterian be lief. Some Presbyterians may have beleved that not all infants are saved and some of us may think it unwise to erect our hope of universal salvation of infants into a dogma of the church: confession that any infants dying in infancy were lost, and the almost universal belief in the Presbyterian church is that they are all saved. There are churches that teach at the present day and govern their practice by their belief that only baptized children will enter into the kingdom of heaven. But this is not the Presbyterian doctrine and never was. At the same time the language of the Westminster divines was easily construed to meet this; and therefore the American assembly has adopted this statement: "We believe that all dying in infancy are included in the election of grace, and are regenerated and saved by Christ through the spirit, who works when and where and how He pleases." No change was made in our doctrine; simply a new expression was given to our faith—a statement so clear and unmistakeable that even the caviller is silenced.

The next four overtures refer minor points, to which I will not make further quote the article that deals extended reference. They eliminate with the last judgment: "We believe the statements that the works of unregenerate men are necessarily sinful, again in glorious majesty to judge the that it is a sin to refuse a lawful oath, world and to make final separation be- and that the Pope of Rome is the anti-with us conditions are different. The confession of faith finds place in very few of our homes, and when it does it is relegated to the distant shelf of the library. Ministers do not study it; church members do not read it; the public is ignorant of its contents. If public is ignorant of its contents. If circumstances arose among ourselves to give it publicity, we should hasten to repudiate several of its teachings. But at present not sufficient interest is taken in the venerable document to make us feel the necessity of change. These two reasons account for the fact that a progressive step has been taken by one of the most conservative churches in the world, while our Canadian church, which is far more liberal and comprehensive in spirit, has faken no action. This is not a constructive age—not a creed-making age: structive age-not a creed-making age; and not until criticism has spoken a Westminster Confession of Faith will final word shall our church hasten to prepare a new statement of our belief. We may be thankful that we have been spared the conditions of agitation that have made revision a necessity on the part of our neighbors. But there has been a third cause of quite possible to put side by side with he action of the American The evangelical revivals of the last half century—notably the great revival under the leadership of Messrs Moody and Sankey—gave the church an entirely new consciousness of the bower and significance of the Holy Spirit; and yet there was no adequate recognition in the constitution of the sand yet there was no adequate recognition. nition in the creed of the church of the Holy Spirit and His gracious work. Moreover, during the last half century a new emphasis has been placed on the love of God. The spirit of mis- ing of new wine into old bottles will sions has given the church a new vision of the universal Fatherhood of God. The love of God is recognized today as never before, as the essence of the gospel of Christ; and the desire naturally arose to give expression in the creed to the love of God. This was hardly mentioned in the old confession of faith. The Divine justice was its predominating note. Stern righteousness was the characteristic quality of the old puritage and they emphasized the character of God as essentially righteous, but we have entered into a clearer of the creed to the love of God. This was truth—and this the American assembly has prepared—and also a further statement of what Henry Van Dyke, one of the revision committee and the moderator of this historic assembly, has repeatedly emphasized in his beautiful writings, our faith in God as having elected the church not primarily to a love of the knowledge of the truth—and this the American assembly has prepared—and also a further statement of what Henry Van Dyke, one of the revision committee and the moderator of this historic assembly, has repeatedly emphasized in his beautiful writings, our faith in God as having elected the church not primarily to a love of the knowledge of the truth—and this the American assembly has prepared—and also a further statement of what Henry Van Dyke, one of the revision committee and the moderator of this historic assembly, has repeatedly emphasized in his beautiful writings, our faith in God as having elected the church not primarily to a love of the knowledge of the knowledge of the knowledge of the knowledge of the truth—and this the American assembly has prepared—and also a further state—ment of what Henry Van Dyke, one of the revision committee and the moderator of the knowledge of the knowledge of the truth—and this the American assembly has prepared—and also a further state—ment of what Henry Van Dyke, one of the knowledge of the never before, as the essence of the old puritians and they emphasized the character of God as essentially righteous, but we have entered into a clearer consciousness of the love of God—not for the elect, but for all—not withheld from any, but offered freely to all men everywhere—for the redemation and of set this forth without each limit of the set this set this forth without each limit of the set this set th expression in the new chapter on the universal love—that He gave His only limited atonement—that Christ died find these unequivocal deliverances. The modern missionary enterprise has been born since the seventeenth century, and owes its origin to the new consciousness of the love of the Heavenly Father for all His Children. It was inevitable, therefore that a statement of the menuscript of the result of the origin to the new consciousness of the love of the Heavenly Father for all His that a statement of the vital faith of the present-day church should emphasize the love of God and the duty of

I have tried to give you thus a brief statement of the American revision of the Westminster comfession of faith, and if you wish to know my personal estimate of its value and significance I have no hesitancy about taking you into my confidence. It seems to me that the revision was a necessity, owing to the local circumstances—and that the work of the American assembly was the best possible amid actual conditions—but that it is merely a compromise between the old and new theology, and as such can yield no permantic statement of the date of the Christian missions. ogy, and as such can yield no perman-ent satisfaction. It represents the wisest and best course that was practicable, but not the ideally best. In the first general assembly of the Christian church, a compromise was effected between two conflicting parties on the difficult questions of eating meats sacrificed to idols, and the necessity of circumeiston, and we read in the acts of the Arbstles that the decision was reached vader the guidance of the Holy Spirit, The compromise, however, simply met a present emergency, and was found to be quite unsatisfactory as a church, a compromise was effected be found to be quite unsatisfactory as a working theory in future history. It was practically ignored by St. Paul and his Gentile converts and events fook their course just as if the fathers and brethren in Jerusalem had made no decree at all. If we believe that the Holy Spirit still guides the councils of the church, we must heartily acquiesce in the compromise of the American as-sembly, but we may refuse to believe the circumstances, nothing better could have been accomplished; but if conditions were ideal, as we hope they will be when the Canadian church underwould, I think, be this to put the Westminster confession reverently on the shelf as one of the historic battle odes of the Reformed church and to prepare, in modern lanuguage and in terms of modern thought, a brief, simple, comprehensive statement of what we most surely believe.
