Not Understood.
Not understood. We move along steadily. Our paths grow wider as the seasons creep along the years; we marvel and we wonder why life is life. And then we fall asleep.
Not understood.
Not understood. The secret springs of action which lie beneath the surface and the show are disregarded; with self satisfaction We judge our neighbors and they often go
Not understood.
Not understood. How trifles often change us! The thoughtless sentence or the fancied slight Destroy long years of friendship and estrangement And on our soil there falls a freezing blight.
Not understood.
Not understood. How many hearts are aching For lack of sympathy! Ah, day by day, How many hearts are aching for sympathy!
Oh God! that men would see a little clearer; Or judge less harshly where they cannot see; Oh God! that men would drive a little nearer To one another; there'd be nearer There.
And understood.

His Helpmeet.
The minister was trying to fix his mind on his sermon, but in reality he was thinking about his wife and thinking with a dull pain in his heart how miserable he was.
He had brought her, a bride, to the parsonage a little over six months ago, and with a young husband's enthusiasm he had imagined she would find happiness there for herself and make happiness for others.
But the young wife had done neither of the two. From the very first she had set herself apart. She had expressed an open dislike for old Mrs. Allen, who was one of the pillars of the church, standing by it in all its struggles; and she criticized with cutting sarcasm the women of both the missionary and aid societies.
"They use such poor grammar and are really but half educated," she declared.
"But," he answered, "you cannot expect all church members to be college graduates like yourself, Lily. It takes all kinds of people to make up the membership of a church. All of them have not had your advantages. You must not expect too much, dear."
But the minister's young wife did not reply. Gradually she dropped out of active church work, busying herself with her books, her music and her own interests.
The minister began to wonder, daily, how it was going to end. There were cool looks and curt nods between the members of the church and his wife now, and he had no hope for such great things. It was hindering his usefulness; the minister saw that, yet how was he to apply the remedy. Lily was his wife; he had married her and was bound to stand by her, even if he knew her attitude to be wrong.
He sighed heavily. He loved his wife, he loved his people, and he loved his work.
Just then a knock sounded. Lily was busy with her music. He could hear her playing as he opened the door.
A stout, florid faced man stood there smiling. "Good morning," he said bashfully.
The minister's face brightened at once. "Come in," he said taking the big hand.
The man followed him into the pleasant, sunny study. It was Mark Sanford, one of the members of his church. He lived with his wife and children out at the edge of town, on a place he tended and gardened himself.
"Well, Mr. Whitney," he began, "I've come to ask a favor—" he went on, "and I thought it would be nice to have a little surprise for her. I've asked a few of the neighbors to come in, and I've the supper all planned, but it won't be complete without you. Do you think you and your wife could come out Thursday evening and help celebrate?" he asked. "You see, my wife works so hard and has so little pleasure. The children keep her busy most of the time and her old father lives with us. Between us she is not idle. I made up my mind that this birthday should be a little different. She's such a good woman—" his voice broke. "If I should sit here all day I couldn't begin in that time to tell you what she has been to me. Let this be a happy birthday, and I desire above all things that you and your wife come and help make it so."

The minister smiled, but somehow his smile was a little sad. "I'll see, Mark," he said gently. "I'll tell my wife, and if we can possibly arrange it you may count on us."
"Who was the big, common looking man who called this morning?" asked his wife at dinner.
The minister's heart sunk. "Mark Sanford, one of our members. He wants to give his wife a birthday surprise and has invited you and me to his house that evening to help celebrate it."
"Do you want to go?" his wife asked, turning her large eyes upon him, such beautiful, unhappy eyes as they were, too.
"I ought to go," he corrected gently. "Mark Sanford is an honest, hard-working fellow and he is a member of my church. I do not see how we can refuse."
"Very well, I suppose we must go, then," she answered.
Nothing more was said, but when she came down dressed for the birthday party, she noticed that her hair had been arranged in its prettiest fashion.
They were the first arrivals. Mark Sanford's wife in a blue gingham apron, opened the door herself.
"Why, she cried, a pleased expression lighting up her face, "if it isn't the minister and his wife!"
"She ushered them into a plain, little room, where an old man was sitting. "Father," she smiled, "here is the minister and his wife. They have come all the way out to see us."
"And then before the minister and his wife had time to sit down, there was a sound of merry voices, and someone called out, "Happy Birthday!"
"I'll have to slip out of this dress," said Mark's wife coming towards the minister's wife. "Will you please look me up, and if you will just once fix my hair like yours, I will surely have a happy birthday. Yours always looks so pretty. It is a pleasure to look at you."
The minister's wife actually smiled. Somehow in this humble little home, where so much love was, her cold reserve melted. She slipped the gown over the stooped shoulders and looked it up. She also arranged the pretty, soft hair, and in addition to it all she took a jeweled pin from her own locks and put it deftly in the dark braids.
"My birthday gift," she said gently, and you may have many more."
"Mark Sanford's wife turned. "I love you," she said, "I don't see why—" she paused.
"Why other people don't," supplemented the minister's wife. "I'll tell you; because I don't deserve it."
Somehow she felt as if she must make that birthday surprise a success. She knew all kinds of games and she soon set the young people to playing them. She sang for them, too. When it came time to serve the little supper, it was she who put the halibut touches to the table and made a salad that had been overlooked.
At 11 o'clock the guests began to depart. The minister was too surprised to say much when Mark Sanford's wife came up and kissed Lily. "It was the very nicest birthday I ever had," she said happily, "and it was all because of you. You will be friends with me, won't you?"
And the clear eyes seemed to flash back the understanding message; "Don't be afraid, I will."

Cerebro-Spinal Meningitis.
ISSUED BY THE DEPARTMENT OF THE PUBLIC HEALTH, NOVA SCOTIA.
Special interest is being taken in cerebro spinal meningitis at the present time because of the number of cases which have occurred amongst our troops, both in their training camps and at the front. In consequence much uneasiness has been caused by the development of several cases of the disease in different parts of the province. It is quite right that attention should be given to this disease and to the methods which may prevent its spread, although it is doubtful if the condition is really more prevalent now than in past winters. For several years past this disease has been causing an average of nearly sixty deaths annually in our province. There is probably no greater cause for alarm now than there has been in previous years, but it is none the less highly desirable that everyone should do his part in an effort to suppress a disease which causes such exquisite suffering and which is so frequently fatal.
There are several bacteria which may cause cerebro spinal meningitis, but the one most commonly responsible for the disease is called the meningococcus. This is usually to be found in the throat and nose of those who are suffering from the disease during the first ten or twelve days of the illness, but as a general rule it is not to be found after the fourteenth day. Occasionally, however, it persists for much longer periods, and into fairly close contact with the patient may become infected. Moreover, whilst there is no evidence that one may harbour meningococci in their mouths and noses for indefinite periods, and may convey the disease to others with whom they come in contact. Some people are 'carriers' of the infection, and studies made in connection with some epidemics prove that a large percentage of those who have been brought into contact with meningitis cases become carriers.
It is thought by some authorities that the carrier is the main factor in the conveyance of this disease from individual to individual. Thus one of the most important points in its control is to eliminate the carrier. This, of course, is impracticable insofar as those who are already carriers are concerned, as it would involve the examination of everyone in the community in order to determine who is and who is not a carrier. But this may be done to prevent the creation of new carriers by careful isolation of all patients suffering from the disease, by thorough disinfection of the discharges from their mouth, nose and bowels, and by the destruction or disinfection of any article which may become soiled with any such discharge. It is in these discharges that the infectious organism is given off by patient or by carrier.
Those who are known to be carriers should pay scrupulous attention to the hygiene of the mouth and nostrils, to the disinfection of their handkerchiefs, dishes, table cutlery, etc., and to covering the mouth and nose while coughing or sneezing. All expectorated matters, nasal discharges, and discharges from the bowel should be disinfected.
Those brought into contact with patients should be careful to cleanse the hands carefully after rendering any service at the bedside, and especially before eating. These should make frequent use of an antiseptic throat and nasal spray, or should gargle the throat and douche the nostrils with a suitable antiseptic solution.
The first essential to success in treatment is an early diagnosis, so there should be no delay in providing the patient with medical care. In the cure of the disease our main reliance is in the early and repeated use of antimeningococcal serum.

The Error of Selfishness.
Imagine a rose that would say to itself: 'I cannot afford to give away all my sweetness and beauty; I must keep it for myself. I will roll up my petals and withhold my fragrance.'
But, behold, the moment the roses tries to stow away its colors and treasures of fragrance, it withholds them from others, they wither. The colors and fragrance do not exist in the unopened bud. It is only when the rose begins to open itself, to give out its sweetness, its life to others that its beauty and fragrance are developed.
So human selfishness defeats its own ends. He who refuses to give himself for others, who closes the petals of his charity and withholds the fragrance of his sympathy and love, finds that he loses the very thing he tries to keep. The springs of his goodness dry up. His sweet nature becomes atrophied. He grows deaf to the cries of help from his fellow-men. Tears that never are shed for others' woes sour to stinging acids in his own heart.
Refuse to open your purse, and soon you cannot open your sympathy. Refuse to give, and soon you will cease to enjoy that which you have. Refuse to love, and you lose the power to love and be loved. Withhold your affections and you become a moral paralytic. But the moment you open wide the door of your life and, like the rose, send out without stint your fragrance and beauty, you let the sunshine of life into your own soul.

How to Cure a Cold.
The way (ka,choo!) to cure a cold is just (kachee!) like this: Do not in wraps yourself enfold, As in a chrysalis; Expose yourself to good fresh air A lot (kachee!) kachee! Don't make yourself, by too much care, As tender as can be; Take lots of outdoor exercise, Don't dread the chill night air, Shun heated rooms if you'd be wise, And rubbers never wear; This will you harden be (kerchow) Till colds won't trouble you. I've proved this recipe—that's how I always do (ka choo!)

Nervous Diseases in the Spring.
CURED BY TONING THE BLOOD AND STRENGTHENING THE NERVES.
It is the opinion of the best medical authorities, after long observation, that nervous diseases are more common and more serious in the spring than at any other time in the year. Vital changes in the system, after long winter months, may cause much more trouble than the familiar spring weakness and weariness from which most people suffer as the result of indoor life, in poorly ventilated and often overheated buildings. Official records prove that in April and May neuralgia, St. Vitus dance, epilepsy and other forms of nerve trouble are at their worst, and that these, more than any other time, is blood making, nerve-restoring tonic is needed.
The antiquated custom of taking purgatives in the spring is useless, for the system really needs strengthening, while purgatives only gallop through the bowels, leaving you weaker. Dr. Williams' Pink Pills are the best medicine, for they actually make the new, rich, red blood that feeds the starved nerves, and thus cures the many forms of nervous disorders. They cure also such other forms of spring troubles as headaches, poor appetite, weakness in the limbs, as well as remove unsightly pimples and eruptions. In fact they unfailingly bring new health and strength to weak, tired and depressed men, women and children.

Sold by all medicine dealers or by mail at 50 cents a box or six boxes for $2.50 from the Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.
Germany is said to be increasing her submarine fleet at the rate of one a day; and when a German ship meets a British ship the increase is even greater.
Skin Soft as a Child's.
"I was a great sufferer from eczema and salt rheum for years," writes Mr. John W. Naas, Lunenburg, N. S. "Five years ago three boxes of Dr. Chase's Ointment cured me and the old trouble never returned. My skin is soft as a child's now and I shall always say a good word for this Ointment."
Life is a comedy to those who think; a tragedy to those who feel.

THE ACADIAN.

WOLFVILLE, N. S., MAR 26, 1915.

Editorial Brevities.

No wonder hog cholera is breaking out here and there—when we have men so greedy that they squel over having to part with enough to pay their war taxes!

Notwithstanding the frequent shifting of the feminine waist line by designers of fashions, no young man has been heard to complain that he couldn't locate the right place for his arm, even in the dim religious light of the parlor Sunday evening.

Every community is cursed with a class of people who make it their business to attend to everybody's business but their own. Such people are the meanest specimens of depraved humanity which an all wise Providence permits to exist on this green earth.

In a recent address in Toronto, Mr. J. S. Woodworth, secretary of the Canadian Welfare League, said: "When once the farming population of this country and the great wage earning population of four cities can get together, we will then be able to do away with many of the special privileges which are now the curse of this country."

Bishop Taylor Smith, chaplain general of the British forces, has just returned from a visit to the front. He says that the chaplains are regarded by the men with the utmost respect and friendliness. There is no sneer by the soldiers at the front against the "sky pilot." Chaplains of all denominations and creeds do their duty bravely at the front, sharing the actual perils of the war when they are administering consolations of religion to the dying on the battle field.

When one reflects upon the ease with which men of ordinary business prudence can be swindled out of their hard earned money by a plausible scamp, it is scarcely surprising to us that the scamp flourishes as he, or she does. The slang proverb says that "a sucker is born every minute," but it seems that the birth rate must be more rapid than that, judging from the number of people who are duped every day and the number of sharpers who get a living by duping them.

The French government has ordered the commemoration of the heroic death on the battlefield, of Henry Collignon, a councillor of state. He was trying to bear a wounded soldier from the scene of a battle when a shell fragment killed him. The government orders that when the regimental roll is read, M. Collignon's name shall be called and the oldest sergeant is to answer "Dead on the field of honor." The idea is that the story shall live through retaining the name on the regimental roll.

Every Briton's Duty.

R. H. R. W. C. B., concludes an illustrative article on "Food Supplies in War Time," being one of a series of Oxford pamphlets, after pointing out that Great Britain might hold out a year if actually blockaded by saying: "Farmers, in my belief, will prove, in this crisis, not unworthy to be countrymen of those who are heroically defending British homes and hearts on the fields of Flanders. They will do their duty by working their utmost—often under grave difficulties—to maintain and, if possible, increase the produce of their farms, not because it is (as in fact it will be) profitable to do so, but because it is the desire, no less than the duty, of every Briton, each in his own sphere, to do his part to help his country in the time of her direct need." Is not every Canadian a Briton in heart and sympathy, if not by actual birth?

What Mothers Say of Baby's Own Tablets.

Once a mother has used Baby's Own Tablets for her little ones she will use no other medicine. She quickly realizes the Tablets are an absolutely safe remedy and one that will give sure results. Concerning them Mrs. R. L. Wright, Pennabill, Sask., writes: "I have used Baby's Own Tablets for my own three babies and think so much of them that I always keep them in the house." The Tablets are sold by medicine dealers or by mail at 25 cents a box from The Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

Social Service.

Everyone will remember Mr. Bradford's lectures last winter on Social Services and Community Work. An effort is being made to put into practice some of the principles learned there. The College girls have been trying to get the girls at the Mission interested in forming a club. They have obtained permission to use one of the upstairs rooms. Through the generosity of friends in town the room has been partly furnished. A few rugs and racking chairs are yet needed. A social meeting was held last Friday evening and proved a success. It is hoped that it will be possible to have this room open every evening for recreational, social and educational gatherings.

The College girls wish to thank all those who have given their hearty support and they feel sure that their cooperation will help to make the venture a success. Friends who are interested may obtain further information from Miss Mildred Brown.

Sir George's Plea.

Extract from Sir George E. Foster's speech on the Budget.—Today Canada and the Empire are engaged in a colossal contest, the inner meaning and the possible consequences of which not one of us has an adequate realization. We know that in that contest Great Britain is fighting for her very life. You can hear the quick short pants of the contending forces and you can easily translate the breathless vigor of an empire and a series of nations who are fighting for their very lives. We are in the midst of that war. Our own friends, our own brothers, our own sons will be there. There is glory in the fighting line, but there is death on the fighting line as well. As we take up our papers from day to day and read that traction of what comes to us, there is forced upon us some small comprehension of the mighty struggle, of the blood and tears and tribulation through which final victory will be won. What I plead for in this House, in the country, everywhere, is that the best in the Dominion, Liberal as well as Tory, outside of race or creed or of political faith, may look upon the realities of this war, and may learn to value the comparative merits of the trivial and the great. These things I plead for. Let us all bend our back to the burden, putting behind what is trivial, facing steadfastly the mighty issue, in which the proud and the highest and best of civilization that the world has seen developed is fighting for its life and continuance in the trench and under circumstances of difficulty and of peril.

Beautiful English Home Where Canadian Soldiers Will Convalesce.

Through the kind co-operation of Mr. Waldorf Astor, a Red Cross Hospital (called the Duchess of Connaught's Hospital) has been established at Clivedon (Mr Astor's country seat at Taplow, Buckinghamshire) for wounded Canadian soldiers. This institution received the first batch of patients last week, when 100 wounded soldiers, straight from the firing line, were accommodated with beds. Of these 99 belonged to the home forces. The other was Private Craig of the Princess Patricia Light Infantry.

The institution contains 500 beds, and is entirely officered by Canadian doctors and nurses. Its equipment cost several thousand pounds of which amount £4,000 were contributed by Major Leonard, of London, Ont. Other Canadian subscriptions were also received. Individual subscriptions of $50 will pay for the equipment of a single bed.

The institution is charmingly situated in the grounds of Clivedon, and the patients, when convalescent, will be able to walk about these grounds and explore their many beauties. Clivedon is one of the most beautiful of the stately homes of England and enormous sums of money have been spent not only on the upkeep of the house itself but on the park in which it is situated.

Her Majesty's Thanks Sent to Canadian Workers.

MONTREAL, March 23.—Lady Williams-Taylor, president of Queen Mary's Needlework Guild in Canada, has received from the Hon. Lady Lawley, honorary secretary of the guild at London, England, an acknowledgment of the splendid co-operation that Canadian workers have given to this most commendable movement. The work is being very actively continued in Canada and it is hoped that the results in the next few months will even surpass the splendid support that has already been given. The acknowledgement is as follows:

Queen Mary's Needlework Guild, Friary Court, St. James Palace, S. W., 18th February, 1915.
Hon. Lady Lawley, Hon. Secretary
DEAR LADY WILLIAMS-TAYLOR.—The splendid contributions from the Canadian Queen Mary's Needlework Guild has just arrived and been packed, and I am desired by her majesty to convey to the workers of the branch her very high appreciation of their kindness in helping her guild in so practical a manner. A large number of things have been sent to the Canadian contingent and some of the beautiful dressing gowns and hospital things have been sent to her majesty's convalescent home at Cimiez. I mention this as I feel it may interest your workers to know where their things go. I hope you have received our weekly list, and will tell everybody in Canada how grateful we are for the splendid help they are giving us—our grand total for things received being now $67,319—and how greedy we still are for all warm comforts for our men.
(Sgd.) ANNIE LAWLEY.

Tuesday Evening, March 30, College Hall. "THE ROSE MAIDEN"

ARGUMENT.
The Queen of the Flower Fairies, weary of a life of unbroken calm physics of the newly returned Spring that he will bestow upon her also the gift of love that he bestows upon man. He wears her of the risk she runs, but finally yields to her entreaties by changing her while she sleeps into the form of a beautiful girl. Under the name of Roseblossom, she wanders through the world to find the love that she seeks, and meets with a girl who, having been betrayed and deserted by her lover, loses her senses and dies broken-hearted. But, undeterred from her search, Roseblossom becomes the wife of a forester, with whom she lives for a time in such perfect happiness that she cannot survive his death. The elves bewail the fate of their Queen, and curse love as fatal to peace and happiness.

The Soloists for the Evening will be
MRS. MAUDE PIERCE ALLEN, Soprano
MISS ELEANOR P. SANDS, Contralto
MR. GEORGE ELIOT RABEY, Tenor
MR. GERALD McELHINNEY, Bass.

Mr. RABEY who is so well and favorably known to a Wolfville Audience, "It has been well said that Mr. Rabey is one of the most reliable singers in the country. His work the last two years in New England has included engagements with most of the leading societies, including the Handel and Haydn Society in Boston and the Concord Musical Festival, Concord, N. H. A competent critic says, "His tenor is of beautiful quality, rarely sweet and of adequate range and finesse, arousing quite unusual interest and admiration. All of his work was markedly artistic."

"Mrs. Maude Allen is an American woman with a remarkable voice. It has rich coloring, a phenomenal range and is most sympathetic in quality."

Of Mr. McELHINNEY's work as Baritone Soloist a critic says, "He sang with a feeling, clearness of voice and dramatic power that fully justified his reputation as one of our best singers."

MISS ELEANOR P. SANDS, of the Seminary Conservatory Staff, has won a deserved reputation as a most artistic singer. She is one of Mr. Wolfville's pupils and shows to a marked degree the fine quality of her training. She sings with great musical intelligence and always pleases by the remarkably artistic quality of her work.

HINTS TO KODAKERS, NO. 2

If light is a necessity in making photographs, so is shade. Stand facing a white house, sun behind you—no shade—no beauty. Shade in the right place makes your picture "stand out." Light—just enough, gives life and "snap." Look for the lights and shadows.
These hints are not pure benevolence on our part. We develop a lot of Kodakers' films and it is to our advantage as well as theirs to have them turn out "good."

A good house welcomed the Acadia Players on Monday evening, when they presented the interesting and laughable comedy 'The Senator Keeps House,' by Martha Morton, at the Opera House. The play was well staged and all the parts exceedingly well taken. The general verdict was that it was the best performance yet given by the Players here.

The Port Williams girls defeated the Wolfville girls in a well played game of basket ball, last Saturday afternoon. At the close of the second period the score was 9-5, which necessitated a five minute overtime play. At the end of this time the score was 14-12 in favor of Port Williams. After the game the teams enjoyed a delicious repast at the home of Mrs. Murray, Linden avenue.

Obituary.

Mrs. Eliza Welton, widow of the late Deacon Allen Welton, died at Port Williams, N. S., on February 25th, at the home of her daughter, Mrs. Ralph Newcomb, by whom she had been tenderly cared for during the closing years of her life. Mrs. Welton was born at Town Fort eight years ago, and had spent practically her whole life in that vicinity. She was baptized by Rev. A. S. Hunt into the fellowship of the First Cornwallis Baptist church in January, 1848, and with the exception of a few years, during which her membership was transferred to Lower Aylesford, she gave, in its interests, a service of rare and varied quality. Of a genial and hospitable disposition, her home was a centre of sweet and helpful influence—a model for the younger generation to copy. Six children survive her: Mrs. Levlina Masters, Mrs. C. A. Campbell, Mrs. Ralph Newcomb, and Mr. H. A. Welton, of Port Williams; Mrs. John Cunningham, of Antigonish; and Mrs. Fred Zittel, of New Jersey. Rev. C. H. Martell, a former pastor, assisted in the funeral services, and paid a beautiful tribute to her memory. Interment was at Cannon Corner.

Mrs. Ward and little son, Wilbert, of Kentville, came to Gaspereau Wednesday, and will spend some time at the home of the former's mother, Mrs. Harriet Davison, who is ill.

The young men's Bible class, 'We Brothers', are at home to their lady friends in the Hall this (Friday) evening. A delightful program has been prepared for the entertainment.

Mrs. Hardy, of Avonport, lately returned missionary from India, will give an address in the Baptist church next Sunday evening, when the service is to be conducted by the Missionary Aid Society. Music appropriate to the occasion will be furnished by the choir.

Easter Millinery.

The spring millinery opening days at Miss B. K. Saxton's and the W. C. Dexter Co.'s stores were as redolent of the beauties of feminine head-dress as the weather at the same time has been with the promises of Nature's beauty soon to come, and throngs of customers gathered to select hats for the Easter season. Miss Saxton's patrons were delighted when, on Wednesday evening, her parlors were illumined by an exquisite hand carved, mahogany lamp, with shade of tango colored silk and cham pagne fringe; being the gift and hand work of the sculptor, Frank Edwin Elwell, of Weehawken, N. J., at whose home Miss Saxton has lately been the guest of her sister, Mrs. Elwell.

A distinct millinery note is discernible in the new colors and also among the small hat shapes, the Scotch cap with torpedo crown, and a toque lengthened to represent the torpedo shape being worn. A hat on the latter order at Miss Saxton's is of patty cottoned fagel braid with trimming of shaded blue marguerite in front and narrow Belgian blue ribbon loops and ends at back; while one of the smart Scotch caps here has inside of brim and crown top of Belgian blue faille silk and the facing of black tagel braid, the trimming consisting of a white feather motif representing the Scotch thistle, in front, and loops of faille ribbon to match the crown at back.

Profuse and very dainty are the flower effects; and tiny motifs representing blackberries, cherries, haws, quinces, apples and many more varieties of vegetation than were ever conceived by Burbank, the magician, lurk in the secret recesses of the milliners' storehouse. Lovely, teary helio sprays and fine, satin flowers make a charming new motif for trimmings, as do also, the small feather clusters which are shown in military colors. Plus with long, golden tops form a distinct feature in trimmings. Pond lilies and marguerites in beautiful colors, and wreaths of small flowers, many toned but exquisitely blended, will be much worn. Flat flowers and true lovers knots of ribbon form a new trimming for the large, dress hats, being placed between the transparent fabrics of the brim.

The transparent brim will be much used on large hats later in the season. One of these shown by Miss Saxton has brim and crown of crepe de chene, the brim is bound with rose braid which also forms the side of the crown, and a wreath of flat velvet marguerites and foliage set high on crown with knots of rose faille ribbon and lining or rose silk complete this really beautiful hat. Another is of black, the transparent brim showing lovers' knots of rose faille ribbon, the wreath is of lovely feather-like sprays in blue and rose.

Some of the small silk and braid shapes have a band of velvet and heavy 'blanket stitching' in silk around the crown, with tiny fur motif in front.

The new colors for the spring and summer millinery are, battle ship gray, Belgian blue, rose and sand. The new veils are generally black, with bands of ribbon on lower edge. They are draped very full around the crown and are a half yard wide.

The Orchestral Concert.

The Acadia Orchestra under the energetic and efficient direction of Miss Beatrice Langley has achieved fine success. The coming concert promises to be the best as well as the most popular concert thus far given by this organization. Among the items to be played on Monday evening next special mention may be made of the selection from 'Figaro's Wedding,' (Mozart) greatest of classical comic operas; the selection from Sullivan's 'Iris' and ever popular, 'H. M. S. Pinafore' and the Overture of favorite Scotch Airs in which may be heard and recognized the characteristic bag pipes, Highland Fling and other familiar strains. Last of the evening's numbers comes the rousing two step 'Napoleon's Last Charge' which is full of the inspiring military spirit of the times and will fitly end a varied and artistic program.

To add to the enjoyment of the evening there will be two or three solos from Mrs. Maude Allen, soprano, and Mr. Gerald McPhinney, baritone. The latter will sing as two of his numbers, 'The Prologue from Pagliacci and Handel's 'Where'er You Walk,' and Schubert's 'Two Grenadiers.' Thus an evening of rare enjoyment is promised. Seats at Rand's now on sale.

Business Men's Class.

The Men's Class will soon close its sessions for the year. The subject for next Sunday's lesson is 'The King Who Became a Slave.' Read John, chapter 18. All men of the town are most cordially invited.

The Music Festival.

Attention is directed to the notices which appear elsewhere in this issue, calling attention to the fine program provided by the Acadia Choral Club and the Acadia Orchestra. It is hard to tell which evening will be the more enjoyable. It is wiser to attend both than to miss the better. Tickets at Rand's.

AFRAID SHE WAS DYING

ST. JEAN DE MATHA, JAN. 27th, 1914.
"After suffering for a long time with Dyspepsia, I have been cured by 'Fruit-a-tives'. I suffered so much that I would not dare eat for I was afraid of dying. Five years ago, I received samples of 'Fruit-a-tives'. I did not wish to try them for I had little confidence in them but, seeing my husband's anxiety, I decided to try and at once I felt relief. Then I sent for three boxes and I kept improving until I was cured. While sick, I lost several pounds, but after taking 'Fruit-a-tives', I quickly regained what I had lost. Now I eat, sleep and digest well—in a word, I am completely cured, thanks to 'Fruit-a-tives'."
MADAM M. CHARBONNEAU

The Menace of Cocaine.

WHAT IS COCAINE?
Cocaine? What is it?
The 'Standard Dictionary' tells us: 'Cocaine, a white, bitter, crystalline alkaloid contained in coca leaves; used in medicine as a local anesthetic.'

And again, 'Coca, the dried leaves of a South American shrub of the flax family, used in medicine as a tonic, and chewed by the native Indians as a nerve stimulant.' Needless to add, there is no connection between the coca shrub and the cocoa palm tree that produces the cocoa nuts.

For years it has been known to English athletes, football players and others that by chewing leaves of the coca plant they could gain resistance against fatigue and indifference to blows and hurts. No particular harm comes from this chewing of the coca leaves in their natural state, but within a score of years, science, by concentrating their essence in the white powder or crystals of cocaine, has put into the hands of men, women, and children a most terrible agency for evil.

Cocaine was unknown until about twenty-five years ago, but its abuse has grown so common and extensive that it has already invaded all classes of society and found its way into the ranks of school children.

The misuse of cocaine is undoubtedly the most threatening of the drug habits that has ever appeared on this continent. It is most terrible in its hold and effects of all drug habits. It destroys the moral sense, it wrecks the body, it is worse than morphine.

AILING WOMEN OF MIDDLE AGE

Mrs. Doucette tells of her distressing symptoms during change of life and how she found relief.

Belleville, Nova Scotia, Can.—"Three years ago I was suffering badly with what the doctors called change of life. I was so bad that I had to stay in bed. Some friends told me to take E. Plinkham's Vegetable Compound and it helped me from the first. It is the only medicine I took that did help me and I recommend it. You don't know how thankful and grateful I am. I give you permission to publish what your good medicine has done for me."—Mrs. Susan Doucette, Belleville, Yarmouth Co., Nova Scotia, Canada.

Such warning symptoms as sense of suffocation, hot flashes, headaches, backache, faintness, nervousness, irritability, and in the case, palpitation of the heart, spots before the eyes, irregularities, constipation, variable appetite, weakness and lassitude, and dizziness, are promptly relieved by intelligent women who are approaching the period in life when woman's great change may be expected.

Lydia E. Plinkham's Vegetable Compound irrigates and strengthens the female organs and builds up the weak nervous system. It has carried many women safely through this crisis.

If you want special advice write to Lydia E. Plinkham, Boston, Mass., or to the nearest druggist. The name of the compound is on the wrapper and is blown in the glass of the medicine bottle.

THE WORK OF THE HUNS

Splendid Chateau of a Neutral American Completely Sacked

Mr. W. H. Payne, an American, who owns a chateau at Rosoy, on the Oise, but who was absent when the district in which it is situated was occupied first by British and then by German troops, pays eloquent tribute to the British and denounces the Germans with the utmost vigor for wholesale plundering. He states that the flag of the United States was flying from the chateau when the British retired, having done no harm, their officers not even using the bedrooms as sleeping apartments.

When the Huns arrived the American flag was torn down, and this is what happened to the chateau as related by its owner: "No words can describe the condition inside the chateau, of the lawns, the alleys and the wooded park after the Germans had left. In fact of the many thousands of dollars' worth of personal property there is not enough left of value to pay transport to Paris and commission on sale. All grilles, sideboards, vitrines, writing desks, and closets in nineteen bedrooms and elsewhere were opened by bayonets or heavy tools and all broken, torn up, destroyed or taken away. All objects d'art of value were taken away. All genuine silver, such as tea and coffee services, dining-room service, gold and silver dressing toilettes, silver mirrors and candlesticks were all taken away.

"All that remained were a gold glove stretcher, a silver nail brush cover (flattened out and destroyed) and a candlestick broken in three places and some plated silver. All table and other glassware and most of a porcelain table service, all of a large pharmac—stock, perfumery, etc., were taken or smashed into small bits. All ancient lace bedspreads, lace curtains, lace pillow cases and various pieces of ancient lace, as well as household linen of every sort, were used for the wounded, to wrap up the dead before burying, torn up or taken away.

"Nineteen bedrooms in the chateau and outbuildings were furnished complete. Not one blanket, sheet, pillowcase or eiderdown covering remains. All curtains were pulled down, linings torn out, destroyed or used for covering the wounded. All bed and lounge mattresses, pillows, springs and furniture were soaked with blood, medicine, etc. No clothing, shoes or hats were left belonging to my wife, self or my eight servants. Some dresses of my wife were slashed with knives and left hanging.

"Of over a thousand bottles of wine, including champagnes, port, very old red, white and Rhine wines, besides old cognac, liquors, whiskey, Benedictine, etc.—not one bottle remains. Only broken and empty bottles were found strewn all over the park."

BAITED WITH SARDINES
German Soldier Could Not Resist—Was Fed and Made Prisoner

At several points on the battle line, the French trenches are within 50 yards of the Germans, and not infrequently, in the intervals between active hostilities, and interchange of more or less complimentary remarks takes place.

At one such place a French soldier shouted across to the German opposite him that he and his comrades were making a satisfying meal on a "mixed grill" of cheese, sausage and sardines.

The German retorted that the Frenchman was a liar, whereupon an empty tin was thrown at him for evidence.

He admitted the weight of it, but suggested that it would have been better had the tin been a full one. A few seconds later a full tin fell a little way in advance of his trench, and a German, who was half-famished and careless of consequences, began to clamber after it, only to find that the Frenchman had tied a string to it, whereby they were able to keep it out of his reach.

A roar of laughter went up and a volley called to him that if he wanted sardines he must come to the French lines to eat them. The German hesitated, and then came and ate, after which he was taken to the commander.

Russia's rifle is of .3-inch calibre, and is similar in pattern to the Mauser.

If you were sure you had catarrhal deafness you would use a real cure at once—of course you would.

There is a cure for you—use that

Notes.
The truth sometimes hurts, but one hears no little of it that an anesthetic seldom is needed.

Next to adopting a set of resolutions, a mass meeting appears to be the most futile thing.

Mother's Face.
Three little boys talked together.
One sunny summer day,
And I leaned out of the window,
To hear what they had to say.

'The prettiest thing I ever saw,'
One of the little boys said.
'Was a bird in Grandpa's garden,
All black and white and red.'

'The prettiest thing I ever saw,'
Said the second little lad,
'Was a pony at the circus—
I wanted him awful bad.'

'I think 'saw the third little fellow
With a grave and gentle grace,
'That the prettiest thing in all the world
Is just my mother's face.'
