OR
MABEL HOWARD, OF THE LYRIC.

The signor made a grimace. "That would have been a waste most sinful, your grace," he said. The duke smiled. "I don't care about the money—so much; but I should like to prove that the young lady isn't so unapproachable, you understand?" The signor understood perfectly. "Yes, yes, certainly! Saints and angels, what is the pally name to his Grace of Rosedale? No! It is to win the victory, the triumph!" "Exactly," said the duke. He looked round the room with his small twinkling eyes for a moment, then, as the clear sweet voice of Iris rose and penetrated to the saloon, he started and trotted off to his box without another word. The signor did not go into the theatre, for reasons of his own, he was not at all desirous of reminding Iris of his existence that night. Instead, he went out into the streets and walked about until the play was over. Iris had looked for him, as usual, and, not seeing him, had sung and acted better and more brightly even than usual. "Your voice improves, my dear," said Mrs. Berry, as she helped "the dresser" to exchange the white satin robe of the last scene for Iris' plain, everyday clothes; "but you don't look well, my dear. You look pale, and are you unhappy, my dear?" Iris smiled faintly. "Isn't every one unhappy, more or less, dear Mrs. Berry?" she said, putting the question aside. Mrs. Berry looked at her searchingly. "Young, beautiful, the favorite of the people—and not happy!" she said. "It is a funny world!" "Is it?" said Iris, smiling again. "I haven't found much fun in it—as yet." At this moment Paul knocked. "Mr. Montmorency is going to hear me play over the score in half-an-hour, Mabel," he said. He looked pale and anxious, and Iris drew him toward her and stroked

Nervous Breakdown
The extreme depression and discouragement which comes over one at times is the most alarming symptom of nervous exhaustion. This letter is a message of hope to all who find themselves in this unfortunate condition. Mrs. Geo. T. Tingley, Albert, N.B., writes:— "For years I was in a very nervous, run-down condition, was much depressed in spirits and suffered a great deal at times. The least noise would irritate me and at times I felt as though I certainly would go crazy. I consulted different doctors to no effect. "A friend advised the use of Dr. Chase's Nerve Food and I can truly testify today it did the greatest benefit received. There was a marked change before I had finished the second box and when I had used a dozen boxes my nerves were thoroughly restored and I was entirely relieved of those terrible feelings I used to have. I shall ever be ready to testify to the benefits of this wonderful medicine, feeling sure that it will give to others the quick and permanent relief it has given me." At All Dealers. ed out that Lord Rosedale and the duke had laid a wager upon Miss Mabel Howard's appearance at the concert. It seemed incredible and ridiculous. It was well known that Miss Howard had received invitations innumerable to parties of the highest character, and that she had refused. It was also well known that not a breath of scandal had dimmed the luster of her fair name. Everybody said that she was not only a lady, but that she held herself as one, and that the only acquaintance she would consent to make with the world, was from behind the Lyric footlights. No one had ever seen her at any social gathering. People sought her in the Row or the drive in vain; the gilded youths complained that—"You couldn't even buy her photograph, if you were to appear at a smoking concert of the Lyric, and that the Duke of Rosedale had staked a hundred pounds on her presence! The suite of rooms at the Lyric were beautifully decorated and furnished, as befits a place in which dukes and earls spend their brightest hours. It was said that nowhere in London, or even Paris, could you get so recherche a supper, or such rare wines, and people who used to be fond of declaring that the House of Commons was the best club in London, now added—"after the Lyric." On this particular night the supper parties had hurried over the meal, and leaving the magnificent salle a manger, had hastened into the smoking-room, in which the concerts were held, and which was large enough to form a fair auditorium. The concert commenced at twelve, twelve punctually, and at that hour four of the best singers of the day—all gentlemen—gave of a quartet. People were laughing and talking in an undertone nearly all the time, and there was a buzz of suppressed excitement and curiosity which indicated that the concert was not the chief attraction for that evening. Presently Lord Rosedale, accompanied by a sporting marquis and one of the Cabinet Council, came in. Their entrance caused a little stir, and as they made their way to seats near a small table, people exchanged glances significantly. Lord Rosedale looked round, and nodded to one and another with his pleasant smile; then he turned to the cabinet minister. "I'm afraid you'll think you've wasted your time, Gainsford," he said, "and wish yourself back in the House! But don't blame me; I told you all along that she wouldn't come. It is impossible." The right honorable smiled in his grave way. He was an admirer of Miss Mabel Howard, and the rumor that she was to appear at the Lyric had surprised him and had excited his curiosity so deeply that, at some sacrifice, he had left the ministerial benches to see for himself how the wager would be decided. "I hope she won't," he said quietly. "I like Miss Howard, and I should have thought this the last place in the world in which to see her." "Just so," said Rosedale. "It's ridiculous. Why, I think I told you that my mother asked her to the closest way to come to one of her 'at homes,' and she refused. Why on earth should she come here?" (To be continued)

The Meanest Man.
Eleven years have passed since Mark Train died, and the greatest tribute to his genius is that no humorist has arisen to take his place. Opinions differ as to which was his funniest story, but there are those who think that his yarn about the meanest man is not easily beaten. "The meanest man I ever knew," he said, "lived in Hannibal. He sold his son-in-law the half of a very fine cow, and then refused to share the milk with him, on the ground that he had only sold him the front half. The son-in-law was always compelled to carry all the cow's fodder, and to give the water to her twice a day. Finally the cow butted the old man through a barbed wire fence, and he sued his son-in-law for damages."

gas, and three, including Commander Lieut. Francis Adams Smith, were said to be in a serious condition.

LONDON, Dec. 8. K. of C. Entertainment.
The New-House Committee of the Knights of Columbus opened the season last night with a card party and dance which was largely attended. The card party formed the first part of the evening's entertainment. Progressive forty-fives were played until 10.15 p.m. when supper was served by Mrs. M. Walsh and other members of the Columbus Ladies' Association. The prize winners in the card tournament were later announced. At the conclusion of supper the gathering repaired to the Council Chamber where a very pleasant dance was held. It was the intention first to have the B.S. orchestra present, but owing to unforeseen circumstances the orchestra could not attend. Three members of the C.C.C. Band stepped into the breach and discoursed a splendid programme of music, which was thoroughly enjoyed by all those present.

Caught in Storm.
Fish Carrier Suffers Serious Damage. Yesterday afternoon the schooner Valeria was towed to port in a somewhat damaged condition, having been out in the storm of Monday last. The vessel left Exploita on Sunday with a cargo of fish for Oporto. When the storm broke the vessel was headed to sea. During Monday night everything movable about deck was swept away, two dories going with the wreckage. The vessel's bulwarks were smashed and the head sails and foresail carried away. The jibboom was also smashed and for a time it looked as if the vessel would founder. When the weather moderated the Valeria was worked back to land and all on board were thankful when port was reached.

Only Wanted
Ride One Way.

The report in the middle west of the United States of a "driverless automobile" station along the lines of the old livery stable, where one might hire a "rig" and drive it one-self, affords occasion for recalling a story about the earlier institution which may serve as a warning to any who would resort to sharp practice. According to the tale referred to a traveling man once asked the proprietor of a livery stable:

"What is the price of a rig to go over to Blankville?"

"Ten dollars," replied the smart stable keeper.

After the journey had been taken the owner of the horse and carriage said: "Twenty dollars."

Asked to explain, he added: "Ten ed the stableman $10."

The next time the traveling man came he again inquired: "What is the price of a rig to go over to Blankville?"

"Ten dollars," again answered the liveryman.

Several days later the traveling man re-appeared without the rig and handed the stableman $10.

"But where is my rig?" demanded the owner.

"Oh, it is over at Blankville," said his patron. "All I wanted to do was to go over."

ALL IN THE GAME.
So you've scraped your shin and you're just as sore as a boy can be. And they roughed you there when you tripped and fell; But all the hurts will soon get well. So don't fret over bumps you've had, For they are all in the game, my lad.

They were stronger than you? Well, I guess that's true. For your little body is black and blue, And they tacked hard when you had the ball. And your shoulder hurts where you chanced to fall. And some of them cheated—well, that's too bad, But that is all in the game, my lad.

And you lost the game, but your dad won't care. If only you tell him your play was fair. Why, the little hurts will soon be gone, But the scar of the chest stays on and on. So take this truth from your dotting dad—It's better to lose than to cheat, my lad.

Some day when you're older grown, you'll find You must stand to hurts of a sprer kind; Men will batter and bruise and cheat you, too. And they'll stoop to things that you must do. But you still must smile when your heart is sad. For that's all a part of life's game, my lad.

Address Given by Miss Southcott

At the Quarterly Meeting of The Child Welfare Association Grenfell Hall, Monday, October, 24th, 1921.

By a fortunate coincidence, just as I had the honor of being made your President, I had the opportunity of attending a Convention, where Public Health and Child Welfare were two of the subjects for discussion, and where I was able to meet many nurses and others engaged in this work. There were two Conventions in Quebec; the Canadian Association of Nursing Education, of which I have been a member for many years, and the Canadian National Association of Trained Nurses. A section of the joint Convention—a whole day, in fact—was devoted to public health nursing, the various problems connected with it were fully discussed, and the weak points of the work freely criticized. The Public Health Nurses of Canada are becoming so numerous that the private duty nurses seem to think that very soon there will be no use for them in the community. One of the medical men who spoke at the Convention remarked—there were so many health nurses he wondered who was nursing the sick. We haven't reached that stage in Newfoundland yet. During the War it was very easy to be patriotic, and to work for one's country; that enthusiasm has waned now. But it was the war perhaps more than anything else that awakened us to the need of this work we are undertaking—Child Welfare. So many of the men who presented themselves as volunteers were found to be "physically unfit." These two words roused us. What could be done? Nothing in their case. But we can see that the children now growing up will not be "physically unfit." The marchers forward on the feet of little children." It is the work of the Child Welfare Association to see that the path they have to tread is not too difficult for them, that there are no obstacles in their way.

"Is it smooth and clean and fit, say you, fit for a baby's feet?"

"We should be prepared," says Cardinal Vaughan, "to spend as much money on babies as on armies." We may co-operation of the public now as we had it during the war, that we may prepare for our children health of character, health of body and health of mind. Great stress is laid on publicity campaigns everywhere, and we must not let the public forget the baby.

NURSES MANAGE MILK CENTRES.

I went one morning to the Foundling Hospital in Montreal, and saw the work of the baby clinic there. They prepare the milk for the mothers in the hospital and keep it in cold storage until called for; that is, if the mother cannot be relied upon to carry out the formula accurately herself, it is prepared for her there and she comes and get it between 9 and 10 a.m. It seemed to me that it must be difficult for a busy mother to get away from home at that hour. The nurses manage the milk centres and do their visiting after the milk is disposed of, so that the cost of distribution is practically nil. The babies attend one morning a week to be weighed and see the doctor; if necessary, a card is kept for each child on which everything is noted, the nurses making her notes in red ink, the doctor his in black. What struck me most about these clinics was the professional way each mother came in and sat down and gave her report, there was no unnecessary talk, no shyness, no nervousness; and one felt that when the doctor said "add another 1/2 oz. of milk to the food" the baby was going to get that 1/2 oz. no more, or less. It was the result of education. Another thing that struck me was that nearly all of these mothers were able to afford, and would get what was ordered—syrup, orange-juice, and farina seemed to be the favorite addition to the milk as the child got older, and I thought—have more difficult problems to solve here than they have in Canada. The afternoon of that day I went with the district nurse to pay some visits. The people we visited seemed so much better off than our people, from one point of view. They had large, well-furnished houses, too well-furnished most of them; but the houses were all so hot, of course it was summer, and the weather was fairly hot, but I thought in spite of the cooking stoves the babies here in St. John's did not suffer from the heat as those poor babies did. If we could house our babies as well and keep our streets as clean as Montreal streets, our infant death-rate would surely decrease. There as here, I noticed that the doctor often said "keep the baby cool," he never had to say "keep the baby warm."

THE WORK OF THE MIDWIFE.

There was one thing at the Convention that pleased me very much. Perhaps some of you do not know that in connection with Child Welfare we have a Midwives' Club. Most of you know something of the work of midwives in Newfoundland, among the poor. Now it is a very important matter for the child that it should be well born. About a year ago a Midwives' Act was passed in the Legislature making it necessary, after the lapse of a certain period, for every woman who wishes to act as midwife to pass an examination. The Club was started by Miss Haslam, who deserves great credit for succeeding so well. It is always difficult to begin things. Miss Bensel carried on the work most successfully last winter; this year the President, Mrs. Hiscock, is taking charge of it herself. They meet every Monday evening; last winter every other week Dr. Carnell gave them a lecture, and on the alternate Mondays Dr. Tait, or a nurse gave them some teaching. It would not be unreasonable to expect that a woman who had managed 1000 cases alone would think she knew all there was to know, but that is not so. She is most anxious to learn and interested in everything, they are taught and the room is full every night. After the lecture they have a cup of tea, and if any of you like to send a cake to the Midwives' Club at the Community Nurses' rooms, on Monday night, or to the Mothers' Clinic on Thursday afternoon, I am sure it will be very acceptable. As you know, through the efforts of Lady Harris, we have now four or five qualified midwives working in the outposts, and anyone who knows the work of English midwives knows what an untold amount of good they can do, and what a boon they are. Still there has been some adverse criticism. People say that every mother should have the doctor, and should not put their lives in the hands of midwives; but where and how are we to get doctors for all these women in the outposts? Midwifery as such is not allowed in Canada, but a few years ago it was proposed to bring some English midwives to the Dominion. It was discussed or rather denounced at a Convention I attended in Halifax about six years ago. Miss McKemie, head of the Nursing Association spoke very strongly against it. "May the day be far-distant, when our fair land decides she needs midwives." Fewer than hold her position under these circumstances she resigned. I always felt that the practice was born of ignorance, and this year I find a great change.

EXPERIENCED OBSTETRICIENS

Miss Jean Browne, Canadian representative at King's College, London, had just returned from England and France, where she had been studying the different methods of training and speaking very appreciatively of the work of midwives in England. She said her views were entirely changed since she had seen their work. She also spoke of the low death-rate among mothers, 3 in a 1000. Of course, as she said, they are very strictly supervised, they have very definite laws laid down as to what they may and may not do, and if a doctor is not at once sent for when necessary they may have their certificates taken away. In England a doctor is always at hand, not so in Newfoundland; but I feel sure that these midwives will be a power for untold good, and a great blessing to outport mothers, when the nearest doctor may be miles away. I see that in England another rule has been added lately—that is, that if a mother leaves off nursing her baby during the time the nurse is visiting her, she has to report it to the health authorities. Not only must the Child Welfare bring to the mind the right to be well-born, it must go back even further. As the unweaving of the statute is as nothing to the sculpturing of it, so the birth of the child is a small matter compared with its development before birth; that will bring us later to pre-natal work. In Boston they have baby clinics dotted all over the place, but only two milk centres in all that big city. I inquired how it was they said the mothers had learned the value of good milk for their babies, and there was no need for them. I said "what about the poor people who can't afford to buy milk?" There were not many, except in the Jewish districts, and they were supplied by private people, or the local charity organization. The nurse showed me a list of names, not more than twenty, yet there are six million men out of work in the United States. I found that all through the United States where there were many milk centres there are far fewer at present. It has been found better to advise mothers to get milk from the regular milk companies. This is another point where our health problem is a more difficult one to manage. There the milk has to measure up to a certain standard, and it is not difficult for each mother to get what she wants from one of the big milk companies. But they do not get us fresh milk as we get it in a rule, twenty-four hours old before it reaches the consumer. And while there is always the required amount of cream in it there is never any more, because the cream is all separated and the necessary amount replaced. Our mothers buy from the little shops, second hand, and the opportunities for contamination are many and varied. Our milk centres cost a great deal, and I think that once the mothers appreciate the importance of pure milk, and can be sure of getting a pure supply we ought to be able to do without them as they are doing elsewhere. As a result of the milk campaign in Ottawa this year to teach the importance of milk as a food for growing children, there was an increase of 32,000 quarts in the daily sale of milk.

ALL HELPING THE BABIES.

I went to a baby clinic at Medford. There even the babies seemed well up in health matters. A tired-looking mother came in with one baby in arms, another aged 4, walking. She said, "Doctor, I don't know what to do with my babies. I can't get either of them to sleep in the daytime." He said to the eldest, "Don't you ever lie down?" Oh, I lie down every day. Don't you get a nap at all? I don't sleep, but I relax." The Massachusetts Health Centre in Halifax managed by Dr. Royer, is a wonderful place, and it casts the people of Halifax very little. As soon as the disaster caused by the terrible explosion in Halifax Harbour became known, their friends in Massachusetts rushed forward with train-loads of supplies and large sums of money—nearly three-quarters of a million dollars—and personal services of volunteers. When the immediate strain was over and the Halifax Government was able to grapple with the relief work, there remained a balance of a quarter of a million dollars. This money could not be returned and Dr. Victor Heger, of the International Health Board was asked to make a special study of the needs of Halifax and Dartmouth. It was found that the death rate from communicable diseases was much higher than on other parts of Canada and British countries, and were high-lying from diseases spread by bad housing and over-crowding. The strain and privation caused by the explosion would be likely to cause a rise in the death rate, and it was decided to spend the money on health education with the idea of making a permanent reduction in the disease rates. It was decided to form a new organization and to apportion the money at the rate of $50,000 a year. The Halifax Relief Commission enclosed (Continued on 5th page).

PAINS SO BAD STAYED IN BED

Young Mrs. Becroft Had Miserable Time Until She Took Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

Hamilton, Ont.—"I have suffered for three years from a female trouble and consequent weakness, pain, and irregularity which kept me in bed four or five days each month. I nearly went crazy with pain in my back, and for about a week at a time I could not do any work. I saw Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound advertised in the Hamilton Spectator and I took it. Now I have no pain and am quite regular. I never work or stay on my feet from early morning until late at night. I keep house and do my own work every day. For forty years women have been telling how Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound has relieved their health when suffering with female illness. This accounts for the enormous demand for it from coast to coast. If you are troubled with any ailment peculiar to women, why don't you try Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound? It is made from pure, natural, and healthy ingredients, contains no narcotics or harmful drugs. For special advice women are asked to write to Lydia E. Pinkham Medicine Co., Lynn, Mass. The result of forty years' experience is at your service."

ROBERT TEMPLETON Water Street.

Knockers. (By BRUD) As some poor mortals daily walk their own-made Veil of Tears, how wretched, if they could not talk of skeletons that with them stalk, would be their span of years! They greet us early in the morn with tales of grief and weep, and as they lose their death-like horns they show us faces drawn and worn—a shanthy gruesome show. They neither seek the brighter side nor show one ray of hope for better things, but open wide their graveyard mouths and slip aside a coffin full of hope. We meet them morning, noon and night, this offspring of Despair; they stop our happy course, and tight with gaseous winds of Death, they fright what hopeful looks we wear. They tell us of their ill and aches that they themselves create, and with their crible-fetched rakes they gather in some poisoned cakes and hang them on our ears. Their clogged brains are never free from fears of darker days; their bloodshot eyes can always see the blackest cloud for you and me who seek the sunny rays. In every city, village, town, where ere we go we find those lantern jaws that hang down a tragic tale, a festered crown or something of the kind. The Gloomy Outlook is their Sun, the Trials of Life their Stars; they trail some mother's happy son and count the privations to run some black juice from their ears. The brightest place, the darkest place on earth they inhabit, and everywhere they leave a trace, a frowning look on Fortunes face. Oh! may a kindly God destroy the dark and deadly race before it is too late!

Conclusion of a Scientist. An Australian scientist has concluded that Australia was once ice-land covered by glaciers. Some of the largest of the world's known ice accumulations of the Antarctic, and a monster glacier occupies the center of our continent where there are now registers 120 degrees of shade. This is the conclusion arrived at by Professor Sir Edgeworth David, who was chief scientist of the Mawson expedition in the Antarctic and his investigations during a brief tour of exploration through central Antarctica. He has returned with a bulky pebble that most people would have kicked aside, and it is his only proof that Australia was once a continent of ice. Sir Edgeworth David reports that even in the most arctic Antarctic regions there are vast quantities of pebbles of fresh water. This arctician supplies of fresh water which he has conclusively proved are not "glacial" pebbles through the porous sandstone of two great rivers—the Flinders and the Gwyder.

DENTISTRY FOR INFANTS.

There is a dental clinic of the kind very proud. The dental chair, no one had seen the age of the child in months to six years. The medical men were very pleased to begin early, we don't know that. If they find a child with bad teeth, pre-natal care with the in view before the mother. There is also a under-nourished child, used to tuberculosis, send the parents to the clinics and traces of child's history as far as is known. There is a large number of families in the city. With providing a more varied diet, they are encouraged to eat ordinary vegetables. It is allowed to grow anything as potatoes. Another child has been opened with two nurses, twelve to twenty, and four Red Cross in charge, and there are in the books two more was opened. The foundation has given $5,000 a Dalhousie Hospital, south end of Halifax, Massachusetts Health Provincial Health Officer, and the Dartmouth Health members of the Committee health work was in Scotland last year, the qualified health nurses a course was established in March, 1920, and have graduated and demand.

PROPORTION OF BIRTH DEATHS.

There are 100 deaths in every 1000 births. Last year it was 80. In 1919, it was 102. It is estimated that a Minister of Health in Canada. In conference on Child Welfare was attended by 200 representatives from all over the Department of the Provincial Registrar sent caravans to districts for demonstrative purposes, dentists and nurses excellent work. In health Centre is paying the expenses of eight nurses for one year. The municipalities would the programme, and agreed to contribute $15,000 a year for five years. The Provincial Government and City of Halifax each agreed to assist so that they have about $75,000 a year for their health work. The old hospital house was given to the Commission as a health centre, and it is now in full working order.

DENTISTRY FOR INFANTS.

There is a dental clinic of which the staff is very proud. There is the latest dental chair, no one over six is allowed to be in the clinic. The patients are from two to six years. One of the dental men remarked to me, "You begin early, we don't lose any teeth." If they find a mother with children with bad teeth then, she gets pre-natal care with that special light in view before the next child is born. There is also a dry camp for under-nourished children exposed to tuberculosis. They encourage the parents to come to the clinic and trace back the family history as far as possible in the home. There is a large garden with twenty-five families have each plot of their own. With the idea of growing a more varied bill of fare, they are encouraged to grow other than ordinary vegetables. They are allowed to grow anything so common as potatoes. Another Health Centre has been opened in Dartmouth with two nurses, twelve Victorian Order Nurses and four Red Cross Nurses in charge, and there were 1800 cases in the books two months after it was opened. The Rockefeller Foundation has given $200,000 for building a Dalhousie health centre for the south end of Halifax. With the Massachusetts Health Centre, the Provincial Health Officer, the Chairman of the Board of Health for Halifax, and the Dartmouth Health Officer members of the Commission. When the health work was organized in Nova Scotia last year, there were no qualified health nurses available, and a nurse was established at Dalhousie University in March, 1920. Two classes have graduated and supplied the demand.

PROPORTION OF BIRTHS OVER DEATHS.

There are 100 deaths in Canada for every 1000 births. Last year in England it was 80. In 1919, in Australia it was 62.1. In Newfoundland last year it was 142. It is only two years ago that a Minister of Health was appointed in Canada. In 1920 the first Conference on Child Welfare was held and attended by 200 representatives from all over the Dominion. Last year the Provincial Red Cross in Halifax sent caravans to the remote districts for demonstration purposes, nurses, dentists and nurses, and they did excellent work. In Ontario the Health Centre is paying the salaries of eight public health nurses for one year. The idea is that the municipalities would realize the benefit of such a nurse in their community, and as a result appoint one of their own. And so far seventeen municipalities have decided to have their own public health nurses. We turn from the child to the child's home. "The longer we delay improving housing the more does society and the state pay the toll in the broken lives of many a man and woman."

How many have visited the houses on Lime Street, Cuddey Street, or James Street on a hot day in summer or walked through those streets or similar ones in the spring when the snow is melting. As they were twenty years ago so they are to-day.

LACK OF VENTILATION.

I wonder how many diseased tonsils are due on the one hand to sealed up houses where the same air is breathed over and over again for lack of ventilation, on the other hand, to houses where air, snow and rain enter freely through the roof, keeping the walls damp and mouldy. A parable of the tenements tells its own story. "A little girl living in a court in an eastern city planted a window box in all hope at the beginning of the summer. She nursed her seedlings with great care, and was elated when the first shoots appeared. From day to day she watched the plants, and vines grow, but with each day they grew weaker and more sickly, without symmetry or beauty. Finally they died altogether in the vitiated atmosphere. Yet the child is expected to grow and develop into womanhood under precisely the same conditions." The Daily News speaks of the overlapping of philanthropy. That seems to be a difficulty everywhere. In London they are trying to solve this problem now; there is a large building to be opened this month, where all the societies whose object is the welfare of the mother and the child, will be under one roof. It is under the auspices of the Joint Council of the British Red Cross and the Order of St. John. There are over a dozen societies in all, which will be known as the Central Council for Infant and Child Welfare. This has been made possible by the gift of forty thousand pounds from the Carnegie Fund.

COME ACROSS FOR CHILD WELFARE.

As a speaker at the Quebec Convention remarked, "The greatest need of Canada to-day (let me say Newfoundland) is for people who will work and people who can work." We want so much for Child Welfare in Newfoundland. We need a Children's Hospital for sick children. We need a Foundling Hospital for homeless children who are debared from the orphanages. The closing of Dr. Fraser's hospital means that many sick children who need hospital care will suffer for lack of it. The want of a foundling hospital means much loss of infant life. I have been told that 90 per cent. of the illegitimate children die, and while they may not have as fair a start in life as those born under more favorable conditions, surely under any circumstances it is an appalling waste of life, involving how much helpless suffering. We want a properly qualified public health nurse in addition to our community nurses. We want more Community nurses. And for all these things we want money. Toronto is the chief training centre in Canada. I had a talk with Miss Russell, director of the Public Health course of the University of Toronto. At Quebec forty-seven nurses had just completed their course, and I would have liked to have been able to ask for one of them for Newfoundland. It is possible for a nurse to get through the University for $600 a year, and for a little more than that sum we could send one of our nurses away to train. Then we must be sure of having the money to pay her salary which would be from $75 to $125 per month.

MORE NURSES NEEDED.

Saint John Woman Declares It Was a Blessing to Her

Mrs. Lobb Has Gained Twenty Pounds And Now Feels Just Fine.

"I'm in better health and spirits than I have been in years and it's all on account of what this wonderful Tanlac has done for me," said Mrs. Frederick Lobb, 297 Princess St., St. John, N.B. "I had stomach trouble in a bad form for many years. What I ate soured on my stomach and I suffered great distress from gas that would cause me to gasp for breath. I was smothering. My nerves became upset and at times my hands trembled so I couldn't lace my shoes and I slept poorly at night. "Tanlac benefited me in every way right from the start. Soon I was eating anything and everything. I wanted without the slightest distress afterwards. I have gained twenty pounds in weight and just feel fine. Tanlac has been a wonderful blessing to me." "Tanlac is sold by leading druggists everywhere.

work, but more are needed. They find their work so difficult because the mothers are not able to get the medicines and food prescribed for their children, and as I said before we no longer have a hospital to send them to for treatment. They find that the mothers appreciate their help, but we must not look for results too soon. It will take time. One of the Canadian nurses told of a little boy aged twelve, whose mother said to him, "Lindsay, why do you not practise some of the things you learn in your hygiene class in school?" He said, "O, mother I am not learning that for myself, but so that I can teach my children what to do." Let me conclude with a tribute paid to the visiting nurse by a prominent Chicago physician, in response to a toast given at a banquet in that city. "And who is my neighbor? And it came to pass that a mother and her baby, went down from the second to the nineteenth ward, and fell among microbes. And the microbes increased and multiplied; and behold they attacked the baby, and the child was stripped of its nutrition and was left half dead. And a certain physician passed that way on the same side and wrote a prescription, and in like manner a benevolent countess was good to the child, but behold not good with it, and left money and then passed to the other side and gave a vaudeville performance on the Lake Shore drive for the benefit of the South Sea Islanders. But a certain nurse and journeyed, came to where the child was, and behold she was not only good to the child but good with it. And she poured soap and water over the baby and put it in a bed, and the bed was clean and warm and dry. And behold the primary nutrition of the child waxed and grew, and the secondary nutrition did likewise, and there was no more retrograde metamorphosis of tissue, and as the nurse departed the mother of the child opened her mouth and spoke in broken English and said, "Heaven bless you! Miss, a thousand times, if you not come, I not have my baby."

Money Savers Pay Unemployment Doles.

The great majority of Canadians own their own homes. The homes were purchased with money obtained for work money that was saved little by little over a long term of years. Also the great majority of Canadian heads of families have money in the savings banks. The great mass of these people saved money before the war; saved it when they were getting 20 to 30c. an hour; saved it when they were young apprentices. In saving they denied themselves many things they would have liked to have had; things which some of their fellow-workmen, less far-sighted, spent their money upon—pool rooms, theatres, fancy clothes, etc. It is the money-savers, the persons who saved money at 20 to 30c. an hour, who are to-day paying for the unemployed or helping to maintain the generosity of cities like Toronto at $50 an hour to incompetent workers and 60c. an hour to general city laborers. It is said that several millions will be required this winter to take care of unemployment. It is the money-savers, not the foolish spenders, who will have to bear the taxation for this. These money-spenders maintain city councils, boards of trade, manufacturers and other associations to look after their interests. Increasing taxation, extravagant administration, spending money on fads and 60c. an hour for 20c.-an-hour labor are the results of the neglect of our councils, our boards of trade and our manufacturers and similar associations—some of the managers of which are receiving big salaries—to perform their duties.—Financial Times.

Side Talks by Ruth Cameron

HOW TO HANDLE HENRY.

In a moment of impatience when his automobile had been having one of those spells which the best of automobiles are liable to have, he declared that he was going to sell the confounded thing.

Instead, "It does cost us an awful lot," she agreed. "Perhaps we don't get our money's worth out of it. I suppose we really ought to sell it. I wonder how we had better go about it. If we aren't going to have another we can't turn it in, so we will have to sell outright. I suppose we had better put an ad. in the paper."

"Yes," said the husband, "and we would be about 1500 dollars better off. Do you mean to say that we are getting any 1500 dollars worth out of the thing?"

"I don't know," she said, "but I know his wife is very much devoted to the machine and enjoys it as she never enjoyed anything before. I suppose she knows that it is a great nuisance at times to him, and he would miss it greatly if he had to dispose of it. Consequently I expect her to make instant protest."

Never Spoke a Word.

word of protest did she never have a moment's peace after that with people calling up on the telephone. It's a blame nuisance, that car is."

That was all that was said on that subject that day. The next day I saw the wife alone and asked her if she didn't feel badly at the idea of selling her beloved car and why didn't she try to discourage her husband instead of agreeing with him.

She doesn't let him take a stand. She smiled at my question. "Why didn't I try to discourage Henry? My dear, it's plain you don't know Henry very well. Suppose I had opposed him what would have happened? He would immediately have become very emphatic; he would have probably gone on record as having absolutely decided to sell the car and perhaps he would have done it. That's just what I wanted to prevent. If he suggests anything I particularly object to I never oppose it for I have found that opposition sets him like—well you know that stuff they put into plaster to make it harder? And once he gets that way it's ten times harder to move him than before. I either say nothing or agree with him. If I can, I subtly suggest the difficulties of what he wants to do without urging them as a reason against it. That's why I mentioned putting an ad. in the paper. He hates bother like that. He hasn't said a word about selling the car since. Of course it doesn't always work. Nothing does, but I can tell you that it works ten times as well as the other way."

Most of the Time Happily.

Did you ever meet Henry, Reader friend? Not in the flesh, but in the type. Maybe you have met him and wondered long ago how to deal with him. In which case I fancy this will amuse and interest you. Or maybe you have met him comparatively recently and have not yet learned how to handle him? In which case I recommend for your serious consideration this suggestion. The woman who makes it has been married for 14 years (most of the time happily.)

THE LONG WINTER.

"The winter will be long, I'm afraid," observed the prophet, bent and old, who knew the goose-bone lore; "the signs and tokens all agree that there'll be weather fierce to see and stormy winds will roar. The little creatures of the woods have stored up nuts and other goods in quantities immense; in hunting deer and stormproof lairs have manifested sense. The bark is thicker on the trees," the prophet said; "such signs as these were never known to fall; we'll have a winter long and stern, and he who'd have some coal to burn should salt away his kale." The signs and tokens all agree, and yet the seers don't worry me, for always they are wrong; I never knew a prophet yet on whom a man might safely bet; the winter won't be long. The winter won't be long or cold, since length and fierceness are foretold by these prophetic words; the skies will be serene and clear, and Gentle Annie will appear, and raise a cheerful noise. There may be sundry puffs of snow, and now and then cold winds may blow, but they will wink out soon; then all the prophets are agreed that winter will be fierce indeed; it's sure to be like June. When prophets differ we can't guess what sort of elemental stress is scheduled to appear; but when they're all agreed we know that nothing they predict is so, and thus our course is clear.

French Bluebeard Thanks Jury.

MURDERER OF WOMEN GOES TO GUILLOTINE.
VERSAILLES, Dec. 1.—Henri Désiré Landru, "the Bluebeard of Gambais," smiled last night for the first time since his trial opened. A flickering expression of amusement crossed his face as he listened to the fatal words from Judge Gilbert sending him to the guillotine.

"Thank you, gentlemen," said Landru, flourishing his weather-beaten hat in a mocking look to the jury. While the verdict was awaited, the slayer of ten women and a boy spoke words of encouragement to his counsel, M. More Clément, who tired and worn out after his strenuous efforts to save his client from death, was on the verge of collapse.

"Strange it is that a man standing in the shadow of death should console his defender," Landru remarked at one time to those sitting nearby. He refused to be a party to a petition asking President Millerand to commute the sentence to life imprisonment, which was signed among others by the jurors.

"It has been a great show," he said; "I hope the public is satisfied; I give you a rendezvous for the end of February or the beginning of March, to show you how an innocent man dies." The last hours of the trial saw one of the greatest crowds around the court ever seen in Versailles. Pickpockets began operations in the press of the gathering while the jury was out, and three men complained that their wallets had been taken.

"If the trial lasted another day I would be unable to find a seat myself," Landru told the gendarmes, as he surveyed the throngs.

Landru seduced his women victims through promises of marriage. After luring them to his villa at Gambais, the prosecution charged that he killed them and disposed of the bodies by burning them in a small stove, after first cutting them into small pieces and crushing the skulls.

SOME TIME IN THE SPRING, MUTT!

By Bud Fisher

At It Again.

Some newspaper war is on in connection with the Opposition party as to who shall be given the leadership. Well, is there to be elections already? Mr. Morin has been nominated as the proposed leader, and a hint from another source gives Mr. Crosbie, while we would anticipate that a coalition be formed to fight the evils of the present day, so that united effort can better alleviate the financial depression, as well as relieve the destitute and unemployed of our island home. This, too, would save the enormous election expenses as well as unfulfilled manifesto clauses, commonly sent out just to capture votes to sustain and elect men to power.

Men can be found, and good men—with some already in the Government—to run in authority, ruling for the welfare and uplift of the masses, as well as the classes. When we read of one here, and one there trying to capture the hill of leadership, we might (by past experiences) acclaim him a "featherer of his own nest."

Mr. Coaker was going to do wonders for Newfoundland. First he was to bring down the merchants, keep trade in the outports, run a newspaper in the outports, supply for the fishery, undersell in business, lift up the downtrodden, and other things innumerable. But what of the night? Had the Union kept out of party politics, she might have achieved much and kept down monopoly amongst capitalists, combines amongst exporters, agreements amongst shopkeepers—when the same is not for the public welfare—and adjusting wrongs everywhere, it would be good for the masses. Had the President kept aloof from the capitalists' influence, the Reds, and instead of allowing control to fall to others of the marketing, business of the F.P.U. then might be carried to a fine issue, "the independence of our fishermen." Why? Because the outport merchant would rather to-day (if he is an encourager of easier and better business deals) be in favor of a cash system of sowing and reaping than the old system of "take out and turn in."

However, letting bye-gones be by-gones, wouldn't it be more of a business, as well as a political way, to form a government in 1923—or better still now—composed of the experienced veterans in the colony and set down to an economic and sound form of governing, so that the poorer classes can share the sweets and fragrance of a much needed prosperity?—Twillingate Sun.

Another Revenue Builder.

Sugar would be cheaper in this country were it not for the exorbitant duty charged thereon. The tax imposed at present is equal to 6 cents per pound, or nearly one hundred and fifty per cent of the invoiced cost when shipped from Canadian or American refineries. The old duty on sugar was one and a half cents per pound plus ten per cent surtax, totalling one dollar and sixty-five cents per hundred pounds. The rate to-day is four dollars per hundred pounds, plus ten per cent surtax, twenty-five per cent super tax, plus five per cent sales tax, or extra importation tax, bringing the actual tariff rate to close on six dollars per hundred pounds, when not a great deal more than four dollars per hundred pounds is the cost in the foreign market.

According to the Customs Revenue the annual importations of sugar into Newfoundland ports from abroad to somewhat over twelve million pounds or over an average of one million per month the duty on which annual figures total, at the tariff rate are $650,000 per annum, so that monthly the consumers are paying into the revenue the excessive sum of $52,500 on sugar alone.

We presume this outrageous duty goes to meet the bungling which caused such a loss on sugar in 1920 by the Food Control (7) Board, the loss of which amounted to nearly two hundred thousand dollars, and this is the cause of the extreme tariff on sugar to-day. We ought to be now getting our sugar for nine or ten cents per pound here. The sugar business like the fish business under Government management panned out ridiculously in the public eye, when a half a million of money wrung from the treasury went to buy fish last year, and thus with extra burdens laid on us, we have to try and bring the country out of Egypt. Some taxation.—Twillingate Sun.

ST. PIERRE AND MIQUELON IN THE LIMELIGHT.

Halifax, N.S. (Canadian Press Mail).—St. Pierre and Miquelon, the French islands in the Gulf of St. Lawrence, ten miles off the coast of Newfoundland, have figured rather frequently in press despatches of late, as the alleged sources of the liquor supply of smugglers who have been operating during the past summer on the coasts of the Maritime provinces and New England. These two islands the remnants of the once extensive dominions of France in the new world, have an area of 91 square miles. They are rough and hilly with extensive outcroppings of barren rock, and the population of something over 4,000 is mainly centered in the town of St. Pierre on the smaller island. St. Pierre has a good harbor and for generations has been the headquarters of the Atlantic fisheries of France. Twenty years ago 500 sail of vessels, including those from old France, fitted out for fisheries at St. Pierre, and by 1912 the fleet had increased to 800 sail, but since then the big local fleet of sailing vessels, schooners, briggs, brigs, galleons and barges, has dwindled, and now most of the inhabitants use motor boats in the fishing. The Metropolitan fleet from France has also been reduced, and the old sailing vessels have been largely replaced by steam trawlers. St. Pierre has had a stormy history. Occupied by the French in 1660; was captured by the British in 1702 and held by them until 1763, when it was restored to France as a fishing station. In 1778 it was again destroyed by the British, and in 1783 again restored to France. Ten years later it was again captured and depopulated by the British, and in 1802 it was recovered by the French, only to be recaptured by the British in the following year. In 1814 it was recovered by France, and since then has been a French possession.

GREAT SHIPPING RESORT.

For years St. Pierre has been a resort for the fishing vessels of New England, Nova Scotia, Spain and Portugal. In the old days most American and Canadian deep-sea fishermen, after filling up with fish on the banks, called into St. Pierre to secure a supply of liquor for a carousal on the passage home. Not a few vessels leaving St. Pierre with full fares and full crews, failed to reach their home ports. As a source of supply for liquor smugglers St. Pierre has long worried the revenue officers of Canada and the Atlantic sea-board of the United States. All types of craft from steam yachts to fishing lugger have been engaged in smuggling operations from St. Pierre, though the natives have confined their enterprise to supplying the booze. Some years ago the French authorities by drastic measures had managed to restrict the supply of liquors available for smuggling to a very small quantity, but since the advent of prohibition in eastern Canada and the United States, new methods of evading the stringent export regulations of the colony have been discovered and the activities of smugglers have caused revenue officers in neighboring countries much loss of sleep. Since the war the Government of France has formulated some rather grandiose projects for the development of its fisheries, and has constructed a huge cold storage plant at St. Pierre and established a refrigerator steamship service with the colony. A few weeks ago the French Government sent out a "governor," a functionary of importance in the French colonial system, to take the place of the "administrator" who has been head of the Colony since 1896. This change in the political establishment is regarded as significant as an indication of the French government's new interest in the development of the fisheries and of its determination to make the most of the strategic position of the islands, which are in proximity to Banquereau and St. Pierre banks, and within forty-eight hours sail of the Grand Banks of Newfoundland. Apart from the traditional and sentimental importance which attaches to the office of governor, such a functionary brings new dignity and prestige to the islands and introduces a new element in their relations to the governments of Canada and Newfoundland.

Head of the House.

That a wife may be the head of the house was the ruling made by the Court of Revision in Toronto recently in an appeal by Mrs. Edmund Phillips against an income assessment of $1,500. "I am the head of the house," said Mrs. Phillips. "I pay all the expenses of the house, and am entitled therefore, to a $2,000 exemption." The court made the exemption. Chairman P. H. Drayton remarked: "In this day, when women have the vote and so many other things in the political and commercial world putting them on an equality with men, it may be accepted as a fact that a wife may be the head of the house." Mrs. Phillips is the head of the Ontario Board of Moving Picture Censors. Stafford's Ginger Wine for Christmas, 20c. per bottle, at Stafford's Drug Store, Theatre Hill. —4607.11

The Tour of the Prince of Wales.

HIS ROYAL HIGHNESS JOURNEYS THROUGH INDIA.

London, Dec. 7. (By Canadian Press).—The tour of the Prince of Wales in India, in its final phases, in February and the first half of March, 1922, includes a busy week in Delhi, the seat of the Supreme Government under the British Crown, and from there he will proceed to the premier State of the Punjab, Patiala, in the latter part of February. In connection with the visit of the Heir apparent to Patiala it is of interest to note that on the day he embarked on the battle cruiser Renown for his Indian tour the ruler of Patiala unveiled at Brighton, England, the memorial gateway given to that town by Indian subscribers in recognition of the care some thousands of Indian wounded soldiers had received in the hospital there. In the Great War some 28,000 subjects of the Maharaja of Patiala enlisted in the British forces, and the Patiala Imperial Service troops fought with great distinction on many battle fronts, doing particularly good service in Palestine and Mesopotamia. On his way to Lahore, which will be reached on February 25th, the Prince will stop at Jullunder to see the pensioners and ex-soldiers of the Indian military school for the sons of soldiers. In the Punjab capital the Prince will receive an address of welcome from the members of the Punjab Legislature. A great feature of his sojourn in Lahore will be a review of pensioned Indian officers at the Minto Park, to be followed by sports and illuminations. Stopping en route at Sialkot to see the garrison there, His Royal Highness, on March 2nd, will reach Jammu, the winter headquarters of the Maharaja of Kashmir and Jammu. From this State went forth many thousands of its subjects to fight for the Allies in the war, and the State maintained at full strength on various fronts an admirably efficient force of Imperial Service troops. At Jammu the Prince will come the nearest in his tour to the civilization under Northern Buddhism, and will see interesting spectacles such as no other centre of his journey can offer. These will include an exhibition of the game of Balaistan polo, a parade of the different races and communities of the State in their national dress, a dance of Lamas, and an exhibition of the crafts at Kashmir.

TO OPEN ROYAL MILITARY COLLEGE.

It is a far cry from the extreme north of the Punjab to Dehra Dun, in the United Provinces, on the foothills of the Himalayas, and the journey will be broken about midway to enable the Prince to visit Kapurthala, one of the six-Sutlej States, the purpose of the visit being almost entirely military. The Prince will open the Royal Indian Military College there, which is to prepare Indian boys selected for cadet ships at Sandhurst. He will also present colors to the Lawrence Military School for Anglo-Indian boys, which was founded by Sir John Lawrence. A party of boys from Sanawar, in the Simla Hills, will attend this function. The Prince will spend a few days in recreation near the end of his progress through India, so full of social and ceremonial functions, and will be the guest of Sir Harcourt Butler at the Kadir Cup Camp at Gajraula, in the Meerut district. The word "Kadir" simply means a river-bed. The Meerut Kadir is about 100 miles long, and through this distance the Ganges has hollowed out a bed twenty or thirty feet below the level of the surrounding country, and varying in width from three to eight miles. It is a land of far horizons and of grass and swamp, and casts a charm on all who go there to see the keen contest for "the blue ribbon of Indian pig-sticking." After witnessing the final stages of the pig-sticking competition, the Prince will proceed to Karachi. The farewell ceremonies in connection with the Prince's tour in India will take place at Karachi, and His Royal Highness will embark on the battle cruiser Renown on March 17th. The Renown, after four months in India, will then leave for Colombo, en route for Japan.

Herring Fisheries

During the latter part of the herring were very plentiful in the Bay of Islands and catches ranging from 90 to 100 tons were made.

The ice last week destroyed fishing gear in Middle Arm. Some people lost all their nets and had to buy up the voyage.

On Thursday those who went to get to their gear had very good success, but many were prevented from hauling owing to the presence of ice.

On Friday there was big fishing all over Middle Arm and boats loaded.

Herring were not so plentiful Saturday as on the previous days, fish having evidently gone to water, but many of the boats kept fishing.

There were no herring in the Arm the past week, and those who went there had to take it up to the presence of ice.

The schooner Donald Silver last week from Woods Island (Gloucester, with a full cargo of herring for the Bay of Islands and Co.

Several cargoes of herring brought into the packing station during the week from Middle Arm and Saturday.—Western Star.

With the Hunters

Donald Peley returned from hunting grounds on Monday. He secured two caribou, and a game score.

J. R. MacDonald, R. Nardine, Pieroway, of Bay St. George, returned last Wednesday from a few hunting trip up country.

Supervisor Pennell who came to country on Friday states that he has secured since he saw a caribou, as though the animals have all been for this season.—Western Star.

Roil's Plank for Tenants.

In the course of my Real Estate Business a large number of tenants have complained of the exorbitant rents now being charged for Houses, Rooms, etc. I do not like to judge on any matter by hearing one side.

After considering same I have deemed it wise to make it a Plank in my Election Campaign and I have pledged myself if elected to go into the matter in a business like way and to work out a system that will be more equitable to both Landlord and Tenant, and, if necessary, move for an appointment of a Commission (that will be a Roll Commission) to deal with all matters concerning the Housing Situation. At present I fear some tenants are at the mercy of unscrupulous landlords, but fortunately for some of us all are not of the same calibre.

In view of the above conditions—too well known to a large number of you, I want the earnest support of every Tenant in the City to put my Plank in operation.

It is up to all Tenants to give me the power by marking your X opposite the name of

FRED. J. ROIL,
The Real Estate Man.
(In my next I will touch on the Sectarian Issue.)

FALSE ECONOMY.

It is often remarked by customers, "I must try and make my old clothes do for the winter." Perhaps the winter may mean very much longer. To protect your body against our cold winds you want warm woollens. An investment in a good Suit or Overcoat may save you months of illness. Durable material, cut and moulded to your figure by expert workmanship in the garment at MAUNDER'S. Samples and self-measuring cards sent to your address.
