CHAPTER XXVI
"I Want My Wife."

"Your wife!" ejaculated Osborne, his face suddenly white, his lips drawn tightly. "You—you must be mad, Lashmore! That lady is Miss Eva Lyndhurst, Sir Talbot's daughter. Yes; you must be mad, must be the victim of some hallucination!"

Herdale drew himself up and snarled contemptuously. "It is evident that Mr. Osborne has solved the problem," he said, with a sneer. "This person is evidently out of his mind."

Lashmore looked from one to the other, as if he thought they were all joined in a conspiracy against him. "I am not mad," he said; and, strangely enough, he spoke almost calmly. "I repeat, that lady is my wife—Eva," he extended his arms to her. "Why do you not speak, why do you disown me? Why are you so changed? What has wrought this change in you? What has happened since we parted? Are you disowning me of your own free will—are you ashamed of me? There is no need to be now. Have you not had my letter? Did you leave before you knew the truth, the change that had come over my fortunes?"

By this time Eva had also become almost calm. She, too, had at first thought that Lashmore was mad; but gradually she had perceived that he was sane, that he had some reason for thinking that she was his wife. There was evidently some extraordinary mystery; he was obviously the victim of an extraordinary delusion. Pity for him stirred in her bosom.

Lady Lorchester had, in a trembling whisper, implored her to come away, but Eva would not do so. "Let me speak to him," she said. "There is some terrible mistake." Her hand went to her throat as if she found it difficult to speak; then she drew herself from her aunt's support, and, looking steadily at Lashmore, said, in a low but clear voice:

"I am Eva Lyndhurst. You know that, Mr. Lashmore. I am not married. Why do you think that I am your wife?"

Lashmore's passion rose again. "Eva! Can it really be you speaking to me, asking me such a question? Do you think I do not recognize your voice, that if I were blind I should not know you by it? Have you forgotten the day we were married—everything? Come to me! Come away at once. I will be patient. See, I am not angry. No doubt you have some explanation; you shall explain everything when we are alone."

Again he made as if to take her in his arms. Eva shrank back with a faint cry of alarm. Herdale stepped in between, and once more Lashmore raised his hand to strike him; but Osborne, who was watching Lashmore closely, seized him in a grip of steel, saying quickly, as he did so:

"Take Miss Lyndhurst away!"

Lady Lorchester led Eva from the room. Lashmore struggled for a moment or two to follow her, but Osborne held him tightly and implored him to restrain himself. The spectators were now chatting loudly with excitement; one or two ladies threatened hysterics. Herdale stood, with his arms folded, looking at Lashmore with an affectation of tolerant contempt.

"Who is this person?" he demanded of the company in general. "I do not know him."

Lashmore put Osborne aside and regarded the other man steadily. "I am Lord Herdale," he said very quietly, but so distinctly that every one heard the words.

Herdale's pale face was distorted by an insolent sneer. "I think that settles the matter," he said. "The man is mad." With a shrug of his shoulders, he turned and went out of the room.

"Come out of this, Lashmore," said Osborne; and to Osborne's surprise, Lashmore nodded and allowed Osborne to take him outside. Without a word Osborne called a cab, almost pushed Lashmore into it, and told the cabman to drive to Vincent Square.

On the way he thrust a cigar in Lashmore's hand, and Lashmore lit up and smoked furiously. Neither man said a word until they reached Osborne's rooms; then Lashmore sank into a chair and buried his face in his hands. Osborne paced up and down for a minute or two, glancing every now and then at the bent figure of the man who crouched in the chair as if overwhelmed and utterly broken up; at last he said very gravely:

"I am waiting for your explanation, Lashmore. Here! drink this, and for God's sake pull yourself together!"

Lashmore rose and took the glass with an unsteady hand; his throat was parched, every vein in his body seemed filled with fire.

"She is my wife," he said hoarsely. "I left her at Quirapata—we were married near there! Heaven, how can I keep calm! I am cruelly wronged; no man has been more cruelly wronged in this world. I tell you she is my wife! I met her in London—I have spent weeks at her father's place, Ripley Court—I told her there that I loved her. I was obliged to go abroad. There was a stain on my birth, I was regarded as illegitimate. I went abroad—I could not ask her to marry me—I went to make my fortune. It was agreed between us that she should come to me when I sent for her, or before, if she wished to do so. She came; we were married—were—his voice choked and broke for a moment—were happy together. She was broken-hearted when we parted. I mean, when I came to England."

Osborne stared at him with wonder and bewilderment. "When I got to England I found that I was not legitimate, that I was my father's lawful son, that I was his heir, the owner of the title. Yes; I am Lord Herdale. I have been preparing my case; the man who called himself Lord Herdale was to have been served with the writ in a few days. But that is a secondary matter and sinks to nothing beside the other." He drew a long breath. "I want my wife!"

The words, quietly spoken as they were, rang through the room. Osborne went to him and laid a restraining hand on his shoulder, and, looking steadily into his bloodshot eyes, said:

"Then you must go back to Quirapata for her. Miss Eva Lyndhurst is certainly not your wife. Wait! Don't speak! Listen to me for two minutes. I say that she is not your wife. And who should know it better than I? Lashmore, don't you see, don't you realize, that Eva Lyndhurst is the woman I love?"

Lashmore started and glowered at him fiercely. "She is the woman I love," said Osborne. "I have seen her for months, have been constantly in her company. How can it be possible that she should be here in England and out there in South Africa at the same time?"

Lashmore frowned at him sullenly. "There is some hideous mistake," he said. "But it's yours, not mine. Do you think a man doesn't know his own wife?"

Right now is when you need a good blood medicine—to overcome impurities in the blood—to supply the elements that enrich the blood—to protect the system against the depressing effects of "spring fever".

Drinking Tea Upset Nerves

Mr. Burroughes Compares Canadian Customs With Those in Old Land, and Tells How Nerves Were Set Right.

Orillia, Ont., May 15th.—"How to be well and strong?" is the question many are asking at this time of year, and in this letter you will find the answer.

It tells something of the blood-forming, nerve-invigorating influence of Dr. Chase's Nerve Food, the great restorative which is causing so much talk here just now.

Nature's way of curing disease is by building up the vitality of the body, and this is exactly what Dr. Chase's Nerve Food does. The blood is made rich and red, and it nourishes the exhausted nerves back to health and vigor.

The experience of Mr. Burroughes as described in this letter is similar to that of hundreds of others in this community who have recently put this well-known food cure to the test.

Mr. George Burroughes, 23 Peter street, Orillia, Ont., writes: "A few years ago, after coming out to this country from England, the change of customs seemed to have some effect on me. In the old country the habit of drinking strong tea was prevalent, and after arriving here I suffered very much from nervousness. If I put my arm down on the table it would shake very noticeably, and while performing my work I would easily tire, and want to sit down and rest. A friend recommended Dr. Chase's Nerve Food, so I secured some and took a treatment. It built me up and made me strong and healthy. I have not had a trace of the nervousness since. I have used Dr. Chase's Ointment also, and find that it heals the skin very quickly. In fact I find all of Dr. Chase's medicines good."

Dr. Chase's Nerve Food, 50 cents a box, a full treatment of 6 boxes for $2.50, at all dealers, or Edmanston, Bates & Co., Limited, Toronto. Do not be talked into accepting a substitute. Imitations only disappoint.

Everyday Etiquette.

"When one wishes to give a piece of silver to a girl about to be married, what monogram should be engraved upon it?" enquired George.

"The monogram of the girl's maiden name should be engraved on the silver," replied his father.

THE STEEL MONSTER

(Souvenirs of the Somme Battle. "His Majesty's Land Ships.")

Such is the official designation given to the new machines of armor which create it would seem, the imagination of Wells. But it has baptized them with a characteristic nickname:

"Tanks."

I saw them for the first time on the 14th of September. And the mist of dawn gave them strange outlines—made them stand out against the trenches like fantastic and diabolical beasts.

They were truly monstrous machines made of armor plates, roughly painted over with daubs of paint, which, from a distance, fused into a brown wilderness of the battle field and made them almost invisible to enormous revolving bands of machine guns. They bore a strange resemblance to caterpillars; they crawled slowly on the slimy crawling bodies and smashing through the sun shone through the slits of arm, bathing the chaotic group of burnt woods, ruined villages, fields turned into endless mounds of vivid red light. I looked to the undulating line of valleys, the prairies and fancied that the tanks of the Tanks covered the immense field and stretched out, menacing, until it reached the end and settled on Bapaume!

Liquid fire, asphaltizing gas, matatory gas. . . . The Germans' tanks invented the most cowardly weapons for use on the field. Like diabolical machines they enclosed deadly fumes in their and the breeze of the Orillia, Ont., May 15th.—"How to be well and strong?" is the question many are asking at this time of year, and in this letter you will find the answer.

It tells something of the blood-forming, nerve-invigorating influence of Dr. Chase's Nerve Food, the great restorative which is causing so much talk here just now.

Nature's way of curing disease is by building up the vitality of the body, and this is exactly what Dr. Chase's Nerve Food does. The blood is made rich and red, and it nourishes the exhausted nerves back to health and vigor.

The experience of Mr. Burroughes as described in this letter is similar to that of hundreds of others in this community who have recently put this well-known food cure to the test.

Mr. George Burroughes, 23 Peter street, Orillia, Ont., writes: "A few years ago, after coming out to this country from England, the change of customs seemed to have some effect on me. In the old country the habit of drinking strong tea was prevalent, and after arriving here I suffered very much from nervousness. If I put my arm down on the table it would shake very noticeably, and while performing my work I would easily tire, and want to sit down and rest. A friend recommended Dr. Chase's Nerve Food, so I secured some and took a treatment. It built me up and made me strong and healthy. I have not had a trace of the nervousness since. I have used Dr. Chase's Ointment also, and find that it heals the skin very quickly. In fact I find all of Dr. Chase's medicines good."

Dr. Chase's Nerve Food, 50 cents a box, a full treatment of 6 boxes for $2.50, at all dealers, or Edmanston, Bates & Co., Limited, Toronto. Do not be talked into accepting a substitute. Imitations only disappoint.

Drinking Tea Upset Nerves

MY WHOLE LIFE

was spent in trying to cure an ulcer by using ordinary ointments," writes Mrs. Jeffrey, of 21 French Street, Methuen. "Then I heard of Zam-Buk, used it, and am now completely cured."
"Thirty-three years ago the ulcer appeared on my ankle, and gradually spread to my knee. The pain was terrific. For years I could hardly walk and had to remain in the house. For twenty-five years I received doctors' treatment but got only temporary relief."
"Then I heard of some wonderful cures worked by Zam-Buk and commenced using it. The relief experienced was wonderful. The inflammation was gradually drawn out. The pain was soon ended, and at last after thirty-three years of misery, I was on the road to recovery. To cut a long story short perseverance, with this wonderful balm resulted in a complete and permanent cure."
Zam-Buk is also unequalled for eczema, ringworm, abscesses, boils, blood-poisoning, burns, scalds, cuts, and all skin injuries. All druggists or Zam-Buk Co., Toronto, Ont., box 3, for $1.25.

The Steel Monsters.

(Souvenirs of the Somme Battle.)

"His Majesty's Land Ships."
Such is the official designation given to the new machines of a war of machines created, it would seem, by the imagination of Wells. But Tommy has baptized them with a characteristic nickname:

"Tanks."

I saw them for the first time on the 14th of September. And the gray mist of dawn gave them strange contours—made them stand out against the trenches like fantastic antiluvian beasts.

They were truly monsters: monsters made of armour plated steel, roughly painted over with fringed daubs of paint which, when seen from a distance, fused into muddy tints that harmonised with the reddish brown wilderness of the battle field and made them almost invisible. Two enormous revolving bands formed by wide steel links gripped the ground and transported the travelling forts across marshes, trenches and shell holes. The small turrets placed on each side were armed with quick firing guns. The interior of the steel cages and the crew enclosed in them as in submarines were invisible; but one could hear the muffled tread of powerful engines and feel the warm breath coming from the huge lungs of the monsters in spirals of bluish vapour, rooking of petrol, which vanished in the air.

The Tanks, also known as "Caterpillars" were rolling towards the battle field, breaking through mazes formed by miles of barbed wire, going up and down hillocks with astonishing ease. Long, low and decorated with the crude colourings of ancient earthenware, they bore a strange resemblance to caterpillars; gigantic, man-eating caterpillars which would crawl slowly on the slimy clay, crushing bodies and smashing trenches.

The sun shone through the autumnal mist, bathing the chaotic panorama of burnt woods, ruined villages and fields turned into endless camps in a vivid red light. I looked towards the undulating line of valleys, hills and prairies and fancied that the shadow of the Tanks covered the immense battle field and stretched out, black and menacing, until it reached the horizon and settled on Bapaume!

Liquid fire, asphyxiating gas, lachrymatory gas. . . . The German scientists invented the most cruel and cowardly weapons for use on the battle field. Like diabolical alchemists they enclosed deadly fumes in cylinders and the breeze of the fields and

When we reached the first dressing station he shook our hands and, answering the silent query made by our eyes, murmured:

"Oh! I know that I will not live. But what matters? Over there, inside my Tank, I have lived in two days more than most men would live in a century! Farewell!"

When he saw us he shouted joyfully:

"I have blown up the engines."
We looked inside the Tank. He had blown up the machinery with a dynamite cartridge so that the Germans should not discover its mechanism, and—his duty accomplished—had crawled out to the place where we found him to die on the mud as Nelson died on the waves.

As we placed him carefully on a stretcher he said anew:

"I have blown up the engines!"
And a light shone in his eyes, vitrified by death.

Our Volunteers.

A number of young men for the Forestry Company arrived in the city yesterday and this morning went up for examination. About 150 have been accepted out of over 300 applicants. Thirty-five others are to arrive shortly and within a few weeks it is hoped two full companies will be completed.

There was only one recruit showed up at the Water Street Recruiting Station yesterday in the person of Arthur Baker, Deer Harbor, T.B., who signed on for the Navy.

Good Recruiting.

About fifty recruits have come forward within the past fortnight and offered themselves for enlistment from Bay Roberts, Hr. Grace and Carbonear and other nearby centres as a result of the meetings held there by Sergeant Smith and party. A most enthusiastic and successful meeting was held at Bonne Bay on Saturday night last and thirteen young men signified their intention of defending the flag—12 for the Army and one for the Navy. Sergt. Smith, who has charge of the Recruiting station at Carbonear, was in town yesterday for medical treatment to the knee and thigh wounds which he received in the big drive of July last year and which have become aggravated by travel. He goes to Bay de Verde District after leaving here today, accompanied by Private Diamond and Naval Reservist Soper.

The Fighting McNeils.

Mrs. F. McNeil, McNeil Street, mother of Lieut. Hector McNeil, of "Our," received a message from him yesterday stating that her second son, who was reported wounded and dangerously ill, as a result of the big battle of April 14th, was greatly improved and that there was nothing about his condition to warrant anxiety. Lieut. Hector also intimated that he was on four days leave and was spending each day with his wounded brother. Another brother, Ronald, was killed in action on July 1st.

Household Notes.

A gentle simmer is much more effective than hard boiling. Pieces of dry bread and toast will keep well in a covered jar. A pink-and-white decorated table is always an appetizing one. Delicious biscuit can be made with cream instead of butter. When serving cherry ice decorate it with leaves and fresh cherries. Custards of all kinds should be cooked slowly, or they may crack. Spinach is not done until it is so tender that the fork will not hold it. Cotton stockings are much better than lisle for children's sensitive feet. A side of mutton can often be economically used for home supplies. If you do without potatoes, eat more cornmeal, beans, celery and cabbage. Skim milk is almost as good as whole milk if it is to be eaten with bread. Buckwheat is a partial substitute for wheat and an excellent crop for poor land. Leftover fish can be used in several ways, including creamed fish and salad. Cucumbers should not stand in their dressing unless you do not mind their wilting. It is not economy to get on with a broken egg-beater or any other broken tool. To keep enamelware from cracking and scaling off, never let it heat too suddenly. If the peelings are boiled with the fruit in making jelly, the latter will be cloudy. A good doormat is made of a brick covered with velvet the color of the woodwork. A delightful small plate for afternoon tea has a "well" in which to set the teacup.

Obituary.

MR. E. J. SNOW.

We regret to note the passing of Mr. E. J. Snow which sad event occurred this morning at his late residence, Jubilee Cottage, Torbay Road. His illness was brief and pneumonia was the complaint from which he suffered. Deceased was 66 years of age and one of our best known and progressive farmers. He devoted practically all his life time to that industry and the best testimony of his success is the large area of land under cultivation surrounding the old homestead. He is survived by a widow, two sons and two daughters and a large circle of other relatives and friends. To the bereaved general and sincere sympathy will be felt in which the Telegram joins.

Circus Horse Saves Wounded Soldier.

A French soldier, Private Ambrose Perrichon, owes his life to a German circus horse, which picked him up when he was lying on the field of battle and carried him into the French lines, says a correspondent in the Horsehooper's Journal. Both the soldier's legs were shattered by a German quick-firer. When night came on he heard near him the heavy breathing of a great white horse, which munched the short grass. The animal was riderless, and he whistled to it and began to clap it kindly. The horse whinnied with pleasure. Perrichon was powerless to make the slightest effort to disengage the fact that they may come. He looks for four years of war rather than three. He warns his public that the United States must be ready to send and maintain in the field great armies from the beginning of the spring of 1918. To those who regard this estimate of the situation as unduly pessimistic he replies that the facts must be faced. In ten weeks the Germans will begin to profit by the earliest of their crops. Thereafter they will be assured of food enough for the remainder of the year. It is possible that Russia may yet be able to strike a great military blow this year. If that should happen, Mr. Simonds says, the war might be ended in 1917. Or, also, it might be ended this year, if the British and Americans together can sufficiently dispose of the submarine menace to convince Germany that Britain cannot be starved out of the war as Germany now believes.

Milady's Boudoir.

Your feet should be bathed twice a day morning and evening. In warm weather three times a day is not too often. Fresh hose should be put on every day. There is no excuse for excuse for excessive perspiration for at a small cost you may obtain powders or perscriptions which will cure that annoyance. One of the best things I can recommend is one ounce of persmanganate of potash and one ounce of distilled water applied with a soft gauze after you have bathed your feet night and morning.

When you are bathing your feet you want to bear in mind that you relax all the muscles and blood vessels and for that reason you must not subject your feet to great changes of temperature. A splendid tonic bath for tired and aching feet may be given by adding to the foot bath of hot water one ounce of green soap. Dip your feet up and down in the water until free from soap. In drying be sure to dry thoroughly in between the toes as it is the moisture between the toes that causes soft corns.

Callouses of the sole and heel are often painful and sometimes actually cripple the sufferer. Frequent bathing and rubbing often suffice to keep these formations from being troublesome. A smooth piece of pumice stone may be used to shave off the thickened skin. Before applying either of these remedies it is well to apply cold cream to the spot.

War Comment.

"Accidents aside," writes Mr. Frank H. Simonds in the New York Tribune, "Germany cannot be conquered in the campaign of 1917." He frankly considers the possibility that Russia will make a separate peace, in which case Italy might be beaten down in spite of all the aid that could be given her. He does not believe these things are coming, but he thinks it unwise to disregard the fact that they may come. He looks for four years of war rather than three. He warns his public that the United States must be ready to send and maintain in the field great armies from the beginning of the spring of 1918. To those who regard this estimate of the situation as unduly pessimistic he replies that the facts must be faced. In ten weeks the Germans will begin to profit by the earliest of their crops. Thereafter they will be assured of food enough for the remainder of the year. It is possible that Russia may yet be able to strike a great military blow this year. If that should happen, Mr. Simonds says, the war might be ended in 1917. Or, also, it might be ended this year, if the British and Americans together can sufficiently dispose of the submarine menace to convince Germany that Britain cannot be starved out of the war as Germany now believes.

Mr. Simonds notes that we recently passed the thousandth day of the war with little comment. The thousandth day found the British and French offensive in the West in full swing, the first three weeks having brought striking initial successes. Yet the German line holds for the present, and the Battle of Arras tends to become like the Battle of the Somme, a matter of long and hard pounding without immediate hope of shattering the enemy's armies. Mr. Simonds reminds us that while Allied countries have been greatly heartened by progress on the Western front, the Germans have been even more encouraged by the submarine campaign and by their hope that conditions in Russia will mean either a separate peace in that quarter or such an absence of aggressive military effort by Russia as would permit the withdrawal of great forces for use elsewhere. He does not underestimate Britain's present striking power. "The British performance," he writes, "demonstrates that in the long run the new British armies must win the war, for the man power of Britain is now greater than that of Germany (including British colonies) and besides there is the considerable remaining man power of France." But Britain must be fed, and while the Germans may be driven from France and Belgium by winter, Germany is buoyed up by submarine successes and by the thought that Russia cannot fight fearfully this year and may not even quit. He says, of course, that Germany is wrong in believing that Britain can be starved into inaction this year, or even next, but so long as Germany has the men to fight a long defensive campaign, he can see little chance for Allied military success this year; and if the Germans could once get access to Russia's wheat talk of starving Germany would be idle.

It will be seen at once that Mr. Simonds presents possibilities that are gloomy enough; nevertheless they are real possibilities. Perhaps he does not give weight enough to the Anglo-French offensive or to the aid the Americans can furnish this year in ships and in food. Both these elements are important, and it is too early yet to decide that they will not change the face of the war by mid-summer. The Americans will soon place in commission the German ships they seized, and many others, and they will use their navy to assist in keeping down the submarines. That assistance cannot be accurately measured yet. And for weeks yet the world will not know the result of the Anglo-French offensive. The Somme battle was stopped by the autumn rains at a time when it was near a great success. The present offensive, which has more driving power, is scarcely a month old. Will the German armies be able to resist it without sustaining a great military disaster for two months more, or for four? Russia, beyond question, is a danger spot. But Russia is not beaten now they would have to fight her, and fight her alone, later on. Russian intelligence will demand that Russia share the Allied victory. Such, at least, is more probable than Russian defection, although undoubtedly defection is among the sinister possibilities.—St. John's Telegraph.

Mark's Conscience.

Mark Twain was called upto to speak at a club dinner and took for his theme "Honesty." He said when he was a boy at home he one day saw a cartful of melons. He was only a boy—and he was tempted; besides, he liked melons.

The opportunity was there; there was little or no risk of detection. "I sneaked up to that cart," said Mark, "and I stole a melon. I went into a passage to demolish it. But I had no sooner set my teeth in it than I paused; a strange feeling came over me. I came to a quick resolution. Firmly I walked up to that cart, placed the stolen melon where I got it from, and—took a ripe one!"—Tit-Bits.

Keep the top of the dining table in condition by wiping it over with a cloth and olive oil.

Your Boys and Girls.

Often the baby is fussy in his coach when put there to sleep. Have you as comfortable a foundation for your baby in his carriage as he has when he goes to sleep at night? Is the coach cushion free from wrinkles? After he has been made comfortable if he then cries and fusses, see if his clothes are wrinkled up under the arms or his feet uncovered or cold.

One can not go far wrong when following the old rule of head cool and feet warm, also do not jiggle him up and down, rock him to and fro, or shake the coach from side to side. How would you like some giant to pick you up and do all these things to you when you were feeling nauseated or a little upset? And really had the time all the baby wants is to be made warm and "comfy" and above all, to be let alone.

THE WAR.

The battle of the Scarpe continues with unabated violence, and in the face of the strongest resistance the Germans can oppose the British make progress. The fighting is now all along the so-called switch line, running north and south from Drocourt to Quant, hastily thrown out by Hindenburg as a barrier before Douai. The battle has raged up and down this line for more than a month, the Germans betraying their prodigious use of troops and reserves the importance they attach to holding it. Nevertheless, despite indisputably greater losses than ours, they are not holding it. The British have finally surrounded and taken Roeux, a village north of Monchy and like it the scene of the fiercest and most sanguinary encounters. North, at Fresnoy, and south, at Bullecourt, the British have loosened both ends of the line and it may collapse at any time and open the way to Douai.

But there is one point to consult the map. A more eloquent and faithful tale is told in the list of captures estimated for a bare month's fighting. Germany cannot hold the rate of 50,000 prisoners and nearly 500 heavy guns a month. Our own losses, we are told, are about half in proportion of those on the Somme, while the killed and wounded among the Germans must be a very high portion of the whole in fighting of this description. With Britain now in control of the French armies and also, to some extent, of the British, we may look for even slower progress, for his theory of warfare accounts territory nothing—worth and men everything. He will use his terrible artillery, not to win ground, but to kill Germans, and Verdun made him an unequalled expert in the art.

There is apparent quiet from the French below Laon, which bodes ill for the enemy. Another blow is about due and may be looked for this week. A considerable offensive appears to be under way in Macedonia and some progress has been made north of Monastir. This theatre remains a mystery and little reliable can be learned of it. Evidently the Allies consider themselves strong enough to attack, though it is not likely that they have been reinforced during the winter by many more than Venizelos' troops. Serbia, Greece and Roumania may soon all become the stage of stirring events; matters have changed complexion since the pitiful drama of last autumn.

The Allies may include among their objects in this offensive the drawing off of the enemy garrison in Roumania, encouraging the Russians to attack with them. Certain it is that Russia is the greatest danger for the present. Every day confirms the belief that she will not be able to lend any effective help for a long time to come. Ivan wants to be his own master, having got rid of his old ones, and not to fight, and certainly no fighting is being done. Mush, in Armenia, was recently evacuated, though its advanced position might be a sufficient explanation, and now we hear general tidings of further reverses at the hands of the Turks. It is a reflection of popular knowledge of conditions in Russia when the absurd rumour needs to be refuted publicly that Japan is to apply pressure at Britain's urging, and General

Brusiloff has to issue grave warnings to his army. The very greatest importance, therefore, attaches to the visit of the American mission, headed by Elihu Root, to Petrograd. Ocular demonstration to the masses of Russia of the alliance with them of the world's greatest republic may in itself be one of the most potent factors in redeeming the situation in the East. It cannot be redeemed too soon.

Newfoundland Troops Won Fame in Vimy Ridge

Islanders Too Much for Germans, Says Observers at Front.

London, April 20.—Newfoundland's soldiers get high praise for their share in the battle of Arras in the description sent by British correspondents to the front.

"In company with certain English troops," writes one correspondent, "they had pushed recently to the farthest point of our advance, in the most difficult section of the battle area, when they were met by a counter-attack from three columns of the enemy in overwhelming force. Some few were apparently cut off, but the main body fell back, holding the German masses at arms' length. Reaching a trench in advance of our main position the enemy, checked by our fire, dropped into and occupied it. Then came the Newfoundlanders' opportunity, and the next half hour saw such a slaughter of Germans as has only been witnessed perhaps once or twice in this battle. It is believed that no enemy went back, but in the trench and on the ground over which they had come were 1,200 to 1,500 dead.

"Since last July the Newfoundlanders have had harder fighting in proportion to their size than any other unit of the British army, and it is doubtful if any troops of similar strength inflicted such heavy losses on the enemy.—New York Sun.

Last Night's Missionary Lecture.

There was a large and representative audience at the Methodist College Hall last night who listened with deep interest to the lecture of Rev. A. S. Rogers, B.D., who spoke on the "Life and Work of the Rev. Thomas Crosby" the world-famed missionary to the Indians of the great Northwest. Hon. R. A. Squires, K.C., acted as chairman and in a few well chosen remarks introduced the reverend lecturer. Mr. Rogers in his opening remarks referred to the recent casualty lists the price that is being paid by this and other lands in the cause of righteousness. Previous to the great war we were decadent, but the thousands of heroes who had left our shores in the prime of manhood to fight the Empire's battles and the hundreds who had fallen had hurled the lie back in our traders' face.

The Rev. Thomas Crosby was born in England in 1840 and became converted at a camp meeting, shortly after deciding to undertake mission work among the Indians. The hardships and self-sacrifice in that great enterprise which had to be endured by the famous missionary, the life and habits of the savages were fully explained by the lecturer. The lecture was illustrated with lantern slides depicting the country and its inhabitants.

At the conclusion Rev. Dr. Bond proposed and Mr. Geo. W. Gushue seconded a vote of thanks which was accorded in a hearty manner.

Help the Orphans.

We would remind those who contemplate attending the concert to be given by the Comrades Glee Club in the Methodist College Hall to-morrow night that they will enjoy something worth while from a vocal standpoint and to those who propose to absent themselves we feel safe in saying that they will miss a treat. Proof that the performance will be an excellent one is the fact that the city's best talent will assist in the programme, which alone ought to be ample assurance of a large audience; but in addition it may be added that the proceeds will be devoted towards the city's orphans and in regard to this laudable purpose further comment is unnecessary.

confinement to the work-room does not militate against their health, as the place is well ventilated and airy all the time.

In relation to the Jury's observations about the juvenile prisoners, I need hardly say that my views are entirely in accord with theirs. In all my reports I have strongly emphasized the urgent necessity of a separate institution for youthful criminals. As long ago as in 1911 I reported as follows:

"Although it is true that but few juvenile offenders have been committed during the past year, yet the number is large enough to make it desirable that some other place than the Penitentiary should be provided for the punishment and possible reformation of these lads whose offences are mainly confined to window-breaking and petty larcenies. Confinement in a common jail familiarizes them with the associations and surroundings of criminal life. Consequently they become less and less susceptible to moral and religious influences and finally drift down to their destination among the habitual thieves and vagrants of the community."

It is somewhat suggestive that the Penitentiary should, within the past year or two, and more especially since the Prohibition Act came into operation, be singled out for criticism and misrepresentation. The late Horace Greeley used to say: "When everything else fails, write about the weather." Some of my "good friends" seem inclined to change the phrase and say, "When you are hard up for something sensational, concoct a story about the Penitentiary." You can always get a discharged convict, or some one else with a grievance to furnish the "ground-work" of the "embellishing" can be easily done by any one with a vivid imagination.

But, seriously speaking, why, I ask, are certain individuals so extremely anxious about the Penitentiary? Do they in anticipation of being sent to that institution to atone for their political sins of omission and commission—feel troubled in advance about the treatment they would be likely to receive there? If so, I can assure them they are giving themselves a lot of unnecessary worry. The place is not what their forebodings lead them to believe.

On the contrary, it is a first-rate institution of the kind. The corridors and cells are always kept clean and neat, as Grand Jurors from time to time amply testify; the beds are comfortable, the clothing clean and otherwise suitable, the sewerage all that could be desired, and the food of excellent quality and sufficient in quantity to satisfy the greatest gourmand in the community. Then, again, it has yet another very important advantage, and it is this—the inmates never suffer from epidemic disease. In fact, it seems to be immune from all "the ills to which human flesh is heir" in other more highly privileged institutions.

Some writer in one of the local papers, the other day, called the Penitentiary "a Convalescent Home under its present management," and he was perfectly correct in doing so. For nearly a decade and a half there have been only three deaths here, and the unfortunate deceased in these cases were fatally afflicted when the magistrate committed them. Pretty well all the officials live to be octogenarians. Three of them who were pensioned at seventy, or there about, are to-day approaching their eightieth landmark and still look hale and hearty; and one of the present wardens, who has been doing active duty for the past thirty-one years, has never he tells me, had a day's sickness in all his life. But I fear, Mr. Editor, I am trespassing on your valuable space, for the use of which I—an old member of the craft—most sincerely thank you.

Faithfully yours,
ALEX. A. PARSONS,
Supt. H.M.P.

TO-DAY'S Messages.

10.00 A. M.

LEAGUE OF NATIONS.
LONDON, To-day.
Lord Buckmaster when supporting the resolution, advocated Germany's inclusion in the proposed league. This league of nations will fail, he said, unless Germany is admitted. If she is excluded it will be nothing but a league against her, in which case I see no prospect before the world but the unending of darkest night. We must destroy one and support the other. If this is done I believe our future is safe. Viscount Bryce said this war would be a stupendous calamity if it did not suggest some means of escape from its repetition by changing the hearts of the people of the world. Repeated applause followed. He said there must be a re-settlement of the rules as they applied to the international rights, and offences against international law must be severely dealt with. Reprisals are no remedy: they are a repetition of the offense which all civilized humane people ought to condemn. Reprisals are unworthy of the best tradition of England. The sentiment of our soldiers and sailors united with that of our people in its condemnation. Lieut.-General Jan Christian Smuts, famous South African military leader, said: "If one hundredth part of the thought given to this war were given towards peace there never should be war again. I believe a passion for peace has been born in this war, which will prove greater than any passion for gain or conquest. As far as is humanly possible such a war as this should never be tolerated, however, there is danger in believing too much in treaties until we have a radical change in the hearts of men. I think that that change is coming. There must be no patch work peace, or peace which is simply a compromise of conflicting interests. Every nation must have choice in its own destiny and not be cut away or carved to please the great powers. The Archbishop of Canterbury pleaded for a revival of international arbitration which, he declared, was on the increase until the outbreak of the war. Formation of a League of Nations to enforce peace, he admitted, was no easy task, but he added, "I believe most spokesmen of the Anglo-Saxon race, either side of the Atlantic, are under emptiest hallucination it can be done and we mean, please God, to set it forward."

WAR BUDGET.

LONDON, To-day.
Russia still looms in the eyes of the world as the principal obstacle to an early successful issue of the war for the Entente nations and U. S. over Germany and Allies. With a far from satisfactory state of affairs existing between the Council of Workmen's and Soldiers' Delegates and the high Russian Government officials which during the past few days has resulted in the resignation of the commander of the forces at Petrograd and the Minister of War and Marine, comes a renewal of the rumor that Turkey is following the steps of Germany and Austria-Hungary and endeavoring to secure peace with Russia. Consideration said to have been offered by Turkey embraces things that have been the life-dream of Russia; complete opening of Dardanelles to Russian ships, both merchantmen and man-of-war. Turkey also would be agreeable, in case Russia would consent to lay down arms to consider the settlement of the Armenian question, for a long time a thorn in the side of mankind. Likewise deal with her various subjects on the principle of nationality. While there have been rumors that the Council of Workmen's and Soldiers' Delegates have called for armistice official denial is made to this by the Council. On the contrary it is stated by the Council that an appeal to soldiers is being drawn up declaring against a separate peace. Meanwhile from the Roumanian-Russian Danubian region the Roumanian-Russian forces and Teutonic Allies continue almost inactive in their trenches with only a sporadic exchange of rifle fire here and there. Small reconnaissances have been reported.

On both Caucasus and Mesopotamian fronts, however, the Turks have inflicted reverses on the Russians, according to Petrograd. South of Erzerum the Kurds have repulsed the Russian forces after a stubborn fight, while in Mesopotamia the Russian forces have retreated across the Diala River in the face of superior forces. the front in France the British, after very fierce fighting, have taken in its entirety from the Germans the Village of Roex to the east north of Gavrelle, and have pushed their line forward. No infantry engagements have taken place between the French and Germans, but their artilleries still roar great duels which always are fore-runners of attacks. That Britain admittedly will adopt more aggressive war with her navy is shown by the appointment to the Naval Staff, headed by Admiral Jellicoe, one of her best sea fighters and naval tacticians. The Staff will also have charge of the speeding up of ship-building, carrying and other details necessary to the naval cod of war. Germany's submarine campaign so far as France is concerned has not been as successful as against Britain's commerce and neutral ships. In three months since the ruthless campaign began only seventeen ships have been sunk.

PREMIER BORDEN ARRIVED AT QUEBEC.

QUEBEC, To-day.
Rt. Hon. Sir Robert Borden, Premier of Canada; Right Hon. Sir Edward Morris, Prime Minister of Newfoundland; two members of the Ottawa Cabinet, Rt. Hon. Rogers, Minister of Public Works; Hon. J. D. Hazen, Minister of Marine and Fisheries, who have been absent from Canada for three months attending the Imperial War Cabinet Conference in England, returned to Canada to-day on an ocean liner arriving at this port. Spoken to just after arrival, Sir Robert stated he regretted he would not be able to make any statement concerning the Imperial War Conference until he reached Ottawa.

BIG SHIPBUILDING PROGRAMME.

OTTAWA, To-day.
The Herald's correspondent is informed reliably that Sir Robert Borden will take immediate steps to establish a number of additional ship-building yards in Canada; existing plants also to be enlarged. A big ship-building programme in which the Dominion and British Governments will co-operate is to be launched at once. Such steps are the result of conferences between Sir Robert Borden and the British Controller of Shipping, while the Prime Minister was in Britain.

THE CRISIS IN RUSSIA.

PETROGRAD, To-day.
In an impassioned appeal to the delegates from the front, at a meeting in Petrograd to-day, Captain A. F. Kerenky, Minister of Justice, made the most alarming diagnosis of Russia's internal crisis, which has come from any official position since the revolution. The Minister of Justice, who heretofore had made only the most optimistic and reassuring declarations, confessed that his confidence had left him, and that he feared disaster. "I come to you," said Kerenky, "because my strength is at an end. I no longer feel my former courage, nor have I my former conviction that we are conscientious citizens in revolt. I am sorry I did not die two months ago, when the dream of a new life was glowing in the hearts of the Russian people and when I was sure that the country could govern itself without the whip. As affairs are going now it will be impossible to save the country. Perhaps the time is near when we will have to tell you that we can no longer give you the amount of bread you expect or other supplies on which you have a right to count. The process of the change from slavery to freedom is not going on properly. We have tasted freedom and are slightly intoxicated, but what we need is sobriety and discipline. You could suffer and be silent for ten years and obey the orders of a hated Government. You could even fire upon your own people when commanded to do so. Can you now suffer no longer?" Kerenky's declaration, though a trifle more outspoken in its pessimism than utterances of other officials is not unrepresentative of public opinion in Petrograd at the present time. Unless there is a quick infusion of a new spirit in the army and a new understanding of freedom among the masses, and unless new energy working for the defence of the country be infused it is generally felt that Russia will not long be able to go on with the war.

The Burglary Epidemic

Following our reference yesterday to the burglary epidemic that has swept over the city of late, we learn that the police, as a result of their investigations, have secured sufficient clues to lead to a solution of a couple, at least, of the supposed theft mysteries. We gather that there is scarcely a section of the city where some house has not been victimized by the nefarious operators. Altogether, we hear, that so far that not less than a dozen residences have been robbed. A large assortment of goods is reported missing, accompanied by a goody sprinkling of cash. The police detectives are working day and night with typical alertness in endeavouring to run down the culprits.

The lad Rose, who broke into the house of Mr. Arthur Miller, as previously noted, and stole jewelry and $80 in cash, has been fined $50 or two months in jail by Messrs. C. H. Hutchings and J. McCarthy, J.P.'s. The fine was paid by the lad's father. The accused was represented by Mr. Higgins who adduced some extenuating circumstances in the lad's behalf and pointed out that the stolen goods were recovered, and that the $80, which had been half spent, was being made good by the lad's parents.

Naval Reservist Has Accident

Royal Naval Reservist John Hunt, of H. M. S. Briton, met with a slight accident at 10 o'clock this morning while engaged at work at the old battery, Signal Hill. Hunt slipped and fell a distance of twenty feet but escaped with but slight injuries to his hands. He was attended by the ship's doctor and up to press hour was doing well.

Beer or Bread? A Parable.

There was once a city, which, though its armies were victorious, was in dire straits for food. The General Officer Commanding, and the Civil authorities knew that it would be revitalized in a certain number of months, but it was doubtful if they had food enough to last till the revitalizing.

So they made strict search to ensure that nothing which could be used for food should be wasted. Soon the General came upon a great store of barley, and many barrels of sugar. "We are saved," said he, "here is enough barley and sugar to ensure our safety. We can hold out now till the revitalizing. This barley mixed with corn will make excellent bread, and the sugar will save the children." "Alas!" said the Civil authorities, "you are mistaken. All this barley and sugar is going to be turned into beer. We dare not touch it."

At these words the General, who was a simple soldier and did not understand politics or agriculture, grew very angry. Said he: "You are not serious? Nobody can be allowed to turn into beer what might be made into bread to save the city! This is a town of sane people and not a lunatic asylum!" "You evidently don't understand the situation," said the Civil authorities. "Even when it is a question between Beer and Bread, Beer will win."

"What, in war time, and when famine threatens? Nonsense!" said the General. "You will find it's true all the same," said the Civil authorities. And so it proved. The barley was not used for bread. The city fell and the Conquerors drank the beer. Moral—When Beer comes before Bread, the people will perish. Ignominious in September.

We are, however, looked up for later deliveries, though at slight advances, and can at the moment (if you act quickly) look you up for Fall deliveries.

We anticipate that it will be very difficult to get freight space from Ceylon later, as it is not easy now, and we understand imports via New York are not up to requirements, which, combined with difficulties of exchange, insurance, etc. have given rise to talk of very high tea prices.

If you are a Tea Buyer and wish to avoid paying high prices now, and more especially in the Fall, call in and see us immediately, phone or wire.

Why We Like and Dislike.

By RUTH CAMERON.

RUTH CAMERON

Do you like anyone who you know does not like you? That is a great test of character, I think. Dislike of people who one knows do not like or appreciate oneself is almost as instinctive as lifting up one's arm to ward off any other kind of a blow. It is only people in whom the inhibitions of justice and reasonableness and self control are strong who return to let themselves invariably return dislike for dislike.

The reason for our likes and dislikes are great self revelations. Catching Slight Of Yourself.

If you want to catch an unposed glimpse of your inner self, like the sudden surprising glimpses of your outer self that you sometimes get when a mirror confronts you at an unexpected angle, just study out the reason for some of your likes and dislikes.

Hazlitt declares "he of all the world creeps the closest in our bosoms, in our favor and esteem, who thinks of us most nearly as we ourselves. Such an one is indeed the pattern of a friend, another self, and our gratitude for the blessing is as sincere as it is hollow in most other cases. This is one reason why entire friendship is seldom to be found except in love."

She Rubs Everyone The Right Way. That sounds very cynical, and yet I know a woman who has carried out that philosophy and found it true. She is always saying delightful things about people to their friends. In one of those moods of self revelation which we all have (and usually regret) she explained to me that she did it deliberately on the chance that the mutual friends would repeat the compliments to the people complimented, and that that would favourably dispose the latter towards her,—which it usually did.

Are Your Friendships Built On Such Foundations?

Now are all your friendships built on such a foundation as this? Or do you have some in which your appreciation of the other party's fine qualities, your selfless admiration for him are integral parts of the foundation?

And how about your dislikes? Are they merely reflections of the other party's dislike of you? Or are they founded on some less ignoble emotion, —as for instance his unfair treatment of someone else?

These are good questions I think to ask oneself at any time of character stock taking.

CHECKS.

The check is a promise to pay hard money which is perfectly good while in transit through the mails. Upon reaching its destination, however, it is scrutinized, weighed, measured and tested for moisture by a bloodless functionary known as the credit man, who never accepts a cigar without examining it for the pure food label. The result is that a great many perfectly good checks, written in a bold free hand by people of honest intentions who are nursing an inflamed deficit, are returned to the makers with caustic words of reproach attached to them in red ink.

The check is one of the most convenient forms with which to pay debts to people who live at a long distance from the local bank. By the time a weak-lunged check has traveled across the continent and has been found to have nothing back of it except a chattel mortgage on the cash register, an enterprising debtor can collect in enough money as financial secretary of three lodges to meet it with a roll of compact currency and a surprised and pained look. For this reason wholesale houses situated several hundred miles from the local Serutinized, weighed, measured and tested for moisture by the credit man, who never accepts a cigar without examining it for the pure food label.

Rating League greet checks with which they are not on speaking terms with the haughty and disdainful stare of the head waitress during an Elks convention.

Checks are furnished by banks in small books which enable the customer who owns an adding machine and a good memory to tell at once just how much he is overdrawn. The bank also keeps track for him, and sometimes its tracks do not harmonize with those of the customer, who immediately concludes that the banker ought to be hearing the lock step at the expense of the state. This is why so many bankers who are well thought of at home cannot get elected to the school board without running on the labor ticket and advocating the eight-hour day.

Checks have an open, care-free countenance, and are raised with great freedom and success by expert penmen who retire from this vicinity at a high rate of speed. This practice is being discouraged to some extent, however, by the check protector, an aggressive machine with stout jaws which writes out the full sum and seldom misspells a word. By the use of this device an active man who has had experience as a locomotive engineer can protect one of his own checks in less time than it takes to change a clincher tire.

What a Gas Range Means for You, Mrs. Housekeeper.

The gas range is a muscle saver and a step saver. Think of the many tons of coal you used in that coal range, and how you have had to handle it all twice; first, carrying it up out of the cellar; then, from the kitchen to the ash barrel.

No more soot to wipe away; no more ashes to cart away; no more wood to fetch; no more coal dust; no more smoke and no more reason why the kitchen cannot be kept as clean and as orderly as the parlor. The gas range means just this.

Saves 50 Per Cent. of Kitchen Care. Half of the labor in the house is caused by dust from the coal range. Every time it smokes, no matter how good the draught may be, clouds of ashes rise and settle on the furniture.

It Eliminates Hard Work. Use a gas range and you will live better, you will play better, and you will work better because the use of the gas range eliminates the drudgery of carrying coal, ashes and the chopping of kindling, as well as the drudgery of cleaning up a lot of dirt, and, best of all, for the cook it makes it unnecessary for her to stand over a hot stove from two to three hours a day.

Rhubarb is delicious baked with raisins or prunes. The raisins should be cooked first.

Add chopped English walnuts to the vanilla ice cream.

Newfoundland Scotch-Cured Herring

The fact that there has been little demand for Newfoundland Scotch-cured herring during the past few weeks has not in any way influenced prices in the New York market, all reports to the contrary notwithstanding. Selling prices have been on the basis of $14 and 15, according to size and quality of the fish, and in some instances slightly higher prices have been obtained. For fancy large and well-cured herring as high as $16 has been paid in a small way. The ordinary quality fish has brought as high as $14.50 during the past several days, and goods just arrived from St. John's sold within three days at these prices. There has been a lull in the market, especially in the local trade, and sales have been small. Only a few transactions of over fifty barrels have been recorded during the past several weeks. There is a fair stock in New York hands at present, but with a good demand in progress it would probably not be more than enough to carry over to the fall season. As stocks of foreign herring are small, it is not likely that prices will be any lower. Indeed, higher prices are expected before the close of the summer. The stock is held in strong hands, two factors practically controlling the situation in New York. Both of these are strong in their ideas, and neither appears to be willing to make any concession as to prices in present conditions. Offerings have been more liberal during the week, and there has been a good inquiry from out of town. This is due, according to operators, to the fact that foreign herring is scarce and high in price. As it is not expected that there will be any large supplies of Holland herring shipped to New York during the remainder of the present year, and Scotch matjes herring will not begin to come into market until well along in May or June, the market must be supplied with Newfoundland Scotch-cured and Alaska Scotch-cured herring, principally the former. Buyers in New York are inclined to be discriminating in the purchase of this Newfoundland herring, many refusing to accept small fish at any thing like the market value. As a result matties have been selling below the market in some cases, but the prices for matjuls and fulls are rigidly maintained. A few lots of Norwegian style herring from Newfoundland have been received during the past few weeks and these have been bringing from $8 to $10, according to the quality of the fish and the seller. These have sold readily, however, buyers apparently taking advantage of the low price, regardless of the quality or cure of the fish. The spring herring fishery opened last week in Notre Dame Bay; there will be no Scotch-curing. Stocks in New York are now in cold store, where they will remain during the summer months. As much of the goods shipped early in the season did not arrive in good condition, considerable repacking has been necessary. —Fishing Gazette.

Many More Demands For More Pay.

Almost every day now there is a branch of skilled workmen making demands on their employers for more wages. The Three Flags.

Providence Journal.—All over this land of ours a new symbol is beginning to make its appearance—particularly in the streets of our cities. In itself it is a very simple thing—just a flash of color made by three pieces of woolen bunting, each displaying the white, red and blue, but in different combinations. It is composed of clustered flags of the United States, Great Britain and France. It is the new Trinity of Understanding, the guarantee of Democracy triumphant, the beacon light of Hope for the world. Why does the heart of the normally undemonstrative man or woman leap at the sight? Why do the eyes, as they gaze, fill with unbidden but happy tears? Because here is an entangling alliance of the nations and a pure and noble pledge that the time has arrived, in this year of grace 1917, when those three great nations have clasped hands and started towards a goal not of conquest, or rapine or murder, but of equal rights and the Brotherhood of Man. For a new vision is born into the world, a vision which spells redemption and proclaims to all the peoples that here is the great and all-sufficient answer to barbarism, the barrier of destruction across the path of puppets whose crazy assumption of the divine right of kings has brought this world to the depths of horror. Surely if in some spiritual sphere these millions who through the ages have died to resist the enslavement of mankind can look down to-day and see this emblem of grace they must be very glad. The guarantees of the Spirit are greater than treaties, greater than the labors of diplomats, the marching of armed troops, the might of money or the thunder of guns. Over the caressing and entwined folds of the Tricolor, the Union Jack and the Stars and Stripes rests the benediction of God.

Getting the Spirit Early

(From the Indianapolis News.)
"My little daughter," said an Indianapolis woman, "had a visitor the other day, a playmate of the neighborhood. After romping through the house there came a sudden and somewhat prolonged silence. Now it has been my experience that when children are quiet there is usually something doing. I started through the house to find them. They were finally found in the library. Yes, there they were lying flat on the floor resting on their elbows. Looking over them I saw a book. It was the big dictionary with insert leaves of colored pictures. They were looking at the page of flags of the nations and were sticking out their tongues."
"What on earth are you girls doing?" I asked.
"We're making faces at the German flag," was the answer, "and seeing who can make the ugliest."

ANOTHER SLACKER.

That citizen is somewhat phoney who hastens into matrimony, that he may dodge the fray; it ought to shame his soul, doggone him, to see how people look upon him, upon his wedding day. Mehinks I see him humbly kneeling, his voice all choked with maudlin feeling, before some maiden fair: "The thought," he says, "of doing battle out where the noisy cannon rattle, is whitening my hair. So long as I'm remaining single, the chances are I'll have to mingle with men whom I abhor; I have no use for soldiers' labors, I have no use for guns and sabres, I have no use for war. I'd rather hear my neighbors hoot me, than have a husky German shoot me, or prod me with a sword; I'd rather men should call me Rabbit, than fall into the beastly habit of being carved or bored. So marry me, sweet Isabella! Have pity on a cringing fellow, who hates the thought of blood, for if you won't avert disaster, by chasing with me to the pastor, my given name is Mud." You'd think the girls would deem him doty, that they in angry tones and haughty, would order him away; but Slacker, prosper in his wooing; girls like his billing and his cooing, and wed him every day.

Resolution

Adopted at a Meeting of the Board of Directors of the Dominion Commercial Travellers' Association, held on Saturday, May 5th, 1917.

Whereas all Europe is on short rations and the world is to-day facing a general famine, and whereas this country can produce lots of foodstuffs but owing to a scarcity of farm labor a shortage in the coming crop is expected, and whereas it would relieve to a certain extent the present conditions and enable us to do our bit in the world struggle.

It is moved by J. H. Paul Saucier, seconded by Romeo Brosseau, that this Board recommends to the members that they each offer to the National Service Cultivation Committee a week or more of their summer holidays to help harvesting in Canada, and that they at once notify the Secretary of the Association of their willingness to do so.

Kaiser Had a Very Close Call

Three Shots Fired at His Car While Motoring to Berlin—Two of Them Struck the Tonneau.

Rome, May 8.—Kaiser William had a narrow escape from the assassin's bullet while motoring to Berlin, the Zurich dispatch to Corriere D'Italia asserted to-day. An unidentified man fired three shots at the Kaiser's car, two of them striking the tonneau, the third going wild. He was arrested. The despatch said the police were silent on the incident.

Greatest precautions have always been taken to guard the Kaiser from attacks. When he is at the front he lives in a bomb-proof house, without any insignia thereon by which hostile aviators might learn of his whereabouts. Circumstantial stories have been told of special precautions taken during frequent automobile trips, such as an extra car made up to resemble a baggage automobile in which the Kaiser actually rides, while preceding it is a gorgeously decorated automobile with a man resembling the Kaiser seated inside.

The newspaper, Corriere D'Italia, is the clerical organ in Rome.

More Fish For Same Prices.

The fishermen of Channel who were getting 2½ cents a pound for round fish all through the winter have now to remove the bone before they can sell the same. As the sound bones of codfish average close on 12 lbs. out of every 100 lbs. of fish the drop in price is equal to a loss of thirty cents on each hundred pounds.

Food Economies.

Dear Mr. Editor,—Will you kindly insert the following few lines? I, and no doubt, many others have been thinking it is now quite time that the ladies of our Island should turn their attention seriously to economies in the home and elsewhere. Other countries are already denying themselves and why should not we? The gentlemen here are trying to do their part, in order to prepare for the coming strain which is sure to come upon us all in the very near future, therefore if we have the welfare of our country and empire at heart, it is our duty to do our share in trying to relieve this strain wherever possible. Let us begin by ceasing, at once, the making of all fancy cakes and sweets which is indulged in in this country far too much. The trouble is in this small community no one likes to be the first in economising and to do less than her neighbor, therefore, it will require some united body to take the lead. This subject of economising is one that it would be well for the "Daughters of Empire" to take up and if started by them, I know their example would soon be generally followed. Trusting that this suggestion will be the means of helping.

I am, sincerely yours,
HOUSEWIFE.

"Czarina"

WAS LORD BRASSEY'S YACHT.

The three-masted schooner Czarina referred to in a message of our own correspondent at St. Pierre yesterday as being picked up dismantled off Point Platte and towed to the former port, was formerly the cruising yacht of Lord Brassey, the famous English sailor and sportsman. At the commencement of the war she was used as a hospital ship attached to the Serbian Red Cross but was later purchased by the Monroe Export Co. her present owners. On reaching this port her engines were removed and an additional mast added, thus converting the yacht to a three-masted schooner. Capt. Taylor, formerly of the schooner Nettle M., is in command. If the damage cannot be repaired at reasonable cost at St. Pierre she will be towed on here. If so it is possible that the French steamer Pro Patria which rescued her will be given the job.

Chicken Raising In Earnest

Mr. Leonard Earle, "Altadena" Farm, Logy Bay Road, has demonstrated to our local poultry raisers that what was once the impossible is now practicable, for up to the beginning of last week he was successful in hatching four hundred and twenty healthy chickens. Mr. Earle, with an eye to business, has taken hold of the poultry raising in a systematic manner and out of 160 laying hens he averages one hundred eggs a day. We understand the members of the Poultry Association intend paying a visit to "Altadena" Farm this week.

Citizens' Committee

AGAINST INCREASED CITY TAX.

At last night's meeting of the Citizens' Committee, Vice-Chairman W. A. O'D. Kelly presided, the attendance being exceptionally large. The deputation to the Joint Select Committee submitted their report, which was gone over by the Committee, after which the Secretary's report on the Committee's findings during the past year were discussed. Mr. N. Andrews proposed and Mr. P. Gough seconded the following motion, which was passed unanimously: "That the Citizens' Committee make a recommendation to the Joint Select Committee that no increase be made in the 'City Tax' (water and sewerage) during the present war." The remainder of the report will be gone over on Wednesday night. It is rumoured that certain members of the old Civic Commission have some additional sections to be added to the Charter.

"Local Raider"

STRANGE STEAMER REPORTED.

While on a recent trip to Sydney for a load of coal a sealing steamer was sighted within the radius of about a couple of miles by a large unknown steamer, which was apparently bound from a Canadian to an American port. As soon as the stranger sighted what she took to be a German raider a short distance to the rear of her, the consternation that followed on board can be imagined, as immediately she altered her course and "hiked" it off in a different direction at a rate that would give the ordinary sea observer an impression that she was a trans-Atlantic liner on her maiden voyage and out for beating all previous records. The antiquated local craft kept peering along on her voyage at top notch speed, which was about 7 knots, and her rival soon disappeared from view. No little chagrin was caused those on board the sealer by the conduct of the other, but the limit was reached when the local ship intercepted a wireless message transmitted from the stranger and reading in effect that she was being chased by a German raider.

POULTRY ASSOCIATION MEET.

At the regular meeting of the Newfoundland Poultry Association held in the Board of Trade rooms last night, President H. W. LeMessurier presided. In view of the high cost of living it was decided to raise all the poultry possible this year.

LONDON, May 14.—The British Admiralty to-day issued a denial of the German wireless report that the British cruiser Cordelia had struck a mine and had been towed into Barrow badly damaged. No previous report had been received of the mishap. She is a light cruiser laid down in February, 1914, displacing about 3,750 tons.

FRENCH PASSENGER STEAMER SUNK.

PARIS, May 14.—The French passenger steamer Medjerda has been sunk by a submarine while voyaging between Oran, Algeria, and Marseilles. This announcement has been made by the Minister of Marine. The survivors have been picked up and taken to different ports, but they have not yet been reported in full. The Medjerda was 1,215 tons gross.

BRITISH PASSENGER STEAMER SUNK.

NEW YORK, May 14.—The Associated Press to-day says the British passenger steamer Mepus was torpedoed and sunk by a U-boat on the same day and almost in the same locality, the Omaha, 3,310 tons, owned by the Orient Line, was also torpedoed. No lives were lost on either vessel, but valuable cargoes were lost. The chief mate and 11 men are missing from the Greek steamer Parthenon, reported May 9th as having been sunk by a sub, according to a cable received here. The captain and others of the crew which numbered about 25 men, have been saved.

L-22 DESTROYED.

LONDON, May 14.—A despatch to the Star from the east coast says news was received early this morning that L-22 was approaching the coast, and a squadron of naval aircraft went in pursuit of her. The Zeppelin was attacked by a battle-plane which overhauled it and it was seen to burst into flames. Some members of the airship's crew jumped into the sea. The Star says others disappeared with the burning Zeppelin.

UNITED STATES TO FURNISH GRAIN.

WASHINGTON, May 14.—During the food debate to-day Senator Gronna declared that the Allies called on the United States to furnish six hundred million bushels of grain this year. He did not state the source of his information on the Senate floor but privately to Senators he established its authenticity.

FIRE AT WILHELMSHAVEN.

AMSTERDAM, May 14.—For seven hours Wednesday a great fire raged on the Imperial wharves at Wilhelmshaven, the German naval station in the North Sea, according to advices received here to-day. The submarine building department was seriously damaged. The entire district has been closed to the public.

FRENCH LOSSES.

PARIS, May 14.—Seventeen French merchantmen have been sunk by German submarines during February, March and April, according to a statement officially issued to-day. During the same period nine French ships were attacked by U-boats but made their escape. No filled merchantmen have fallen prey to the U-boats.

SHIPBUILDING.

LONDON, via Reuter's Ottawa Agency, May 14.—Sir Edward Carson, First Lord of the Admiralty, explaining the new Admiralty appointments, said the changes had a two-fold object. The first to free the First Sea Lord and heads of the Naval Staff as far as possible from administrative work, in order that they might concentrate their attention to important issues relating to the naval conduct of the war. The second object was to strengthen the shipbuilding and production departments of the Admiralty by providing an organization comparable to that which had supplied the army with munitions. It was further intended to develop and utilize to advantage the whole shipbuilding resources of the country, and as far as possible concentrate the whole organization under one authority. Sir Eric Geddes has been chosen for this position and would be responsible for fulfilling the shipbuilding requirements to the Admiralty, the War Office and the Ministry of Shipping. For this purpose the staffs of the three departments would be placed under his control. As the duties for which he was responsible would include not only shipbuilding, but the production of arms and ammunition, it was necessary that his touch with the Admiralty should be close and intimate, hence with his appointment as member of the Admiralty Board he would also be associated with the Ministry of Shipping and a member of the Shipping Board Committee. Hon. Walter Runciman asked whether the duty of supervising the construction of merchant ships would be transferred from the Shipping Controller. The Minister, added Sir Eric Geddes, had just completed a most important work in France most successfully, and that the Government were glad to avail themselves of his services.

A LEAGUE OF PEACE.

LONDON, May 14.—A League of Nations to enforce peace as championed by President Wilson, William Howard Taft and other American statesmen, was enthusiastically endorsed to-day in a resolution unanimously adopted at a meeting attended by 120 representative men, including clergymen, and members of the Lords and Commons, held under the auspices of the League of National Society. Viscount Bryce presided. Other speakers were Most Rev. Randall Thomas Davidson, Archbishop of Canterbury, Lt. General Jan Christian Smuts, Baron Buckmaster, Lord Hugh Cecil, and Viscount Farnborough. The resolutions, which was offered by General Smuts, and seconded by the Archbishop of Canterbury, read: "It is expedient in the interest of mankind that some machinery should be set up after the present war for the purpose of maintaining international right and general peace. This meeting welcomes the suggestion put forward for this purpose by the President of the United States and other influential statesmen in America, and commends to the sympathetic consideration of the British people the idea of forming a union of free nations for the preservation of permanent peace."

FRENCH MISSION BACK TO WASHINGTON.

WASHINGTON, May 14.—The French mission returned here to-day after its ten day tour in the Middle West and Canada. M. Viviani and party arrived on one train. In another closely following were Marshal Joffre and his aides. All the distinguished Frenchmen returned to finish their work of arranging practical co-operation between the States and France. They were deeply touched by the receptions they had received everywhere they visited.

STRIKES ENDING.

LONDON, May 14.—The strike of engineers which had been in progress at various parts of England for some time collapsed in many places in the northern counties where the King and Queen arrived to-day for a week's tour. Work has been resumed generally in Manchester and Southern Lancashire. An overwhelming majority of the members of the Trades Unions denounced the strikes.

In many other centres the men returned to work to-day. This was particularly true of London, Barrow and Derby where the shops have been opened as usual to-day. At other places, such as Liverpool, it was decided to remain out in order to compel the Government to withdraw the bill designed to obtain the younger working men for the army, to which the strikers take exception. On account of the opposition of the Amalgamated Society of Engineers to strike, little enthusiasm for it is shown in most places.

RUSSIAN REVERSES.

PETROGRAD, May 14.—Russian reverses on the Caucasian and Mesopotamian fronts are reported by the war office to-day.

BRITISH STEAMER TORPEDOED.

NEW YORK, May 14.—The destruction by a German submarine of the British steamer Corfu on April 17th while on the way from Philadelphia to Genoa with iron, was reported to-day by a British steamer arriving from the Mediterranean. The Corfu, a vessel of 2,375 tons, met her fate 150 miles west of Gibraltar, where her crew, except one killed by shell fire, were brought after being rescued.

CANADA THIS TIME.

CALGARY, May 14.—About six thousand miners are affected by the strike formally called into effect by the executive of district 18 of the United mine workers of America this morning, comprising practically all of the miners of the province of Alberta, and Eastern British Columbia. As a matter of fact the falling of the strike is a mere formality because the men of all the larger mines were already on strike, or taking a holiday, as they call it, for several weeks. The only difference is that the action of the miners in the various camps has now been sealed with the official approval of the Union.

RUMORED RETIREMENT.

LONDON, May 14.—The impending retirement from Parliament of William O'Brien, who sits for the City of Cork, is reported in Cork. Should this occur, Lord Mayor Butterfield, of Cork, an adherent of John Redmond, and ex-Mayor Meade, a Sinn Feiner, will be candidates for the vacancy.

WANT AMERICANS TO ENLIST.

MELBOURNE, May 14.—Minister of Defence Pearce is taking steps to ascertain if the United States will permit Americans to enlist in the Australian army.

BORDEN ON THE WAY HOME.

QUEBEC, May 14.—Sir Robert Borden and party arrived at Quebec this afternoon on a British steamer after attending the Imperial Conference in London. The party left immediately for their destination.

WILL HONOR JOFFRE.

PERPIGNAN, France, May 14.—A committee of prominent men in the Department of Pyrenees Orientals, Marshal Joffre's native region, has been formed with the object of presenting the victor of the Marne with a sword of honor and a Marshal's baton.

Postal Despatchers Sick

For the first time in the history of the Postal Service has the chief foreign and local mail despatchers been absent at one time. Mr. James Coughlan, chief foreign mail despatcher; Mr. John H. Newman, chief local despatcher, and Mr. Alex. Noseworthy, assistant local despatcher, are now ill at home. The two former have been in the postal service for over thirty years. However Messrs. Twell, Goble, Norberg and Murphy under direction of Mr. J. H. Clark, Superintendent, are seeing that the mails are despatched at the usual hour.
