HUNS FIGHT DESPERATELY TO STEM ALLIED AVALANCHE

ALLIES HAVE TAKEN 40,000 PRISONERS IN FOUR DAYS

CANADIANS WON BRILLIANT VICTORY BY LAUNCHING A SURPRISE ATTACK ON HUNS

Forces From the Dominion Moved to Battle Area Secretly and Kept Hidden For Days in the Woods in Preparation Against Drive On the Germans.

BY J. F. B. LIVESAY,
Correspondent of the Canadian Press.

With the Canadian Forces, Aug. 12.—It is now possible to say that the Canadian forces, having secretly taken over that part of the Australian line running south of the railway at Villers-Bretonneux to the Avre, reached on the first day of the offensive their objectives at 14,000 yards, and that on Saturday evening they had attained the line marked out for them several thousand yards further on.

Originally this drive covered a width of twenty miles, in which the Canadians and Australians, still side by side, fought in the centre. On the Australian left an English force was set a very hard task between the Somme and the Ancre, where progress was necessarily more difficult and fighting extremely stiff. The French south of the Canadian line has met similar difficulties, but have not greatly widened the front of attack by extending their operations southeast of Montdidier. The very brilliant results they thus far had attained are the happiest augury for the future.

Greatest Success in War.

Speculation as to the future is idle. Here, at least, is a great initial success. It is quite likely that the enemy will throw in reserves with a view to checking our advance by a strong counter-attack. In the entire course of the war effort of the Allies there has been no such magnificent advance as that of the past four days, gathering its momentum from an initial success, due almost entirely to surprise. The people of Canada may well be proud at the brilliancy of conception, the perfection of organization and the rigid imposition of the all-essential equality of secrecy with which the force was moved many miles by long night marches, and thrown into action at the appointed hour entirely unknown to the enemy.

This is a rolling country, with high bare uplands delimited by wooded valleys and slopes. In those woods were congregated for several days, awaiting the word, a great force of Canadian troops, hidden. There lay heavy guns and light ammunition columns, and all the impediments of battle. There was the most admirable liason between all arms and throughout all ranks. The great surprise demanded nothing less. All had their place in the exploit, which concluded when the guns opened, and whose fruits have been reaped with a mathematical exactitude.

Weather on Allied Side.

During the first three days everything fought for us. The weather, with the cloudy days of preparation, the fog that rolled down at the right moment, and the perfect days that have ensued. For the first time, it is said, the weather has been on the side of the Allies.

The loss of all ranks is beyond measure. Sir Arthur Currie visited a number of advanced dressing stations, and everywhere he found our wounded animated by brave, good cheer, begging of

Crews Working Off Atlantic Coast Report Thrilling Experiences.

An Atlantic Port, Aug. 12.—A British merchant steamer was sunk recently off the North Atlantic coast, according to the second officer of the German submarine, which sent nine fishing schooners to the bottom off George's Banks Saturday and Sunday. This report was given members of the crew of the Kate Palmer, a fishing schooner, when they were taken aboard the U-boat, prior to the destruction of their vessel. The fishermen did not learn the name of the Britisher, but were informed that she had two smokestacks. The fishermen were brought here early today aboard the auxiliary schooner Helen Murley, after having been set adrift in a dory shortly before nightfall by the submarine's commander. They report that probably 60 fishermen were cast adrift in small boats after the U-boat's attack on the fleet. Naval and marine men expected, however, that most of these would be picked up before the day was over.

The crew of the Palmer reported that probably thirty sailing vessels were in the immediate vicinity at the time of the attack. They said they heard firing all day Saturday from 10 a.m. Most of the sinkings occurred on Saturday rather than Sunday, as early reports had indicated. The men brought in included Capt. Edward Russell of the Kate Palmer and Frederick Quinlan, one of the crew, and two Nova Scotia fishermen. They were cast adrift in their dory about 6 o'clock Saturday night. They were picked up about five hours later by Murley.

The fishermen reported the submarine was 300 feet long and carried a crew of about 70 men, all brawny sailors of less than 30 years. A six-inch gun was mounted forward and a smaller one astern. The second officer told them the submersible could make 21 knots on the surface.

GERMANS FELLED TREES IN ROAD IN EFFORT TO CHECK ALLIED ADVANCE

London, Aug. 12.—Reuter's correspondent on the French front under date of Sunday attributes the slower rate of progress on Saturday than on the first two days less to the resistance of the enemy than to the fact that the roads over which the Allies must advance are so encumbered with abandoned material and trees, which the enemy felled in great numbers across the roads, that the progress of the cavalry and infantry has been impeded. This is not so much on their own account, but owing to the difficulties met by the ammunition and supply columns, which follow them.

On the other hand, he adds, the enemy's haste prevented the mining of the roads and the setting of death traps as he did in 1917. It is possible, therefore, to explore abandoned towns and villages without fear of being blown to pieces.

HON. DR. H. S. BELAND LAUDS 40,000 FRENCH CANADIANS IN WAR

Tells Citizens in His Home Town of Troops' Heroic Deeds in France.

Boutsvell, Que., Aug. 12.—Commenting on the magnificent spirit and heroic bearing of the 40,000 French-Canadians in the war, Hon. Dr. H. S. Beland, formerly postmaster-general for Canada, told the people of his native town, who yesterday turned out in thousands to welcome him, how proud they might be if they had sons or other relatives at the front fighting for the cause of righteousness, humanity and justice, against barbarity. His direct plea to their sense of right and justice stirred his great audience to an inspiring demonstration of sympathy for the speaker, and for the cause he urged. The demonstration was most striking, after Dr. Beland had shown how the war was forced on the Allies by Germany.

GERMAN NEWSPAPERS DEMANDING THE TRUTH

The Hague, Aug. 12.—German newspapers are asking pointed questions concerning reverses in the west and are caustic in their comment.

A Berlin dispatch to the Post of Munich complains of the attempts of certain official circles to conceal the truth from the people. It says this has done incalculable harm and is largely responsible for the present bitterness. The dispatch adds:

"The same day that Gen. Ludendorff confessed our strategic plans had failed Prince Henry of Prussia in a speech at Hamburg said the Turkish attache had just told him he considered the battle on the Marne a German victory. So the German public may choose between Ludendorff and the Turkish attache. It is painful to see private persons in prominent positions like Prince Henry trying to represent facts in a manner at variance with the truth."

TROTZKY AND LENINE FLEE

London, Aug. 12.—Premier Lenine and his chief assistant, Leon Trotzky, have fled to Kronstadt, the naval base near Petrograd, according to a dispatch sent out by the semi-official Wolff Bureau of Berlin, and printed in Zurich newspapers, says a Havas report.

Reports received in London Sunday that the Bolshevik leaders intended to flee to Germany lends color to the German report that they have already gone to Kronstadt. Copenhagen dispatches Sunday said that the anti-Bolshevik movement in Russia was growing rapidly and that the Bolshevik Government virtually had gone to pieces. These reports were taken from Russian newspapers.

Lenine and Trotzky have been in power since the overthrow of the Kerensky cabinet last November. They negotiated the Brest-Litovsk peace.

CONSTANT BLOWS ON FOE'S FLANKS WILL DRIVE HIM TO "HINDY" LINE

But Simonds Warns That the Allied Salent Must Not Be Sunk Too Deep.

LUDENDORFF IS NOT IDLE

Likely to Check Drive Soon, Unless Driven Out of High Ground at Bapaume.

BY FRANK H. SIMONDS.
Copyright, 1918, by the Tribune Association.

New York, Aug. 12.—The fourth day of the great Anglo-French offensive, which will unquestionably be known hereafter as the third battle of the Somme, reveals with some measure of clarity the purpose of Ludendorff, and the method he is following in endeavoring to meet and check Foch. He has abandoned the old Montdidier salient, and all notion of holding any portion of his position west of the line held by the Germans at the beginning of the first battle of the Somme, in July, 1918. He is now attempting to restore his front somewhere between the Somme and the Oise, west of the line Peronne-Ham-Chauny, to which he must eventually retire.

To accomplish this Ludendorff is rapidly increasing the tenacity of the resistance. On the flanks of the break in his line he is standing firm, with high ground north of the Somme, which saw the famous fighting of 1916, and on the high ground north and west of the Oise, between Noyon and Lapsygny. If he can hold these flanks for the

SING HYMNS ON WAY TO PRISON

Conscientious Objectors Sentenced at Niagara Taken by Boat to Kingston.

[Special to The Advertiser.]

Toronto, Aug. 12.—Hundreds of Torontonians waiting for the 7 o'clock boat at Niagara-on-the-Lake last evening were somewhat surprised to hear men singing such hymns as "Nearer, My God, to Thee" and others of similar strain at the dock. Upon closer observation could be seen six men, some in khaki, handcuffed in pairs, standing on the wharf under military guard, all singing sacred songs. They were conscientious objectors, who were being taken across to Toronto on the boat en route to Kingston, where they will serve a long term for refusing to obey military orders. The men were marched to the boat before the crowd was allowed on the dock, and after being lined up on the dock a few minutes were marched aboard. They were sentenced on Saturday to ten years' imprisonment each.

KAISER'S GENERALS ARE CASHIERED FOR NEGLECT OF DUTY

London, Aug. 12.—Three German generals recently commanding near Montdidier have been cashiered for neglect of duty, according to Belgian reports received in Amsterdam and transmitted by the Exchange Telegraph Company.

A large number of soldiers were court-martialed at St. Quentin Saturday for high treason. The Germans in Belgium are showing signs of great uneasiness and the German emperor is reported to have moved to Brussels.

VOLUNTEERS AND DRAFTEES WILL COMPRISE CANADIAN FORCES GOING TO SIBERIA

Units From Dominion Will Be Brigaded With the Japanese and American Armies Under a Central Command Arranged by Allied Governments.

[Special to The Advertiser.]

Ottawa, Aug. 12. — The new Canadian expeditionary force to be sent to Siberia as a part of the Allied army to join forces with the Czecho-Slovaks against the German occupation of Russia shall consist of both volunteers and draftees. A call will be issued for recruits for the new force, which will comprise units of infantry, artillery, medicals, transport and other branches of the service. At the same time the department will draw as the need occasions upon the draftees already under training in Canada.

Details as to the composition of the force and personnel of the staff have not yet been determined by the militia department, as the final order for mobilization was not given until Saturday. It is probable, however, that the commanding officer will be one of the brigadier-generals who has already had experience at the front. Announcement as to commands and units will be made within a few days by militia headquarters.

Under Central Command.

The Canadian force with which it is understood will also be associated a preliminary British force will be brigaded with the American and Japanese armies under a central command arranged by the Allied Governments.

The decision of the Government to meet the request of the British war office to send a force to Siberia is a natural one. German occupation of the Russian Pacific coast would constitute a most serious menace to Canada. Shipping on the Pacific, now practically free from all submarine danger, would be in peril, and in consequence there would be at once a serious dislocation of trade. Furthermore, it is to be noted that post-war commercial exploitations of Siberia promises to be on an enormously profitable scale and Canada will have better opportunity to profit therefrom than if all the work of saving it from the Germans were left to Japn and the United States.

BRITISH STEAMER REPORTED SUNK BY SUB OFF U. S. COAST

New York, Aug. 12.—The Associated Press carries the following dispatch:

Nantucket, Mass., Aug. 12.—Sinking of the British steamer Penistone by a German submarine off Georges Bank was reported here today. The Penistone, a vessel of about 4,000 tons gross, apparently was sunk by the same U-boat that destroyed nine fishing schooners Saturday. First report made no reference to the crew's safety, and gave no details of the attack.

CABLE STEAMER TORPEDOED.

A Canadian Atlantic Port, Aug. 12.—Local newspapers publish reports to the effect that the cable steamer MacKay Bennett has been torpedoed. One version is that the ship was sunk off the Irish coast, while another newspaper says that the MacKay Bennett was torpedoed off this coast. The reports have not yet been verified. Both ship are safe.

CLEMENCEAU SEES FIRST LINE ATTACK

On the French Front in France, Aug. 12.—Premier Clemenceau during his visit to the front Sunday saw a first line attack carried out by a certain French division. He also congratulated personally the commanding French and British generals.

VIENNESE ORDERED TO HAND OVER ALL PAMPHLETS DROPPED BY ALLIED AIRMEN

Zurich, Aug. 12.—The authorities at Vienna have ordered the public to hand over every piece of propaganda literature dropped by Italian airmen last Friday, and threaten severe penalties for failure to do so.

There was a wild scramble in the streets for the pamphlets when they were dropped. Some sold for as high as 20 crowns.

The Reichspost reminds the Viennese that since the daring Italian flight they no longer can consider themselves immune to the horrors of warfare.

MUST CONSERVE SUGAR OR PAY THE PENALTIES

Canada Food Board Warns Manufacturers That Law Must Be Obeyed.

Ottawa, Aug. 12.—Enforcement of the Canada food board regulations by means of license control, supplementing the enforcement work of the local police authorities, is now in operation, covering the entire Dominion. On Saturday the board announced the closing for 30 days of the business of a Halifax flour and feed establishment for disregarding regulations. Announcement was made today that E. Emad, proprietor of a confectionery at 317 Third avenue, Prince Rupert, B. C., has been ordered to discontinue the manufacture of candy at once, and not to purchase or use any sugar for that purpose until after September 1, and only then if permission to do so has been granted by the Canada food board. Mr. Emad applied for a confectionery license, but was found to have used more sugar than would have been his allowance for the four months ending August 31. The Canada food board is prepared to deal drastically with manufacturers who use sugar in excess of the amounts allotted by the board, or who violate other regulations.

AVIATOR IS KILLED AT CAMP BORDEN

Camp Borden, Ont., Aug. 12.—Lieut. J. W. Munroe, in training here as a pilot, was killed as the result of an aeroplane accident here on Sunday night. His next of kin is Mrs. A. Munroe of Puslinch, Ont.

THEIR FIRST REAL DEFEAT, SAY HUNS

The Hague, Aug. 12.—"Events between the Somme and the Avre constitute the first defeat of the war," says the Deutsches Zeitung of Berlin.

GERMANS HAVE EVACUATED THE TOWN OF ROYE AFTER FIGHTING DESPERATELY TO HOLD THIS VITAL POSITION

"THE WHOLE WORLD IS AGAINST YOU"

Rome, Aug. 12.—Among the messages dropped into Vienna by Gabriel d'Annunzio, the author, in his recent flight with an Italian air squadron over the Austrian capital, was one in which the American effort was emphasized.

"The whole world," reads this message, "is against you, while your Government, after its defeat last June, is hopeless of victory. Today more than one million Americans are fighting in France, and America is building twice as many ships as the submarines are sinking."

Unconfirmed Report of Taking of Important Place Is Announced—Over 40,000 German Prisoners Have Fallen Into Allied Hands In Four Days.

With the British Army in France, Aug. 12, 2:16 p.m.—There is an unconfirmed report this afternoon that the town of Roye, which the Germans have been defending so desperately, has been evacuated.

British tanks have been seen operating a conisderable distance east of that town.

SOME HARD FIGHTING AHEAD, WITH ENEMY PREPARING TO OFFER STRONG RESISTANCE

London Military Experts Warn People Not To Be Too Optimistic of Continued Advances.

London, Aug. 12.—The entry of the French third army under Gen. Humbert into the battle on the line south of the original front of the allied attack and the strengthening of the German resistance are regarded by the commentators in the morning newspapers as the two outstanding features of the Franco-British offensive during the week-end.

The brilliant and rapid stroke of the French third army is recognized fully, and important results are expected from it. The German reaction had been foreseen, and the commentators at present see nothing in it as a cause for anxiety. Nevertheless a warning is again raised against overconfidence and exaggerated anticipations. It is recalled that Gen. Mangin on the Marne turned the German offensive into a defeat and that the British victory at Cambrai last November was converted into a grave reverse.

Stubborn Defence Expected.

What hapepned before conceivably may happen again, says the Daily Mail, and the same note is struck elsewhere. Even if Gen. Ludendorff cannot regain the offensive this year, he can, it is contended, put up a very stubborn defence. Accordingly it is held, it behooves the Allies to go warily, remembering there are still difficult corners to be passed.

Sanguine reports of the capture of Chaulnes and Roye seem to have been examples of the tendency in some quarters to imagine that the progress is faster than it is in face of stiffening enemy resistance. Those places still are apparently in German hands, though their fall seems possibly not far off. On the whole, however, the situation is regarded as extremely favorable for the Allies.

The Daily News says that the allied progress continues to exceed every reasonable hope, and thinks the coming month may hold possibilities of changing the whole face of the war. The Times, while emphasizing the German reaction and predicting that the position will become more stationary, doubts nevertheless whether the Germans will stay long on the present front. It believes they can hardly expect any extensive recovery of the ground they have lost.

GERMANS BLAME DEFEAT ON FOG

The Huns Found Themselves Isolated, and Were Captured.

Amsterdam, Aug. 12.—Commenting on the allied successes in Picardy, the Cologne Gazette says that the reasons for the regrettable occurrences are not yet cleared up, adding: "At any rate, a dense fog enabled the enemy tank squadrons to break in through our front lines. Our troops there found themselves isolated, and were unable to cut through the enemy masses in the wake of the tanks, and were captured. The enemy, although unable to carry out a complete break through, was able to advance his lines ten kilometres."

The Cologne Volks Zeitung says that as far as can be learned, the Allies supposes that the fog and the mass attack of tanks caused confusion in the German ranks. It concludes that it is useless to hide the fact of the German check south of the Somme "hits us hard," in view of the number of prisoners and guns lost.

BRITISH CAPTURE WESTERN EDGE OF THE TOWN OF BRAY

London, Aug. 12.—The British have captured the western edge of the town of Bray, on the Somme, the advices state.

Apparently the attack on the southern part of the front was being continued by the French this morning. Main interest centred in the sector around the Lassigny Mass. It is difficult to say whether the French are on the crest, but they must be close to it.

GERMANS ARE PUTTING UP STIFF RESISTANCE TO CHECK ALLIES

Paris, Aug. 12.—Extremely bitter resistance is being encountered from the Germans along the line of Chaulnes-Roye-Noyon. The enemy is bringing up strong reinforcements, while the Allies are preparing for a further advance.

The Germans are reacting on the Allied left with a certain amount of success, having had time to get into line divisions rushed frantically from the north. It is believed here the fresh troops are being thrown into the fighting in a desperate endeavor to block the Allied advance toward Nesle.

Gen. von Hutier, who escaped much damage from the Montdidier pocket, is now trying to halt temporarily on the Roye-Noyon line. He is strong enough at the Noyon end, where his flank rests on the Oise, but should the British succeed in debouching from the villages of Lihons, Chilly, Fransart, Fresnoy and Goyencourt, in the general direction of Nesle, von Hutier's right at Roye would be not only turned but he would be cut off and hopelessly lost. The entire line, it is believed here, would then go down.

Should von Hutier succeed in holding on sufficiently to get his guns and material away, his next move probably would be back toward the Somme, pivoting on Noyon. He would swing his right back on the line of Nesle and Noyon.

The Germans are now fighting for time to make this possible, and the fighting is likely to be even more desperate today than it was Sunday. The Germans so far have done no more than check the Allied left north of the Avre. It is believed to be certain that they will spare nothing in an endeavor to push it back.

40,000 GERMAN PRISONERS ARE TAKEN IN ALLIED OFFENSIVE

Paris, Aug. 12.—Nearly 40,000 prisoners and 700 guns have been taken by the Allies in Picardy, according to reliable information here.

FRENCH TAKE L'ECHELLE-ST. AURIN.

London, Aug. 12.—The French are continuing their advance between the Avre and the Oise, according to news received in London today, and have captured the town of L'Echelle-St. Aurin, three miles directly west of Roye.

The line on this front now runs from L'Echelle-St. Aurin southeast throughout Armancourt and Tilloloy, three miles southwest of Roye, and continues in a southeasterly direction through Gury, eleven miles southeast of Montdidier. It then curves more to the east and passes through the Montigny quarry to the hill north of Antoval, just northwest of Ribecourt, on the Oise.

BRITISH TAKE PRISONERS.

London, Aug. 12.—French troops have advanced nearer to the important point of Roye from the southwest by the capture of the villages of Armancourt and Tilloloy, according to the official statement from Field Marshal Haig today.

South of the Somme British troops have captured 200 prisoners.

British positions east of Mericourt, south of the river, have been linked with the British lines east of Etinehem, north of the river.

FRENCH AIRMEN HARASS HUNS.

Paris, Aug. 12.—French airmen have been very active in assing the retiring enemy, says an official statement on aerial ity. Enemy concentration points around Lassigny were bombarded heavily, causing heavy German losses. French airplanes to the number of 120 dropped 23 tons of bombs in the battle area Sunday.

STREET CAR DASHES THROUGH GATES IN FRONT OF ENGINE

Bad Accident Was Narrowly Averted on C. P. R.

CAR BACKED IN TIME

Motorman, Watching Derail, Failed to Notice Lowered Gates.

Passengers on Car 58 on the North Belt line received a bad scare last night while coming south on Richmond street, when their car crashed through the gates of the C. P. R. and stopped on the railway right-of-way with a train approaching.

It has always been said that the C. P. R. towerman put the gates down when approaching trains are at Hyde Park. This is an exaggeration, but it was rather a good thing that the train was a good distance away last night and was not traveling on the westbound track.

The motorman of the street car was watching the derail, he said, and did not notice the gates down until the car struck them.

The gates were wrecked. The car was stopped just as it reached the westbound track, and was then backed up. A minute or so later the approaching train passed.

The motorman says he did not see the gates because he was concerned with the street car derail. Usually this is set against cars when the gates are down, but in this instance such was not the case.

The majority of the passengers in the car received a good scare.

BLACK KNIGHTS MARK THE RELIEF OF DERRY BY CHURCH PARADE

Hear Sermon Sunday by Rev. H. B. Ashby.

In connection with the commemoration of the relief of Derry about 300 Royal Black Knights of Ireland with members of the Ladies' Orange Lodges paraded to St. James' Anglican Church in South London yesterday afternoon.

Automobiles were provided by the sir knights for the women members who attended the service. The sermon was delivered by Rev. Sir Knight H. B. Ashby.

Hackett L. O. B. L. Fife and Drum Band led the procession, which formed at Market Lane at 2 o'clock and moved via Dundas, Richmond, Horton, Ridout and Craig streets to the church. Returning the parade followed Wortley road to York street, thence to Richmond and north to Dundas street, disbanding at the Market Lane. J. W. Carson was the bandmaster, and A. Nevin and J. Morrison were the marshals.

Other Towns Represented.

Delegates were present from St. Thomas, Ingersoll, Dorchester, Lucan, Granton, Komoka, and some from Manitoba. Among the prominent members of the organization who were present were: E. T. Essery, London, and Past Preceptor F. M. Wright of Ingersoll. Sir Knights Joseph Murray, Thomas B. Fox, George Shoebottom and J. J. Hardine officiated at the taking of the offering.

"Only when we have acknowledged the risen Christ as our Lord and Savior will our land blossom as a rose and the earth be transformed into a paradise," said Rev. H. B. Ashby during the course of his sermon. Basing his exhortation on an incident of Israelish history related in the Old Testament, where Elijah proposed the test of calling on God to send fire from heaven to burn the sacrifice to prove that He was the Living God, the speaker pictured the lesson that he thought should be taken to heart today. The Israelites who had been worshiping Baal turned and acknowledged God as their master, and God met them and blessed them. They cried to him in penitence and humility and he heard their prayers.

The Hand of God.

"In all the great world events we can see the hand of God," he continued, "after 165 days of privation and hardship during which period heroism that is second to none was displayed, the besieged city of Londonderry was relieved. Every day the inhabitants assembled in the church for prayer. We may say victory was won not by force of arms, but by acknowledging God as the true ruler."

"Today we are suffering in this awful war. We think of the many brave soldiers, members of our order among the others, who are doing their duty over there.

"We think of the carnage and devastation and wonder if there is a lesson for us. Have we been worshiping other gods? The gods of pleasure and selfish gain must be cast out of our national and individual lives. The national vices and individual sins must be suppressed and our Baals must be cast down."

Nimble Little Dog Hurled To Death By Speeding Motorists

Pet Animal's Instant Death Shows Danger to Children.

Miss Trizie Houlden, 554 Adelaide street, was instantly killed by a speeding auto in front of her home on Saturday night. The car was traveling so fast that witnesses of the fatality were unable to catch the number of it.

The latest victim of this speedway had been playing in front of her home. She was always watched closely and rarely left her own lawn. On this occasion, the first in perhaps months, she stepped into the road. She had hardly done so when the heavy car tore along. It struck her with terrific force and hurled her for some distance. When picked up she was dead. Her back had been broken. The onlookers were more concerned with Trixie's fate than with the auto for the moment, and when they looked up the car was so far away that it was impossible to read the number, though it was still broad daylight.

Life Was Extinct.

With tender care the little victim was gathered up and carried into her home. Medical aid was useless, however, as life was extinct when she was picked up.

Mrs. Houlden is broken-hearted, as are all the neighbors, as Trixie was a prime favorite with all who knew her.

The one feature of the fatality which will somewhat mitigate the autoist's offence in the eyes of the public is that Trixie was a little foxterrier. She was a valuable trick dog and the comfort of its aged owner, who is broken-hearted over the affair.

What of the Children.

The moral is tThat the autoists who use this street as a speedway—and there are many of them—should have little more respect for the safety of the residents. There are more children on the street than there are dogs. Trixie, the fleetest of the dogs of the street, could not get out of the way of the speeding car. How, then, could one of the many children of the street be expected to do so? As the residents of the street say: "Who knows but the next victim may be one of the children."

Adelaide street, with the car tracks, is somewhat narrow. The houses on the side street are close to the curb. This fact, and the speed with which two-thirds of the cars travel, make a first-class stage setting for fatalities.

VOICE OF THE PEOPLE

A REPLY TO A CITY CRITIC.

To the Editor of The Advertiser:

In Friday's paper I read a report from a certain gentleman who had been "touring about the country looking at the crops," and some way that report made me wish I had that gent trying to work a farm these days. He stated that we need not cry out for rain—the root crops only needed moisture, and that the grain had not suffered at all. I suppose he simply sat in his car, and because the grain looked golden and the root crop had green tops, thought everything was lovely. "The farmers complain for nothing; they have a bumper crop." Did he go and examine the grain and see if it was plump, or just think about how pretty it was, as he comfortably made his tour? Would it not be very much better if, instead of motoring around to view the country, making statements that make the prices soar away up for the overworked farmer, these men would spend that time taking some tired farmer's wife's place and feet; harvest the food we are all trying so hard to save. A farmer never has time to drive around and inspect the city industries. No, indeed; men and women are straining every nerve to help with the food problem, and if these "tourists" wives had to keep house—and that's no snap on a farm—and then go out in the fields and take a man's place, I'll bet a cookie to a doughnut (only we can't make them any more), that there would be fewer reports from men who know very little about the farmers' real work. Nobody can tell just by driving past if a grain crop needs rain or not, and we farm folks would be far more tickled if some of these autoists would "don the overalls and the hayseed hat," and come on and see how it goes to work every day without even one day's vacation. We are so anxious to "do our bit" and send the boys "over there" every bit of food we can harvest, only we hate to have folks that "don't know" giving the idea that the "farmers are coining money" from crops that simply look good" from an auto's cool, comfortable seat.

"A PUMPKIN'S WIFE."

IS IT ALL A MISUNDERSTANDING?

To the Editor of The Advertiser:

I see by Saturday's papers that No. 1 committee of the board of education have presented an ultimatum to five of the women teachers of the city, conveying the fact that if they do not retract certain statements made by them on behalf of the Women Teachers' Guild, that they would practically be dismissed from the teaching staff.

It seems to me, Mr. Editor, that fair-minded businessmen, as we must believe our representatives on the board of education to be, could find some better way of settling grievances between themselves and their employees than by adopting such an arbitrary method.

The question in dispute apparently is: Have the women teachers been discriminated against in regard to salary increases this year?

Now, I feel sure that these women honestly feel that they have been unjustly treated, or they would not take the stand they do, but the trustees say they have not been discriminated against.

Surely this is a case of misunderstanding, and one that could be easily rectified if the fasts on both sides were placed before some arbitrators, as is done in all large corporations when misunderstandings arise between employer and employees. I feel that this would be fair and just to both sides, and surely fairness and justice is what we are all fighting for now.

The parents and ratepayers of the city have enough confidence in the teachers of their children to know that if shown they are in the wrong, an apology would be forthcoming at once, and so all danger of a disruption of the schools this fall would be at an end. Thanking you, Mr. Editor, I remain, yours sincerely, TAXPAYER.

WOMAN INFERIOR TO MAN IN GERMANY

Services in the Dundas Centre Methodist Church were conducted Sunday by Rev. G. B. King of Toronto, who will be in charge of this pulpit for several weeks longer. In the evening he preached an earnest and eloquent sermon on the theory of death as held by Jesus Christ. He showed how the Savior's view of life was optimistic, involving perfect trust in God and existing in the brotherhood of man. Death was not the final end of man, a state of negative existence, but rather the dim shadow frontier between the life here and the eternal life to come.

At the conclusion of the evening service, Mr. King fulfilled a promise made to his congregation last week, giving a half-hour's talk on home life in Germany. Having spent over a year in that country just prior to the outbreak of war, he has an intimate knowledge of social conditions.

He mentioned numerous irksome laws which govern even family life—no music allowed in an apartment-house, unless with closed windows, not after 10 p.m., without special permits from the magistrate. The relations of mistress and servant were regulated by law, and the care of domestic animals.

Mr. King made special reference to the position of women in Germany, where the inferiority of woman to man is a universally recognized theory. According to the kaiser, women's sphere is limited to kitchen, church and children.

"The outlook for woman in Germany," said Mr. King, "is very dark indeed." The subject will be continued next Sunday after the evening service.

MONUMENTS UNVEILED IN MEMORY OF W. O. W. MEMBERS AT WOODLAND

Eight Have Died Within the Last Two Years.

The unveiling of monuments dedicated to members of the Woodmen of the World Society took place in Woodland Cemetery on Sunday afternoon. This was the first ceremony of the kind here since the outbreak of war.

A monument was erected to each of the following, all of whom died within the last two years: Robert Wigmore, George Tremere, T. H. Chambers, Mrs. Niles, George Potts, Robert Richardson, Mrs. Bailey and Alfred Bailey.

Those taking part in the unveiling ceremony were John Francis, Chancey Smith, W. F. Graham, B. E. Hooper and T. Leah. The oration was read by Claire Jarvis, head consul commander of the order. Sacred songs were rendered throughout the ceremony, which was most impressive, by the Westman Quartet.

CANADIANS SHATTER ALL WAR'S RECORDS FOR DEPTH OF DASH

Six Thousand Prisoners and Every Gun Fronting Them Captured by Currie's Men in First Day — Canadian Gunnery Is Styled "Marvelous."

WITH THE CANADIAN FORCES IN THE FIELD, Aug. 9—2 p.m.—(J. F. B. Livesay, Canadian Press correspondent)—(Delayed in transmission).—It is now possible to sum up the broad results of the first day of the battle. By the evening of the first day, Thursday, the entire Canadian corps had attained its objectives, these being an average advance of fourteen thousand yards. The maximum advance was fifteen thousand yards, and this constitutes a record in this war for a first day's advance, not even excepting the German advance of last March.

The total number of prisoners taken by the Canadians on the first day will reach six thousand. In addition, every gun fronting us was captured. So complete was the surprise that many of these still had on their muzzle-covers and their gunners were still in their dugouts.

German Reply Feeble.

It may be said here, in parenthesis, that one of the most remarkable things to be seen from the heights, when the great British barrage broke at our twenty-yard line, was the almost total absence of reply from the Boche batteries, that put up a shrapnel barrage over our advancing troops, but made no effort to counter our batteries. This war has seen no more wonderful exhibition of scientific gunnery than that which broke on the enemy yesterday. A barrage far more intense than even that of Vimy pursued his retreating forces relentlessly, raising the precise distance in yards, at stated intervals of minutes, as our men got into him.

It would have been wonderful if the ground had been known and prepared and every feature of the artillery problem carefully studied in advance, as at Lens.

Triumph for Gunnery.

It was nothing less than marvellous when there are taken into account the fact that many batteries were brought up only a few hours before the engagement opened, that it was impossible for them to expose themselves by any attempt at registration and that a great part of the work of the barrage was done from maps by triangulation. The guns were in dormant batteries, unregistered and without permanent emplacements. It was a triumph for Canadian gunnery. But this was not all. Yesterday the Canadian field batteries were handled like a show of the Royal Horse Artillery, limbering up, dashing forward and unlimbering, hard on the heels of the retreating enemy. By 9 o'clock batteries were three miles inside the front German line at zero, the hour when the show opened. So sure were the gunners of success that some of the field batteries started off at that very minute with their horses.

Thrill of Open Warfare.

After long bitter years of trench warfare, all ranks were mad with joy to get at the Hun in open warfare. One of our batteries, carried away by the spirit of the thing, pushed so deeply into the enemy lines that they actually unlimbered within the enemy barrage and lost a number of horses in consequence. It is such stories as that that make Canadian hearts beat proudly.

The story of our wonderful infantry has yet to be told, but this incident may serve now:

A Canadian battalion, pushing on throughout the fog, came upon an enemy battery. Without a moment's hesitation a company charged the position, took it, and immediately turned the guns on the fleeing enemy. Presently a message came over the field telephone to headquarters:

"For heaven's sake rush us some gunners. We are being held up here serving these beastly guns."

Capture Artillery Brigade.

At Vimy we took three German batteries, and they were at once turned on the enemy, being named the first, second and third pan-German batteries. By yesterday afternoon there was a whole pan-German brigade at work, and by now probably there are two of these, including heavy guns. Among the ascertained booty, at an early hour yesterday, were four 8-inch, ten 5.9-inch and four 4.2-inch guns. Since then the guns have been too hot to count.

Just one more word about the guns. I believe some 600 rounds had been brought up for each gun, but that they went forward so so quickly and so often that it was impossible to use it up.

The whole affair was a tremendous secret, admirably kept. A captured German major complimented the medical officer at our dressing station, where his wounds were being dressed, on his excellent system, adding bitterly, "I wish to himmel our own intelligence were anything like as good. They told us confidently that the Canadians had been moved to Flanders."

Canadian Losses Light.

The work of our dressing stations was splendid, but they had to deal chiefly with Boche wounded. Our own casualties were very light in proportion to the size of the show, being only one-third, it is estimated, those of the first day at Vimy Ridge. This was largely owing to the fog which came at dawn, at the right time, just as our men advanced, thus, indeed, rendering unnecessary the smoke screen our gunners had ready, but lifting exactly when needed when we came to grips in the trenches.

The aircraft rendered great aid in low bombing of the enemy's front line, supports and back areas. The story of our machine gunners and the cavalry has yet to be written, but all ranks and services covered themselves with glory. All went into the battle certain of victory and of the greatest results.

Like Inspired Veterans.

After the sordid years of trench warfare they went into this new game of open warfare like inspired veterans brought to this grand, but more hazardous problem, all the elan and dash of the men of our outdoor Canadian life, together with craft of the woodsmen, the dash of plainsmen, the vision of the mountaineers, coupled with great leadership and patient, sagacious staff. They were there to deliver the goods to the Canadian people.

Sir Arthur Currie modestly disclaims the credit of the victory, but says that it was due to the brilliant preparation. "It is the spirit of the men that counts," he said. "With such men perfectly prepared, do you wonder that we could set out for our distant objective of that first day with an absolute assurance that we should be there on schedule time?"

CANADA WILL BE REPRESENTED BY FORCE OF 4,000 MEN IN SIBERIA

Government Authorizes Mobilization of a Special Unit.

OTTAWA, Aug. 11.—That Canada will be represented by a military unit of considerable strength in the expeditionary force which the Allied countries will send to Siberia to assist the Russians and the Czecho-Slovaks in their struggle against the central powers was officially announced here tonight by the Government. The statement was a brief one, conveying the information that the special force to be mobilized would be about four thousand strong, but a more detailed announcement is promised later on. The statement follows:

"For some time past the situation in Russia has been under close consideration by the Allied Governments, and decisions have been reached which will lead to the rendering of assistance to the Czecho-Slovaks and Russians who are resisting the aggression of the central powers.

Organize Special Force.

"Canada will take part in this movement, and following important communications from the prime minister, the Government has authorized the mobilization of a special force of about 4,000 for active service in Siberia with a base at Vladivostok.

"A further announcement will be made shortly."

Allied Advance Has Put Crimp in Monster Gun

Long-Range Cannon Has Kept Off Paris for Two Days.

PARIS, Aug. 11.—The long range cannon with which the Germans have intermittently bombarded Paris for some four months past, has now been silent for two days.

This fact may be explained by the Allied advance toward Noyon and Guiscard, six and a half miles north of Noyon, whence the recent firing is said to have been proceeding, as these localities are now endangered by the French forward push.

SWEDEN SECURES THE RELEASE OF CONSULS HELD BY BOLSHEVIKI

PARIS, Aug. 11.—A dispatch received here from Stockholm says that as a result of the efforts of Sweden's representatives in Moscow the British and French consuls, who were recently arrested by order of the Bolsheviki, have been released.

Germany In State of Chronic Famine, Says Munich Post

LONDON, Aug. 10.—Germany's unrestricted U-boat warfare could neither keep the army of the United States from taking part in the battles on the fields of France nor break the will of the Allies to continue the war, is the admission made by the Munich Post, a copy of which has been received here.

The Post takes exception to the word "unfavorable" in describing the food situation in Germany, and says "chronic famine" would be nearer the truth.

SPAIN CONSIDERING GERMANY'S AFFRONTS

MADRID, Aug. 11.—The council of ministers, presided over by King Alfonso, met today to consider the question of foreign relations, and especially the situation between Spain and Germany, resulting from the torpedoing of Spanish vessels.

ENEMY SUBMARINE GETS 9 AMERICAN SCHOONERS

NANTUCKET, Mass., Aug. 11.—Nine fishing schooners were sunk off George's Bank today by a German submarine, a naval scout boat which put in here tonight reported.

The scout boat picked up word of the raid from the auxiliary fishing schooner Helen Murley, which had rescued four survivors and was taking them to New Bedford.

George's Banks are 60 miles off this island.

GAS RULING CAUSES TROUBLE AT DORCHESTER

DORCHESTER, Aug. 11.—Some of the storekeepers of this village are not well pleased at having to give up using gas, but the law is to that effect now. Mr. Hodder especially has his large store and house heated by gas, and will be at no small expense to change.

J. Hunt is disposing of quite a large quantity of honey. It sells for 19 cents a pound.

Some of the corn around here is growing to a remarkable height. It is said to measure about twelve feet.

THIS WOMAN SAYS SHE HAD GIVEN UP HOPE OF RECOVERY

Mrs. Gorringe Was on Verge of Collapse—Tanlac Restores Her.

"Positively, the day I started taking Tanlac was the turning point in my life, and I wouldn't be without this wonderful medicine for anything," declared Mrs. Ivy Gorringe of 49 Perth avenue, Toronto, who is employed by Telfer Bros., Limited, the other day.

"Last winter," she continued, "I underwent a serious operation that was such a severe shock to my nervous system that when I left the hospital I was on the verge of a collapse. My strength was completely gone, my vitality was at a low ebb and I didn't seem to be able to improve at all. My appetite failed and the little I forced myself to eat did me no good, for I fell off till I weighed only ninety pounds, and was little more than skin and bones. My skin was so pale and sallow it looked like I had no blood in my veins, and I just can't describe how utterly worn-out and rundown I was. I gave up hope of ever getting any better, and was so blue and despondent that I actually didn't care whether I lived or not.

"I never was much of a believer in medicines of any kind, but when one of my friends who worried herself over my condition begged me to try Tanlac I decided to do so just to please her. Well, sir, it did me so much good that before I had finished my first bottle I was feeling like a different person. I have taken six bottles now, and it is really astonishing the way I have improved. I have a splendid appetite, and my food is doing me good, for I have already gained ten pounds since I started taking Tanlac. I have entirely recovered from that nervous, rundown condition following my operation, and I am actually in better shape today than I have ever been. I know there are others who are prejudiced as I was about taking medicines, but if they will only give Tanlac a trial, I am sure they will be convinced like I was that it is the best nerve tonic in the world."

Tanlac is sold in London by Standard Drug, Limited, and by an established agency in every town.

BIG MOVEMENT TO START AT CLANDEBOYE

CLANDEBOYE, Aug. 10.—Clandeboye Game and Bird Protective Association is away to an early and successful start this season. Fifty copies of the Ontario game laws and 40 of the migratory birds act have been distributed, and more are to follow.

The president will call for a county, if not a province-wide movement to be instituted not later than October 1, in which every preacher, teacher, doctor, lawyer, etc., should take part.

The Ridgetown Bowling Club will hold its annual Scotch doubles tournament on Thursday, August 15. The greens are in good shape and a pleasant time is expected.

OFFICE OF MILL ROBBED AT ST. MARYS

ST. MARYS, Aug. 11.—Between 9:30 and 10 o'clock Thursday morning the sum of $125 was removed from the safe in the office of Weir & Weir's mill here. The money was the day's bank deposit and was chiefly in cheques. The authorities are looking into the matter.

G. E. Ramage, B.A., of the Mitchell high school staff, has been appointed science master at St. Marys collegiate institute with a salary of $1,600.

On Friday A. Deviney sold 104 hogs which he had raised on his farm just north of town for $4,500. On Thursday Messrs. Weir & Weir sold from the adjoining farm 36 head of cattle for $7,000. These are record prices.

ST. MARYS TO HAVE FUEL CONTROLLER

ST. MARYS, Aug. 11.—At a recent meeting of the town council Fire Chief Wm. Moyes was chosen to attend fire chiefs' convention to be held at Toronto.

The circular from the housing company for municipal aid in house building was left with Mayor Dale and Town Clerk T. M. Clark to be dealt with.

The council has requested the water and light board to erect the siren fire whistle on the bell tower of the town hall.

A special meeting of the town council has been called for Monday evening to appoint a fuel controller for St. Marys, and it has been suggested that 500 cords of four-foot hardwood be ordered from Algonquin Government Park.

The heavy downpour of rain on Thursday afternoon and night and Friday morning has done thousands of dollars worth of good to the late crops in this district, and especially to the potato crop, which a few days more drought would have ruined, as the tops were dying down fast.

A lightning bolt during the storm struck and shattered the chimney on the north side of the double tenement house on Water street, occupied by Ray Tuer.

The spring wheat cutting has started, and barley and oats are nearly all harvested, and are excellent crops.

VISIT OF PRINCE ON THURSDAY IS PURELY MILITARY

Arthur of Connaught Has Not Time Even To Open the G. W. V. A. Rooms.

WILL INSPECT TROOPS

And Make Tour of the Various Military Hospitals of City.

Arrangements are being completed at military headquarters for the visit of His Royal Highness Prince Arthur of Connaught to this city on Thursday next. The visit will be purely a military one, and the distinguished visitor will be entertained by the headquarters staff during his brief stay in the city.

Prince Arthur will arrive in London about 1 p.m. on Thursday and will lunch at Wolseley Barracks at 1:30 p.m., at the headquarters mess. At 2:30 o'clock he will inspect the troops in training at Carling Heights camp, who will parade for the occasion, along with local returned soldiers.

At the conclusion of this inspection Prince Arthur will inspect the hospital at Wolseley Barracks, the Central Military Convalescent Hospital on Ottaway avenue, and the Byron Sanatorium. This will make up the itinerary for the day, and the prince will depart early in the evening.

It was hoped that Prince Arthur would open the new home of the Great War Veterans' Association on Queen's avenue during his visit to this city, but it was announced at military headquarters here today that the royal visit would be of too short duration to permit of this, the arrangements having been made by schedule for his highness to depart from London just as soon as his official duties here are concluded.

ASKIN STREET CHURCH SPIRE HIT BY BOLT; BURSTS INTO FLAMES

Electrical Storm Does Considerable Damage.

LIGHTNING HITS CHIMNEY

But No Fire Results at Ontario Street Home and Little Harm.

Last night's electrical storm, equal to the most severe of the year, caused damage to two places in the city, besides interfering with the street cars and the hydro system. Askin Street Church steeple was struck, and the fire which followed caused between $800 and $1,000 damage. The home of Fred Robinson, 546 Ontario street, was the second place struck. The chimney was the mark. No fire followed and the damage was slight.

The fire department had a serious task in fighting the fire in the church steeple. Its height made it difficult to get water to it. Some birds' nests in the steeple added fuel to the blaze and kept the firemen at work for three hours.

When the fire was at its height a Normal car ran over the fire hose and cut off one of the streams, delaying work for a short time.

A large iron fell off the tower while the firemen were at work. It fortunately fell clear of all the fire-fighters. Only the sidewalk suffered from the impact.

The rainfall was the heaviest in some time. Practically all the streets were turned into veritable rivers.

LONDON TEMPERATURES FOR LAST TWO WEEKS HAVE BROKEN RECORDS

"Coolest" Day Was 82 and Others Ranged to 106.

London not only claims to be the cleanest city in this part of Ontario, but also the hottest. Old Sol seems to take more pleasure in beaming on London than any other city in Western Ontario. Commencing the latter part of July, the long-looked-for summer came tripping in. On July 22 the thermometer registered 97, again on the 25th and 26th 90 and 93, respectively. The last real hot day in July was the 29th, when the thermometer climbed up to 90 again, after dropping to 70 for three days. July can be considered almost cool when August is considered, as for this month the temperatures in London exceed that of any other year. The following are the records during the heat wave:

August 1	85.
August 2	82.
August 3	75.
August 4	90.
August 5	99.
August 6	106.5
August 7	103.
August 8	97.
August 9	87
August 10	89.
August 11	94.

Rain, the farmers were praying for it during the last week, but the rain came at a most inopportune time last evening. Crowds had assembled for the band concert in Victoria Park. A peal of thunder was the signal for the dispersion of the crowds and the heaviest rainfall in many months washed the burnt lawns and sprinkled the streets of parched London.

DESERTER NOW DOWN WITH MEASLES AT CAMP

Pte. Manley Flueling of the 1st Battalion, Western Ontario Regiment, who was tried by a general court-martial on Friday, is now a patient in the Wolseley Barracks Military Hospital, suffering from an attack of measles. The court found this soldier guilty of absenting himself from his unit when warned for a draft, and adjourned until this afternoon, when his punishment was to be decided.

Owing to the condition of Pte. Flueling, the court did not act today, nor will it do so until he is pronounced fit to undergo detention, by the medical officers attending him.

HYDRO POWER OFF.—During the electrical storm, which visited London last night, hydro power was off for some time. Street cars were stalled, and houses and places of business in darkness as a result.

UNION CHURCH SERVICE.—An interesting union Congregational service was held in the basement of the Southern Church on Sunday evening, the service being conducted by Rev. A. D. Grey of Two Rivers, Wis. Mr. Grey preached a powerful sermon on character.

CAPT. GRAHAM NOW.—Lieut. Garfield Grahm, son of Neil Graham of Ivan, has been made a captain, according to word received by his father. Capt. Graham has been at the front nearly two years. He is nephew of A. A. Graham and D. A. Graham of this city.

ORDERED OUT BY L. AND P. S. R.—James Gleeson, who has conducted a refreshment room at Port Stanley for some time has been ordered to vacate by the London and Port Stanley Commission. Bissell of the Monarch Life Assurance Company, Winnipeg, formerly with the Northern Life Assurance Company, London, Ontario, has just been notified that he has successfully completed the examinations required for admission as an associate of the Actuarial Society of America.

THE HOLIDAY SEASON.—A. F. Sharpe, chief dispatcher on the G. T. R., has left on an itinerant fishing trip. J. R. Brent is acting chief dispatcher in the meantime. Mr. Sharpe will be absent for a couple of weeks, and it is anticipated that he will come back with a good string of fish. A. L. Goodwin, chief operator, has returned from St. Louis, where he spent a couple of weeks taking in the sights of that city.

ONE VOLUNTEER.—A. N. Watson, forwarded to this city by the British and Canadian Rescruiting Mission at Detroit, was examined at the local mobilization centre Friday and placed in the Canadian Engineers after being found to be in category A2. R. A. Stannard, another volunteer, was examined and found to be unfit for service, being in C1. One apprehender and one defaulter were placed in A2 and A respectively and attached to the W. O. R.

PARTITIONS MUST BE LOW.—The cases against six local cafe proprietors for maintaining stalls in their restaurants contrary to a city bylaw will be disposed of in police court on Tuesday. The cases were adjourned from some time ago. It is understood that if the proprietors have cut the walls between the tables down to a height of 2½ feet, the council will not press the cases any farther. If, however, the stalls remain as they were, the council may demand the complete removal of the partitions.

REMANDED ONCE MORE.—Wilfrid Porter was again remanded this morning on a nominal charge of vagrancy on account of the absence of Crown Attorney J. B. McKillop. Porter was recently discharged on a charge of detaining a girl against her will for immoral purposes. More serious information than vagrancy may be laid against him, but this as yet has not been done. Mr. McKillop is expected home on Tuesday, and Porter probably will be tried then. J. M. McEvoy has been retained for the defence.

TWO DRUNKS IN ONE DAY.—Police court presented an unusual appearance this morning, when two men were in the box charged with being intoxicated. It has been rarely that more than one drunk has been in court at one time. One in response to the usual sentence of $10 and costs or ten days, replied: "I will have to take the ten days, your honor." The court acquiesced. The other prisoner, a Russian, said he did not understand English, but Chief W. T. T. Williams made the charge of drunkenness clear to him. He replied that he was a "little more much drunk," and accepted the sentence as a matter of course.

REGISTERED UNDER FALSE NAME.—John J. Carr, who claims St. Louis as his home burg, signed up for service in the C. E. F., was examined at Buffalo and arrived in London, but did not report to the military authorities here, according to his statement in police court this morning, when charged with giving false answers on his registration card in June. Pleading guilty to the charge of giving a false name, he excused himself on the grounds that he was drunk on registration day. This charge may be withdrawn and one of desertion laid against him. He was remanded for one week to allow an investigation to be made into the circumstances under which he enlisted at Buffalo.

MILITARY NOTES

NO PASSES FOR CIVILIANS.

The following information has been issued at military headquarters here for the guidance of the puglic.

The harbor commissioners of Montreal have notified militia headquarters that in view of existing conditions, it has been found necessary to make a regulation prohibiting the issue of passes to civilians to enter the harbor or wharves at which troops are embarking.

As civilians in many instances proceed to Montreal to see their soldier relatives, full publicity should be given to the regulation of the harbor commissioners, in order that both troops and civilians will be duly informed regarding this matter.

MOTOR CARS REFUSE TO PART UNTIL ONE YOUTH THINKS OF A CROWBAR

Then Close Embrace Is Broken and Drivers Proceed on Way.

What might have been a serious accident, but ended in an amusing bit of byplay for spectators, occurred this morning on Clarence street, just south of Dundas. The front spring of a Maxwell car, traveling south, driven by William Talbot, encountered, unexpectedly, the rear wheel of a Dodge runabout, as the latter was making a turn to go north. An express wagon preceding the Maxwell prevented W. E. Horpe, the occupant of the Dodge, from realizing what was about to happen. For about half an hour the two cars remained in close contact, while each motorist tried every device to extricate his machine. The police officer, as well as the crowd, individually and collectively, volunteered suggestions, but nothing availed until one bright youth thought of a crowbar. With a huge bit of iron he pried back the Maxwell spring, as each driver reversed and proceeded to back. They separated easily then, and the only damage was a demolition of Mr. Talbot's front lamp. Both men were in good humor over the incident and chaffed each other lightly as to where the blame lay.

CAPT. S. ALBRIGHT KILLED IN ACTION DURING BIG DRIVE

Popular Young Officer Was in France a Year.

MARRIED HERE IN 1916

Leaves Young Widow, Formerly Miss Ruth Stevely, and Baby Daughter.

Word was received this morning by Samuel Stevely that Capt. Solon Albright had been killed in action. The official telegram, which was sent to the young officer's mother in Kitchener, stated that he had fallen on August 8, hence he had taken part in the recent big drive.

Capt. Albright, who was about 25 years of age, trained in this city and left for overseas as captain in a Scottish battalion two years ago. In England he reverted in rank in order to get to France, and his period of active service was as lieutenant.

He had been in France for over a year. For three months he had been in hospital suffering from trench fever, and had just returned to the lines when his call came. In the last letter to his family he said he had been expecting immediate call to action in the big engagement then pending, and that officers and men were on their mettle to get into the thick of things.

Solon Albright was an unusually fine type of young man, and made a splendid officer. His marriage to Miss Ruth Stevely took place two years ago last February, and besides his young widow he leaves a little daughter a little over 1 year old.

Brig.-Gen. Shannon of local headquarters is endeavoring to obtain details of Capt. Albright's death for his family.

HOT WEATHER BRINGS MORE WORK FOR POLICE COURT CLERK AND CHIEF

They Have to Smoothe Over More Domestic Troubles at This Season.

There are more hot weather complaints than reach the physicians' offices, according to Chief of Police W. T. T. Williams this morning. The extreme heat has been responsible for the appearance at the clerk's office of numerous complaints during the past week, and this morning. Chicken cases and juveniles are more in evidence during the summer than in the colder months, he says. Many of the complaints are never registered, however, for after inquiring into the case, Clerk of the Court John Moule pours oil on the troubled waters and a calm follows. If he is not able to pacify the irate visitor, Chief Williams exerts his influence, and if he also fails, Magistrate Graydon settles it. In several instances lately the parties have been saved from the expense of a police court appearance.

A descendant of Abraham appeared in the office this morning to lay information against a neighbor of the same lineage, and after a heart-to-heart talk with the officials of the court, he decided to forget the unkind things his neighbor is alleged to have told.

A woman last week wanted a separation from her husband, as she said she would not live with him any longer. She was being ill-treated, she alleged. According to her statement, hubby, who is her senior, is rather jealous of his spouse for no reason whatever. Chief Williams advised her to go home and kiss and make up, as the heat probably made the husband a little unreasonable. After considering the situation, she followed the fatherly advice, and the trouble in the home is apparently all smoothed over. Chief Williams is an expert at untangling marital troubles, his friends say.

"DON'TS" TO HELP IN KEEPING COOL

DON'T expose yourself unnecessarily to the direct rays of the sun. Walk on the shady side of the street.

DON'T spend the greater part of the day watching the thermometer.

DON'T work in the heat of the sun without the protection of a suitable headgear. Work in the shade when possible.

DON'T hurry. If you miss the train, trolley or ferryboat, the next will be along soon.

DON'T do twice as much work as usual. When feasible, work only during the cooler parts of the day. The period from 1 to 4 p.m. registers the highest temperature and humidity during the summer months.

DON'T let the children play exposed to the direct rays of the sun.

DON'T take infants on shopping tours.

DON'T keep the baby on the top floor of the house, if the first floor is the cooler. The temperature in the shade outdoors is lower than the temperature in the house.

DON'T permit the old folks to exert themselves during a hot spell.

DON'T eat too much. Eat sparingly of meats, butter, pastries or any oily or starchy foods. Fried substances should be omitted entirely. The diet should consist largely of nonheat-producing foods, such as fruits and vegetables.

DON'T eat too fast. Take your time in the mastication of food that it may be rendered more easily digested and thus save the body undue energy.

DON'T forget to drink plenty of cool water; its serves to flush out the "sewer" systems of the body, keeps them unobstructed and supplies the water of the body lost in the form of perspiration.

DON'T drink water that is ice cold. Weak tea or lemonade without sugar will lessen the thirst.

DON'T forget to bathe daily. A cool plunge or shower in the morning prepares the way for an active day's work. Another cool bath before retiring at night induces sleep, which is welcome during the hot weather.

DON'T wear heavy clothing for style, when lightweight and light-colored clothing can be worn for comfort.

DON'T indulge in alcoholic beverages; if they are used to keep warm in winter, they surely cannot keep the body cool in summer. Keep the mind occupied to divert attention from the heat.

THIRTY-CENT FARE TO PORT STANLEY FACES INCREASE BECAUSE OF M'ADOO AWARD

Increase in Wages On L. and P. S. Railway Is $23,157 in Year—Adjustment of Rates Under Way—Commission Decides to Raise Bridge and Pay for Work Out of the Revenue.

The 30-cent fares to Port Stanley on the London and Port Stanley Railway may go by the board as a result of the order-in-council making the McAdoo award applicable to the employees of all railways of the Dominion which come under the jurisdiction of the Dominion railway board.

Just what will happen is not as yet known, and will not be for some time, although the new schedule of wages went into effect on August 1.

The question was discussed this morning at a meeting of the London Railway Commission. Manager Richards of the London and Port Stanley Railway stated to the board that, considering the increases which would result from the McAdoo award, and the increases granted by the board before the award was made, but since last June the salary list of the railway is now $23,157 higher than a year ago.

"Where will our 30-cent fare go?" asked Sir Adam Beck.

Manager Richards replied that he did not know, adding: "When you see the statement you will wonder."

Decision Must Wait.

There will be some delay, however, before Manager Richards can state just what changes are to be made in charges. He stated that a large part of the revenue was based on divisions and this meant that they would have to negotiate with the steam roads for adjustments of the increased rates. When these are complete and the freight incomes arrived at, the matter of passenger rate increases will likely come under consideration.

Sir Adam referred to the fact that the 30-cent fare was a 30-year-old agreement with the Pere Marquette. All they could do, however, would be to issue a statement on how matters stand.

Philip Pocock remarked that wages had gone up 100 per cent since then.

The London and Port Stanley, however, has had a big increase in passenger service. Dr. Shaw asked for some figures and Manager Richards said they carried 16,000 more people in July this year than in the same month in 1917.

Sir Adam pointed out that many of the road's employees would not be affected by the McAdoo award, as they were already up to the schedule.

That Footbridge.

The matter of erecting the Beatty footbridge along with the raising of the railway bridge was discussed.

Chairman Sir Adam Beck asked if the commission had at its last meeting passed a resolution authorizing the work. Manager Richards looked up the minutes.

"All that is here is a motion that we ask the city to authorize the raising of the bridge," he said.

Sir Adam replied: "That is wrong and unnecessary. It is not a capital expenditure."

Manager Richards said Sir Adam was right. He added that the raising of the bridge was a "betterment."

Sir Adam added: "We are not asking the city for money."

Mayor Somerville asked how they intended to pay for the work. Sir Adam said out of earnings.

Where Are the Profits?

Mayor Somerville replied: "You have no profits to pay for the work. All things of such a nature were paid for out of capital, and by the issue of debentures before."

Sir Adam said that they would have profits if they should show a surplus of $15,000 or $20,000.

Manager Richards said the report would be out in a week.

Sir Adam here corrected a statement which Mr. Pocock made at the recent meeting of the council. He said that the surplus went to the city. Sir Adam said this was a mistake; the surplus remained in the road.

Mayor Somerville said that he was just taking his cue from other such expenditures. Debentures had been issued for them.

Sir Adam and Mr. Richards then entered into a discussion as to what was an operating expense, a betterment or an improvement. All led them to conclude, as they had already concluded, that the mayor was wrong and they were right, in that the raising of the bridge was not a capital expenditure. They had already decided that the bridge shall be raised out of revenue. They would know next week what profits, if any, will be for the the past year.

Debenture Issues.

Mayor Somerville touched on the matter of debentures, and the system of accounting. He mentioned one debenture issue for $101,000. It contained $10,000 for loss on the sale. The mayor said that separate accounts for all these items should be kept.

Mr. Pocock said that it was unfair to charge the commission 6½ per cent for money and turn all the 6 per cent accounts over to the other departments.

Mayor Somerville said that matter should be looked into. That was his reason for calling attention to it. He pointed out that the commission did not seem to be bothering about it.

The mayor stated that during the past couple of years there has been a loss of $200,000 to $3,000,000 on the sale debentures.

Sir Adam said that if the city had sold the commission's debentures when asked to it would have saved 1½ per cent on the money.

Dr. Shaw said he had objected to short term loans, but a bank manager had advised not to sell.

Mr. Pocock mentioned the fact that there was certain criticism made over the commission's delay in presenting a statement. He said the commission was not responsible. The management was unable to get its full returns from other roads.

Sir Adam Beck said that the criticism was not made to improve but to belittle and discredit public ownership.

Mayor Somerville said he had not heard criticism because of the delay. A member of the council had asked for certain information outside the report, as any member of the council had a right to do; he had not criticized.

The mayor said the whole present system of doing business was wrong.

Chairman Beck here said: "You will then proceed simultaneously with the raising of the bridge and the erection of the footbridge, if that is agreed, carried." No mention was made as to the extent of the raising.

Manager Richards said he intended to introduce the individual flat drinking cups for all cars.

The London Dollar Day Association wants special rates for its dollar day on August 22. The board is considering its request.

HOSPITALS TO BE BUILT IN HURRY ARE ON CARLING HEIGHTS NOT ON ODELL PROPERTY; COL. LOWE BUSY

Two Local Contractors May Submit Figures On Work, But Their Chances of Securing Contract Are Not Known—Permanent Hospital May Not Be Commenced This Fall.

Hospitals to be erected at Carling Heights, involving the construction of 23 buildings, are those which have caused London contractors some serious misgivings as to the manner in which public works are constructed on a non-partisan basis.

It was stated to The Advertiser, owing to a confusion of information, that the hospitals for which tenders were called were those to be constructed on the O'Dell property, on the London and Port Stanley Railway. The buildings in question are to be placed on the camp ground, and will be a vast assemblage of temporary structures. some of the buildings will be 40 by 240 feet, and a part of the work must be accomplished in 60 days and the remainder in 90 days. It is said that two local contracting firms which secured two sets of plans left in the custody of the janitor at the postoffice will figure on the work.

Great Sums Involved.

It involves a large amount of money, a deposit running into the tens of thousands, and a dragging of the labor and material market in a great hurry. How much chance the local men will have to secure the work, no one appears to know, but it is known for a reasonable certainty that Col. Bob Lowe, constructor of camps for the department of militia, has already been writing to local supply men to ascertain what they could do in the way of painting and supplying material.

Col. Lowe asked figures from one local painter, for hospitals both here and in Ottawa. It is also stated that prices have been solicited from lumber dealers. Col. Lowe, having no doubt submitted a tender, is preparing to get on the job, to say the least.

Only Wanted Fair Chance.

One contractor stated to The Advertiser today that if he had been given a reasonable chance to figure on the work he would no doubt have attempted to secure the job, one of the largest ever let in London. It would mean a good deal to local builders to secure the work, but few of them had hopes, although two of them had secured sets of plans and were hurrying to get their figures together.

Unconfirmed Rumor.

Some unconfirmed information was in circulation during the day to the effect that the new group of hospitals at the heights would take the place of the buildings proposed and promised for the O'Dell property. This rumor no doubt was started from the notification the O'Dell family received that they were to be permitted to move back to the farm and occupy the house which they vacated upon the sale of their property. The fact is that the family will go back and look after the property for some time. It may be that the hospital will not be commenced this fall, as tenders have not yet been called.

An Unlikely Story.

Another story in circulation was that all of the hospitals proposed for the O'Dell site were to be constructed at Byron. This was not considered seriously by those who have been in touch with negotiations.

Col. Lowe has constructed a number of hospitals for the Government. He keeps men constantly on the road to secure labor, and has used French-Canadians in many places. It is said he will hire local labor, but will not be dependent on it. He is a two-fisted driving force, according to those who know him, and the predictions are that he will be in London before many weeks have passed.

GREAT OAT CROP IS PROMISED THIS YEAR

One Farmer Says His Best of Lifetime.

"The best oat crop I have had on my farm since I started farming, and that was no short time ago," exclaimed a district farmer this morning when speaking of the oat yield. The oat crop throughout this vicinity is reported to be exceedingly heavy and of fine quality this year. Farmers everywhere are joyous over the abundant yield of oats, and many now have finished cutting their crop and are anxiously awaiting the results of the threshing, which will shortly take place, and decide the quality of the crop. Many farmers report that, although the crop is a bumper one and the largest that they have seen for years, they are not sure whether it will weigh heavy or not, for many of the shocks have a great number of light kernels on them as a result of the recent hot weather, which greatly affected the late oats.

The barley crop is also good and said to be the best in years, and is expected to yield quite heavily, which will be a great change from that of former years, as the crop formerly has been very light.

The wheat greatly disappointed the farmers this year, and the majority of them lost money on the crop, but the abundant yield of oats and barley no doubt will restore their joy.

JUMPING FROM CARS ON L. AND P. S. GETS GIRL INTO PREDICAMENT

When the Port Stanley train leaving London at 3:20 o'clock Saturday reached the lakeside, only a few witnessed a new diving stunt "pulled off" by a well-known London girl, and what might have proved a serious accident resulted in nothing more than a dirty face and a crushed hat.

The incident started at the main station, when the young man, piled up with dainty lunch boxes, bathing suits, etc., for two, suggested that to jump from the car platform at William street, would make unnecessary the long, hot walk from the roller coaster to the casino.

"Do you think you can make the grade?" asked the young man.

"Yes, I'll just give one good jump out, good and far," she answered.

The cars started and when William street was reached, the young man jumped safely. He thought for a time his lady friend was a slacker, but like a flash, from the car a being, clothed in champagne, shoes and all, shot to the earth. She stood still for a moment, but the strain was too much, and she was suddenly seen to dive into a nice little pile of peanut shells, etc., along the track.

To the bold, bad summer boy it was the sight of a lifetime, but the artistic side of the occurrence was evidenced by two little feet straight up in the air.

There are many complaints that the cars do not stop where people can reach the casino without undergoing the hot, tiresome walk back from the final stopping place.

BIG MISTAKE MADE IN ESTIMATING COAL FOR CITY THIS YEAR

Allotment Ought To Be More Than Announced.

ONE RAILROAD IGNORED

No Account Taken of What L. and P. S. R. Brought Last Winter.

London may be awarded a great deal more coal this year than it received during the past winter.

Recently the city council was notified by the federal fuel controller that the United States Government has placed Canada on the same basis as one of the states of the Union, and that the 1918-19 supply would be based on the coal used in 1916-17. The fuel controller already had these figures in his possession and sent them to the city.

to get along with 5,000 tons less anto get along with 5,00 0tons less anthracite than it did during the winter of 1917-18. The report was referred to Inspector J. W. McCallum. The controller said that if there was any good reason why the city considered that these figures should be increased, documentary proof of this would be necessary.

The fuel controller said that his figures were made up on the coal receipts of the railways. Inspector J. W. McCallum went at them, and he already located a monstrous discrepancy.

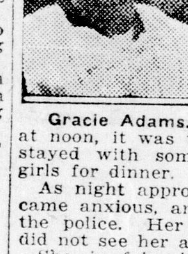

The fuel controller, in compiling his figures, did not consider the London and Port Stanley Railway. This road carried a great deal of coal into the city for the Michigan Central and the Pere Marquette. The London and Port Stanley has never made a return to the Government on the amount of coal it hauled, so the limit of 5,000 tons less than last year should be increased to a total considerably over last year's shipments, providing the coal is available.

Inspector McCallum has notified the controller of the discrepancy and is having the London and Port Stanley compile figures on the amount of coal it brought into the city.

DISAPPEARS ON WAY TO CHURCH; LITTLE GIRL STILL MISSING

No Trace of Gracie Adams, 6 Napier Street.

Gracie Adams, the 11-year-old daughter of Bertie Adams, 6 Napier street, has been missing since 10 o'clock Sunday morning, and her father is anxiously awaiting information that will help him to locate her.

Gracie Adams.

Mr. Adams, who is employed at the City Creamery, was away from home at that hour working, but on his return, he was told that she had gone to St. George's Church, Wharncliffe road. When she did not return at noon, it was thought that she had stayed with some of the other little girls for dinner.

As night approached Mr. Adams became anxious, and communicated with the police. Her girl friends say they did not see her at church.

She is fair, is a cripple and was dressed in white. As the family moved to London from Milton only last November, it is thought that she may have taken a train to Milton.

GOOD WEATHER ALL IRISHMEN PRAY FOR ON THURSDAY NEXT

Everything Else Is Assured to Make Success.

Will it rain or will it shine is the only uncertain point regarding the success of the Irish picnic on Thursday next. "A day like this, and we'll bring at least 15,000 people to the lake," said Dr. W. M. Shoebotham, the president of the Irish Benevolent Society, to The Advertiser. "This affair is the biggest thing Port knows," he continued. "We hold it on Thursday, so as to give the beach something over and above the usual Wednesday crowd, and we'll show them just what a multitude the Irishmen can assemble."

Special trains will be run all day to convey the thousands who come from the whole countryside for the great summer event.

Prizes for Dancing.

E. J. Ryan, chairman of the music committee, has engaged the 1st Hussars Band to entertain on the heights all afternoon and to render a band concert in the evening. The Ernest Cortese Orchestra will provide music during refreshment time, and also for the Scotch and Irish dancing on the brow of the hill. Through the kindness if Mr. Bowman, owner of the Casino, this hall will be the scene of the waltzing contest at 4:30 o'clock, and the Casino orchestra will incite the favored ones of Terpsichore to do their best, with gold medals donated by Mayor C. R. Somerville and Dr. W. M. Shoebotham luring them on to unknown achievements. Several popular local singers, including M. McKeough and Chris Pink, will render solos during the banquet.

"Eats" Provided For.

Refreshments have been looked after by a caterer, who reports his arrangements completed to the satisfaction of the most epicurean taste. The members of the society with their guests will partake of a banquet in the cafeteria at 8:30. It is expected that over 100 will sit down for this feast. A special refreshment booth will be erected near the sports grounds for the convenience of the picnickers.

The great baby show, always a big feature of the Irish picnic, will be something unique this year. Chief John Aitken, who has this attraction in hand, has secured expert judges of infant merits. Over $200 will be awarded in prizes.

All Cash Prizes.

Harry Ranahan has arranged a sports program that will test the prowess of the most agile. Only cash prizes will be donated for these events, which will be run off on the grounds adjacent to the L. and P. S. R. terminal.

It certainly looks like a big time for the Irishmen on Thursday, and they will see to it that there will be a big time for all who travel with them.

The officers of the society and the chairmen of the different committees are: Honorary presidents, Philip Pocock and Denis Mason; president, Dr. W. M. Shoebotham; first vice-president, Joseph F. Nolan; second vice-president, Chief John Aitken; third vice-president, John Loughlin; secretary, Martin Donohue; treasurer, P. F. Boyle. Chairmen: Railway and transportation, Philip Pocock; sports, H. P. Ranahan; dancing, J. F. Nolan; music, E. J. Ryan; baby show, John Aitken; printing and advertising, John Loughlin; membership, C. E. A. Webbe; finance, E. S. Little; refreshment and entertainment, George Henry.

QUARRELED OVER CARDS, FOUGHT DUEL TO DEATH

Niagara Falls Men Killed One Another in Revolver Battle.

Niagara Falls, N. Y., Aug. 12.—A duel fought with revolvers today, following a quarrel over a game of cards, resulted in the death of both participants. Salvatore Anaticia and James Riggi are dead. Anaticia kept a saloon and boarding-house. No one saw the two men from the time they left the saloon to settle their dispute with revolvers until their bodies were found.

DEATHS AND FUNERALS

FUNERAL OF MRS. WM. SWIFT.

The funeral of Mrs. Wm. Swift, one of London's most respected residents, was largely attended on Friday. It was held from the residence of her daughter, Mrs. John Edwards, 599 Piccadilly street, to Woodland Cemetery.

Mrs. Swift was born in Switzerland 75 years ago, coming to this district over 65 years ago, where she resided since. She enjoyed good health up till five months ago.

She is survived by her husband, one daughter, Mrs. Edwards, and five sons, Wm. J. of St. Thomas, Geo. E. of Guelph, Thomas of this city, B. H. of Montreal, and J. F. of Byron. They, with her son-in-law, John Edwards, acted as pallbearers. Thirteen grandchildren and seven great grand-children also survive.

DEATH OF MRS. FITZGERALD.

FUNERAL OF ALVAN CLARKE.

The funeral of Alvan Clarke took place Saturday afternoon from his late residence, lot 10, concession 1, Lobo Township, at 2 o'clock, to the St. Thomas Cemetery, where interment was made. Rev. Mr. Peters of Delaware conducted the services, which were largely attended by many friends and relatives.

LONDON STOCK EXCHANGE.

London, Aug. 12.—The stock market was buoyant today, with sellers very reserved. Buyers were numerous, and low-priced railroads were the most active feature. Tins and diamond shares were strong, and Russian issues led a general improvement in bonds, although the shortness of stock checked business. Money was in good supply and discount rates were quiet.

CANADIANS WON

The Canadian force is wearing the smile that won't come off.

The nature of the ground is entirely favorable to such an operation. There are no fences, and a minimum of wire, and the boche trenches are for the most part elementary, for he deliberately elected for open warfare and an area of manoeuvre. He has got a stomach full of it now, and will never say again that the British are formidable behind trenches, but incapable of meeting Germans in the open field.

Allied Losses Small.

All this has been achieved with a minimum of loss, for that is the aim always kept in sight. Where the enemy resistance has stiffened our tanks have gone in and cleaned out his defences. In this way, on the northern tip of our line, they broke down the resistance of strong nests of machine guns. Similar help came from the aircraft bombing the enemy wherever he sought to make a stand. The control of the air in this sector has been complete. Dozens of our craft patrol the enemy line, and once in a while only a German machine skips over our territory in a solitary raid. Throughout the entire operation the non-combatant services have worked in the same spirit of loyal devotion. The men have not missed a meal, and the dressing stations and material comforts have been pushed up almost to the front line. So rapid has been the advance that the forward area of yesterday is the back area of today, and it has taken unceasing efforts to keep up with the situation.

All ranks have deserved well of their country. The Canadian army, for months on tiptoe for a fight, has once again proved its mettle. "We are going to drive Fritz across the Somme" is what the Tommies are saying.

FATE FIGHTS WITH US?

THE MORE certain victory becomes for the Allied arms the more willing are we to consider those great possibilities for disaster which have been present since war began, and which in some manner of providence seem to have been circumvented.

To get back to the first fact whereby the Allies were sustained in the hour of extreme danger, let us remember that but for Belgian fidelity to sacred honor the Germans would most certainly have been in the heart of France. It was the struggle that the little nation of King Albert engaged in during the few early days that gave the French and British a chance to rally to the north to meet the oncoming horde, none too successfully and with enormous losses, but doggedly and with a campaign having its climax of fixation at the Marne and Ypres. How much more wonderful appears the first famous retreat when we have a chance to remember, with immediate danger for the moment laid aside, that for days and weeks the whole fate of the world depended upon the rear-guard fighting of the British and French against overwhelming odds.

Then, to turn to another phase, we should scarcely have been able to sustain the cause on land but for the determination of Great Britain to hold fast to her Belgian pledge. While it took years before the full effect of the man-power might of the tight little island and her colonies was felt, yet her entrance served to wipe the German navy off the seas, except for submarine warfare. Without the British sea arm the cause would have been hopeless for the rest of the world.

And while Britain held the seas, the French shed blood to hold the foe. The great offensive at Verdun was the supreme test of the French. The "bled white" fallacy followed that tremendous defeat of the mighty German machine. But even today does France show the pallor of the blood-drained nation?

The Russian strength in the east, undependable though it may have been, was at least a constant menace and an irritant to the Germans. The blundering, clumsy-footed advances and retreats of the Russian armies into and out of Austria were at least distracting things that held up tremendous western offensives which if delivered in the west in 1916 as they have been in 1918 would have been disastrous.

The American entry following the Russian defection was another most logical development in the thesis for Allied good fortune. With Russia gone the problem seemed stupendous. Never were Allied hopes more dark than during the early part of 1917, when the submarine warfare was reaching its zenith, and the German strength was being prepared for a smashing thrust. Delay in the delivery of the German super-attack no doubt saved the day, and when Woodrow Wilson lined up the great republic on the side of democracy, the scales suddenly were borne down again in our favor. Seeming inaction for months was followed by a most dramatic response to the Allied cry "For God's sake send us men!" American manpower commenced to flow overseas in a steady mass. New flesh and blood, new spirit, new morale entered the cause once more. Germany has been checkmated by some power beyond the control of any nation, call it Providence or The Goddess of Luck.

THE BARNETT LIBRARY.

SCHOLARS and students for generations to come will honor the name of John Davis Barnett, whose magnificent private library of more than 40,000 volumes has been presented to the Western University. Mr. Barnett is a man who has lived with the ambition that he would help to put at the disposal of scholars the means to do research work in Canada, consequently for nearly half a century he has been industriously gathering together in one place rare books that are not easily accessible, together with all the pamphlets and other ephemeral material that is the basis of history. Into his home in Stratford there have come every year scholars and investigators not alone from Canada, but from the United States, so that for a period of years his library has already been fulfilling in a small way the function for which he planned it. Now it is destined to larger use, both as the library of Western University and as a library to which any serious student in Canada may turn.

It will mean much to the faculty of the university. With such facilities at hand the men who have the guidance of the students will be able to develop scholarship as never before. The presence of such a library can scarce fail to stimulate original research. With the Barnett Shakespearian collection in London this city and Western University will become widely known among all students of English literature.

When peace comes again the building schemes of the university will be carried out. One of the first buildings to be erected will be a library as the centre of all university work. May Mr. Barnett be spared to see the day when his gift to learning is housed in a building worthy of the treasures he has brought to London.

THE FLOUR REGULATIONS.

NO DOUBT the food control board is endeavoring to frame rules which will conserve wheat and, at the same time, inconvenience consumers as little as possible, but in its regulations regarding the sale of wheat flour by retailers it seems to have considered the consumers' convenience even more than the necessity of saving.

The rules say that wheat or standard flour may not be sold to a customer unless he or she purchase, at the same time, substitutes to the extent of at least 25 per cent of the amount of flour bought. Included in these substitutes are rice, tapioca, potatoes, oatmeal and similar foods. If the flour from these products were specified exclusively, the result might be what is wanted, but "flour" is optional; purchasers may take the whole rice, oatmeal, potatoes, etc., with the provision that if potatoes are chosen the same weight of them as of flour must be taken.

Many families use fully as many pounds of potatoes as they do of flour in the week, and these the rules will not affect, unless they are patriotic enough to carry out the spirit of the law voluntarily. Oatmeal and rice are in general use, and it will not require any change in household menus to use one-quarter as much of these as of flour. Or, again, to every four pounds of flour a purchaser may take a quarter of a pound of rice, a quarter of tapioca and a half of oatmeal.

It would seem that dealers in foodstuffs have reason on their side when they declare that the only satisfactory conservation rule would be to have the mixing done by the millers. This would be fair to those who buy bakers' bread and those who bake their own. The present rule not improbably may injure the bakers' trade if home-bakers are permitted to make bread with greater wheat percentage than can be bought from the large manufacturers.

A STRANGE ADVERTISEMENT.

A SPECIAL correspondent of the Toronto Telegram, writing from Ottawa, brings to attention a recent significant advertisement appearing in L'Eclaireur, a rural newspaper published at Beauceville, in which "draft evaders and others" are invited to join the staff of the Imperial Munitions Board engaged in cutting spruce in the forests of Northern British Columbia. It is promised that safe passage would be provided and all applications were to be addressed to a representative of the board at the Chateau Frontenac in Quebec. After the advertisement had appeared a sensational article appeared in the newspaper of Henri Bourassa, who was no doubt glad to give back some of the sort of material that has been hurled into his editorial sanctum since war began.

Much of the spruce used for the equipping of the aircraft comes from Canada, and the munition board has been directing the work. It is a strange procedure that any agent of the board should have held out this official bait to the draft dodger, and some statement should be forthcoming at once. Just such blunders or tricks as this have done much to make Quebec backwoodsmen doubt the sincerity of the Canadian military policy as applied to them. They were promised exemption, and saw Bourassa proceed to hamper Canada's war efforts year after year. It is not believable that the Imperial Munitions Board itself sanctioned such an appeal. Sir Joseph Flavelle is too astute for that, if nothing else. But some one of the board's agents has adopted this method of securing labor, or the whole thing is a fake. The Telegram remarks that there is reason to believe that no great obstacles were thrown in the way of those who wished to go west and cut spruce. The board should refute the advertisement or deny that its agent caused the strange appeal to be inserted.

EDITORIAL NOTES.

A lot of fighting Canadian cavalrymen won their spurs at the first chance.

Toronto wants two hundred more policemen. Chance for a few husky youths who wish to see some real active service.

Someone in Toronto wants the name of Lansdowne avenue changed to Currie avenue. But would Toronto turn down a noble lord even if he is a pacifist?

Canada and Australia are in the fight as pals, not as rivals. Some diplomat must have arranged to have these two great branches of the family smashing through together.

Canada sent some fine horsemen in her cavalry units to the west front. The last big drive has given this country the chance to show her fitness in every arm of the service.

Canada has had scores of strikes and near-strikes this summer. The prevention of strikes is a matter for Hon. T. W. Crothers, just as the prevention of fires is a matter for the fire department. Enough said.

Is it not about time the Canadian newspapers with influence at Ottawa persuaded the authorities to permit the names of units engaged in the fighting to be mentioned? The Americans are doing it every day and nothing is more calculated to keep the home spirit fired.

WHERE'S THEM SHEARS?

[Detroit Times.]

"Where's them shears?"
The question I've been asking and repeating it for years.
Soon as I reach my desk to work;
Soon as I give my coat a jerk;
The rosiness of morning from my nature disappears,
As I rubber 'round the room and ask:
"Where's them shears?"

"Where's them shears?"
Though lots of times I yell it, seems nobody ever hears.
I have resolved, time and again,
I'll have to go and buy a chain,
To come and bring them to me, no one ever volunteers,
As I rubber 'round the room and ask,
"Where's them shears?"

"Where's them shears?"
Sometimes I think that really it is music to their ears.
But this perhaps is shoppy talk,
And bores you some, this shoppy squawk—
You have your troubles, too, no doubt, adown this vale of tears,
So I suppose I'd better cut it—
"Where's them shears?"

TAKING A CHANCE.

By Lincoln Rothblum.

"Jiggers, the boss!"

And upon the heels of the whispered warning, Mr. Joseph Q. Hattisbury, heavy-footed and always sober, entered the sanctum of his private office.

The "Q." it must be stated, had been added to his name coincident with his appointment to the vacant presidency of the Consolidated Metals Corporation, marking a very gradual rise from his lowly beginning as errand boy for this same business institution some forty years back. There was about as much logic to his belief that the "Q." which stood for nothing, added a unique dignity to his name, as for his idea, assimilated through the course of his career, that heavy-footed walking was an indication of a "dominant personality." Of course, Mr. Joseph Q. Hattisbury would not have characterized it so, principally for the reason that he seldom knew the meaning of or how to spell words of greater than monosyllabic length.

As the door, labelled in letters of warning size "Private," banged abut, a small, thinnish fellow, with deep-set eyes, looked up from the large sheets over which he was bent, and retrieving the lighted cigarette from his pocket, whistled relievedly. His thinning hair and the tell-tale crow's feet about the eyes seemed to vie oddly with his boyish mannerisms.

"If it hadn't been for your 'Jiggers,' Helen, I'd 've been caught that time sure."

Helen rested her hands, with their network of blue-veined ridges, on the keys of her comptometer. Helen could no longer be called exactly young, but an indefinably happy turn to her lips reflected a never-absent sense of humor. She was conservatively and economically dressed in a dark serge skirt which eloquently testified by its sheen its fourth year of continuous service. Black, low-heeled shoes and a white lawn waist completed the businesslike severity of her costume, relieved only by a small amethyst brooch fastened to the throat.

"Right you are, Rodney," she replied, but her voice did not have its usual buoyancy. The man noticed it.

"What's the matter, old scout?" he asked consolingly, getting up from his chair and proffering a bag of caramels. She refused the confection.

"Tired, Helen?"

"Yes, I am—tired to think that you've got to hide a cigarette in your pocket as if you were a little kid, and tired of that," pointing contemptuously to the door marked "Private," "old-maid teacher."

Rodney smiled. "Let up on the old maids, Helen. You're living in a glass house all your own."

"Oh, but I'm a woman and it makes no difference if I push the keys of this comptometer forever. But you're supposed to be a man and make a name for yourself in this world. Does the prospect of smoking when it pleases the other fellow appeal to you for the rest of your life?"

Rodney stood silent. This was a new Helen.

"Look here, Helen, we've been working together now for nearly ten years right in this office, and you've never talked this way before. You know I've never dared risk starting something for fear I'd fail. So I've been content to put up with the old man."

"Well, you've got to take a chance some time. Shame, that for the security of three meals a day you've been content to lodge in a rut! Don't follow my example. Here I am well along in the thirties, and still letting this thing think for me," and she gave the comptometer a vicious shove. "You get out, Rodney, and take a chance. A man at forty is still young these days."

Helen smiled at the unusualness of their conversation and her new role of adviser. She couldn't help smiling.

"Well, I'll tell you what," he answered, as he clapped his hands together to seal the bargain, "you suggest the venture, and I'll do it—or bust."

Helen laughed out loud. "Foolish," she said, without serious intent, "go buy a delicatessen."

Rodney's mouth closed with a snap. "Jiggers, the boss!"

And as Mr. Joseph Q. Hattisbury reentered the outer office, he found his employees zealously performing those duties for which he never let them forget he paid them. He tramped noisily over to Helen's desk. Despite her dislike for him, she could never help but feel that he treated her just a little more considerately than he did the others.

"I'd like to see those totals, Miss Bently," he asked in stentorian tones, and Helen shivered as he leaned his portly frame over her. He did not seem to be paying much attention to the figures as he nervously fingered his watch charm. "Come into my office," he ordered peremptorily.

Puzzled, she followed him into the room, and Rodney looked up as the door closed with its customary bang. "Here's where she gets it," he thought.

Perhaps Helen was "getting it."

"Miss Bently," her employer abruptly began. He cleared his throat with a rasping noise and Helen fortified herself for the worst. "I intend to make you my wife."

Helen reeled.

"You've been a good employee for the past ten years," he went on, as if he were merely increasing her salary, "and I don't think you'll waste my money if I marry you."

He paused to cough. "Does the lady select the wedding day?" he cross-examined.

A hot and scathing refusal was on Helen's lips. Oh! The man's audacious arrogance! Was she nothing but another step in his upward progress? Did she have no choice? How long had she been under consideration? Was her position in jeopardy? The questions raced like flashes of lightning through her confused mind. Then as in a panorama there passed before her the years of confining hours, the toiling days and the nights without recreation—just work, work and more work—that one might live. The very whiteness of her waist seemed to implore surcease from frequent washings and the shiny serge skirt silently pleaded honorable discharge from service.

And here was liberation! Within her grasp was material ease for the rest of her years. Helen hesitated.

"May I have time to think it over, Mr. Hattisbury?" she asked slowly.

He seemed puzzled as to what necessitated consideration. "Yes," he finally answered, "you may have a week."

As Helen returned to her desk, Rodney looked up—and promptly down again. Helen was crying.

In the next succeeding days she was grateful that he did not question her. But Rodney was preoccupied in his own affairs.

It was the afternoon of the fifth day. "Helen," Rodney called abruptly, as he heard the last echoing footsteps of their employer down the hall, "will you marry me?"

Helen's hand went to her forehead. Two proposals in one week for a woman who had reached her thirty-eighth birthday without any, were not conducive to calm thinking. Rodney came over to her.

"Listen, Helen. I've been thinking a great deal about what you told me that other day—about making something of myself. You're right. I've been in a rut."

Helen shoved her comptometer to one side. This was a new Rodney.

"So I went and stuck the six hundred I've saved up in the cutest little delicatessen you ever saw. It's got cans of stuff on the shelves and cheeses on the counter and cakes in the case and flour in the bin and," he ran on excitedly without stopping for breath as Helen grasped his coat sleeve in the contagious enthusiasm, "there is a good trade. It'll be slow plugging at first, lots and lots of work, but—but it's a go."

He leaned toward her with arms extended. "All it needs—all I need is a wife—that'll make everything complete."

Helen could not speak. Something was choking her.

"I'll be good to you," he pleaded, taking her silence for a refusal, "I'll do all the work. Honest, I will. I just want you to encourage me. Won't you please? It means—oh, it means independence!"

Rodney stopped. Helen was crying—again. He sat down on her desk and with one hand about her shoulders, he patted her head with the other.

"Jiggers, the boss!" he called as the door opened.

But they weren't in time. Mr. Joseph Q. Hattisbury had seen. He brought one foot down after the other with a ponderous thud.

"Miss Bently," he snorted in high indignation, "after my talk, what does this mean? I cannot give you a week to decide. Choose now."

Helen stopped crying and looked from her opinionated employer to Rodney with his deep-set eyes still pleading his cause. The one held promise of comfort and of submission; the other, work—and independence.

"Oh, I'll take a chance," she said, "I choose the delicatessen."

False Modesty

has led many a suffering person to neglect the treatment of piles. The itching, stinging sensations produce the keenest distress. The thought of a surgical operation brings mental anxiety which undermines the general health.

Relief can always be obtained by the application of Dr. Chase's Ointment, and in most cases persistent treatment brings about complete cure. This ointment is worth trying when you think of the comfort to be obtained.

HOW MRS. BOYD AVOIDED AN OPERATION

Canton, Ohio.—"I suffered from a female trouble which caused me much suffering, and two doctors decided that I would have to go through an operation before I could get well.

"My mother, who had been helped by Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, advised me to try it before submitting to an operation. It relieved me from my troubles so I can do my housework without any difficulty. I advise any woman who is afflicted with female troubles to give Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound a trial and it will do as much for them."—Mrs. Marie Boyd, 1421 5th St. N. E., Canton, Ohio.

Sometimes there are serious conditions where a hospital operation is the only alternative, but on the other hand so many women have been cured by this famous root and herb remedy, Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, after doctors have said that an operation was necessary—every woman who wants to avoid an operation should give it a fair trial before submitting to such a trying ordeal.

If complications exist, write to Lydia E. Pinkham Medicine Company, Lynn, Mass., for advice. The result of many years experience is at your service.

NUXATED IRON

"To help make strong, keen, red-blooded Americans there is nothing in my experience which I have found so valuable as organic iron—Nuxated Iron," says Dr. James Francis Sullivan, formerly physician of Bellevue Hospital (Outdoor Dept.), New York, and the Westchester County Hospital. Nuxated Iron often increases the strength and endurance of weak, nervous, rundown people in two weeks' time. It is now being used by over three million people annually, including such men as Hon. Leslie M. Shaw, formerly Secretary of the Treasury, and ex-Governor of Iowa; former United States Senator Richard Rolland Kenney of Delaware, at present Major of the U. S. Army; General John L. Clem (Retired), the drummer boy of Shiloh, who was sergeant in the U. S. Army when only 12 years of age; also United States Judge G. W. Atkinson of the Court of Claims of Washington, and others. Nuxated Iron is dispensed by all good druggists everywhere.

PROCLAMATION

GEORGE the FIFTH, by the Grace of God of the United Kingdom of Great Britain and Ireland and of the British Dominions beyond the Seas, KING, Defender of the Faith, Emperor of India.

To all to whom these presents shall come or whom the same may in any wise concern,—GREETING:

A Proclamation of conditional amnesty respecting men belonging to Class 1 under the Military Service Act, 1917, who have disobeyed our Proclamation of 13th October, 1917, or their orders to report for duty, or are deserters or absent without leave from the Canadian Expeditionary Force.

E. L. NEWCOMBE, Deputy Minister of Justice, Canada. } WHEREAS considerable numbers of men belonging to Class I under our Military Service Act, 1917, called out on active service in our Canadian Expeditionary Force for the defence of Canada under Our Proclamation of 13th October, 1917, although they have thus become by law soldiers enlisted in the Military Service of Canada,

Have failed to report for duty as lawfully required of them under the said Military Service Act and the regulations thereunder, including the Order in Council duly passed on April 20 last,

Or have deserted,

Or absented themselves without leave from our Canadian Expeditionary Force,

And it is represented that the very serious and unfortunate situation in which these men find themselves is due in many cases to the fact that, notwithstanding the information and warning contained in Our Proclamation aforesaid, they have misunderstood their duty or obligation, or have been misled by the advice of ill-disposed, disloyal or seditious persons.

AND WHEREAS we desire, if possible, to avoid the infliction of the heavy penalties which the law imposes for the offences of which these soldiers have thus been guilty, and to afford them an opportunity within a limited time to report and make their services available in Our Canadian Expeditionary Force as is by law their bounden duty, and as is necessary for the defence of Our Dominion of Canada.

NOW KNOW YE that we in the exercise of Our powers, and of Our good will and pleasure in that behalf, do hereby proclaim and declare and cause to be published and made known THAT THE PENALTIES OF THE LAW WILL NOT BE IMPOSED OR EXACTED as against the men who belong to Class 1 under Our Military Service Act, 1917, and who have disobeyed Our Proclamation aforesaid; or who have received notice from any of Our registrars or deputy registrars to report for duty on a day now past and have failed so to report; or who, having reported and obtained leave of absence, have failed to report at the expiry of their leave, or have become deserters from Our Expeditionary Force, PROVIDED THEY REPORT FOR DUTY ON OR BEFORE THE TWENTY FOURTH DAY OF AUGUST 1918.

AND WE DO HEREBY STRICTLY WARN AND SOLEMNLY IMPRESS UPON ALL SUCH MEN, and as well those who employ, harbour, conceal or assist them in their disobedience, that, if they persist in their failure to report, absence or desertion until the expiry of the last mentioned day, they will be pursued and punished with all the rigour and severity of the law, SUBJECT TO THE JUDGMENT OF OUR COURTS MARTIAL WHICH WILL BE CONVENED TO TRY SUCH CASES or other competent tribunals: and also that those who employ, harbour, conceal or assist such men will be held strictly accountable as offenders and subject to the pains, penalties and forfeitures in that behalf by law provided for their said offence.

Provided however that nothing contained in this Our Proclamation is intended to release the men aforesaid from their obligation to report for duty as soon as possible or to grant them immunity from arrest or detention in the meantime for the purpose of compelling them to perform their military duty; Our intention being merely to forego or remit the penalties heretofore incurred for failure to report, absence without leave or desertion incurred by those men of the description aforesaid who shall be in the proper discharge of their military duties on or before the said twenty-fourth day of August, 1918.

Of all of which Our loving subjects and all others whom these presents may concern are hereby required to take notice and govern themselves accordingly.

IN TESTIMONY WHEREOF, We have caused these Our Letters to be made Patent, and the Great Seal of Canada to be hereunto affixed. Witness: Our Right Trusty and Right Entirely Beloved Cousin and Counsellor, Victor Christian William, Duke of Devonshire, Marquess of Hartington, Earl of Devonshire, Earl of Burlington, Baron Cavendish of Hardwicke, Baron Cavendish of Keighley, Knight of Our Most Noble Order of the Garter, One of Our Most Honourable Privy Council; Knight Grand Cross of Our Most Distinguished Order of Saint Michael and Saint George; Knight Grand Cross of Our Royal Victorian Order; Governor General and Commander-in-Chief of Our Dominion of Canada.

At Our Government House, in Our City of OTTAWA, this FIRST day of AUGUST, in the year of Our Lord one thousand nine hundred and eighteen, and in the ninth year of Our Reign.

By Command,

BOBBY SKUNK DRILLS HIS COMPANY.

After Bobby Skunk had drilled his Company of the Little People of the Great Forest, he marched them around the edge of Mirror Pond. Redhead, the Woodpecker, saw the Company marching, and he flew to a dead tree and found a lovely drum, in the shape of a dry limb, and he started to play, "Rub-a-dub-dub, rub-a-dub-dub, rub-a-dub-dub!"

Redhead's red cap made him look exactly like a little drummer. And he kept drumming so well that Bobby Skunk marched his famous Company several times around Mirror Pond, just to practice the Company in keeping step.

And when Grandpa Frog saw the Company, and heard the drum of Redhead, the Woodpecker, he struck up a splendid Frog March, with his deep bass voice, and the great Frog chorus joined in the music.

It was the grandest march that had ever been reflected in the silver mirror of that famous moonlit pond.

If we had a photograph it would show Captain Bobby Skunk marching ahead, with his loaded gun by his side, and Mr. Porcupine bringing up the rear, with hundreds of little lances swung over his shoulders and back. Why, do you know that Mr. Porcupine is so well armed that he even carries lots of little spears in his tail.

And every member of that famous Company was well armed. And each one carried his weapons that night, and every member of the Company was well drilled in the use of his weapons.

Bobby Skunk would stop his Company now and then, and shout, "Company, attention! Shoulder arms! Present arms! Ground arms!" You see, it was easier for some soldiers in this Company to ground arms than shoulder arms.

When Bobby Skunk shouted "Present arms!" every soldier opened wide his mouth, and showed all his white, long and sharp teeth, and stuck out his forepaws and showed his claws.

You see, it was easy for Mr. Porcupine to shoulder arms; for many of his best little barbed spears were on his shoulders and back. And it was easy for all to obey the order of Bobby Sunk, when he shouted, "Ground arms!" for all could get their sharp weapons, on their feet, to the ground very quickly. It was a very funny-looking Company!

Redhead's red cap made him look exactly like a little drummer.

Mid-Summer Styles in Little Girls' Frocks

One notices very few changes of line in frocks for small girls. All the old ideas persist—short waists, long waists, Russian blouse effects and middies play their parts as usual. However, the few novelties are echoes from the fashions of older folks.

Checked gingham combined with plain fabrics is much in vogue, the distinctive note being introduced by the trimming details. Pink and white, blue and white, green and white make very charming little frocks when combined with the plain material in the predominating shade of the check.

Novelty voile in pink or blue and other shades prevail for dress-up wear for the little miss. One unusually attractive model is of yellow voile. There is a yoke to which the body of the frock is attached, the joining line being marked by deep yellow and brown stitching. Below this line there are two rows of smocking in the deeper shade of thread. This little frock is a slip-on model and fastens down the front almost to the waist line with a double row of tiny pearl buttons. Pouch pockets are shown also ornamented with the smocking.

Another dainty little model is fashioned of pale blue novelty voile with pipings of white. The distinctive feature of this dress is the pocket on either side, seemingly attached to the belt. The yoke effect at the side front is finished with an embroidered button. Small mother of pearl buttons fasten this frock at the back.

Severely plain frocks of lovely colored linen are made up in clever short waisted styles and are given character by unusual pockets, necks and sleeve trimmings. Sometimes the necks are cut low and round and finished only by a narrow pinning in white or harmonizing color. Small white collars are also noted or some of these frocks. Fewer sailor collars than usual appear on children's frocks.

Smocking is often the distinctive feature on an otherwise simple frock. Occasionally when the smocking is used in color or white, fine feather stitching to match is used to finish collars, cuffs, etc.

White organdy is sometimes used for simple collar and cuffs on voile frocks.

WHAT IS PERSONALITY?

It Certainly Is a Commodity That's Hard to Define.

What is personality? It is a commodity very difficult to define. Some persons repel us—to others we are strongly and instinctively drawn—and often the reasons for the repulsion or the attraction baffles analysis. Certain vulgar and disagreeable traits at once establish some whom we meet as undesirable—with others the qualities that are distasteful are more subtle, and for a space of time they may be hidden, till some accident brings them out. Commonly we learn to care for those who, in an amiable sincerity, manifest an affectionate solicitude toward us. Most of the world is impersonal. It deals us ruthless hard knocks. It does not ask us how we like to be treated, and when it has bowled us over and bruised us it does not call at our door to inquire how we are this morning. It maintains (or so we feel) a studiously cold and callous indifference.

But out of this unfeeling world, which is not better than neutral when it is not actually hostile to our poor little plan of action, our modest cherished dream, our desire to get ahead, our hope of better things, now and then some rare and beautiful being emerges to make a difference in our thoughts and days. Suddenly we are conscious of a personality—a radiant and quickening presence, "a living breathing thoughtful breath," one that seems to display a genuine concern in our goings, one to whom we seem valuable—so that we become once more of value to ourselves.

We say of some artists who face a large public that they have personality. Can those who are all things to all men mean much to any single person? Yes, for if they truly love their own kind and have a message for a multitude they must reach the heart of the individual. Faultless oratory, great beauty in the countenance, exquisite qualities of sound in voice or instrument, perfected modulations in many language—these are not personality. The character must shine through the mere expression, however admirable in form that expression may be. One has observed great efforts to be pleasing topple over in failure because the performer was self-conscious, not spontaneous, because he thought of his own success and of his own glory, and not of the lasting good of those to whom his appeal was made.

Insincerity may fascinate—but it is not lovable. Only honesty and directness of dealing can win a lasting attachment. Artificial folk are desperately afraid of the picturesquely unconventional actions that they think will make them ridiculous. They are so stiff and starched in their unmannerless that they are hopelessly uninteresting. Sticklers for etiquette and for the observance of all the minor canons of good form, they find so many petty, silly rules to follow that they have no time to give rein to large and generous impulses. A personality that makes itself count ardently and lastingly in other lives and for the world's well-being is too high for spite, too noble for mean, small ways, too genuine for intrigue and innuendo and too faithful to sacrifice a friend.—Philadelphia Public Ledger.

Some of the futurist styles in checks and stripes look like injury with intent to kill. We were hit in the eye by a wild black and white stripe affair the other day, and have just heard that a well-known citizen fell unconscious when a blue and orange check skirt came around the corner. How much noise are clothes allowed by law to make?

To the left is a ball-top jar partially sealed and ready for sterilization. The top ball is snapped into place and the lower ball left free. To the right is shown the way to complete the seal. The jar is now ready for storing.

CYNTHIA GREY'S MAIL-BOX

That Candied Syrup.

Dear Miss Grey,—This is the first time I have plucked up enough courage to knock at your door. Seeing "39 in the Shade's" troubles, thought I would help Jar the kaiser by telling her how to save her jars. From experience I have found if she will put a little warm water in the jar and place in a dish with warm water in it, as high up as the water is in the jar, the candy will come out without hurting the jar. Not seeing another Boxite's queries answered, I thought I would. Here it is: Salt Beads. —Two tablespoons salt, four tablesp.-ons cornstarch, four tablespoons water. Then put coloring (water paints) in the water, and mix thoroughly. Put on the stove and heat until mixture roils out like putty. When partially cool, roll in the hands, put hatpins through and stick them on a board until hard. Use whatever perfume desired. Hoping to see this in print if not too lengthy, I will sign myself, A RED HEAD.

Ans.—One would have fancied that the heat of the past week was severe enough to melt all the candied syrup in friend "39's" jars, but your kindly hint is given anyway, and I hope it enables her to save some of the sealers.

She's Interested Too.

Dear Miss Grey,—I am coming for another peep into the Mail-Box. I was there once before, and liked it fine to see my letter printed in The Advertiser.

I really didn't know there were so many interested readers of "revelations of a Wife." I saw where some didn't agree about whether Madge would get a divorce. I do not think she would, but I think Ducky will get the divorce and marry Edith Fairfax or Grace Draper, and I think Harry Underwood will come back to Lillian. I wish they would put more of the story in every day, because it seems as though you just get started to read it, and then it stops.

I was out in the harvest field this year, but I didn't wear the overalls.

Well, I must close, and I will write again if I am permitted to do so, and send you some soldiers' addresses, and a great big sailor's address also. I cannot this time, as I do not know their addresses, but I can get some from my married sister. I sign myself, as before, DAFFYDOWNDILLY.

Ans.—All right Daffy, we'll look for the names at another time. Always pleased to have our visitors pay return calls, you know.

Lost the Paper.

Dear Miss Grey,—A short time ago I saw in your column directions for knitting a soldier's sleeveless sweater. The paper was mislaid, and now I wonder if you could get it again for me? Do these sweaters have to be made with khaki-colored yarn? M. L. B.

Ans.—So far as possible it is best that khaki or grey wool be used, if the sweater is to be sent overseas. These are the directions referred to, I think. They were supplied by an Eloraite:

Three hanks of yarn, three-quarters pound. Cast on 80 stitches, knit 2, purl 2, for 4 inches; knit plain until sweater measures 25 inches; knit 28 stitches, bind off 24 stitches for neck; knit 28 stitches; knit 10 rows for shoulder; cast on 24 stitches; knit plain for 21 inches, purl 2, knit 2, for 4 inches; bind off. Sew up sides, leaving 9 inches for armholes. To strengthen neck and armholes, either buttonhole them around or crochet a couple of rows around them. If directions are followed the garment is very easy to make.

Sympathy for "F. A. C."

Dear Miss Grey,—I noticed a letter in The Advertiser signed "F. A. C." headed, "Take the Bachelors." I quite approve of what "F. A. C." says in regard to taking the bachelors in preference to the boys of 19 or 20, as I consider these mature men are better fitted to stand the strain, both mentally and physically.

I sympathize with "F. A. C." in her present position, and wish her husband a safe and speedy return.

FARMER'S WIFE.

She's the Real Thing.

Dear Miss Grey,—Well, here I am, just in from the oats field! It's the last field, and I'm not a bit sorry. The barley beards are what I enjoyed most, though. You know, they stay right with you. Had about 85 acres of grain, so it's not much wonder I'm ready for a little rest. Then, too, I helped with 75 acres of hay before that. Later you'll see me out with the corn field driving the binder. Oh, we're kept busy, all right. Guess that's the best thing for us. (Except the blisters on my hands.)

I have lived in Canada four years now. I like it real well, since I'm used to the muddy roads in the spring and the water from dug wells. Guess you have good water most places, but there is none to be had here.

Well, Miss Grey, I hope I haven't taken up too much room. Will try and be of some assistance the next time. YANKEE FARMERETTE.

Ans.—You are surely entitled to the title of "farmerette," with such a record to your credit. All those acres of work must have meant tired bones at times. I'm glad to hear that you like Canada, but how unfortunate it is that you selected one of the poor "watering places" for your abode. Good drinking water is one commodity in which London and vicinity excels.

Addressing the King.

Dear Miss Grey,—Would you please state through your valuable columns in order to end an argument how a letter should be addressed to the King of England, and oblige

A BOLD SUBSCRIBER.

Ans.—The correct inscription on the envelope is: To His Most Gracious Majesty, King George V. The letter commences also with the above address line, followed by "Sir, may is please your majesty."

The concluding line of the epistle should read: "I have the honor to remain your majesty's most obedient servant."

What Is "Stranger's" Address?

Will "Stranger," who wrote the Mail-Box regarding a home for a 14-year-old boy in delicate health, please furnish her address, as I have one or two communications for her?

BE PROUD OF 'EM!

Don't be ashamed to show that you are pleased with your garden.

Mary had a little lamb;
Its fleece was white as snow;
And everywhere that Mary went
The lamb was sure to go.
It followed her to school one day;
They were a pretty sight;
For Mary's skin was snow-white, too.
She used "Infants-Delight."

INFANTS-DELIGHT TOILET SOAP

IT'S kindly soothing effect is truly delightful. Pure white. Exquisitely perfumed. Borated, to soften the water and penetrate the pores.

Daily Bible Question Club

SUGGESTIVE QUESTIONS ON THE UNIFORM LESSON FOR SUNDAY, AUGUST 18, 1918.
ONE GOLDEN TEXT SUGGESTION.
(By Rev. T. S. Linscott, D.D.)

Working in the church. Acts ii., 41-47; iv., 32-35; vi., 2-4.

QUESTIONS FOR TODAY.

1. Verse 41: Why are not revivals similar to this more often witnessed today?

2. Verse 42: Why would you say, or not, that Christians of today do not fellowship one with another as intimately as they should?

3. Verse 43: If the terrible consequences of sin were more frequently preached, would sinners in our congregations still be filled with "fear"?

Golden Text—Enter into His gates with thanksgiving, and into His courts with praise: give thanks unto Him, and bless His name. Psalm 100: 4.

OUR PLACE IN THE CHURCH.

Every person should be a Christian, and every Christian should be a member of the Christian church. The expression of the text, "Enter into His gatse with thanksgiving," has reference to the way we should enter into God's temple. You should not only be a member of the church, but also occupy some distinct place in it. Some may be office-bearers, and there is a great opportunity for many to become Sunday school teachers, as there seems always to be a lack of teachers in our Sunday schools. Whether you hold any special office or not in the church, you ought to take some part in the church's work. You should be a regular attendant, make yourself friendly, and greet as many of the worshippers as you possibly can.

Tom Sharkey Former Boxer Now Sailor and Y. Worker

Once Conducted the Toughest Dive in New York — Now Instructing Sammies to Fight.

(By A. F. Munroe.)

If Billy Sunday became a "bar-keep," if William Jennings Bryan started a brewery, if Senator J. Ham Lewis shaved off his whiskers, the world—or the United States, at least—would be astonished. But none of such events, alone or collectively, would be more startling than the news that Tom Sharkey, sailor, pugilist and dive keeper, has become a Y. M. C. A. worker.

If Tom had enlisted in the army the nation would not have been astounished. Tom always did like a fight, but his ways and Y. M. C. A. ways have differed as much as the Police Gazette and Christian Herald.

This story is to tell something about Tom, not the sportive sort of stuff that everyone knows; not of his battles in the roped arena and his final defeat, but of the life he led in New York some few years ago; also of some of Tom's characteristics and of his downfall.

The new Tom Sharkey must be a much different Tom than the old one who ran a cafe on Fourteenth street, New York. I know the place for some years. It was almost across from Tammany Hall, that political congress where the affairs of New York have so often unofficially been directed and too often misdirected. Nearby was Third avenue, with its roaring "L." Fourteenth street is still an important New York thoroughfare, but from the viewpoint of the underworld sport its days of "glory" have passed. It was then a headquarters for gamblers, scarlet women and other tenderloin characters. Even then the "best" of the class had long ago moved uptown, but Fourteenth street still attracted many persons in search of the gilded and gaudy sights.

And Tom's cafe was the centre of the night life. It had a bar in front, large drinking rooms with tables in the rear, and other "accommodations" that eventually led the Fourteenth Street Improvement Association to complain so much that Tom had to close up and go to Blackwell's island, also pay a fine.

Tom used to be found at the bar, leaning ponderously on the rail, generally well filled with drink, which he was reputed never to buy. I never saw him spend a nickel for booze, although I have seen hundreds of dollars spent in that place of his. Tom was noted for his "tightness." When there was some repairing being done to the subway at Fourteenth street it was said that Tom had lost a nickel and that he was trying to find it. Yet Tom, who had saved his money as a fighter, retired from the saloon business broke.

The complaint came from the Civic Association. Tom was tried and sentenced at the Essex Market police court and his business affairs were shown to be in bad disorder. He had been robbed of his money by his own "gang," although he did not know it. Tom was a "wise guy," but he was a victim of those wiser than he. I shall never forget the strange look that came over the fighter's face in Essex Market that day. It was a woe-begone expression, the kind that said, "It's all off; I've got to throw up the sponge." Tom Sharkey was beaten. He was beaten by booze and by civic indignation. Tom's place had become an eyesore and a disgrace to New York. The passing of his place extinguished, let it be hoped for all times, one of the most notorious "joints" of all New York. Its departure told of the passing of the old regime and the coming of the new.

And yet many false tales were unquestionably told about Sharkey's. Visitors came from all over the country to see him and view his resort. There were tales of "doped" drinks and "knock-out" drops, but there was no danger in Sharkey's if you followed the one rule which will carry one safely almost anywhere—minding one's own business. But that was a hard thing to do in Sharkey's, for one had no business there.

The war made a new man of Tom. He probably has seen that his life was the wrong life. And now, in charity and in fairness, it is for the world to forget Tom Sharkey, resort keeper, and think of him as Sharkey, sailor and Y. M. C. A. worker. He has gone or is going overseas to instruct the soldiers in athletics. And Tom will make good. When he fought, he fought hard; when he was in the cafe business, he ran a hard saloon; when he reformed, he reformed well, and it is a safe bet that Tom won't backslide.

WILSON'S HANNIBAL RUNS AWAY WITH THE SARATOGA FEATURE

Weldship Loses Steeplechase For First Time in Four Years.

Saratoga, N. Y., Aug. 12.—Another strong candidate for 2-year-old honors deevloped Saturday afternoon, when Richard T. Wilson's Hannibal ran away from a field of nine juveniles in the Saratoga Special, a subscription event, that netted the winner $10,000, the largest purse that has fallen to the lot of a 2-year-old this season.

With Roamer and Cudgel scratched from the Champlain handicap on account of track conditions, the special was the outstanding feature of a fine day's sport, which included the North American steeplechase, an event that the champion jumper, Weldship, failed to win for the first time in four years. Weldship, carrying the big impost of 164 pounds, ran a gallant race, but after showing the way for nearly the full two miles, this remarkable 10-year-old was forced to bow before the superior speed of a much younger jumper, Wm. B. Coe's Bet, which was in receipt of 29 pounds from Weldship. There was interest enough in the Chaplain handicap at a mile and a furlong, even though the top weights did not feel like carrying their heavy burdens through the sticky going. Wilfred Viau's Westy Hogan, which had surprised the experts Friday by galloping through the thick mud and capturing the Glen Falls handicap at a mile, had not been among the overnight entries, but when the two cracks were withdrawn, Trainer McNaughton decided to give Westy Hogan another chance. He was added to the field, and again upset the calculations of the wise division by tin-canning out in front and holding the favorite, Midway, safe at all stages.

Hannibal Made Great Start.

Ensor, on Hannibal, was off like a flash, and from the outside position made such headway that he had a clear lead before a furlong had been covered.

McAtee had to drive Terentia hard in an effort to keep her place on the rail, but it was of no avail against Hannibal.

Going around the bend, Terentia was joined by Yourucari, and this pair had a pretty race to themselves, but were unable to close on the smoothly-moving Hannibal. Ensor took no chances with the leader and kept his mount going full tilt. After turning into the home stretch, McAtee swung his whip at Terentia, and the plucky filly drew away from Yourucari. In the last sixteenth Hannibal increased his advantage, so that he was five lengths in front at the finish.

It was the opinion of experts that no horse could carry big weight successfully in the Champlain, but Westy Hogan made light of the track conditions, and in spite of the big weight of 127 pounds he pranced to the post in as lively a manner as any of the light brigade. Moreover, Westy Hogan was on his toes when the barrier went up, and he raced away so that he was able to take the first turn in front of the field, and by the time he reached the back stretch he had an advantage of four lengths on Franklin, his immediate follower.

Midway, the public choice, was racing along just behind Franklin, but even at that early stage it looked improbable that he would overtake the leader.

In the stretch Sande worked with vigor on Midway, while Kummer was content to let Yesty Hogan race along and allow him to win comfortably by a length.

First race, the Plattsburg, 3 years and up, handicap, selling, $1,459.26 added, 7 furlongs—Hauberg, 119 (Robinson), even, 1 to 3, out, won; zRegal Lodge, 105 (Bell), 16 to 5, 4 to 5, out, 2nd; Pullux, 105 (Ensor), 9 to 2, even, out, 3rd. Time—1:27 1-5. King Neptune and Melus also ran.

Second race, the North American steeplechase, handicap, with $1,500 added, 3 years and up, about 2 miles—Bet, 135 (Williams), 5 to 2, 7 to 10, out, won; Weldship, 164 (Smoot), 9 to 10, 1 to 3, out; Shannon River, 147 (Allen), 7 to 1, 8 to 5, out, 3rd. Time—4:16 2-5. Doublet lsot rider.

ZACK WHEAT IS NEW BATTING LEADER IN NATIONAL LEAGUE

Ty Cobb's Batting Average Is Now .379—Burns Next in List.

Chicago, Ill., Aug. 10.—Zack Wheat, the Brooklyn veteran, steps out in the spotlight as the new batting leader of the National League, according to major league averages released today. He smashed out enough hits to crowd Heinie Groh, the Cincinnati infielder, from the coveted first position, with an average of .336. Jake Daubert, another hitting veteran, hammered his way to third place, with an average of .318.

Eddie Rousch of Cincinnati continues to top the sacrifice hitters with 24, with Cruis of St. Louis leading in home-run hitting, with six.

Leading hitters are:

Z. Wheat, .336; Groh, Cincinnati, .332; Daubert, Brooklyn, .318; Merkle, Chicago, .317; Hollocher, Chicago, .314; J. C. Smith, Boston, .314; Rousch, Cincinnati, .304; L. Magee, Cincinnati, .303; S. Magee, Cincinnati, .302; Chase, Cincinnati, .301.

With the close of the season but four weeks away, Ty Cobb probably will not attain his ambition to reach the .400 mark. The Georgian, according to today's averages, is 21 points from the goal he seeks. The leading batters are: Cobb, Detroit, .379; Burns, Philadelphia, .350; Sisler, St. Louis, .328; Speaker, Cleveland, 3.20; Milan, Washington, .308; Baker, New York, .307; Ruth, Boston, .306; Pipp, New York, .304; Wood, Cleveland, .302; Caldwell, New York, .302.

Sportlets

BY REX.

"We are not surprised" shriek sport critics in reference to the Fulton-Dempsey muss-up. Any time a sport authority admits his predictions go astray, the millennium will have come.

At the rate the manly art of self-defence is deteriorating our own little Tony Zoccano will probably be hailed as a world's champion one of these days.

The Leafs fondly alluded to Bobby Heck as "Old Woman Heck" when the latter was winning games for the Syracuse Stars. Now that "Bob" is a member of the Toronto pitching staff his nom de plume has been changed to "Good Old Bobby."

Fred Fulton was knocked out in just 23 seconds. He now believes there is some truth in the old childhood phrase "twenty-three, skiddoo!"

Hawaiian champion swimmers may be classed as professionals because they made money playing the guitar and ukelele. If the dusky masters of the deep cannot play the instruments any better than certain Port Stanley serenaders, it is more than likely they received the cash on condition that they throw their musical contrivances to the sharks.

Hamilton is the second Canadian town to join the International league. However, the ambition of the Ambitious City seems to have decreased as the Canadian burg was content to fill one of the cellar positions.

Fulton was a plasterer before he entered the roped arena. Too bad he did not use his plastering propensities to greater advantage when he bumped up against Dempsey.

Ban Johnson says John K. Tener is a bad man. In the language of Lucifer, his name is Tener, but his character is base.

Toronto has bucked the Bingoes out of the premier position of the International League. Manager Howley ought to write a mystery story entitled, "The Leaves That Did Not Fall."

Fulton complained about the work or fight order before he came up against Dempsey. After his twenty-three second experience with the latter he has decided that work is, after all, much preferable to fight.

HAMILTON CRICKETERS TRIMMED BY BRANTFORD

BRANTFORD, Aug. 11.—Brantford cricketers defeated the St. George Club of Hamilton here on Saturday by 8 runs. The Brantford team was all out for 62 runs, while the visitors scored 54. Charles Smith of Brantford took five wickets for 20 runs, and A. Bee five wickets for 7 runs.

CHATHAMITES TRIM W.O.R. NINE BY ONE RUN ON SATURDAY

Soldier Team Lose by 4 to 3 Score in Fast Game.

CHATHAM, Aug. 11.—The W. O. R. baseball nine went down to second defeat Saturday, when they crossed bats with the Chatham ball tossers at Tecumseh Park and finished the game on the short end of a 4 to 3 score. The game was replete with exceptionally good playing, and local fans declare it to be the best exhibition of the national pastime which has been witnessed here in many years. About ten days ago the Chatham nine met the W. O. R. valiants in London and came home with the short end of the tally. The game here was a well-earned victory, and the W. O. R. men have no reason whatever to feel ashamed of the defeat.

Hagel, for the visitors, pitched an excellent game, while McCoig, for the locals, was right up to himself. The Chatham boys were on the short end of the score in the opening of the eighth, but scored twice and won the game in the last two innings.

STRATFORD TOSSERS MAKE THIRTEEN MUFFS, LOSING TO WOODSTOCK

STRATFORD, Aug. 10.—Thirteen errors tells the story of why Woodstock trimmed Stratford at baseball here this afternoon. The score was 11 to 8.

The game was ragged and Woodstock started right in from the start to pile up the score. Stratford had a good fourth inning and by scoring six runs almost caught the visitors. However, Stratford was not able to hold them and they steadily pulled away.

Riggs was in the box for Stratford. He was found for seventeen hits, while Stratford gathered thirteen from Vance.

The fielding of Livermore in left garden was a feature of the game.

Score— R. H. E.

GOOD HOCKEY TEAM LIKELY AT STRATFORD

STRATFORD, Aug. 10.—Some good hockey material has drifted into the city since the close of last season's play, and indications are a fairly good junior team for the coming winter will be on hand. In addition to the pick of last year's juniors, those available for next year are King, who starred with Woodstock last year; Kelterborn and Berger of Kitchener; and Kone of Paris. These with Morenz, Seebach, Humphrey, Thorne and Lavelle of last year's team should comprise a neat sextet

What Our Doctors Are Doing to Help Us Win the War

By DR. LEONARD KEENE HIRSHBERG,
A. B., M. A., M. D. (Johns Hopkins University.)

DR. HIRSHBERG

What the American doctor is doing to rid the earth of our enemy's selfishness, treachery and power for evil begins with the searching examination of the selected, enlisted and recruited man for the army, the navy or the marines. Each man must be a strong link upon which victory rests. If he is weak, defective or otherwise unfit, a company, a battalion, a regiment, a division, an army corps or a whole war may be lost.

Once he is a buck private or an officer, the new man is quarantined for a sufficient time to prevent the others from catching any meningitis, pneumonia, measles, scarlatina, venereal or other disease he may have, or may carry into camp. Simultaneously he is treated or operated upon to put him in first-class condition, and is immunized by vaccines and serums to prevent as many diseases as medical science has succeeded in conquering from being spread to others.

In the Boer war the British army of 300,000 lost from typhoid alone 60,000 men from effective service. Of these, 8,000 soon died, and thus were permanently lost to civil industries also. In the Spanish-American war the small American army had 23,000 typhoid victims, of whom 2,100 died. An equal number of American soldiers sent to camp two years ago had only one death from typhoid and but 45 others sick with typhoid.

Typhoid Is Conquered.

Yet there are some—happily only a few—who still oppose anti-typhoid and anti-meningitis vaccination.

In the Crimean war the Allies had 438,132 men, of whom 17,000 died of wounds and 69,000 died of disease. The Russians had 324,000 men, of whom 35,000 died from wounds and 37,464 died of disease.

Of the Russians, 1 in 9 died of disease, and of the Allies, 1 in 6. This was traceable practically to typhoid, the great army disease, and cholera. The proportion of those killed in action was 1 in 20, and of killed and died of wounds, 1 in 14. In the battle of Waterloo it was 1 in 12.

In the Spanish-American war we lost more men from typhoid than from bullets. In the first three years of the present war, with more than 3,000,000 men, thanks to the anti-typhoid vaccination, there were only 292 deaths from typhoid. Thus has Sir Almoth Wright's discovery of typhoid vaccination worked out in practice. Doctors will never make a living, much less grow comfortable, any more in the practice of medicine upon typhoid fever.

Saving Our Soldiers.

Col. W. H. Smith of the medical corps in the surgeon-general's office in a talk at Johns Hopkins University last month affirmed:

"In the present war every (?) device known to man as a killing agent has been used at one time or another, and we might expect that the proportion of men killed in action would in consequence be much greater. This, however, is not so, and it is due again in no small measure to the better and more skilful methods of modern medicine and surgery."

The death rate of wounds and disease of soldiers and sailors was 5 per cent. Civilian mortality rates at present are at best 1.2 to 1.5 per cent. Your war doctors, however, have diminished the mortality rate to such an extent that even in the heaviest engagements, with large units, deaths from killed in action, wounds and disease combined—which there are less than in civil life—are below 1.8 per cent.

In previous wars thousands died in hospitals from diseases and wounds. You can have none of that in the present war, so long as scientific medicines hold sway over our armies. Modern surgery beyond dispute even by antis, quacks and irregulars has saved more men than were lost in all of Alexander's, Caesar's, Napoleon's and Grant's campaigns.

Lives and limbs invariably lost in other wars are now saved. Nay, the doctors even save their own lives. Of 25,000 doctors in England before the war, who gladly gave up their incomes to rush to the colors, only 195 have been killed in action and 55 died of wounds or disease in four years of strife.

Teutonic liars tell you that France is "bled white," or that "tuberculosis in France runs riot." The fact is there is less tuberculosis in the French army than before the war. Typhoid, lockjaw, meningitis, dysentry and smallpox are about wholly wiped out. Typhoid, once the plague, has less than three mild cases in 100,000 men. Tetanus, the bugbear of the wounded, has been conquered, and a soldier or sailor, thanks to willingly accepted discipline, has now 90 per cent—a fact based on figures—better chance than you and your friends have in civil life.

But while the doctors and the nurses have sprung to the war need, and the men in service are better cared for than ever before in the history of warfare—and far better than the average was cared for in civil life—you and your next-door neighbors have perforce been left with fewer doctors to call upon at any moment of the day or night, and fewer trained nurses to fill emergencies. The Government, through the Red Cross, therefore, has asked that trained nurses particularly be not called upon for private service, and that for operations and for trained nurse care that the civilian go to a hospital, where appliances are ready at hand and the time of doctors and nurses will be saved.

While the doctors and the nurses of the nation are helping to make victory sure, you at home must do your part to help them. Take the best of care of yourself, and of your children, so you will always be in the best of health. Learn ways of prevention and simple home remedies to cure small ills at home. Be constructively curious about the relation of foods to each other and to your health. Find out how to meet emergencies yourself. And so you will help in still another way to win the war.

Answers to Health Questions

O. E. W. Q.—Will you please tell me what to do for pyorrhea?

A.—You should have your teeth examined by an expert dentist. Vaccine injection of staphylococcus and streptoccus bacteria is very good. Iodide of potash saturated in water and taken after meals is also very good. Start with 15 drops and increase a drop at a time until 35 drops or so have been taken. Have a dentist scrape the teeth, and you might also take 5 grains each of hexamethyl netetramine and citrate of lithia every four hours in water.

W. P.—Q.—Will you please tell me what to do for sciatic?

A.—The name "sciatic" is attached to many aches and pains of the sciatic nerve or ham string. Like neuralgia elsewhere it may be traced to several possible origins—compress of the head of this nerve by the internal structures and often from varicose veins. Strap the legs tightly with elastic bandages and use electricity three times a day on the painful parts. Massage them and stay in bed a week or two.

N. N. C., London, Ont. Q.—Please give me something for pimples?

2. Please give me something for pains in my back.

A.—Use a little of the following for your pimples:

Sulphur lotion	2½ drams
Balsam peru	½ dram
Camphor	½ dram
Green soap	1 dram
Lanolin	½ ounce
Vaseline	½ ounce

2. The pains in your back are due to posture—bending over too much. Change your chair and poise. Join the Y. W. C. A. and take up gymnastics and swimming.

C. M. B., Detroit, Mich. Q.—Please tell me what to do for cramps in the lower limbs at night.

A.—Nocturnal leg cramps and shooting pains may, among others, be due to high blood pressure, excessive muscular exertion, and kidney ailments. Overwork and meat-eating make them worse. Keep the bowels open twice a day. Put a hot water bottle in bed even on hot nights, or take a hot bath before bedtime. Eat no meats, and before bedtime take two effervescent bromide tabloids in a glassful of water.

Dr. Hirshburg will answer questions for readers of this paper on medical, hygienic and sanitation subjects that are of general interest. He cannot advise or undertake to prescribe or offer advice for individual cases. Where the subject is not of general interest letters will be answered personally, if a stamped and addressed envelope is inclosed. Address all inquiries to Dr. L. K. Hirshberg, in care of this office.

ADELE GARRISON'S NEW

REVELATIONS OF A WIFE

How Lillian Broke the News to Madge.

The rest of our ride to Lillian's home was almost a silent one. A few swift laconic sentences gave me the reason for her strange delay in coming to me.

"The man you knew wasn't to be had," she explained, "so I was compelled to come with the other man myself, for I had told you to wait for me to appear with him."

There was no hint in her tone of reproach to me, yet I knew that she could not help disapproving my disobeyal of her instructions. An hour before I would have attempted to extenuate myself, but in the new line of conduct which I had mentally outlined for myself there was no room for anything save action. There was no bettering the error I had made by explanation, so I simply sat silent, waiting for the rest of Lillian's story.

"Then, just as I was ready to start," she said, "old Mrs. Morton had a sudden and most alarming seizure. Katherine, who, you know, isn't easily alarmed, was sure that she could live but a few minutes, but, of course, I could not leave her in such an extremity."

"But, surely she did not—" I began shocked and startled.

"No," Lillian returned. "She rallied, and her physician, who will remain in charge with Katherine until we get there, says he doesn't think the end will come tonight, at any rate."

"The end is near, then?"

"Merely a question of days, although the doctor says she may last even a week or two. Poor, old soul! I think she'll be glad to go, and no one could wish her to stay and suffer as she has done. But her death just now gives me a knotty tangle to unravel."

Well Guarded Doors.

The taxi drew up before her door and she stopped talking abruptly. As I followed her up the steps I wondered vaguely what tangle she meant, but knew better than to express any curiosity upon the subject.

Lillian opened the door of the vestibule with her latchkey, and then, locking the door again, she rang the bell of the inner door, which I knew from experience was a stout oaken one, well barricaded. Betty, gorgeously and wonderfully attired in a flambuoyant wrapper, with a scarlet handkerchief tied over her kinky curls, scowled sleepily at us.

"Well, Mis' Lillian," she grumbled, "does yoh all think, yoh is through trottin' tonight? You'll be dead, chile, a' dat's a fac', but you'll never listen to nobody."

"You mean you'll be dead, Betty," Lillian smiled as she spoke, but I think the old colored woman understood the implied rebuke. She tossed her head and her eyes glittered resentfully.

"When I complains, Mis' Lillian, it won't be no beatin' around the bush," she retorted, "but straight from the shoulder. But I don't hold no truck with thish yere night gallivantin' for yoh, it jes' wears you out runnin' around tendin' to other folkses business."

Her eyes looked disapprovingly at me From a vantage point behind her, Lillian's twinkled with amusement.

What Madge Divined.

"Never mind, Betty," she said soothingly, "there won't be any more 'gallivanting' for some time. Run along now and get your beauty sleep."

Betty shuffled off down the hall, still grumbling, and Lillian and I mounted rapidly to the second floor. There was distinct anxiety in Lillian's manner and I felt myself vaguely sharing her apprehension.

As we neared the entrance to old Mrs. Morton's room, from which a bright light was streaming, we heard the sound of stifled, childish, sobbing. With a quick, indrawn breath, Lillian's hurried footsteps broke into a run—noiseless, however, for all its swiftness—and in another moment we were in the sick room, and Lillian had gathered her little daughter Marion from the rug into which her childish face was pressed in an effort to make her weeping noiseless.

"Take her away," Katherine spoke softly, yet peremptorily, without turning her head. She and the physician were swiftly, desperately working over the inert figure in the bed.

"Do you need Madge?" Lillian was already at the door, Marion's face buried in her shoulder.

"No. Marion needs you both. I had no opportunity to care for her." Katherine's tone was a distinct command to get out of the way. I followed Lillian down the hall and up the stairs to the rose-hung room which she shared with the child.

She sat down in a roomy rocking chair and turned the little girl's face gently away from her shoulder. The child's face was colorless, her lips had a pinched, blue look that spoke of nervous exhaustion, and both fingers and lips were twitching convulsively, while shuddering little gasps, too feeble to be called sobs, came from the throat.

"Oh, mamma! mamma!" she moaned, "if Grandma dies I don't want to live."

It was only the hysterical outburst of a loving, frightened child, but it showed me in a flash what Lillian had meant by saying she had a "knotty tangle to unravel."

COMRADES---THEN AND NOW :: :: By Frank Crerie

Don't you remember that day in the strange place—miles alone don't make distance nor create strangeness, it's just the DIFFERENCE and seeing countless faces but none YOU know—what a joyous tug at the heart the face of someone from HOME brought to you? In such a moment there's a dropping of the shield each holds to front the world, a surrendering of eager confidence, a flash of recollection back to old scenes and other days to memory dear, a feeling of complete and perfect understanding—particularly when EOTH are in the proud service of their country, and so add to the comradeship of other years the GREATER comradeship of SERVICE.

BY GRACE THORNCLIFFE.

She Learns How a Military Note May Effectively Be Introduced Into a Young Girl's Costume.

All of the young debutantes are demanding walking costumes with the military touch. It must have the stiff, straight, official lines, or the military collar or be khaki-colored, and nothing else will do!

Madame is sometimes hard put to it to supply these imperious demands, and yet see the insistent young person walk out with something that satisfies Madame's artistic eye. For not every one can don the military style costume and yet look well by any means.

For instance, the typical military suit—with close-fitting, stiff lines, high collar and belt—looks best on the slender, small figure. Naturally, the charm of the military costume is apparent most when worn by the young person of boyish figure and with a boyish swing to her gait.

Now, as soon as this same costume is worn by the taller girl with heavier or more mature figure it assumes a sort of masculinity that is far from attractive. And yet, when a tall, full-figured girl, who probably touches the scale at 160, sees a will-o'-the-wispy young thing in a stiff little khaki street suit she imagines that she, too, will look as bewitchingly "cute" if only she will don a similar frock.

Smart Walking Costume of Midnight-Blue Gabardine.

Madame's task has been to supply the military effect to these varying figures and ages, and preserve its attractiveness without spoiling the natural womanly grace of the wearer. Nothing that a 160-pound woman wears will make her look like a 90-pound fairy, but it is not always easy to convince women of this fact.

For the full-figured debutante Madame designed one type of military street dress that has the smart, military touches, but cleverly omits the stiffness. This particular model is a walking suit of midnight blue gabardine. It is semi-close fitting, having a little gathering at the line of the belt. The sleeves, instead of being narrow and tight-fitting as in the strictly military frock, are loose, even to the cuffs, which are wide at the bottom.

The double skirt falls in a few folds from the waistline, but is not very full. The severity of this model is relieved by the trimmings of soutache, and it is this trimming that gives it a slight military effect. The cuffs are edged with half a dozen rows of soutache, as is also the bottom of the overskirt. Soutache is stitched around the collar and down the length of the blouse in front.

To make the costume complete there is a tri-color hat of blue gabardine to match, and this has as its sole trimming a few rows of soutache like the skirt.

This entire costume is becoming to the tall, well proportioned woman, and it will also prove especially adaptable to the woman inclined to plumpness. However, this is not a particular desirable model for the tiny figure, because of its many broken lines. These broken lines dispel the appearance of straight lines and military effects, without the stiffness which is unattractive for the large figure.

Writes About "Making Nosegays."

Copyright, 1918, by Newspaper Feature Service, Inc.

Winifred Black

Tonight there's going to be a party—a real party, with Sweet Sixteen and Shy Fifteen and Merry Seventeen as hostesses, and Good-Natured Eighteen and Awkward Nineteen and Light-Hearted Twenty for guests.

White frocks, blue sashes, rose-colored knots of ribbon, soft hair, bright eyes, smiles and laughter—with tears not so very far behind—for some of the nineteen-year-olds are going to enlist—now that they have graduated—and this is to be their last party at home.

And all the morning Sweet Sixteen and I have been out in the little house in the garden—that is purple and white with wistaria and yellow with glorious broom—and we've been making nosegays by the dozen.

One for each of the girls, and one for each of the boys, and one for every mother who's coming to help serve, and one for every older man who's coming to look on.

No, not bouquets—nosegays. The little old-fashioned kind, with a rosebud in the middle and little sweet-smelling flowers and fragrant leaves curling around it, quite close and tight and all tied up with a narrow ribbon. The kind of nosegay that grandmother wore in her hair when her father took her to hear Patti, the brand new opera star with the voice of silver and diamonds.

The kind that Aunt Sarah wore when she went down to the gate to bid her sweetheart good-by the night before he marched away toward Richmond to fight for what he thought was right.

Little, bright, gay, fragrant, friendly nosegays—they were so pretty that we just loved to make them. We heaped the round, green table, that has been blistered by the sun and wet by the dew till it looks as if it grew outdoors itself, high with flowers, simple garden flowers, heliotrope and verbena and lobella and little pink daisies and sweet alyssum and daphne and white jasmine and then we sat down and twined them into the little nosegays.

Some we made of white roses with white sweet alyssum, and there was no color to them at all, except the fringe of delicate green—these were for gentle, old ladies, or for sweet, shy girls in pink or blue.

The others were gay with rose and violet and yellow—they were for the light-hearted girls in white who wanted a touch of color, and as we made them we talked together, Sweet Sixteen and I.

We began about the flowers.

"I love these little nosegays," said Sweet Sixteen, "they're so friendly and so cheerful, not grand and gorgeous, like the great armful of roses and hyacinths they sent us on graduation day, but homey and simple, and I like to think that every flower in this nosegay means something that's a part of my life."

She held out the little nosegay she was making and looked at it.

"All of Life."

"See," she said, "there's the rose in the middle; that means"—she smiled—"that means mother, right in the middle of everything, like my heart, and around it here's the heliotrope; that's the moonlight falling through the willow tree by the window. Here's sweet alyssum; that's for the way the girls laugh when I call them up over the 'phone. Here's a daisy, fresh and plain; that's like the bowl of bread and milk that's waiting for me when I come home from school hungry. Here's the little sprig of geranium; that's for the books I read before the fire on a cool evening when the fog creeps in from the bay. Why, it's all there, all my life—the way I hope it will be—in the little nosegay."

And I looked and, sure enough, there they were, gathering around the rose that meant Sweet Sixteen to me—home, and love, and friendship, and sweet peace, and happy hours, and kind thoughts, and tranquil days.

I leaned to Sweet Sixteen and kissed her.

"So it is, my dear," I said, "so it is. I'm glad you like the little nosegay even better than you love the gorgeous flowers that made you so happy when you graduated."

And I took one of the little nosegays and hid it, and that I shall keep as long as my heart beats, for, no matter how withered it gets and how the flowers fade, I shall never look at it without thinking of the sunny morning when Sweet Sixteen and I sat out in the summer house and made nosegays for the party.

Rightly Used Your Mirror Is An Invaluable Beauty Critic

BY LUCREZIA BORI
The Famous Spanish Prima Donna

"I fear my little girl will grow up so vain," dolefully complained a young mother recently. "That child actually spends an hour before her mirror each morning before she goes to school."

"But how does she look when she emerges from her session with the mirror?" I couldn't help inquiring.

The mother smiled, and when she spoke her voice rang with pride:

"Fit for a showcase!"

I don't agree with those who look upon the mirror as a thing of vanity to be shunned. Of course, mirror consultation, like other things, can be carried to extremes, and there are few things more ridiculous than the sight of young girls in public places—trains and stations, theatres and restaurants—opening a handbag to gaze at the reflection of themselves.

The Mirror Dares to Tell You the Truth.

What I count as valuable is the frequent consultation of the mirror in the privacy of one's own room. For the mirror is no flatterer. It is by no means conducive to vanity.

The mirror is a merciless critic. It dares to tell you the truth as not even your best friend may. It stings you into recognition of unpleasant facts about your person. And if occasionally the reflection it sends back to you is pleasant and gratifying, isn't your effort worthy of this reward?

A woman who would leave for outdoors without a final glance at her mirror may be classed as careless, as one who would go out without glancing at her hands to make sure they were immaculate, or who failed to brush her clothes. Indeed, a glance at many women one sees parading about the streets inclines one to the belief that though they may be vain about buying many adornments for their person, they aren't possessed of the kind of vanity which makes them regard themselves critically in the mirror before departing.

The mirror teaches one the need of a good ensemble if one would be well dressed. You may buy individual items of dress that are beautiful—a handsome frock, a charming hat, beautiful shoes—each thing lovely in itself. But only your mirror can tell you whether you present a beautiful picture when wearing these things.

The mirror can tell you that the charming hat completely spoils the lines of the gown that worn alone is so becoming to you. The mirror will show you that the smart, high boots create a... ugly line from the skirt, and that simpler low pumps are the finishing touch to your otherwise excellent costume.

When you glance at the mirror you "see yourself as others see you," as the poet has it. No examination of separate items will give you the same information. You can look at the shoe on your foot from every angle, and it will not give you the same critical information about your appearance that a rapid glance in the mirror will tell.

Study your complete figure when you look in your mirror. Do not rest content with a satisfied glance at your new hat or lovely blouse. See yourself completely—with a critical eye—and you'll find your mirror a critical, sometimes caustic, but always helpful friend.

Six Ways to Preserve Tomatoes For Winter Use.

Every one uses canned tomatoes, even if other canned foods are not on the list. If, therefore, you wish to add your mite toward the sum total of food conservation, then put up a few jars of tomatoes at a time. Don't wait until you can "make a day of it" and put up a huge quantity. It will mean less work and more certainty of having a well-stocked preserve shelf if you will put up half a dozen jars at a time once or twice a week.

Canned Tomatoes, No. 1.

Select medium-sized tomatoes, put them into a wire basket and plunge them into a kettle of boiling water. Remove the skins and place the tomatoes in wide-mouthed sterilized jars. Fill with cold water, add one teaspoonful of salt to each quart jar, adjust the rubbers and stand in the washboiler or other streaming utensil used.

Cover, bring to the boiling point, and cook for 30 minutes. Screw down the tops and leave in the boiler until the next day. Repeat cooking for another half-hour from time water reaches boiling point, making sure that jars are full to overflowing, screw tops on tight and store.

Canned Tomatoes, No. 2.

Use under-ripe, sound tomatoes. Wash in cold water and remove skins with a sharp knife. Put the tomatoes in the preserving pan over the fire, add salt and bring to the boiling point. Allow to boil a few minutes, then fill jars to overflowing, seal immediately, using perfect new rubbers and covers.

Just before sealing, sprinkle one teaspoonful of salt and one teaspoonful of sugar over the top. Invert the jars and let stand until cool. Then store.

Canned Tomatoes, No. 3.

Scald whole tomatoes for two or three minutes, just long enough to loosen the skins easily. Then plunge quickly into cold water and remove core and skin. Pack whole as many tomatoes as can be pressed into the jar. Add one teaspoonful of salt to each quart jar or one-half-teaspoonful of salt to each pint jar. Steam for 20 minutes.

Green Tomato Preserves.

12 pounds of green tomatoes
4 lemons
9 pounds of sugar
¼ pound of citron
3 ounces of green ginger root
¼ ounce chives

Place in large kettle the sliced tomatoes, sugar, grated rinds and juice of lemons. Let stand for 24 hours. Make a bag for the spices, and tie in it the chives and crushed ginger. Add to the tomatoes and let the dish come to a boil. Cook slowly for about two or three hours or until very thick.

Ripe Tomato Preserves.

5 pounds of ripe whole tomatoes
4 pounds of sugar
2 lemons, sliced very thin
1½ ounces candied ginger

Cut the ginger and lemons very fine. Mix with the sliced tomatoes and sugar, and cook very slowly for two or three hours. Then pour into hot sterilized jars and seal.

Tomato Pickle.

1 peck of tomatoes
1 large head of cabbage
1 cup of sugar
1 tablespoonful of ground allspice
1 tablespoonful of mustard seed
½ peck of onions
12 peppers chopped fine
1 cup of salt
1 tablespoonful of ground cloves
1 ounce of celery seed

Chop the vegetables together, sprinkle well with salt and let stand over night. Drain, then place in kettle. Cover with vinegar and boil for one hour.

To-morrow's HOROSCOPE

By Genevieve Kemble

TUESDAY, AUGUST 13.

The planetary operations for this day presage success and financial gain, as Jupiter, "the money planet," is most propitiously placed in trine aspect with the Moon—one of the strongest astrological testimonials for success, honors, health and prosperity. It is a period for starting new undertakings, for investment and speculation, with every prospect of financial returns. Contrary to this, however, Neptune is evily aspected by Luna—a position denoting deception, treachery and fraud, particularly through intrigue, schemes and sinister combinations. With this precaution heeded, however, the strong Jupiter influence should prevail, and wisdom and caution in all dealings should lead into channels of success with increase of money and other benefits. Care should also be used in the signing of all papers, as Mercury is also under slight affliction.

Those whose birthday it is will have a year of success and financial gain if using proper forethought and precaution. A child born on this day will be generous, kind and popular, but should be taught to make friends carefully.

Good Night Stories

Illustrated by Gruelle.

LINDA'S PITCHER PLANT ADVENTURE.

"Oh, me! Oh, my!" cried a tiny voice. Linda looked up from the meadow where she was gathering daisies to see a little bee sitting on a blossom crying bitterly.

"Why, what's the trouble?" laughed Linda, for she'd never before seen a bee weeping.

"Oh, me!" wailed Mamma Bee, wiping her eyes with her feelers. "My Willy Bee has been stolen by the Ogre who lives in yonder castle."

Mamma Bee pointed to a great, big green plant nodding in the breeze.

"Why, that's only the pitcher plant!" laughed Linda.

"Are you quite sure?" buzzed Mamma Bee. "I thought it was a castle."

Linda looked toward the plant again, and the smile left her merry eyes.

"Why! So it is!" she exclaimed. For, sure enough, the great, tall, green plant had turned into a great, tall, green castle, and Linda looked no taller than Mamma Bee beside it.

"See, I knew it!" cried Mamma Bee. "The last I saw of him he was just entering the big green gates."

"Well, don't cry," cried Linda. "I'll see what I can do to get him out."

As quick as she could run Linda scurried up the long green stem to the big green gate. The gate opened, and Linda ran inside. The great tall walls were covered with hairs all pointing downward, and there, half-way down the hall, sat Willy Bee crying.

"Don't come down here!" he buzzed when he saw Linda. "You'll never get out. That's why the hairs all point down. It's easy getting down here, but you can't get back up through those hairs, and below me is a pool in which you'll surely fall if you come any closer."

Linda leaned over and looked down at the bottom of the long green hall. Sure enough, there lay a dark pool of liquid.

"It serves me right for being so nosey," buzzed Willy Bee. "My mamma often warned me to keep away from this lovely green castle, but I wanted to see what it was like inside. Now I can't get out!"

Just then from somewhere there sounded a terrible "Caw! Caw!" and Linda opened her eyes.

"Oh, dear!" she laughed as a big black crow darted out from under the tree above her head. "What a funny dream! Thanks, Mr. Crow, for awakening me, for I'd surely have fallen into that pool if you hadn't."

Linda glanced toward the tall pitcher plant around which the bee she had been watching before she'd dropped to sleep was still buzzing.

"I just wonder if there's a bee caught down the leaf of that plant," she mused.

She ran over and tore the green leaf apart, and, sure enough, a tiny bee buzzed out, and together the two bees flew away.

"Well!" laughed Linda, "I hope you'll not be so nosey next time, little fellow, and will learn to mind your mamma."

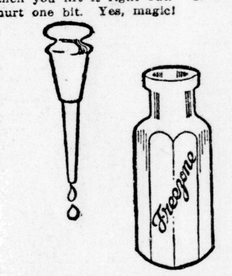

Then, gathering up her bunch of daisies, Linda went home.

CHAULNES, KEY TO ENEMY'S SALIENT IS CAPTURED BY THE CANADIANS AND AUSTRALIANS

Over 36,000 Prisoners and M ore Than 500 Guns Have Been Taken by the Allies in Four Days' Offensive in Picardy.

PARIS, Aug. 11.—The number of prisoners taken so far in the Allied offensive in Picardy is now estimated at 36,000, including more than 1,000 officers.

More than 500 guns have been captured, according to the latest advices.

RAILWAY CENTRE STORMED.

LONDON, Aug. 11.—Chaulnes, the important railway town in the heart of the Somme battlefront and the key to the southern line of the German salient, has been captured by the Allies. The capture was effected by Australian and Canadian troops.

Strong German attacks, delivered with fresh reserves, against the British at Lihons and north and south of that village, were repulsed today, and in the fighting the Germans suffered great losses, according to the British official communication received from Field Marshal Haig this evening.

Progress Above Somme.

Further progress was made last night by the British on their left flank on the Picardy battle front, north of the Somme.

The line was advanced here between Etinehem, 1½ miles southwest of Braye, and Dernancourt, 4½ miles to the northeast, the war office announced today.

On the right centre of the Allied front the French have pushed forward on the south bank of the Avre and have reached the outskirts of L'Echelle St. Aurin, seven miles northeast of Montdidier.

A German local attack north of Kemmel on the Flanders front was repulsed after sharp fighting.

Montdidier fell to the French first army, which had been operating south of Montdidier, according to the British war office announcement of last night. Many prisoners and great quantities of material were taken by the French.

The general line reached by the Allies in the Mondidier section now runs from Lihons to Fresnoy-les-Roye. Lignieres and Conchy-les-Pots. The statement added that the number of prisoners was increased.

French Have Pushed Beyond Montdidier Six to Ten Miles

PARIS, Aug. 11.—Notwithstanding the resistance of the Germans, the French troops Sunday gained further ground between the Avre and the Oise Rivers, taking several villages from the west and south of Roye to the Oise, according to the official report by the war office tonight.

Continued progress was made last night by the French on the right flank of the Allied front along the entire line between the Rivers Avre and Oise, the French war office announced in today's early statement. French troops captured the entire massif of Boulogne-le-Grasse and penetrated to the east of Bus, 6½ miles east of Montdidier.

Farther south on the line the French have penetrated the wooded area between the Rivers Matz and Oise, reaching in this region the environs of La Berliere and Bury. Moreuil-Lamotte has been captured and the French line has been pushed two miles to the north of Chevrincourt.

The French advancing eastward after their capture of Montdidier at mid-day Saturday advanced their lines to an average depth of six miles on the front extending from Andechy, which is seven miles northeast of Montdidier, to Elincourt, lying ten miles southeast of the captured city, according to the war office statement issued Saturday night.

UPWARDS OF 60,000 PRISONERS AND NEARLY 1,000 GUNS TAKEN IN AISNE AND MARNE VICTORIES

LONDON, Aug. 11.—(Canadian Press Dispatch from Reuter's Limited.)—Speaking at a luncheon yesterday at Newport, Monmouthshire, Premier Lloyd George emphasized the importance of the pushing back of the Germans from within gun range of the Amiens railway.

"Hundred of trains used to pass through Amiens daily," the premier said, "but we were temporarily deprived of its use until recently, when we were able to employ twenty trains daily. Amiens is now safe through the recent Allied triumphs on the Marne and the Somme, which were due to the unity of command. Those two great victories have resulted in the capture of between fifty and sixty thousand prisoners and between eight hundred and nine hundred guns."

ENEMY RUNNING WITHOUT ARMS PAST PERONNE

Weapons Evidently Discarded in Haste To Get Away.

LONDON, Aug. 11.—Large groups of prisoners, hungry, thirsty and grimy, and appearing thoroughly disheartened, continue to arrive at the collecting cages. Among the captured were five regimental commanders and ten battalion commanders.

Late today strong enemy forces were concentrating east of Proyart, and apparently were making preparations to oppose a determined resistance. However, the Germans' object probably is merely to cover the retreat of the large enemy forces. They have the additional need of attempting to take away a great amount of heavy material, of which they recently lost a large quantity, and feel the military necessity of risking man power in order to protect the remaining supplies.

Constant Stream Eastward.

The scores of Allied observers in airplanes reported that long streams of enemy troops and transports were rushing eastward, including the vicinity east of Bray. Great columns of Germans were crossing the Somme River, even by the bridges that have been badly damaged by Allied bombers who have dropped many tons of explosives at vital points. The enemy bombers also have been busy, and repeatedly were chased away by the British pursuit planes to prevent them from dropping bombs to hinder the advance of the troops.

GRAIN.

Chicago, Aug. 12.—Opening: Corn—August, $1 57⅝; September, $1 59.

Oats — August, 67⅝c; September, 67⅞c.

Chicago, Aug. 12.—Corn developed strength today after something of a downturn at the start. Initial declines were due to reports of scattered showers, but opinion gained ground that the moisture supplied was inadequate, and that higher temperatures might mean additional crop damage. Lightness of receipts tended also to favor the bulls. Opening prices, which ranged from ⅜c off to 1c advance, with September at $1 58½@1 59, and October at $1 59⅞@1 60, were followed by substantial gains all around.

Oats, like corn, rallied after a small break. Big arrivals, however, led to a fresh sag. The market opened ⅛c to ⅝c lower, with September at 67¾c, recovered to Saturday's finish and then gradually declined.

Winnipeg, Aug. 12.—Oats opened unchanged at 82½c for October.

Flax opened unchanged for October at $4 10.

Inspections on Saturday totaled 25 cars for all grains. The contract grades of wheat were 10 cars.

CONSTANT BLOWS

next day or two, the Anglo-French drive will have to slow down and stop, because the Allies will presently find themselves thrusting into a salient as awkward as the one from which the German has just been evicted.

No Salient at Present.

As it now stands, there is no salient, or practically none, and the Allied front runs fairly straight from the Oise below Ribecourt to the Ancre at Albert, with the Germans still holding Roye and the British in Chaulnes. At the northern end of this front the German resistance has so far been obstinate, and, on the whole, successful, the Allied advance having been inconsiderable, although it is approaching Bray. At the southern end about Ribecourt and Lassigny there has been practically no progress so far.

We are seeing once more reproduced the normal history of a successful offensive in the present form of warfare. Of the four stages, two, preparation of the attack and the attack itself, are over. The third phase, that of pursuit, is still going forward, but the successful resistance of the flanks suggests that we are almost at the point where the pursuit will merge into the fourth and last stage, which is the march of approach to the new positions. All now depends upon the success of the Germans in maintaining their flanks in the next 24 hours.

How Germans Got Into Pocket.

To illustrate by example: When von Huitir broke Gough's front 20 miles eastward of the present battlefield on March 21 of this year he put some fourteen British corps practically out of the battle, and opened a gap between the British and French armies, just as Rawlinson has now opened a gap between the armies of the two crown princes, which met between the Oise and the Somme. Following this break, von Huitir's forces rushed in pursuit all the way to the Avre and the Ancre. But the French south of the Oise and Byng's third army north of the Ancre were not shaken by the German offensive, and stood firm, stretching out their flanks toward each other, while Nayolle rushed French reserves up to the actual gap. The break was thus limited to the front of the fifth British army, and was eventually closed, after which there had been a gradual narrowing of the German wedge. There was then left the present salient—that is, the salient which existed before the recent offensive began. It was impossible for the Germans after March 28 to advance further, because they were being subjected to flank and cross fire from the unbroken flanks of the two Allied armies.

May Soon Come to Halt.

Today everything is reversed. The British and the French have completely ruptured the German front between the Somme and the Lassigny high ground. They seem to have accounted for upward of eleven divisions, or three less than von Huitir disposed of in his March offensive. But now, as then, the troops on either side of the gap are standing firm on high ground, and there seems a tendency of the Allied drive both to grow narrower and to move more slowly. If this tendency becomes more marked, we may expect to see the whole drive come to a halt at the west bank of the Somme, south of Peronne, and the lines, at least temporarily, stabilize themselves on a front of Peronne-Ham-Chaulnes, or even the high ground north and east of Noyon.

On the other hand, the obvious Allied move now is to attempt to break down the flanks or pivots of German retreat, and more particularly the northern pivot. If the Germans can be forced out of the high ground about Bapaume, the famous "ridge" of the old Somme days, then a new section of the front will be set in motion, and there will be no chance of a German halt—even a temporary pause—west of the old Hindenburg line.

How Foch Handled Boehm.

To take another illustration: After Boehm had broken the French line north of the Aisne in May, and began his push for the Marne, Foch did not attempt at once to throw reserves in front of the Germans. On the contrary, he put them on the sides of the wedge the German was driving, and by pressure gradually narrowed the German operative front until, by the time it had reached the Marne, it became so narrow that further progress was impossible, owing to Allied crossfire, and the Germans, after a brief effort to widen the wedge by attacking between Soissons and Chateau Thierry, paused to prepare for a later offensive.

RETURNED MEN THINK THEY SHOULD BE FREE OF THEATRE WAR TAX

Get Little Satisfaction From Writing to Secretary of Treasury.

The alleged discrimination against returned men in the question of paying the war tax when entering theatres has been called to the attention of J. T. White, solicitor to the treasury, by R. R. Whitehead, a returned man. Soldiers in khaki only are exempt from paying the war tax on theatre tickets under the present regulations. All returned men who have been discharged and are in civilian clothes are compelled to pay the extra tax.

Replying to the letter of Mr. Whitehead, Mr. White says this is a matter for the Legislature to take up. He also intimates that while the men in khaki are exempted it is only temporary, whereas if the returned men were to be included it would be a permanent arrangement.

The returned men are not at all pleased with the reply. They think they are entitled to as much consideration as the men who have not yet gone over, and some of whom will never go overseas. That the question will not be allowed to drop, the veterans intimate, but what action will be taken has not been definitely stated.

WILL LONDONERS TAKE UP COMPANY FARMING PROJECT?

The forthcoming issue of the Ontario Public Service Bulletin contains a report on company farming projects under successful operation in various cities throughout Ontario. The report states that these cities have been very successful with this undertaking. All companies are planning to increase their quantity of land for the coming year and even greater success is being planned.

Is it not possible for groups of people in this city to undertake some form of company farming, the bulletin asks.

Reports received from all parts of the province show that the appeals for an increased food production have met with a splendid response this year. Besides better and larger and more backyard gardens, there has been a great increase in community gardening. More groups of people in offices, stores, banks, clubs, factories, lodges, schools, colleges, churches, Sunday schools have co-operated this year than last. Much is being done, too, in pork, poultry and rabbit production.

It is to be hoped it may be continued, increased and improved. Such work yields large returns in the spirit of team play, as well as in needed food-stuffs.

Letters are being distributed by the organization of resources committee to all its branches and to the mayors of different towns and cities, the reeves of villages and others, and all are being asked to help with this scheme. These letters are also being received in this city, and it is reported that the authorities may soon take action toward the starting of one or more of these companies locally. If this scheme is started it is hoped that the citizens will take an active part in the good work and do all in their power to make the scheme successful.

ALERT MOTORMAN AVOIDS ACCIDENT

Turning to the left to pass a standing Oxford street car at the corner of Richmond and Oxford streets Saturday evening, a lady cyclist, who was wheeling south, would have been seriously injured and possibly killed but for the prompt action of Motorman Charles Tuke of a northbound North Belt car, who reversed his car and stopped it as the tender struck the front wheel of the bicycle.

The Oxford car started as the cyclist had nearly passed it. The North Belt was too close to permit her to cross to the east side of the street or to slow up to let the Oxford pass. Jumping off the wheel, she was directly in the path of the northbound car. Eyewitnesses of the near-fatality expressed high opinions of the motorman for the prompt manner in which he brought the car to a stop. The extreme foolishness of attempting to pass a car going in the same direction by turning to the left was also commented upon by the passengers of the cars.

MILITARY NOTES

APPOINTED TO W. O. R.

Lieut. Francis N. Murphy, M. C., late 1st Battalion, C. E. F., has been appointed a lieutenant in the Western Ontario Regiment, according to today's district orders.

ERRORS IN AGE.

The following instructions have been received from Ottawa at military headquarters here regarding alleged errors in age stated in claims for exemption:

"The age stated in any claim for exemption made by or on behalf of any man or in any other document signed by the man shall be conclusive evidence as against him of his age and year of birth."

2. It is pointed out that the order-in-council refers to men coming within Class I. as originally defined in the military service act, 1917. Accordingly, where proof is adduced that the man concerned was not, on the 13th of October, 1917, 20 years of age, the aforementioned order-in-council does not apply, and he should be struck off the strength as erroneously ordered to report, the registrar being informed of the action taken and the reason therefor.

Proof of age by the production of an official certificate should ordinarily be insisted upon, but where it appears that an official certificate cannot be obtained, officers commanding should accept other evidence, such, as, e. g., an entry in a family Bible or statutory declaration by the father or mother. Evidence of this kind may also be accepted if the officer commanding is convinced of its correctness.

3. Where, in the case of a man coming within Class I., as called out by the proclamation of the 13th of October, 1917, different ages have been given on two or more documents filed with the registrar before the date of order-in-council April 20, 1918, the case should be dealt with by the registrar. Accordingly, if any such case is brought up after the man has reported for duty, the matter will be referred to the registrar and will be dealt with as directed by him.

COURT OF INQUIRY.

A court of inquiry, with Capt. E. COL. C. E. H. FISHER COMPLETES FIFTY YEARS IN SERVICE

Congratulations have been showered upon Col. C. E. H. Fisher upon the completion of his fiftieth year with the postoffice department. Col. Fisher is postoffice inspector of the London district, having creditably filled the position since 1881.

His first Government situation was held in Sarnia, where he worked with his father, the late Dr. Fisher. Several other important offices were filled before he accepted the position in this city. His many friends from Toronto and other cities in unison with the hosts in this city are expressing the wish that Col. Fisher may continue to enjoy his usual good health for many years yet.

Three of his sons are overseas, all of them having seen duty in France. Major Fred Fisher and Capt. Rivington Fisher are still in France. Major S. M. Fisher, after serving more than three years at the front, is now stationed at the Ontario military hospital in England.

TWO WOMEN CASUALTIES AT PORT

PORT STANLEY, Aug. 11.—Two rather serious accidents occurred here Saturday afternoon. Mrs. M. Russell of London while swimming went down, but was pulled out in an unconscious condition, and taken away on a stretcher. She regained consciousness later.

Mrs. T. Hudson, 585 Queen's avenue, London, fell while racing and sustained a slight concussion of the brain, it is thought.

Quite a large number of men are being examined from various parts of this district, and a considerable percentage of these men have been raised to class A.

Recently this district had its first rain for six weeks, and was very much appreciated.

Harvesting of wheat, barley and oats is now quite general, with prospects good both as to quality and quantity.

PASS JUNIOR MATRIC.

The following list contains the names under counties of the candidates who were successful in whole or in part of the pass junior matriculation. Middle school Normal entrance candidates who also were candidates for matriculation have been considered in the results.

In group 1, under counties, are given the names of those candidates who have obtained complete matriculation by passing on the twelve required examination papers, which are as follows: English literature, English composition, British and Canadian history, ancient history, algebra, geometry, Latin authors, Latin composition, together with the four papers in any two of the following subjects: Experimental science (physics and chemistry), French (authors and composition), German (authors and composition), Greek (authors and composition).

In group II., under counties, are given the names of those candidates who have passed on at least nine of the papers required for complete matriculation, and have obtained the minimum required on the whole examination. They have, therefore, failed in not more than three papers. These papers are indicated in brackets, after the candidates names. Full particulars will be shown on their certificates. In order to complete their matriculation they must pass on all the papers indicated, at one examination, the standard for pass being forty per cent of the marks assigned to each paper.

In group III., under counties, are given the names of those candidates who have failed to obtain the minimum required on the whole examination, but who have obtained forty per cent on each of at least eight papers with an average of sixty per cent on the same. Such candidates have been awarded partial matriculation, and in order to complete their matriculation must obtain at one examination 40 per cent on each of the remaining papers, with an average of 60 per cent on the same. The papers required for complete art matriculation are indicated in brackets after the candidates' names. Candidates for matriculation into the faculty of applied science who have obtained pass standing on at least eight papers, with an average of 60 per cent on the same, are reported in this group. The honor standing of such candidates in mathematics will be found in the honor matriculation results.

The results of the examination in the cases of those candidates writing on fewer than eight papers are not reported in the lists given below. All such candidates must wait for the receipt of their statements of marks in order to ascertain the result of their examination.

Certificates and statements of the marks obtained by unsuccessful candidates are in course of preparation and will be mailed in due course to the principals. In the case of those candidates, who wrote at the University of Toronto, their statements will be sent to the registrar of that institution. Candidates will apply to those officials for their reports in detail.

All candidates who have failed in the June matriculation examination, in whole or in part, are eligible to become candidates at the supplemental matriculation examination, beginning on Monday, September 9. All such are informed that application forms, timetables and full information may be obtained from the secretary, University Matriculation Board, Parliament Buildings, and that applications are due by September 1.

In addition to those listed below, many candidates are qualifying for certificates under the farm employment regulation. All such passed local examinations at Easter and are now employed on farms. On the submission to the secretary of the matriculation board of satisfactory evidence of three months' continuous work on farms, the certificates to which they are entitled will be issued.

BARN DESTROYED IN LONDON TOWNSHIP

During the electrical storm last evening the barn and two sheds of Eugene Patrick, lot 19, concession 12, London Township, were hit by lightning and destroyed by fire.

Over 40 tons of hay were destroyed. By hard work 500 bushels of wheat which had just been threshed were saved. About 75 people responded to the call for help, and assisted in saving the wheat.

RAIN CUTS PROCEEDS OF BAND CONCERT

Thirty-nine accident cases were attended by No. 4 Nursing Division St. John Ambulance Association at Port Stanley during the past week.

Seven of these were ambulance cases and an equal number were brought to the nursing tent on stretchers. Two persons were taken from the swimming areas of Port Stanley and resuscitated with the aid of a pulmotor. One of these was a returned soldier's wife, who might have drowned but for the timely aid given her by a friend.

Owing to the rain last night the proceeds from the band concert held at Victoria Park by No. 4 Nursing Division were barely sufficient to clear expenses.

The Man With the Hoe

Hoeing is a severe strain on the back. It calls into play muscles not used much in lifting or in other kinds of farm work.

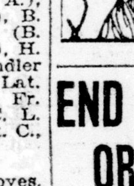

If you have a weak back you cannot stand much hoeing unless you use Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills to set the kidneys right and remove the cause of weakness and lameness of the back. Just try one pill a dose at bedtime and see how much better you will feel.

Lemon Juice For Freckles

Girls! Make beauty lotion at home for a few cents. Try it!

Squeeze the juice of two lemons into a bottle containing three ounces of orchard white, shake well, and you have a quarter pint of the best freckle and tan lotion, and complexion beautifier, at very, very small cost.

Your grocer has the lemons and any drug store or toilet counter will supply three ounces of orchard white for a few cents. Massage this sweetly fragrant lotion into the face, neck, arms and hands each day and see how freckles and blemishes disappear and how clear, soft and white the skin becomes. Yes! It is harmless.

END INDIGESTION OR STOMACH PAIN IN FIVE MINUTES

"Pape's Diapepsin" makes sick, sour, gassy stomachs feel fine.

Time it! In five minutes your sour, acid stomach feels fine. No indigestion, heartburn, or belching of gas, or eructations of undigested food, no dizziness, bloating, foul breath or headache.

Pape's Diapepsin is noted for its speed in sweetening upset stomachs. It is the surest, quickest and most certain stomach antacid in the whole world, and besides, it is harmless.

Millions of men and women now eat their favorite foods without fear—they know Pape's Diapepsin will save them from such misery.

Please, for your sake, get a large fifty-cent case of Pape's Diapepsin from any drug store and put your stomach right. Don't keep on being miserable—life is too short—you are not here long, so make your stay agreeable. Eat what you like and enjoy it, without dread of acid fermentation in the stomach.

Pape's Diapepsin belongs in your home anyway. Should one of the family eat something which don't agree with them, or in case of an attack of indigestion, dyspepsia, gastritis or stomach derangement due to fermentation and acidity, at daytime or during the night, it is handy to give the quickest, surest relief known.

CHILD GETS SICK, CROSS, FEVERISH IF CONSTIPATED

Look at tongue! Then give fruit laxative for stomach, liver, bowels.

"California Syrup of Figs" can't harm children and they love it.

A laxative today saves a sick child tomorrow. Children simply will not take the time from play to empty their bowels, which become clogged up with waste, liver gets sluggish; stomach sours.

Look at the tongue, mother! If coated, or your child is listless, cross, feverish, breath bad, restless, doesn't eat heartily, full of cold or has sore throat or any other children's ailment, give a teaspoonful of "California Syrup of Figs," then don't worry, because it is perfectly harmless, and in a few hours all this constipation poison, sour bile and fermenting waste will gently move out of the bowels, and you have a well, playful child again. A thorough "inside cleansing" is ofttimes all that is necessary. It should be the first treatment given in any sickness.

Beware of counterfeit fig syrups. Ask your druggist for a bottle of "California Syrup of Figs," which has full directions for babies, children of all ages and for grown-ups plainly printed on the bottle. Look carefully and see that it is made by the "California Fig Syrup Company."
