War Trophies for Athens

Through the Continued Efforts of Mr. A. E. Donovan Athens Has Been Awarded One Trench Mortar and Two Machine Guns

WILL ARRIVE IN ABOUT TWO WEEKS

The following letter shows that Mr. A. E. Donovan has not forgotten Athens, and is to be commended for his interest in his old home town.

Editor, Athens Reporter, Athens, Ont.

Dear Sir:—I am most anxious that in the distribution of war trophies Athens should be given at least two guns for the town hall grounds, and I have been urging upon Mr. A. G. Doughty, Director of War Trophies to let us have these two guns. Athens being one of the best educational centres for a village of that size in the Province, and also on account of the large number of young men who enlisted from there.

Recently I got in touch with Sir Thomas White and I urged that he do his best for us and he has promised to do all he can in the matter, however the trophies are distributed on the basis of enlistment, the share of guns for the Province of Ontario is 186 and 101 trench mortars, 850 towns in the Dominion have made application for trophies and out of this 850, 420 are from the Province of Ontario, therefore it is impossible to give guns for each town. In distributing within the province the mobilization centres have been taken and Brockville has been awarded two field guns and 4 machine guns. Gananoque has been awarded two machine guns. All these guns have been overhauled and put in order. The guns are being shipped from both Toronto and Ottawa daily but the difficulty is in not being able to get sufficient cars to ship them.

I would suggest that the village council call a special meeting and either pass a resolution or write a strong letter to Mr. Doughty, Director of War Trophies, Ottawa, urging that Athens be given at least two guns. I do not know that Sir Thomas White is doing all he can in order that Athens should be recognized in this distribution of guns.

Yours very truly

A. E. Donovan

Within two days of receipt of the above letter, Mr. Donovan was advised of the fact that Athens was awarded the above mentioned trophies, and immediately sent the following word to us.

Editor Athens Reporter, Athens.

Pleased to say I have succeeded in securing One Trench Mortar and Two Machine Guns for Athens, which will go forward to Athens within two weeks as every gun has to be put in order before it is sent out.—A. E. Donovan

NEW TERMS OF TRADE TO THE WEST INDIES

Agreement Recently Made Between That Country and Canada Public.

LARGER FREE LIST

Mutual Preference in Some Cases 50%—Cable and Steamship Service.

Ottawa, Aug. —The new trade agreement concluded between Canada and the British West Indies was made public to-day. It increases, in certain instances, the present mutual preference of 20 per cent. to 50 per cent.; it extends the free list; it provides for an increased steamship service—a weekly service between Canadian ports and the eastern group of the British West Indies, and a fortnightly service between Canadian ports and the western group. The weekly service is to come into operation "As soon as possible, and in any case within three years"; the fortnightly service with the western group is to come into effect not later than January 1st, 1921. The agreement provides that the various Governments of the British West Indies will contribute towards the necessary subsidies. In the case of the fortnightly service to the western group—the Bahamas, British Honduras and Jamaica—the vessels are to be provided by the Government of Canada. Here, if the service proves unremunerative, the three West Indian colonies mentioned will contribute 25 per cent. of the loss within certain restrictions.

The agreement concludes with a declaration that the representatives of Canada and of the British West Indian colonies will recommend for the consideration of their respective Governments that British-controlled cables should be laid as soon as possible, without waiting for the termination of the agreement with the West Indian and Panama Telegraph Company, to connect Bermuda with Barbados, Trinidad, British Guiana, the Leeward Islands, and Turk's Island or Jamaica.

PARTICULARS OF AGREEMENT.
This agreement recites that a conference was held in June between the Government of Canada and the Governments of the British West Indies for the purpose of making trade relations closer and more intimate, and to improve means of communication.

In regard to trade, Canada affirms the principle of granting a preference on all goods being the produce or manufacture of any of the British West Indies imported into Canada, which are now subject to duty or which may be made subject to duty at any future time.

The Canadian customs duties on all goods (other than tobacco, cigars, cigarettes and spirituous liquors) being the produce or manufacture of any of the British West Indies are not to be more than 50 per cent. of the duties imposed on similar goods when imported from any foreign country.

Special provision is made, however, in the case of the following goods:

Sugar, according to the degree of polarization—preference ranges from 40 to 46.50 per 100 pounds to 96 cents.
Cocoa beans, not roasted, crushed or ground (per 100 pounds), a preference of 10 cents.
Lime juice, raw and concentrated, not refined (per gallon), a preference of 10 cents.

Cocoa nuts, per 100 (imported direct to a Canadian port) free as against general tariff of seventy-five cents.
Cocoa nuts, n.o.p.: a preference of 50 cents per 100.

Grape fruit: a preference of 50 cents per 100 pounds, a preference of 10 cents per gallon of the strength of proof.
Rum: a preference of 60 cents per gallon on the strength of proof.

Onions: free as against a general tariff of 30 per cent. ad valorem.
The British West Indies also affirm the principle of granting a preference on all goods being the produce or manufacture of Canada and imported into the British West Indian Colonies.

Subject to special provisions, cited below, customs duties on all goods (other than tobacco, cigars and cigarettes) being the produce or manufacture of Canada imported into the British West Indies which are now subject to duty or which may be made subject to duty at any future time, shall not at any time be:

(a) In the case of Barbados, British Guiana and Trinidad, more than fifty (50) per cent.

(b) In the case of British Honduras, the Leeward Islands and the Windward Islands, more than sixty-six and two-thirds per cent.

(c) In the case of Bermuda and Jamaica more than seventy-five (75) per cent., and

(d) In the case of the Bahamas more than ninety (90) per cent., of the duties imposed on similar goods when imported from any foreign country.

The special provisions are in respect to flour, spirits, wine, beer and ale. In these cases, the preference to be granted by the British West Indies to be produce of Canada will be as follows:

Flour—Preference of not less than one shilling per barrel or bag of 190 pounds.

Spirit brandy, gin, rum, whiskey, unenumerated, potable, if tested—Preference of not less than 2-1/2 per gallon of the strength of proof.

Spirits, perfumed, unenumerated, potable, if not tested—Preference of not less than 2-1/2 per liquid gallon.

Wine, beer and ale—Duty not to exceed four-fifths of full rate.

In the case of the Bahamas the ten per cent. preference granted will not apply to wines, malt liquors, spirits, spirituous liquors, liquid medicines and articles containing alcohol.

CONTAINS RECIPROCAL PROVISION.

The agreement contains a reciprocal provision that the Governments of Canada and of the West Indies may provide, on giving six months' notice, that to be entitled to the concessions granted the products of either shall be conveyed by ship direct. It is provided also that should the discretion recognized in this article be at any time exercised by the Government of Canada, provision shall be made in all contracts entered into with steamship subsidized by the Dominion and the British West Indies and plying between ports in Canada and ports in the British West Indies for an effective control of freight rates.

The agreement is not to interfere with any existing preference or with the granting of any future preference by the Dominion to any of the British West Indies or to any other part of the British Empire or with any existing preference or the granting of any future preference by the British West Indies among themselves.

EASTERN GROUP SS. SERVICES.
The provisions of the agreement, in regard to steamship services between Canada and the eastern group are as follows:

Canada will use its best endeavors to arrange for a mail, passenger and freight steamship service, to come into effect as soon as possible, and, in any case, within three years, between Canada, Bermuda, the Leeward Islands, the Windward Islands, Barbados, Trinidad, and British Guiana, on the following lines:

1. Steamers shall sail weekly from St. John or Halifax, calling one week on the outward passage at Bermuda, Barbados, Trinidad and British Guiana, and on the homeward passage at Trinidad, Grenada, St. Vincent, Barbados, St. Lucia, Dominica, Monserrat, Antigua, St. Kitts and Bermuda; and alternate weeks calling on the outward passage at Bermuda, St. Kitts, Nevis, Antigua, Monserrat, Dominica, St. Lucia, Barbados, St. Vincent, Grenada, Trinidad and British Guiana, and on the homeward passage, at Trinidad, Barbados and Bermuda.

2. The steamers shall be of 2,500 to 6,000 tons gross, capable of making an ocean speed of 12 knots, and providing accommodation for 100 first-class, 30 second-class and 100 steerage or deck passengers, and shall be provided with 'tween decks. Canada will stipulate in any contract entered into for such steamship service that:

1. There shall be reasonable proportionate alternation of passenger and cargo accommodation between the colonies mentioned.

2. There shall be no unfair differential rates of freight against the smaller colonies, as compared with the rates to larger colonies situated at a similar distance from St. John or Halifax.

3. Steamers shall be so constructed that, so far as the traffic warrants, cold storage shall be provided, if this can be secured without unreasonable additional cost.

If a subsidized steamship service is arranged for, the Government of Canada will endeavor to secure the co-operation of the owners of such steamship service towards the provision of hotels and bungalows in the colonies being prepared on their part to offer such facilities as may be practicable, both as regards sites and financial assistance.

SUBSIDIES TO STEAMSHIP SERVICE.

The representatives of the colonies mentioned undertake to recommend to their governments that these governments shall contribute towards such subsidized steamship service, when established, in the following amounts annually:

Barbados, not less than £5,000.
Bermuda, not less than £2,000.
British Guiana, not less than £7,500.
Leeward Islands, not less than £2,500.
Trinidad, not less than £7,500.
Windward Islands, not less than £2,500.

Total, £27,000.
Pending the establishment of such service the Government of Canada will use its best endeavors to maintain a fortnightly service on the existing lines and to supplement it with such additional freight or passenger and freight vessels as the trade may require.

WESTERN GROUP STEAMSHIP SERVICE.

So far as the western group is concerned, the provisions for steamship services are:

Canada, subject to the adoption by the Government concerned of the recommendations embodied in the article below, undertakes to provide as soon as possible, and in any case not later than the 1st of January, 1921, a fortnightly freight, mail and passenger steamship service between Canada, the Bahamas, Jamaica, and British Honduras, on the following lines:

(1) The steamers shall not be less than 2,500 long tons, dead weight, shall have an ocean-going speed of not less than 10 knots, and shall have accommodation for from 15 to 20 first-class passengers, and shall be provided with 'tween decks and, so far as the traffic warrants, with cold storage; if this can be secured at reasonable cost.

(2) The steamers shall sail from such Canadian ports as freight conditions require, and shall proceed to Belize in British Honduras, calling at Nassau in the Bahamas, and at such port or ports in Jamaica as may be necessary, and shall call on the return voyage at such port or ports in Jamaica as may be necessary, and at Nassau.

MUST BEAR 25% OF ANY LOSS.

The representatives of the colonies here mentioned undertake to recommend to their Governments that

SAY POGROMS SWEEP POLAND

Paris, Aug. —An amazing recital of the pogroms executed by the "White Terror" of Poland, is published authoritatively to-day by Humanity. It states that of 130 municipal councillors of the Jewish Bund, 80 were arrested, jailed and sentenced to death in the course of a few days.

"It is no exaggeration to state," the account reads, "that Poland is in a perpetual state of pogromism. The population is constantly incited to anti-Semitic journals, which falsely assert that all Jews are in league to overthrow the present Government. Among the towns where sanguinary pogroms have recently taken place are Minsk, Siedlic and Przemysl."

The agreement will remain in force for ten years after the proclamation and thereafter until terminated by 12 months' written notice given either by the Government of any of the colonies aforesaid, but in the latter case the agreement will remain in full force and effect as to any of the other colonies which have not given such notice.

HAILED OUT.

Ethelbert and Garland Districts in Manitoba.
Winnipeg, Aug. —Two storms which struck the city yesterday extended generally over the province. One storm swept over the north, carrying hail, and doing some damage through wind. That which went over the southwest, was slighter in its violence, but hail also fell. Roblin came in between the paths of both, and got no rainfall. Ethelbert and Garland districts had their crops nearly wiped out by hail.

It was reported last night the prisoner was being held in seclusion in South Jersey and was being closely questioned as to whether he was implicated in the actual abduction.

George Leonard, chief inspector of the Philadelphia district, said he believed the arrest eventually would lead to the recovery of the baby. It was also hoped to recover a part, if not all, of the $12,000 left by George H. Coughlin, the boy's father, under a deserted trolley station near Norrisstown as a ransom for the little fellow's return.

Mistaking him for a bear, O. C. Ballie was shot dead by his partner, W. W. Gregory, 11 miles east of Mountain Park, near Edmonton.

TO AID ROUMANIA

Canadian Nurses to Teach Native Women.

Montreal, Aug. —Plans are afoot to send a delegation of Canadian nurses to Roumania to do special work in connection with reconstruction in that country. The members of the Canadian party will not do actual nursing, but will form the nucleus of a training school where Roumanian girls and women can learn the rudiments of the profession of caring for the sick, very little of which is at present known in that country.

The Queen of Roumania is the instigator of the plan, and has formed a national Roumanian committee for its promotion, of which she is the head. A building has already been secured by the Roumanian committee in the city of Bucharest. It is hoped to secure the co-operation of the Canadian public to assist in the equipment and maintenance fund of the Canadian nurses.

KIDNAPPER CAUGHT

Is Belief in Case of Baby Coughlin.

Philadelphia, Pa., Aug. —The identity of the man arrested at Egg Harbor, N. J., in connection with the kidnapping of 13 months' old Blakely Coughlin, the boy's father, in Norrisstown, Pa., on June 2, was expected to be made known to-day. Beyond admitting the arrest was made, and expressing the opinion they had the right man, Federal agents working on the case, so far, have furnished but little information regarding the matter.

It was reported last night the prisoner was being held in seclusion in South Jersey and was being closely questioned as to whether he was implicated in the actual abduction.

George Leonard, chief inspector of the Philadelphia district, said he believed the arrest eventually would lead to the recovery of the baby. It was also hoped to recover a part, if not all, of the $12,000 left by George H. Lieutenant Huttner, one of the defendants, admitted the charges against him. He declared the murder had been prepared by a group of journalists belonging to the Karolyi party, with the connivance of Stephen Friedrich, the former Premier, who paid the expenses of the assassination plot, amounting to 150,000 crowns, the witness as-

BRING THE OCEAN TO YOUR DOORS

Slogan of Both Countries At Industrial Congress.

Senator Robertson On Highway Development.

Welland, Aug. —Transportation was the paramount issue discussed at the second day's session of the Niagara District Industrial Congress in Crystal Beach and Welland to-day. The problem was discussed by railroad, marine and highway men from various standpoints. The needs and advantages of the Niagara district in particular and the Province in general were dealt with by the speakers.

The slogan "Bring the ocean to your doors" was emphasized by Mr. Lewis as the inevitable policy for both Canadian and American interests, regardless of local considerations.

Senator Robertson announced in his address at the banquet here to-night that highway development is to be proceeded with immediately in the Niagara Peninsula if the federal share of $200,000 is to be devoted to the building of the Queenston-Hamilton road. This will be pushed by the Ontario Department of Highways in the immediate future. He also declared that the building of the Welland-Port Colborne road would be completed with a minimum of delay on the portions still unfinished. He declared himself in favor of the building of a higher bridge over the Niagara River to relieve the present traffic congestion at the frontier, and would try to hasten that project.

After dealing with the development of rail transportation under private ownership, Senator Robertson stated that service would be the basis of competition in the operation of the nationally-owned lines, with C.P.R. standards in front of them. He declared the proposed freight rate increase were justified in view of the much higher operating and maintenance costs, citing the tripling in cost of box cars, locomotives and passenger cars and the doubling of wages.

With regard to canalization of the St. Lawrence, he said Federal aid was assured, and that for more than three years the Dominion Government had been making surveys preparatory to making a start in that work of power development and deepening of the waterways to the sea.

TREND TOWARD CONCILIATION.

"There has been a gradual change in industrial conditions during the year," said Senator Robertson. "Twelve months ago unrest was prevalent everywhere. More latterly there has been a growing tendency to settle industrial disputes by conciliation, with good results in many cases. I have ample evidence to prove that the Soviet Government in Moscow has been financing attempts to spread its gospel of Bolshevism in Canada. It has been amply demonstrated that Mr. Martin, the agent of the Bolshevists, has been financed to the extent of two million roubles for the purpose of influencing public opinion on this continent, and we are positive that Canada has not been neglected in the efforts to spread the propaganda broadcast on this side of the Atlantic."

He deprecated the results that could be obtained, but said employers should show a spirit of toleration and to seek to gain co-operation founded on confidence in their relations with employees.

JOY NEED PASSAGE TO SEA.

Major Alex. C. Lewis in his address on deep waterways said that the development of a passage to the sea was a duty imperative to both Canada and the United States. "The long haul and high freight rates are a wall against successful Canadian competition in European markets," said he. "This can be pierced by a waterway to the seaboard so that shipments can be made economically and without transshipment."

He urged that the interests of rail and marine transportation interests were one, and that constructive co-operation was necessary to bring about realization of the plans. No exception was made in the case of the New York barge canal, which, he said, would have more traffic than ever under the new conditions, by reason of the industrial growth that would follow the development of the waterpowers on both sides of the international boundary.

H. P. Zimmerman, of Montreal, addressed the Congress at a luncheon meeting at Crystal Beach on the railway's interest in deepening action on its lines by encouraging manufacturing.

VETERANS DUPED

"Patriotic" Sharps in the West.

Winnipeg, Aug. —Charging that the returned men had been duped in land transactions by people who are supposed to be patriotically sympathetic, and announced that W. J. Beck, chairman of the Soldier Settlement Board, and he, had come to organize the Winnipeg office to make the organization so perfect that it would be impossible for land sharks to exploit the veterans of the great war. B. Eaton Paterson, Director of Lands and Loans, declared that the board was determined to take action under the Criminal Code, and enforce the statute to the limit against those it could find engaged in the practices he condemned.

Mr. Black and Mr. Paterson spent to-day in investigating the business of the board in Winnipeg. Mr. Black said he would return to Ottawa to-morrow but Mr. Paterson will remain in the city some time longer.

A JEWEL IN THE ROUGH

Good Luck Row was a little row of small, insignificant cabins toward the back of the city, and at right angles to the direction of the main street. Dawson faces the Yukon, and its main thoroughfare lies parallel with the river. In the summer, when the Yukon and the Klondike, that joins it just above, are free, the waters of the two rivers united come rolling in by jubilant majesty, tossing those blocks of ice, the remnants of their winter chains, on their swelling tide. They form a little eddy in front of the city, and their waters roll outward and swirl back again to their course, as if the great stream made a bow to the city front as it swept past. Here in the summer, with the steamboats plowing through the rocking green water, and the sun streaming down upon the banks crowded with active human beings, glistening on the gay signs of the warehouses, with the brilliant azure sky stretched above, and far off the tall green larches piercing it with their slender tops—in the summer this main street is a pleasant, cheerful sight; but now, with the river solid and silent, the banks black and frozen, and the bleak, bitter sky above, it looked more desolate than the inner streets of the town, more uninviting than Good Luck Row, which had little cabins on each side, and where the inhabitants overlooked their opposite neighbor's fire-lit interior instead of the frozen river. The sidewalks of the row were like the other sidewalks of the city—a wealth of soft mud and slush and dirt through the warm weather, and now frozen hard into uneven lumps, big depressions, and rough hummocks. The cabins were uniform in size, small with one fair-sized window in the front, beside the door, which opened straight into the main room, where the front window was. At the back there was another smaller room with a tiny window, looking out over a black, barren ice-field, for Good Luck Row was on the edge of the town.

Katrine lived at No. 13. This cabin had been the last to be occupied, on account of its unlucky number, but Katrine only laughed at it, and painted it very large in white paint upon the door. Here Katrine lived alone, though her father, the little stunted Pole who kept the Pistol Shop, was one of the richest men in the city. And because she lived alone some of her neighbors declared she was not respectable. As a matter of fact, she was more respectable than many of the married women living in the row, and Katrine knew many a story with which she could have started an unsuspecting husband when he came into town after a week or two's absence, but she did not trouble about other people's affairs; she gave her friendship to those who sought it, and headed not at all those who condemned her.

On an afternoon about three weeks after her first meeting with Stephen, Katrine stood in front of her little glass in the centre of her cabin, smoothing her short, glossy hair; when this was flattened with mathematical exactness to her well-shaped head—for Katrine was always trim and neat in her appearance—she turned to the table and wrote on a slip of paper, "I'm next door." This she pinned to the outside of her door, and then locking it, went into the next cabin in the row. She had grown quite accustomed to Stephen's visits now, and generally left a note on her door when she went out, in case he should come unexpectedly in her absence. The cabin she entered presented a different appearance from her own. There was the same large stove opposite the door, the same rough table in the centre and wooden chairs round, but the floor was dirty and gritty—quite unlike Katrine's, which always maintained a white and floury look from her constant attentions—and the stove looked rusty and uncleaned. The small square panes of the window, too, hardly let in any light, they were so obscured by dust inside and snow frozen on them without. By the stove sat a young woman in whose face ill-health and beauty struggled together for predominance. Her hair, twisted into a loose knot at the back of her head was of the lightest gold color, like a young child's, and her face brought to one's mind the idea of milk and sweets, and the skin was so white and smooth as if the eyes so blue. This was the beauty which no disease could kill; but ill-health triumphed in the livid circles round the eyes, the drawn lines around the faded lips. Katrine entered with her brightest smile.

"Well, Annie, are you better to-day?" she asked.

The woman rose with an unsteady movement from the chair, and before she could answer, burst suddenly into a rain of tears. "Better? Oh, Katie, plaid Annie, looking over the other's neat dress and figure dubiously. "I don't mind that. Pick up the baby," Katrine answered, rolling up her sleeves and displaying two rounded muscular arms white as the snow outside. "You'd better move further out of the dust," she added, going down on her knees before the stove. Annie picked up the child and retreated to a chair by the window, from where she watched the other with a sort of hopeless envy.

"Lord! I've grown that weak lately I can't do nothing," she said, after a minute. "You know how nice I used to keep the place for Will when we first came."

Katrine nodded in silence, and two bright tears fell among the wood ash she was taking from the stove. She did remember the bright, active young wife, the united little family moving into the cabin next her only a year ago; she remembered the interior that had always been so neat and clean and cheerful to receive Will when he home, the unceasing devotion of his wife, and the mutual love and hope that had buoyed them up and made them face all hardships smilingly. Then she had watched sorrowfully the gradual deterioration of the man under the constant disappointment; she had met him more and more frequently in the saloons, less and less at his home. She had seen day by day the rapid decline of the bright, beautiful young creature he had brought with him into this, poor, faded wraith, dragging herself about in the neglected, cheerless cabin.

"You'll get stronger again in the warm weather," she said, after a minute, when her voice was steady.

"You wouldn't say that if you'd seen what I saw on the snow that morning when I'd been coughing there back of the wood-shed," returned Annie, drearily, leaning her tired head against the dingy pane.

"What do you mean?" asked Katrine, looking up apprehensively. "Blood?"

The other nodded in silence, and there was quiet in the cabin except for the crooning of the child. Then Katrine rose from the hearth impulsively with a flushed, lovely face and the ash dust on her hair and dress. She went over to Annie and drew her head on to her strong, warm bosom.

"Oh, you poor, poor thing! What can we do?" she said, desperately.

"Nothing," murmured Annie, closing her eyes in the girl's soothing embrace, "unless you could persuade Will to take me home—and nobody could do that now, he's so set upon the gold. That's the second bleeding from the chest that I've had this month; now the third'll do for me."

She shivered as if from cold, and Katrine kissed her and hastened back to her work at the fire. It is not a pleasant nor an easy thing to do to clean out a stove that has been left to itself for a week or more and fresh fires kindled on the old ashes every day; but in a few minutes Katrine had the work completed and the fresh wood crackling and filling the stove with red flame. Then she made the tea rapidly, and neither of them spoke again till Annie held a great tin mug of it to her white lips. Katrine pulled her chair close to the stove again, and took Tim on her own lap, where he found a new toy in her cartridge belt. Annie sipped from her mug and gazed intently into the flames.

"Lord! we were so happy," she said, musingly, a little color coming into her face under the influence of the hot tea and the warmth from the reinvigorated fire. "We had the nicest little home down in Brixham. I dare say you don't know where that is?"

Katrine shook her head.

"It's just the prettiest, sweetest village in the world, down in Devonshire; and we had a cottage there, quite in the country, with pink roses all over the front—I can smell these roses now. Oh, it was lovely; and Will had regular work all the time, and he was the best husband woman ever had. He used to bring his wages in Saturdays and say to me, 'Annie, old girl, ain't there enough there to get on a new ribbon for Sunday or a fresh sash for the baby?' He never spent a penny for drink nor tobacco. And Sundays we'd go out on the downs and stand looking at the sea;

MOSLEMS DISLIKE PICTURES
 An Incident Indicative of Women's Progress in Egypt.

An interesting sidelight was shown recently at a meeting of women in Cairo on the progress that is being made toward overcoming the Moslem prejudices against pictures and the appearance of the unveiled woman in public. Of all Mohammedan prejudices, which seem so strange to westerners, the one against pictures and statuary is the most to be respected or, one should perhaps say, the least to be criticized, since it had its origin undoubtedly in the campaign against Arab idolatry which the Prophet and his followers instituted. It has, of course, been breaking down gradually for a number of years, says the Cairo correspondent of the Christian Science Monitor. For example, the followers of the former Nationalist leader, Mustapa Kamel, could think of no better public memorial of him than a statue, and subscriptions were accordingly asked for with the object of providing one, though it has never seen the light, if, indeed, it was ever made.

The meeting in question was of Egyptian women and was held in a hall of the Egyptian University in memory of Mrs. Malak Hifsi Nassif, who was a foremost writer on feminism in Egypt. As a tribute to her, it was decided to open subscriptions to have a portrait of the lady painted in oils and hung in one of the halls of the university, the consent of the husband having first been obtained. For the privileges of placing the picture on the walls of the university the president of the meeting, Mrs. Sharawi, wife of one of Egypt's landowners, declared she was willing to pay $250 a year to the funds of the university. Thus, although the feminist leader might not, while living, show herself unveiled in public, her face may now be gazed upon by the young men who are studying there, for women are not yet admitted as students, though before the war lectures were given once a week to women. It would appear, therefore, that the idea behind the placing of the portrait in the university is to make it serve as a reminder that Egyptian women have still a long way to go before that equality of opportunity of education is granted to them which will help raise the nation to a higher level of civilization.

SHAH SAW RADIUM

And the Sight Drove Him to Terror.

Radium—most mysterious of the mysteries of modern science—is so little familiar to unscientific men that the panic of the Oriental mentioned here is easily understood. Once, while in Paris, the Shah of Persia expressed a wish to know something of the discovery made by the Curie, husband and wife, famous as the discoverers of radium. The French authorities made the necessary arrangements. Complete darkness is of course needed if radium is to reveal itself in all its brilliancy. After endless trouble the authorities finally persuaded the monarch to descend into one of the hotel cellars that had been arranged for the purpose, and His Majesty, with all his suite, proceeded to the underground apartment. Professor Curie closed the door, switched off the electric light, and uncovered his specimen of radium. A shout of terror between the roar of a lion and the yell of a man being murdered rang out, and was echoed by a hundred others. Amid general excitement and consternation the French authorities hastened to the electric switches, and turned on the lights. Then they beheld a strange spectacle. In the midst of the prostrate Persians, with his arms around the neck of his grand vizier, and his round pupils dilated to their very rims, stood the Shah, shouting at the top of his voice in Persian: "Come away! Come away!" The switching on of the light calmed his mad terror as if by magic. Realizing the disappointment and chagrin he had caused, Monsieur Curie, the Shah tried to recompense him by the offer of a decoration. But the austere man of science declined it.

Birds Driven by Storms.

Certain instances of birds found singly far to the north of their usual range are possibly to be explained by the whirl of cyclonic storms. The wind, turning in the south and carries the bird out to sea. But, sooner or later, if the bird has good fortune to last out the experience, the farther spin of the storm tends to bring him ashore again.

Legend of Origin of Flowers.

In Sussex, England, the lily of the valley is said to be a memorial of the battle St. Leonard fought with a dragon. The holy man encountered the monster in the forest and battled with it for three days. At last the saint was victorious though wounded seriously, and wherever his blood dripped upon the ground there sprang up lilies of the valley in profusion. In France the lily of the valley is said to have sprung from the Virgin's tears.

There may be other corn cures, but Holloway's Corn Cure stands at the head of the list so far as results are concerned.

Boiled Salad Dressing.

Beat the yolks of three eggs, half a teaspoonful of mustard, mixed for the table (scant measure), two table-spoonfuls of sugar and one-fourth teaspoonful of salt. When blended, stir in five table-spoonfuls of vinegar. Add also two table-spoonfuls of butter. Stir, and cook over hot water until the mixture is thick and smooth.

attentively and spoke hardly at all. It grew rapidly darker outside and began to snow a little, the peculiar sharp, small snow of Alaska. The two women could hardly see each other's faces in the gloom, when Katrine rose and offered to light the lamp.

"There ain't no oil left," returned Annie, drearily. "I just sit in the dark most of the time—I don't mind as long as I have a bit of fire. It do seem more lonesome, though, when you've no light," she added, with a sigh.

"Haven't you any money to buy it with?"

Annie shook her head. "Not till Will comes back." (To be continued.)

First Dolls.

The first dolls of which there is any knowledge were found among the treasures unearthed from the ruins of Babylon. They were small figures in terra cotta and ivory, beautifully carved and must have been fascinating playthings for little Assyrian children. The little girls of Syria had mechanical dolls. The dolls the classic children played with were made of wax and clay, decorated with bright colors. As these children married very young they played with their dolls until just before their wedding day.

FREQUENT HEADACHES

A Sure Sign That the Blood is Watery and Impure.

People with thin blood are much more subject to headaches than full-blooded persons and the form of anaemia that afflicts growing girls is almost always accompanied by headaches, together with disturbance of the digestive organs. Whenever you have constant or recurring headaches and pallor of the face, they show that the blood is thin and your efforts should be directed toward building up your blood. A fair treatment with Dr. Williams' Pink Pills will do this effectively, and the rich red blood made by these pills will remove the headache. More disturbances to the health are caused by their blood than most people have any idea of. When your blood is impoverished, the nerves suffer from lack of nourishment, and you may be troubled with insomnia, neuritis, neuralgia or sciatica. Muscles subject to strain are undernourished and you may have muscular rheumatism or lumbago. If your blood is thin and you begin to show symptoms of any of these disorders try building up the blood with Dr. Williams' Pink Pills, and as the blood is restored to its normal condition every symptom of the trouble will disappear. There are more people who owe their present state of good health to Dr. Williams' Pink Pills than to any other medicine, and most of them do not hesitate to say so. You can get Dr. Williams' Pink Pills through any dealer in medicine or by mail at 50 cents a box or six boxes for $2.50 from the Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

All in Well-Chosen Library.

Said Emerson: "Consider what you have in the smallest chosen library. A company of the wisest and wittiest men that could be picked out of all the civil countries in a thousand years have set in best order the results of their learning and wisdom. The men themselves were hid and inaccessible, solitary, impatient of interruption, fenced by etiquette; but the thought which they did not uncover to their bosom friend is here written out in transparent words to us, the strangers of another age."

Cheapest of All Oils.—Considering the curative qualities of Dr. Thomas' Electric Oil it is the cheapest of all preparations offered to the public. It is to be found in every drug store in Canada from coast to coast, and all country merchants keep it for sale. So, being easily procurable and extremely moderate in price, no one should be without a bottle of it.

NO DANGER YET
 "Aren't you afraid your cook will leave you to marry that fellow who gives her so much attention?" asked Mrs. White.

"Oh no," replied Mrs. Brown, "not as long as he stays in the taxicab-flowers-and-theatre stage."

Miller's Worm Powders, being in demand everywhere, can be got at any chemist's or drug shop, at very small cost. They are a standard remedy for worm troubles and can be fully relied upon to expel worms from the system and abate the sufferings that worms cause. There are many mothers that rejoice that they found available so effective a remedy for the relief of their children.

it do come in so splendid there, and the wind from it seems to put new life in yer. We was as happy and as well as could be, all of us; and then them newspapers got to printing all those tales of the gold in the Klondike, and Will be just got mad-like, and nothing would do but he must sell the house and come out here. He thought he'd come back so rich; well, so he may, but he won't have no wife to go back with."

She lay back in her chair, and Katrine, gazing at her white face and transparent hands, said nothing.

"I'm glad I stuck to Will, though," the woman went on softly after a minute, "and didn't let him come out here alone. A wife's place is by her husband wherever he goes, and I'd rather die with him than be separated. But there, I do hate the name of gold. It broke up our home, it's broke up our lives, and it's just killed me, that's what it's done. And what's the good of it? Why, so I said to Will before we came, 'We can't be no more than happy, and we're that now.'"

Katrine said nothing. She was one of those women who in society would have gained the name of a good conversationalist, for she always listened

Harlem

Mr. Merley Lawson, of this place, and Miss Mildred Whalen, of Plum-hollow, motored to Brockville and were married there one day last week in the presence of a few near relatives. They will reside at Lawson's Corners a mile east of Harlem.
Mr. Walter Aimes, of Brockville, is moving his family to Harlem.
The Harlem social of 1920 was held on the Methodist church lawn, on the evening of the 4th inst., and was the greatest ever. People from a distance praised the ladies the quantity and quality of their cooking and the nice way in which the large attendance was handled, and the provision made for the comfort and enjoyment of everybody.
All the forenoon of the Civic Holiday, the road was lined with autos and other vehicles on their way to the Portland regatta which eclipsed all former meetings of that sort held by the Rideau Aquatic Association. The Workman boat was a marvel in the eyes of all the aquatic sports. Its speed, its beauty and the ease with which it could be managed was dilated upon by all.
This wonderful craft was designed and fitted out by a Portlander, Mr. William Dowsett, who was much congratulated by not only his friends but other enthusiastic water people.
We rise to suggest that Sir Thomas Lipton let Mr. Dowsett build him a boat to carry away the much coveted America Cup and that it be called not the Shamrock but the Maple Leaf.
A number from here attended the Portland social on Thursday night. They report a high old time and good financial results.

Mile-a-minute motor boats will also provide much excitement while lovers of thrills will find an additional treat on Saturday August 28, and Monday, August 30, when the great dirt track kings of the continent will hold a two-day automobile meet. There will be a regular programme of races and to lend additional interest special purses of $1,000 and $500 have been provided for the drivers establishing a new world's or Dominion record for half mile track. The entries include Sig's Haugdahl the world's dirt track champion, Bob Kline, Burr Lampkin, the British sensation, and others equally well known.

QUERIES

God says "Our duty is to visit the fatherless and widow in their affliction, and keep ourselves unspotted from the world." How many church members do this? How many Christians take their Auto or Carriage to the home of the invalid and take them out for a drive in order to put a little sunshine into their lives.
How many of the praying people visit the shut-in ones and spend an hour with them to help them along the way? to cheer them in their loneliness? The Blessed Christ went about doing good, helping the needy ones. Are we, his children following His example in scattering seeds of kindness, in nailing sunbeams to the wall.
Are we doing to others, as we wish them to do to us. When we scatter roses, not thorns in the pathway of our fellow travellers? (One of those who care)

In the first few years of the Canadian National Exhibition the bulk of the crowds were carried to the grounds by ferries running into Dufferin street slip. The street cars then ran only to Strachan avenue and King street and were horse drawn.

NEW RECORDS LOOKED FOR AT CANADIAN NATIONAL

"Work and Prosper" is the motto adopted for the 1920 Canadian National Exhibition and the entire machinery of the organization has been turned to the task of making the forty-second annual event a striking exemplification of the appropriateness of the slogan. Unwilling to rest on the standard of previous expositions the Directors and management have utilized every resource of this mighty Canadian institution in the effort to make the position of the enterprise more noteworthy. Early indications point to new records in every department, perhaps also in matter of attendance which reached the magnificent total of 1,201,000 last year. a figure never attained even by the monster world fairs at Paris, London, Chicago, San Francisco, etc. In the same number of consecutive days. To be one of the crowd that establishes an even greater record this year will in itself be a thing to boast about, but even more important still will be the fact that all who come will see a field of marvels which will make the Big Fair undoubtedly the most remarkable and interesting array of activity and achievement ever presented.

Catarhal Deafness Cannot be Cured by local applications, as they cannot reach the diseased portion of the ear. There is only one way to cure catarrhal deafness, and that is by a constitutional remedy. Catarhal deafness is caused by an inflamed condition of the mucous lining of the Eustachian Tube. When this tube is inflamed you have a rumbling sound or imperfect hearing, and when it is entirely closed, Deafness is a result. Unless the inflammation can be reduced and this tube restored to its normal condition, hearing will be destroyed forever. Many cases of deafness are caused by catarrh, which is an inflamed condition of the mucous surfaces. Hall's Catarhal Medicine acts thru the blood on the mucous surfaces of the system.

We will give one hundred dollars for any case of Catarhal Deafness that cannot be cured by Hall's Catarhal Medicine. Circulars free. All Druggists, 75c.

MANY THRILLERS AT THE CANADIAN NATIONAL

Cole, Bishop and Barker will again have charge of the flying at the Canadian National Exhibition this year. Five machines of the latest and speediest types will be in use each evening and a display of daring and aerial skill even greater than last year is assured.

Miss Toronto, the boat which will take part in the races off the waterfront, recently established a world's record for a mile at 52.7 seconds and averaged 56 miles in her two forty-mile races for the Webb trophy. She showed an official mile at 68.3 miles an hour and unofficially made 70 miles an hour on Toronto Bay and her owners expect to attain 72 miles before the season is over.

Better Than He Seemed

Not long ago we heard a Canadian nurse tell of a wounded soldier who was a sad grumbler. The wounded man had been up in Serbia and had had very little bread, and when they came to the hospital bread was a great treat to them.

Men are always better than their worst. We are apt to think that a man should be measured by the worst he does or says, but this is exceedingly unfair, and there is none of us who is willing to be measured so himself.

SPRUCE SEED

Heavy Crop This Year Should Be Gathered.

The Commission of Conservation has received reports from a number of points in Ontario, Quebec and New Brunswick indicating that this is an exceptionally heavy seed year for white spruce in eastern Canada.

White spruce seed ripens in September, and the cones should be collected just before they open. If picked too early, the seeds will be immature, and if left till the cones open, the seeds will have dropped out.

The increasing attention being given to reforestation has developed a large home market for tree seeds. In addition to the various governmental and commercial nurseries, several of the pulp companies, including the Laurentide, Abitibi, Spanish River and Riordan have nurseries.

During the last few years the demand for tree seeds has always exceeded the supply and this spring $10 per lb. could be secured for white spruce seed. This, however, is exceptionally high, $5 being considered a reasonable price.

HIS ONE THING IN LIFE

There is a story told in Holland of an amorous youth who was called upon to answer the first question in the Heidelberg catechism: "What is thine only comfort in life and death?" To which the young man replied: "To marry Geetje De Koning and to have a farm of my own."

Whether this actually happened or not, illustrates precisely the feeling of the young man on the Holland farm. His father does not turn his hand to manual labor, for the 100 or 150 acres call for many hands that must be watched and guided.

The well-behaved Boerenzoon attends no fairs or races because there are usually accompanied by disgusting orgies. Socials, too, are infrequent among the rural people of Holland. The chief opportunity for courting is at the church. It is interesting to watch the lads at service. The seats are so ranged that everybody can not only look at the preacher, but also at every one else, except, of course, those who are directly behind.

Reasonably certain of a favorable reception from the girl, the young man drives over to call on her. The most usual time is Saturday evening. When he reaches her home she may be still scrubbing in the milk house, and he must somehow occupy the time with "Papa." At last she enters the room, and his embarrassment is extreme. But a pleasant smile brings back his courage, and almost in whispers he requests to see her for a moment by herself. The request is readily granted.

But in every instance is the road toward matrimony clear. Fathers and mothers go carefully into the records of those who wish to be affiliated with them. Whatever stain may rest upon the career of a boy or girl, or on that of their parents, is mercilessly laid bare. The life of the Dutch farmer's son is exceptionally pure, but there are cases where the wooer never knew just why his loved one no longer accepted his attentions. But somewhere, either in his life or in that of his parents there was a blot. Honor stands first in Holland.

Perilous Poison Ivy

Poison ivy is not a true ivy. It belongs to the sumach family and its generic name is rhus. There are two species of rhus in our district that are known to be poisonous to the touch. Poison sumach, or rhus vernix, is a shrubby tree seldom found outside of swamps. Its poisonous effect is similar to that of ivy and requires the same treatment. Rhus radicans is the vine known variously as poison ivy, three-leaved ivy, poison oak, stinkhemp and mercury. It is found everywhere, in our parks, by the roadside climbing over fences and trees, and in some cases has been used as an ornamental wall cover.

The leaves of poison ivy are trifoliate or three-parted, and the leaflets may be "entire or sparingly dentate" (with a toothed or wavy margin). They may not be more than an inch in length or they may exceed four or five inches. The leaf stems are green or reddish in color. Virginia creeper, parthenocissus quinquefolia, is sometimes mistaken for poison ivy, which is a safer mistake to make than the reverse, for this is not poisonous to the touch. It can be readily distinguished by its five leaflets.

Cases of poisoning are more frequent in spring or summer, in part because warm sunny days invite one more frequently into the woods and fields, and in part, perhaps, because the fresh young growth gives off its poison more freely than.

Many persons are apparently immune to this poisoning, handling either ivy or sumach with impunity, probably more persons being free from the evil effects than are susceptible to its poison. Such immunity, however, is not to be depended on.

Whether you take poison or are immune, it is always safer to avoid the plant, but, with prompt and proper treatment its effect need not ordinarily be a serious matter.

The first noticeable symptom of rhus poisoning is a slight tingling or itching sensation between the fingers or on the wrist or forearm. If the inclination to scratch is yielded to, the slight itching soon becomes violent and almost unbearable. These are broken by the nails in scratching and the poison is thus spread to other parts of the body, and if not soon checked may get into the blood and become really serious.

There are many remedies for rhus poisoning, the most used being lead-water and laudanum. An infusion of ordinary chestnut leaves or of grindeola robusta leaves is said to be good. So a claim that the juice of common milkweed, asclepias syriaca, sometimes called ox tongue, is a sure cure. Fluid extracts of phytolacca, common pokeweed, was recommended to the writer, but the only effect noted was a more prominent definition of the pustules. Common salt rubbed in dry is useful, and a solution of hydrosulphate of soda finds favor with some—any alkaline solution seeming to have a good effect.

While any of the above may be beneficial, they are not at all times readily available. A cheaper and better preventive is which should be within the easy reach of all—common soap and hot water. As soon as the itching is first noticed wash with soap suds as hot as can be borne, and the chances are that there will be no further annoyance. If the washing is done immediately after contact with ivy, probably all evil effect will be avoided.

of one day it would be very foolish and untrue to say that it was the hottest summer we had ever known. The average, and not the hottest day, will settle that. And because of this, the thermometer touched 50 degrees below zero one day, it would be a foolish thing to say that it was the coldest winter ever known. And to judge a man by the unkindest word he ever said or the unfairest act he ever did is equally foolish. And when men ask us, "What kind of man is this?" it is a most unfair thing for us to give as an answer a recital of the worst we know about him.

necessary suffering. We are not apologizing for these things, but we think that while we regret them and endeavor to get rid of them we should not fail to recognize that very often they are not intentional.

But why should we plead for the recognition of the good in men? Simply because it seems true that too often we feel it to be our duty to attack a man's sins rather than to praise his virtues, and we fail to see that by continuous fault-finding we are hopelessly alienating the man. He is not as bad as we paint him, and he knows it, and he resents our treatment as unfair. So far as we understand men, most of them honor a man or woman who will honestly point out their faults, providing they do it without the assumption of indisputable moral superiority, and providing they recognize at the same time the good that is in those whom they criticize. And the man that wants to get the best out of school children, workmen, politicians or church members, must recognize the good in them. Men get very tired of hearing that the old world is going to the dogs, and the man who would keep it from going to the dogs had better have in his heart a wholesome respect for it, even with all its faults.

The Bee as an Architect.

A famous mathematician of the early eighteenth century who perceived that the bottoms of the cells in a beehive were formed by three lozenge-shaped plates measured the angles of the lozenges. The greater were 108 degrees 28 minutes, the lesser 70 degrees 32 minutes. Another man of science marveling at the precision of the angles propounded the following problem to Konig the geometer: "What are the angles of a hexagonal cell when a pyramidal bottom formed of three similar and equal rhomboid plates that require the least possible material?" Konig, ignorant of what he suggested the problem found by calculus that the greater angles of the rhombs should be 109 degrees 26 minutes and the lesser angles 70 degrees 34 minutes. He was wrong by two minutes in each dimension. What human architect has equalled the economy of the bees?

RED MITES.
(Ottawa Journal.)

Of course, at this time of the year or a little later the laying hens will cease production to a certain extent and many of them go into moult, but the presence of mites is sure to retard egg production more than any one thing next to moulting in the hens at the present time. So if you have any reason to suspect mites, get after them without delay and proceed as follows:

Of all the many varieties of vermin that infest fowl, the Red Mite is the most troublesome. Unlike the ordinary hen louse, they are not as a rule, found on the fowl, neither are they killed by dusting, as the ordinary body louse is; these pests breed very rapidly especially during the hot weather, usually in cracks containing filth or in dirty nesting material. They are not red in color as is popularly supposed, but grey; it is only after they have come into contact with the fowl and have become filled with blood that they appear red. The young mites are white and have only six legs, but after casting their skins, which they do several times, they have eight legs. The cast skins may be seen like a white powder around the perches, this often being the first indication of the presence of mites. They are able to live and reproduce for months without animal food, the first food of the young probably being filth or decayed wood. They thrive best in dark, dirty houses, and have been found to exist in houses the following season after the fowl have been removed. They usually attack the birds at night, but are sometimes found on laying hens and they frequently drive broody hens from the nest. They pierce the skin with their needle-like jaws and suck the blood, after which they retire to the seclusion of the cracks and crevices of the roosts, nests or other parts of the house. They will bite man or other animal, causing severe irritation, but they never remain on them for any length of time.

REMEDIES.
If the fowl are not doing well and on examination are thinner than they should be, a sharp lookout should be kept for mites. At night they may be seen either on the fowl, or running along the perches; in the daytime examine the cracks and crevices of the roosts and walls closely, or lift the roosts and examine the places where they come in contact with the supports. If mites are found to be present, the first step in banishing them is to give the house a thorough cleaning. Remove all droppings and old nesting material, scrape and wash out every particle of dirt and burn it. Then if you are so fortunately situated that you have water pressure at your command, turn on the hose with as much pressure as you can get, forcing the water into every crack; if as is the case on most farms, you cannot use this method it is advisable to scrub down the walls with a brush or old broom, but in any case they should be thoroughly sprayed or painted with a good strong disinfectant. This wash should be repeated in a few days to destroy the mites which hatch after the first application. The disinfectant may be applied with a hand spray-pump or, if such is not available, a brush will do, but in either case the fluid should be used liberally and every crack flooded.

DISINFECTANTS.
Fresh air and sunlight are wonderful disinfectants and, combined with cleanliness, are preventatives against most of the ills of the poultry yard. One of the very best disinfectants to use against mites is made as follows: Dissolve one pound and a half of concentrated lye in as small a quantity as possible. It will be necessary to do this two or three hours before it is required, as the lye should be cold when used. Put three quarts of raw linseed oil into a five-gallon stone crock and pour in the lye very slowly, stirring meanwhile. Keep on stirring until a smooth liquid soap is produced, then gradually add two gallons of crude carbolic acid or commercial creosol, stirring constantly until the resulting fluid is a clear dark brown. Use two or three tablespoons of the mixture to a gallon of water. The foregoing is offered as a most effective remedy against mites; but those who regard the preparation of the mixture as too much work may use a good strong solution of "Zeno-leum" or any other creolin preparation.

Ordinary coal oil will kill the mites, but as it evaporates quickly the effects are not so lasting. An excellent "paint" to apply to the roosts the nest-boxes is composed of one part crude carbolic to three or four parts of coal oil. Even after the house has been cleaned, the cracks in the roosts and nest-boxes should be flooded at regular intervals throughout the summer either with the foregoing "paint" or with coal oil. This will go far to keep the pests in check, but it must be regarded simply as a check, and the thorough or annual house-cleaning described above put into effect as soon as possible.

GET RID OF THE MALES.
The presence of male birds in the flock during the summer months has a decidedly detrimental effect upon the production of eggs and poultry producers lose many thousands of dollars annually through the presence of partially incubated and bad eggs in the produce they market. Reports are now being received from all parts of the country of the number of partially incubated eggs appearing in current receipts. Producers do not realize that it is unnecessary for a fertile egg to be placed under a broody hen to cause the germ to grow; a temperature of seventy degrees is sufficient to start incubation. If the heat is constant, the development of the chick will continue, but if it ceases or is intermittent, putrefaction at once sets in and no place or value in shipments, and should they get to the consumer the consumptive demand immediately falls off.

The male bird is not essential in egg production, his usefulness is over when the supply of fertile eggs for the season has been secured. The hens will lay just as many eggs when the male bird has been removed, and the eggs will be more suitable for consumption, packing or storing. Further, there is a distinct financial gain to the producer who markets infertile eggs, because the best trade in many cities offers a premium of from one to five cents a dozen for infertile eggs. Then there is the question of feed. It costs money to feed poultry, and with feed at its present value, the consumption of feed by males kept for no particular purpose is a serious economic waste. The reason for this is that the best prices for live and dressed fowl prevail in the spring and early summer. During the summer the price declines, and by the early fall when many producers decide to market their male birds, a lower price than prevailed in the spring has to be accepted; the producer thus losing the amount per pound the market has declined, plus the value of the feed consumed by the birds during the summer months. This financial loss takes on a more serious aspect when it is coupled with the amount charged back by the wholesaler for the bad and partially incubated eggs that have been marketed.

Farmers and others selling eggs for market should, therefore, need no urging to kill off, dispose of, or at least remove the male birds from the flock.

The Sins and Sorrows of David
2 Samuel 12:9, 10; 18:1-15.

Commentary—1. David's sin (12:9, 10). 9. Despised the commandment of the Lord—These words form a part of the message Nathan the prophet brought from the Lord to King David, who was guilty of having violated the sixth and seventh commandments. Thou hast killed Uriah the Hittite—Even though David was king, the prophet fearlessly brought to him this charge from the Lord. David had committed adultery with Bathsheba, the wife of Uriah the Hittite, and planned the death of Uriah to cover his sin. Uriah was a Canaanite, yet one of David's mighty men (2 Sam. 23:39). Taken his wife to be thy wife—After Uriah's death David took Bathsheba for his own wife. With the sword of the children of Ammon—David had procured the death of Uriah by sending word to Joab to place him in the forefront of the battle with the Ammonites, with whom Israel's army was then fighting. Thus Uriah was slain, but David was responsible for his death. He was guilty of adultery and murder. 10. The sword shall never depart from thine house—Some interpret this to indicate that violence would continue in David's family as long as he should live. Amnon's murder (2 Sam. 13:28). Absalom's death (18:14) and Adonijah's execution (1 Kings 2:25) are instances; yet violence was frequently in evidence down to the final captivity of the nation (2 Kings 21:1-8).

1. Numbered the people that were with him—David was a fugitive from Jerusalem because his son Absalom had conspired against him and seized the throne and held it three months. David had gathered an army, estimated by Josephus as four thousand. These he mustered and organized for the approaching battle. 2. A shield of brass—He divided his men into three companies that he might succeed in dividing the forces of the enemy. Joab—He was the ablest general of his time and a man upon whom David relied in this campaign. David was himself a warrior, and even if his army was smaller than Absalom's, he had great military leaders, and trained soldiers. I will surely go forth with you—He purposed to take the chief part in the engagement. 3. Thou shalt not go forth—So important was it that David's life should be preserved that it seemed best to his people for him to remain at a safe distance from the battle. If David should remain in Mahanaim, he would be able to send reinforcements wherever they might be needed. 4. What seemeth you best I will do—The king was inclined to yield to the wishes and judgment of his people. 5. Deal gently for my sake with—Absalom—Notwithstanding the fact that Absalom had deeply grieved, dishonored and injured him, David had deep affection for his son, who was bent on having the throne at the cost of the life of the king, his father. 6. The people—The supporters of David. Against Israel—The followers of Absalom. It was in reality one faction of Israel against another. Here is an indication of the line of cleavage between Israel and Judah. Wood of Ephraim—The exact location of this forest is not known, but it was probably not far from Mahanaim toward the Jordan. 7. The people of Israel were slain—Since twenty thousand of Absalom's men fell in the battle, we conclude that he must have had an immense army in comparison with that of David. Evidently the Lord undertook for the king and gave him a decided victory over the rebellious army. 8. The battle was there scattered—The surface of the country was such that the army could not well keep together and David's men were separated into three divisions. The wood devoured more people—than the

The wealth of Canada is not all centred in its grain fields, its herd, its mines or timber. sword—"The explanation generally given is that they perished in the pits and precipices and morasses of the forest; but this seems unlikely. More probably it means that, owing to the nature of the ground, more were slain in the pursuit through the forest, than in the actual battle."
III. Absalom's Death (18:9-15). 9. Absalom met the servants of David—Absalom in flight found himself among his enemies and hastened to escape from them. head caught hold of the oak—As he rode among the low spreading trees of the forest, his head caught in the fork of a branch and, his mule passing on, left him there suspended. Many suppose that, since his hair was exceedingly heavy Joab—the man would not disobey the king's order by killing Absalom, and therefore told Joab. 11. ten shekels of silver—the shekel was about a half ounce in weight, and its value varied. The ten shekels would be equivalent to two or three dollars, a girdle—This was worn to hold the loose clothing about the waist, and was often of expensive workmanship. 12. against the king's son—The man was loyal to David. 13. against mine own life—I was not simply respect for the king that kept him from touching Absalom, but he feared for his own life. 14. thrust them through the heart—Joab acted contrary to the king's express orders, but he was shrewd enough to see that David would not be secure in his kingdom while Absalom was alive, therefore he took the responsibility of taking his life. 15. ten young men—These armor-bearers constantly accompanied Joab.

Questions—Into what time did David fall? What declaration did the prophet Nathan bring to him from the Lord. Who was Absalom? What course did he take to obtain the kingdom? How and where was he proclaimed king? What course did David take while Absalom marched toward Jerusalem? How did Absalom's army compare in size with that of David? What directions did David give his army regarding Absalom? Describe the battle and the results.

PRACTICAL SURVEY.
Topic—Elements of weakness in David's character.

I. David's sin.
II. David's sorrows
III. David's sin. The period of David's reign was marked by a successful war against the Ammonites, in which he punished the insult to his ambassadors who bore a message of condolence to their newly-elected king, whose father had been his friend and ally. A decisive battle was fought before Rabbah, the capital of Ammon. In connection with the succeeding campaign occurred the sad fall which embittered the remainder of the king's life; and which has "given great occasion to the enemies of the Lord to blaspheme." On this occasion David remained in Jerusalem—it had been better if he had gone to the field of battle—and his self-indulgent luxury led him into temptation and wrought his fall. In the presence of this experience how appropriate his later prayer, "turn away mine eyes from beholding vanity." Through eye-gate was the successful assault made upon the king's soul, as upon myriads of others before and since. One sin necessitates another and deeper one for its concealment. When the consequences of his sin seemed likely to expose himself to shame and Bathsheba to death, the attempt to conceal his guilt only displayed more clearly the nobility and patriotism of his outraged subject. Treachery and murder followed adultery, and upright Uriah was made the bearer of his own death warrant. Bathsheba throughout seems to have been a willing accomplice and Joab became the instrument of the dark artifice. Not a sentence of sacred writ approves of David's course.

II. David's sorrows. Sin and sorrow must be forever inseparable in a universe founded in holiness. Punishment is necessary to vindicate the justice of the divine government. The Hebrew nation had been chosen as his special inheritance, and as their king, David was appointed to stand in a peculiar and intimate relation to himself. He was bound to obedience by even greater obligations than his subjects. Hence his appalling sin must be openly punished (2 Sam. 12:12). Even the "godly sorrow that worketh repentance" does not necessarily avert the temporal consequences of transgression. There is an important sense in which there is no forgiveness; and the source of sinful leisure will become the spring of bitterness, though the moral transgression is pardoned. Nathan pronounced a special punishment for David's sin in addition to the woes which naturally resulted from his polygamy and his weak parental indulgence. The spirit of the Bible is seen in the judgment which followed him and shadowed his life. "It is a fearful thing to fall into the hands of the living God." The immediate punishment embraced both the guilty paramours. David was called upon, as is every other, to prove the sincerity of his repentance by his submission to the penalty which followed. It began at once and was but the beginning of the prolonged consequences. From this time forth David was tormented by new and unexpected reminders of his transgression. There are foregleams of retribution even in this life.

Spirit Meant for All
That spirit which suffices quiet hearts, which seems to come forth to such from every dry knoll of sere grass, from every pine stump, and half-imbudded stone on which the dull March sun shines, comes forth to the poor and hungry, and to such as are of simple taste.—Emerson.

WIRELESS SONG ACROSS OCEAN

St. John's, Nfld., Aug. 1.—When Chelmsford, Eng., was giving a wireless telephone demonstration to Denmark at 5 p.m., on Saturday, the experimental station on Signal Hill here picked up the sounds and heard, without interruption, the words uttered by H. J. Rounds, the manager at Chelmsford, who was talking with the operator in Denmark.
Mr. Rounds was heard to tell Denmark that Melchior would sing, Signal Hill kept in touch and heard distinctly four songs sung in Danish, as well as the conversation that followed between Denmark and Chelmsford. Chelmsford and St. John's are 2,673 miles apart.

GENERAL STAFF Adopted By Council At San Sebastian.

San Sebastian, Spain, Aug. 3.—A plan proposed by M. Leon Bourgeois, the French spokesman in the League of Nations Council, and the French General Fayolle for an international general staff as part of the League of Nations, has been adopted here. The staff is to be composed of the ablest of military and naval men, who will act as agents of the League. The members will be in conference as often as need be, and in event of impending difficulties which might mean armed conflict they will draw up plans in advance so as to be ready for emergencies.

$6 AND BOARD. What Farm Labor is Demanding in Quebec.

Montreal, Aug. 4.—That there is a scarcity of agricultural labor, and, further, that such labor as is offered commands unheard of wages, was the consensus of opinion of the many farmers who met yesterday at St. Norbert, Berthier County, on the occasion of the demonstration of a labor saving haying machine.
"The ordinary farm laborer now demands as high as six dollars a day and his board," asserted Mr. Pierre Lavallee, on whose farm the demonstration was being held. "That is a new record in farm labor," he added.
"But even at such high wages there is a scarcity of labor," Mr. Lavallee declared.

OUR CROPS LOOK FINE

Ottawa, Aug. 7.—(Canadian Press.)—With the danger period already past, and cutting started in several western areas the crop situation from end to end of Canada is to-day in excellent condition, according to Dr. J. H. Grisdale, Deputy Minister of Agriculture, who is just back from the wheat field. There has been practically no hail damage this year, except in very few localized areas and there is practically an absence of rust or grasshopper damage. "The crop will be well above average," was Dr. Grisdale's comment.

NOW HE KNOWS. Leading British Spiritualist Found Poisoned.

London, Aug. 7.—Prof. Jackson Crawford, of Belfast, one of the leading figures of the psychic research movement in the United Kingdom, is dead as a result of poisoning. His body was found at a lonely spot on the shore.
Prof. Crawford was the author of the sensational theory that "table rapping" and other manifestations produced by "matter" were the result of activities of mysterious substances extracted from the bodies of the mediums during the seances, and which returned to the mediums at the conclusion of the seances.
He had demonstrated to scientists that his medium, Miss Golliger, lost twenty pounds of actual weight during a seance, but regained it immediately afterward.
The discovery of the body of Dr. Crawford has created a renewed interest in the theory of Father Vaughan, the noted priest and publicist, that spiritualism unbalances the mind.
