Stella Mordant:

The Cruise of the "Kingfisher."

CHAPTER XXXIX.

Stella shuddered and wept, and the detective held open the door for her to go out.

"There's a mystery here, Mr. Workley," he said, when they were alone. "It's not quite so plain a case as you think. Try to prove that the deceased went to meet the man who killed her, two nights ago—that is, before last night—and you'll prove the prisoner's innocence; for, mark you, Mr. Bryan's evidence, that he and the prisoner only arrived yesterday evening, is not to be shaken."

Workley shook his hands with a gesture of impatience.

"It was her husband, and she saw him from the window right enough," he said, doggedly.

"What was her married name?" asked the detective.

"I don't know," replied Workley. "She always known her as Madam Nita. She was always called so."

"The question is, where are her marriage lines—her certificate? It is not here."

"On—the body?"

The detective shook his head.

"Not very likely if she went to meet him," he said. "She'd be afraid of his getting it from her—that is, if he was the bad lot you think him."

"He deserted her—the villain!"

"Oh, well, every man who leaves his wife isn't altogether bad," remarked the detective, philosophically.

"To tell you the truth, Mr. Workley, I don't see the motive for the murder. She was a good-looking woman, a woman most men would be proud of, and she was earning a very large salary. Unless he had some reason for getting rid of her, unless she was in his way, and he wanted to marry again, had married again, say—"

Mr. Workley made a gesture of impatience.

"All these theories don't shake me, Mr. Green," he said, grimly. "You forget that I saw him standing over the body, that the knife was found, and that he owned it."

"I know—I know," said the detective thoughtfully. "It looks black enough against the man we've got, but, all the same, I doubt him being her husband."

"And I don't, and I'll see him hanged!" said poor Workley; and, as if he could bear the strain no longer, he hurried from the room.

Edward had gone home from the prison cell to find the whole family at the Court in a state of excitement and consternation; and for the remainder of that never-to-be-forgotten night he was surrounded by an eager and awed group, listening to the story of his life with Rath, and the tragedy which had enmeshed him in so sudden and awful a manner. They heard with amazement of the vast wealth of which he had so strangely become possessed; but the fact was almost lost sight of and weighed very little against the news of the terrible crime which he had to tell them.

Even the fact that Edward had returned to find Mary faithless was scarcely remembered in the excitement, the absorbing interest of the murder in the wood.

"You are convinced that he is innocent, Edward?" asked his father, as, weary and well-nigh exhausted, Edward paused in his recital.

"Quite, quite! As convinced as that I myself am innocent; and you would not doubt it if you knew him, sir. Think! He had only come to England with me—had only been in Rath a few hours. It was impossible that he should know this poor woman, that he should know anything whatever of her. To suppose him guilty would be to suppose Rath Rayne capable of a fiendish, a brutal crime. Rath!"

He laughed in grim derision of the idea. "The bravest, gentlest fellow you can imagine! Why, he would lay down his life for the meanness of God's creatures, would risk it a hundred times over to save a woman—dog—from a blow. And to think for one moment that he—of all men—could stab a helpless woman to death. Oh!—well, sir, I can say no more. I know that he was found near the body, that the knife—"

Sir Gilbert nodded gravely.

"Yes, I know. The knife was discovered close at hand; it was stained with blood—forgive me for going over it all again—that he admitted that it was his. Admitted! He claimed it, demanded it of them! Do you think he could have done that if he had been guilty?"

Sir Gilbert shook his head.

"No one can tell what a man may do under the circumstances," he said, with the wisdom of age and experience. "There is only one thing for you to do, Edward, and that is to get legal advice as soon as possible. Your friend did not commit the murder, but someone else did, and the quickest way of clearing Mr. Rayne is to find the guilty man. Go to Bulpit tomorrow morning—it is morning now. Go to bed, all of you, and leave Edward and me to do what we can."

A word of Edward's ruined hopes was spoken by Sir Gilbert.

"Your mother has told me my boy, I'm sorry. You know that."

Edward wrung his father's hand.

"Thank you, sir," he said, sadly.

"In this terrible trouble of poor Rayne's I have not had time to suffer—as I shall presently. Mary has chosen her own path; she was free to do so, quite free. There was no engagement. I—I hope she will be happy. I could have borne it better if the man had been someone else, someone more worthy of her. But no doubt I'm prejudiced against Lord Rath; it would only be natural, wouldn't it?"

Sir Gilbert sighed.

"I can't say that I myself am very fond of him," he said; "but there must be prejudice on my part also, seeing that he has come between you and your happiness, Edward. He—well, he is not a gentleman, and lately he has taken to drinking, I'm told. I myself have seen him, after a run, and at a bachelor party, rather the worse for liquor."

"Poor Mary! Why—why has she given herself to him!" exclaimed Edward, hoarsely.

Sir Gilbert shook his head.

"Women, the best and the worst of them, are a mystery, my boy. But one cannot help asking your question. He has rank and wealth; but Mary Hatherley is the last to sell herself for either—at least, one would think so."

"It is a mystery," said Edward, despairingly. "Don't let us say any more about it, sir. I've got to fight it, to face the music, and—and I want to do so without whining, if I can. I've a noble example in poor Rath. He has had to bear grief as hard as mine, and he has borne, still bears it, like a man."

Edward snatched a hasty breakfast, and rode into Market Rath to see Mr. Bulpit.

As always happens in such emergencies, every little accident was against him. Mr. Bulpit had gone to London on the afternoon of the preceding day, said the old clerk.

"For God's sake, wire to him, and ask him to come back!" said Edward. "I want his help for my friend, Mr. Rayne."

From Mr. Bulpit's he went to the prison, and found Rath pacing up and down. His manner was grave but quite calm, and still absolutely free from any trace of apprehension.

"Have you slept—are you well—my poor Rath?" exclaimed Edward, as he wrung his hand.

"Yes, I slept all night. I am quite well," replied Rath, quietly. "Have they found the man?"

"No," said Edward, reluctantly; "but everything is being done—"

"Thanks; yes, I know that; but I want to get out of here," said Rath. "I cannot look for Stella if I am shut up here, and I want to search for her; it is the only thing I want to do. If I cannot find her—his voice broke, but he steadied it—"I will go back to the island. You know that, Edward. If she is lost to me, I would rather live alone there, where I can think of her, where we were so happy—"

What could Edward say in the face of Rath's almost appalling unconsciousness of his peril?

"We will find her, Rath," he said, "and—and you shall be free presently to make the search. I have sent for our lawyer, and he will take the case in hand and prove your innocence."

Rath nodded.

"Yes," he said, calmly. "He will find the man who did it. If we were on the island, the Indians would find him quickly enough. They can track anything; I've seen them at work."

"We have persons who can hunt a man down," said Edward, "and they will be employed. Is there anything I can do, anything I can get you, Rath?" he asked, looking round his cell, for the turnkey came to inform him that his time was up.

Rath replied in the negative.

"No. Get me out as soon as you can. There is scarcely room to breathe—he stretched his long arms and smiled gravely—"and certainly not room to walk about. I get to one other, and I'm not used to such close quarters."

Edward spent the remainder of the day in the town, obtaining all the information he could get about the murdered woman, while he waited impatiently for Mr. Bulpit's return. The information he acquired was only similar to that of which the general public was possessed, and threw no light whatever on the tragedy. The night closed, and Mr. Bulpit did not return. Edward was in a fever. The next morning a telegram came, saying that Mr. Bulpit would reach Market Rathon by the eleven o'clock train. Edward posted down to the station with a pair of his father's best horses, for the examination was fixed for twelve, and Mr. Bulpit would barely have time to reach the court before it commenced. He almost tore the old lawyer out of the train and hurried him into the phaeton. Mr. Bulpit had read a half account of the crime in the London evening paper, and he listened to Edward's recital of the details. He was much astonished at Edward's dramatic meeting with Rath and their mutual adventures, and said a word of two of congratulation, but Edward waved them aside sadly.

"All the gold in the world would be of no use to me now, Mr. Bulpit," he said. "No doubt you know why—"

The old lawyer inclined his head.

"It is a pity you did not come earlier," he said, in his laconic way.

"It is a pity we came to England at all," retorted Edward, bitterly. "I have only come back to disappointment and the ruin of my life's happiness, and my poor friend has come to find himself unjustly accused of a ghastly crime."

"Of which we have to prove him innocent; no easy task, Mr. Edward," said Mr. Bulpit. "I should like to see him before he goes before the magistrates, but there is only time to reach the court."

"And he could tell you nothing more than I have told you," said Edward, as they rushed along. "It is difficult for you to realize how—how unsophisticated he is. He doesn't appreciate his peril; he knows nothing of the world and the terrible case with which we can make an innocent man seem guilty. It is sufficient for him that he did not commit the deed, and he is free from the least fear or dread of the result. All this is difficult for you to understand; but remember that he has been living alone, away from civilization—"

"Half a savage," said Mr. Bulpit, thoughtfully.

Edward laughed indignantly.

"Nothing of the kind," he said, warmly. "He is a gentleman in manner and voice and—conduct. That's the strangest phase of his personality. When you see him you will find it hard to believe that the greater part of his life has been spent in absolute isolation."

"What is his name, did you say?" asked Mr. Bulpit.

P. P. JOHN GUTENBERG.

By GEORGE FITCH

Author of "At Good Old Slawh"

John Gutenberg was born within sight of the Rhine at Mainz in 1410. His parents were noble, but in politics. They were expelled from Mainz during a change of administration in 1420, and went to Strasburg.

This was as great a miscalculation as Florence made when she gave Dante twenty-four hours in which to get out of town. Gutenberg became the father of printing, the greatest of all modern powers. But he never went back to Mainz and let the home folks brag about their illustrious citizen. He was invited to come back and live, but refrained and contented himself with getting citizens of Mainz pinched for debt whenever he found them in Strasburg.

Gutenberg early applied himself to the task of getting wealthy quickly. He was one of the early promoters and was always getting a little capital together to promote a new invention which would make millions. He lost a lot of money on an improved looking glass designed to make a face look less like a sack of oats than the old kind did. Finally he heard of him borrowing 50 gulden to form a company for the purpose of printing books with types.

This was as foolish a proposition as airship companies were in 1880, and Gutenberg received the hoarse hoot wherever he went. For ten years he wandered around Southern Germany borrowing small amounts here and there, and putting them into the business and in 1455 he bound up his first copy of the Gutenberg Bible, and put the first edition on sale.

This produced an enormous sensation and it has been growing ever since. In a very few years, print shops were running all over Europe and ten thousand monks who wrote fine hands were hunting new jobs. But this didn't do Gutenberg any good. His shop lost money. His creditors took it away from him and he died in 1468, poor and almost forgotten.

One copy of the Gutenberg Bible is worth enough to-day to place Gutenberg beyond the dreams of avarice. But it is too late for him to appreciate this. All we can do for him is to erect monuments to the memory of the most useful get-rich-quick man the world ever had.

LONDON, June 28, 1915.

THE KING'S BIRTHDAY.

King George is deeply appreciative of the many telegraphic messages of congratulation he received on June 4th on the occasion of his fiftieth birthday. These came not only from our representatives abroad, but from the Royal Houses and Heads of State at Rome, Petrograd, Paris, Washington, Tokio, Pekin, Madrid, Copenhagen, Christiania and other capitals, as well as from the Sultan of Egypt. At the India Office messages were received from practically all the native rulers and Princes, while similar congratulatory messages were to hand at the Colonial Office from the Governor-General and Governors of all the Dominions, Colonies, and Protectorates, messages expressing loyalty to the person and throne of the King being received as well from native chiefs in all parts of the Empire. Furthermore, congratulations were also received from isolated Britishers in many other parts of the world including several from South America. On no previous Royal Birthday, indeed, were anything like so many of such messages received at our Government offices as on June 4th.

MRS. ASQUITH.

Mrs. Asquith, the wife of the Prime Minister, aspires to try her hand at making shells and fuses in one of the large munition factories in the North. When making a tour over one of the large shops, Mrs. Asquith was astonished at the skill attained by some of the women workers, and she expressed her desire to "do her bit" in the shops. She would do a week's work in one shop, and then another week in a second, and thus get some experience of women's work under ordinary conditions. In announcing her intention, Mrs. Asquith divulged an interesting experience which hitherto has been an open secret only among her personal friends—namely, that she had been in the trenches. I understand that this unique concession was made to her during a recent visit to France.

A NATIONAL REGISTER AND CONSCRIPTION.

The Cabinet, I hear, has been considering the question of setting up a national register, on which all adult males between certain ages would be called upon to enrol themselves. Such a register would not, of course, exempt the Government or the country to the adoption of compulsory service military or industrial, and it would not be instituted primarily or necessarily with that end in view. Its purpose would be to supply the information now lacking as to the country's resources in men and the character of the work these men are doing; and without departing one hair-

THE LONDON BUDGET.

LONDON, To-day. The Russians are again retreating in Galicia, both north and south of Lemberg. In Poland, the Germans have launched another attack against Warsaw in the form of a drive from the north through Przasnysz. The new blow at the Polish capital has been preceded by a terrific artillery action. The fact is recorded by the Russians themselves, but it is too early to say whether it means a serious offensive. There was a bayonet encounter, the result of which neither side records, neither Berlin nor Vienna makes reference to the conflict in this region, confining their statements to the Galician situation, where victories are claimed in the various sectors from the Bessarabian frontier to Krakow, north of Lemberg. What is more important, the Germans claim the Teutonic forces crossed the Dnieper, northwest of Halez, and have driven the Russians some miles into the hills. Not since the war began has the English public been so convinced that it will be a long one. Those who took this view months ago, were called pessimists; it is now generally admitted that the Russian armies must fight for months to come under tremendous disadvantages, and that in the meantime the much heralded big general movement on the western front must be indefinitely postponed, while the Entente Powers are thoroughly reorganizing their methods. The campaign for munitions in Britain is at its height, it must be assumed that Germany is straining every fibre to the same end, and calling into play her inventive skill, so as to increase the deadly mechanisms of the war as fast as possible. The present consensus of opinion among military writers in London, is that Germany intends further to drive her eastern victories with another battery rain stroke toward Warsaw in an endeavor to seize that city and the whole line of the Vistula. The line of the offensive now directed from Przasnysz region, is along the Valleys Omulew and Orzye, tributaries of the Narwek River which flows across North Poland and joins the bend of the Vistula above Warsaw.

SOCIALIST ORGAN SUSPENDED.

LONDON, To-day. For publishing the Socialist appeal for peace, the Vorwart has been suspended, according to a Reuter despatch from Amsterdam, received on Saturday night. The Norddeutsche Zeitung, of Berlin, chronicling the suspension of the Vorwart, comments on the Socialist pronouncement as follows: "The manifesto will greatly be regretted, because it will create a highly undesirable impression abroad. The manifesto may be interpreted as war weariness on the part of Germany, which does not exist. Military events and the political situation offer prospects of a successful peace. The German Government of its own accord, will do what is necessary. Until then there is only one watchword for Germany: Hold through."

AMERICA ARRESTS HUERTA.

WASHINGTON, To-day. The United States Government has frustrated for the present an attempt on the part of General Huerta and his associates to launch from American territory a new revolutionary movement in Mexico. The detention of the former Mexican Dictator with General Orozco and others at El Paso to-day, followed nearly three months of espionage by Government agents. The Department of Justice instructed the State Attorney in Camp in Western District of Texas, to take into custody these men who seemingly were engaged in violations of American neutrality laws, which forbid recruiting men, purchase of supplies and organizing military expeditions on the soil of the States in operations against a people with whom this country is at peace. The development at El Paso caused a sensation in Mexican quarters here. Both Carranza and Villa agencies are issuing statements of rejoicing that the States checked the effort on the part of the so-called reactionary interests to regain control of Mexican affairs.

REVENTLOW AGAIN.

LONDON, To-day. A Copenhagen despatch to the Exchange Telegraph Company, says Count Ernest Von Reventlow in Saturday's issue of the Deutsches Tages Zeitung, continues his violent attack against the Government, although he exercises greater caution in his statements regarding Germany's relations with the States. The article is couched in such strong terms that another suspension of the paper would not cause surprise.

SWEDISH WOMEN AT PEACE.

LONDON, To-day. The women's meeting held in Stockholm and throughout Sweden to-day unanimously adopted peace resolutions passed at the recent International Congress of Women at the Hague. According to a Stockholm correspondent to Reuters Telegram Company, similar meetings will be held in Denmark and Norway.

MARCONI AS LIEUT. OF AVIATION.

ROME, To-day. Guglielmo Marconi of Wireless Telegraph fame, to-day began his duties as a Lieutenant of Aviation in the Italian army. The inventor received an enthusiastic reception at the barracks when introduced to his brother officers by Colonel Morris. Lieutenant Marconi said: "I am convinced we shall work splendidly together for the protection of country and King."

BOMBS DROPPED ON SMYRNA.

LONDON, To-day. A British aeroplane dropped three bombs on Smyrna on Tuesday, inflicting over seventy casualties on the garrison, says a despatch from a Mytilene correspondent to the Times.

NOON.

WILL INTRODUCE REGISTER BILL.

LONDON, To-day. Walter Long will introduce his bill providing for a National Register, under the ten minutes rule of the Commons, on Tuesday. The object of the bill is to enable the Government to ascertain the names of those still available for enlistment, or qualified to make munitions, or to perform other war work, such as filling the shortage in agricultural labor, food supplies and industries.

MAKING FOR VERDUN.

PARIS, To-day. The Germans in fighting furiously at Basatelle and in the trenches of Colonne are seeking to approach the strongly fortified town of Verdun, according to Lieut.-Col. Rousset, military critic of the Petit Parisien. He believes they are seeking to gain control of the railroad from Chalons to Sainte Menchould, while they are aiming at Verdun from two directions. The critic believes the efforts of their army will prove futile.

RUSSIAN WAR MINISTER RETIRES.

LONDON, To-day. Nothing seems to be known as yet in Petrograd regarding the reason of the retirement of General Sukhomiloff, the Russian responsible for the creation of the modern Muscovite army. During his tenure of office he reorganized and unified the Imperial forces. The efficiency to which he had brought the army was considered to have been proved at the opening of the war by its rapid mobilization and initial success in Galicia. Gen. Vernander, who will succeed Sukhomiloff, has been Adjutant of the Ministry of War. It is believed his appointment will be only temporary. However, he is a distinguished engineer and responsible among other things for the fortifications of Warsaw, west of the Vistula.

ITALIANS MEETING DIFFICULTIES.

UDINE, Italy, To-day. As the Italians advance in the Carso mountains, north of Trieste, they are meeting with growing difficulties in the shape of geological formations, the innumerable grottoes, caves, wells and gullies being admirably suited for hiding batteries of defense and by large contingents of troops which the Austrians for years have been preparing to resist an invasion.

LINER TORPEDOED.

LONDON, To-day. The Donaldson liner Adrania, bound from Glasgow to Quebec, has been torpedoed by a German submarine. The crew was saved.

IRISH PRISONER MAILED SIR ROGER CASEMENT.

NEW YORK, To-day. A cable to the Tribune from London, says John Redmond, Leader of the Irish Nationalist Party, in an interview with the Times, referred to Sir Roger Casement, saying: "I am told Sir Roger was sent by Germans to address Irish prisoners. At first they listened, unaware of the speaker's identity. As soon as they realized that the speaker was none other than Sir Roger Casement, they set upon him. The conclusion of the incident was that the Prussian Guards had to be called out to extricate Sir Roger from the peril of his life. It shows Germany's utter ignorance of Ireland that she should have considered Casement to be a genuine Irish type."

JAMES TREBBLE.

We note with regret the sudden demise of Mr. James Trebble, son of District Chief Trebble (Fire Department), the latter having received intimation of the sad event by telegraph this morning from Montreal, where deceased had been studying for the past twelve months. "Jimmy" Trebble, as he was familiarly known, endeared himself to all his associates and friends and they were legion, as he possessed a modest and winning disposition. He was an ex-pupil of Bishop Feild College and a young man of exceptional ability. His eldest brother William is with the Pique Nid. Regiment at Hawick, Scotland. Deceased had just bloomed into manhood having attained his 21st year, and his death comes as a shock to his father and sister, to whom the Telegram expresses deepest sympathy in their hours of bereavement.

On Saturday afternoon the Boy Scouts numbering over 150 under command of Scout Master Murdoch, were inspected by His Excellency the Governor at the gubernatorial grounds. At 4 p.m. the four troops—No. 1, under Mr. Gordon Christian; No. 2, under Mr. M. Stick; No. 3, Capt. Pitcher, S.A., and No. 4, Mr. Bowh. (Bishop Feild College),—assembled at the Methodist College and marched via Long's Hill, Queen's and Military Roads to Government House where they were drawn up for inspection. His Excellency in addressing the lads congratulated them on their appearance, and expressed himself as highly pleased with the movement, referring to the work of Lieut.-General Sir R. Baden Powell, its founder. After an exhibition of drill the lads returned via the alley after which return was made to the Methodist College. The clergy and lay members of the Methodist Conference who were attending the Garden Party at Government House, witnessed the review, and expressed their appreciation of the lads' fine appearance.

By RUTH CAMERON.

RUTH CAMERON

There are some folks who are always being invited on little pleasure trips of one sort or another, house parties, auto rides, theatre parties, dances—whatever diversion the tastes of their social group indicate.

There are other people who are seldom invited to share their friends' pleasures. They seem fated to be left out.

Quite frequently the second class resents this isolation and points bitterly at the first class. Why should they be continually invited and we only included now and then on surferance? they ask.

Giving To Those Who Have. Now sometimes this state of affairs is the result of the selfishness and thoughtlessness of the people who have. They prefer to give to those from whom they may receive again, to those to whom it is easiest to give, to those who also have. On the occasion of a certain big celebration when almost everyone was eager to reach a rather inaccessible point of interest, I heard a woman say, "No, we didn't take out our car at all. The Craddocks wanted us to go in theirs, you know. We took them the last time." Think of the callous selfishness of it!

But there are other occasions when the people themselves are at least partly to blame for their isolation, namely, when they are of the type who never seem to have a good time. People Who Don't Have A Good Time.

You take one of these people on an auto ride, you seek to honor her by placing her on the front seat. She seems uneasy and you find that she prefers to sit in back. It is necessary to pass through a rather unpleasant district on your way to the prettiest road you know. She does not fail to say how unfortunate it is that the city should permit such a dump to exist.

There is a light wind. She remarks with a deprecating laugh that it is unfortunate for the automobilist that we have so much wind, because it is never so pleasant to ride in a wind.

The road is being repaired in one or two places. "They seem to be always fixing these roads," she says. She is invariably cold or hot, and always obviously so.

Afraid She Will Be Late Home.

If she knows you well enough she has to get home at some set time, and just as you are approaching the loveliest part of the drive, begins to gently fidget lest you will not get her home on time.

Of course none of her criticisms are of anything for which you are directly responsible and yet they make you feel vaguely uncomfortable. They seem a reflection upon what you are offering her.

If you take her to a play, she wonders why the chorus is not so pretty as it used to be, regrets that the leading man is not sufficiently attractive to supply a plausible motive for the star's love, or wishes they would not play such worn-out music between the acts.

Of course she always thanks you afterwards for her good time, but no effectiveness of manner or phrase can make you believe that she really had one. Furthermore you are sure that you did not, either. Few things are more depressing than the uneasy, critical state of mind in which this type of person always seems to be. The result is that when you are on duty bound you may take the critical folks, but when you are out for a good time you ask the folks that have good times, to have one with you and to help you have one.

KNEELING AT THE THRESHOLD.

Thomas Guthrie, an aged Scotch minister, who rendered special service in his day to the poor children of Scotland, wrote just before his death the following lines:

I'm kneeling at the threshold,
Weary, faint and sore,
Waiting for the dawning, for the Opening of the door;
Waiting till the Master shall
Bid me rise and come
To the glory of His presence,
To the gladness of His home.

A weary path I've travelled,
Mid darkness, storm and strife,
Bearing many a burden,
Struggling for my life,
But now the morn is breaking,
The toll will soon be o'er,
I'm kneeling at the threshold,
My hand is on the door.

Methinks I hear the voices of
The blessed as they stand
Singing in the sunshine
In the far-off sinless land.
O, would that I were with them,
Amid their shining throngs,
Mingling in their worship,
Joining in their song.

The friends who started with me
Have entered long ago;
One by one they left me
Struggling with the foe.
Their pilgrimage was shorter,
Their triumph sooner won;
How lovingly they'll hail me
When all my toil is done.

Naval Battle Described From the Deck of a Warship.

What a fearful thing a naval battle is, and the terrible havoc wrought by the big guns of our battleships, is graphically described by a member of the crew of H.M.S. Southampton, which took part in the Heligoland battle. "We started the first thing in the morning," he says, "when we had a brush with two destroyers. It was misty and they were practically invisible, but I believe they were hit twice before disappearing in the mist. After that we turned and steamed out of it, but were recalled by an urgent wireless message from one of our ships which was in difficulty. Of course, the ship was immediately turned, and we proceeded at full speed to the scene of operations. "The enemy turned out to be a three-funnelled cruiser, somewhat larger than us. We immediately opened fire at a range of 10,000 to 13,000 yards. The enemy replied and steamed away from us, but eventually we ran parallel.

"Things began to look lively, as we were putting shells into her at the rate of five every ten seconds, and a inch lyddite at that. The shells have a terrible effect, and fumes from them kill anyone within a range of sixty yards, while they set on fire everything near them. Presently she was seen to be on fire, and a few minutes afterwards a beautifully placed shell put "paid" to two of her funnels. All amidships was now a raging fire, and the end came when her mainmast went by the board. We immediately ceased fire and altered our course, going close to her.

"My! what a sight she was! The fire amidships had made two of the funnels red hot, and flames and smoke were pouring out of her. Her port side was like a sieve. Every gun was smashed and bent, some looking round corners, some on their sides—in fact, her whole upper deck was chaos.

"The fore-bridge was a tangled mass of ironwork, while the wire stays from the foremast were swinging in the air. What she was like inside, Heaven alone knows.

"We passed within 200 yards of her, and the only living beings on the upper decks were one man on the quarter-deck and what looked like a couple of officers standing under what had been the fore bridge. Many of them had jumped overboard, and, of course, were rescued, but these only totalled seven officers and seventy-nine men out of a crew of 400 or 500."

Every Munster a Hero.

THE MEN WHO DID IT.

A non-commissioned officer, writing to a wounded officer, gives an account of the part played by the 2nd Royal Munster Fusiliers in the action of May 9, when for the third time since August, the battalion suffered heavy casualties.

"At 5 a.m. the artillery started the bombardment, which lasted half an hour, to cut the wire in front of the Germans' first line. When the C. O. gave the order for the attack every officer and man mounted the parapet with a cheer. It was really magnificent to see the way they attacked; every man tried to beat the others to get there first, and were splendidly led by their officers."

"Captain Dick as he reached the parapet of the enemy's trenches turned and waved his cap to encourage his men and then went forward again. Just as he was about to enter the trench he was hit and tumbled into the trench.

"Major-General Haking expressed his appreciation of the splendid conduct of the battalion in these terms: "This battalion was the only one in the brigade whose men succeeded in storming the enemy's breastwork. For great gallantry and leading I think Capt. Dick, 2nd Lieutenants Price and Horstall, and the N.C.O.s and men that followed them deserve the greatest distinction, also Sergeant Gannon went out several times and brought wounded men in, also a wounded officer, Private Barry, although wounded twice, brought in Captain Hawkes, who was severely wounded in three places and could not move. Poor Barry lost his life, as he was hit again while bringing in Captain Hawkes, and died from wounds. Except in a few cases of exceptional gallantry every man was a hero, and I hope this time will meet with the recognition they deserve."

Bridgewater. Our Military Leaders.

London Daily Mail.—We are not a military nation, and therefore do not understand the difference between soldiers and soldiers. Sir John Cowans is a great soldier—one of the greatest soldiers in the world. It is to him we owe the superb arrangements for the feeding of our troops. Sir William Robertson, Sir John French's Chief of Staff, is a great soldier. To him is due the fine staff work of the British Army in France. Lord Kitchener is a great soldier. To him is due the idea of advertising for an army. Sir John French is a great soldier. We owe to Sir John French the leadership which has enabled a handful of men from the British Islands, the Dominions, and India to hold back the mightiest army in the world, the remorseless horde that has been preparing for this particular struggle for 44 years.

OFFICIAL.
LONDON, June 26. The Governor, Newfoundland: The French Government report further progress north of Arras. In violent fighting on the heights of the Meuse, the Germans used asphyxiating bombs and burning liquid. Their attacks were dispersed with heavy loss. German attacks in Lorraine and Vosges were also repulsed. The Russian Government report further successful actions on the Dnieper.

TRADE UNION LEADERS' ISSUE MANIFESTO.
LONDON, June 27. Trade Union leaders have issued a manifesto addressed to their fellow trade unionists, saying: "We are faced with a great responsibility, and at the same time presented with a magnificent opportunity. We are called upon to assist in saving our nation and its Allies, who are fighting for civilization and international law as against barbarism and brute force." After calling attention to the serious position of the British and Russian armies in the field, in consequence of the shortage in munitions, the manifesto appeals to every skilled workman in the engineering and allied trades, who is not at present engaged upon war work, to enroll himself as a volunteer at this hour, and thus demonstrate to his comrades in the trenches and to the whole world that British Trade Unionism stands for all that is best in the national life, for national freedom, in national security.

ITALIAN OFFICIAL.
ROME, June 27. An official statement issued by the General Staff says: On the Tyrol-Trentino frontier, long range artillery duels continued at several points. Along the Isonzo frontier our progress beyond the river is developing slowly, but without pause.

APPEAL FOR PEACE BY SOCIALISTS.
BERLIN, June 27. The directors of the Social Democratic Party in Germany have caused to be published in the Vorwarts a full appeal for peace. The documents call for peace under circumstances, which will make possible friendships with the neighbouring nations, and it sets forth the opposition of the party to territorial conquest and annexation. The people want peace, it declares, and the Government is called upon in the name of humanity to make known its readiness to enter upon peace negotiations.

WILLING TO DISCUSS PEACE TERMS.
AMSTERDAM, June 27. The Berlin Socialist paper Vorwarts prints an appeal, signed by the Social Democratic Party, calling on the Government to convey to the other powers its willingness to discuss peace terms. According to the Berlin despatching to-day the appeal declares that German Socialists from the start opposed the war for purposes of annexation, and will support a peace agreement on these terms. It concludes by urging Socialists in other belligerent countries to use their efforts to end the war.

FRENCH OFFICIAL.
PARIS, June 27. The following official communication was issued last night: The day was marked by an intermittent bombardment, particularly violent in the suburbs north of Arras. On the heights of the Meuse to the east of Calonne trenches, the Germans delivered an attack, which was repulsed except at one point, where they penetrated on part of trenches held by two sections.

GERMAN ATTACKS REPULSED.
PETROGRAD, June 27. As a result of the strong German offensive in the direction of Prasnay, on Friday, desperate battle continues. In that region the Russians took 2,000 prisoners. During counter-attacks in the direction of Lemberg on Thursday, we took 1,000 prisoners, repulsing desperate attacks of great forces on the Dnieper. On the Narv front an attempted offensive by the enemy on the 24th in Omulev Valley, cost him severe losses. Rows of bodies were left in front of our trenches, and the number of prisoners was increased. In the Orzyve Valley on the night of the 24th we repulsed a fresh offensive by great enemy force; then delivering a counter-attack, we captured the work which we lost the day before, and took five machine guns.

BULGARIANS NOTIFIED TO HOLD THEMSELVES IN READINESS.

DESIRES TO CONTINUE NEGOTIATIONS.
BERLIN, June 27. The Krieg Zeitung, in an editorial article, expresses a desire to continue negotiations with the States, with the idea of reaching an understanding in the matter of submarine boats, which shall not endanger the vital interests of Germany's maritime warfare, either at present or in the future.

Amusements.

FORBES L. DUGUID SINGS TWO MASTERPIECES.
A programme of the best quality has been arranged for the Nickel Theatre to-day, and patrons will, no doubt, attend in large numbers to hear the singing and music and to see the pictures. Forbes Law Duguid will sing "Because" and "Absent" two of the greatest and best known songs of the day. Both are well known in the concert halls of England and America and are always popular. With such an artist as Forbes Law Duguid singing they should prove attractive. "Our Mutual Girl" will be continued. This is Margaret's birthday, she meets Daniel Frohman, theatrical manager, and rehearses for the stage. Another great film to-day is: "A Woman Scorned," by the Reliance players, Eugene Pallette and Mary Aldin are in the leads. There will also be a News Pictorial and a Keystone Comedy. "One Wonderful Night," the remarkable story of Louis Tracey, with Francis X. Bushman in the leading role is coming to the Nickel shortly.

FIRST AND SECOND CONTINGENT SHOWN AT "OURS."
By special request Mr. Rossley will show the beautiful film of the First and Second Contingents leaving St. John's, several have asked for it, so that they may have another look at our gallant soldier lads once again. Mr. Rossley will show it once more at his West End Theatre to-night. There are some very fine pictures, also a new song by two of Mrs. Rossley's pupils: "I have my eye on you," a novelty song. Mr. Rossley himself will superintend the evening, and a splendid night's amusement will be offered. The new pictures are all first class subjects and up to the high class standard always seen at "Ours" in the West End.

THE HOPI RAIDERS.
It is undoubtedly a peculiar sounding title for one of the very excellent photo-plays which will be shown at the favourite British Theatre commencing to-day. It is nevertheless one of the most interesting and graphically told stories concerning the liquor traffic as carried on by the crafty and resourceful Indians of a few decades ago. The picture is a two part society drama is the one entitled "A Song in the Dark" and it is portrayed in a most delightful manner by the famous Essay Company. Another photo play of exceptional brilliance is the one: "The Coward and the Man," a most stirring appeal and it is described in a manner leaving nothing to be desired. A comedy song by the popular Arthur Priestman, Cameron and two very funny comedies complete a most entertaining programme.

A WOMAN LAUGHS.
The Crescent Picture Palace is opening the week with another of its much talked about feature programs: "A Woman Laughs" is a great Selig drama in two reels, Kathlyn Williams—the leading star of the great Selig Company—features in this masterpiece. "The Verdict" is a floral poem—a beautiful film. "His Kid Sister" is a Vitagraph western drama, she's a good fellow and the right sort, she proves it in her loyalty to her brother. "The Fable of the Long Range Lover" is from the famous fables in slang by George Ade, the Crescent's motto a big show for little money.

The Why of the Submarine War.

Springfield Republican.—While officially and in defiance of dates, submarine warfare upon noncombatants has been called a reprisal for England's "starving" out policy, it must be suspected that rage and disappointment at the smothering of the German fleet had much to do with it. In commercial and middle-class Germany the fleet created since 1898 was as popular as the army was with the junkers, and great things were hoped from it. The misfortunes of the German navy must be kept in mind in trying to account for the unheard of savagery of the war on noncombatants. The navy was Germany's newest pride and its most sensitive spot.

Jesuit Father Preaches.

Rev. S. J. Devine preached to a large congregation at St. Patrick's Church last evening on the Sacred Heart. During his eloquent and powerful discourse he paid a fitting tribute to the memory of the late Rev. Dean Ryan. The Rev. Fr. Devine was here in 1902 and conducted a mission, his associate Jesuit Fathers being Revs. O'Brien, Doherty and Devlin, who have since passed away. Father Devine is a good journalist and a brilliant pulpit orator.

YOUR BOYS AND GIRLS

Nipples may be kept clean if boiled for a minute or so when new. After that boiling is not necessary and rots the rubber. After each feeding wash the nipple thoroughly with hot soap-suds made from white soap. Rinse in borax water then in cool pure water, shake, stand on a small plate or saucer, and cover with an inverted glass. This is considered a better method than leaving it to soak in borax water.

Never test the temperature of the milk by putting the nipple in your own mouth, and never touch it with your fingers or allow flies to light upon it. You can heat a bottle properly by placing it, still stoppered with cotton, in a pan of warm water and letting it stand until it reaches body temperature. Test by dropping on the bare forearm.

Getting Ready.

Brescia, Italy, via Chiasso and Paris, June 21.—Austrian soldiers made prisoners by the Italians show by their age that first line men from eighteen to twenty-eight years of age have been substituted for the middle-aged reservists along the Italian front. Prisoners report that the railways in southwestern Austria are crowded with troop trains headed for the Italian front.

According to the statements made by Austrian prisoners, the Austrians are completing their armament by transporting over the mountains heavy artillery of the 305-millimetre class. The Italians already have their heavy guns in position, having transported them to the front in unmounted sections.

Yesterday's Methodist Services

At Gower St. Church.

Yesterday morning at the Conference Church, the preliminary exercises were conducted by President Howse, Rev. Dr. Curtis and Rev. Dr. Hemmeon. Dr. Morton preached, taking as his text: "And the World was made Flesh." Religion is everywhere. The worst stimulated all life. The charm of his utterance, the beauty of his language, and the breadth of his views reminded the audience of his pastorate he held here nearly twenty years ago. It was a pleasurable renewal of old acquaintance.

At night the General Superintendent of the Methodist Church of Canada and Newfoundland, the Rev. Dr. Chown, occupied the pulpit. He was assisted by the venerable Dr. Cowperthwaite, the Rev. James Wilson and the Rev. D. Hemmeon. Dr. Chown took as his text: "That ye might be filled with all the fullness of God." It was a fine and inspiring oration. He prayed for the overthrow of militarism and mammonism, and illustrated his remarks by allusions to incidents in the great war. The iron bridge was strongest when completed. The bridge of cement was weakest when the work was done and was strengthened by time. Germany was a bridge of iron, Britain of cement. To-day the British Empire was cemented by justice, liberty and duty. Patriotism had overthrown patriotism. Each should be ready to hear a former pastor, the Rev. Prof. DesBarres, now of Sackville University. The evening worship, the preacher was the Rev. Dr. Moore, Supt. of Social work and Evangelism. The sermons were very well thought out, which were delivered with a great deal of forcefulness by the above named gentlemen, and contained many choice and timely lessons which all could grasp.

In the afternoon, a grand rally of Gower and Cochrane Street Schools was held, presided over by Mr. W. H. Peters. The President of the Conference, Rev. C. Howse, opened with prayer. Miss Parsons gave a very fine recitation. The speaker was the Rev. Dr. Moore, who in his own attractive and happy manner delighted the scholars and held their attention from start to finish.

The doctor showed that the great revolutions of the ages, from the Crusades to the present time, whether political, social or religious were only made possible by spirit of enthusiasm that captured the minds of the people. The greatest achievements can only be wrought out by a very volcano of passion. Methodism is essentially enthusiastic and when it loses its enthusiasm it is only fit to be thrown out as unfit for its high and exalted mission. Doctor Bland's discourse was replete with valuable lessons delivered in an easy, graceful manner and we could not help thinking if some of our young ministers would fling aside their formalities and conventionalities and go into their work like men who intended battle with evil forces, how much more good they would do than by the exercise of "frozen formalities" which reach nobody's heart and do nobody good.

Mrs. Baines singing at this service was heartily enjoyed and was most inspiring.—R. B. P.

Conference Sunday Cochrane St. Church.

Large congregations were present at the Cochrane Street Church service held yesterday in the College Hall. Conference Sunday is always full of special interest. The morning service was conducted by the Rev. C. A. Whitemarsh, A. A. the opening prayer being offered by the Rev. Dr. Fenwick. The congregation was delighted to hear a former pastor, the Rev. Prof. DesBarres, now of Sackville University. The evening worship, the preacher was the Rev. Dr. Moore, Supt. of Social work and Evangelism. The sermons were very well thought out, which were delivered with a great deal of forcefulness by the above named gentlemen, and contained many choice and timely lessons which all could grasp.

At Wesley Church.

Rev. Dr. Chown, General Superintendent, occupied this pulpit in the morning. He took for his text John 1-5. The discourse itself set forth the duties of the Christian Church in the period of Canadian nationality. He referred to the thousands who annually come to the shores of Canada. Many of them without any idea of self-government, having spent all their days under despotic and tyrannical rulers. In a meeting in Winnipeg, which was conducted by the Methodist Missionary Society, he listened to speeches from English, French, German, Jew, Polisher, all urging upon the Canadians to take more definite steps to help them to a fuller understanding and appreciation of Canadian life and morals. The Doctor spoke then especially about the Catholics. They form a formidable problem in Canada to-day. They are ignorant and brutal in many respects. When drunk they are savage and their police records are filled with their names. In Manitoba every tenth man is a Gallician; in Saskatchewan every sixth man, and in Alberta every man. This forms a formidable problem, as they through centuries have been ground down and know no way of succeeding except through the political heelers. The Indian work was then dealt with, especially that of the Coast of British Columbia. East of the Rockies the government recognizes the right of the Indian to the land and pays him a certain pension or annuity. But west of the Rockies no such claim is recognized. The Methodist Church recognizing the right of the Indian in this respect, has urged upon the Canadian Government to consider their case, and has succeeded in getting a promise that steps will be taken to give the Indian his right. The Doctor then referred to the great work of that missionary in British Columbia, Thomas Crosby. He has planted the standard of the Lord all up and down that great coast. A great change has come over the Indian since Rev. Thomas Crosby commenced his work there. The new mission boat the "Thomas Crosby" last year travelled 15,000 miles; 570 services were held and 1900 calls made. Many of these visits are made to places where no other boat calls. Hospitals and schools have been established all up and down the coast. In the good work all Methodists who contributed to Missions in Newfoundland are taking part. To give the gospel to these and to educate and christianize the foreigner in the work of the church, the Methodist Church must take a prominent part in the labor for Christ. The congregational singing was hearty. Mrs. Baines, wife of Rev. Mr. Baines, a former member of the Conference, sang a solo. Mrs. Baines is a graduate of Mount Allison Conservatory of Music, of Sackville, N.B.

At George St. Church.

Two of Canada's Great Preachers With Us.

At 11 a.m. we were favoured with the presence of Doctor Moore who gave the congregation an able and exhaustive discourse in a symbolical and very instructive manner.

The basis of his discourse was an imaginary arch, the upright on one side being depicted in Micah, chap. 6, verse 8: "What doth the Lord require of thee but to do justly, and love mercy, and to walk humbly with God." Then the upright, on the other side, was pointed out as suggested by the Scripture in Matt. 27, v. 37, with the top part as the dominating and the crowning part—the doctrine of love to God and man as enjoined upon human mortals in the Holy Scriptures.

Dr. Moore's interpretation and amplification of what it was to be a saint comprised the whole doctrine of Christianity and contained many opportune, necessary and highly essential lessons for the professedly religious. Dr. Moore is not only an eloquent but a very pleasing speaker evincing great knowledge of appeal to the heart and to the intelligence and employing his superior knowledge and experience in a genial and sympathetic manner, he is commended to the love and respect of his hearers individually.

It is to be earnestly desired that his work in this city will live long in the memory and the practice of those who were blessed with the privilege of hearing him on Sunday.

GEORGE ST. SUNDAY, P. M.

Doctor Bland officiated at this service and gave an eloquent sermon to a large and interested congregation from Eph. 5 chap. 18 v. Here again we had lessons that were as necessary to the spiritual life as the bread we eat is necessary to the natural life. The grand topic of Dr. Bland was "Enthusiasm." Enthusiasm as an indispensable thing in any work or performance where the whole energy of man is called into its fullest exercise.

New Aeroplanes for the British Like the "America"

Glen H. Curtiss Making Them at Toronto, London Hears.

London, June 18.—The statement in the House of Commons on Wednesday that Britain is developing a larger and more powerful aeroplane service, led to many enquiries yesterday, and it was learned that Glen H. Curtiss, the American aviator, has been commissioned to produce these machines. The aeroplane, a landing biplane of 320 horsepower, is in course of construction at the new factory recently built by Curtiss in Toronto, Ont.

The previous successful experience of the Hammondsport inventor in producing the aid in the work Anthony Wadmaker, and the usefulness of this machine when shown to the British Admiralty, with a dozen others of the same type, caused the selection of Mr. Curtiss for the work. The construction is being closely watched by the members of the British Military Flying Commission, who include Capt. W. L. Elder, R.N. Lieut. H. R. Busted, of the Royal Naval Air Service, and Capt. Jenkins, of the Royal Flying Corps. These officers are now in America. In addition to the officers, Dr. Albert F. Zahm, recorder of the Aerodynamic Laboratory of the Smithsonian Institution, in Washington, has been employed on behalf of the constructors to watch the construction of the big machine. Mr. Curtiss also has employed to aid in the work Anthony Wadmaker, of Baltimore, a well-known aviator and builder of aeroplanes. Mr. Janus flew 1,900 miles down the Mississippi in 1912. It is learned that the lines of the big biplane will be much like those of the America, so far as the wings are concerned. These were designed originally by Douglas Thomas, a young Englishman, now associated with Thomas Bros., an American firm at Ithaca, N.Y. They will spread wider than the America's wings, however, being designed to carry large loads of explosives and fuel. The giant aeroplane is expected to have a spread of nearly one hundred feet, as compared to seventy-two feet in the Wadmaker flying boat. Its power will be supplied by two engines of 160 horse-power, instead of the 100 horse-power motors used in the America.

Tried to Ram German Submarine.

London, June 21.—The Anchor Line steamer Cameronia, under charter to the Cunard Line, had a narrow escape from a submarine in the Irish Sea on her voyage from New York to Liverpool, according to Peter Fletcher, of New York, one of the saloon passengers. The Cameronia arrived in Liverpool on Sunday.

Mr. Fletcher says that during the run through the Irish Sea a submarine came out of the water, showing the top of her conning tower. To save the Cameronia, Captain Kinnard headed his vessel for the submarine, which dived. After passing over the spot where the under-water boat went down without finding any evidence that the steamer had collided with it, Captain Kinnard reversed the course of his vessel and got away safely.

HILAIRE BELLOC, WAR EXPERT, PLACES TUDOR'S LOSSES AT 4,000,000.

London, June 18.—Hilaire Belloc, in this week's Land and Water, estimates that the German and Austrian losses up to the present total nearer 4,000,000 than 3,000,000 men. He bases his calculation on a careful analysis of the figures of the English casualties given by Premier Asquith in the House of Commons last week. "The enemy's potential manhood for actual fighting within the first year," Belloc concludes, "has probably been diminished by nearly one-half from all causes."

MECHANICS' MEETING—A Special Meeting of the Mechanics' Society will be held on Tuesday next, at 7 o'clock sharp, to attend the Procession in honor of His Grace Archbishop Roche.

At the R. C. Cathedral.

PONTIFICAL HIGH MASS.

Yesterday at 11 a.m. pontifical High Mass was celebrated at the R. C. Cathedral by His Excellency, Most Rev. Monsignor Stagni, Apostolic Delegate to Canada and Newfoundland. The Deacon and Sub-Deacon of the Mass were Rev. A. J. Fyfe, P. P., St. Kyran's, and Rev. E. J. Wilson, P. P., Marystown, while the Deacons of Honor were the Rev. J. J. McGrath, P. P., Bell Island, and Rev. W. O'Flaherty, P. P., Salmonier. Rev. Dr. Greene was Master of Ceremonies, and Rt. Revs. Bishop Power, of St. George's, and Bishop O'Leary, of Charlottetowne, P.E.I., with their Chaplains and the visiting clergy occupied seats in the Sanctuary.

The procession of the Prelates, priests and acolytes through the Palace grounds to the Cathedral was an imposing spectacle. The dignitaries of the Church vested in their robes of office, and attended by the altar boys in soutanes preceded His Excellency who was attended by a guard of honor from the Holy Name Society. Entering the Cathedral yard the C. C. C. Brigade accompanied the procession to the main entrance of the church forming a guard of honor.

The beautiful ritual of the Mass was enhanced by the singing of the male choir under Professor Hutton, the settings being Gregorian. The congregation was a large one, over 6,000 worshippers being present.

PONTIFICAL VESPERS.

In the evening Pontifical Vespers were sung, the celebrant being Rt. Rev. Bishop O'Leary who also imparted Benediction of the Blessed Sacrament. Rev. Dr. Greene was again Master of Ceremonies. The singing was by the full male choir, and the solo "O Salutaris" by Prof. McCarthy was very well rendered.

Copper Shipments.

There is a large output of copper ore from the mines at Tilt Cove this season. Besides the charter of the steamers Adventure and Beothic, the S. S. Nascope will be engaged and probably another ship from here to take cargoes to New York. There are now about 12,000 tons of copper ore at Tilt Cove awaiting shipment.

In Milady's Boudoir.

TO MASSAGE AWAY WRINKLES.

If your face is badly wrinkled a fifteen minute massage each day will be necessary, but if there are only a few tiny lines, five minutes will suffice. Before manipulating the face it should be washed with hot soapy water and a complexion brush. After it has been rinsed carefully and dried, the skin should be coated thickly with the following cream: White wax one half ounce; sweet almond oil two ounces; lanolin one ounce; spermaceti one half ounce; cocconut oil one ounce; tincture of benzoin two drops; orange-flower water one ounce. Place the first five ingredients in a double boiler and melt over a slow fire. When they are melted and mingled smoothly take from the fire and add the benzoin and orange-flower water, fuffing with an egg beater until cold. Then pour into small open mouthed jars ready for use.

The forehead lines should be massaged in a circular motion, using the finger tips of the right hand and holding the skin taught with thumb and forefinger of the left hand. Wrinkles surrounding the eyes should be treated carefully, as it is an easy matter to rub in more wrinkles than you can ever rub out. Place the first and second fingers on the nose, just above the eyes and massage out beyond the eye corners, then sweep in underneath the eyes toward the nose. Use a very light pressure.

The cheeks should be massaged up from the point of the chin, using the palm of the hand. To efface the laughing wrinkles put the first and second fingers underneath the centre of the lower lip, then massage up beyond the corner of the mouth and up toward the nostril. Hollows under the cheek should be massaged with a delicate rotary movement of the fingers. After the massage is completed wipe off the surplus cream and spray the face with the following astringent to make firm the relaxed tissue: Thirty drops benzoin; thirty drops mucilage of acacia; one ounce limewater.

War Work For Women.

How the Fair Sex are Taking the Places of the Men at the Front.

A short time ago the Government issued an appeal for those women to register themselves who were willing to take on certain jobs where there was a shortage of supply of men owing to the war. In a few days 30,000 women had signed the Government forms, and applications for more forms are pouring in from all parts of the country.

Everywhere, indeed, women are taking the place of their husbands, their brothers, and their sons who have gone into the firing line to fight for their hearth and home. Nor are they picking and choosing their jobs, or wondering whether they are "fit for women" or not. The work's there and it's got to be done, and the women have eagerly come forward to do it.

Motor-drivers, farm-laborers, railway porters, ticket-inspectors, booking-clerks, station-masters, postmen, armament-workers, and a dozen other trades and professions are now being carried on by the women, and will be till Germany is finally smashed, and the men can come back again to take up their work anew.

Over 10,000 of the applications for work in response to the Government's appeal have been by women who want to help in the making of shells and explosives, but even that number is nothing like what will be wanted. Mr. Runciman, the President of the Board of Trade, stated recently that some of the principal armament factories had informed the authorities that they could do with over 12,000 women to help.

They Want to Make Cartridges.

More than half the operators in the metal trade workshops, indeed, are unskilled or very little skilled. There are thousands of lathes and machines of all descriptions which can be as well and as efficiently tended by girls as by men. That they can do the work, indeed, there is no doubt, for in peace time over 100,000 women are ordinarily employed in the machines and metals industries, industries which are now being turned to war purposes. Some of the women in the war factories are now working in all-night shifts, turning out cartridges—so keen are they on doing all they can.

Hundreds of letters have been received with the application forms, the tenor of which is "my husband is at the front, and I should like to make cartridges for him."

One of the places where there is a large demand for women war workers is on the land. The Board of Agriculture, in fact, is now arranging in each county for a tabulated list of farmers who want women's help, how many women they want, for what kind of work, and when.

At the Hampshire County Agriculture Institute near Winchester, a number of women are being taught every branch of farm routine. They are not only being taught butter-making and milking, work to which women have more or less always been accustomed, but gardening and field work, even to drill seeding, and driving a coupling rake, or working a cake-crusher or a pulping machine.

The railway companies everywhere are employing hundreds of women. At such big stations as Marleybone in London, and the chief stations of Manchester, women porters cheerfully roll milk churns along, or harrow loads of luggage. The pay is £1 a week, without tips, and many of the "portresses" are making a fine thing out of their new occupation, for their novelty makes them in great demand, and on an average they are getting bigger tips than the men did. In Manchester the portresses wear a distinctive armet bearing the initials of the company to which they belong. Special caps, too, are to be served out to them.

Other new railway jobs for women are the booking clerk and ticket inspector. A girl booking clerk has been so successful at Willesden, indeed, that it is likely girls will soon replace hundreds of men who are eager to join the new army.

FIGURES DO LIE.
Prices are only Relative

REGAL ENGINES are the highest priced engines, yet they are the cheapest.

They are the highest priced engines because they cost more to build.

They are the cheapest engines, because they will last twice as long as any other engine.

They are also the cheapest engines because they save your time, and "Time is money."

If you shut your eyes to this real bargain in engines, you will be the sorriest fisherman who ever signed an order.

You will lose more money than you can afford to lose, and your oil bills will be twice as large.

REGAL ENGINES use less oil, have more power, run with less trouble and give more genuine satisfaction than any other engine on the market.

We are, in the near future, going to ask all cash for REGAL ENGINES, so buy one before we make this change, as we intend to make them the "Hall Mark" engines of Newfoundland.

We ship REGAL ENGINES complete with full book of instructions, and when once installed in your boat, any child can run one.

REGAL ENGINES are higher priced than other engines, but are the cheapest in the long run, because they run the longest.

HAVE US WRITE YOU A POLICY

of fire insurance to-day and you'll sleep sounder to-night. The man who is insured isn't half as nervous about fire as the man who isn't. Why should he be?

FIRE INSURANCE PROTECTS him from all loss. He knows if his house or store burns down where he is going to get money to replace it without borrowing. Are you in that comfortable position? Why not put yourself in it by taking out a policy right now?

PERCIE JOHNSON,
Insurance Agent.

In the Supreme Court!

In the matter of the Petition of Joseph Bartlett, of Bell Island, Miner, alleging that he is insolvent and praying to be so declared.

Upon reading the petition, schedule and affidavit filed herein on the 18th day of June instant, and hearing Kent, K.C., for the petitioner, I do order that the said Joseph Bartlett and his creditors appear before me in Chambers in the Court House at St. John's on Wednesday, the 30th day of June, now present, at 11 o'clock in the forenoon, to be examined and heard touching the alleged insolvency, and that in the meantime Simon Butler, Acting Registrar of the Supreme Court, be trustee of the estate and effects of the said Joseph Bartlett and that in the meantime all further actions or proceedings against the said Joseph Bartlett be stayed.

Dated at St. John's, this 17th day of June, A.D. 1915.
(Sgd.) W. H. HORWOOD, C.J.
On motion of Kent, K.C.,

The Eastern Trust Company.

A few reasons why an estate can be better administered by the Eastern Trust Company than by a personal executor or administrator:

1. The Company affords the estate absolute security; it has a paid-up capital of $931,000.00, and a reserve fund of $229,300.00.
2. It has a long experience in the work of administering estates; it is incorporated for this business of acting as a trustee, and, unlike many other trust companies, it does no other.
3. Its existence is perpetual. Your estate, in the event of the death of a personal executor or administrator, must look around for a substitute, and the work of administration is impeded during that time, and the new executor is unfamiliar with the policy of his predecessor, and confusion results. This company's existence is perpetual, and there is a continuity of policy in its administration that the death of its officers does not break.
4. It possesses the confidence of governments, universities and prominent charities and administers their funds.
5. A number of other advantages which will appear in due course.
