WHEN LOVE Came Too Late.

CHAPTER XXXV.
Olivia's Testimony.
A cry rose from beneath her, and the squire sprang forward.
"Silence! Silence!" shouted the usher.
The judge leaned forward, the crowd murmured their astonishment.
But the effect upon Faradeane was more marked than upon the others. He sprang to his feet and regarded Olivia with a horrified gaze.
"To save your father—Mr. Vanley? He was in debt?—Mr. Bradstone offered to assist him?"
"Yes," came the reply, dropping like an icicle from the pale, set lips. "He gave me the money."
The squire moaned.
"I—before God I knew, I guessed nothing of this!" he exclaimed in accents of misery.
"Silence!"
"My father knew nothing," said Olivia, and she reached down, and put out her hand to him over the box.
"Have you that money still?"
Olivia started.
"Yes," she said. "But I shall not have it an hour longer."
As she spoke she glanced at Bessie.
For a moment Bessie looked as if she were trying to understand the glance; then a light broke over her face, and she rose and made her way out of the court.

Olivia watched her until she disappeared, then drew a breath of relief.
"Now tell me," said Mr. Edgar, when the excitement had subsided. "When did you see Mr. Bradstone last?"
"On the day of the wedding," she replied, and she gave the answer coldly. The worst had passed; there could be no keener shame for her to endure than that which she had already borne.
"At what time?"
"Nearly four o'clock."
"You have not seen or exchanged a word with him since?"
"No."
The crowd pressed as close as they could to the witness-box, that they might not lose a word of this never-to-be-forgotten evidence.
"Do you know where he is?" asked Mr. Edgar, still with deep respect. Olivia shook her head.
"I do not."
Mr. Edgar paused a moment; the faint light which he thought he had described seemed fading, and leading him nowhere.
"Did you ever hear Mr. Bradstone allude to Bella-Bella, the deceased?" he asked, in the vague hope that the question might lead to something, some new thread or clew to the mystery. For he was more than ever convinced that Faradeane was not guilty, and that if he—Mr. Edgar—could gain time, he could succeed in proving his client's innocence.

"Never," said Olivia.
"Have you received any communication from Mr. Bradstone in reference to this murder?" he asked.
"All eyes were fixed upon her, and all saw her wince and shrink.
"You have?" said Mr. Edgar, prompt to mark every change of expression in her eloquent face. "Answer, please. Remember your oath, remember that a man's life—Lord Clydesfold's life—is hanging by a thread."
She cast a piteous glance at Faradeane, who had risen and stood looking at her in a silent agony of sympathy. He had risked his life, would lose it in all probability, to save her husband from the hangman's hands, the convict's shame, and yet she had come to this!
"You have?" said Mr. Edgar. "Tell me, please, I must, unfortunately, press for an answer."
"I have!" she replied, almost voicelessly.
"What was it? Have you the letter here?"

Women Once Invalids

Now in Good Health Through Use of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. Say it is Household Necessity. Doctor Called it a Miracle.

All women ought to know the wonderful effects of taking Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound even on those who seem hopelessly ill. Here are three actual cases:

Harrisburg, Penn.—"When I was single I suffered a great deal from female weakness because my work compelled me to stand all day. I took Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound for that and was made stronger by its use. After I was married I took the Compound again for a female trouble and after three months I passed what the doctor called a growth. He said it was a miracle that it came away as one generally goes under the knife to have them removed. I never want to be without your Compound in the house."—Mrs. FRANK KNOBL, 1642 Fulton St., Harrisburg, Penn.

Hardly Able to Move.
Albert Lea, Minn.—"For about a year I had sharp pains across my back and hips and was hardly able to move around the house. My head would ache and I was dizzy and had no appetite. After taking Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and Liver Pills, I am feeling stronger than for years. I have a little boy eight months old and am doing my work all alone. I would not be without your remedies in the house as there are none like them."—Mrs. F. E. Yost, 611 Water St., Albert Lea, Minn.

Three Doctors Gave Her Up.
Pittsburg, Penn.—"Your medicine has helped me wonderfully. When I was a girl 18 years old I was always sickly and delicate and suffered from irregularities. Three doctors gave me up and said I would go into consumption. I took Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and with the third bottle began to feel better. I soon became regular and I got strong and shortly after I was married. Now I have two nice stout healthy children and am able to work hard every day."—Mrs. CLEMENTINA DUEHRING, 34 Gardner St., Troy Hill, Pittsburg, Penn.

All women are invited to write to the Lydia E. Pinkham Medicine Co., Lynn, Mass., for special advice—it will be confidential.

She uttered a piteous little cry, and drew Bartley Bradstone's letter from her pocket.
Mr. Edgar took it calmly, though his heart beat. He read it, and his face fell slightly, master of it though he was.
Mr. Sewell was on his legs in a moment.
"I must see that letter," he said, firmly.
"It is—," began Mr. Edgar, but the solemn voice of the judge broke in: "You must put in the letter, Mr. Edgar; the prosecution, the jury, all of us must see it, please."
"As your lordship pleases," said Mr. Edgar, resignedly, and he held out the letter.
Mr. Sewell's face cleared.
"My lord," he said, "the letter is evidence, such as it is, on the side of the prosecution, and he read it."
"Where is this Mr. Bradstone?" inquired the judge, sternly.
"One moment!" put in Mr. Edgar. "Do you know if Mr. Bradstone was aware of Lord Clydesfold's affection for you?"
Olivia's face flushed, then grew white again.
"He may have known."
"Had Lord Clydesfold and Mr. Bradstone ever quarrelled?"
"Yes," she faltered, clutching the front of the witness box.
"So that I should not be far wrong if I said that Mr. Bradstone bore Lord Clydesfold a grudge?"
"No," dropped almost inaudibly from her white lips.
Mr. Edgar bowed with deep respect.
"Thank you, madam."
As she left the box Bertie and the squire took her hands.
"You will leave the court now?" whispered Bertie.
She shook her head.
"I cannot! I cannot!" and they took her back to her old seat.
Mr. Sewell rose, and in a few words seemed to scatter Mr. Edgar's defense to the winds. The evidence for the prosecution was complete, unanswerable. If there had ever been any doubt in the minds of the jury on the score of motive, Mr. Edgar had supplied it. Lord Clydesfold was in love with Miss Vanley, and married to this gypsy, and he, driven desperate, had rid himself of his lawful wife. He called upon the jury to find the prisoner guilty.
Then, amid a solemn silence, the Judge arranged his notes and summed up.

It was evident to all that he put forward every iota in favor of the prisoner; but the awful evidence of his presence by the body, his connection with the deceased, the revolver, and his blood-stained clothes, the judge was compelled to give; and it was evidence which Mr. Edgar had not been able to outweigh by rebutting testimony.

The crowd grew pale in the intensity of their excitement and suspense, and the jury were rising to leave the box, when a loud noise was heard at the entrance of the court, and a smooth-faced, commonplace-looking man was seen to push his way through the throng, followed by a dark, sinister-looking man, who, as he advanced, looked from right to left in a furtive, half-suspicious, half-frightened way.

"McAndrew!" muttered Mr. Sewell; "where on earth has he been, and what is he doing? We have got a conviction!"
"McAndrew—for it was he—went straight for Mr. Sewell, and whispered to him, and an eager dispute followed between them.
"Eh?" then said Mr. Sewell. "Oh, if you like, I don't care!"
Then he looked up to the bench.
"My lord, the only desire of the Crown is that the truth of this matter should be made apparent. I call Seth Lee!"

The judge looked and frowned, and held up his hand.
"You may call him," he said.
CHAPTER XXXVI.
A Forgery.
Seth glided into the box, and stood with his eyes fixed upon Mr. McAndrew, as if he looked to him for guidance and protection. McAndrew, close to Mr. Sewell's elbow, whispered his instructions, and that eminent counsel, evidently struggling against an overwhelming astonishment not unmingled with a certain professional indignation, addressing the judge, said:

"My lord, I have received—I am indeed only now receiving—intelligence bearing upon this trial, of the most extraordinary nature. I am sure I shall have the indulgence of your lordship and the jury, and that they will credit me with my sincere desire to obtain the truth. Mr. Edgar, I think this witness, should belong to you, but as I am in possession of the information, I will examine him."
Mr. Edgar bowed, scarcely taking his eyes from Seth's cunning face.
"I reserve all my rights, my lord," he said.
"Your name is Seth Lee?"
"It is," said Seth, clearly enough, and as readily, his gaze still fixed on Mr. McAndrew.
"What do you know of this murder?"
"Everything," came the response.
The crowded court was so still that the ticking of the clock in the corridor could be heard distinctly.
"Do you know the prisoner at the bar?"
"I do. He's Lord Clydesfold."
"Did you know the deceased?"
"I did. She was a gypsy, one of my tribe, a Lee."
"When did you see the prisoner—Lord Clydesfold—last?"
"In Harkwood Spinney, the day of the murder."
A rustle in the crowded court as people turned and looked at one another.
"At what time did you see him?" (To be Continued.)

THE U. S. REFUSAL.
WASHINGTON, Oct. 10. The United States has refused to accept the contention of the Entente Allies urging that neutrals deny the use of their harbors to all submarines, whether merchantmen or warships. Councillor Folk of the State Department announced to-day.

SUB. CONTROVERSY.
LONDON, Oct. 10. The evening newspapers, commenting on the activities of the neutrals to the request made by the States to Britain early in the year to recall British cruisers from the West Indies and to American waters near American ports, and contend that the States cannot permit belligerent submarines to operate in these same waters. The Westminster Gazette says: "We have ample confidence in our Navy's ability to withstand the submarine menace, but we are entitled to expect that consideration which we have shown neutrals in the exercise of our sea-power shall not be audaciously turned to our disadvantage. The Daily Mail Gazette says: "Washington must either put a preemptory stop to proceedings in this area, over which it claims special concern, or must withdraw her protest against surveillance exercised by British warships, and recognize that its diplomacy showed lack of foresight and a deficient grasp of practical conditions."

NOTHING OF IMPORTANCE.
PETROGRAD, Oct. 10. On the western, Dobruja and Caucasian fronts, nothing of special importance has occurred, says to-day's announcement.

GREECE'S CABINET.
LONDON, Oct. 10. Telegraphing from Athens yesterday Reuter's correspondent said: "Professor Lambros has succeeded in forming a Cabinet, which will be sworn in to-day. It is composed as follows: Premier and Minister of Public Instruction, Professor Spyridon Lambros; Minister of Foreign Affairs, M. Zolocostas; Minister of War, General Dracos; Marine, Admiral A. Damianos, the present incumbent; Finance, Constantinos Tsanitolofos; Justice, Constantinos Andonopoulos; Interior, Alexander Tsikos; National Economy, probably M. Oeconomides. The correspondent describes this as politically the most colorless cabinet Greece has ever known."

TOWNS REPORTED EVACUATED.
LONDON, Oct. 10. On the Struma front Kalendra and Topalova are reported by cavalry reconnaissance to have been evacuated by the enemy, who has fallen back to hills northwest of Sere. Kalendra and Homondas have been occupied. On the Delran front, our patrols have been active, and our artillery continues to bombard the enemy trenches.

FRANCE AND THE SUBMARINE.
PARIS, Oct. 10. The torpedoing of Allied steamships off American ports by German submarine forces is regarded as the most important war news of the day. Under headings of "Blackmail" and "Defiance" the morning newspapers print every scrap of news obtainable, accompanied by plentiful comment. The general sentiment of the press is that Germany is challenging the United States, with a conviction that the challenge will not be taken up, and that neutrals must see to-day that they acted unwisely in not nipping the submarine warfare on commerce in the bud.

GERARD IN NEW YORK.
NEW YORK, Oct. 10. W. G. Gerard, American Ambassador to Germany, upon his arrival here to-day declined either to give or deny published reports that he was returning to the United States on a peace mission on behalf of the Emperor of Germany. Gerard's attention was called to a copyright article which appeared this morning in the New York World, to the effect that his errand was to inform the administration that resumption of submarine activity is being considered by Germany in a manner which might threaten German-American relations. Gerard, after quickly going through this story, said: "You don't see me quoted anywhere in it, do you?" To questions put to the Ambassador by reporters, who met him at his quarters, he replied, "It is useless to question me, boys. I cannot say a word."

When the throat tickles, when it hurts to draw a long breath, when you feel as if a knife were stuck in your side, it's time to draw out the conclusion that will soon become pneumonia.
An ordinary cough syrup has no chance at all—you require a powerful penetrating liniment!
Nothing is known that possesses more merit in such cases than Nerville's.
Rub it liberally over the sides and chest—rub it in hard.
The warm, soothing effect of Nerville's will be apparent in five minutes. Nothing like it for quick relief.

THE U. S. REFUSAL.
WASHINGTON, Oct. 10. The United States has refused to accept the contention of the Entente Allies urging that neutrals deny the use of their harbors to all submarines, whether merchantmen or warships. Councillor Polk of the State Department announced to-day.

SUB. CONTROVERSY.
LONDON, Oct. 10. The evening newspapers, commenting on the activities of the U-53, refer to the request made by the States to Britain early in the year to recall British cruisers from trade lines appropriate to American waters and American ports, and contend that the States cannot permit belligerent submarines to operate in these same waters. The Westminster Gazette says: "We have ample confidence in our Navy's ability to withstand the submarine menace, but we are entitled to expect that consideration which we have shown neutrals in the exercise of our sea-power shall not be audaciously turned to our disadvantage. takes soreness out of the throat in one rubbing—breaks up the chest cold, draws out the inflammation, stops the cough quickly.

Rub it on for rheumatism—it destroys the pain—drives it right away. Try it for stiff muscles—it works miracles in just such cases.

Give Nerviline a chance on your neuralgia, prove it out for lumbago, see what it can do for sciatica.

No pain-relieving remedy compares in power to cure with Nerviline. Largest sale in Canada of any liniment for nearly forty years. The reason is plain. It satisfies every time.

The large 50 cent family size bottle is more economical than the 25 cent trial size. Sold by dealers everywhere.

Rub it liberally over the sides and chest—rub it in hard.

The warm, soothing effect of Nerviline will be apparent in five minutes. Nothing like it for quick relief.

Incandescent Gas Lighting.

Possibly, the feature of incandescent gas lighting most frequently noted by casual observers is the great ease with which tasks, ordinarily arduous under artificial light may be performed under the Welshbach gas mantle. The light has a peculiarly "soft" quality, difficult to describe, but which is readily recognized by those who have had experience with the gas mantle lamp.

In its general effect upon bodily health and comfort, the use of incandescent gas lighting is decidedly favorable. The currents of air set up by the burning gas improves ventilation, tending to expel the air vitiated by respiration and draw in fresh air to replace it. Harmful or dangerous disease germs are instantly destroyed in the flame. The extent to which this effect takes place may be verified by placing a gas lamp close to a ceiling without any provision for interfering with the up-rushing air currents. The charged particles which collect immediately above the lamp are the remains of dust particles which before passing through the flames were laden with germs and microbes. Actual experiments have shown that the burning of gas lamps in rooms previously containing bacteria, resulted in almost total sterilization of the air.

Contrary to the popular notion the temperature of rooms lighted by incandescent gas lamps is seldom markedly greater than under incandescent electric light, even under unfavorable conditions of ventilation, while in rooms provided with the ventilating facilities required by the demands of hygiene, the temperature in gas-lighted rooms is frequently lower.

My 17. m.v.f

headquarters in France issued to-day's report. The work of improving our new positions south of the Ancre continued last night in the same interest. In addition to those reported, a further 285 German prisoners were brought in, including five officers. An enemy aeroplane was brought down north of Neuville St. Vaast. Yesterday our own aircraft were again active; one of our machines is missing.

ACTIVITY REPORTED.
PARIS, Oct. 10. Increased activity on the battlefield north of the Somme is reported by the war office. Spirited artillery fighting occurred last night in the Denicourt-Lilions sector.

In the fighting south of the Somme to-day, French troops captured the village of Bovenst, northwest of the outskirts of Abtaincourt, also the greater part of Chaubain Wood. Prisoners were taken to the number of 1,200, according to an official to-night.

WARNED OF SUBMARINES.
NEW YORK, Oct. 10. The Anchor Liner Cameronia arrived here to-day from Glasgow and Liverpool with 671 passengers. The Cameronia received a wireless message while off Nantuxet on Sunday that a German submarine was in the vicinity. Life boats were swung out and life belts were distributed among the passengers, and the ship abruptly turned her course to the south of Cape May. The Cameronia entered the 3 mile neutrality limit and, hugging the shore, assumed north, not once getting outside the safety zone.

PARLIAMENT ASSEMBLED.
LONDON, Oct. 10. The British Parliament assembled to-day for the autumn session. There are few matters of importance to come before Parliament with the exception of questions pertaining to the war.

The financial aspects of the war were referred to by Chancellor of the Exchequer McKenna. In response to a question in the Commons he said that the decision to issue six per cent. exchequer bonds was taken, because the moment did not appear to be most favorable to put out a long dated loan. He could not give a pledge as to the issuance of such loan, he said, but intended to recommend such a flotation at the first favorable opportunity.

THE IRISH QUESTION.
LONDON, Oct. 10. The Irish Nationalists at a meeting to-day decided to make an effort to have the Irish question discussed in the Commons as early as possible. John Redmond was requested to give notice of the following motion, and to ask facilities for its discussion: That the system of government at present maintained in Ireland, is inconsistent with the principles for which the Allies are fighting in Europe, and is, or has been, mainly responsible for the present state of feeling in that country.

TO APPOINT ROYAL COMMISSION.
LONDON, Oct. 10. The British Government has decided to appoint a royal commission with Lord Crawford as chairman to take steps necessary to ensure adequate and regular supplies of flour. An announcement to this effect was made in the Commons to-day by Mr. Ruttman, President of the Board of Trade. It is becoming clear, he said, that the supplies of wheat for Britain could not be left to private enterprises. In anticipation of this action the Government has made a large purchase of wheat in Australia.

WILL REFUSE PERMISSION.
LONDON, Oct. 10. The British official Press Bureau to-night placed at the disposal of the press for publication a statement to the effect that owing to the continued garbling of messages and breach of faith on the part of the International News Service, it shall not be permitted the use of the Official Press Bureau, and that agency shall be debarred from the use of all other facilities for the transmission of news until further notice.

NEWSPAPER CONFERENCE.
OTTAWA, Oct. 10. Satisfactory progress is being made at the conference between newspaper publishers and the Minister of Finance, which regards the price of newspaper print. At the conclusion of yesterday's conference, at which there were present representatives of pulp and paper manufacturers, sub-committees of both interests were created to meet together with a government tariff expert, to endeavor to reach a satisfactory agreement.

SUBMARINE RAISED.

All Children Love "Syrup of Figs" for Liver and Bowels

Give it when feverish, cross, bilious, for bad breath or sour stomach.

Look at the tongue, Mother! It coated, it is a sure sign that your little one's stomach, liver and bowels need a gentle, thorough cleansing at once. When peevish, cross, listless, pale, doesn't sleep, doesn't eat or act naturally, or is feverish, stomach sour, breath bad; has stomach-ache, sore throat, diarrhoea, full of cold, give a teaspoonful of "California Syrup of Figs," and in a few hours all the foul, constipated waste, undigested food and sour bile gently moves out of his little bowels without griping, and you have a well, playful child again.

You needn't coax sick children to take this harmless "fruit laxative"; they love its delicious taste, and it always makes them feel splendid.

Ask your druggist for a 50-cent bottle of "California Syrup of Figs," which has directions for babies, children of all ages and for grown-ups plainly on the bottle. Beware of counterfeiters' sold here. To be sure you get the genuine, ask to see that it is made by "California Fig Syrup Company." Refuse any other kind with contempt.

Highlanders Presentation

At Smithville Last Night.

The lads of the Newfoundland Highlanders met at their Armory, King's Road, last night and marched to Smithville, under command of Capt. Henderson and Capt. W. Herder, where an enjoyable evening was spent. The guests of honour were several returned soldiers, former members of the Highlanders, who were on leave or invalided, and were taken to the hostelry in automobiles. Capt. Henderson presided and extended a hearty welcome to the returned soldiers, and also complimented the prize winners in the various shooting competitions. The prizes were presented by Capt. J. W. Morris, who also complimented the men on their success. The silver cup and medal donated by Lieutenant Paterson was won by Capt. J. Adams, with a score of 143 out of a possible 160 points; this cup must be won twice in succession to become the property of any competitor. Drummer W. Clouston (1st Nfd. Regt.), captured Major McKay's prize with a score of 139. In the special competition Lieut. A. Reid's prize was won by Sgt. S. R. Steele, and Capt. Henderson's by Sergeant McNevin; the scores were 95 and 85 out of possible 110. Capt. Munn's and Major McKay's prizes in the junior competition fell to Pte. R. Vasey, with 150, and Pte. P. Pushe, with 121 out of a possible 160 points. The prizes presented by former Lieut. Col. McNeill and W. Campbell, in the grouping competition—10 shots standing rapid fire at a disappearing target—were won by Pte. R. Pushe, first with 55 points, and Pte. E. Squire, second with 51, out of a possible 60. The best target shooting in the whole competition for trophy presented by Mr. J. C. Hopper was won by Pte. R. Wells (1st Nfd. Regiment) with a score of 37 out of 40.

During the evening refreshments were passed around and Drummer Wheeler with "Wee MacGregor" added to the enjoyment of the affair. At 11 p.m. the return to headquarters was made and shortly after arrival the lads were allowed to "gang away" home.

Small Profit in War Like This.

If each Zeppelin raid on England, as have, now, three in succession, is going to cost the raiders one of those expensive machines, with every member of its crew, the making of war in this particular manner cannot long seem profitable to those who are engaged in it. Evidently, the British have learned how to defend London and their larger cities from aerial attack. They have at last found a plan that can hit the flying ships more than occasionally, and put those who miss in such danger as to make retreat seem advisable, ever to the boldest and most determined of enemies. Their aeroplanes, moreover, do not

The American Reply to the Allies.

In the agitation of the press, the advance of insurance rates and general disturbance of shipping we see the natural aftermath of the one day's activity of the German submarines just outside American waters. It is probably the only sort of consequence that will attend it. There is very little ground for apprehension that the pirate will continue its depredations; the little adventure has every appearance of having been designed more for its moral effect upon shipping and trade with the Entente nations than for any naval purpose or even the direct extension of the submarine campaign as we have come to know it. The warships of the Allies may be counted upon to look after the situation, and so far as further loss of ships and lives is concerned, we believe there need be little fear. In all probability, the agitation will soon be quieted and matters resume their normal course, except for the storm of words that is likely to continue.

The principal consequence that threatens to emerge is the quite possible diplomatic friction between the United States and the Entente Powers. The latter will read the reply of the former to their representations with interest, if with no stronger feelings. It is calculated to provoke them to anger, if anger were not so soon swallowed up in contempt. It contains some striking sentences. What we like particularly is the arrogant claim that the United States was the Power to take "the first steps towards establishing the principles of neutrality," principles that it has since maintained with a high sense of impartiality. This is very like a notorious trick of boasting of the honesty of its ancestors. In the case of the Lusitania, at any rate, the United States were certainly the Power that took the first steps towards establishing a very novel principle of neutrality—a distinction which other civilized nations are not likely to challenge. But there may be found one or two carping critics who will question the manner in which the same magnanimous power "maintained" the principles of neutrality in the case of Belgium.

Not merely does America refuse to entertain the Allies' objections to the practice of affording refuge to belligerent submarines, but she answers their hint that it may contain elements of danger to her own submarines with the plain intimation that if any harmful one of them at the hands of a "belligerent," she will hold that belligerent responsible. This can only be aimed at the Allies. We can imagine that they would be greatly concerned by it, if they did not know that the "responsibility" meant merely the annoyance of receiving a number of notes and being distracted by them from the business of carrying on the war, in which they are incidentally defending America herself.

The Escape of the Cameronia.

Copy of Message Received To-day From Hon. John Anderson.
Arrived well after summer passage. Murray met me at the dock. We had a thrilling experience yesterday. The first information was from the bedroom steward at seven-thirty. The passengers were on deck wearing life belts all day. No information leaked out. It was evident the Cameronia was counted doomed leaving Glasgow. The Captain and officers were cool and calm. There was perfect order. It was a great sight. Seven hundred passengers wearing life belts and over two hundred children parading in care of their parents. The officers explained in splendid detail the number of each boat and the same number on each life belt. There many sad mixed with funny scenes. The boat rose and the ocean as calm as Quidi Vidi; the night scene in awful gloom with no lights showing. There was perfect organization, the steamer steering a zigzag course. The submarine missed us. Hymns of praise are sounding over the ship and the danger is past. I listened to many side stories among the steerage passengers. Old Scotch women first crossing the Atlantic could not be kept quiet. Oh for a thousand tongues to thank God and captain! I intended returning by the Stephano. Alas! unfortunately the first news I heard was that a torpedo had finished her.

Lieutenant Asquith.

London Daily News.—To Rupert Brooke, and Julian Grenfell, and W. G. C. Gladstone, and other examples without number of brilliant promise dashed to death while yet on the upward slope of the indiscriminate chance of war the appreciation in another column, from the pen of a writer well qualified to speak of the dead soldier and his future, restifies. Lieut. Asquith was essentially his father's son. At the Bar he had laid secure foundations for a career on which would have rested the confidence of his prospective constituents no less by his political sincerity and directness than by the evidences of an ability that would have carried him far along the path his father has trod. He is only one of tens of thousands over whom must be written the elegiac words, "Dead ere his prime" but his personal qualities, even more than his kinship with the first statesman in the nation set him apart from the few whose names claim a special pre-eminence in the long roll of dead.

Dies at General Hospital.

There passed peacefully away last evening at the General Hospital, Mr. Geo. Andrews, Postmaster Line repairer at Point Leamington, after an illness lasting several months. About three weeks ago he entered the institution for medical treatment, suffering from an internal complaint from which he never recovered. Deceased was for the past six years employed as line repairer in the above mentioned branch of the Postal Telegraph service, and was looked upon as a most efficient and trustworthy servant. His sad demise is deeply regretted by the Acting Postmaster-General and officials of the Postal Telegraph service, who have expressed their sympathy to the bereaved relatives. The remains will be sent to his late home by to-morrow's express, where interment will take place.

An old pocketbook will look like new if rubbed with beaten white of an egg, then polished with beeswax and turpentine.

STRIKE STILL ON.—The firemen's strike continues. Many steamers, both in this port and around different ports of the coast, are held up in consequence. BOYS IN COURT FOR USE OF FIREARMS.—Four boys were summoned to court to-day by Constable Tobin, charged with an infraction of the law—discharging firearms within the city limits. TO-DAY'S Messages.

KINGSTONIAN'S CREW LOST.

NEWPORT, R.I., To-day. The search for the crew of the steamer Kingstonian, one of the vessels torpedoed by the German sub. off Nantucket last Sunday, has been abandoned. Twelve torpedo boat destroyers, which had been engaged in this work, have been ordered to return to port. For the last 48 hours they have continued the search systematically, speeding back and forth in the waters within the sub's operations. The Kingstonian was last seen by the officers and crew of the Strathearn, one of the ships destroyed by the German sub. According to the report of Capt. Wilson of the Strathearn, he and his crew witnessed the torpedoing of the Kingstonian after they had abandoned their own vessel, but he did not sight any of the Kingstonian's boats. The announcement of Capt. Grotness, of the Norwegian tank steamer Christian Knudsen, who reported to the owners of his ship at New York to-day that he saw three subs, has aroused much interest among the officers of the destroyer flotilla here. Rear-Admiral Knight, Commandant of the Narragansett Bay Naval Station, said to-night that he was not sure of the report of Capt. Grotness, he still held the belief that only one submarine, the U-53, engaged in the operations off Nantucket. None of the destroyer officers saw more than one U-boat, the Admiral said, although all the destroyers were very close to some of the ships that were torpedoed.

SEE NO REASON TO PROTEST.

LONG BRANCH, N.J., To-day. President Wilson and Secretary of State Lansing discussed the details at Shadow Lawn last night of the German sub. attacks on merchantmen on Sunday off the New England coast. The conference lasted until late last night and will be continued to-day. It was indicated by officials to-day that the facts so far collected through government circles disclosed no grounds for drastic action of the States Government because in the attacks themselves no evidence was found that international law was violated by the German subs. It is understood, however, that the President and Secretary Lansing discussed the wisdom of pointing out to Germany the inadvisability of operating subs. in proximity to the territorial waters of the United States.

THE AMERICAN REPLY.

WASHINGTON, To-day. The text of the American memorandum replying to the Allied Governments regarding the treatment of belligerent subs. in neutral ports is as follows: The Government of the States received an identical memorandum from the Governments of France, Britain, Russia and Japan in which neutral governments are exhorted to take efficacious measures tending to

BIG WORDS.

AMSTERDAM, To-day. A Berlin despatch quotes the Deutsche Tageszeitung as saying it considers the significance of the U-53's visit to America to be that it has proven German submarines are able to conduct successful cruiser warfare in the vicinity of the American coast. The newspaper believes the German operations in those waters will place in a new light the idea of a conflict with Germany which sometimes even leading personalities in America have mentioned threateningly.

HOPES FOR SPEEDY PEACE.

LONDON, To-day. The hope of King William of Wurttemberg for a speedy and honorable peace is expressed in a telegram from the King to the German Chancellor. As quoted in a despatch from Amsterdam, the King's message sent in response to the Chancellor's congratulations on the 26th anniversary of his ascension to the throne is as follows: "May God give me a speedy and honorable peace, which will guarantee us further progress. May He guard your Excellency, in whose wise leadership I firmly trust."

HOLLAND AROUSED.

AMSTERDAM, To-day. The Dutch press is highly indignant at the sinking of the Holland-American Line steamer Bloemerdijk, which it is declared was absolutely illegal and contrary to Maritime Law. "We ask with astonishment," says the Nieuws Van Den Dag, "what reason the submarine commander could have for torpedoing a neutral vessel with a neutral cargo for the neutral population of Holland?" The Handelsblad demands that the Government send a strong protest to the German Government.

BRIGADIER-GENERAL KILLED.

LONDON, To-day. Brigadier-General Philip Howell has been killed in action. He was mentioned in despatches last year and was made Commander of the Order of St. Michael and St. George. He was 39 years old, and had a distinguished career in India, where he saw service on the northeast frontier and received the War Medal with clasp.

INCREASE IN SHIPBUILDING.

LONDON, To-day. A substantial increase in merchant shipping under construction for the three months ending October is reported by Lloyd's. The report shows that on October 1st there were 459 vessels building, representing a total of 1,789,054 tons.

NORWAY'S HARSHIP.

CHRISTIANIA, To-day. The Norwegian losses at sea from the opening of the war up to Thursday as a result of mines and submarines are 171 vessels of a total of 285,600 tons. One hundred and forty sailors lost their lives.

CROCODILE TEARS.

LONDON, To-day. Germany has notified Norway that she regrets the torpedoing of the steamer Sjolyst which was sunk on April 9, while in ballast.

ALLIES BOMBARD STUTTGART.

LONDON, To-day. Allied aviators dropped bombs on Stuttgart yesterday evening, according to despatches from Amsterdam. The despatch says little damage was done.

THE TOURIST. The tourist is a hopeful biped whose sole mission in life is to feed curosely to the wayside garage. A few years ago tourists were few and far between, being confined largely to the expert but widely-busted tramp printer, who remained in town picked and then toured to the next stop on the brake rod of a poultry car. With the upspringing of the automobile, however, our roads are deeply lined with a new kind of tourist, who travel among strangers and pay the list price for red inner tubes.

Since it has been discovered that the modern automobile can be run several thousand miles without any more expense than operating a short-line railroad, the practice of skipping from coast to coast in a wobble-legged touring car has become a fixed habit. Most people would rather ride in a new automobile carrying a penant and a weak-lunged storage battery than jump on a transcontinental flyer and inhale free cinders in a rapid and noiseless manner. Statistics prove that a man can drive his own automobile to either coast for less than it costs to buy a private car rigged up with a shower bath and bromide porter, unless a spark plug gives out.

One nice thing about a long automobile tour is that the tourist gets a chance to meet a great many nice people and learns how the government regulates the price of gasoline. We have one of the freest forms of government in the world, and when gasoline gets too high in one Moleskin can be worked so daintily nowadays that one actually sees shirring on coats of it. On filmy evening skirts of net little criss-cross lines of fur are sometimes used for decoration. Beige gabardine with black astrakhan and jet buttons is an excellent choice for a coat-dress. Many of the gowns which hang in perfectly straight lines are in reality very full and closely pleated. Green and blue plaid velour can be delightfully made up in the good old Russian blouse fashion. Gray chenille embroidery on midnight blue chaiseuse is a fetching version of the blue and gray vogue.

The People Who Think.

By RUTH CAMERON.

"I didn't think," she thought (evidently the first time she had performed that function on the subject) and said, "The open fireplace and the kitchen stove." Subsequent examination brought out the fact that the fireplace draft was kept closed except when in use and that the stove was constantly in use. "Why don't these women think once in a while?" said the carpenter.

It's Too Much Work to Think Why? Because it's so much work. Of course it's no work at all to think in the common sense of letting unconnected thoughts and impressions flit through your brain.

It does mean work to think in the sense of really using that brain.

And yet not such terribly hard work once you get the habit. It's getting the habit that's difficult.

But once you have it you have elected yourself to a small body of people who are likely to amount to something wherever they are—the People Who Think.

Plain Words on a Great Evil.

BY A CORRESPONDENT.
However we may differ as to the most effective means of lessening or maybe eliminating the evil practice of gambling we shall most of us agree upon one point and that is, next to drink, poker playing is the most insidious and mind-destroying of all vices, plainly so because its baneful and degrading influence strikes deep at the root of home-life.

The public sometimes hears of a city den of vice being rounded up, but in the outskirts such vigilance on the part of policemen is unknown; that at least is the experience of those who live in a historic town not a hundred miles from St. John's where poker players have for the last twenty-five years indulged heartily in this their favourite pastime with out hindrance from any, and oddly enough the same men play the same game, though now grown stout and middle-aged and some of them fathers of growing boys; inquisitive, impatient youths whose clear eyes it is impossible to deceive, and in whose souls as well as bodies it is impossible to ignore the grand principle of inheritance.

How dulled must be the finer feelings of middle-aged men of excellent standing socially and who are regular church-goers that they will permit themselves to attend the Sacramental Services of their churches and immediately step from the sanctuary into the vile atmosphere of a gambling den, there to remain all day and sometimes all night, as eye-witnesses and neighbours declare that there are Sundays when the fuming of the card table does not cease.

Of course Sunday is the only day on which so much idleness is devoted to vice, and equally certain it is that these regular and persistent devotees of the gaming table spend a very small fraction of their lives in their homes, except the hours devoted to supplying their physical needs. I have heard from a reliable source that the general proprietor of a certain well-known dive has been obliging enough to retire to his home at a late hour and leave his customers locked in for the night, thus giving them liberty to thump the card table and partake of libations of beer until the early morning hours, when the occupants very often are fresh enough to turn up at early service.

Thoughtful persons cannot fail to give some thought to this state of affairs as well as the moral side of the question of this illicit pastime which has long since passed the stage when moral suasion might be regarded as a helping factor; indeed men so entirely weak and self-indulgent are almost certain to disregard domestic advice and to repudiate personal responsibility. We are a leisured people and especially in the outskirts we do not like to be hurried, and we do not like to perform any work to-day which we might just as well put off till tomorrow. As a proof of this amiable weakness we may with profit take a walk through some of our outport vegetable gardens. This pretty town of historic fame and which is so devoted to the popular game of Draw is particularly noted for its slovenly backyards and entire absence of vegetable gardens.

To revert to our original theme—the criticism of gambling dens—one fact stands out in bold relief and about which there is but one remark to make: Any able-bodied young man who keeps a beer shop and gaming den and whose friends and comrades are shedding their blood for him on the world battlefield ought to be branded with lasting ignominy. These dens of vice might well be seized by the proper authority and converted into decent coffee houses for our wounded soldiers and sailors. Public opinion ought to be aroused and indeed this is a matter upon which any neighbor is authorized to call for redress and to insist that because a law is broken is no proof that such a law does not exist. The gambling habit is strong among us, and the presence of this disorderly element goes to show one of two things—either the law is feeble and inefficient or this vice has such a poisonous effect upon the public conscience that people are not capable of knowing or discerning that which is good. In any case those of us whose eyes are opened to this evil ought to do our best to express in the most unmistakable terms our disgust and disapproval of this vile practice which is a distinct violation of the laws of humanity.

Man's Plans

He sat beside me by the fire, and chattered while I greased my tyre. "I've toiled," he said, "for thirty years, like Adam's team of blinded steers. And now that I have made my wad, I'll do some travelling abroad. I want to see this good-old globe before I don a long white robe. My wife and I for years have planned a journey to the Holy Land; next year we'll see the storied things of which the pious psalmist sings. And if the war shall ever cease, we'll jog through Italy and Greece, and see the Spartan train his vine, and have a joy ride on the Rhine. I hope to climb the Alps and see the moonlight on the Zuyder Zee, and tread the ancient streets of Rome—but now, methinks, I must go home." He took his rainstick and his hat and vanished from my humble flat, to seek his home, which wasn't far; and on his way a motor car came up behind and climbed his frame, and he forever quit the game. Alas, poor chap! He "went abroad," and didn't need to take his wad.

Eczema Now Curable

A wonderful new discovery for the cure of skin diseases called the D.D.D. Prescription for Eczema has finally convinced physicians throughout Newfoundland and Canada that eczema is curable. D. D. D. is a scientific preparation, compounded by a famous skin specialist. It is a simple antiseptic wash, a reliable home remedy that should always be kept on hand. Apply this D. D. D. Prescription to the skin and instantly the awful itch is gone. The very moment the liquid touches the skin, the agonizing, tantalizing itch disappears. This soothing wash penetrates the pores, kills and washes away disease germs and restores the skin to a thoroughly healthy condition.

Don't delay your cure; get a bottle of D. D. D. Prescription to-day. Sold everywhere.

"THE GREAT RUBY" AT NICKEL THEATRE.

There is brilliant programme at the Nickel Theatre to-day and no doubt it will attract very large audiences. The principal film is Cecil Raleigh's powerful melo-drama produced in five parts under the direction of Barry O'Neil, entitled, "The Great Ruby". The best artists of the Lubin Co. are in the leading roles. Everyone should see the sensational fight in a balloon in mid-air. This is one of the finest melo-dramas ever seen in St. John's and it is certain to afford pleasure and satisfaction to all. Margaret Landis and other star actresses appear in a beautiful social drama in three parts—"Mismates." George Ovey will be seen in the comedy which is entitled, "A Shot Gun Romance." "The Man Who Couldn't Beat God" and "The Dust of Egypt" are big films which will be shown at the Nickel shortly.

FOR THE KIDNEYS

Not long ago I was taking a short trip by boat. I went into my stateroom at dusk. There were two buttons to press, one evidently for the electric light, the other for the stewardess. I wanted the light and I didn't want the stewardess. I speculated at some length as to which was which but I didn't think. Finally I pressed one. It brought the stewardess. After I had tipped her to fetch me some ice-water that I didn't want, I pressed the other button, and as I did so, I noticed that the covering around that wire ran up to the ceiling and thence to the light.

I Should Have Saved Time, Money and Self-Respect

Had I used my eyes and my brain intelligently in the first place, I should have saved myself time, money and self-respect.

A carpenter told me this experience the other day. He was summoned by a woman to put screens on the chimney of her summer cottage.

"Why do you want them?" he asked.

"I'm terribly bothered with flies," she said. "I think some of them come down the chimney. I've seen screens on chimneys."

The Pension Scheme

Exposition by Hon. P. T. McGrath, the Patriotic Association

The matter of most interest that occupied attention of the Patriotic Association at last meeting was the one given by the Hon. P. T. McGrath, in his report on the Canadian Pension Scheme. The meeting opened with a reading of the minutes of the meeting held on the 10th inst. He pointed out the many requests for furloughs not to be granted to soldiers and physical disability. Referring to submarine agitation, he assured the public that there was no need of apprehension. He read a letter from Col. Franklin and Major Macpherson who is returning through illness and a report by Major Paterson on the sick and wounded members of the Regiment in England.

The Hon. P. T. McGrath then addressed the meeting and dealt lengthily with the different pension schemes which he had studied and outlined briefly the American and British systems, both of which he considered unsuitable for Canada, and treated the Canadian scheme in detail. He gave most interesting figures, showing how all the disabled soldiers and their dependents are met in Canada. For total disability pensions are paid on a sliding scale from $450 a year to $1,000 a year to a captain with partial disability there are 10 classes and a sliding scale of payments running from 80 p.c. of the full pay to 20 p.c. or a dollar with payment of a lump sum. McGrath said that it was estimated on the assumption that there are 100,000 such men to provide for in Canada, the annual cost to the country would be a little over $70,000,000. Allowing 5,000 to Newfoundland (which seems a rather high figure for the same scheme) the cost to the country annually about $35,000,000.

The speaker dealt with many phases of the whole question of employment schemes, and the of the wounded and sick and other matters, evidently speaking from a wealth of information and observation. At the close of his address, the speaker nominated a Pension Com-

The Pension Scheme

Exposition by Hon. P. T. McGrath to the Patriotic Association.

The matter of most interest that occupied the attention of the Patriotic Association at last night's meeting was the address by the Hon. P. T. McGrath, in which he gave the result of his investigations into the Canadian Pension Scheme. The meeting opened with the reading of the minutes by Mr. W. J. Higgins, vice Dr. V. P. Burke. His Excellency the Governor then dealt briefly with some of the matters contained in them. He pointed out that the many requests for furlough could not be granted to soldiers under no physical disability. Referring to the submarine agitation, he assured the public that there was no need for apprehension. He read letters from Col. Franklin and Major Macpherson, who is returning through ill-health, and a report by Major Paterson dealing with the sick and wounded members of the Regiment in England.

The Hon. P. T. McGrath then addressed the meeting and dealt at length with the different pension schemes which he had studied. He outlined briefly the American and British systems, both of which he considered unsuitable for adoption here, and treated the Canadian scheme in detail. He gave most interesting figures, showing how all the needs of disabled soldiers and their dependents are met in Canada. For total disability pensions are paid on a scale running from $480 a year to rank and file up to $1600 to a captain. For partial disability there are several classes and a sliding scale of payments running from 50 p.c. of the above down to 20 p.c. or a discharge with payment of a lump sum. Dr. McGrath said that it was estimated that on the assumption that there would be 100,000 such men to provide for in Canada, the annual cost to that country would be a little over $7,000,000. Allowing 5,000 to Newfoundland (which seems a rather high figure) the same scheme would cost this country annually about $350,000.

The speaker dealt with many other phases of the whole question, touching on employment schemes, the care of the wounded and sick and kindred matters, evidently speaking from a wealth of information and observation. At the close of his address, the Governor nominated a Pension Committee

Liquid Catarrh Remedies Useless Only Relieve—Never Cure.

They go direct to the stomach, have very little effect on the linings of the nose and throat, and entirely fail to cure. Only by cleansing the air passages, by relieving the inflammation and killing the germs is cure possible. No combination of antiseptics is so successful as Catarrhozone. In breathing it you send the richest pine balsam right to the seat of the disease. Irritating phlegm is cleared out, hoarseness, coughing and hacking are cured. For a permanent cure for Catarrh, nothing equals Catarrhozone, get it to-day, but beware of dangerous substitutes meant to deceive you for genuine Catarrhozone. All dealers sell Catarrhozone, large size containing two months treatment, cost $1.00; small size, 50c; sample size, 25c.

to consider a suitable scheme, consisting of the following members: Hon. P. T. McGrath, Hon. M. P. Cashin, Hon. M. G. Winter, Paymaster Willis, R.N., Capt. Geo. Carty, Messrs. C. E. Ayre, J. A. Cliff, R. F. Horwood, H. E. Cowan and R. A. Templeton. Touching the rules by which the Committee should be governed, Mr. W. B. Grieve considered that these should be left to the Committee themselves to decide. Dr. Lloyd raised an objection to members of the committee identified with a particular political party empowered to make awards. This led to a lengthy discussion in which several speakers expressed an opinion. As a result, in view of the fact that the appointment and functions of the Committee are only temporary, pending the next Parliamentary session, the necessary legislation will be forthcoming, the nominations were approved and confirmed.

A quiet wedding took place at St. Joseph's Presbytery, on October 1st, when Miss Annie McKellop, of St. John's, and Mr. Michael Carter, of Witless Bay, were united in the bonds of holy matrimony, the ceremony being performed by the Rev. Dr. Kitchin, P.P. The bride was becomingly attired in a travelling costume of dark blue and was attended by Miss Annie Tremblott, of St. John's, the groom being supported by his brother, Mr. Thomas Carter. After a short drive the wedding party returned to the home of the bride's mother, Mrs. Thomas McKellop, 16 Duckworth St., where a reception was held at which the immediate friends of both parties were present. The presents received were many and useful. The happy young couple left by Monday's train for Witless Bay where they will make their future home.

The Spirit of the German Soldier is Being Broken.

Sir Sam Hughes Says The War Will Be Won by Fording.

"I am not a prophet, but I can say that the spirit of the German soldier is being broken. The British alone have captured since the 1st of July upwards of 30,000 prisoners with much war material. One officer told me that within a very small compass upwards of two thousand German dead, and several hundred wounded, unable to escape, covered the ground. Another example: One regiment of Germans, which was wiped out by the Canadians on the other side, had been formed only two weeks previously from remnants of ten crack German regiments and yet they disappeared. "This war will be won by ponding, and it is a long road to Berlin. The German people, however, are becoming weary of the long and bloody war many months a rebellion must break out against Kaiserism throughout the length and breadth of the German Empire.

Britain is stronger on the sea now than at the beginning of the war. The Kaiser's submarines may reach British waters and do some slight damage, but they seldom return home. Her Zeppelins have proven to be vulnerable on I myself have seen two of them brought down. At the front, we have the mastery in artillery; we have always had it in hand. The result is that foot by foot, mile by mile, the Allied bulldog pluck and doggedness have proven too much for the famous German Imperial Guards. I have been over mile on mile of German fortifications surpassing in strength any fortress we constructed. —Major General Sir Sam Hughes.

B'd Bargains With Nature.

How The Old Dame Gets Her Own Back on Those Who Meddle With Her Decrees.

Forty years ago the planters of Trinidad were in despair. Rats were ravaging the great sugar-cane plantations. Traps, cats, and ferrets had all proved useless. Rats started the planters in the face.

Then some genius suggested the importation of the mongoose. The mongoose is a native of India, a chameleone, furry beast that looks rather like a big and amiable ferret. It makes a delightful pet, but its reputation rests mainly on the fact that it is the only enemy of the poisonous cobra and also the finest ratter in the world.

A score of these animals were sent for. Soon there were no more rats. Then the mongoose turned his attention to the chicken yard. Shortly poultry were almost extinct, and eggs at a premium. Next, the mongoose cleared out the native birds, and a plague of caterpillars ensued. How the mighty were foiled. To-day there is a premium of three shillings on the head of each mongoose, yet the pest is said to be getting worse.

Now the islanders talk of introducing the Indian starling, in the hope of keeping down the grasshoppers which are ravaging the crops, or the use of utilizing the Barbados blackbird for a similar purpose.

But it will be as well to think twice. Rather less than a century ago some homesick Britisher living in Boston sent to England for a couple of pairs of sparrows.

With less than fifty years the sparrow had established itself in thirty-five States and five territories. It had given up eating insects, and was running riot among the cats, and was spreading over the country at the rate of 50,000 square miles a year.

The Department of Agriculture was forced to take the strongest measures, and in 1888 the laws protecting wild birds were repealed so far as the speckled bird was concerned, and every inducement given to slaughter the little pests. Yet to-day, after a thirty years' battle, the sparrow is still on top. The damage they do to crops is estimated at something like fifteen million dollars yearly.

The musk rat, which is an animal many times the size of any British rat, has been trapped for generations in British North America for the sake of its fur.

Some twenty years ago a Hungarian landowner imported several pairs of musk rats, and turned them loose in a lake on his own property. They multiplied in surprising fashion, for they had none of the enemies which, in the native country, keep them under control, and for a time the importer reaped quite a considerable income by the sale of the skins.

But the animals soon began to spread, and then came stories of burst dams and broken canal banks. The creatures burrowed everywhere, and each year the tale of damage increased. Just before the Great War broke out the Hungarian Government offered a prize of $5,000 to any person who could invent some method of exterminating them.

St. Helena, famous as the island prison of Napoleon, was at one time covered with thick forest. Cattle did not do there, and goats were imported to give meat and milk for the settlers. They soon ran wild, and betook themselves to the hills, where they multiplied by thousands, and browsed on the young trees and shrubs. To-day the island is little better than a desert.

Sable Island is a great crescent of sand in the Atlantic off Nova Scotia. For centuries had no inhabitants but gulls and rabbits. Rats were accidentally imported in goods consigned to the lighthouse, and they became such a pest that in 1880 cats were brought into cope with them. An then the cats turned on the rabbits and wiped them out. The cats became so savage that they were actually a danger, and some bright settler imported a pair of big northern foxes to cope with the cats. The foxes killed the cats, and then, having nothing left to eat, they died out. To-day Sable Island has only the gulls left.—Answers.
