ESCAPED DEATH BY MIRACLE!

Flying Trolley Struck a Wagon on Dundas Street.

Joseph F. Bears, Blind and Paralyzes. and Charles Peters, Were Occupants of the Rig.

A westbound Dundas street car struck a wagon at the corner of Waterloo and Dundas streets about 8:30 this morning, and it was only by a seeming miracle that the two occupants of the vehicle escaped serious injury or death.

Mr. Joseph W. Beares, of London township, who suffers under the double affliction of blindness and paralysis, and who is well known in this city, and Mr. Charles Peters, who is employed by Mr. Beares on his market garden, came to the city this morning with a load of produce. They were driving north on Waterloo street, when nearing Dundas street a car passed, going east. Mr. Peters, who was driving, started slowly ecross the street car track. The wagon had only reached the center of the tracks, when it was struck with great force by car No. 54, of the Dundas street line, which was going west. The wagon was tipped over, thrown partly onto the south track and dragged along by the car. The horse fell on the fen der, breaking it partly off, and wa dragged by it until the car stopped when the fender had to be lifted t release the animal. Mr. Peters wa thrown clear of the wreck, but M Beares was less fortunate, he havin caught in the debris of the wagon an carried with it. When the car stoppe he was extricated from his position and both men were carried into the office of Dr. D. H. Piper. Mr. Peter: was found to have a severe scall wound, requiring four stitches, both Mr. Beares' escaped with slight bruises and the shock incident to his experience. The horse escaped with a few scratches, but the wagon was badly damaged. Eye-witnesses of the affair say the car was going at a dangerous rate of speed, and that no gong was sounded. Mr. Beares seems to have had more than his share of misfortune during his life. Seventeen years ago the loss of his eyesight compelled him to abandon his avocation of printer and pressman. Shortly after he lost the use of his limbs through the effects of locomotor ataxia. Two years ago his aged mother broke her leg, and she has been almost totally incapacitated since. A short time ago Mr. Beares' horse died, and now the present accident puts him to an expense he can ill afford.

CAPE REBELS

- AN AFRICAN BLUE BOOK.

London, June 29 .- A blue book issued this morning gives the correspondence between Lord Roberts and the Boer authorities on the subject of the destruction of property. Its contents are generally known. The presidents of the Transvaal and Orange Free State, February 3, 1900, protested gainst "the destruction and devastaaged by British officers, and by white tion of farms by parbarians, encourbrigands, contrary to the usages of war." Later Generals Botha and Dewet made similar complaints of the "godless barbarities- and atroci ties of the British and their robber

Lord Roberts replied in a similar vein to all the protests, declaring that the British did not encourage the barbarians, but that the burning of farm buildings was treacherous shooting of the British from farm houses, and the wrecking of trains, and accusing the Boers of wanton destruction and guerilla tactics which he was compelled to repress by which he was compelled to repress by exceptional measures always employed by civilized nations in like circum-

TRADE REPORTS

The Situation Across the Border-Pointers From Bradstreet

Toronto, June 28.—Bradstreet's trade montreal wholesale trade has been moderately active this week, and espeways called for at the first burst of summer. The conditions of the growing crops in the west and the excellent prospects for the make of cheese and butter the present season, and activity in all directions, all tend to create the conditions are received to the conditions are received. ate a buoyant feeling regarding the outlook for fall business.

At Quebec trade conditions show little change over that of preceding week. Indications for fall business are good, and travelers from various parts of the province continue to send in fair orders. In special circles busi-ness is active, but one thing is noticeable—the small shipment of timber. The cause is attributed to the scarcity of deals. Remittances from the country are fairly good.

There has been improvement in the wholesale trade at Toronto. The hot weather has created a better movenent in more seasonable lines, and the larger than last week. The fine condition of the crops throughout the country is having a good effect on trade, and retailers are inclined purchase liberally. Country remit-tances have been fair for this season. Business at Hamilton has been a little more active, especially in goods suitable for the hot weather for all sorts of outing lines. The outlook is generally reported by the wholesale firms as very encouraging, Values of staple goods continue steady.

Trade at the Pacific coast has been moderately active. Some large orders from the northern mining supply trade have been filled lately, and some round lots of salmon have been cleaned up. Both have helped to increase the money circulation. Should trouble between the fishermen's union and the salmon canners be avoided retail trade will greatly benefit therefrom as soon as the fishing season gets into full swing. The outlook for business is fairly good.

Trade at Winnipeg has been greatly stimulated by the splendid prospects for the wheat crop. Fall orders are larger and more numerous, and the outlock for business is very prom-There has been rather more wheat moving, the prospects for a large crop having induced settlers to market grain more freely. Collections are rather slow.

Trade at London is rather more active, and seasonable lines are moving The fine prospects for the growing crops have caused more inquiry for fall goods, and many orders for fall delivery have lately been freely.

Business at Ottawa is good. Retailers appeared to be more busy with more seasonable lines than for some Fall orders are also coming forward freely. Values remain firm. IN THE UNITED STATES. ew York, June 28 .- Dun's review:

KIPLING AT HOME

The Soldiers' Laureate Lives. in an Unpretentious House.

"Very English in His Tastes"—The Elms and Its Surroundings.

Mr. Rudyard Kipling is very Engish in his love of home. He has an estate in America, has lived half his life in India, knows China, Japan, Africa and Australasia as well as many a man whom we term "explorer," but none of the places he has visited has attractions for him as a residence. Rottingdean, a little village tucked up on the chalk hills that stretch out east of Brighton, and scoured by every wind that comes in from seaward or from inland—this is the dwelling-place of the "Soldier's Laureate," the master-singer of imperialism.

His castle is "The E!ms," one of the least pretentious houses in a village remarkable for neither glory of architecture nor the ambitious proportions remarkable for neither glory of architecture nor the ambitious proportions of its dwelling places. One feels that truly, with Kipling, the Englishman's house is his castle to himself, whatever it may be to others. To the residence of so noted a man a certain halo of distinction attaches. In spite of this, however, the visitor who makes a pilgrimage to Rottingdean to see where lives his hero, is irresistibly bound to laugh at the height of "The Elms." The whole place is charmingly Kiplingesque—modest. unassuming to Kiplingesque-modest, unassuming to bsurdity, and one instantly feels that he likes his Rudyard Kiplin more than ever because of it. Solidly, unroman-tically comfortable, without a pretence to beauty or picturesqueness, modest in size, "The Elms" stands tight, defi-antly unlovely, inclosed by a high, stout wall of typically rural fashion-ing. "The Elms" would not win a second glance from a mildly successful tallow chandler; and a city clerk would consider the place impossibly unattractive; the aesthetic would shudder to think that the "Recessional" was created within this little common place in stone-plaster and red tiles.

A Tolstoi could scarcely desire more modest little establishment, hermit of greater privacy. A double-barreled gateway, solid and high as the walls, guards the way to the front entrance, and the little electric bell looks quaintly incongruous inset in so much of ancient solidity. A tiny trap door in the gateway, just large enough for one to squeeze his card through, is governed from the inside, and the inmates of "The Elms" are secure ron ntrusion once they "sport their oak." One does not hear much of the song of birds, but there is sound domestic harmony in the chorus of a pondful of the Kiplings are Rottingdean for the world. It has associations pleasant and sad associations, however, apart from his family. The ancient vicarage, just across the way, is a far more important-seeming establishment than "The Elms," and has a history to back its claim to notice. The Rottingdean vicarage was ancientscholars of the old-time vicars.

THE VILLAGE. Rottingdean is a strange admixture of the mediaeval and the modern. Some known man found drowned last night. of its tortuous, struggling highways Though he bought a ticket under the of corduroy pattern, bordered by quaint, old-world cottages and gar-dens, carry one far back into history ton. His son is expected here on the night train to indentify the body. The inquest was adjourned until Tuesday. too-adjacent Brighton. For a moment one can think that Kipling has a home quiet and isolated from the busy world, as the hills whose plain tales he tells. And then a turn brings one back to the main thoroughfare, where are unto-date little shops and—the electric light. Yes, the electric light in shop and street in this pocket of a place. Your driver brisks up his steed and whirls you rapidly past "The Elms," up the hillside by the house, pulls up at a corner some distance along the white steep road, and, mute and expectant, invites by gesture your admiration and appreciation of the most advanced outpost of civilization. It is an electric lamp set in the corner of the lane, with a background of hay-ricks and barns, looking as strangely placed as a steam plough in the Gar den of Eden.

But incongruous or not, the illuminant is there, and the Kiplings are not the least considerable consumers of it. Comfort and convenience form the key to the domestic policy of "The Elms."

Mr. Kpiling used to possess a motorcar and make his journeys to and from Brighton in it. But the machine proved fractious; so the Brighton hackmen reasserted their title to serve him. They all know the master of "The Elms, and count him the finest of patriots in discarding his "road engine."

Of the public institutions of the ancient and loyal hamlet, the general postoffice, a neat little place on the main street, knows Mr. Kipling best They call it a holiday there when Mr Kipling is away. He frequently slips down just before post-time in the eve-ning in haste to despatch by registered letter precious MSS.

the pond. It is the gymnasium which Mr. Kipling has built for the rising hopes of Rottingdean. When work palls in the evening he takes himself and his pipe across to the gymnasium, and has a gossip with his young friends, in whose exercises he takes a great delight. When the boys have finished they cluster round their patron finished they cluster round their patron and beg him to tell them something about India or the army. The Kiplings at Rottingdean are a most interesting study. Mr. Kipling stands aloof from the public work of the village, and will have none of the local board. He is not a public man at home. His work is probably less known from reading by the Rotting-deaners than by the residents in many an isolated town in North America. Yet he is clearly the most popular man in the village, not as Rudyard Kipling the poet and author, but as Rudyard Kipling the man, the playmate of boys, the idol of the young men. Decidedly, one likes him all the better on seeing him at home and appreciating the estiat home. Here are some more cogent facts concerning the dearth of men for the navy. The Cressy is shortly to be commissioned at Portsmouth, and as she is a special ship, great efforts have been made to keep a crew for her. That is to say, it is regarded impossible to supply a crack ship with more than half her proper complement of trained officers and men. Besides the Cressy, Portsmouth has to find a new crew for the Eclipse. It cannot be done, and drafts are being asked for from other ports. FRUIT MARKS ACT

The New Law Comes Into Operation on July !-- Objects of the Measure.

Ottawa, June 29.—The fruit marks act, which comes into operation on July 1, is now available for distribution at the commissioner's branch of the department of agriculture. This is the act passed last session to carry out the wishes of growers and shippers as expressed to the minister at a meeting in foronto last spring. Mr. W. A. Mac-Francisco to B. H. Bennett, 2 King Kinnon, Grimsby, has recently been appointed to the commissioner's branc's to look after the fruit business of the department. Requests for information or for copies of the act may be addressed to the commissioner. The obeliminate fraud in the marking of such fruit packages as do not admit of ready inspection without opening. Section four of the act provides that all such packages must be plainly marked:
(a) With the initials of the Christian names and the full surname, and address of the packer; (b) with the name of the variety or varieties, and (c) with a designation of the grade of the fruit, and section five reads: "No person shall sell or offer, expose or have in his possession for sale any fruit packed in a closed package intended for sale un package is marked as required by the next preceding section." In future, therefore, anyone sending dishonestly or carelessly packed fruit on the market must at the same time clearly advertise to the public who is responsible; and the trade will not be slow to find out who are reliable ship-

Section six reads as fellows: "No person shall sell or offer, expose, or have in his possession for sale any fruit packed in a closed package upon which package is marked any designation which represents such fruit as of finest, best or extra good quality, unless such fruit consists of well-grown specimens of one variety, sound, of nearly uniform size, of good color for the variety, of normal shape, and not less than 90 per cent, free from scab, worm holes, bruises and other defects, and properly packed." OWES HIS EYESIGHT TO A MIRACLE.

Indebtedness to Dodd's Kidney Pills Acknowledged by Thomas St. Pierre.

Health Entirely Re-established by Dodd's Kidney Pills-Another Triumph for That Wonderful Remedy - His Eyesight Has Been Strength

St. Epi, Quebec., June 28.—Special.— One year ago a miracle was announced in Chicago. R. A. Wade, the great criminal lawyer, regained his sight after having for years been totally blind. His case was published throughout the length and breadth of America, and it attracted more attention to Dodd's Kidney Pills than any medicine ever got before. For it was Dodd's Kidney Pills that restored his sight. A similar case has turned up in the village of St. Epi, Quebec. Though this sufferer was not stone blind, his eyes nevertheless were utterly useless to him by lamplight. And they have been completely restored by Dodd's Kidney Pills, which is another point of similarity.

There is no attempt made to assert Dodd's Kidney Pills are a cure for blindness. Dodd's Kidney Pills are the greatest kidney medicine ever known. That is the claim made for Dodd's Kidney Pills, and there is evidence enough to prove that claim. But in cases where Kidney Disease has left poisons in the the joint of the arm or the small of the back. That the eyesight of Thos. Barratt, Eddie Reed, Willie Welch, St. Pierre was restored is but another argument that Dodd's Kidney Pills make the blood absolutely pure. Here is Mr. St. Pierre's letter: "I am happy today to see my health entirely re-established by Dodd's Kidney Pills. I owe that wonderful remedy thousand thanks. Before using Dodd's Kidney Pills I had consulted many physicians and taken medicines of various kinds, but each made me worse. had a constant pain in the back and limbs. At night I couldn't rest and I could not see by lamplight. Having taken only two Loxes of Dodd's Kidney Pills I am perfectly cured. My eyesight is clear. Ireland's Decreasing Population. There is matter for serious thought with a tinge of real sadness, in the figures showing Ireland's steadily decreasing population.

Sixty years ago it was 8,196,597. Fifty years ago it was 6,574,287. Forty years ago it was 5,798,967. Thirty years ago it was 5,412,357. Twenty years ago it was 5,174,816. Ten years ago it was 4,704,730. Now it is 4,456,526.

That is, the population of Ireland is little more than half what it was 60 years ago. Each of the provinces, Leinster, Munster, Ulster and Connaught, shows a decrease.

Three counties show an increase, and thirty-one a decrease. The increases are Dublin, Down and Antrim. Seventeen cities and large towns show an increase, and nine a decrease. Belfast now has 348,876; ten years ago 273,114, a gain of 27.7 per cent. Dublin now has 286,328; ten years ago it had 269,716, showing a gain of 6.2 per cent.

According to religion, the people are classed as follows:

0,010,020
3,310,028 579,385
443,494
61 255
61,255 3,769
50,700
. 56,703

The Methodists and Jews show the largest increase; the Methodists by 5,755, and the Jews 1,990. The decreases are large. The Roman Catholics have decreased 237,279, the Protestant Episcopalians by 20,718, and the Presbyterians by 1,480.

Statistics such as these show that all efforts of the British Government fail to retain the population in Ireland. Love Ireland as fervently as they may, the homes of the young Irishmen and Irishwomen, at least a large percentage of them, must be found abroad. In this view of it the London Express says: "It is sad for Ireland, but good for the Empire, which profits by the muscle and brain that are plentifully raised in Ireland only to be exported to more lucky lands."

Canada, during the last 40 or 50 years, has in this respect somewhat resembled Ireland. The young men of Canada, or a large percentage, found their homes in the United States. The Canadian seems to have satisfied himself in his new home. The Irishman to a greater or lesser extent has felt himself exiled, and felt that justice was not done to Ireland. It would appear as if more and more there would be reason for the sentiment expressed by Campbell, in the "Exile of

But while the young men of Canada, many of them at least, during the last half of the nineteenth century, have left Canada for the United States, the outlook for the future is different. It looks as if Canada would furnish all the opportunities her native population could desire, and homes for many millions more.

Consider the Horses.

During these dizzy days of downpouring sun, every owner or driver of a horse should procure a copy of "Black Beauty," and read it from cover to cover. One can scarcely realize the sufferings of city horses during the sweltering summer months. A horse is, of course, stronger than a man, but, nevertheless, he is often given work to do that is quite out of proportion to his strength. He is affected by the heat, too, in much the same way as a man. Never a summer passes but one hears of innumerable instances of horses dying in the streets overcome by the intense heat. The humane practice of placing sunts on the heads of their horses. adopted by many London drivers, is to be commended. When you are faint with the merciless heat, and dizzy with the burning glare of the pavements, remember your horse. sorry they made so much of the vernal season as the harbinger of "Trisimpliant summer with its him accomplished by the Lord's Day Alliance at its Hamilton convention; the vital necessity of the Sabbath to the workingman was made apparent. Without one day of rest during the week, life would indeed be a dreary, hopeless existence for the man who is the sweat of his brow. Apart entirely from the religious side of the question, there is a practical viewpoint from which every workingman mitted that he himself had his bit of should study it. Modern industrial conditions have caused a steady encroachment on the Sabbath, until in this first year of a new century there exists a grave danger that its importance will be lost sight of. It served no earthly purpose but to humor gination to picture in the future a could not explain. No one but the great labor strike, not for increased wages, but for a weekly day of rest. Every class of society should be interested in preventing such a condition as would result from turning the Sabbath to labor, and ing-glass concealed about them. Still, none so much as those who toil their hands. It is possible that if the toiler were induced to work seven days in the week, he might finally awaken to a realization of the fact that he was doing so for a sixday wage. By all means, then, let there be most hearty co-operation between the labor unions and the Lord's Day Alliance. Both are working toward the same end.

The Pan-American Congratulates Canada.

We published a few notes the other day congratulating Buffalo and the directors of the exposition on their suc cess. Canada is to be congratulated,

We have always claimed to be "Canada First." We have no need to give Canada a second place.

Among the first objects that interest you on entering the art gallery are the busts of Sir Wilfrid Laurier, Sir George Burton Chief Justice of Ontario, and Chief Justice Falconbridge, that of Sir George Burton being the best.

In the Canadian gallery the paintings hold their own beside any in the exposition. "The Bathers," by H. Blair Bruce, is one of the best of its kind there. The Indians looking at the first ship on Lake Eric is interesting, and "American Bison," by F. A. Verner, is genuinely artistic.

Nor is it in art alone that Canada stands well, but also in the display of service will show a yearly profit of fruit. It will be an eye-cpener to many who visit that exhibition, and who perhaps believe Canada a backward country, to find the best apples, and the varieties of fruits there displayed. Many are not aware of the grape-growing, peach-growing qualities of the Niagara Peninsula, and counties like Essex.

ucative, and will inform all who see it of the vast opportunities of the future. The natural desire of all Canadians is that the Dominion shall continue to hold her own in every direction. Exhibitions give opportunities for comparison; judged by that comparison, Canada is worthy of the pride of her sons.

A Western man wants the United States Government to buy up all the steam laundries. Very well, but let the matter rest till the weather changes. The bare thought of laundries suggests starched collars and

The Toronto Mail says: "Two weeks ago the Hon. J. R. Stratton announced. in London there was to be no bye-election there. Now a bye-election is to be held." When in London two weeks ago the Provincial Secretary was asked by an Advertiser reporter what would be done with regard to the resignation of Col. Leys. His reply was that he personally had no official knowledge of Col. Leys' resignation. He did not say there would be no bye-election. The Mail and Empire cannot help misrepresenting Liberal public men.

The Monkeys and the Mirrors

Out at the circus the other day a cage of diminutive monkeys, with queer, half human faces, attracted by their droll antics a great number of visitors. Someone in the crowd produced a small piece of looking-glass and passed it through the bars of the cage. It was instantly seized by the patriarch of the troop who, holding it firmly against the wall of the cage with his man-like hands, gazed long and earnestly at the reflection of his visage. The other monkeys crowded about him, jostling one another rudely in their eagerness to see themselves in the glass. There was, to the spectators, something indescribably ridiculous about the performance; the ludicrous solemnity of the monkeys' faces as they craned their necks to catch a glimpse of themselves set the crowd into roars of laughter. The keeper explained that all monkeys are extremely vain, and that they are particularly fond of looking at themselves in a mirror. A monkey who has obtained possession of fragment of looking-glass will spend whole hours sitting alone in a corne studying his own face. Then, having tired of the inactivity, he will hide the glass in a corner of the cage until the desire again comes upon him to examine

Well, are we not all monkeys to this extent? In the sweeping perspective of the universe our earth is but a small cage, and our antics upon it-viewed from a higher intellectual altitude than we have yet attained-would appear ridiculous in the extreme.

A great artist once painted a notable picture. In it appeared the head of a ing eyes and serene brow. In his extended hands he held a curious collection of tiny puppets, which he appeared to be examining with some curiosity. Among them were little, pompous-looking soldiers, with padded chests; cannon, no bigger than a small firecracker; broken swords, the size of a darning needle, and man, clear and noble, with calm, pity-fragments of diminutive banners. The painting was entitled, "The Man of the Future Examining the Things of the Past." In that picture you are made to feel toward the puppets in the hands of the serene-browed man precisely as the crowd at the circus felt toward the monkeys. They were so unutterably absurd.

All of us carry through life bits of looking-glass, hiding and guarding them diligently lest our fellows should take compelled to earn his daily bread by Stevenson, who only narrowly escaped being the "Man of the Future" living them from us. Kindly Robert Louis among the things of the present, found that out; but he was too charitable, too loving, to laugh at us. Rather, he adlooking-glass. When he was a lad in Scotland it became the fashion for the boys of the village to assemble on dark nights at a certain rendezvous, each with a closed dark lantern inside the breast of his jacket. These lanterns requires no great stretch of the ima- a fancy which the boys themselves bearer of the lantern knew that it was wasting its light there within his jacket, and not one of the lads thought of exposing the light. The world is peopled by lantern-bearers and men and women with bits of lookit is a pleasant world, and if we hadn't our lantern or our looking-glass to think of we might be worse employed. The monkey at the circus did not worry about what the other monkeys were doing as long as his attention was occupied with the mirror.

A Manifest Destiny.

[Dr. Lyman Abbott.] I believe heartly and profoundly in manifest destiny; heartily and profoundly in a Providence that directs us in ways that we know not of. The destiny of no individual is determined by himself; the destiny of no nation is determined by the aggregate of human wills that make up the nation. "There is a destiny that shapes our ends, rough hew them how we will."

Municipal Hot Water Service.

[Philadelphia Record.] A decided innovation in the line of municipal ownership is soon to be launched at Goshen, Ind. Here the council proposes to furnish heat to its citizens in addition to water and light. The plan is to furnish hot water for heating purposes from the municipal waterworks plant. This system has been tested and found successful in London, and also to some extent by private companies in the United States, but never before has a municipality undertaken such a plan. Goshen is a typical municipal owner ship city already. It is nearly 25 years since she took her first steps in this direction, and she has gone far enough to feel certain that these prin-ciples are a good thing for any wellordered city of similar size. It is es-

No historian has appeared comparable to Hallam or Macaulay. No poet has appeared comparable to Shakespeare, Milton, Wordsworth, or Shelley. The highest points reached, perhaps, have been by jurists such as Story and orators such as Webster. It can hardly be said that any American, even Franklin, has greatly influenced the world's thought. The profound stirring of the national spirit by the struggle for the union failed to produce any of the literary fruits to which such national struggles have commonly given birth. It is in mechanical invention and in scientific discoveries immediately conducive to it that Americans have been su preme. The account of this is to be found certainly not in want of high intelligence; more probably in the comparative youthfulness of the nation, the general hastiness of its education, and its absorption in the material development of the continent and the pursuit of wealth. It does, howappear historically that greatness has generally come of the stocks, not of the civilized offsets.

"Just a Good Fellow."

[Chicago American.] 'A young man died, aged 36, after a career of drunkenness and other dissi-pation. At his death his friends said "he was just a good fellow, and that tells his story."

How easy it is to gloss over disgraceful failure and self-indulgence with a meaningless phrase.

Without mentioning this unfortunate man's name, his career may be outlined as a warning to those whose soft sentimentality leads them to the manufacture of foolish epitaphs of the "just-a-good-fellow" order. This man was "just a good fellow," and he drank himself into his grave and broke his mother's heart.

southeast of this city, lightning killed Morris Curlson, first baseman of one of the teams. The electric bolt knocked down half a dozen other players and a number of spectators, all of whom, however, recovered quickly. The contesting teams were semi-professional organizations of Monroe

Center and Rockford. The game had progressed to the last half of the seventh inning when there was a ter-

And she spoke only the truth in the last statement.

Shirley was clad in white, which, with one or two exceptions, was what she always wore for evening attire, for, of course, she was still in widow's weeds. Her dress on this occasion was of some soft, shimmering material, with a profusion of heavily embroidered chiffon about the V-shaped neck. There was an exquisite bouquet of lilles of the valley fastened upon her bosom, while a magnificent diamond star—her only visible ornament—flashed and gleamed among the waves of her golden hair. She wore very long white gloves, and carried a dainty and costly fan of white ostrich tips.

The visit to the opera had been arranged during the evening of Neil's first call on the Hiltons, when he also asked the privilege of bringing Shirley her flowers for the occasion.

This she had graciously accorded, and when he had put them into her hands—those perfect waxen bells, nestling so shyly among their green leaves—she had exclaimed with delight:

"Oh, how delicious! and—you always give me lilles," she added, in a softened tone, as she remembered the profusion that had graced the altar on her wedding day.

"May I tell you why?" Neil had asked, dress,"
And she spoke only the truth in the last statement.

that had graced the altar on her wedding day.

"May I tell you why?" Neil had asked, while a quiver of deep feeling ran through his tones. "It is because you have always—from the first day of our meeting among the pines at Ivyhurst—reminded me of a lily."

Shirley's eyes drooped beneath the earnest look in his, and a feeling of shyness was beginning to creep over her when Mrs. Hillton entered the room, and Neil begged her acceptance of some beautiful Jacks.

She was very much pleased with this

Nell begged her acceptance of some beautiful Jacks.

She was very much pleased with this delicate attention, and, while she was making her acknowledgments, Shirley pinned her liles to her corsage, thus brightening her severely chaste costume and giving it a very artistic effece.

"Well, mamma, have you, like his lordship, become enchanted with the vision opposite?" Blanche sarcastically demanded, after waiting several minutes for Mrs. Norwood to make some reply to her observations.

The woman turned to her daughter, a bitter smile wreathing her proud lips.

"Is it possible you do not recognize her?" she asked in skeptical tone.

"No, I am sure I do not, although I confess her face seems somewhat familiar. Who is she?"

"She is Shirley Livingstone—or, rather, Mrs. Clifton Vining; your dear Aunt Felice's former companion," sneered Mrs. Norwood.

"Mamma, you are crazy!" in a voice full of scorn, yet lossing some of her brilliant color as she spoke; for she could not hear Clifton's name mentioned even now without a thrill of passionate despair at her heart.

"Look again," briefly commanded her mother, and Blanche, with a trembling hand, lifted her glass again to her eyes. Yes, she saw that it was true, and from that moment the opera lost all attraction for her.

She moved her chair a little back to a spot where, partially shielded by the lace draperies she could watch unobserved the party opposite, while all the fealousy of her selfish heart was aroused spot where, partially shielded by the lace draperies she could watch unobserved the party opposite, while all the jealousy of her selfish heart was aroused afresh at the sight of her who had won the only man she had ever loved.

And the girl, unsuspicious of the excitement which her presence was causing, sat there, beautiful beyond description, with a soft flush on her cheeks, and a brighter light than usual gleaming in her eyes, caused partly by the delicious music and partly by the consciousthat a pair of tender orbs were watching her every movement and expression.

watching her every movement and expression.

Yes, it was Shirley—the despised seamstress—the wronged and hated companion, who, all unwittingly, had been Blanche Norwood's successful rival, and who now, if appearances were any indication, seemed likely to make another conquest of one whom many a New York belle had tried in vain to win during the last year.

conquest of one whom many a New York belle had tried in vain to win during the last year.

It was a bitter experience for the haughty girl; but she seemer strangely fascinated, and unable to take her eyes from those four figures opposite, while she began to wonder how Shirley had happened to fall in with such distinguished people as the Hiltons, and where she had found money enough to enable her to flourish in such style.

The Norwoods had known nothing of Shirley's trip abroad. They had learned nothing regarding her beyond the fact of her marriage, the accident following so close upon it, and Clifton's subsequent death; for, as was natural after such an intrigue and its failure a coolness had arisen between the two families, and they had scarcely met since.

Neither had the Norwoods taken any pains to ascertain what had become of Madame Marton; they had not felt the slightest interest in her after the loss of her fortune, and she had dropped out of their lives as completely as if they had never known her.

But Blanche was destined to learn something of her and her movements during the last year and a half, and to receive an even greater shock than she had experienced upon the recognition of Shirley, for, half an hour after the opera was over, she met them both face to face in the drawing-room of a Fifth avenue palace.

Shirley was leaning on the arm of Mr.

Such as consumption, Bright's disease of the kidneys, chronic blood and stomach disorders, and catarrh, it may take some time for Powley's Liquified Ozone to produce any noticeable benefit. The good starts from the first dose. You will know that a month later, "These that Mrs. Norwood could learn regarding her long-neglected relative was that she and Shirley were the guests of Mrs. Hilton, and this of itself was sufficient to fill her with both alarm and envy; for the Hiltons stood very high socially, and were in the habit of entertianing right royally, consequently Shirley would be introduced to the very best people, and, with her hostess' influence, was likely to become very popular; white Blanche, although she had long figured as a fashionable society girl, had never been an acknowledged belie. These things were all talked over with Mr. Norwood—who was not present—after their return from the reception, and the man was as much unsettled by their information as his wife and daughter had been by what they had seen.

"Well," that gentleman irritably exclaimed, when they mentioned their suspicions regarding madame's present circumstances. "If your surmises are correct, it will only serve you right, and rever been an acknowledged belie.

But Blanche was quick and shrewd enough to get out of their way, and thus avoid the embarrassment and mortification of being presented to them, although she had caught Shirley's glance of recognition as their eyes had for a moment met in passing each other.

She immediately sought her mother, and that lady was considerably agitated upon learning of the presence of Madame Marton in such gorgeous array.

"It looks to me," she said, with a face almost as rigid and white as marble, "as if the woman had recovered some of her money. Glaclous, Blanche! if that should prove to be so, and—and she should cut us, I could never forgive myself."

"Mamma!" exclaimed Blanche, catching her breath sharply, "what if she has been playing a trick upon us? I believe she is cunning enough to have done it; but if that girl should get it, after all else that I have suffered through her, I believe it would be dreadful, and as your father has been so hard pushed of late," Mrs. Norwood admitted.

"Yes, it would be dreadful, and as your father has been so hard pushed of late," Mrs. Norwood admitted.

"More than all this," Blanche resumed, it looks as if Lord Wallace means business in his attentions; you know Lurline Lovering told us that he seemed immensely smitten with her while she was visiting at lvyhurst. I tell you, mamma, it would be too mortifying to have that low-bred seamstress ride over our heads in any such way," she passionately concluded.

But Mrs. Norwood did not find an opportunity to learn "how the wind blew" in a certain quarter that night, although it was through no fault of her own that she was disappointed in so doing.

Madame Marton herself foiled her efforts at every point.

"Well, I'm sure I didn't want such a queer old woman about the house, for she was always making such strange speeches, and dressed so outlandishly that it mortified me beyond endurance," said Mrs. Norwood, plaintively.

DINING ROOMS EXTRAORDINARY !

Anything From a Barrel to the Swell-Box of an Organ.

[From Tit-Bits.] An invitation to dine in a barrel has in itself no great element of at traction; but when the barrel takes the form of a champagne tun large enough to hold £200,000 worth of the seductive beverage, and when the dinner is one of a dozen courses, each perfect of the kind, the temption assumes quite a different complexion.

This was the invitation issued two years ago to 155 chosen guests by Messrs. Fruhinshaltz & Co., of Nancy, and the dining-saloon was a colossa champagne tun built for the Paris Exposition of last year.

This tun was in the shape of an enormous barrel, 31 feet in length and diameter, with a capacity of 92,400 gallons; so capacious was it, in fact that a small army of 3,000 men could have been packed in its interior. The mere preparation of the wood for its construction occupied four months; year was spent in building it; it cost was £2,400, and it was so heavy that a strong locomotive would be re-

Within this truly regal cask covers were laid for 155 guests, just as many as the workmen who had made it and for two hours a sumptuous feast ranging from an overture of potage la bisque d'ecrevisses to a desse that would have tempted Luculius, was partaken of.

More remarkable even than this strange banquet was one which, a year ago, tempted the appetite of two dozen villagers on the northern coast of Norway. An enormous whale, a Great Northern rorqual, had drifted ashore, bringing an unexpected for-tune in oil and blubber and whalebone to its fortunate finders. He was a monster, even of its kind, measuring 80 feet "from snout to tail," and yielded over £2,500 in bone and oil.

In honor of such a rich treasure trove the finders decided to give a banquet in the most novel dining-room on record, the inside of a whale, which, after the removal of the blubber, afforded ample sitting room for 30 guests. How far the appetite of the guests was affected by the unesthetic atmosphere is not recorded, but it is said that some of the diners, toward the end of the meal were so enamored of their quarters, that they expressed a determination to stay there forever, and were only ejected by muscular More than one banquet has been served in the interior of a large organ.

The most notable, perhaps, was that given by the Silbermanns, a century ago, in the magnificent organ of the Royal Catholic Church, Dresden, when the vox humana stop was more predominant than it has ever been since.
Forty years or more ago ten guests sat down to a perfect little dinner in the swell box of a Leeds organ; and the famous organ of the Sydney Town Hall was similarly converted

It is no uncommon thing in Cali-fornia to dine and dance inside the trunk of one or other of the enormous frees which are so common there, some of which are over 300 feet high and 90 feet in circumference. In the hollow interior of one of these giants

For Housekeepers The attendance of farmers at the market today was fair, and the amount of produce offered for sale was large. Business in most lines was brisk. Buyers seemed anxious to purchase, and as a consequence there was not much bickering about the price to be paid.

Grain—Only one load of wheat on the which sold at $1 15 per cwt. Ten loads which sold at $6 to 98c per cwt. There Grain-Only one load of wheat offered, Hay and Straw-Only four loads on the stand; selling at $7 to $7 50 per ton. Straw There's a cause for it. Very likely is selling at $5 per ton.

Butter and Eggs-Butter was higher in price; crock butter sold at 14c to 15c per lb; rolls, loc to 17c. Eggs are a trifle lower in price, 10c to 101/2c per basket and crate lots; wholesale dealers say that they have purchased large lots of eggs this week at 9c to 91/2c per dozen; eastern markets are lower, which is said to have caused the drop. Vegetable-Old potatoes were a drug on the market today, selling at 30c to 40c per bag by the load, and 40c to 45c per ingle bag. New potatoes sold at 8c to 10c per quart. New beets at 25c to 35c per dozen bunches. Carrots, 25c to 30c per dozen. Green peas at 10c to 12c per smaller scale by private individuals to colleges and universities, there can be no question as to the utility or desirability of Mr. Carnegie's gift, nor will the scheme he has carefully thought out be regarded as other than sensible or beneficial to Scotland in Great Britain. Unused to private beneficence to education, the amount of the gift seems to have dazed the people. They appear to have an uneasy feeling year, is devoted, and to this sum will be added any surplus that may be left over after the other provisions are fulfilled.

The clause reads:

"One-half of the net annual income"

The income, namely, $250,000 a that there is something wrong or harmful in receiving so much money. The first erroneous report of the gift produced a great deal of academic discussion about the evil of pauperizing education in Scotland, and an outcry against the disturbance of the present system. The publication of the actual terms has upset all this oppo-sured that he has founded an I tion that will do great and good work for the country of his birth. The wisdom and foresight embodied in his deed of trust are no less marked than his unselfish generosity. The deed :s a model for men whose purpose is to benefit the public rather than carry out their own fancies. The Scotsman has found little trouble in the past in making his way; look out for him in the twentieth century.

Catarrh

The cause exists in the blood, in what causes inflammation of the mucous membrane.

It is therefore impossible to cure the disease by local applications.

It is positively dangerous to neglect it, because it always affects the stomach and deranges the general health, and is likely to develop into consumption.

Many have been radically and permanently eured by Hood's Sarsaparilla. It cleanses the blood and has a peculiar alterative and tonic effect. M. J. McDonald, Trenton, Ont., writes: "I had catarrh, my system was weak, blood was bad, and my liver torpid and inactive. I tried many medicines without benefit until J began taking Hood's Sarsaparilla. This medicine has completely cured me and I highly recommend it to all sufferers."

Harding Hall's Closing.

The assembly hall of the Western University was crowded to its full capacity Thursday night by the audience which gathered by invitation to witness the closing exercises of Harding Hall. The excellent work being done in the training of pupils, under the able direction of the principal, Mrs. J. E. Wells, was amply evidenced by the manner in which each of the participarts in the programme performed her part. The affair was easily the most successful closing yet held, and marked an equally successful year in the history of the institution. The school closed yesterday for the summer holl-days, to reopen about the middle of September.

Dier --- Hamilton.

At high noon on Thursday, June 20, the pretty home of James Hamilton Wilson, of St. Thomas, was the scene of a happy event, it being the marriage of his only daughter, Maybelle Lettitia, post graduate of Alma College, to Harry Dier, of the Philadelphia Dental College. The ceremonies were performed by the Rev. Canon Hill, rector of Trinity Church, St. mas. The bride was assisted by Miss Hyslop, of London, the groom by his brother, Roy Branwood Dier. The bride entered the drawing-room leaning on the arm of her father, pre-ceded by two dainty little flower girls, who strewed rose petals in her path to the strains of Mendelssohn's wedding march, played by Miss Hill, graduate of Alma Colleg . The bride wore a handsome gown of pearl duch-ess satin, en train. Her beautiful ess satin, en train. Her beautiful lace veil was caught with a pearl sunburst, the gift of the groom. To the bridesmaid the groom gave a beautiful turquois ring, and to the flower girls, Miss Eva Talbot, of London, and Miss Millicent Bryant, of St. Thomas, handsome gold hearts. The presents to the bride were very handsome and costly, showing the high esteem in which she is held by her many friends. The wedding breakfast was served by Spencers, of St. Thomas. Mr. and Mrs. Dier will spend some months at Atlanta City before going to Mr. Dier's practice in Victoria, B. C.

COMMITTED FOR TRIAL ON SERIOUS CHARGE.

David Rutherford May Get Five Years for Fooling With Trolley Pole.

A young man named David Rutherford was before Squire Lacey Thursday on a serious charge, and was committed for trial. It appears that on Saturday night last Rutherford with some companions were waiting to board a city-bound car at Wonderland. Rutherford got on, but as his companions seemed in no hurry to follow, the car was started. Rutherford, it is said, seized the trolley rope and pulled the pole off the wire, with the intention of stopping the car. P. C. Black, who was on the car, took Rutherford's name, and had him summoned on the charge of interfering with the operation charge of interfering with the operation of the street railway, an offense for which a sentence of five years can be imposed. The street railway company have suffered from several instances of rowdyism on the Springbank line, and they intend to make an example

TO KNOW IS TO PREVENT.—If the miners who work in cold water mest of the day would rub their feet and legs with Dr. Thomas Eclectric Oil, they would escape muscular rheumatism and render their nether limbs proof against the ill effects of exposure to the celd. You Can Cure It.

A New Cure for Catarrh in Tablet Form.

The old-time treatment for catarrh was in the form of douches or sprays; later on, internal remedies were given with greater success, but being in liquid or powdered form were inconvenient and were open to the same objection to all liquid remedies, that is, that they lose whatever remedial power they may have had on exposure to

The tablet is the ideal form in which to administer medication, but until re-cently no successful catarrh tablet had ever been attempted.

At this writing, however, a most excellent and palatable remedy for catarrh has been placed before the public, and sold by druggists, called Stuart's Catarrh Tablets, composed of the most recent discoveries in medicines most recent discoveries in medicines for the cure of catarrh, and results from their use have been highly grat-

Stuart's Catarrh Tablets contain principally highly concentrated anti-septics, which kill the catarrh germs in the blood and mucous membranes, and in this respect are strictly scien-tific and modern, as it has been known for some years past by the ablest physicians that the most successful catarrh treatment was by inhaling or praying antiseptics.

The use of inhalers, douches and sprays, however, is a nuisance and in-convenience, and moreover can in no wise compare with the same remedies given in tablet form, either in efficacy

A clerk in a prominent insurance office in Pittsburg relates his experi-ence with Stuart's Catarrh Tablets in a few words but to the point. He says: "Catarrh has been almost constantly with me for eight years; in this climate it seems impossible to get rid of it. I awoke every morning stuffed up, and for the first half hour it cough, gag, expectorate and sneeze befor I could square myself for my day's work; no appetite and a foul breath, which annoyed me exceedingly.
"I used Stuart's Catarrh Tablets for two months and found them not only pleasant to take but they did the business, and I can sincerely recommend them to all catarrh sufferers." Druggists sell Stuart's Catarrh Tabets at 50 cents for full sized package. They can be carried in the vest pocket and used at any time and as often as necessary. Guaranteed free from cocaine, mercury or any mineral poison; absolutely safe. PRIZES AWARDED IN SEPARATE SCHOOLS

TWO WEDDINGS

ON THURSDAY

Both Ceremonies Were Performed by Rev. Thomas Wilson.

Miss Annie C. Bean and Mr. Albert George Lowry, both of London, were wedded quietly Thursday afternoon at the manse of the King Street Presbyterian Church. The ceremony was performed by Rev. Thomas Wilson, pastor of the church. The groom was assisted by Rev. J. Hutchinson and the bride by Miss Katie Murray.

LILLIMAN-SMITH. Mr. John L. Lilliman and Miss Maud Smith were married Thursday at the residence of the bride's parents, 628 York street, the ceremony also being performed by Rev. Thomas Wilson. The wedding, which was a very pretty affair, was attended by about forty guests. The bride was supported by her sister, Miss Fannie Smith, groom being assisted by Mr. John Christie. The happy couple received many presents.

"I was so lame in my back that my wife had to lift me out of bed. The doctors said they could do nothing for me. I was told by a friend to try a box of Dodd's Kidney Pills, and found they helped me right away. I recommend them to everyone and always after a trial the people are ready to recommend to others. My wife has used five begies of Dodd's Ridney Pills and says exactly the same as I do. Neither she nor I feel safe unless we have a box in the house."

FOUR CHINESE CITIES SEIZED BY BANDITS

n the Vicinity of Mukden, Manchuria-Bloody Prince Tuan Arrives at His Place of Banishment.

Shanghai, June 28.-It is reported here that bandits have seized four walled cities near Mukden, Manchuria. Advices received here from Sian Fu are to the effect that Ching Sing, president of the board of civil appropriations committed suicide when the dowager empress stigmatized as treachery his advice that the Chinese court return to Pekin. Pekin, June 28.-Word has been received here of the arrival of Duke Lan and Prince Tuan at Ulumski, Turkestan, in which place of banishment they have been sentenced to reside. A Russian consul is stationed at Ulumski, and he will notify the Russian Government should the banished

Chinese leave that place. Shanghai, June 28.—The Taotai Sheng, at the request of Liu Kuen Yi, visited all the consuls today and urged, that, as the foreign forces were leaving Pekin, they ought also to evacuate Shanghai. The consuls are referring the matter to their respective governments. Pekin, June 27.—The foreign ministers at today's meeting only discussed

minor points of the indemnity question. The British minister, Sir Ernest Satow, refused to agree to a 10 per cent increase in the tariff in the event that China finds herself unable to meet her payments. The Russian minister, M. De Giers, has not yet agreed that the interest on the indemnity is to be 4 per cent.

The United States special representative, Mr. Rockhill, thinks there should be little further delay. When these points are completed the work of the ministers will be practically Rev. Arthur Smith, the missionary and author, preaching at Tien Tsin on the anniversary of the relief of that city (June 24), said he thoroughly agreed with Sir Robert Hart in the statement that unless there was a complete regeneration of China in a few years the country would be men-aced by 20,000,000 Boxers. The Chinese would never forget that the Boxers' novement was fully approved by the court.

NEW RAILWAY DEAL. Cleveland, Ohio, June 28 .- The anis made by the Nickle Plate, Lake Shore, Wabash, Michigan Central and Grand Trunk Railroads that they will route business from Buffalo by way of Memphis and Cairo to points in the south, which are east of the Mississippi River, on the same basis as the short line fares. This is the end of a controversy which has existed since the time of the old general traffic association, and puts back into effect a greatly reduced rate to the south.

ADELBERT HAY'S SWEETHEART. Philadelphia, June 28.-Nell Gwynn writes the North American that friends of the late Adelbert Hay and Kuchne Beveridge, the young Cali-fornian sculptress, declare that a warm attachment, if not an engagement to wed, existed between the couple Young Hay was among those who met Miss Beveridge at the pier on her re-cent arrival from Europe, when she had an argument with custom inspec-tors. One of the articles yielded up from Miss Beveridge's dispatch box was a large photograph of Hay taken in Pretoria and bearing an affectionate inscription. This portrait remained on Miss Beveridge's dressing-table during her stay in New York.

GOOD BREAKFASTS

Start the Day Right.

The breakfast is perhaps the most usually eat a very light breakfast. Many Americans have stomach trouble because they eat too much or food of not the right sort for the morning An ideal breakfast is a baked apple or some other fruit, a dish of Grape-Nuts Food with a little cream, and a cup of Postum Food Coffee.

Leave off all meat, hot biscuits, etc. Grape-Nuts and Postum both furnish the phosphate of potash together with other food elements that go to make up brain and nerve centers as well as muscle and tissue, and both can be digested by the stomach of an It is the part of wisdom nowadays to use food especially selected for nourishment and that can be easily digested. Ten days' trial of this breakfast.

'cleaned house." The exhilaration of bounding health is worth a hundred times the small outlay of time and care in arranging such a breakfast. Mrs. Riley, 125 Chestnut street, Camlen, N. J., says she formerly breakfasted on chops, hot biscuits and coffee "After such a meal I would have severe pains, and they would last some-times far into the night." She finally determined on a change in her diet, and had for breakfast only Grape-Nuts Food and a little cream with Postum Food Coffee. She says: "In a very few

Grape-Nuts Food is best when served just as it comes from the package, without any cooking whatever. The food has already been cooken ten or twelve hours in the process of manu-facturing it. When made up into puddings, ples and other desserts it does not hurt it to be cooked again, but when served simply as a breakfast food it should never be cooked. On the contrary Postum Coffee absolutely must be boiled 15 or 20 minutes before the food value and flavor can be brought

AS USUAL, MR. F. J. DARCH WILL

RUN. The Socialist Labor Party decided on Friday night to run Mr. Fred J. Darch against Col. Leys at the coming byeelection. As one good-natured Socialist put it, Mr. Darch has a sort of mono mania for being a candidate of some sort; it is considered a sort of disease with him. A number of the more thoughtful Socialists are not sure that it is good policy to tire the public in

THE LAKE ERIE TO RIDGETOWN. Commencing Monday the Lake Erie and Detroit River Railway will run regular trains through from London to Ridgetown and return. The 5:50 a.m. and 2:30 p.m. trains are scheduled to make connections, and tickets will be sold to the following stations: Middlemarch, Shedden, Iona, Dutton, West Lorne, Kerr's Siding, Rodney, Taylor's, Muirkirk, and Ridgetown. The trains arriving here at 2:05 p.m. and 10:30 p.m. make connections through from Ridgetown.

ACCIDENT AT BARN RAISING. Four men met with accidents while raising a barn for Mr. Christopher Robinson, of con. 6, West Nissouri, on Wednesday. The men had just succeeded in raising a beam to its place when those on the ropes pulled too far and brought down the whole side. John Walkem was hurt across the back; George Macdonald was injured on head and shoulders and badly cut and bruised, and Roy Skinner and James Woods were both hurt very badly in the fall.

PRESENTATION TO MR. J. E. CAR-SON.

The Listowel Standard of the 28th inst, has the following reference to a former merchant of that town, Mr. J. E. Carson, now of the firm of Runians, Carson & McKee, of this city, who has recently removed to London: "There was a large attendance at the Methodist prayer meeting Tuesday night, which partook of the nature of a farewell to Mr. and Mrs. J. E. Carson, who, after 25 years in contown, are removing to London. Benjamin Rothwell read an address and Mr. James Lee presented Mr. and Mrs. Carson with a beautiful writing desk and clock. Mr. Carson made feeling and appropriate reply, reviewing his 30 years in Listowel, and ex pressing his love for his church associates and his appreciation of the tangible proof of their esteem for him and for Mrs. Carson. Appreciative addresses were then made by Messrs. James Lee, W. A. Phillips, B.A., J. W. Scott, Thos. Seaman, Benjamin Rothwell, William Bradley and the pastor, Rev. H. Irvine.

GOLDEN WEDDING. On the afternoon and evening of the 26th inst., at Maple Dell Farm, London township, a very happy company gathered to celebrate the golden wedding of Mr. and Mrs. John Haskett. The company consisted of the children, grandchildren and other near connections from various places. An interest ing feature of the event was the Lies ence of the bridesmaid and groomsman who assisted at the ceremonies of half a century ago The family of the above consists of eight children and fifteen grandchildren, and during the fifty years, but two deaths have occurred both being children under six weeks old. A supper was served on the beautiful lawn, after which a programme was rendered, consisting of speeches songs, recitations and music. chair was ably filled by Squire Patrick. Numerous snap shots and camera views were taken during the afternoon. When the evening was far spent the gathering dispersed, after congratulations, all feeling they had spent a very enjoyable afternoon and evening. Mr. and Mrs. Haskett have always resided at Maple Dell Farm, Mr. Haskett having settled there some sixty-eight years ago.

HIS HONEYMOON

London, June 29.—According to per- | five royal carriages, containing the sistent rumors the young Duke of heralds, pursuivants and other Mariborough will be appointed shortly governor-general of Canada. The report is exciting a good deal of discussion among the fashionable set, some members of which are considerably worked up over the idea of the young American duchess reigning as BANKER LOSES mistress of Rideau Hall, at Ottawa, in the place formerly occupied by King Edward's sister, Princess Louise.

Marlborough doubtless would signalsplendor and stateliness hitherto unknown at Ottawa. The idea of appointing Marlborough is said to have originated with King Edward, who has always manifested a fatherly interest in the young duke. The duchess was formerly Consuelo Vanderbilt, of New York.

THE BANKRUPT DUKE. London, June 29.—The Duke of Manchester made yesterday what he hopes will be his last appearance in the bankruptcy court, as his creditors formally accepted the composition of 12 shillings and 6 pence in the pound, ficulties that threatened its ruin. which offer was approved yesterday was to have been married to at a meeting of the unsecured credit-Although the accounts showed that the unsecured debts amounted to £30,710, the trustees submitted that this sum could be scaled down to £19,with assets amounting to £5,000. During the course of his final examthe Duke of Manchester reiterated that his failure was due to several thousands of pounds in theatrical speculations, and said he rad not gambled. Miss Portia Knight, an actress, who has brought suit against the Duke of Manchester for breach of promise, had lawyers present at the duke's examination today, but they were not permitted to question the debtor, and consequently hey were unable to obtain information of much value to their client. THE QUEEN'S WINES. The sale of the surplus wine from the royal cellars was concluded yes-The bidding for the last lots was sensational, several lots of pale sherry, from Windsor Castle, bottled in 1820, fetching as high as 570 shil-

THE KING'S CORONATION. London, June 29 .- The royal proclamation announcing that the coronation of King Edward is to take place in June next, the exact day not yet having been determined on, was read yesterday at St. James Palace, Temle Bar and the Royal Exchange, with all the quaint medieval scenes which marked the occasion of the proclaiming of the accession of the King.

At the appointed hour four state rumpeters, lavishly adorned in gold embroidered tunics, appeared in front the balcony. By their side stood he Norroy king of arms (Willie H. Weldon), flanked by two royal macers, searing gold maces, and surrounded by the blue mantle (Gorden Ambrose De Lisle Lee); the rouge dragon (Everard Green); the Somerset herald (Henry Farnham Burke); the York herald (Alfred Scott Scott-Gatty), and the Windsor herald (Wm. Alexander Lindsay), all in their full official re galia, and the earl marshal (the Duke of Norfolk), the lord steward (the Earl of Pembroke), the lord chamberlain (the Earl of Clarenden), and others.

The trumpeters sounded a protracted fanfare and then the Norroy king of arms bared his head and read the proclamation in a clear voice, which must have been audible to the royal party, occupying a stand on the grounds of Marlborough House, facing the balcony of the palace. Build on resolve and not upon regret The structure of thy future years.

* * Waste no tears

Upon the blotted record of lost years,
But turn the leaf and smile, oh, smile, The fair white pages that remain for

- Ella Wheeler Wilcox,

It seems almost a wonder that the world is not burned up, when one realizes what strange circumstances ald. may cause a disastrous fire. In one case the peaceful crawling of an insect set a building on fire. Some cotton waste had been used with mineral oil, waste had been used with mineral cit, and then thrown away.

An unlucky insect crawled through the oil-saturated waste, and came out again with some of the oily fibers adhering to its body. Then it perambulated round the building, coming at last to the gas jet to meet its fate. The cotton fibres, still adhering to its body, caught fire, and the unfortunate insect dropped blazing to the floor, setting the place on fire. ting the place on fire.

Cotton waste was also partly responsible for another curious fire. This time an electric spark did the mischief, helt to some conduct ing substance near it and communicating with the cotton.

The Railway and Engineering Re view, borrowing from an English ex-change, gives two instances of fire caused by water. In the first case a flood caused the water to rise inside factory until it reached a pile of iron filings. When they came in contact with the water, they oxidized so rapidthat they became intensely hot, and last set fire to woodwork near them, and the building was destroyed.

In the other case the water from the engines during a fire found its way into a shed containing quicklime. The heat caused by the slacking of the lime set fire to the shed, and this to other buildings.

A HUMOROUS JUDGE.

WOMEN PREACHERS IN LONDON.

Though not using the title reverend yet, there are about 30 ladies belonging to the United Methodist Free Churches who conduct missions and take services, but who are called deaconnesses and sisters rather than by the more ministerial title. The other day they held their convention and meeting at Exeter Hall, Mr. E. C. Pannett, of London, presiding. The Deaconesses' Institute is at Bowron House, 165 Lupus street, Pimlico, and the institution, it was said, was established to train and send forth sisters in the threefold capacity of district visitor, evangelist, and nurse. During the year they have conducted 175 evangelistic missions, while during the nine years of the institute's existence they have conducted 1,199 missions, and converts from these services were to be found in all parts of the con-

One of the great sources of the Queen's power, says Harper's Bazar, was the extreme attention she gave to This extended to everything came under her personal notice. The story of her writing her name in the dust on a piece of furniture, while making a tour of Windsor Castle, and underneath it also the name of the housemaid who was responsible for the neglect, I have never heard confirmed, but many little stories attest her far-seeing supervision in everything. She never considered the smallest courtesy beneath her dignity. Madame M—, lady inwaiting to the Duchess of Connaught, is responsible for this little anecdote illustrating this. At the time of the christening of little Prince Edward, the eldest son of the Duke of York, through some mistake Madame M--'s invitation was forgotten. She did not go to the ceremony, but Queen soon after, her Majesty asked why she had not been present, inquired into all the particulars, and made many excuses. THE VOW OF SIR MATTHEW HALE.

Among those who have received much benefit to themselves, and who have conferred much benefit on others in consequence of their having made a solemn resolve, the name of Sir Matthew Hale, lord chief justice of England (in the Cromwellian period) stands very conspicuous. Seldom has there been a better man, a better scholar, a better Christian, or a better judge, and his excellence in all these respects may be traced to his having at certain critical junctures of his life, marked out for himself a course of life, and confirmed the same by a solemn pledge.

In his life we are informed that, having been invited with other young students to be merry out of town, one of the company called for so much wine, that notwithstanding all Mr. Hale could do to prevent it, he went on in his excess until he fell down as dead before them, so that all that were present were not a little affrighted at it, who did what they could to bring him to himself. COLLEGE MEN IN FINANCE.

The names of J. Pierpont Morgan, Andrew Carnegie, John D. Rockefeller, William Rockefeller, James J. Hill, James Stillman, Charles Schwab and William C. Whitney are all household words, and have been ever since the consolidation of those huge industrial enterprises that almost baffle the imagination in their intensity of inclusion. Of these only one-the last named-is a college man in the sense

his version became just as sterestyped as "God Save the Ring." Not many years ago, the late Ambrolse Thomas was asked by the French Government to write a "Marseillaise" according to the latest ideas of harmony. Which of the two is the better, Berlioz's or Ambrolse Thomas'? The government, as are agont with the largest engineering works the the largest engineering works the world has ever dreamed of, has acquired his technical knowledge mainly by his own efforts and by study in practical work, rather than in schools of theoretical instruction

The others in the list, Mr. Carnegie, the two Rockefellers and Mr. Still-man, had but common school advan-tages. But they have held their own tages. But they have held their own in most surprising fashion, and have known how to employ the talent and the learning they did not possess. It might be said that these men have all a genius for affairs, and therefore defy classification. That I believe to be the case, and there would be no object in mentioning them were it not that omission to do so would seem, on account of their prominence, like on account of their prominence, like a suppression of evidence. Such men are exceptions in life, and when those of ordinary mold try to imitate them, they only resemble the fabled frog that aspired to be mistaken for the lordly bull. Before dismissing this phase of the subject, I think one observation is due. Four years in col-lege has a tendency to give to a man the habits and the manners of a gentleman. Such habits narrow and circumscribe a man's capacity to be over-bearing and masterful that there is no withstanding him. No man that I ever heard of has succeeded in the large measure of which I speak and preserved more than the faintest ves-ting of that gentle ferbearence which tige of that gentle forbearance which is the heritage of them that seek the world from the academic retreats we call colleges and universities. Getting great wealth, even when the most scientific strategy is employed, is after all only a great game of grab. Maybe they do not teach the principles of it at college, even though they do not neglect football.

MODERN LUXURY

Most of the luxuries, and many of the so-called comforts of life, are not only not indispensable, but positive hindrances to the elevation of mankind. With respect to luxuries and comforts, the wisest have ever lived a more simple and meagre life than the poor. The ancient philosophers, Chinese, Hindoo, Persian, and Greek were a class than which none has been poorer in outward riches, none so rich n We know not much about inward. them. It is remarkable that we know so much of them as we do. The same is true of the more modern reformers and benefactors of their race. None can be an impartial or wise observer of human life but from the vantage ground of what we should call voluntary poverty. Of a life of luxury the fruit is luxury, whether in agriculture, or commerce, or literature, of art. There are nowadays professors of philosophy, but not philosophers .-

Sheep cannot feed scions. Unless the scions can be readon sour food. Indeed, they require fresh, soft, watery feed even in the winter to maintain best condition. That the sheep of Great Britain have become the finest in the world, and have been so vastly improved, is the result of the common—indeed, univer-sal—practice of feeding roots during This succulent feeding, with unrivalled pastures for the summer feeding, shows in excellence of meat, as well as of fleece. It is also the feeding by which the ewes are nourished so well, that the almost common doubling of the flock in the lambing-every ewe almost having and rearing twins-is due. sound clover hay, made by early cutting, not later any way than full blossom, and before pollen is formed in the flowers, is excellent feed for winter, especially if fresh green food, as cabbage, be provided for a change, and sheep may be brought through to spring in excellent condition.

Nevertheless, it should be the rule to grow some roots, which is easily done to supply the succulent food which seems indispensable for the full welfare of a flock. Mangels may be grown as cheaply as ensilage can be. Our native-grown sugar beets first grown by Henry Lane, of Vermont, and called Lane's sugar beet, will yield as many tons to the acre, and is twice as nutritious on account of the 10 or 12 per cent of sugar; and roots may be kept perfectly well until July in good condition—at any rate, they will bring the flock through until full pasture is ready. There is no necessity of running risks with a flock by feeding ensilage; it may be fed under exnestly to God, both for his friend, that ceedingly careful management, and he might be restored to life, and for the sheep may survive it, but the risks himself that he might be forgiven for are so great that it is not to be recomgiving such countenance to so much mended, even in the entire absence of When as large a product would never again keep company in roots may be grown as may be of this manner, nor drink a health while ensilage, then the roots are not only safe but excellent, and their growth in His friend recovered, and he most every way is as good for the cleaning dying day; though he was sometimes Ensilage is only permissible when it is roug ly treated for this, which some unavoidable. "Would you advise me to plow my wheat field under and sow something fund for many years. This would be else?" is a common inquiry just now a great strain on the fund. Rev. Mr. from southwest counties of the province. This question may be easily answered in the affirmative if many "flaxseeds" are to be found at the base himself her allowance as a widow of the wheat plants. There is no use in trying to bring through a wheat crop which looks yellow and winter-killed by the Hessian fly. Even should the crop revive sufficiently to appear encouraging, it will in all likelihood succumb to the attack of the spring brood. In four or five weeks the flies escape from the "flaxseeds" and proceed to deposit eggs on the leaf-blades for another brood—for another batch of "flaxseeds"—which will ruin the crop near harvest time completely. Nothing will prevent these flies escaping if the plants are not plowed under. Simple harrowing or even disk-plowing the infested field is net sufficient, for the flies will emerge from the "flaxseeds" after such treat-

Prof. Webster, of Ohio, says: wheat fields that do not give fairly good promise of a crop should be plowed under to a depth of from four to six inches as quickly as possible, and the ground harrowed and rolled in order to prevent the flies from reaching the surface. The land may be devoted to oats, corn, or any other crop that may be practicable."

It is advisable to sow barley after the wheat has been plowed under, for it is subject to attack by the Hessian fly just as rye and wheat are. Some may ask: "Of what use is it to plow under the wheat crop? Would harrowing or disking not do as well? So far as the present crops are concerned, harrowing in the oats would do just as well, but we have neighbors who have possibly good wheat or barley fields. If the flies are not killed they will swarm over to our neighbors' field, and destroy them before harvest. Moreover, simple har-rowing will not keep the flies from the wheat fields in autumn if they are allowed to propagate unmolested during the spring and summer. In August and September the parent flies are active, and eggs are laid on the young blades of wheat. From these Remarriage of Widowers.

[Hamilton Times.]

At the meeting of the Anglican Synod at Ottawa, Mr. Orde, the lay secretary, proposed an amendment to the rules governing the widows' and orphans' fund, the first clause of the amendment reading as follows:

"The widow of any clergyman of "Ladies and gentlemen, if there is no this audience any young man who he shall have attained the age of house, therefore he accepts the earliest favorable apportunity to start again such marriage, shall any of the benefits of the canon XVI. on the widows' and orphans' fund or be deemed to come within the terms thereof. In moving the adoption of the clause, Mr. Orde said that in case a clergyman, who, having reached the age of 50, married a young girl, in the event of his death, he would leave a young widow and probably orphans, who would have to be maintained by the widows' and orphans' McRitchie opposed the clause, but suggested that, in cases where a clergyman over 50 years of age married a woman much younger than should only be paid for a limited umber of years. Mr. Waterman remarked that, as the clergymen were the largest contributors to the fund, the laity should leave the matter to the Rev. Mr. Gorman said it was clergy. a rare thing that a clergyman married after reaching the age of 50, and Rev. Mr. Kitson asked, Why does a man get married at the age of 50? Why does a man get married at 25? If the synod should pass legislation interfering with a man's right at 50, why not pass first similar restrictions on a man at 25? The legislation was not going to interfere with a man getting married at any age, nor was the fund going to prevent the girl from marrying if she "Let nature take its was inclined. "Let nature take its course," said Mr. Kitson, "and let the canon stand as at present."

The discussion was cut short by the ringing of the dinner bell. St. Paul wrote to the Corinthians that wife is bound by the law as long as her husband liveth; but if her husband be dead, she is at liberty to be married to whom she will; only in the Lord, and it is a poor rule that will not apply to husbands as well as wives -to widowers as well as widows. The provision for widows seems to have been a cause of anxiety away back in the days of the apostles, for we read in the epistle to Timothy, "Let not a widow be taken into the number under threescore years old, having been the wife of one man."

"If any man or woman that lieveth have widows, let them relieve them, and let not the church be charged; that it may relieve them that are widows indeed. This would appear to shut out from the benefits of the fund young widows who might fairly be expected, by the exercise of due diligence, to secure second husbands. We shall read with interest answers to Rev. Mr. Kitson's question, "Why does a man get married at the age of 59?" It is quite possible that, having enjoyed the comfort and the privacy of a home of his own, before the death of his first wife, he cannot take kindly to the hash and prunes, on the old basis. Then there popular belief that widowers, of a good moral character, such as bereaved clergymen are sure to possess, are apt to be overwhelmed by the kind attentions of all the spinsters and widows in the parish, which would surely justify the victim in choosing one as a wife in order to get rid of the rest. For these and other reasons, we think Mr. Kitson was about right when he uttered the words, "Let nature take its course, and let the canon stand as

The Size of Rain Drops.

[From the London Express.] The Paris Meteorological Society has undertaken the laborious task of measuring the dimensions of raindrops. It is found that the largest are about one-sixth of an inch, and the smallest on-five-hundredth of an inch in diameter. They are larger in summer than in winter and larger in hot than in cold At the moment of condensation of the water vapor to the liquid state great numbers of extremely small drops are formed in close proximity.

As they fall they come together, and coalesce in consequence of mutual attraction, and so what we call raindrops are formed. In the summer the lower strata of air are warmer than winter, and therefore clouds are formed at a greater height where conditions are favorable for rapid condensation. The drops falling from those high summer clouds have more time to grow, and therefore become larger than the winter drops.

In winter, as is well known, clouds often exist very near the ground. The velocity with which raindrops fall depends both on their size and on the which makes them obliquely.

Other things being equal a drop of medium size, say, one-fifth of an inch in diameter, may strike the ground with a velocity of some 13 feet a second, while a very large drop, measuring one-sixth of an inch, may attain a speed of 38 feet a second.

"BLESS OUR NOBILITY."

[New York Journal.] "Marry, my sons, and marry happily, but be sure and marry money. I have no money to leave you."

This injunction was given by that sage old worlding, the Marquis de Castelaine, as his sons arrived at the point of discretion. They have followed his advice with the most absolute filial duty.

Count Boni got Anna Gould and the most money. Count Jean captured the rich widow of the Prince of Furstenberg, Marie Louise of Tallyrand-Peri-

And now comes along Count Stanis-las, the last of the trio, whose engagement is announced to the daughter of Emilio Terry, of the rich and famous Cuban-New York family of that name. While Count Stanislas will not secure the ignoble escutcheon of the Caste-lanes as Boni or Jean, he will get a wife whose face is described in the Paris chronicles as delicious to look Curiously enough in two instances the money procured to the Castellane family by the advice of this up-to-date Polonius to his sons was made by two peddlers in America. One was Jay Gould, who peddled mousetraps, the other was old Terry, the sugar man, who started in life peddling cheap jewery.

THE MAID IN THE PINAFORE.

Dear little maiden, a song for you! A song of the days of yore;
Of a dear little cottage (the story's true)
In a garden by the shore;
Larkspur and lavender, heart's-ease and rue,
Bold prince's-feather and quaint feverfew—

few—
And fairer than all to the boy in blue,
A maid in a pinafore.

Now the boy in blue sailed over the sea. As boys have done before,
But ever his thoughts clung wistfully
About that cottage door;
Pale honeysuckle and bonny sweet-pea,
Roses the sweetest, the bravest to see— Oh, sweetest of all in the garden she, The maid in the pinafore!

And that cottage garden's his today,
And a wife that he adores;
Oh, the winds may call him "Away!
He rests upon his oars;
And along with dahlia and hollyhock,
Bachelor's-buttons and four-o'clock,
They're raising a kind of perennial stock
Of maids in pinafores.

Green Sickness or Chlorosis.

Just at the threshold of womanhood, that trying period when the whole system is undergoing a complete change many a girl falls a victim of Chleresis or Green Sickness Her disposition changes and she becomes morose, despondent and melancholy. The appetite is changeable, digestion imperfect, and weariness and fatigue are experienced on the slightest exertion. Blondes become pallid, waxy and puffy brunettes become muddy and grayish in color, with bluish black rings under the eyes.

Examination shows a remarkable decrease in the quality of the blood. Iron and such other restoratives as are ad mirably combined in Dr. Chase's Nerve Food are demanded by the system. The regular and persistent use of Dr. Chase's Nerve Food cannot fail to beneat any girl or young weman suffering from chlorosis, feminine irregularities or weaknesses resulting from poer blood and exhausted nerves. It reconstructs wasted tissue, gives color to the cheeks and new vitality to every organ of the body.

A CANADIAN'S GOOD WORK!

Sir John Murray and What He Has Accomplished.

New Science of Oceanography-Famous Ship Challenger and Her Strangest of All Cargoes Collected in the Course of a Four Years' Cruise.

A man who was born in Canada knows more about the bottom of the sea —and is alive—than any man in the world. There are many men for whom the tops of tall mountains have attractions, but the number of those who go to the other extreme and who desire to become acquainted with the bottom of the sea, is very limited. Sir John Murray, recognized as the foremost man on oceanology, was born in Cobourg, Ont., in 1841. His early education was obtained in the London (Ont.) high school, and Victoria College, Cobourg, the high school of Stirling, Scotland. He graduated from Edinburgh University, and finish-Boston, when the telegram, "Above the ed his college work in France and

Of all the cargoes that the ships of the sea ever brought into port in all wonderful was the cargo of the famous ship Challenger. In the year 1872 the Challenger sailed from Sheerness in England without a cargo and without a destination. She was a man-o'-war, a square-rigged three-master, com-manded by officers of the royal navy, and having on board some of the most eminent scientists of Great Britain. For nearly four years she sailed the seas of both hemispheres, from the Arctic to the Antarctic, infrequently touching land, and yet constantly ac-cumulating her strange cargo. She dragged the ocean with nets, not only for the ordinary fish of the sea, but for the myriad forms of lesser life which feed in its vast blue meadows; she let down dredges and sounding plummets into the deep, mysterious valleys of the sea bottom; she wilor. deep, mysterious ed all but limitless plains, deblack darkness, and cold, broken silence. In single dredgings she brought up for the eyes of man quantities of primeval ooze that had required the slow accumulations of a million centuries, perhaps, to deposit; she discovered submarine rivers, some of them flowing outward from the land and rising like a fountain from the ocean bottom; she learned of new and mighty ocean currents, not the surface currents known to navigators, carrying life-giving oxygen to the creatures of the deep sea; she located stupendous mountain ranges and volcanoes, with precipices and declivities so awful that it is well, perhaps, that they are hidden forever from the eye of man. Then as evidence of the almost inconceivable strangeness of the bottom its denizens, both vegetable and animal -the appropriate creatures of cold and darkness and the crowding presence of the seas-odd, pulpy, warty fishes, some blind, some with eyes greatly developed, some that peer their way about these depths with lanterns, and thousand other forms of life equally strange. And of the thousands of specimens collected, few had ever before been seen by the eye of man

This report is only one of the very greatest of existing works of science, but in mere material mass it is quite the biggest book ever produced. It is published in fifty royal octavo volumes containing 29,500 pages, 3,000 plates, and a large number of maps and pictures. This stupendous work, which will remain one of the greatest monuments to English science, was under the di-rection, during the first few years after the return of the Challenger, of Sir Wylie Thompson, and, after his death, of Sir John Murray.

A GARDEN OF LONG, LONG AGO.

I can see long back in fancy, in kaleidoscopic view. 'Mid the circling disk of time-rings that my mind is gazing through, A fairyland of beauty which my early childhood knew.

Where the purest, sweetest flowers and the softest mosses grew.

The paths were stiffly outlined by a bordering of box,

The flower-beds flashed brightly with marigold and phlox. While the grape-vines grew precisely, in a fashion orthodox. To evade the crafty cunning of each spoiling two-legg'd fox.

Y can see the drooping pear-tree stooping low to touch the ground, And deposit ripened sweetness where is soonest could be found; While the honey bees grew heavy, as they circled round and round,

And clapped their wings in soft applause with lazy, happy sound.

The currants flushed to crimson 'neath the brightness of the sun. Until, all red and rosy, they shook their heads for fun. And tumbled off demurely, in the green grass, one by one,

To wait until the children adown the path

And then-the very best of all-the merry little brook That dashed along and splashed along with circling curve and crook. Yet held its little mirrors where the lilacs bent to look.

And gave us tiny concerts from a natural music-book.

As I tell myself the story, my heart is With reverberating pleasures, that from the mem'ry grow, So I write down glimpses of it, that others too may know The sweetness and completeness of the distant long ago.

God knows, as we advance in life, Soiled by its dust and heat and strife. How many a beautiful belief Slips from us in our toil and grief! Yet, through the years, one faith confest Still dwells with sweetness in the breast; We like to think of children sleeping As being in the angels' keeping.

Night has no anodyne for care, For countless ones whose footsteps fare Through stony streets, confined, shut in Amid the city's noisy din: The sentinels by many a bed Are anxious thoughts, remorse and dread! How happy are the children sleeping. How peaceful, in the angels' keeping.

How pure, unsullied human flowers, How set apart from lives like ours. These little ones, whose angels see The Father's face continually! Are they not sent to lead us beck To find the long forgotten track, That we like them, awake or sleeping, Mer still be in the angels' keeping?

JUDGE NOT.

Judge not! The workings of his brain What looks to thy dim eyes a stain, In God's pure light may only be A scar, brought from some well-won field Where thou wouldst only faint and yield.

The look, the air, that frets thy sight May be a token, that below

The soul has closed in deadly fight With some infernal, fiery foe, Whose glance would scorch thy smiling

And cast thee shuddering on thy face.

The face thou darest to despise May be the angel's slackened hand Has suffered it, that he may rise And take a firmer, surer stand; Or, trusting less to earthly things, May henceforth learn to use his wings.

And judge none lost, but wait and see, With hopeful pity, not disdain! The depth of the abyss may be The measure of the height of pain, And love and glory that may raise

That soul to God in after days. -Adelaide Anne Proctor.

True Riches.

For all things are yours whether the world, or life, or death, or things present, or things to come; all are yours—I. Corinthians, iii., 21-22.

If we were to spend more time trying to be grateful for the blessings we enjoy, and less time in grumbling because we lack some things which we have longed for, we should make our lives more agreeable to ourselves and more profitable to others.

Discontent is a kindeof poison which produces general debility of the chronic sort, and discontent is in many instances the child of envy. It is the drop of vinegar which sours the whole temper of the man, and instead of being a trusty Toledo blade which cuts its cheerful and hopeful way through opposing forces, he becomes a poor kind of sword which hides in the scabbard when danger demands daring. To dwell on the things you do not possess, and to feel wronged because others do possess them, is to lose the battle before the battle calls you to the front. On the other hand, to foster the ability God has given you, to be cheerful in narrow circumstances, but to determine to make them wider with favoring opportunity, in other words, to fill your sphere full to overflowing with your best self-all that equips you for duty, and brings an ultimate victory within reach. A sour soul never yet accomplished much good for itself or for others. Eyes must be ifted toward the heavens, not dropped to the earth, if we are to make life comfortable or comforting.

We really possess many things which are not written in the inventory we are not written in the inventory we have taken. St. Paul in the text gives us a new view-point, one which world-liness and selfishness sneer at, but which opens a long vista to the wision of the spirit. What care you if your neighbor has the title deed to many acres? You own the beauty of the landscape in equal partnership with of two stamps him. The firmament, fretted with pass- manyille, Ont.

When Prof. Munyon says his Rhoumathen Cure will cure rheumatism there isn't any guess-work about it—there isn't any false statement about it. It cures without leaving any ill effects. ing clouds, is not his more than yours. You own the world, and its laws contribute to your welfare as though you were the only beneficiary of their wealth. If your vision is clear you see that life also is yours, to make of it all that is possible, to cut the rude block of experience into a character which shall be beautiful and symmetrical, and to force it to give you the password to immortality. The God of the universe is yours as truly as though you were the only inhabitant of the planet, ready to answer your call, always present with a host of angelic hands to deliver you from the enemy and to lift you to a higher spiritual level. Death also is yours, not a foe but a friend, and when the weary day is done he leads you from the gathering shadows of sunset to the glorious sunrise which floods the eternal life. The eye of the body sees only the poorest possessions, while the eye of the soul sees riches too great to be computed, and these riches are yours beyond the reach of litigation. What are acres, though their only boundary is horizon, in comparison with thoughts that uplift, aspirations which give you wings, and the faith which drives aside the curtain of the future and gives you a glimpse of what is hidden there? Palaces are not equal to ideas, for one may be miserable though knee deep in gold, while he who has God in his home has the magic which makes a hovel a happy home. Let us look at life, which is no longer than a dream in the night, as contributory to the soul, not to the body, for man is not a body with a soul in it. but a soul with a body wrapped round it. If you were to spend a short hour each day in quiet meditation of the blessings you enjoy, brushing aside all envy and selfishness; one short hour in getting a firm hold on yourself-your better, truer, nobler self-you would be enriched. We are not deprayed; we are thoughtless. There is a divinity within us which is cramped, dwarfed and unable to express itself. Give it freedom, let it act and speak, crown it with authority, and you will behold a miracle. Thrust aside the mean by thinking of yourself as the child of the glen,

She's daft to refuse the Laird o' CockThe to the invisible eternity.

In that direction lies the only religion that can hold its own against the ills to which flesh is heir. That why also lie cheerfulness, contentment, peace above all else that earth can offer. THE FLORIDA

According to the Farmer He Is the King of the Race.

[From Forest and Stream.] "The 'Florida razorback' is the hog ndigenous to this climate and soil. He is usually large of limb and fleet of foot, being the only known porker that can outrun a darky. He has a tail of wondrous length, which, while he is in active motion, he twists into tightest corkscrew, but with which while quietly feeding he raps his leathery sides much in the same manner that the decile cow uses her

He is self-supporting. earns his own living and thrives equally well in the high woods, in the flat woods, in the hummocks and in the marshes. He subsists upon anything he can find above the earth or underneath its surface. He has a clear, far-seeing eye, and is very sensitive of hearing. Nature has equipped him with a snout almost as long as the beak of the wild pelican of Borneo, with which he can penetrate the earth many inches in quest of worms, snakes and insects. He is the most intelligent of all hogs, and is likewise the most courageous. He has been known to engage in mortal com- this barbed wire fence. "He is so intelligent that when he lives in towns he becomes as familiar with the railroad schedules as are the train dispatchers themselves, and plies his vocation in great numbers about the railroad stations, and yet no train ever ran over a 'razorback.' Whenever the railroad companies are forced to pay for killing a hog, it always proves to be a Berkshire, a Guinea or some other fine breed—never

TIMELY NOTE OF ALARM !

Relation of the Theater to Public Morality.

Importance of Imposing Restraint Upon a Growing Evil.

[New York Post.] More than once, in recent years, we have directed attention to the neces-sarily demoralizing effect upon the stage or in the daily press, and have urged the importance of imposing some restraint upon an evil which has been growing for a good while, attained serious proportions long ago, and threatens now to relegate modesty to the limbo of extinct virtues. A note of alarm on the same subject is sounded by an Englishwoman in an English review. She asks whether it can be possible that the girls of the rising generation are really deficient in that natural delicacy which is among most precious attributes of the sex, and points to their habitual presence at entertainments of acknowledged impropriety, as a justification of her inquiry. Their complacent en-joyment in the theater of unseemly words and actions, of which they would profess abhorrence elsewhere, can be explained, she argues, in only one of two ways; either impurity does not shock them, and their ordinary assumption of modesty is a conventional sham, or else they cherish the delusion, which is incredible, that the theater is so essentially unreal, so disconnected from actual life, that much to the beholder. There can be no doubt that the violations in our theaters of the laws of common propriety have been growing more frequent and more flagrant of late, and especially in those houses which are supposed to be supported mainly by the most cultivated classes of society. During the last few months, not to be too specific, there have been presented in first-class theaters several plays abounding not only in unclean suggestion, but even in grossly coarse action, without exciting any symptoms of surprise or indignation on the part of the audience. On the contrary, the most "risky" scenes, as it is now the fashion to call them, were received with every sign of cordial approbation by both male and female spectators. It is also a fact that some of the plays which, one would have thought, ought to have been most objectionable to persons of refined taste, have attracted their largest audiences at the afternoon RAZORBACK HOG performances, which, as everybody knows, are attended chiefly by wo-

nothing said or done in it matters

The most obvious inference from all large proportion of them, are deprayed, or, to put it more euphonless dainty in their instincts than those of preceding generations, is not necessarily the true one. It does not follow that all the women seen at such performances are there of malice prepense, that they go to them more than once, or that they are attracted by what is worst in them. But, however this may be, there can a considerable body of play-goers with an appetite for foul or coarse flavors eppetite which grows by what it feeds on-or as to the debasing effect upon the public of a theatrical policy which caters to it. Innocence herself could not long breathe an atmosphere so polluted without contamina-tion. The commercial managers, upon whom the responsibility for unwholesome productions primarily rests, concretion in the matter, that their financial existence depends upon their compliance with the law of supply and demand, and that they would have to go out of business if they did not give the public what it wanted. Over and over again has the utter fallacy of defense been pointed out, but bat with a coon for the possession of none the less do they continue to rea watermelon and to rend asunder a peat the old silly parrot cry.

A moment's reflection is sufficient to convince any person of ordinary intelligence that the public has no means of expressing a demand, or, at all events, never does express anything like a general demand, for any parkind of dramatic entertainment, whereas the character of the future supply is determined arbitrarily by the managers. The sole privilege of the theater-goer is the right to choose between the various performances provided for him. He naturally selects the best that he can find, but this is no proof that he is contented with what he gets, or that he would not have preferred something better. The success or failure of a play is tself no evidence of its quality, or necessarily of its real popularity, which can be demonstrated only by its vitality in successive revivals. A fictitious and lucrative popularity may be, and often has been, maintained for weeks, or even months, by the arts of advertisement, the notoriety remedy cures, it cures to stay cured of a performer, a striking novelty of of the topic, or the shameless promise of some peculiar audacity.

It is true, doubtless, that some abominable plays have flourished lived. Like other rubbish, they blaze fiercely for a brief period, and then collapse in a malodorous fizzle. Almost all of the plays which endure-apart from the master-pieces-are essen tially innocent, with honest appeals to the fundamental emotions or the this indisputable fact to be reconciled with the alleged craving of the great body of the public for the impure? How is it that the most successful plays of the present period, not only in this city, but in London, include such entirely innocent pieces as "A Royal Family," "Brother Officers," and "The Second in Command"? The reference here is not to literary or artistic merit, but to the mere vulgar capacity for money-making—the one managerial standard of virtue. How is it that "Uncle Tom's Cabin," after forty years of maltreatment, can still draw crowds in all parts of the country, if the minds of the masses is inclined to the unclean?

WEAK MEN

Do You Want to be Strong?

To feel young again! To realize the joyous sparkle of nerve life as it infuses the body with its glowing vitality; to feel the magnetic enthusiasm of youthful energy; to be happy, light-hearted and full of joyous impulses; to be free from spells of despondency, from brain-wandering, from the dull, stupid feeling; to have confidence, self-esteem and the admiration of men and women? Such is the wish of the broken-down man, and it may be gratified.

support such a theory. The popular books of the day, which are sold by the hundreds of thousands, may not represent the highest literary standard, but they are not immoral or coarse. Moreover, the cheaper entertainments in the music halls and the minor theaters are almost invariably decent, however much they may be lacking in sense or refinement. seems that it is only in the lowest order of newspapers-the yellow journals that live, like Mr. Snake, upon the badness of their reputations-and in the higher, or rather the more expensive, order of theaters, that scenes are represented and words are uttered which no self-respecting man or wo-

DOGS ON OUTPOST DUTY. [London Chronicle.] employment of dogs on outpost duty in South Africa will be watched with much interest. Among the ancients dogs were trained in considerable numbers for the purposes of war, and mention is made of them by Plutarch, Pliny and other writers. The Romans kept dogs in towers on fortifications in order that no enemy should approach unobserved, while the Knights of St. John employed them on picket duty, and patrols were always accompanied by them. The mastiffs of the Knights of Rhodes knew a Turk from a Christian by the smell. there is the spaniel which saved the Dutch republic by waking William the Silent during the night attack on Mons. Many nations are training dogs, espe-cially Germany, which has devoted nearly twenty years to training and sentries and to search for the wound-
