It isn't always true that the wearer of good clothes is worthy of them, and neither is it the fact that the worthy man always wears good clothes. But the reason in the latter instance is, as a rule, that he cannot afford to do so. Every man loves a perfect-fitting suit of clethes, made in the fashion and of the best insteriols. They add to his self-confidence, and to his success in life more than many men suspect. Well, just now, DKEKS & MUNSON, the leading merchant tailors, are offering the balance of Tweeds and Summer Suitings at prices so reasonable as to be within easy reach. Michigan Miners Get a Raise of Ten Per Cent.

M. C. R. Trackmen's Wages Restored to the Old Standard-The Situation in Cleveland.

Cleveland, Aug. 2.-Secretary Keep, of the Lake Carriers' Association, has received a communication from National President George B. Uhler, of the Marine Engineers' Beneficial Association. WANT TO HEAR FROM HANNA. More than half the employes of the Little Consolidated Company have been initiated into the union of the Big Consolidated's former employes, and a dispatch has been sent to Senator M. A. Hanna, who is in France, asking him if, as president of the Little Consolidated Company, he will recognize the union. No answer has been yet received to the cablegram.

EMPTY CARS. The Big Consolidated officials state that every line in their system was in full operation today, and on the more important lines the regular schedule was maintained. The cars running down town on the Euclid and Cedar avenue lines were fairly well filled this morning. On the other twelve lines in the Big Consolidated system, however, they were comparatively empty at an hour when they are usually crowded.

UNCHANGED.

Cleveland, Ohio, Aug. 2.—There was practically no change in the strike situation here today. President Everett, of the Big Consolldated, declares that his company has about all the men required, and the service now maintained on the various lines of the system is equal to that which was in force prior to the strike. The "spotters" sent out by the strikers are on evidence every-where along the Big Consolidated lines. They board the cars if there happens to be any passengers, and endeavor to learn their names. Failing in this, the passengers are followed to their homes or places of business, and as a result in most cases go down on the "list." IN LABOR'S FIELD After the Guban War

Hot Roast of American Methods an alliance has been concluded between Brazil and Argentine." in the Philippines.

Some of the Good Results of The Hague Conference.

The Dominion's Transvaal Resolutions Appreciated in England--An Action That "Carries Moral Weight."

Madrid, Aug. 2.-Major-General Toral, on trial by court martial, charged with surrendering Santiago de Cuba to the Americans, without exhausting all means of defense, contended Santiago was not a fortified town in the meaning of the regulations, which modifies the circumstances from a point of view of military justice. Gen. Toral contends that he was not liable for responsibility laid down in article 295 of the code, since he was not the governor, and had not the chief power, but was subject to the orders of the general-in-chief. He lacked independence and was accordingly not responsible. Gen. Toral points out that the minister of war, who, on different occasions, had given orders to him (Toral), had on the eve of capitula-tion given him full liberty to capitulate, and that Governor-General Blanco, in complaining to the govern-ment, kept silence regarding what he had previously said in opposition to capitulation.

The defense argued that Gen. Toral had not exceeded his powers, and had received a minute drawn up by American officers who took part in the fighting about Santiago, recognizing the courage of Gen. Linares, the former commander at Santiago, who was compelled to retire because of a wound; of Gen. Toral, and of all the Spanish officers participating in the battle of Santiago, where the Americans were superior in numbers and artillery, and admitting that the town could not have received reinforcements.

GEN. PAREJI'S DEFENSE. Gen. Pareji, in his defense, said the garrison of the city of Santiago de Cuba lacked food, many of the soldiers having died of hunger. Previously, however, he added, the troops fought bravely, and many officers and men were killed. In addition the hospitals lacked medicines. The general read several telegrams exchanged between the authorities at Washington and Major-General Shafter, the latter showing himself confident of forcing the surrender of Santiago. Another Spanish officer testified that when he Spanish omcer testined entered Santiago he found three-quarters of the troops sick. Gen. Rubi gave testimony to the fact that further resistance would have been equivalent to the death of the remainder of the troops. Col. Ordonnez testified that he was blockaded, and therefore did not take part in the conference when it was decided to surrender. But, he said, he believed all means of resistance had been exhausted, though, perhaps, the capitulation might have been avoided by an attempt to break through the enemy's lines, causing much bloodshed. But, he added, the spirit of the troops was weakened when they lost hope of outside help. The defense will insist upon a complete acquittal.

GOOD RESULTS OF THE HAGUE CONFERENCE.

The London correspondent of the London Times regards the increased friendship resulting from The Hague conference as one of the striking features of the meeting at The Hague, and says it has been effected at no-body's expense and without seeking selfish ends of any kind. It has been done in the promotion of a good work destined to lift humanity at large, and thus more likely to prove sound and

Mr. Holls, secretary of the American elegation, says: "There are a few facts that are better than any argument. It is a fact that nearly all of the eminent diplomatists who were delegated to the conference came here months ago skeptical, if not cynically pessimistic, and it was freely rumored that they were to leave the work to their underlings. Yet hardly one has been absent from a single sitting, and those who were most ready to stop at the beginning are now most deeply impressed with the value of our work."

AMERICAN METHODS ROASTED. The special artist of the London Daily Graphic, now in the Philippine Islands, has been indulging in a vigorous growl at the treatment to which he says he has been subjected by the authorities, who are so deficient in common sense, to say nothing of courtesy, as to forbid an artist the assistance which he might provide for himself by engaging servants to carry the food the military authorities decline to supply even now on payment. He adds: "If this cam-paign were conducted by the British there would be officers commanding at the base and lines of communications, roads would be repaired, streams would be bridged or ferries established, and supply trains would be moved along, establishing depots. I have accompanied British expeditions where these characteristics prevailed, but this is the first campaign I have seen in which the transport service was systematically neglected. Even the Chinese established depots in 1894. But here you cannot be taken by cart from Manila to San Tomas, by road, without having to swim streams. But for a bit of single railway line the troops would be starved on this line of operations. As it is, they are but fed from hand to

PRAISE FOR THE NEW PEER. The London morning papers express the greatest satisfaction at the elevation to the peerage of Sir Julian Pauncefote, and the opportunity is taken to pay a tribute to his valued work at The Hague. The Times comments especially upon the fact that owing largely to Sir Julian Pauncefote the result of the conference has been to establish a still closer bond be-tween Great Britain and the United

WEIGHT. The Daily News today says: The most interesting news today about the Transvaal crisis is the vote of sympathy of the Uitlanders in the Boer republic passed with such unanimity by the Canadian Parliament yesterday. The Pall Mall Gazette says the resolution and the manner in which it was received carries a moral weight impossible to ignore. The Daily Telegraph says it would be difficult to overrate the moral significance of the inci-

Particulars have reached Plymouth by the British and African Company's steamer Volta, of an expedition of the Niger Company's forces, which had just returned as fhe mail left. A force of 100 men, under Capt. Burdon and Lieut. Eaton, were dispatched into the Bassa country to punish the king, who lately has considerably interfered with trading parties. The expedition ac-complished its object, taking the king prisoner after storming the chief town. The fighting was very severe. CABLE NOTES

Government Remodeled-Kingship and Presidency Abolished.

Apia, Samoa, July 26, via Auckland, New Zealand, Aug. 2.—At a meeting of the Samoan commissioners, just held, both parties signed an agreement abolishing the kingship and president, and agreeing to an administrator, with a legislative council of three tripartite nominees. At a meeting of the Malietoa party, the speakers expressed a desire for annexation as the best solution of the question in dispute, but they did not set forth by what country they desired to be annexed. United States Consul Osborne will act as chief justice. Zolf, the German president of the municipal council, claimed the right to act as chief justice under the treaty, but the commission withholding its unanimous consent, Dr. Zolf resigned the office of president, as he claimed the commission's action was an insult to his honor and nationality. The Ger-man commissioner, Baron Speck Von Sternberg, prevailed upon Dr. Zolf to withdraw his resignation in favor of Mr. Osborne.

Public Should Know the Special Detectives Carry Them,

So Says County Crown Attorney Magee.

James Barrett Committed for Trial-Riot Cases Still Turn Out Small Potatoes-Police Court Grind.

Albert McNamara, pleaded not guilty to a charge of rioting on July. 8. P. C. Egelton testified that he had seen McNamara turn the switch at Lyle and Dundas streets, just before the car on which Rigney was hurt came up. While the car was waiting for the switch to be set, so that the car could be run into the barn, Rigney, was hurt.

Cross-examined, Egelton said he had seen McNamara do nothing else that afternoon. He had seen Constable Morgan fix the switch for the barn just as the Rigney car was approaching. Ten or fifteen minutes earlier Goodacre had closed the switch, but it had been subsequently opened. Witspoken to McNamara, and ness had touched him on the shoulder when he was stooping to close the switch, and the latter had said he was not interfering with the switch. Egelton had not turned the switch for the barn, and did not know who turned it nor when it was done. Witness had known McNamara for some years. He had always borne a good reputation.

McNamara was committed for trial, ball being fixed at $200. Another charge against McNamara, of standing around after the proclamation was read, was withdrawn with the consent of County Crown Attorney

Frank Bissett was charged with rioting. P. C. Monaghan testified that he had seen Bissett throw three stones at a street car on the evening of July He did not know whether any of them hit the car. Outside of this witness knew nothing against Bissett. The car thrown at was one of four cars coupled together, and being taken in by Detective Nickle and P. C. Humis-Bissett was committed for trial, bail being fixed at $200. James Barrett was charged under section 262 of the criminal code with throwing stones at a street car.

George France, one of the street railway company's private detectives, said he was on a car going south on Richmond street on the evening of July 25. and upon reaching the switch point at Central avenue witness saw man standing about six feet from the west sidewalk. By the time the car had gone about 30 feet Barrett drew back his hand and fired a stone at him, at the same time swearing at witness. The stone rassed close to France's side, and struck the sash of the window at the rear end of the car. The conductor pulled the bell. and witness and conductor got off. Barrett stepped on the sidewalk. France asked him what he fired the stone for. Barrett had denied throwing a stone. Then Barrett had asked witness if he was a Pinkerton, and had given his name as Sullivan. Then Rarrett whistled, and a crowd of 12 or 15 people started to come towards them from the opposite corner. Bar-rett asked him what he wanted and came towards him. Witness told him to keep away, and had then struck him with his billy on the cheek. Barrett had staggered after the blow and then gathered himself up and came toward him again, and said, "You shan't move that car. You struck me." France had then backed away, got onto the car and came down town, where he reported the matter to P. C. Egelton and to the chief. Witness didn't know how big the stone was, but he had found a stone on the pavement next

From his pocket the witness produced a quarter-pound cobble-stone, which he said he had picked up near the spot.

Cross-examined by Mr. McPhillips France said he had come to London May 26. He had never seen Barrett before that night. He didn't know whether there was an electric light at the corner of Central avenue and Richmond street. He didn't know whether there was any light from the stores nor whether the buildings there were private houses or stores. Witness wouldn't say whether there was any other light than from the moon and stars, and didn't know whether or not there was moonlight that night or not. Barrett was nearly opposite the fountain at the corner but whether north or south witness didn't know. After finding out that the man's name was Sullivan. France had not made the arrest because he was afreid. At Mr. McPhillins' request France produced from his hip pocket the billy with which he had struck Barrett.

Ottawa, Aug. 2.—When the house as-sembled yesterday the galleries were crowded with people eager to witness the ceremony of electing a new speaker. The mace was placed beneath the table, as when the house is in committee, and the clerk occupied his usual seat at the head of the table.

The premier rose and said:

"The governor-general having been informed of the death of Sir James Edgar, is pleased to give leave to the house to proceed to the choice of a speaker. Sir John Bourinot," continued the prime minister, addressing the clerx of the house, "the melancholy event which we have to deplore yesterday now brings us to the duty of selecting a new speaker to preside over the duty of the house. It is the deliberations of the house. It is mere truism to assert that the office of the speaker of the House of Commons is one of the most important of all those that can be either given by the crown or conferred by the people. Our system of government rests upon the basis of free and untrammeled discussion, and the duty of presiding over the deliberations of the House of Commons, where this free and untrammeled discussion must take place, is, we must admit, one of the most difficult and delicate, when we remember that the object is, as it ought to be, to maintain absolute impartiality between all parties in this house, to keep even the scales of justice, and to give the same measure to all, to maintain the dignity and decorum of this tain the dignity and decorum of this house, to keep intact those rules and traditions which many generations have handed down to us as the best ever devised by man for the government of a free people. The office of speaker therefore, is one which requires many and varied qualities. It requires, first of all, long experience on the floor of the house. Because, without experience, all other qualities, however great, would be of little avail. It requires a prompt and sound judgment, independence of mind, firmjudgment, independence of mind, firmness of temper, and if to all those qualities is added gentleness and kindness of disposition, we may well say perfection would well-nigh be reached. I submit to the judgment of the bouse and the judgment of the reached. I submit to the judgment of the house and the judgment of the members who came here at the last elections, and above all, to the judgment of those who have been long associated with the house, that all these qualities are possessed in an eminent, degree by one of our coland most experienced members these qualities are possession on of our col-eminent degree by one of our col-leagues, Mr. Thomas Bain, member for leagues, Mr. Thomas Bain, member for clothing contracts, and were determin-Wentworth, in the Province of On-Wentworth, in the Province tario. Mr. Bain is one of the oldest tario. Mr. Bain is one of the oldest house. He entered the house in the st eating system on the ground that most brilliant period of parliamen-tary government in Canada. He entered it at a time when parliamentary science was represented on the floor of the house to speak of the dead only — by such men as Sir John Macdonald, Sir Louis Dorion, Sir Alexander Galt, and Sir John Abbott. A man who has been trained in such a school must have acquired a great nowkledge, which must stand him in good stead in the chair. Apart from these reasons, I appeal to the judgment of everyone in this house that the member for Wentworth, being often called upon to preside over the committee of the whole, has given signal evidence of his fairness of mind and impartiality and soundness of judgment. This vacant chair has been adorned and graced by members whose names will live in history of Canada, and I venture to predict that if Mr. Bain is elected to the chair, as I am sure he will, he will prove a worthy successor of the men who have left such honorable records behind them. I beg, therefore, to move that Mr. Thomas Bain, member for the electoral district of the south riding of Wentworth, do take the chair of the house as speaker.

This announcement of the premier was received with applause from both sides of the house. Sir Charles Tupper said: "I rise for the purpose of saying that I believe that I am expressing the sentiments of this side of the house when I say that the honorable gentleman who has the good fortune to be named by the government to this high office is worthy of everything that has been said of him by the leader of the government in making his motion. I am quite sure that every person who has nad the privilege of sitting in this house with the honorable member for Wentworth agrees in the statement that whether as a member of the house or when he has frequently occupied the position of chairman of the committee, or occasionally occupying the position of speaker, temporarily, his duties have been always discharged in an independent, able and impartial manner that commends him to the entire approval, I believe, of this

Sir John Bourinot then put the motton, which was unanimously carried, after which Sir John said: I declare Mr. Thomas Bain unanimously elected to the chair of speaker of this house.

MR. SPEAKER BAIN. When Mr. Bain rose to proceed to the chair his colleagues on both sides cheered him lustily, and his desk mate, Mr. McMullen, shook him heartily by hand. Sir Wilfrid Laurier and Mr. Fielding met him at the foot of the cisic which happens to be between the desks of these two ministers, and escorted him to the dais. Then, when he turned to the house, the premier the finance minister bowed to him, the members cheered again, and in the calm, musical voice that is such a striking characteristic, the newlyelected speaker addressed the house as follows: "I beg respectfully to thank the House of Commons for the honor they have conferred on me in elect-ing me unanimously as their speaker. ing me unanimously as their speaker.

I feel specially grateful for the kindly way in which the honorable leader of the opposition has expressed himself, and I can assure the house that it will be my best endeavor to discharge the duties attached to my office with justice and, impartiality. I can only appeal to gentlemen on both sides when I feel sensible of my inability to effi-ciently discharge those duties, and I ask for their earnest and kind co-operation for the preservation of the rights and privileges and duties attaching to the House of Commons from time far gone past."

Sir Wilfrid Laurier informed the gone past."
Sir Wilfrid Laurier informed the house that his excellency would be in new speaker at 4 o'clock, and the house adjourned until that time.

IN THE SENATE CHAMBER. At 4 o'clock the members of the House of Commons attended in the senate chamber, where his excellency had taken his seat on the throne. The galleries were full and a great deal of interest was taken in the proceedings. a large number of visitors being pre-sent to see the first farmer who has occupied the position assume the duties of first commoner of the Dominion. Advancing to the bar of the senate, the speaker-elect of the commons, who was clothed in his robes of office, doffed was clothed in his robes of office, doned his three-cornered hat and announced to his excellency that he had been chosen by the House of Commons as their speaker, and he prayed that any errors he might make might be imputed to him alone, and not to the commons, whose servant he was. His excellency doffed his hat; the speaker of the senate conveyed his approval and the commons returned to their The newly-elected speaker then read prayers in the presence of crowded galleries, an unusual proceeding.

GOVERNMENT INSPECTION OF BANKS. Mr. Monk (Jacques Cartier, in view of the recent financial disturbance in Montreal, asked that the government appoint a bank inspector in order to restore public confidence.

Mr. Fielding said he fully realized the importance of the question, and he would give the question due consideration. It has been represented to the government that the appointment of such inspectors would have a somewhat misleading effect upon the public mind, and that inspection at the best would not be thorough. Unless it was full and complete it would be far bet-ter that there should be no inspection at all on the part of the government. Mr. Fielding said an amendment to the banking act would be brought in at the next session, and the appoint-ment of an inspector would be considered meanwhile. TROOPS IN THE YUKON. The house then went into supply, and the supplementary estimates for the militia contingent in the Yukon were taken up. Dr. Borden stated, in reply to a question, that it had been decided to withdraw one-half of the troops as soon as arrangements had been made with the United States authorities for the troops to land at Skaguay, Col. Hughes expressed the hope that Skaguay was not a United States port. Dr. Borden explained that under existing conditions there was no way of getting the troops out unless by landing at a port which is now held by the

THE SWEATING SYSTEM. Mr. Bergeron again brought up the question of the manner in which Messrs. Workman & Company of Montreal, had carried out the work under their contract for militia clothing. He read a statement showing that a large number of trousers and overcoats were made by parties outside the Workman factory. Although the Workman Company had got the contract at a higher figure on condition that the work would not be given out. Dr. Borden explained that the Work-man Company had been given a rush order, and had to let the work out to get it done in time. Dr. Borden ex-plained that the government had, at the request of the labor organizations, ed to abide by it, as far as possible. Sir Charles Tupper, Mr. Foster, Dr. Montague and Mr. Wallace upheld the

the work was done in the homes of the garment workers. Mr. Mulock strongly denounced the sweating system. He said it was a square issue between the opposition and the government as to the pro-priety of the government paying $2,000 more for the work to be done under proper sanitary conditions and at proper wages. The government was prepared to accept that issue and go before the country upon the point, that the work should be done by competent workmen at the current rate of wages and under proper sanitary conditions, instead of the continuation of the old system under which the lives were ground out of the people.

The item passed.

Mr. Foster criticised the militia estimates as too high.

Dr. Borden argued that if an expenditure of a million and a quarter gave a militia force which was not effective, and a quarter of a million more would make it effective, it was good policy to give the money spend the extra quarter of a million, and that was the policy which the government had adopted.

RAILWAYS AND CANALS. The remainder of the supplementary estimates for the militia were passed, and the items under the head of railways and canals capital account were The vote on capital account for the Intercolonial Railway amounting to $699,718 were passed, also several small items for canals.

THIS MORNING'S SESSION. Ottawa, Ont., Aug. 2. - The house presented a prorogation look when it met at 11 o'clock today. There were very few members in their seats. Mr. Davin complained that there was no quorum at the privileges and elections committee, and charged the ministers with having burked investigation. Mr. Sifton said that the statement was not true. Mr. Davin asked that this statement be withdrawn. Mr. McMullen said that the statement was not true, and therefore Mr. Sifton was in order in saying so. Mr. Sifton substituted the word "informed" and business was then proceeded with.

The house went into committee on the bill to give to the city of Ottawa $60,000 for improving the city in return for certain advantages which the government received.

To Prorogue Monday.

The date of prorogation has again railway subsidies.

Remarkable Rescue

Mrs. Michael Curtain, Plainfield, Ill., makes the statement that she caught cold, which settled on her lungs; she was treated for a month by her family physician, but grew worse. He told her she was a hopeless victim of con-sumption, and that no medicine could cure her. Her druggist suggested Dr. King's New Discovery for Consumption; she bought a bottle and to her delight found herself benefited from first dose. She continued its use, and after taking six bottles, found herself sound and well; now does her own housework, and is as well as she ever was. Sold by W. T. Strong & Co.

AUGUST

Windsor's Colored People Celebrated Emancipation Day.

Windsor, Aug. 2. — Yesterday was Emancipation Day, and Windsor's col-ored population, in its best bib and tucker, was on dress parade, and enjoying itself in the usual way.

They always own the town on Emanelpation Day, and are allowed all kinds of liberty. Nothing short of a riot would cause the officers to interfere with the colored people's celebration. There were not as many colored vis-itors in Windsor as usual, although a large crowd came over from Detroit. There was a procession in the morning, headed by the Detroit City Band, and in the afternoon a programme of sports and speeches, under the direction of the Windsor Social Club, took place at the mineral springs. Addresses were delivered by ex-Ald. P. A. Barnes, Editor Dickinson, of the Windsor World, and others. A banquet in the opera house wound up the day's proceedings.

ceedings. Chatham, Ont., Aug. 1.-Emancipation day dawned fair and bright upon the union celebration which was given today by the colored citizens under the auspices of the Grand United Order of Oddfellows, Knights Templar and Knights of Pythias. The visitors were received at the Grand Trunk station by Chatham officers, and were welcomed to the city. Afterwards they were conducted to the lodge rooms, where the opening of the District Grand Lodge of Oddfellows took place and a public reception was given J. W. Montgomery, on behalf of the Chatham lodges, read the address of welcome. The address was replied to by Grand Master Taylor, of London in alcount language. London, in eloquent language. The district grand lodge was then opened and routine business transacted. The session lasted all morning, and will continue tomorrow.

Making Life Attractive for Workers.

In Ainslee's Magazine for August, Arthur Henry furnishes an interesting article on "Millionaire Socialists." The title is somewhat misleading, as some of his rich exemplars are not socialists in the sense in which the term is commonly understood.

The first on the list is the multi-millionaire, Mr. Lever, the president of the Sunlight Soap Company, of Port Sunlight, England. Port Sunlight has been made by the Lever Company into a great park, in which the most picturesque homes are built and rented to the employes at ordinary tenement house rates. Now the benefits of fortune remain with the employes during good and bad times, and there is no complaining. Mr. Henry records the following colloquy with Mr. Lever:

'Are you a socialist?" "No, I am an individualist."

"Do you believe in competition or co-operation?" "In competition. Not the competition which seeks to destroy, but that which gives life and energy to business." "And co-operation?" "It dies away. An industry run on the co-operative principle after a time lacks life and becomes inert." "But suppose instead of an isolated industry here and there, you have a nation conducted on the co-operative idea?"

"It would fail. What incentive would you give men to work? Why should they lay awake nights to invent useful appliances and find ways to compass their production? What would they gain Another millionaire of the same type as Mr. Lever is John H. Patterson, president of the National Cash Register Company, Dayton, Ohio. The company employ 1,600 hands and pay $1,000,000 a year in wages. Two and one-half per cent of the pay roll, or $25,000, spent by the employes in developing their own ideas and suggestions, has converted the site of the factory into an ideal community. It has furnished the best manual training and cooking schools, kindergartens, comforts and even luxuries for the factory, turned the neighborhood into a great garden, and provided a thousand means of pleasure, education and social improvement. The result, says the writer, illustrates the advantage of thoughtfully using money in common for the common good, over the old, useless method of profit-sharing. There are no superintendent or bosses in this factory, but committees are selected, and the various departments and branches are operated by them. Suggestion boxes are placed in every room, and prizes offered for the best suggestions for improving the machinery or method of production, new inventions, or even ways of making life more comfortable or profitable. President Patterson says he is bewildered by the possibilities thus opened up. "I began," he says, "by clearing up the premises, planting a few flowers and vines, and encouraging the people about me to learn and to be happy, and already it is difficult to keep abreast of them. During last year over 8,000 visitors spent from a day to a month at this factory. Most of them were manufacturers, who have put into practice some of the special features adopted there. The Sherwin-Williams Paint Company, of Cleveland, serve lunches for their employes; the Eastman Kodak Company have lunches for their women, prizes for suggestions, and have beautified their grounds; the United States Printing Company has adopted the suggestion box idea; the Farrand-Votey Organ Company, the F. H. Sanborn Company, of Omaha, and other establishments, have adopted the factory committee system; the homes and public conveniences. There is a kindergarten and primary school, a library, a billiard room and bowling worth, who was elected Speaker of the alley, and a baseball campus. Every house has water and electric lights, supplied by the company's own works. In the winter there are lectures and literary, musical and social gatherings. No charge is made for any or all of public utilities—the expense comes out of the common earnings. They have no municipal organization, no boss and no saloon. Mr. Nelson lives neighbor to his wage-carners, and personally enjoys no advantage over them. Practically he is the manager for the body of the workers, withdrawing nothing but a simple living, and directing it as a common means of Samuel Jones, mayor Toledo, became a Socialist after he had made a fortune. He says he found men in Toledo working for a fraction of a dollar per day. He felt that a protest should be made against such conditions, and concluded that every man was entitled to such a share of the product of his toil as would enable him and his family to live decently and to fit themselves to be citizens of a free republic. Mr. Jones last Christmas gave every employe a check for 5 per cent of the amount received in wages by the said employe in the preceding year. Mr. Jones professes to be troubled by the rapidity with which his wealth grows. He says there is injustice in the system which gives him a fortune, when others who are willing to work have nothing. Asked why he does not pant with it, his reply is that if he were to give it away while the system under which he is able to secure it remains in operation, it would only eventually go to some other individual who is a little shrewder than his fellows.

Mr. Henry also mentions that seeming paradox, Hon. Tom Johnson, who, though a street raidway millionaire, believes in municipal ownership of public utilities, and is the most aggressive advocate of single tax in the United Yukon Must Pay for the Yukon.

In the House of Commons the other day Sir Charles Tupper definitely declared for the modification of the Yukon royalty. Mr. Sifton defended the principle of the royalty, but admitted that it was an open question how far it should be applied. Under the present law a miner is exempt from the 10 per cent tax on the first $5,000 he cleans up. Originally the exemption was only on $2,500, so that the miners have been granted a large measure of relief already. Mr. Sifton at present sees no reason for a further change. The Yukon must pay for the Yukon. That is the leading idea of the Government, and one which the older provinces will insist upon. If the Yukon cannot pay for the Yukon, Canada will have little to thank the Yukon So far the Klondike has not proved a national asset; the Government is bound to see that it does not prove a national liability. Its chief value should be as a market for Canadian goods and products. But what is the situation? We Canadians are cut off from access to our own Eldorado except through the ports of a foreign country. As a result Seattle and Tacoma wax fat on the trade that we should share. Not only that, but most of the gold wrung from the Yukon goes to enrich other countries. For all practical purposes the Klondike might as well be in the United States. Americans comprise most of the population, Americans control the trade, Americans hold the gateways, Americans take most of the gold out, and Americans even deny us justice by spurning our claims to a seaport, which they hold, which we believe to be our own, and which, if we possessed it, would place us on something like an equality with our neighbors in our own gold fields. Yet the Canadian Government have at great cost organized that remote region, and made life and property as safe there as in any portion of the world. Let those who enjoy these services pay for them; there is no reason why the people of Canada should be out of pocket for the accommodation of those who have no use for Canada, except to clear out with as much gold as they can lay

It may be that the United States will be shamed into arbitrating the boundary dispute, and in that event Canada may get a seaport. If not, the all-Canadian railway to the Yukon will be built, as it would have been a year ago but for the Senate's seditious action. Then the Yukon will be of some use to Canada, and it may be wise for the federal treasury to bear some of the burdens of administering the country and promoting its development. It may be wise, too, to lighten or readjust the taxation. But under present conditions the Yukon must pay for the Yukon, and the royalty is the easiest and the most equitable way M making the Yukon do it

Mr. Speaker Bain.

Mr. Thomas Bain, of South Went-House of Commons yesterday, with such cordial and unanimous approval, deserves all the praises showered upon him by Sir Wilfrid Laurier and Sir Charles Tupper. Mr. Bain entered Parliament in 1872, and has sat continuously in the House from that time. It is a Parliamentary record that few members can boast. Mr. Bain, therefore, starts with a fund of experience which is the first essential of a successful Speaker. The ability, the impartiality and the urbanity which distinguished him as a private member, will find full exercise in his high office, which is so important to the dignity and usefulness of Parliament.

Mr. Bain, by the way, is a farmer by occupation, and started public life in the County Council of Wentworth. He is a fine agricultural exhibit.

Five Italians were lynched in Louisiana the other day, and the Italian Government demands the punishment of the lynchers. The idea of punishing lynchers must strike the American idea as being exceedingly funny.

An attempt is being made to restore harmony in the Conservative ranks and get all the jarring elements together on the one platform. The Liberal party would just as soon fight a united Conservative party as a set of factions in the next general election.

The property of the sometime-since promising Ruskin socialistic colony in Tennessee was sold by a receiver or Wednesday, the 1,700 acres of land and buildings bringing a total of $12,000about two-thirds the original cost. The minority stockholders in the enterprise were the purchasers, and will continue the experiment on a somewhat different basis. The others will establish a colony elsewhere. It was a prosperous colony in a material way, but was broken up by differences on the subject of marriage, one part contending that a system of free love was essential to a successful socialism.

All the bluster that all the Canadian officials could pour out wouldn't disturb the relations between England and the United States for a moment. The few horseless carriages that are seen gliding about the Toronto streets seem to possess many advantages. They are swift, easily stopped, and are almost noiseless, affording in this respect a strong contrast to the grinding, roaring and screeching of the trolley cars. The grain situation shows little change since our last weekly review. Receipts have been fair, consisting entirely of oats and wheat. The demand was steady, and prices weak, though not much changed; $113 to $1 15 were the ruling figures for old wheat, and $1 10 to $1 13 for new.
Outs brought all the way from 86c to

American Markets

CHICAGO, Aug. 1.—Corn was the big market on 'change today, extremely favorable crop reports causing liquidation that was heavy enough to cut %c to %c off previous prices. Wheat suffered from lack of cash demand, and lost %c to %c. Oats closed %c lower. Provisions closed rather weak, but a shade higher. Pronounced duliness was practically the only feature of wheat from the opening until within three-quarters of an hour of the close. Dur-ing that time the range of prices was 1/4c, and for long periods the pit was half deserted, traders going to provisions and corn, where more activity was apparent. The opening was rather weak, at a slight decline, September starting 1/3c lower, at 691/2c to 691/3c, advanced shortly after the opening to 691/3c, but soon fell back to opening prices, and until after noon kept within that range. News was bearish, cables were lower, but did not show the decline expected. Reports from the opring wheat country indicated a large crop. Northwest receipts were light, Minneapolis and Duluth reporting 296 cars, against 282 last week, and 82 a Northwest receipts were light, year ago. Chicago receipts were 112 cars, 6 of contract grade. Little new wheat was reported among the arrivals. Total receipts at primary points were 840,000 bu, compared with 592,000 bu a year ago. Atlantic port clearances of wheat and flour amounted to 515,000 bu. Bradstreet's reported a decrease in the world's visible supply of only 350,000 bu, against 5,714,000 bu a year ago. About 12:30 the almost complete absence of cash demand, both here and at outside points, apparently impressed the bulls with the futility of longer holding their winter wheat. The weakness shown by corn acted as a spur to the disgusted longs. From 69%c to 70c the market declined rapidly, and shortly before the close touched 69c. The close was weak, at 69%c sellers.

WHEN FOLK MARRY

Bachelors Are at the Danger Point When 26 and Spinsters at 24.

The most dangerous age for a bachelor is under 261/2, to be accurate, 26.35, as the registrar-general dryly puts it in his statistical return just issued. The most joyous and delightful age for a woman is something over 241/2-24.59. That is to say that it was at those precise ages that the average bachelor of last year and the average maid became one.

The bacheler, however, grows more wary year by year. He was older in 1898 than in 1897 when he fell into the toils. The average bachelor was married in 1897 at 26.30 years of age, quite 05 less. The girl, too, has to wait longer now than she used to. She was .05 of a year younger in 1897 when she became a wife than in 1898. As for the people who marry as minors they are rapidly becoming a vanishing number among men at least; 84 out of every 1,000 husbands in 1874 were married under the age of 21, and so were 227 out of every 1,000 women. The boy husbands have come down to 51 per 1,-000 now; the girl wives have dropped to 170 per 1.000. There have not been so few boy and girl marriages at any

Of the total marriages in 1898, 42,751 persons were minors. Of these there were two girls, 14; ten 15, 158 16; five boys 16, 664 boys 17; 1,196 girls 17 and 3,303 boys and 6,294 girls 18; over 13 the girl wives run into tens of thousands and actually nearly 19,000 youths of 20 were married. There has been a decided slump in widowers and widows of late. In 1871 138 husbands and 100 wives in every 1,000 were widowers and widows respectively. Things have changed since then; there were but 98 widowers and 69 widows in every 1,000 marriages in 1898. The widower, by the way, is obviously more dangerous to the susceptible heart of the opposite sex than the widow. It is to be noted, however, that when the widow selects a bachelor as a husband she takes a man nearly two years her junior; when she chooses a widower her husband is nearly five years older than herself.

SIR WALTER BESANT

The Distinguished English Novelist and the Marked Success of His Novels.

To be made a knight of the realm and ever thereafter to see "Sir" writ-ten before his name, as befell Sir Walter Besant, the novelist, on the Queen's birthday in 1898, would be pleasing to any Briton, as it undoubtedly was to Besant. Yet in his eyes that honor was of far less account than the realization in stone and mortar some time previously of the people's palace, an insti-tution which first lived in his imagin-ation, and was described in his book

"All Sorts and Conditions of Men." Though not considered his most mer-itorious work by the critics, this is far and away the best known of Besant's writings. It was the first pro-duction of his pen after the virtual dissolution of his writing partnership with James Rice. Its plot and scope were discussed and approved by Rice, but he fell ill before it was begun, and died before it was finished. In the story the people's palace was the idea of a woman who had learned much about the life of London's working folk by dwelling among them for a time, during which she discovered one of their greatest lacks to be the means of healthful amusement. The institution she devised to supply this lack was successful in Besant's fiction, and so has been its duplicate in real life. It was opened in person by Queen Victoria more than twelve years ago, and similar institutions have since been established in several of the world's cities, including some in America.

Walter Besant is now 61. His fa-ther wished him to become a clergyman and the young man was educated with that career in view, but escaped it by taking the professorship of mathe-matics in the Royal College at Maur-fitus, that strange island, washed by the Indian Ocean, on which the scene of Pierre's famous story, Paul and Virginia, is laid. Besant met Rice in 1873 and they worked together nearly ten years. They made an admirable team, written by Besant since Rice's death have shown no falling off in interest. Hampstead, a suburb of London, is Walter Besant's abiding place. There he has an ideal home and there his house shelters a collection of books second to few private libraries in all Lon-The house is an unassuming semi-detached villa. The author's study is on the ground floor, and opens upon a long and pleasant garden. His collection of books is carefully classified, one of the shelves being devoted to volumes treating of eighteenth century another to masterpieces of topics; French literature and critical books thereon; a third to local guide books, and histories of London, and so on. But, notwithstanding its workshop-like appearance, Sir Walter's study is er's comfort, and so, indeed, is the entire house. Sir Walter is the head and front of the Incorporated Society of the farmers whose crops are threatened Authors, which has no duplicate in America, and he devotes two days in a week to its affairs at its offices in Lincoln's Inn. Next to Andrew Lang. he is the most voluminous British writer of today. He has visited the United States twice, the second time in 1893. He then declared himself especially impressed by the cities of Chicago and Buffalo.

The food partaken of is like a ball of lead upon the stomach, and instead of being a healing nutriment, it becomes a poison to the system. Dr. Parmelee's Vege-table Pills are wonderful correctives of such troubles. They correct acidity, open the secretions and convey the food partaken of into healthy nutri-They are just the medicine to take if troubled with indigestion. The shade of his record has over-shadowed many a political candidate. The road to fame is crowded with men who have become discouraged and LIFE SAVED-Mr. James Bryson Cameron writes: "I was confined to my bed with inflammation of the lungs and was given up by physicians. A neighbor advised me to try Dr. Thomas' Eclectric Oil, stating that his wife had used it for a throat trouble with the best results. Acting on this advice I procured the medicine, and less than half a bottle cured me certainly believe it saved my life. It was with reluctance that I consented to a trial, as I was reduced to such a state that I doubted the power of any, remedy to do me good.

In reply to Mr. McPhillips the witness admitted that he had not been authorized to carry a billy or a re-volver. Mr. McPhillips asked that the weapons be empounded by the court. Mr. Magee objected, saying that these men needed to carry revolvers to protect themselves, and it would be well for the public to know that they carried them. The magistrate declined to decide the matter at the time.

France, replying to the question by the magistrate said he was a special constable, in the employ of the city, but later amended the answer by stating that he was employed by the company, and had been sworn in May 29 by Magistrate Parke.

Judson Moore, non-union conductor on the car that was struck, saw the defendant throw the stone. He identified Barrett to the best of his opinion. Cross-examined, witness would not swear that defendant was the man who threw the stone.

Wm. Belfry, another of the street railway company's special detectives, testified that he was on the front of the car that was struck. He heard a crash, and went over in time to see France talking to Barrett. Barrett had threatened France with his fists. In the meantime witness had taken hold of Barrett. The latter got away, and again threatened France, who put and again threatened France, who put his hand to his breast pocket, at which Barrett had said, "If you're going to shoot, I'll shoot, too." France had then struck Barrett with his billy. Barrett was committed for trial, the bail being fixed at $800. In committing him, Magistrate Parke remarked that this was a much more serious. that this was a much more serious case than those arising out of the riot. This man was charged with deliberately waylaying the car, while the others had acted in the heat of excitement.

Mr. McPhillips again raised the point of the special detectives carrying "billies" and firearms. The magistrate decided that as they have been sworn in as special constables they have a right to carry anything that a police

The Council Trying to Cancel the

Privileges of Private Companies,

And Bring the Water Supply Under

Public Control-The Serious Periodical Scarcity of Water.

The utter unwisdom and final costliness of the practice, formerly so pre-valent with municipal corperations, of gratuitously granting valuable franchises to aggregations of private individuals is now being illustrated on a large scale in the struggle between the London county council and the eight metropolitan water supply companies. Ever since the institution of the county council one or its principal ambitions has been a scheme for the acquisition of the property and privileges of these companies, with the ulterior design of abandoning altogether the present sources of the London water supply, and obtaining the latter from more distant, abundant and uncontaminated origins. For the carrying out of this plan the council has on several occasions promoted bills in parliament whereby to obtain control of the water companies' privileges.

and although worsted so far in the contest with these powerful corporations, parliament is again to be asked this year to interfere on behalf of the popestimated initial cost of $87,500,000.

One important element of weakness control in its hands of the water supply is found in the fact that no incon-ants of this outlying portion object to population of 11,250,000. Taking 35 gallons per capita as a reasonable allowance of water, it follows that in 1931 a daily supply of 392,000,000 gallons will be necessary At present the net daily supply is over 202,000,000 gallons.Of this, about four-sevenths is obtained from the Thames, about two-sevenths from springs and wells. The royal commission concluded that as much as 300,000,000 gallons per day might be that 70,000,000 gallons per day could be obtained from the chalk country south of the Thames, and 51,000,000 gallons from the Lea. This aggregate amount, if it could be depended upon, would, it will seem, be ample for the water sup-

Unfortunately, however, the quantity of water flowing in the channel of the

to the rainfall, and it is at present doubted if the supply has not been overestimated. On this point, indeed, the county council's experts argued, plausibly enough, that no water should be withdrawn from the Thames, since it was increasingly necessary to keep the channel flushed and clear of sew-that no sewage should be permitted to enter the Thames, and that in such case the strong tidal current was ample to keep the channel flushed. That the metropolitan water supply is of fairly average purity may be considered as conclusively shown by the fact that London is one of the healthiest cities in the world, with a much lower mortality than is found in many places more advantageously situated. That the supply is scanty, sometimes alarmingly so, is, however, undeniable. It is alleged that while it costs the companies some $4,000,000 annually to supply London with water, the citizens have to pay for this supply about $9,- 000,000. At present the companies are paying dividends on a stock capital of $75,000,000, but it is alleged by engineering experts that the aggregate plants of the eight corporations could be duplicated and greatly improved for an expenditure of $50,000,000. Besides the nominal market value of their property,

however, the companies claim as a condition of surrendering their rights to the county council that they should further receive compensation for the loss of their franchises, which, be it observed, originally cost them nothing.

No addition to the stock capital of the companies has been permitted since 1878, and the interest on debenture stock since 1894 has been limited to such a rate as will, in the opinion of the governor of the Bank of England, secure the issue of the stock at par.

That before the lapse of many years

these monoplistic corporations will give place to some more liberal administration goes without saying, but they will undoubtedly die hard, and the experience thus gained will go far to

"Yes, of course, interrupted Mrs. Baxter. Once bent upon an harangue, she was about as easily checked as a Yellowstone geyser in full play. "I am been awakened. I taxed her today with having deceived you as to the extent of her lassitude and depression. I surprised her lying on the sofa in her room, with the traces of fresh and copious tears upon her cheeks. An unfortunate misunderstanding had alienated her from one to whom her girlish affec-tions were given. It is needless to enter into particulars. It is enough to say that they had loved and they were parted. She had not seen or heard from him for two years, most of which time she had passed abroad; indeed, she believed him to be the husband of another when she accepted Mr. Kirke. I own to you that my instinct and my reason opposed this fatal step. I expostulated with her; I urged her to do nothing in haste. "'Jane!' said she (you can imagine his lips whitening with the pressure this story had brought to bear upon him. It was not so much the ousness that, in sending his wife away, he would rob his life of repression and self-denial, of the little sun-shine left of it, as the thought that she was sickening of his companionship; could not live and grow in his shadow. This was the naked truth, disguise it as she might from her cousin; deny it to herself as she probably did. In every point of Mrs. Baxter's description, he recognized his terrible sense of bondage, crushing spirit and life; heard, even in her tribute to his loving watchfulness over her health and bodily comfort, the plaint embodied in the poem he had learned by heart:

"Like a chained thing caressea By the hand it knows the best, By the hand which, day by day. Visits its imprisoned stay, Bringing gifts of fruit and blossom From the green earth's plenteous bosom:

With a deep inspiration which was the farewell to more hopeful dreams than he knew, until then, he had nursed, he collected his senses to reply. "It was my intention to take Jessie to Dundee in June, at the beginning of

Unique Spectacle

Discourses at Westminster Abbey on the Women's Congress, by Rev. H. R. Haweis, B.A.

"And many women were there."-Matthew xxvii., 55.

Wherever the interests of humanity are concerned you will find as a rule that many women are there. My friends, this last week has witnessed a spectacle quite unique in the history of the world. There has never been such a thing as a large International Congress of Women met together in this way for such purposes. It marks an epoch in the evolution of women's influence. They are met together for no party purpose; they are met together not merely to consult the wide interests of their own sex, but also for the large, general welfare of humanity, the purification of society. There never was such a movement. Women have was such a movement. Women have spoken and acted in old days as they were moved by the Holy Ghost; but there was at no time such co-operation, such unanimity, such organization for great and eternal purposes, for interests which, touching earth, aspire and reach up into heaven. When I looked through the programme of the congress of women I was amazed at aye and ably handled, by experts who had their hearts and their heads in it. There was sociology, there was literature, there was hygiene, there was the drama, there was even politics. days are past when the sallow sneer about women attempting to engage in politics is heard with any kind of patience. We now recognize that all things that concern mankind and womankind, all that is for the good man and the glory of God, have direct contact with politics, and therefore there must be intimate connection between the energies and influences of women and the body politic.

Of course, you may criticise what are fit subjects for women to consult about and what are not; but the only people able to decide are the women selves. Let them say or do anything they feel it is right for them to say or do. It is too late for man to stand in the way as oppressor, or tyrant, or ob-

WOMAN'S PLEA FOR PEACE. But there has been no subject touched upon during the congressional meeting more popular than peace and arbi-I am thankful that women have taken it up, have given it a prominent place in their deliberations, and have thus raised a great protest against the apathy of the olergy and the churches in regard to this matter. I take up the so-called religious newspapers at a moment when the whole of Europe is agitated by living questions which concern the welfare of millions, the economics of nations, and I find that the clergy are wasting their time over barren debates as to what garments they should wear, and of what color, the number of lights and torches to be used, consuming their ingenuity as to the reservation of the Holy Sacrament, and its connection, if with the simple institution of the Lord's Supper, as to the burning of incense, and I know not what besidesthese are subjects that have been ex-citing clerical minds whilst the peace onference has been going on at The Hague: and whilst noble women have been conferring in London as to ways and means of wholly averting war, or of abating its horrors. One might have thought the clergy would have spoken as with the heart and impulse of a great nation, on behalf of the very A B C of the gospel "Peace on earth,

Good will toward men.' My dear friends, there may be a great many open questions about incense, about copes and chasubles. as to whether one ought to reserve the Sacrament, or burn incense; but there cannot be, there ought not to be in the nineteenth century, an open question as to whether huge masses of poor creatures should be hurled upon their fellow-men to cut their throats without even an attempt at arbitration or at settling the question peaceably. It ought not to be an open question whether one hundred millions of money, so much needed elsewhere for the development of industry, and for the alleviation of suffering, should be spent upon the most unproductive and norrible industry-for we cannot dream or persuade ourselves that bloody internecine war is our Father's business. Man is taught to rise above the level of the brute creation. There has been actually signed in this church by no less than a thousand members of the congregation a message of peace and sympathy to The Hague conference, and to this we desire to add our tribute of sympathy with the noble women of this congress who have given the subject great prominence during the past week. Louder and louder we should proclaim these truths until they reach the deaf ears of statesmen in their cabinets, that war is the organism of uncivilized instincts, and that peace alone can organize industrial, humanitarian, and Christian progress. This proclamation against war in principle, this proclamation on the side of the prince of peace, of justice and humanity as against big battalions and brute force, should go up in the name of the Father, and of the Son, and of the Holy Ghost.

The mills of God grind slowly, But they grind exceedingly small; and as we look abroad upon this strange mismanagement and muddle, the wreck of diplomacy, the curse and cruelty of war, although we may say,

Right for ever on the scaffold, Wrong for ever on the throne; let us at least add in all quietness and

But that scaffold rules the future And behind the dim unknown Standeth God within the shadow Keeping watch upon his own.

Now you see that my sermon has been narrowed in from that great programme ranging over everything earth and heaven affecting the interests of womankind, narrowed in largely by the direct request of the Countess of Aberdeen, who was in the chair at the Queen's Hall meeting, narrowed in to the influence of women upon war both before and after the battle. INFLUENCE IN PREVENTING WAR

But what is influence? Influence is something which wants hands and feet. Influence is a thing which works by mouth, which works by organization, by expression. There are silent influences, but these influences are inward and spiritual graces which need outward manifestation. The influence of women has to find expression, and it has found expression at this congress, and especially at that great Queen's Hall meeting. What is feeling without the power of sending it forth as light among the nations? "Though truths," said Tennyson,

In manhood darkly join, Deep-seated in our mystic fame, We yield all honor to the name Of Him that made them current coin, The thoughts which breathe require the words which burn.

Your thoughts in the many council chambers this week, and at the Queen's Hall meeting, your thoughts which breathe, have found there the words which burn. And you women of many nations have proved yourselves not only capable of expression, but of organization. Let us point out the enormous value of initiative. The world goes starving along, multitudes perish, good causes flag, progress is retarded, because no one takes the in-itiative. We yield honor, then, to those who possess this inestimable gift. The large majority are born to follow, When the great gladiatorial shows of Rome were at their height, a minority of those, chiefly Christians, living un-der the Roman empire, felt the abomination of it all, but they knew not how to act. But there rose up a monk, Telemachus; and as he meditated in the Libyan desert across the Mediterranean, there came to him rumors of the horrible and degrading spectacle of these gladiatorial shows, in which men met to slaughter not only animals, but each other. With the voice of God ringing in his ears, he made his way to Rome, to the gladiatorial show then going on in the Colosseum. The emperor himself, the vestal virgins, the senators, and all the mightiest in Rome were gathered Telemachus, the obscure together. monk pushed his way through the crowd, leapt over the barrier, clad in his monk's garb, and stood between the gladiators who were about to engage; and, holding up a wooden crucifix, he, in the name of Christ, forbade them to proceed. Another moment, and he fell slain, murdered, assassinated, the gladiators between whom he had interposed. But this great act of his had its fruition, for in Rome there were never again witnessed any more gladiatorial shows. That is what I mean by influence finding expression and passing on to living action. But within the last few weeks, if you have read the papers, you will have seen an account of a great bull-fight that took place at Arles, in France. After three animals had been brutally massacred with details of unusual atrocity, one noble lady rose up in that crowded assembly at Arles-Madame Mistral, wife of the wellknown poet-and harangued the women in the name of humanity and in the name of decency, and denounced the spectacle which they had just seen without uttering a word of disapprobation. The fight proceeded, but in a very few moments all the women in that bull-ring at Arles rose from their seats and left the theater. That what I mean by the power of initiative—by having the courage of one's opinions. It is the women who stop brutal cab drivers, who oppose animal torture, who stand up against the wicked traffic in young girls. It is women who have proclaimed against the horhors of war, often with a pathetic rins of sorrow and melancholy in their voices, as in the case of the women of Spain, who have lately suffered so dreadfully from the war in America.

WOMAN AND THE FRANCHISE. So much for the expresion of influence. But organization—that also is needed. Many of the great, noble and generous movements of the world fail, not because people do not feel aright, but because they do not know how to organize themselves.

Women are taking an enormous part in the forces of the world, not only in society, they have always done that; not only in family-God grant they may always do that efficiently-but in the potent spheres of literature, in the formation and promulgation of a higher public opinion. By-and-bye, at no distant date, women will have the larger opportunity afforded by the franchise. For all this talk or twaddle is getting more and more to be garded as rotten and shallow, that women are not fit to sit on county councils or to vote for those in parliament. The House of Lords feels this, and is, as usual, making a last dying effort to stop the onward movement. Such a congress as this will more than anything else hasten the moment when women will cease to be regarded merely as chattels in the house; but will have a fair share of direct political representation. It is no unfeminine or foolish ambition that prompts women to desire a larger voice, a more direct influence in public affairs. The deeper interests in humanity are neglected largely because men allone are consulted, and the opinions of women have gone to the wall. But the events of the past week have strengthened their position and fed their enthusiasm, and must tend to further the true humanitarian princi-ples of Christ and His kingdom. Women have gifts, many of which exist only in a lesser degree in the male sex: and men of intellect, like John Stuart Mill. and Herbert Spencer, Frenchmen, and Italians and Germans, have seen with increasing clearness the innate force and power of these gifts which will carry them along to their rightful place in the body politic. WOMAN'S POWER TO PROMOTE PEACE.

Think of woman's capacity as peace-maker! How marvelously she is eaculated to carry on any such movement which affects the good of the whole human race. Women are the saviors of society. Women were ever the intercessors and arbitrators standing between the oppressed and the op-pressor from the days of Esther, and the wise woman of Tekoah, and De-borah downwards. Intensity, absorp-tion, these are the specialities of wo-men, that intuition, that noble self-devotion and self-sacrifice, that tenacity of purpose, that inexhaustible tenderness, that supreme patience—these are the qualities of the sex; and men will soon no longer desire to do the work alone when they can have the co-operation of such inestimable qualities.

But, my friends, I won't disguise from you that there is a darker side, though I will not sketch it in black colors. Women, we know, have been the promoters of war, the propagators of scandal, marvels of cruelty; what could be expected when their great powers were perverted for evil instead of sublimated into good. You know very well that in the French revolution the women were those who committed the worst excesses, who hounded on the men; and in savage tribes, after a battle, it is the women who devise the most exquisite tortures for the captured. We have seen in private and social life the subtlety, intuition and deliberate malice of women turned in the not only the living palpitating organdirection of making wretched and unhappy, the lives of those they detest or despise or hate. Get a man with perverted instincts, and will not he, too, be a devil? Get a woman with intense powers, and if they are not turned to good, will they not be turned to making and wickedness? But ed to malice and wickedness? But during the past week we have seen these great powers liberated for purposes which will make of this world a kingdom of God and of His Christ; women have gone solid for peace and arbitration.

My friends, if I may, without disrespect, introduce the name of her most gracious Majesty the Queen at the moment, I would say that to me she seems to sum up in the action and influence of women in regard to war; whether we consider the influence of women before the battle is doing, as this congress has been doing in the past week, to avert war, or whether we consider the influence of women after the battle in alleviating suffering and ministering to the sick that have fallen out of the ranks of those masses, who have been hurled against their fellow-creatures against whom they have no grudge, and who never did them any injury. We are blest in this country in hav-ing in the greatest lady in the land the right attitude adopted in regard to war. What has been the attitude of our queen in this respect? A woman of few words, but to the point, a woman of noble heart, of inflexible principles, with the courage of her opinions; not on the side of big battalions, but on the side of God, her influence has always been in the direction of peace and arbitration. It was so before the Crimea: she then stretched her royal preroga tive almost to the bursting to prevent what has since been regarded as an unnecessary war. But the overwhelming power of the nation stepped in and submerged the will of both the Queen and Prince Albert; and, though they knew the people were wrong, as constitutional sovereigns they would not go against them.

ALL THAT IS GOOD AND WHOLE-SOME

Her court was pure, her life serene. God gave her peace, her land reposed. And when has she been backward after the battle in kindly messages of liv-ing sympathy and practical help for the wounded and the bereaved?

A WOMAN AFTER THE BATTLE. Now then to close; women's duty before the battle is to avert war. After the battle it is for her to descend like an angel of pity and mercy upon the terrible devastations of war bringing the anodyne to pain and suffering.

When pain and anguish rack the brow, A ministering angel thou. This is her grand perogative. "God bless all good women," says Oliver Wendell Holmes. "To their kind hearts and tender hands we must all come at last." Thank God, "Many women were there," is a sentence which might be written over every hospital and over every battle-field, over every ambulance, over every place where there is wretchedness and misery. Situated in a great medical neighborhood like this Harley, Wimpole and Welbeck streets, many nurses and sisters of mercy attend this church and tell me they find it a refuge after long watches in the night after attending some trying case, and they go back with a sense of refreshment and energy, and new enthusiasm filling their spirit; a sense of companionship with Him who laid His hand upon the sick and they recovered.

Sisters of mercy, gentle children of the kingdom, ye peacemakers who are called the sons and daughters of God, band yourselves together, encourage yourselves with the feeling of solidarity between you and those who labor upon the distant battle-fields and in the wards of remote military hospitals. Sisters of mercy, female philanthropists, patient nurses by the bedside of sufferers, privileged to behold not only the shattered body, not only the maism turned in a moment, in the twinkling of an eye, into insensate clay; not only do ye witness all these materialistic, paralyzing sights, but you have also opportunities most precious seeing the rerishing man outwardly, inwardly renewed day by day; you realize the spiritual touch, you visions that you cannot see, and hear sounds that you cannot hear. You are present at that wonderful moment when the spirit exhales itself, and the voice unheard by you is ringing in the ears of your patient, who lifts up his eyes to the hills whence cometh salvation. Nurses, you are not made materialistic and infidel by your long watches around these scenes of decay and paralysis, for these point you beyond the things seen and temporal to things unseen and eternal!

The mission of women after the battle is, then, plain and patent. Her own heart tells her what she ought to do. She goes forth from ward to ward, and from bed to bed; the dying look up, and the last flicker of languid joy comes into their eyes, and they endure as seeing Him who is invisible. I think in that well-known poem of Longfellow, called "Sancta Filomena," Florence Nightingale is the embodiment of all that is best and noblest in womanhood. Holding aloft the lamp of pity, she is made one with all that is tender, and good, and helpful in human nature.

On England's annals thro' the long Hereafter of her speech and song. A light its rays shall cast From portals of the past.

A lady with a lamp shall stand In the great history of the land.

100 MILES AN HOUR

A Projected Lightning Express Be tween Liverpool and Manchester.

[London Times.] A meeting is to be held today at the Liverpool town hall, the Lord Mayor of Liverpool presiding, of the committee of representative men of Manchester and Liverpool formed in March last for the purpose of investigating the engineering and commercial possibili-ties of the "lightning express singlerailway" between Liverpool and Manchester at a speed of a hundred miles an hour, as proposed by Mr. F. B. Behr. The object of the meeting is to receive the report of the sub-committee appointed to inquire into and report upon the scheme. The report of the sub-committee is very favorable to the project, and the opinion is expressed that a speed of 100 miles an hour may be safely attained. The sub-committee states that Mr. Behr has demonstrated by elaborate and practical experiments, before competent judges, that his system has stood as severe a test in the engineering sense as any new invention can be put to, short of actual application on a commercial scale. The commercial value of more rapid and frequent inter-communication between two such cities as Manchester and Liverpool. limiting the time of the journey to 20 minutes, cannot admit of any doubt. and such rapid communication by Mr. Behr's system appears to be feasible without any greater risks than those of ordinary railway traveling." Should the estimated cost be not seriously exceeded, the sub-committee calculate that there would be a surplus of £32,-000, after paying 15 per cent dividend on a capital exceeding by 35 per cent the estimated cost of constrluction. Mr. Behr first brought his proposals before the citizens of Liverpool and Manchester in January last, when he gave an account of "the single-rail lightning express electric railway" built by him near Brussels, on which cars were last year run at a speed of 90 miles an hour, and offered to undertake that in a couple of years the means of communication between Liverpool and Manchester would beat the record of the world both for ra-pidity and safety.". After the lecture a committee of representative men of the two cities was formed. On this committee are the lord mayors of Liv-

For a couple of hours last evening the spacious grounds of the Oregon Club, at the corner of Adelaide and Dundas streets, were thronged. It was a large and happy gathering and the affair, under the auspices of the Ladies' Home Defense Union, was a decided success. The club house was thrown open to the guests, the lawn illuminated by Chinese lanterns, and a large number of tables set under the trees, where attentive members of the Home Defense did a thriving business in ice cream and other refreshments. The Musical Society Band was on nand and furnished many delightful selections. A varied and pleasing programme was introduced by Chairman Ald.Dreaney. The numbers included musical selections by Corbin brothers and Wililamson, cornet solos by Miss Griffin, a song by J. Birmingham, recitations by Miss Mabel Yeomans and Miss Lily Stetson, and a comic song by Sandy Drennan. In his introductory remarks Ald. Dreaney congratulated the street railway strikers upon the public sympathy in their favor as shown by the large attendance.

INDIANS NOT DYING OUT

The Next Census Likely to Show Over 300,000 of Them.

The Indian is by no means an extinct portion of civilization, explained an Indian bureau official to a Washington Star reporter, as the coming census will clearly demonstrate. Indeed, in-stead of running out, the last ten years will show that he has got almost as good a hold on life as the most favored of our people. The poems regretting his passing away will have to be stored for some years. The Indian of late years has been generally engaged in minding his own business. He is not much improved morally from what he was, but he has not fallen behind to any noticeable extent. It is a case of the survival of the fittest, and while eventually the Indian will have to go, he is not gathering up his traps and getting ready to start as yet. Those who regard the Indian as a soattered race, existing in small camps in the far west, will be considerably informed when I can tell them that there is today a record of 250,000 Indians in the Western States. There are many kinds there. The Choctaws number over 15,-000; the Creeks even more; the Seminoles over 3,500; Cherokees about 30,-000; Chickasaws about 8,500. There are over 10,000 Indians in the six nations of New York State clone. The Indian is still in it, and will be in it for many years yet, and I would not be surprised if the coming census will show 300,000 of them.

MAN WITH THE HOE

Mr. Markham's Remedy Is the Golden Rule.

At a church gathering in San Francisco lately, Mr. Edwin Markham offered his own solution of the problem suggested by his famous pen. His solution is in part a subjective and in part an objective one. It begins with a readjustment of the heart, which, when consummated must of necessity blossom into deeds of human sympathy and brotherhood. The following report of his words is taken from a recent number of Signs of the Times:

"I have been asked to say a few words about 'The Man with the Hoe,' and my solution of that problem. have no new solution. The problem is as old as humanity. The men who built the pyramids struggled with that problem. The men who are building London are struggling with it today. I have but one solution—that is, the application of the Golden Rule. We have committed the Golden Rule to heart; now let us commit it to life. (Applause.) That is the only solution.

"As to what steps should be taken, I cannot say. Various solutions are of-fered. The Republicans offer one solution, the Democrats another, the Socialists another, and the Single Tax people have their solution. In my judgment it is wise for us all to consider all these questions, and try to find some way of enlarging the sphere of justice for all men.

"I believe that the industrial question is a religious question. (Applause.) I believe that everything that has to do with the welfare of men, in politics, in industry, is religious at the bottom. that everything shows our relation to one another and our relation to the Father of Life. "I believe that Jesus of Nazareth is the Father, the Savior of the human race. In his principles of justice, in his principles of brotherhood, we find the solution of these questions. Fraternity to me is the dearest of all words, and in that word is the hope of the human race." THE PREACHER'S BEST HELPER. "Which sort of man is the most helpful to you?" asked one clergyman of another. "I mean to you, personally and individually " His friend looked puzzled, and the questioner went on. "Is it the man who agrees with all your views, and so helps you with his sympathy and comprehension, or the independent thinker, who argues with you, and stimulates you to write convincing, stirring ser-mons?"

"If you really want to know." said the older man, with symptoms of a smile at the corners of his mouth, "it isn't either of those men who helps me most. It's the man who may or may not agree with my views, but who cares enough to come to church on stormy Sundays, when most people stay at home. He's my best helper."
