Joe Joins "B" Company

Went to "San Thomas" as Mascott of Captain Black's Men and Chats of His Expressions on the Centennial Military Celebration

Joe was very hoarse. His words came out with a husky wheeze which would have been pathetic, but for the healthy sun-burned face and the bright shining eyes which fairly beamed with youthful enjoyment. On either lapel of his coat was pinned a gorgeously colored souvenir badge of the St. Thomas centenial celebration and a brass "24" was safetypinned with artistic abandon on his cap. To complete his regalia Joe carried a "swagger stick" embellished with knots of baby nibbon.

The flashing brilliancy of Hugo's versification blinded many spectators for a brief season and prevented most of them from seeing what was made plain at last by an analysis of the plays in prose, Mary Tudor, for examplc. When no gorgeously embroidered garment draped the meager skeleton, it was not difficult to discover that Victor Hugo was not a great dramatic poet "of the race and lineage of Shake-speare." A great poet he was beyond all question, perhaps the greatest poet of the century, but his gift was lyric and not dramatic. He was a lyrist of incomparable vigor, variety and sono-rity, and as a lyric he had often an almost epic amplitude of vision. As a dramatist his outlook was narrow and petty. He could not conceive boldly a lofty theme, treating it with the unfailing simplicity of the masters. His subjects were lacking in nobility, in dignity, in stateliness. His plots were violent and extravagant, and his characters were as forced as his situations. The poetry to be found in his plays is external rather than internal. It is almost an afterthought. Under the lyrical drapery which is so deceptive at first there is no more than a melodrama.—Brander Matthews in Atlan-

SATURDAY, MAY 30.

NOW, CHATHAM.

Some two hundred soldiers and about one hundred private citizens from Chatham attended the centenial celebration at St. Thomas this week.

What they saw there, the gorgeous y decorated and illuminated city, the myriad visitors—some 15,000 in all, it is estimated—the air of prosperity and success, the magnificent adverfisement to the young city, all impressed them.

"What a great thing it would be for Chatham."

Just think of the thousands of dollars left in that town." "It has advertised St. Thomas all-

THE PAVEMENT PROBLEM.

The good people of King street west are having a truly strenuous time over the selection of their new pavement. And it is to be hoped that, after all their agitation and anxiety, they will not have an inferior article masted upon them.

The Planet would suggest a visit to Detroit to the residents who so strongly favor sheet asphalt paving. So many invendoes have been distributed regarding the disinterestedmess-or otherwise-of the active supporters of the different pavements suggested, that we believe it best to targe every Doubting Thomas to go and see for himself the results from pavements laid in other cities.

A representative of The Planet visited Detroit this week and for himself examined the sheet asphalt paving laid there. It doesn't require an expert to reach results upon what

The sheet asphalt is being patched in almost every part of the city where it has been utilized, even where the patching is not going on, the pavement is cracked and uneven. It is also said that often watering is prohibited in certain portions on the sheet asphalt owing to the dangers of expansion and contraction.

But we believe every ratepayer interested should satisfy himself as to these facts. Why not make a tour of personal inspection if you are in doubt? The cost would be infinite small compared with the inconvenience, annoyance and expense of making the discovery after the pavement avas laid.

THE GIRLS OF ST. THOMAS.

Hats off to the charming St. Thomas girl!

And, incidentally, profuse and elaborate apologies to the gallant and discerning editor of the St. Thomas Times.

It is always sad to look back upon the mistakes of life-errors in judgment; haste and indiscretion in forming opinion. Yet when the editor of this great home journal meditates mpon the wordy warfare waged with

And let the St. Thomas maid come forth and take her place with her lovely Maple City sisters in the front rank of the nature's greatest artistic and soulful triumph our Canadian girls.

To the Clerical Gentlemen of Chat am-The time for the advent of short summer Sunday sermons is at hand Much can be said in few words.

The Woodstock Express, indepen dent, says: "Mr. Johnston accused Mr Blake of addressing his remarks to the people rather than to the court. But the people in this instance constitute the court of final appeal. If Mr. Blake did address his remarks to the people, rather than to the judges, he did, nothing very wrong. The judges heard the evidence, and are capable of putting their own construction on it; and after they have had their say, it will still remain for the people to give the final verdict."

The death in Paris of Paul Blouet (Max O'Rell) removes a familiar name from the papers and a familiar figure from the world of tight literature. His books and newspaper articles were widely read, because they were written in a style that suited them to the popular taste, and contained considerable evidence of real wit, some of it sharp and caustic but, for the most part, good natured and kindly. The book that made him famous was "John Bull and His Island," which was written after a brief residence in London, where he taught school and wrote for the newspapers. Others of his books that achieved some popularity were "Jonathan and His Continent, 'Jacques Bonhomme," "A Frenchman in America," and "Her Royal Highness Woman." It is not probable that many of his books will survive him long. Fresh from his pen they were readable, entertaining, perhaps in some measure instructive; but they were probably not intended to be permanent contributions to literature. Perhaps they served a good purpose in helping the people of different nationalities to see their oddities and their peculiarities as others saw them, and to see them presented in a manner that made it unpossible to take

Then this man, coniater for $9,000. Then this man, convicted of bribery and punished by a present of $8,000 odd, goes to Mr. Gamey to get Gamey to support the Ontario Government. In how many ways like that are "machine" men useful, and how numerously are they punished like Cap Sullivan?

"Some people have no head for business at all, at all," remarked the wise guy as he filled his pipe with the tobacco he had begged and borrowed a match. "Take the police of this city for instance. Here they were making good money for the city by charging sidewalk cyclists $2.00 a ride, and now they have gone and killed a thriving and money-making scheme by raising the rates. Some people don't knew when they are well off. You see the police thought that they had a monopoly of the sidewalk. They controlled the only sidewalks in the city and they imagined that the wheelmen had to ride on their sidewalks, so they just boosted up the tariff. But the wheelmen fooled the police. They were quite willing to pay $2.00 for the privilege, but when the rate was raised to $5.50 the bicyclists just quit riding on the sidewalk. The police had seen how the Standard Oil Trust, the Steel Trust and the other trusts succeeded, so they thought that they could pull off standard off frust, the steet frust and the other trusts succeeded, so they thought that they could pull off one, too. The wheelmen, however, found that they got no trust at the police courf, so they objected to a trust being worked off on them, and they just quit riding on the sidewalks. Now the authorities were just a little short sighted. They could have gone on charging $2.0a for riding on the sidewalks and their revenue would Prayer meeting will be held in the have gone on growing and they didn't need to spend any of the profits in advertising, either. The police have made a big mistake, and I am going to tell them so the first time I see them," concluded the wise guy, and he went home to eat the supper his wife had earned by taking in washing.

WILLINERY I

A woman will never throw an olu t aside or even rive it away as as she believes there is a chance of making it over. She is ashamed to send it to a millinery store—in fact, a num-ber of milliners discourage such a custom by charging prices quite out of proportion with the work done. In some of the untown residence districts in Brooklyn young women go from house to house restoring brilliancy to faded headgear at nominal prices. Some of them, with taste for millinery, have built up a regular custom trade and have all the work they want to do. In a few hours they will transform an old hat or bonnet into one that looks "as good as new." Girls will help along the family income in this way, where they can choose their customers and their time, when nothing would persuade them to work in a millinery store or go behind a counter.— New York Times.

SINGING GLASSES.

How to Make a Musical Instrumen With Tumblers and Water. There was once a man who studied the laws of nature to try to understand what they meant. People did not know. so much about nature as we do now and he was trying to teach himself by experiments. He tried things in various ways to see how they would behave under certain circumstances. Among other things he tried some wineglasses, tapping them with a stick to hear them ring. His wife thought it was a foolish waste of time to be playing with the wineglasses. It was not foolish if by his experiments he learned something new. One morning he came down early and left his wife asleep upstairs. Pretty soon she woke up suddenly and listened to very soft, sweet music. It seemed so fine and delicate she thought it must be the voices of angels singing somewhere. When she came down, she told him she had heard an angel singing. He smiled in a knowing way, for he knew what she had heard.

Get a couple of thin glass tumblers or goblets of the same size and a cream pitcher full of water. Place them on the table, with the two glasses on your right and the pitcher on the left. Now, with a wooden pencil held lightly be-tween the thumb and finger of the right hand gently tap the glasses on the side and near the top. They give out a ringing sound, but the two sounds are not alike. Pour the water in or out until the two sounds are exactly alike.

This was what the man of science was doing. He was tuning the glasses. You can now see that by adding water to the glasses we lower the pitch. The glass vibrates as we tap it, and these vibrations travel through the air to our ears, and we say we hear the sounds. A note is a continuous series of vibrations. The slower they move the lower the note. The water causes the glass to vibrate more slowly, and the more water the slower the vibrations, the lower the pitch. The bass strings in the plano are large, long and heavy: the high sounding strings are short, thin and light.

It is easy in this way to arrange eight glasses and to tune them one note apart and thus have an octave on which you can play a tune. To make complete octave it will be found best pick out glasses of different sizes

REV. DR. TALMAGE PREACHES EULOGISTIC SERMON

HISTORY OF THE U.S. NAVY.

Praise For the Heroic Deeds of America Bluejackets From Time of Captain Hull of the Constitution to Admiral Dewey of the Olympia-In the Good Time to Come. However, "Gallant Ships " Shall Pass No More Out to Entered according to Act of Parliament of Can-ada, in the year 1903, by William Baily, of To-rente, at the Dep't of Agriculture, Ottawa.

Chicago, May 24.-In view of the approaching celebration of Memorial day and the decoration of soldiers' graves Dr. Talmage recalled in his sermon this morning the services rendered to the nation by American sailors and pleaded that they, too, be remembered in the patriotic trib-ute. His text was Isa. xxxiii, 21, 'Neither shall gallant ship pass thereby:

"Neither shall gallant ship pass thereby."

The old Brooklyn navy yard used to have many interesting sights. There were its museum and its antiquated cannon mounted in the yards and its piles of empty shells. There were its famous dry dock and the were its famous dry dock and the great sheds under which lay the keels and the skeleton ribs of those massive frames that were laid and knit together toward the close of the civil war, but never finished. There were also its uniformed sailors and marines and its buildings, filled with food and obtained. and marines and its buildings, filled with food and clothing soon to be sent to the different naval stations of the world. There often lay the training ships and the great men-of-war just in from foreign ports. But to me the most interesting place of all in the Brooklyn navy yard, where I used to play as a boy, was "Rotten row." Alongside of its wharfs were tied some of the decaying vessels that had helped to make America's valor respected and admired around the world. These ships were too old to voyage the sea and too weak to defy the enemy's shells. They were also too sacred to be split up for kindling.

Isaiah has been walking in imagination along the "Rotten Row" of a millennial dawn. With prophetic millennial dawn. With prophetic vision, he has been looking ahead to the time when all the navies of the when every quarter deck of every man-of-war shall be a playground for the pattering feet of the little children; when the war ships' decks shall no longer be slippery with human blood. "Neither shall gallant ship pass thereby." translated into the language of ordinary life, means "Neither shall gallant men-of-war ever again sall to destroy life." And yet Isaiah, speaking of this gladsome day, cannot refrain from paying a well earned compliment to those patriotic sailors who have always been willing to fight and, if necessary, to die for their country's cause. He speaks of the man-of-war in words of martial praise. He calls in words of martial praise. He calls the naval vessel a "gallant ship." Ought the jack tars of old to be more honored than those of the present time? Cannot we afford, on this Memorial Sunday, to praise the heroic deeds of American bluejackets who fought under Captain Hull in the Constitution, under James Lawrence in the Chesapeake, under De-catur in the United States, under Farragut in the Hartford, under Dewey in the Olympia? If the most Dewey in the Olympia? If the most conspicuous monument in all London was reared in Trafalgar square to the memory of Admiral Nelson, surely we, on this last Sabbath preceding our annual Memorial day should dedicate at least one sermon to the noble tars who, in the American wars, won immortal fame upon the high seas, "Gallant ships" is a term we can well apply to the great term we can well apply to the great number of man-of-war vessels which have composed the American navy from 1.78 down Are you and I ready to do the du-ties that arise before us, day by day, promptly and unquestioningly as the American navy, as a whole, did its duty? 1776 down to the present time ties that arise before us, day by day, promptly and unquestioningly as the American navy, as a whole, did its duty? Are we ready to go forth bravely and cheerfully, no matter how weak may s?em to be our mental, physical and spiritual equipment? Po you not know that your very confidence in yourselves and your willingness to go ahead mean already the battle half won? When Lieutenant Dupont was commanded to do a certain thing, at first he falled to carry out his orders. Returning to Admiral Farragut, he began to make many excuses for his failure. But the great admiral turned and said: "Ah, Dupont, you have not given me the chief excuse for your failure. You did not accomplish what I told you to do chiefly because, deep down in your heart, you did not think you could do it." "Then, if that be true," said the young sailor, "I will go ahead and carry out your orders." And go he did. Are not our failures, my hearers, due to a like cause? If we had the faith in God that we ought to have should we not accomplish more? "I can do all things," said the intrepid apostle, "through Christ who strengtheneth me." Sure of that strength, he went into the conflict with undaunted courage, and his enemies declared that he turned the world upside down. So it has ever been with missionaries and reformers. They who dared, confident of divine support, returned as victors. That strength is still given to all who depend upon it. You and I have it, and it will enable us to perform any task allotted to us if he will only, like the American sailor, go forth to fulfill it strong in faith and with a good heart.

But the American navy has also been willing at all times to do its and closer together to grapple in mortal combat. What man is there whose check does not flush when he hears about the duel of the Constitution and the Guerriere? What American's eye does not flash when he sees Commodore Hull commanding his flag officer. Lieutenant Morris, to withhold the fire of his gunners until the two vessels were within speaking distance, then, with cannon double shotted, to send forth their messengers of death? But the greatest work of a navy is not always in fighting, but may be in patrolling a blockade. The victories of U. S. Grant would never have been won had he not had the assistance of the soldier in blue. The value of the soldier in blue. The value of the sorvices the sailors rendered in that awful conflict cannot be exaggerated. It was they who intercepted the supplies that the southern armies so sorely needed. It was their vigilance that produced the destitution which not even the sublime self sacrifice of th? southern people could relieve. Day in and day out, yera in and year out, the northern ships blockaded the southern ports. The southern armies were more starved to death than they were shot to picces by Federal guns. The southern soldiers could not buy shoes for their feet, or clothing for their backs, or blankets for their camps, their feet, or clothing for their backs, or blankets for their camps, or medicines for their sick. The patriotic women of the south had to tear up their linen dresses, that the surgeons might have bandages for the bleeding wounds. Tea and coffee were banished from the southern tables during those sad years. Let us ask ourselves if we are ready to do the necessary routine work of our lives as the sailors in work of our lives as the sailors in the past have been ready to do theirs. Are we sulking in our homes and refusing to faithfully perform the vital daily tasks of an inconspicuous life merely because the newspapers do not report the orders we give to the cook or tell about how many yards of cloth we week by week sell over the counter? David Farragut had to wait until he was over sixty years of age before he had an opportunity to distinguish himself in battle. If the great American naval officer could patiently, uncomplainingly and faithfully ly, uncomplainingly and faithfully perform the humbler duties of daily life until he was an old man, near to the grave, surely we can afford to be brav*e and true in the inconspicu-ous duties God has given us to do. The American navy should be hon-ored. Upon its glorious muster roll are to be found the names of interare to be found the names of international statesmen as well as heroic fighters—men who have brilliantly served our country with brain and pen as well as with the sword. Many of our Presidents have been elected to the White House on account of their military records. Washington and Taylor and Jackson and William H. Harrison and Grant and Hayes and Garfield are among the number. But the American soldier rarely has the opportunity to study statescraft as has the sailor. It was only comparatively a few years ago that foreign lands were brought into cable touch with our national capital. touch with our national capital. Thus every naval ship which touched a foreign port not only had to have a captain who could sail the seas, but also a naval diplomat, who, in-dependent of the home government, had to decide many questions which, wrongly decided, might involve his country in bloody international

Our national indebtedness to our Our national indebtedness to our navy is not confined to its prowess in battle. We owe much to the tact and statesmanship of our naval commanders. They have not only to uphold the honor of our flag in distant seas, but to display the courtesy and consideration to the navies of other nations which are necessary to the maintenance of tirefly rely test and consideration to the navies of other nations which are necessary to the maintenance of friendly relations. It would have been possible for Admiral Dewey by an indiscreet act while he lay in Manila Bay to have involved us in an international quarrel. Thousands of miles away from home, there he lay, surrounded by the cannon of foreign ships. By one false move he could have made Germany an enemy and involved us in war with Emperor William. Had he been careless there might have ensued a scramble on the part of other nations to gain possession of some of the Philippine Islands for themselves. What honor is too great for the memory of Commodore Matthew C. Perry, who in March, 1852, negotiated the famous treaty with Japan which for the first time opened the port of the Mikado to the ships from other lands? You and I have it, and it will enable us to perform any task allotted to us if he will only, like the American saller, go forth to fulfill it strong in faith and with a good heart.

But the American navy has also been started.

Dura American navy has defied the severity of the elements as well as two mon wspeaking of the hurricanes which blow over the Atlantic or the period to find the faith of the Arctic pole in 1873, and Lieutenant Commander George Washington De Long defied when he tried to find the Arctic pole in 1873, and Lieutenant Commander George Washington De Long defied when he tried to find the Arctic pole in 1873, and Lieutenant Commander George Washington De Long defied when he tried to find the Arctic pole in 1873, and Lieutenant Commander George Washington De Long defied when he tried to find the Arctic pole in 1873, and Lieutenant Commander George Washington De Long defied when he tried to find the Arctic pole in 1879. Ah, those were brave men, yet and the faith find find find find find find find received in that rescue expedition, took his own life. I said then what took his own life. I said then what I say now: Any plan conceived in the interest of science or the search after truth, any expedition which is born with the hope of learning something not known before, is worthy of sacrifice. This was the desire that drove Columbus across the seas. This was the desire which nade Galllei defy the hierarchy of Rome and stick to the truth that the carth moves round the sun. And this is the purpose which has made many a noble naval hero lay down his life upon the spotless white altar of the northern snows, overtopped by the towering memorial shafts of the Arctic icebergs. All honor to these tic icebergs. All honor to these brave men!

tic icebergs. All honor to these brave men!

The American navy is to be honored to-day. The genius of its constructors and the sure marksmanship of its gunners are to be the great preventers of future wars. The President of the United States a short time ago, when speaking in the city of Chicago, said practically these words: "Do not boast in reference to our national provess. Let us obey the old adage which says, "Speak softly, but carry a big club, and go ahead." The big club to-day for national offense and defence is the American navy. More and more has the law of national development increased, the responsibility of the navy. With a coast so extended as ours on east and west and south we are at the mercy of a foreign enemy. A hostile fleet lying outside New York, Boston, Charleston or San Francisco could by a few hours' bombardment exact a ransom of fabulous amount unless we had a fleet to defend our ports. For our national safety, for the very preservation of our national existence, we need strong ships and brave men to man them. Let us then by the honors that we pay to the naval heroes of the past encourage their successors.

But now the genius of American naval construction has been at the past encourage their successors.

But now the genius of American naval construction has been at work. We see the glittering uniforms of the American naval officers standing upon the decks of the New York, Chicago, Iowa, Brooklyn, Texas, Oregon, Olympia, Massachusetts, Illinois, New Maine and Philadelphia, and the great fleets of other war ships which now compose our navy, and all the many other war ships and all the many other war ships soon to be built and put into com-mission. And as we see the rew white ships steam past in review they do not come as demons of war, they do not come as demons of war, but as white angels of peace. Never fail to honor the United States sailor. Never declare that all the money appropriated by Congress for ironclads is uselessly spent. Under present conditions the only way to prevent war is to be strong for national defence. It is only for a time. The gospel is eventually to permeate all nations and bring every Government into subjection to ery Government into subjection to the Prince of Peace. When that glorious day comes, our battle ships may be dismantled and instead of guns and armaments of war they may sail forth bearing Bibles and missionaries or food for some fa-mine stricken people.

may sail forth bearing Bibles and missionaries or food for some famine stricken people.

But there is another reason for honoring the American navy. We honor it for the lives of its Christian men, both in sailors' bunk and officers' cabin, whose influence has permeated the whole service. Some people are apt to think of the American sailors as a cursing, lying, drinking, carousing lot. That is not true. Some of the noblest of Christians have worn the naval uniform. Did ever a Christian write a more beautiful letter than this, which Admiral Farragut wrote to his wife the night before the battle of Mobile Bay: "My Dearest Wife—I write and leave this letter to you. I am going leave this letter to you. I am going into Mobile Bay in the morning if God is my leader, and I hope he is, and in him I place my trust. If he thinks it is the proper place for me to die I am ready to submit to his will in that as in all other things. God bless and preserve you, my dar-ling, and my dear boy, if anything should happen to me. May his blessing rest upon you and your dear mo-ther." Was there ever a sweeter Christian character than Commodore Christian character than Commodore Philip, who was once Captain Philip of the Texas? He was brave enough before Santiago when Cervera's fleet was going down to call out to his victorious men: "Don't cheer, boys. Those poor fellows over there are dying." And he was brave enough after the battle was ended to call his men together and have the ship's chaplain return thanks to that God who had preserved the American ships in the battle.

who had preserved the American ships in the battle.

Thus I have two purposes in preaching this sermon. The one is, to show what our naval heroes have done. While the flowers of this Memorial day are being placed upon the soldiers' graves, I would have you remember the heroes whose bodies lie in unknown sepulchers beneath the blue waters of the deep. We can lay no flowers on their resting place, but in our hearts we can do them honor, and by our gratitude keep their memory green. My second purpose is to remind you of the duties we owe to God and our country. This land, in defence of which the naval heroes laid down their lives, is a sacred heritage. Its honor, its principles, its best interests, are in our keeping. Their self sacrifice will go for naught if we allow our country to drift into infidelity and sin. Only by righteousness can we hope for the Divine protection. Let us every one do our part in our several positions to make our beloved country, which is consecrated by the lives and deaths of these heroes, a God fearing, God serving nation.

An Englishman used to meet the great philosopher, Arthur Schopenhauer, every morning walking with his ugly poodle along the promenade in Frankfort-on-the-Main. Schopenhauer's eccentric appearance, deeply immersed in thought, excited the Englishman's curiosity to such an extent that one day he could contain himself no longer and, walking up to the philosopher, addressed him abruptly thus: "Tell me, sir, who in the name of fate are you?" "Ah," Schopenhauer replied, "I only wish I knew that myself."

Grain and fruit are the foods originally intended by Nature for mankind. Nature is quick to reward those who obey her laws, and just as quick to punish those who disobey. Everywhere can be seen women, who are paying the penalty for eating, not wisely, but too well. JAPANESE GARDEN

The classical garden, like a sonnet, is governed by special laws of harmony and rhythm. It must have its five hills, its ten trees and its tourteen stones. You can get along without the hills, and you can get along without the trees, but you cannot get along without stones. Indeed the perfect type of the flat garden is nothing but in archipelago of rocks in a sea of white pebbles. The stones must be the foundation; the rest are mere accessories. Speaking stones are what is wanted—stones that suggest moods and passions—for the Japanese recognize that there are sermons in stones, Each stone has its name and relative place in the composition. There is the guardian stone in the center and opposite it the belleview stone. Across the cascade is the moonshade stone

As there are a principal stone and a principal hill, so must there be a "principal tree," the shojin boku, around which the Tree of Perfection, the Tree of Evil, the Tree of the Setting Sun, the Tree of Science and the Tree of Solitude bow their lesser heads.

These are the essentials. Now, add one pond, one island, two stone lanterns, three bridges and mix thoroughly, garnish with lotus and serve with goldfish and mandarin duck. There is a recipe for a Japanese garden.—William Verbeck in Country Life.

SMALL LIBRARY

I think that a limit of three books will usually allow a very fair repre-sentation of a novelist. For instance, Thackeray is very fairly represented by "Vanity Fair," "Henry Esmond" and "Pendennis" and Dickens by "Pickwick," "David Copperfield" "Martin Chuzzlewit." Walter Scott would not suffer by one choosing "Ivanhoe," "The Bride of Lammermoor" and "The Heart of Midlothian." "Tom Jones" would suffice for Fielding and "Pride and Prejudice" for Jane Austen, "The Mill on the Floss" for George Eliot and "The Ordeal of Rich-George Enot and "Ine Order of Richard Feverel" for George Meredith.
Taking only the great outstanding figures, Tolstoi need only be present with
"Anna Karenina" and "War and Peace" and Emile Zola with, say, "Drink" and "The Dream." "The Three Musketeers" and "The Count of Monte-Christo" would suffice for Alexandre Dumas and "Les Miserables" and "Notre Dame de Paris" for Victor Hugo. It is harder to say of the vast mountain range of Balzac on what particular peaks our choice should fall, but probably here again the most popular books will prove the most typical—"Le Pere Goriot," "Eugenie Grandet" and "The Ass' Skin." I am not, it must be understood, mak-I am not, it must be understood, making a list of books "without which," as the booksellers say, "no gentleman's library is complete." I am only taking a few standard authors for the purpose of illustrating a principle of selection of illustrating a principle of selection which must perforce operate in a small library. If our library does not or can-not contain the best books, it must cer-tainly contain some of them, and, however idiosyncratic of its owner, it must bear the stamp of a general distinc-tion.—Richard Le Gallienne in Success.

DESPONDENCY TO JOY

Story of Hene Trudel who had Dyspensia till he used Dodd's Dyspensia Tablets.

No better idea can be given of the depression and despondency produced by Dyspepsia than the story of Hene Trudel, of Three Rivers, Quebec. Mr. Trudel is a student, and like so many of his class he fell a victim of Dyspepsia. In telling his story he says, "Sometimes I had slight attacks of this malely, but for some weeks it

"Sometimes I had slight attacks of this malady, but for some weeks it made alarming progress to that point that I was discouraged, weak and almost in despair. I resolved to give up my studies."

But at this point Mr. Trudel start-ed to use Dodd's Dyspepsia Tablets, and listen to the cheerful sequel to his story:

and listen to the cheering seques to his story:

"I began to use Dodd's Dyspepsia Tablets in the first days of January, 1903, and for a month and a half I regularly took one after each meal, sometimes two. After that I felt so much better I only took one after supper.

AS A SPENDTHRIFT

How did Pitt spend his income and get into debt? During the greater part of his life, after he had come to man's estate, he was in office, and his income was about £10,000 per annum. He did not entertain, he did not gamble, he neither hunted nor shot, and yet at the end of seventeen years of this income of £10,000 per annum he was hopelessly in debt. That he was careless is very possible. Still, considering that his income was equal to £20,000 per annum now, how in the name of onder did he spend it?

This is all the more mysterious, as he appears never to have paid his tradesmen. I have often seen it stated that England ought to be proud of one of her greatest statesmen having died poor. Neither Pitt nor England had reason to be proud of a statesman, enjoving an ample official income, dying in debt and making the pay ment of his tradesmen's bills depend ent on parliament voting a sum to meet the liability.—London Truth.

PAID A DEBT

No one knew better the power possessed by a really polished compliment than Sheridan, and on innumerable occasions during that rather stormy the atrical management of his did he extricate himself from a difficulty by means of one. A good instance is the following: An English nobleman who, after the manner of other of his peers, had married a beautiful actress once applied with much dignity in the greenroom to Mr. Sheridan for the arrears of her salary and vowed that he would not stir till they were paid. "My dear lord," said the impecunious manager, "this is too bad. You have taken from us the brightest jewel in the world, and you now quarrel with us for the little dust she has left behind her." The nobleman immediately burst out laughing, and over a bottle of wine the debt was canceled .- London Stand Topeka, Kan., June 1.—At 1 o'clock the number of people drowned in the flood which has submerged North Topeka for 24 hours was known to be at least 200, and a larger number were yet missing. A company of militia has taken charge of the work of rescue, and owing to their efforts several hundred people have been saved who otherwise would have perished.

In the Auditorium to-night 2,000 homeless people are quartered. The society women of the city are there attending the refugees needs. Great waggon-loads of clothing and provisions have been sent and the immediate needs of the unfortunates have been provided for.

About four hundred houses in North

About four hundred houses in North Topeka were destroyed by fire last week, and several people are reported to have been burned to death, but this report cannot be substantiated. From all over western Kansas boats were rushed here for the rescue of sufferers. The north end of the Melan bridge, the only way of reaching both Topekas, went out, and a wire cable was stretched across the bridge. All of the pontoon bridges on the north side were washed out early this morning, and the only possible chance of reaching the survivors was by boats.

Shortly after daylight nine boats arrived from Ottawa on a special train, and they were put into active service at once. Soon after reports of drownings began to come in. A boat containing eight men was swept away in the swift current about 7 o'clock, and as far as known all were drowned. A boat containing two men was capsized. The boats were too frail to live in the swirling water. More boats arrived from Emporia at 10 o'clock and hurry messages have been sent to other towns for more. The river remained stationary after having fallen several inches. Heavy rains were reported from up the stream, however, and it is feared that another rise will set in.

ported from up the stream, however, and it is feared that another rise will set in.

Eighty-seven people are high and dry in the Page elevator. If the building holds together they will be rescued. In the B Street Colored Baptist Church nearly a hundred people have been standing since yesterday. Many of them have doubtless fallen from exhaustion before this and drowned. The building stands intact, however, and those who are left alive may be rescued. As seen from a high place on North Taylor street, near the Rock Island bridge, the stream appeared to be widening.

E. L. Bailey and E. M. Alexander performed some of the most heroic work of the night. In the darkness about 3 o'clock this morning, at the greatest risk to their own lives, they succeeded in reaching one of the burning lumber yards and rescued a dozen women and children. On the women fainted from fatigue and fright, and this all but swamped the boat. The men made superhuman efforts and finally reached the pontoon bridge with their precious cargo. Here willing hands seized them and carried them over the Melan bridge to safety.

This is but one of a hundred thrilling rescues. The most prominent men of the town donned oilskins and, submerged in water up to their breasts, worked for hours in the cold water.

Kansas City, June 1.—A great body of water, coming from the west, swelled the Kansas River at Kansas City, Kansas, causing a most alarming rise. Waters rushed with terrific force over the outlying railroad tracks and the crowded wholesale districts of the west bottoms, and anally into the Union Depot. At 10 o'clock a mile of wholesale mouses, ele-vators and freight depots were entirely surrounded, basements that yesterday were dry were soon brimful, and wa-ter began to reach the first floors. Within fifteen minutes the tracks en-tering the western end of the Union Depot were entirely submerged, and at 11 o'clock the water had risen at such a rapid rate that the thousands of de-layed passengers were making prepar-ations to leave for the high ground. Fifteen persons have been drowned

trains have been running there this week. The town is small, and the stock of provisions very low. People are suffering greatly.

H. V. Henderson, Georgetown, Short in Accounts. Toronto, June 1.-Mr. H. V

Henderson, the postmaster at Georgetown, has left his position there and also left the town, and his present whereabouts are unknown. His sudden disappearance from Georgetown was coincident with the visit there of the postoffice inspector, Mr. J. Henderson of Toronto. The latter had some suspicion that all was not right at Georgetown, and last Thursday he paid an official visit there with the object of inspecting the brokes books.

The postmaster was in Georgetown when the inspector arrived, but left while the inspector was going over the books, and it is said that he purchased a ticket for Milton, although he was not located there. Inspector Henderson last night confirmed the report that Postmaster Henderson had left Georgetown, but said that the shortage was a small one and had since been made up by friends of the missing man. ing man.

Meyersdale, Pa., June 1.-Notices declaring a reduction of five cents in the price of mining coal have been posted at the mines of the Continental Coal Company. District President the matter, and ordered a strike, and the mines are now idle. The Continental Company is independent of the Somerset Coal Company, which granted the ten-cent advance, but retused to sign a scale for one year. It is confidently expected by the miners that the Somerset Coal Company will also make the reduction after the first of the month, and there will be a general strike ordered throughout the region. Coal Company. District President

ANOTHER LEGISLATURE

The expose of the municipal frauds En St. Louis, and the punishment of the grafters and thieves, has directed the attention of the people to the condition of state affairs. The Globe-Democrat finds that the Government of Missouri is very much like the Crit Government of Ontario. It says:

Democratic Government in Missouri, as now conducted, is so tainted with systematic bribery that it may be assamed that the people of the state will have a message for the ringsters at the next election. The chief plea of the ring is that Republicans are not Better than the Democratic machine. A corrupt majority thus asks to be continued in power on the strength of an assertion that the minority also is corrupt. There has been no Republican administration in Missouri for thirty years, and views of what one would do are conjectural. Most of the states in the union have Republican governors and legislatures, and they are not involved in boodling scandals, nor shouldering their failures, whatever they may be, upon the minority. Under our form of Government, majorities are given full power and must bear full responsibility. If they go into boodling they are unfaithful. If their legislation is botch-work, they are incompetent. A wenal or broken-down majority insolts free government itself when it asks to be retained on the ground that the people are unable to improve matters by a change. For thirty years the Democratic party has had complete control of every department of the state government, except in the year 1895, when the house was Republican. Does the Democratic party of Missouri, or, rather, the ring that has usurped its functions, disown the accountability that goes with a majority? Such seems to be the position taken. The discredited majority in Missouri pleads that the minority is discredited because the corruption of the majority seduced some of the minority also. The minority could not govern the state if it would; the majority governs it, and in a way that is infamously shameful and a disgrace in the eyes of the nation. When a party goes down in the mire of corruption, the practical course for the people is to turn to the other party for relief, and the other party cannot be prejudged. Give it a majority, and hold it re-

ON LEARNING TO THINK. Saturday Review.

The habit of giving the attention by even painful effort is of far more importance in education than any amount of cramming with milt extract of information. But that again is contrary to the cult of childhood. The great aim nowadays is to conceal the fact that attention is needed, that all things require effort in the learning. It is, of course, extremely delightful to see a band of happy youngsters beguiled by split straws and colored tissue papers into unconscious edmeation, knitting the map of South Africa, with beads for battlefields, and seplitting straws according to the first principles of political economy. But, releved in reference to the time when Ekindergarten shall be no more and the child has to face its own manhood or awomanhood, what is all this education sworth in comparison with the single Shabit of giving attention by an effort of will, and not by the bribe of a pleasurable personal interest in the pleasurable personal interest in the lesson to be learned † And herein lies the gist of the whole question as to whether, childhood is to be treated the plano will have to move. whether, childhood is to be treated with reference to its future development into manhood or womanhood.

So it happened that one morning Skipper heard the sergeant tell Reddy that he had been detailed for the horse said nothing at the time, but when they were once out en post he teld Skipper all about it.

A Reward and a Fine. A few years ago, owing to the serious depredations of rat catchers on the banks of the Thames, the authorities were compelled to issue notice boards offering a reward of £5 for information, payable on conviction of the offender. Not many days after the notice appeared an Irishman was caught and. being brought before the magistrate, was ordered to pay a fine and costs amounting altogether to £2. Not having the needful, Pat went into retirement at the expense of the country. The next morning, however, another son of Erin appeared at the prison and, paying the fine, liberated his friend. The governor, having been in the court on the previous day, recognized the "liberator" as the principal witness against the accused. This puzzled him, and he asked for an explanation.

"Well," said Pat, "it's loike this, sorr Tim and myself were hard up, and, seeing the notice, Tim agreed to be caught. I gave information against him, and this morning I drawed the money, and, now ye're paid, we've £3 left to start the world with."—London

Encouragement of a Great Singer. Grassini, the great Italian singer, was very much interested in the young girls among her relatives and always ready to encourage any talent she could find in any of them. One day a novice was brought to her with the unpromiswords, "She is a spoiled contralto and will never do anything on the stage." But the singer listened while the young girl began her frightened trills, when suddenly Grassini caught her in her arms with delight. "Why you are not a contralto," she said, "but the finest soprano in the world. Your voice is far stronger than mine. Study well. You want none of my help. There is a rich bank in your throat." The little singer was none other than Giulia Grisi.

The strength of the linguistic instinct in children is shown by the remarkable shifts they will make to find forms of expression for their perception or feelings. An examination of these shifts will show that the energy of the child manifests itself along precisely the same lines as have been taken by the languages of the races of man-kind toward their ultimate forms. Thus, lacking the word "wide," a little one said, "Open the door loud," extending the meaning of the word "loud" precisely as we do when we apply it colloquially to colors.

"A Breezy Time"-Tuesday, June 2. (Supplied to The Planet by Press Agents.)

A WHIRLWIND OF PLEASURE.

Would properly term "A Breezy Time." It is one of the most effective musical farce comedies in town, this year. There is just plot enough to keep people guessing. As to the specialties given by different members of the company, each one of whom is an artist in his or her line, and as to the band and orchestra, it can be safely said that this season will outshine anything ever seen here in the line of music. There has been written many new additions in the line of comedy to "A Breezy Time" for the coming season, and the above company will surpass anything that that may be seen here in the line of farce comedy.

Fitz & Webster, the energetic managers of "A Breezy Time," are probably the foremost inventors of ingenious advertising methods that the theatrical profession has ever known. This season they have something unusually novel. Not only is it a clever advertising scheme but a really scientific novelty that will prove interesting to young and old and is well worth going out of your way to see. It is none other than the Mysterious Indian Fortune Teller, a mechanical invention that will absolutely tell your fortune correctly. This wonder will be at the advance sale on the day of the performance, at the Central Drug Store, and will tell your past, present and future without any cost whatever.

square. Perpendicular and horizontal lines do not make the only intelligent divisions. The relationship of Raphael with a pickpocket I talked to once is more intimate essentially than it is with some makers of "pictures" and molders of "statuary." The thief had been arrested because, having obtained permission to live in New York provided he did not work there, he was caught stealing a watch.

"Why did you do it?" I asked him, "Well, I'll tell you," he said. "I simply couldn't help it. I'm no kleptomaniac. It isn't the stealing I like, but the fun of doing a hard job prettily. This is the second turn I've made. The first was like this: I saw a rich, fat man in a crowd, and I noticed that his watch was hung in a new way, hard to break. My fingers itched, not for the watch, but to break it off. I moved up, lifted the watch, walked away with it and then went back and hung the thing on the chain again. This second time something like that. I saw a delicate job, tried it, got the watch, and just then the fellow happened to look for the time. He 'hollered,' and a detective near by pinched me. I don't think I'm what you'd call a natural thief, but I like to work with my fingers, and I like the excitement of stealing."-McClure's.

Frederick the Great. In the course of some military evolu-tions Frederick the Great of Prussia, irritated by some mistake of a captain, ran after him with his stick in order to strike him. The captain ran away. The next morning the commanding officer reported to the king that the officer in question, one of the most effi-cient in the regiment, had sent in his papers. "Tell him to come to me," said the king. The officer, in great perturbation, came. "Good morning, major," he apostrophized the officer, who was speechless with surprise. "I wanted to tell you of your promotibut you ran so fast I could not catch you up. Good morning."

Another time an officer attempted to get a comrade into had odar with the king by telling his majesty that he was a drunkard. In a subsequent battle the latter's fitness was conspicuous, whereas his slanderer played a very poor part. When afterward he defiled past the king at the head of his reg-iment, his majesty called out, to him in a voice of thunder, "The sooner you take to drink the better."

The Early Circus.

Leaving out of count the great cir-cuses of Rome and Antioch and coming down to something of modern times, the first circus in England was on a footpath known as Halfpenny Hatch, in the Waterloo road, London. There, in 1770, Astley's first performance was given, with the aid of a drum, two fifes and one clown. A charge of sixpence was made for the front standing places. There was no building and not even a tent, but merely a ring of ropes and stakes. Primitive as were the arrangestakes. Primitive as were the arrangements Astley soon attracted good audiences and was able to add to his programme conjuring, transparencies, vaulting and tumbling, with displays of fireworks. In course of time he was able to hire an inclosed ground and erected seats under a substantial roof. He called the place Astley's Amphibacter Riding house. theater Riding house.

TO ANSWER

What's the use of paying a tailor big prices for your clothes? About the only thing you gain in doing so is the satisfied feeling you experience in the tailors' garments; there's nothing else, and that's just as possible in New Method and Royal Brand ready-for-service clothes as it is in the tailors. A man with the made to-measure habit can retain his high standards, and still be satisfied in these perfect garments of ours. Good examples of what a man can expect of this store can be found in those comfortable Summer Suits for men. For actual worth and goodness they have no equal. We have some of those fashionable Homespurs, Tweeds, Tropical Serges and Worsteds—every ore assistant and many the same as the high priced tailors are showing. And in style and fit they are apit to be a little more satisfactory than any you've ever seen.

HONEST MEN

There are honest men in Chatham. There are honest men in Chatham.

The plural is used because there are two of them. School Trustee W. H. Bensen discovered the two. Unlike Diogines Mr. Bensen didn't use a lantern, but he used a $5 bill. The story is quite interesting. Saturday morning W. H. Bensen lost a five dollar bill in his front yard. He was feeling real sorrowful over his loss when he went home at noon. Mrs. Bensen asked the school trustee if he had lost a five dollar bill, and if that was why he looked so sad. He thought that his wife must be a mind reader till she told him that two strangers had been in and said that they had picked a five dollar bill up on the lawn and asked if it belonged to Mr. Bensen. Mrs. Bensen knew nothing about her husband's loss at that time. The honest men gave their names as Messrs. Tree and Wade and said that they were stopping at the Aberdeen Hotel. Mr. Bensen went over and got his money.

How the Retired Sea Captain Made

In "Horses Nine" Sewell Ford tells how a retired sea captain bought a horse. The story runs: As one who is spects an unfamiliar object Captain Bean looked dazedly at Barnacles. At the same time Barnacles inspected the captain. With head lowered to knee level, with ears cocked forward, nostrils sniffing and under lip twitching almost as if he meant to laugh, Bar-

Again Captain Bean tried to look critically at the white horse, but once more he met that calm, eurious gaze and the attempt was hardly a success However, the captain squinted solemn ly ever Barnacles' withers and remarked: "Yes, he has got some goed lines, as you say, though you wouldn't hardly call him clipper built. Not much sheer for ard an' a leetle toe much aft, eh?" At this criticism Jed snorted mirth-

"Oh, I s'pose he's all right," quickly added the captain. "Fact is I ain't never paid much attention to horses, bein' on the water so much. You're sure he'll mind his helm, Jed?"

"Oh, he'll go where you p'int him." "Won't drag anchor, will he?"

Then, after a mild attack of remorse, he was equal to the situation and in a manly way accepted it, made himself a suit of clothes in which he could make a decent ap-pearance and began life anew with the courage, hope, pride and confidence that comes from the consciousness of being well dressed.-William George Jordan in Fashioner.

The first industry of the world was and the first wearer was Adam. Of this strange character who appears on the pages of history in the dual role of the first tailor and the first customer we have but a brief biography. The meager details require sympathetic in-terpretation to make up a complete story. Of his father and mother no mention is made, but the record shows he was destined to be a clothier of some sort, for he was put into Eden to "dress" the garden. We do not know naces In an Ocean Liner. The work of eternally pushing the old ship on past the meridians—the race against time and the sun and the interest on the money-begins in the gloomy stokehold. You have heard that the stokehold is hot, and when you have clambered into it over disorderly piles of still smoking ashes, steadying yourself by taking incautious hold of burning hand rails, and stand for the first time face to face with the furnaces you feel assured of

IN THE STOKEHOLD.

But, besides being hot, it is the most active, interesting part of the ship. It is her whole life. You must spend years studying it before you can stand there in command of your watch with your hand on the feed check valves, your eyes on everything in general, and keep the steam up where it belongs in spite of the ravenous engines sucking it away from you; years before you can tell, in one swift glance, whether a fireman is burning the greatest possible amount of coal per hour in his fires with the least amount of waste.

The problem is this: Under a certain large quantity of water, which is continually changing, build thirty fires, and by means of them, notwithstanding they must all be continually replenished with fresh coal and freed from ashes, keep it at a perfectly even temperature (within a very few degrees) day and night for an indefinite period. The game is the more interesting because a ship can never afford to spare more than just barely enough space for her propelling machinery; consequently everything—engines, boilers, furnaces—must be worked to the very limit of its capacity.

The game goes as regularly by turns and in cycles as progressive whist. Starting with a few fires first in order, the doors are opened to admit a few shovelfuls of coal thrown quickly into # 4.23 p.m. for Windsor and Detroit.

Next the "green" coal in the first fires is raked back through the furnaces to complete its combustion. After another short interval it is necessary to "slice" them—that is, probe them with long pointed bars to lift the clinkers from the grates and make air passages. Finally it is time to stoke again.

How Chinese Hatch Fish. The Chinese have a method of hatching the spawn of fish and thus protecting it from those accidents which gen-ONE-WAY OOLONIST RATES erally destroy a large portion of it. The fishermen collect with care from the margin and surface of water all those gelatineus masses which contain the spawn of fish, and after they have Montana, Arizona and Other found a sufficient quantity they fill with it the shell of a fresh hen's egg, West and North-West Points. which they have previously emptied, stop up the hole and put it under a sit-ting fowl. The young fry are presently hatched and are kept in pure, fresh water till they are large enough to be thrown into the pond with the old fish. The sale of spawn for this purpose forms an im-portant branch of trade in China.

A Bad Country For Hats. Hats have a hard time in China. The climate, alternating from intense dryness to a horrible humidity, twists and distorts silk, beaver, cloth and felt in no time. Mold and fungus are universal and convert sweatband and brim into green velvet in a single night. Every hat must be put out in the sunlight three times a week or it is ruined. Besides these foes are ants which go everywhere and cockroaches which fly like birds. The ant enjoys a good hat for a playground and a sl ing establishment: the cockroach desires merely to eat every particle of leather, paper and pasteboard it conally with carbolic acid, creosote or crude cressol.

Unconscious Sarcasm. "Charley, dear," said young Mrs. Torkins very seriously, "I have bought you a little book as a present."

"Very kind of you." "I hope you won't be offended, but it is something that I feel you ought to read. It is about betting."
"I don't know that I care for any sermons, even if I do lose occasionally."

"It isn't a sermon, Charley, dear. It is a little book entitled 'Poker and How to Play It.'"

A Homely Man. John James Heidegger, manager of the opera house in the Haymarket, in London, in the times when George was king, one day laid a wager with the Earl of Chesterfield that he would not $28 Pr. Albert...} $35 find in all London an uglier face than his. After a long search the earl pro-duced a woman of St. Giles who at first seemed to outvie the manager, but when the latter put on the woman's cap he was allowed to retain the palm of ugliness. George's Kind Permission. "Mary," her father called down-stairs, "just ask your man if he doesn't think it's pretty near bedtime!"

"Yes, papa," replied the sweet girl, after a pause. "George says if you're sleepy go to bed, by all means."—To-ledo Bee.

A Religion That Grows.

The idea that Mohammedanism is "played out" would be a dangerous on for statesmen to bank upon. It isn't.

Mehammed began his career as a prophet more than 600 years later than the beginning of the Christian era. At present he has 176,000,000 disciples, more than one-third as many as there are Christians in the world.

Nine hundred years ago there were in India no Mohammedans. Now there are 50,000,000, and they are increasing in number constantly. They are by all odds the most energetic subjects in British India.

The western wave of Mohammedan ism rolled up to the farthest corner of Spain, up to the walls of Vienna, and then began to recede, but the shrinking process was accompanied by expansion elsewhere. In Africa Moham-medanism is steadily proselyting. Russia in Europe has 3,000,000 followers of the prophet, more than there are in what is called "Turkey in Europe."

Asia, however, the realm of future growth, is the Mohammedan stronghold. To less than 4,000,000 native Christians there are 109,000,000 Mohammedans.

The Duke's "Thirteen Clock." An ingenious timekeeping arrange ment exists today which was designed by that famous Duke of Bridgewater who laced South Lancashire with canals and died a hundred years ago. The duke was a great stickler for punctuality, and he was annoyed that the workmen on his estate at Worsley did not return to work after dinner as promptly as they left off when the clock struck 12. When he remonstrated, he was told that while the workmen always heard the clock strike 12. they often failed to hear the single stroke of 1. The Duke of Bridgewater quickly found a remedy for this difficulty. He had a clock made that would strike thirteen times an hour after noon, and that clock proclaims 1 o'clock with a baker's dozen of sono-rous strokes to this day. The "thirteen clock" is one of the curiosities of Worsley Hall

Sex of Gems. The Romans, following the Greek mineralogists, divided gems into males and females according to the depth or lightness of their color. These terms are thus alluded to by Theophrastus: "Both these (beryl, carbuncle, omphax, crystal and amethyst) and the sard are found on breaking open certain rocks, presenting certain differences, but agreeing in name with each other. For of the sard the transparent and blood red sort is called the female, while the less transparent and darker kind is termed the male, and the cyanus also is named one sort the male and the other the female, but the male is the deeper in color of the two." The cyanus, or cyanos, of the ancients is said, though probably incorrectly, by many modern mineralogists to be identical with our sapphire.

The Letter "M" In Mother. It has been pointed out as a curiou fact that the letter "M" in almost all known languages — English, French, Latin, Spanish, Greek, Hebrew, Chinese and the others—is to be found in the word which stands for mother or nurse. Perhaps this is owing to its representing a sound which exists in every spoken speech and has the same pronunciation in them all. It is also exceedingly easy to utter and is one of the first sounds that children make, and it therefore naturally enters into the appellation given to the nursing parent in the first cries of recognition and affection. There is no doubt at all that "ma" and the other baby names for mother originated directly from the

An Observing Child. One man in New York had social aspirations which somewhat warped his admiration of his homespun father. The father actually sometimes relapses into the barbarism of eating with his leather, paper and pasteboard it contains. The only way to keep the pests off is to sprinkle the interior occasionally with carbolic acid, creosote or mashed potatoes from his knife, and his mother chided him. "Sammy, dear," she said, "only stupid people eat with their knives." "How can you say that, mamma?" cried the child. "Grandpa eats with his knife. And he made all our money!"

Launched on His Literary Career "I understand your son has decided to go in for literature." "Yes, and he's made a splendid start already."

"You don't say." "Yes; he went to an auction this morning and bought a secondhand writing desk for only $4.98."

SIR E. GREY'S CRITICISM.

STRONGLY OPPOSED.

Conservative Party Divided on the Question-Mr. Herbert Gladstone, Lord Brassey and Other Leaders Sound a Warning.

London, June 1.-Sir Edward Grey Is the first of the Liberal leaders to take up Mr. Cahmberlain's challenge regarding Imperial preferential tariffs Addressing the Oxford University Liberal League Saturday, Sir Edward denounced Mr. Chamberlain's proposals on the ground that they meant protec-tion. Mr. Chamberlain, he said, played on the big trumpet, while Premier Bal-four played the same tune on the small four played the same tune on the small flute, but it must not be expected that there would be any separation of policy between the two, therefore the Liberals must fight the proposals with the utmost vigor. He contended that the margin that Great Britain could gain by preferential trade with her colonies was comparatively small and not worth the risk of dislocation the three-fourths. the risk of dislocating the three-fourths of her trade with the rest of the world. Thus far the discussion on the ques-Thus far the discussion on the question reveals no extreme enthusiasm on the part of the Unionists for Mr. Chamberlain's scheme, although the ventilation of the subject is eagerly welcomed. The Unionist Spectator points out the coincidence that, while Mr. Chamberlain is offering old age pensions as the compensation to the workingman for the loss he may sustain through the preferential tariff, the vast pension list of the United States was largely created in order to get an excuse for a high protective tariff.

In The Spectator's opinion, if the Colonial Secretary is foolish enough to force his proposals to an issue, he will shatter his party as completely as Gladstone did the Liberal party with home rule.

That such a rupture of the Conser vative party will occur is admitted among the best informed members of the party. At least four Cabinet Min-isters are said to be strongly opposed to the scheme, while Winston Churchill isters are said to be strongly opposed to the scheme, while Winston Churchill and Lord Hugh Cecil, who are credited with the intention of organizing an opposition to Mr. Chamberlain's plans, claim to be able to count already thirty Conservative members of the House of Commons in their following. At Brooks Club, the headquarters of the Liberal-Unionist party, it was stated that Mr. Chamberlain was determined to stand or fall by his scheme, and that if he failed to obtain the country's support for it would retire from public life.

Sir Henry Campbell-Bannerman, the Liberal leader in the House of Commons, is apparently reserving public expression of his views of Colonial Secretary Chamberlain's Imperial reciprocity scheme until the reassembling of Parliament, when the finance bill will come up. In the meantime, Sir Henry's first licutenant, Herbert Gladstone, the chief Liberal Whip in an open letter to his constituents, warns the Liberals that mo time must be lost in putting their house in order. "The Government is hopelessly discredited," writes Mr. Gladstone, "and it is impossible to assume that a general election will be long delayed."

preferential trade is thoroughly threshed out.

Lord Brassey (Liberal, former Governor of Victoria), who has had considerable colonial experience, raises the question as to whence comes the demand for a preferential policy, and concludes: "The only demand comes from Canada, where, in spite of the preference given to Great Britain, the tariffs remain almost prohibitive."

"Future extensions of British trade lie mainly in the tropics, where the enormous population creates an illimenormous population creates an illimitable market. In order to hold that market Great Britain must be able to manufacture cheaply. It is therefore absolutely essential that raw materials be untaxed."

It is understood that Mr. Chamber-lain has expressed the hope that his proposals will be freely discussed, and that the attitude of the colonies will be made clear at the Congress of the Chambers of Commerce of the Empire, to be held at Montreal in August.

EXPLODED BY A STORM.

Submarine Torpedoes Go Off Without Warning at Cherbourg.

Paris, June 1 .- The Matin's cor respondent at Cherbourg telegraphs that during a violent storm yesterday afternoon the lightning caused the explosion of three submarine torpedoes at the west entrance of the harbor. The explosion three up a column of water to a great height, and caused water to a great height, and caused a panic among the vessels at anchor. No damage was done, but the Hamburg-American liner Fuerst Bismarck, on her way from Hamburg and Southampton to New York, had just entered the harbor. Had the explosion occurred a few minutes earlier, says the correspondent, it might have caused a great disaster.

Edison Works in Canada.

Toronto, June 1.—Thomas Edition, the famous American in son, the famous American inventor, is seriously pursuing his project to secure nickel in new Ontario for his new storage battery factory on the other side. Mr. Frank Denton, K.C., his legal representative here says that Mr. Edison had acquired a considerable amount of land north of Sudbury, and was now bringing two diamond drills in for exploratory purposes. These will be put to work at once. Mr. Denton said it was Mr. Edison's intention to build a smelter near Sudbury when his mineral possessions warrant it, and that he would refine the metal here as far as practicable, probably to 80 per cent.

The Time For Receiving Them Closes To-day. Montreal, June 1.-The time for sending in tenders to the Dominion Government for a fast Atlantic steamship service closes to-day, and, from what can be learned here, the mail bag of the Privy Council will not overflow with offers. The G. T. R., Mr, Robert Reford of the Donaldson, Thomson and Lord Lines, and Mr. Torrance of the Dominion Line, all say that they are not tendering. So far as Canadian shipers are concerned, that seems to practically leave the field to the C.P.R. and the Allan Line. It is generally believed here that these two companies have sent in their tenders, but Mr. Hugh A. Allan will say neither yes nor no to the question, while Sir Thomas Shaughnessy, President of the C.P. R., squite as reserved. From Mr. Allan's standpoint, any statement just now as to what the Allan Line has done would be premature, and he, therefore, wishes to let the matter stand until the tenders have been opened. Sir Thomas Shaughnessy says that, while he does not wish to say whether the C.P. R. has tendered this time, an offer from them made some time ago is still in the Government's hands and open for acceptance, as the mind of the company has not changed. The acquisition of the Elder-Dempster steamers has not altered the position of the C.P.R. in the matter, because these vessels were never intended for a fast mail service. In any event, the two years allowed by the Government for prepara-Dominion Line, all say that they are were never intended for a fast mail service. In any event, the two years allowed by the Government for preparation would have to be taken advantage of, and a new fleet got together for the purpose. There is a belief in some quarters that the C. P. R. and the Allan Line have made an agreement, the Allan Line to withdraw from the competition. Sir Thomas Shaughnessy denies it. It is said also that no tender has gone in under the man of the has gone in under the name of the C.P.R., the company having secured for the purpose the services of an

Plan to Blow up a Big Sanatorium With 25,000 People.

Detroit, June 1.-- A Journal despatch from Battle Creek says:-"It is common talk in this city that a plan to blow up the Adventist sanitarium with dynamite during the Sunday dedicatory exercises at the time when Governor Bliss, his staff, and twenty-five thousand people would be present, has been discovered. Everybody concerned with the institution denies the truth of the rumors. It is said that, after the receipt of an anonymous letter of warning by a sanitarium official, a thorough search was made of the building, with the result that oil saturated rotton was found in large quantities in the dormitory and east hall, and that two sticks of dynamite were found in the pipe that supplies the building with gas.

Seventeen Insurgents, Who Were Entrapped.

Salonica, June I.-A letter from Monastir, written by an agent of the British and Foreign Bible Society, who was an eye-witness of the fight at the Bulgarian village of Mogil, six miles north of Monastir, on May 21, between the Imperial forces and insurgent bands, says that seventeen komtais, who were in the village when it was at-tacked, having fired all their cartridges and seeing that resistance was useless, killed themselves. The number included three Bulgarian officers of high rank. The letter adds:—Our position here is very wretched. We live in great fear. God have pity on us and bring peace to these regions!

Victoria, June 1.-Mail advices per steamer Tartan says that several meetings of Chinese students have been held at Shanghai at which protests were drawn up regarding Russian action in Manchuria, and against Governor Wangchihchan of Kwangsi in securing French troops to sup-press troubles in that province. Tel-egrams were sent to Pekin and to Viceroy Yuanshihkai, urging that China declare war against Russia to protect her rights. The students, 1,200 in number, offered to form a battalion of volunteers for service if needed. Similar telegrams were sent by the Chinese students at Tokio.

Funeral of Glory Whalen.

Collingwood, June I.—Another chapter, and the saddest, has been added to the story of the murder of Glory Whalen, when on Saturday the little battered form was laid at rest in the St. Mary's Roman Catholic Cemetery near Collingwood. For miles around the people gathered to pay their last respects to the little maiden, who was beloved by all, and to show their sympathy with her parents in their sorrow great numbers of the townspeople also went to the home to pay their respects to the family. At the church low Mass was celebrated by Rev. Father O'Cary before a congregation which crowded the edifice to the doors. The service was most pathetically solemm, while few eyes were dry, and sobs arose from all parts of the large audience.
