Hon. George P. Graham, Minister of Defense, Gives Brief Address.

HUNDREDS BOW HEADS

Rev. Dr. William Beattie Dedicates Monument in Mt. Pleasant Cemetery.

"To the glory of God and the memory of those who fell, I solemnly dedicate this monument."

With a background of autumn trees, their crimson and gold glowing dully against the soft grey October sky, Col. the Rev. Dr. William Beattie dedicated the Cross of Sacrifice erected by the War Graves Commission, in memory of Canada's dead, following its unveiling in Mount Pleasant Cemetery, Sunday afternoon by Hon. George P. Graham, minister of militia and defense.

Hundreds stood in mindful reverence as the flags fell away and the tall cross, beautifully, simply constructed of grey marble, stood disclosed.

Hung over with an atmosphere of impressive solemnity, they listened as the three volleys, fired by men of the Royal Canadian Regiment rang sharply against the sky and the bugles of Western Ontario Regiment Band followed with the farewell message of the "Last Post."

"A few years ago," Mr. Graham said commencing his brief address which preceded the unveiling, "no credence would have been given the thought that such a ceremony as this would be taking place, as an echo of such a war as the last."

P. O. EMPLOYEES ARE PROMOTED

T. H. Murray Appointed To Succeed G. M. Harris As Inspector.

Vacancies in Two Departments Likely To Be Filled Soon.

On account of the retirement of Postoffice Inspector G. M. Harris, October 1, the London Postoffice District was left without the services of even one inspector. The duties of the local office require two inspectors, but for the past year or so only one inspector has officiated. Feeling that the efficiency of the office would be impaired if appointments were not made right away, A. D. McLean, supervisor of postal services for this district announced four promotions to be effective from October 15.

They are:

T. H. Murray from principal clerk of the office service section to post-office inspector.

A. S. Thompson from senior clerk of inquiry section to principal clerk of office service section.

Miss A. R. Bartram from senior clerk-stenographer to senior postal clerk.

Miss H. K. Trebilcock from clerk-stenographer to senior clerk-stenographer.

Monkey Dances Out of Fire Hall Life Before Men Given Chance To Name Him

The Kaiser's Memoirs

By WILHELM VON HOHENZOLLERN,
(Former Emperor of Germany)

WHEN I visited the monastery of Monte Casino I became acquainted, in the person of Arch-Bishop Monsignor Krug, with a man of extraordinary mental gifts and comprehensive culture, who had traveled a great deal about the world. He could express himself with equal fluency in Italian, English and French and his mother tongue, German. In his address to King Victor Emmanuel of Italy and me, he pointed out that nearly all the German emperors, as well as the Lombard kings before them, had paid visits to Monte Casino. He presented me with a magnificent collection of copies of documents of the time of the Emperor Frederick II., taken from the library of the order, and I reciprocated by presenting him with the works of Frederick the Great.

Agriculture flourishes in the environs of the monasteries maintained by the Benedictine Order, being carried on by the lay brothers with all the latest improvements, to the benefit of the backward peasantry of the region; and in the country and town communities of the order church singing and organ playing are zealously cultivated by the monks, who have attained a high degree of artistic skill. The art of the goldsmith also flourishes among the monks, likewise art embroidery among the Benedictine nuns.

I caused to be reproduced in its full size the Labarum (standard) of the Emperor Constantine the Great, designed in accordance with the researches made by Mr. Wilpolt; one copy I presented to the pope, another to my palace chapel at Berlin. The latter was stolen from the chapel by the mob during the days of the revolution. The metal work was done entirely by monks, the embroidery by nuns of the order, both excellently. One of the places inhabited by nuns of this order is the convent of Saint Hildegard, above Rudeshelm, which I visited in 1917.

My letter to Admiral Hollmann was due to the excitement aroused by a lecture entitled "Babel and Bible," delivered by Professor Delitzsch before the German Orient Society, of which Admiral Hollmann was one of the board of managers.

Scholarship and Religion.

The first part of the letter, which deals primarily with Professor Delitzsch's statements, has been omitted from the reproduction of the letter printed below:

Feb. 15, 1920.

My Dear Hollmann:

I should now like to return once again to my own standpoint regarding the doctrine or view of revelation, as I have often set it forth to you, my dear Hollmann, and other gentlemen. I distinguish between two different kinds of revelation: a progressive, to a certain extent historical revelation, and a purely religious one, paving the way to the future coming of the Messiah.

Of the first, this is to be said: There is not the smallest doubt in my mind that God constantly reveals himself through the human race created by him. He has "breathed his breath into mankind," or, in other words given it a piece of himself, a soul. He follows the development of the human race with a father's love and interest; for the purpose of leading it forward and benefiting it, he "reveals" himself in some great savant or priest or king, whether among the heathens, Jews or Christians.

Hammurabi was one of these, likewise Moses, Abraham, Homer, Charlemagne, Luther, Shakespeare, Goethe, Kant, Emperor William the Great. These men were selected by him and made worthy of his grace; of achieving for their people, both in the spiritual and the physical domain, splendid and imperishable things, in accordance with his will. How often did my grandfather clearly emphasize that he was but an instrument in the hand of the Lord.

The works of great minds are gifts of God to the peoples of the earth, in order that they may improve themselves on these models and grope forward, by means of them, through the confusion of that which is still unexplored here below. God has certainly revealed himself in different ways to different peoples, according to their standing and degree of culture, and he is still doing it now. For, just as we are overcome most by the greatness and majesty of the splendor of creation when we contemplate it, and are amazed at the greatness of God as revealed therein, so also may we, in contemplating whatever is great or splendid in the works of a man or a people, recognize therein with gratitude the splendor of the revelation of God. He works directly upon us and among us! The second kind of revelation, the more religious kind, is that which leads to the coming of the Lord. It is introduced from Abraham onward, slowly but with foresight, all-wise and all-knowing; for without it mankind would have been doomed.

And now begins the most astounding influence, the revelation of God.

PRaises PERTH DAIRY CATTLE

R. S. Stevenson, Pioneer Breeder, Completes Inspection of Herds in County.

Make Preparations For Sale of Animals in Stratford December 14.

Special to London Advertiser.
STRATFORD, Oct. 14.—That Perth dairy cattle are generally of a very high grade was the statement to M. C. McPhail, B.S.A., Perth County agricultural representative, by Mr. R. S. Stevenson, one of the pioneer breeders of Holstein cattle in Canada, who completed an inspection of cattle yesterday in preparation for the cattle sale on December 14 next in this city. Thirty-nine dairy cattle were passed by Mr. Stevenson for the cattle sale and 30 bulls for the better bull campaign.

About 45 Stratford men will benefit by the decision of the new management of the Grand Trunk to restore the seniority rights of employees who went out on strike in 1910, and who lost all of their privileges when they returned to work at that time.

The large amount of cider being manufactured by Perth County farmers was commented upon by a local farmer this morning. "Apples are piled up in great heaps on a great many farms in this vicinity awaiting to be made into cider," he said. This farmer also remarked that while potatoes were selling at $1 a bag on the local market, there is every likelihood of a substantial advance in the near future.

The potatoes are rotting owing to a blight, he stated. Eggs are also getting scarcer, and will probably rise in price soon. Within the last three weeks at the local market the price of this commodity has already risen from a minimum of 42 cents a dozen to a minimum today of 50 cents, a dozen with a maximum of 55 cents.

The marriage took place here today of Edith Culliton to Joseph Grimm of Detroit. Miss Agnes A. Burrows was also married to G. F. Masters.

Mr. and Mrs. T. B. McCarthy, sr., Romeo Villa, celebrated the 50th anniversary of their marriage on Sunday. They were married at Stratford on October 16, 1872, at the residence of the late J. A. McCarthy, sr., the Old Homestead. The then rector of the present St. James' Anglican Church, Rev. Canon E. Patterson, officiated at the ceremony. Mr. J. A. McCarthy, sr., was one of the earliest settlers in Perth County, coming here at the same time as when the old Canada Survey Company survey was being made.

At the time, according to legends, the accidental breaking of a wagon axle detained the settlers, who were bound for Godrich at this point, and the picturesque and lovely location of what is now the City of Stratford so appealed to these early pioneers that they decided to locate here.

A committee was appointed to look into the matter and report at a meeting to be held next week, when it will be decided whether the reunion will be held next summer or later.

CANADA PIVOT OF BRITISH EMPIRE

Rev. J. Pugsley Stresses Opportunities of Country in Address To Teachers.

Special to London Advertiser.
STRATHROY, Oct. 15.—The Friday morning session of the West Middlesex Institute was opened by Rev. J. Pugsley, rector of Strathroy Anglican Church, who gave a brief address on the "Importance of the Teacher's Work in Moulding Character."

Laud's Canada's Resources.

In traveling through Canada from coast to coast Mr. Pugsley concluded that it is one of the most wonderful countries in the world, rich in natural resources, and should be the pivot of the British Empire. In building and molding the character of its boys and girls the teachers are making the future Canadian citizen-ship. If they perform their duties faithfully the country will become more glorious and great.

All teachers have discouragements in their experience, and the result of their work is often not visible to them, but as they continue to cast the bread upon the waters it will return to them.

In closing he urged the teachers to carry on and not become discouraged.

Elect Officers.

The reports of the various committees were received, and the election of officers resulted as follows: President, S. F. Coon; vice-president, Mrs. E. Jury; secretary-treasurer, L. W. Cuddy; executive committee, Misses McInroy, Shields, Smith; Strathcona committee, Misses Stephenson, Grant and Mr. Boon.

A letter from the secretary of the Ontario Educational Association was received, in which the teachers were requested to contribute $1 each to the relief fund of Northern Ontario. A vote of the meeting was taken, and it was decided to contribute in this way to the fund.

The committee appointed to discuss the public school history course submitted a resolution: "that the board of education be asked to notify the teachers what outline to follow, as the West Middlesex Association consider the present course as outlined in the text book too long and too much involved. Also, they recommend that the majority of the questions on the entrance history examination paper be optional." This was adopted by the meeting and a copy will be sent to the department.

Stresses Household Science.

Miss A. B. Neville of London Normal School was the chief speaker of the Friday sessions. Her subject at the morning meeting was, "Food and Work in Ungraded Schools." "The teaching of household science in the rural schools," said Miss Neville, "is most important, for the majority of girls in the rural schools of Ontario do not pass entrance, and hence return to their homes to help in the home-making. Many people make the plea that the mother can teach them all that, but the average mother does not know the latest and most approved methods in sewing, cooking and household management. If business offices were run in the slipshod manner that many homes are, there would soon be failures. Economy may also be taught in connection with the subject. The department of education now requires that at least one hot dish a day be served in the rural school from November 1 to March 31. This might be cocoa, soup, banana, etc. and there need be no disparaging of the school in order to do this. Women in the home are required to do the ordinary work and still see that the pot doesn't boil over. So in attending to the school work and watching the dinner, the child is receiving a training in attending to many things at once. The lunch is more easily digested when warm, and the process of digestion is over by the time the children return to work in the afternoon. Hence they attack their duties with renewed vigor. They also learn table manners, unselfishness, sanitary methods, dainty methods of packing lunches and good values.

"A health campaign could be conducted in which children are weighed and the height taken at regular times."

Afternoon Session.

In the afternoon session Miss Neville gave a talk on "Relating Household Science With Other Subjects." Each subject should be treated as a part of the whole education which prepares the child for living. In art, science, geography, history, etc., there are many problems may be given which will show the profits of doing family washing at home, home cooking, home dressmaking, millinery, etc. In geography, when studying the products of various countries, lessons on the food value of some and proper preparation of the article for the table might be taken.

The appreciation of excellence in manufactured products can be developed so that tawdry clothing, decorations in the home, and furniture will not appeal to the home makers of the future. There is an excellent opportunity of training the mind through the hand. Originality and individuality are worth while giving much attention to, and in the teaching of all the subjects some useful part of household science may be related.

Winter Course.

Miss Neville announced the winter course which will be given in London Normal School, and Inspector Johnson strongly urged the teachers to avail themselves of all special courses possible, as it makes them more efficient in the profession.

The subject of oral composition was well outlined by the following teachers, Miss I. Shaw, Miss M. Brown and Miss E. Colwell.

Agricultural Instruction.

Practical methods in teaching agriculture were given by Misses Brodie, Pierce and Barrett. The methods carried on in the schools of these teachers showed that the subject is being thoroughly taught, and farm boys and girls are given a live interest in the farm and home. At the recent rural school fairs the pupils of these particular teachers made creditable exhibits.

In closing Inspector Johnson stated that there were over 40 new teachers in West Middlesex, but splendid work is being done in the different schools that he has visited.

The FLAMING JEWEL

by ROBERT W CHAMBERS

BEGIN HERE TODAY.

A great three-cornered duel was being fought in the North Woods for the possession of the priceless gem, the Flaming Jewel. It had first been stolen from the royal casket of the COUNTESS OF ESTHONIA by the international thief, QUINTANA. In Paris, Mike Clinch had stolen the jewel from Quintana and carried it back to his disreputable hotel at Star Pond, where he hoarded it for the education of his beautiful stepdaughter, EVE STRAYER. Then there arrived JAMES DARRAGH, under the name of HAL SMITH, who had sworn to restore the jewel to the now beggarly countess. Quintana and his gang also arrive to regain the stolen loot. Quintana captures Eve, who is hiding the jewel packet, but she escapes after cruel treatment. She is brought back semi-conscious to Clinch's by STATE TROOPER STORMONT. On entering the camp she drops the packet and it is taken by JAKE KLOON and EARL LEVERETT, two disreputable hangers-on. Clinch swears to wipe out Quintana's gang, and with them, Kloon and Leverett.

Go On With the Story.

CHAPTER II

ON the edge of Owl Marsh Clinch halted in the trail, and, as his men came up, he counted them with a cold eye.

"Here's the runaway and this here hazel bush is my station," he said. "You fellows do the barkin'. You, Sid Hone, and you, Corny, start drivin' from the west, Harve, you yell 'em from the north by Lynx Brook. Jim and Byron, you get twenty minutes to go 'round to the eastward and strike by the Slide. And you, Hal Smith,"—he looked around—"where be you, Hal?"

Smith came up from the bog's edge. "Send 'em out," he said in a low voice. "I've got Jake's tracks in the bog."

Clinch motioned his beaters to their duty. "Twenty minutes," he reminded Hone, Chase and Blommers, "before you start drivin'." And to the Hastings boys: "If you shoot, aim low for their bellies. Don't leave no blood around. Scrape it up. We bury what we get."

He and Smith stood looking after the five slouching figures moving away toward their blind trails. When all had disappeared:

"Show 'me Jake's mark," he said calmly.

Smith led him to the edge of the bog, knelt down, drew aside a branch of witch-hopple. A man's footprint was plainly visible on the mud.

"That's Jake," said Clinch slowly. "I know them half-soled boots of his'n." He lifted another branch. "There's another man's track!"

"The other is probably Leverett's."

"Likely. He's got thin feet."

"I think I'd better go after them," said Smith, reflectively.

"They'll plug you, you poor jack-ass—two o' them like that, and one a-settin' up to watch out. Be you tired o' bed an' board?"

Smith smiled: "Don't you worry, Mike."

As he shouldered his rifle and started into the marsh, Clinch dropped a heavy hand on his shoulder; but the young man shook it off.

"Shut up," he said sharply. "You've a private war on your hands. So have I. I'll take care of my own."

As he started again across the marsh, Clinch called out in a guarded voice: "Take good care of that packet if you catch them rats. It belongs to Eve."

"I'll take such good care of it," replied Smith, "that its proper owner need not worry."

CHAPTER III

THE "proper owner" of the packet was, at that moment, on the Atlantic Ocean, traveling toward the United States.

Four other pretended owners of the Grand Duchess Theodorica's jewels, totally unconscious of anything impending which might impair their several titles to the gems, were now gathered together in a wilder-

AFTER Jack had upset the man who was guarding the road, he raced his horse as fast as he could go. Faithful Flip was left far behind.

ON to the treasure was now Jack's motto. He made up his mind not to stop again if he could help it. By the short cut he was taking he had gained many miles.

JACK was heading south regardless of what obstacles blocked his path. When he came to stone fence he tried to make Lightning hurdle it.

THE animal tried, but his feet caught on the top of the wall. Horse and rider fell in a crash and were enveloped in a cloud of dust.

BAKED APPLES

PROBABLY no fruit is enjoyed more universally than the apple when baked. The children enjoy it and it can be taken for the school lunch. In daily lunch places baked apples and cream are in great demand.

Select sound, medium-sized apples. Wash and core. The skin may be removed or left on.

When skin is allowed to remain cut through the skin an inch or two from the stem around the apple. This allows the apple to expand in cooking and it is less likely to lose its shape.

Place apples in a baking pan. Add one tablespoon sugar and one teaspoon butter to each apple.

Pour in enough water to cover pan after the apples have cooked for 10 minutes. Baste often with the syrup formed by cooking.

Radio Radiations

FIRST TO SPEAK ACROSS OCEAN.

Sir Thomas Lipton, famous Scot sportsman, has the honor of being the first man to send his voice across the Atlantic by radio. From station WOR of the L. Bamberger & Co. store at Newark, N. J., his message was heard at Selfridge's department store in London. All Sir Thomas did to accomplish this historic event was to talk into the small instrument shown. Radio did the rest.

If there is any mystery connected with radio, it is not in radio itself. The mystery lies in the means by which radio is made possible.

That, say radio engineers, comes from what are popularly known as waves.

Waves—ocean waves, radio waves, sound waves, and waves of many other varieties—have so far puzzled even the greatest scientists. Complete and satisfactory explanation of their why and wherefore is still forthcoming.

"What makes a flag flutter in the breeze?" asks Prof. J. H. Morecroft of Columbia University, an eminent wireless engineer.

Waves, is the popular reply. Prof. Morecroft says they are oscillations which have yet to be explained.

NATURE'S WAY.

"It seems that nature would rather do things in an oscillatory fashion than in a straightforward fashion," he says, and he gives such examples of oscillations as squeaking automobile brakes, the watch balance-wheel, notes from a violin string and steam whistles.

Each of these oscillate or are the results of oscillations. That is, they produce or are produced by waves.

An even breeze may be blowing, but a flag will flutter in it. That is due to waves in the breeze.

A note from a violin string may be fine and smooth, but it is the result of waves from, or oscillations of, the string. "Middle C," Prof. Morecroft cites, "is really caused by a compression and rarefaction wave in the air which sends energy past our ears in the form of pulses at the regular rate of 256 a second."

"Will a toy balloon, towed behind an automobile, proceed uniformly through the air, or will it vibrate sideways, even though the towing string is exerting uniform pull?"

Thus practically every action within the knowledge of man can be attributed to oscillations or waves. We hear by waves of sound. We see

Hats Come and Go—Turbans Stay

LARGE hats come in and out of style, but the turban is unconcerned by it all. It's much smarter than the big hat, and it knows it. Here is an example of what may be accomplished with cre ribbon if one has a knack for millinery. It is softly draped about the face, and finished at the side with wide loops. This side treatment is new, and you can see for yourself how becoming it is.

ness within a few miles of one another.

Jose Quintana lay somewhere in the forests with his gang, fiercely planning the recovery of the treasure of which Clinch had once robbed him. Clinch squatted on his runaway, watching the mountain bank with murderous eyes. It was no longer the Flaming Jewel which mattered. His master passion ruled him now. Those who had offered violence to Eve must be reckoned with first of all. The hand that struck Eve Strayer had offered mortal insult to Mike Clinch.

As for the third pretender to the Flaming Jewel, Jake Kloon, he was now traveling in a fox's circle toward Drowned Valley—that shaggy wilderness of slime and tamarack and deathless bog which touches the northwest base of Star Peak. He was not hurrying, having no thought of pursuit. Behind him plodded Leverett, the trap thief, very, very busy with his own ideas.

To Leverett's repeated requests that Kloon halt and open the packet to see what it contained, Kloon gruffly refused.

"What do we care what's in it?" he said. "We get ten thousand apiece over our rifles for it from them guys. Ain't it a good enough job for you?"

"Maybe we make more if we take what's inside it for ourselves," argued Leverett. "Let's take a peek, anyway."

They plodded on, arguing, toward their rendezvous with Quintana's outpost on the edge of Drowned Valley.

The fourth pretender to the pearls, rubies, and great gem called the Flaming Jewel, stolen from the young Grand Duchess Theodorica of Esthonia by Jose Quintana, was an unconscious pretender, entirely innocent of the role assigned her by Clinch.

For Eve Strayer has never heard where the packet came from or what it contained. All she knew was that her stepfather had told her that it belonged to her. And the knowledge left her incurious.

CHAPTER IV

EVE slept the sleep of mental and physical exhaustion. Reaction from fear brings a mind more profound than that which follows physical overstrain. But the healthy mind, like the healthy body, disposes very thoroughly of toxics which arise from terror and exhaustion.

The girl slept profoundly, calmly. Her bruised young mind and body were neither restless nor fever. Sleep swept her with its clean, sweet tide, cleansing the superb youth and health of her with its most wonderful balm in the Divine pharmacy.

She awoke late in the afternoon. She opened her flower-blue eyes, and saw State Trooper Stormont sitting by the window, and gazing out.

Perhaps Eve's confused senses mistook the young man for a vision; for she lay very still, nor stirred even her little finger.

After a while Stormont glanced around at her. A warm, delicate color stained her skin slowly, evenly, from throat to hair.

"How do you feel?" he asked, awkwardly.

"Where is dad?" she managed to inquire in a steady voice.

"He won't be back till late. He new styles come out of their boxes. Dark blue Polart (twill frocks are showing trimmings of blue and red Paisley, as well as whole blouses of this same material.

Seal brown is the popular color for the popular Canton crepe frocks, and for street wear these are usually quite plain—some of the smartest show all-over patterns of chenille dots.

Suits are already making a showing of tailored smartness. They are tan, and gray, and navy—mostly navy.

All black is still preferred by older women—brown and navy by those more interested in style changes.
